Revelation 3:7 speaks of Christ as the one “who has the key of David, who opens and no one will shut.” Acts 8:26-40 records an Ethiopian official coming to faith. Ephesians 2:13-14 says that those who were far off have been brought near. Galatians 3:8 says the gospel was preached beforehand to Abraham: “In you shall all the nations be blessed.” Revelation 21:24 pictures the nations bringing their glory into the city.

STEP 6

Application

Where are you trusting in something other than God for security: a job, savings, relationships, a plan?

Pray for a nation or group you would not usually pray for, including those who have been enemies.

Remember that the keys of the kingdom are in the hands of Jesus, and bring a closed door to him in prayer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you look to Egypt, to people or things, for help.
- Pray for the nations to be brought into his kingdom.
- Thank him that his plan stands.

DAY 390 · WEEK 56

Psalm 75

At the set time I will judge with equity

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 10 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 75. It is a short psalm in which God speaks about his appointed time to judge. Notice how the psalm moves between praise, a divine oracle, and the psalmist's response.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 75 is a psalm of Asaph, set to the tune "Do Not Destroy." It likely belongs to the time of the Assyrian crisis. The people are surrounded by arrogant powers, and the question is when God will act. The answer comes in a divine oracle: God has an appointed time, and he will judge with equity. It is a good companion to the oracles against the nations you have just read.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "We give thanks to you, O God; we give thanks, for your name is near" (v. 1).
2. "At the set time that I appoint I will judge with equity" (v. 2).
3. "When the earth totters, and all its inhabitants, it is I who keep steady its pillars" (v. 3).
4. "I say to the boastful, Do not boast, and to the wicked, Do not lift up your horn" (v. 4).
5. "Do not lift up your horn on high, or speak with haughty neck" (v. 5).
6. "For not from the east or from the west and not from the wilderness comes lifting up" (v. 6).
7. "But it is God who executes judgment, putting down one and lifting up another" (v. 7).
8. "All the horns of the wicked I will cut off, but the horns of the righteous shall be lifted up" (v. 10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with thanks. The strange thing is that the thanks come before the judgment. The psalmist is confident that God is near, and he can give thanks in advance. This is the posture of faith. We thank God not only for what he has done but for what he is going to do.

Then God speaks: "At the set time that I appoint I will judge with equity." Two things are stressed. First, God has a schedule. Judgment is not rushed or delayed by accident. It will come at the right moment, when he decides. People often think that because judgment is delayed, it will never come. The psalm says it will. Second, God judges with equity. He does not act capriciously. His judgment is perfectly fair.

When the earth totters and the foundations seem to shake, God says it is he who steadies its pillars. In the Assyrian crisis, with kingdoms collapsing, the world seemed unstable. The psalm assures us that the stability of the world rests on God.

Then the oracle addresses the arrogant: do not boast, do not lift up your horn. The horn is a symbol of strength and pride. The proud think they can raise themselves. But "not from the east or from the west… comes lifting up." No human direction offers promotion. "It is God who executes judgment, putting down one and lifting up another." Everything depends on him.

The cup in verse 8 is a cup of wrath. The wicked of the earth will drink it to the dregs. Against that, the psalmist says: "I will declare it forever; I will sing praises to the God of Jacob." The final verse contrasts the horns of the wicked, which will be cut off, with the horns of the righteous, which will be lifted up.

STEP 5

Connection

Mary's song says, "He has brought down the mighty from their thrones and exalted those of humble estate" (Luke 1:52). Jesus said that those who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted (Luke 14:11). 1 Peter 5:6 says, "Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God so that at the proper time he may exalt you." Jesus drank the cup of God's wrath on the cross (Mark 14:36).

STEP 6

Application

If you are tempted to boast, remember that all lifting up comes from God.

If you are waiting for justice, trust God's set time, and give thanks in advance.

Pray for stability for those whose world is shaking.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks to God for being near.
- Ask him to keep you from boasting.
- Thank him that he judges with equity.

DAY 391 · WEEK 56

Psalm 76

In Judah God is known

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 76. It is a victory song for Zion, probably written after the Assyrian army was destroyed outside Jerusalem. Imagine the people singing it in the temple after the night the camp fell silent.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 76 is a psalm of Asaph. Its mention of "Salem" and "Zion" places it in Jerusalem, and its description of warriors who "found not use of their hands" fits what happened to Sennacherib's army in 2 Kings 19:35, when the angel of the LORD struck down 185,000 men in one night. You read this psalm once in Unit 8, where the focus was on God's presence. Here, hear it as the song after the Assyrian crisis.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In Judah God is known; his name is great in Israel" (v. 1).
2. "His abode has been established in Salem, his dwelling place in Zion" (v. 2).
3. "There he broke the flashing arrows, the shield, the sword, and the weapons of war" (v. 3).
4. "The stouthearted were stripped of their spoil; they sank into sleep; all the men of war were unable to use their hands" (v. 5).
5. "At your rebuke, O God of Jacob, both rider and horse lay stunned" (v. 6).
6. "But you, you are to be feared! Who can stand before you when once your anger is roused?" (v. 7).

7. “From the heavens you uttered judgment; the earth feared and was still, when God arose to establish judgment, to save all the humble of the earth” (vv. 8-9).

8. “Make vows to the LORD your God and perform them; let all around him bring gifts to him who is to be feared” (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a claim. In Judah God is known. This is a statement about revelation. Other nations had their gods, but the LORD made himself known in a specific people and place. His dwelling is in Zion, and from there he reveals who he is.

The picture of verse 3 is a victory without a battle on Judah’s side. The arrows, the shield, the sword are broken “there,” at Jerusalem. The enemy soldiers were stripped of their spoil and sank into sleep, the sleep of death. The mighty are helpless. The psalm does not mention Judah’s army. It was God’s victory. “At your rebuke… both rider and horse lay stunned.” In the Assyrian camp, with their chariots and horsemen, nothing was left.

The turning point is the question in verse 7: “Who can stand before you when once your anger is roused?” It is not a question about the Assyrian army only. It is a question for everyone. No one can stand before God’s anger. And yet, the same verse of judgment has a purpose: “to save all the humble of the earth.” God’s judgment is a rescue for those who are oppressed. The wrath of man shall praise him, the psalm says, and the survivors of wrath will be restrained.

The psalm then calls for a response. Make vows and keep them. Bring gifts to the one to be feared. The proper response to a God who is awesome is worship and fulfilling our promises to him. And the final line is a warning to the powerful: “He cuts off the spirit of princes; he is to be feared by the kings of the earth.”

For Hezekiah and the people of Jerusalem, this psalm was a testimony. The God of whom Isaiah spoke had done what he said.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said that the gates of hell will not prevail against his church (Matthew 16:18). Revelation 19:11-16 shows a victorious king on a white horse. Colossians 2:15 says Christ disarmed the rulers and authorities and made a public spectacle of them. Zephaniah 3:17 says the LORD is mighty to save. Romans 12:1 invites us to make our own offering. Hebrews 12:28-29 says our God is a consuming fire and calls for reverence.

STEP 6

Application

Think about a situation in which you were rescued without doing anything. Give thanks for it.

Keep a vow you have made to God and neglected.

Take comfort that God saves “all the humble of the earth.” Choose humility today.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Stand in awe of God’s name and power.

Thank him for saving the humble.

Tell him a vow you want to keep.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Isaiah 9:6 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For to us a child is born, to us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace."

ISAIAH 9:6

REST

Meditation

This verse is among the best loved in the Bible, and it is easy to hear it as only a Christmas carol. Read it today as Isaiah's first hearers did, in a time of fear and darkness.

"For to us a child is born." The Messiah will be truly human, born into the world as every child is. "To us a son is given." He is a gift. The first phrase says what he is, a real child. The second says where he comes from, a gift from God. He is both fully one of us and given to us from above.

"The government shall be upon his shoulder." A child with the weight of the world's government on his shoulder. In the ancient world, the key or the robe of office was worn on the shoulder. The one who rules is the child. It is a paradox that the New Testament unfolds, a king born in a manger, who rules from a cross.

Then four names. “Wonderful Counselor” means that he has wisdom beyond ours, and that he never gives bad advice. “Mighty God” means that he is not merely human. He is God, the divine warrior. “Everlasting Father” means that he cares for his people with a father’s love and does so forever. “Prince of Peace” means that he is the source of wholeness, and the reconciler between God and man.

Say the names slowly. Choose one that you most need today. If you are confused, he is your Counselor. If you are afraid, he is the Mighty God. If you feel alone, he is the Everlasting Father. If you are anxious or divided, he is your Prince of Peace.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the oracles of Isaiah’s first section. You read the great promises of the Messiah: the light in Galilee, the child born to us, the shoot from Jesse’s stump, and the kingdom where the earth is filled with the knowledge of the LORD. You took a doctrinal pause on the holiness of God, linking Isaiah’s vision to Peter’s call to be holy. You surveyed the oracles against Babylon, Philistia, Moab, Egypt, Jerusalem, and Tyre, and saw that God rules all the nations and even promises to bless Egypt and Assyria. And you read two psalms of the Assyrian crisis: Psalm 75, on God’s set time to judge, and Psalm 76, a victory song for Zion. The week taught that God is holy, that he rules history, and that he sends a child who will be the Prince of Peace.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

God’s holiness means that he is set apart and morally pure. How does that change the way you think of coming to him?

Isaiah 9:6 gives four names for the coming king. Which of these do you most need Jesus to be for you this week, and why?

The oracles against the nations show that God rules all of history. What situation in the world or your own life is easier to face when you remember this?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the child born and the son given.

Pray that his government and peace would grow in your life.

Rest in him as Prince of Peace.

DAY 393 · WEEK 57

Psalm 83

O God, do not keep silence

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 18 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 83. It is a prayer against a coalition of enemy nations that plot to wipe Israel off the map. Notice what the psalmist finally asks God to do to the enemies, and why.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 83 is a song of Asaph. It lists ten nations that have conspired against Israel: Edom, the Ishmaelites, Moab, the Hagrites, Gebal, Ammon, Amalek, Philistia, Tyre, and Assyria. The occasion may be one of the great coalitions in Judah's history, such as the one in 2 Chronicles 20. It follows the oracles against the nations: those who plot against God's people will answer to God.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "O God, do not keep silence; do not hold your peace or be still, O God!" (v. 1).
2. "For behold, your enemies make an uproar; those who hate you have raised their heads" (v. 2).
3. "They lay crafty plans against your people; they consult together against your treasured ones" (v. 3).
4. "They say, Come, let us wipe them out as a nation; let the name of Israel be remembered no more!" (v. 4).
5. "For they conspire with one accord; against you they make a covenant" (v. 5).
6. "Do to them as you did to Midian, as to Sisera and Jabin at the river Kishon" (v. 9).
7. "Fill their faces with shame, that they may seek your name, O LORD" (v. 16).

8 “That they may know that you alone, whose name is the LORD, are the Most High over all the earth” (v. 18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with an urgent plea that God would not be silent. The psalmist feels that God is quiet while the enemies are loud. This is the common experience of the people of God: the wicked are noisy and active, and God seems to be still. The prayer asks God to speak and act.

The enemies’ plan is genocide. “Come, let us wipe them out as a nation; let the name of Israel be remembered no more!” It is a conspiracy to erase God’s people. Notice the key line in verse 5: “Against you they make a covenant.” The psalmist sees that the attack on Israel is an attack on God. The people are God’s treasured ones, and to threaten them is to threaten him. This is the same logic as Saul on the road to Damascus, who was asked, “Why are you persecuting me?”

The psalmist then recalls past victories: Midian, Sisera, Jabin, Oreb and Zeeb. These were not won by Israel’s strength but by God’s intervention. The memory of past deliverance is the ground of present prayer.

The prayer for judgment uses imagery of fire, wind, and storms: let them be like tumbleweed, like chaff before the wind, like a forest in flames. But look at the purpose. “Fill their faces with shame, that they may seek your name, O LORD.” The aim is not only destruction but conversion. The psalmist wants the enemies to be humbled so that they will seek God. And the final goal is universal: “that they may know that you alone, whose name is the LORD, are the Most High over all the earth.”

This is the true motive of all faithful prayer for justice: the glory of God and the knowing of his name across the earth.

STEP 5

Connection

In Acts 9:4, Jesus asked Saul, “Why are you persecuting me?” Saul, once an enemy, became an apostle, just as the psalm hopes enemies may seek the LORD’s name. Matthew 5:44 commands us to love our enemies and pray for those who persecute us. Philippians 2:10-11 says that every knee will bow and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father. Revelation 11:15 says the kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord.

STEP 6

Application

Pray for those who oppose the church, that they would seek the name of the LORD.

Remember a past deliverance and give thanks. Let it support a present prayer.

Pray for the persecuted church by name, if you know a country or region.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what troubles his people today.
- Ask him to act, and to bring his enemies to seek his name.
- Remember what he has done in the past.

ISAIAH 26:3

DAY 394 · WEEK 57

Isaiah 24:1-27:13

The Isaiah Apocalypse, cosmic judgment and salvation

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 87 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 24:1-27:13. These chapters are called the Isaiah Apocalypse. They look beyond the Assyrian crisis to the end of history. Read for the big picture: the whole earth judged, and a feast on the mountain of the LORD.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the oracles against individual nations, Isaiah steps back and describes judgment on the whole earth. The language is cosmic, with the earth laid waste, the heavens shaken, and the moon confounded. And in the midst of it, there are songs of praise, a banquet for all peoples, and the promise that death itself will be swallowed up. Though these chapters are difficult, they contain some of the most beautiful promises in the Bible.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Behold, the LORD will empty the earth and make it desolate, and he will twist its surface and scatter its inhabitants” (24:1).
2. “The earth lies defiled under its inhabitants; for they have transgressed the laws, violated the statutes, broken the everlasting covenant” (24:5).
3. “O LORD, you are my God; I will exalt you; I will praise your name, for you have done wonderful things” (25:1).
4. “On this mountain the LORD of hosts will make for all peoples a feast of rich food, a feast of well-aged wine” (25:6).
5. “He will swallow up death forever; and the Lord GOD will wipe away tears from all faces” (25:8).

6. “You keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on you, because he trusts in you” (26:3).
7. “Your dead shall live; their bodies shall rise” (26:19).
8. “In that day the LORD with his hard and great and strong sword will punish Leviathan” (27:1).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 24 describes universal judgment. It falls on everyone: priest and people, master and servant, buyer and seller. The cause is that humanity has broken “the everlasting covenant.” This is not just Israel’s sin but the sin of the whole human race, going back to Adam and Noah. The earth itself suffers under the guilt of its inhabitants.

Yet scattered through the judgment are glimpses of praise. From the ends of the earth, songs of glory to the Righteous One are heard. And then in chapter 25, an extended song of thanks. God has been a stronghold to the poor and needy, a shelter from the storm, a shade from the heat. He has done wonderful things, plans formed of old, faithful and sure.

The heart of the Apocalypse is Isaiah 25:6-9. On the mountain of the LORD, a feast is prepared for all peoples. This is not for Israel alone. It is the banquet of the kingdom. And the shroud that covers all peoples will be destroyed. “He will swallow up death forever.” God himself will wipe away tears from all faces. The disgrace of his people will be removed. And the people will say, “This is our God; we have waited for him, that he might save us.” The sight of death’s defeat is the central hope of the Old Testament.

Chapter 26 is a song for the day of salvation, and it contains the verse for this week: “You keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on you.” A mind fixed on God is a mind at rest. And verse 19, “Your dead shall live; their bodies shall rise,” is one of the clearest statements of resurrection in the Old Testament. Chapter 27 ends with the vineyard of Isaiah 5 restored: “Israel shall blossom and put forth shoots and fill the whole world with fruit.”

STEP 5

Connection

Paul quotes Isaiah 25:8 in 1 Corinthians 15:54: “Death is swallowed up in victory.” Revelation 21:4 echoes: “He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more.” Jesus told of the great banquet (Luke 14:15-24) and the wedding feast (Matthew 22:1-14). Revelation 19:9 speaks of the marriage supper of the Lamb. Philippians 4:7 speaks of the peace of God that guards our hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Isaiah 26:3 and practice it when you feel anxious.

Think about someone who has died in Christ, and take comfort from the promise of resurrection.

Remember the banquet. Invite someone this week to a meal as a small picture of the feast.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God for the wonderful things he has done.

Thank him that he will swallow up death forever and wipe away tears.

Tell him what tears you are bringing him.

ISAIAH 26:3

DAY 395 · WEEK 57

Isaiah 28:1-30:33

Woes to Ephraim and Judah; “in quietness and trust”

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 82 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 28:1-30:33. These chapters are a series of woes aimed at the leaders of Israel and Judah. They are pointed and sometimes sarcastic. Look for the contrast between trusting in political schemes and “in quietness and trust.”

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

As the Assyrian threat grows, the leaders in Jerusalem begin to look to Egypt for a military alliance. Isaiah condemns the plan as a covenant with death. The woes of these chapters describe drunken priests, hypocritical worship, secret plans made without God, and people who tell the prophets to stop giving them hard truths. At the center is a beautiful word about the cornerstone that God lays in Zion.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Woe to the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim” (28:1).
2. “Precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line, here a little, there a little” (28:10).
3. “You have said, We have made a covenant with death, and with Sheol we have an agreement” (28:15).
4. “Behold, I am the one who has laid as a foundation in Zion, a stone, a tested stone, a precious cornerstone, of a sure foundation: Whoever believes will not be in haste” (28:16).
5. “This people draw near with their mouth and honor me with their lips, while their hearts are far from me” (29:13).

6. “Woe to those who hide deep from the LORD their counsel” (29:15).
7. “In returning and rest you shall be saved; in quietness and in trust shall be your strength. But you were unwilling” (30:15).
8. “Therefore the LORD waits to be gracious to you, and therefore he exalts himself to show mercy to you” (30:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 28 begins with the drunken leaders of the northern kingdom, whose fall is near. Then it turns to Jerusalem’s priests and prophets, who also stagger in drink. They mock Isaiah’s simple teaching as baby talk. “Precept upon precept” is how they hear it. God replies that if they will not listen to simple words, they will hear foreign tongues, the language of the Assyrian invaders.

The leaders have made a “covenant with death.” They think they have cheated the grave by political deals. But God lays a different foundation: a tested stone, a precious cornerstone, “a sure foundation.” Whoever believes in him will not be in a panic. The standard of justice will be the plumb line. In the face of political panic, the faithful rest on the stone God has laid.

Chapter 29 criticizes hollow religion. The people honor God with their lips but their hearts are far from him, and their fear of God is a tradition learned by rote. They think that God cannot see their schemes. Isaiah says the potter is not the same as the clay. God sees everything, and yet his plan includes a coming day when “the deaf shall hear the words of a book, and out of their gloom the eyes of the blind shall see.”

Chapter 30 is the center of this section. The people are sending envoys to Egypt, trusting in Pharaoh’s protection, and refusing to listen to the prophets. They say, “Do not prophesy to us what is right; speak to us smooth things.” God’s offer is simple: “In returning and rest you shall be saved; in quietness and in trust shall be your strength. But you were unwilling.” The most tragic words in the passage. Yet verse 18 is full of grace: “The LORD waits to be gracious to you.” The God who is angry is also the God who waits, and who will answer the cry for help.

STEP 5

Connection

Peter quotes Isaiah 28:16 in 1 Peter 2:6 and calls Christ the cornerstone. Paul quotes it in Romans 9:33 and 10:11. Jesus quotes Isaiah 29:13 in Mark 7:6-7. Paul quotes Isaiah 29:14 in 1 Corinthians 1:19. Hebrews 4:9-11 speaks of a Sabbath rest for the people of God. Psalm 46:10 says, “Be still, and know that I am God.” Matthew 11:28 offers rest to the weary.

STEP 6

Application

Practice “quietness and trust” for ten minutes today. Turn off every distraction and simply rest in God.

Ask yourself where you have made a “covenant with death,” a plan to avoid consequences or guarantee security without God.

Receive the truth that the LORD waits to be gracious to you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the cornerstone he laid.
- Confess where you honor him with lips but not heart.
- Ask for quietness and trust.

ISAIAH 26:3

DAY 396 · WEEK 57

Isaiah 31:1-35:10

Woe to those who go to Egypt; the highway of holiness

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 88 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 31:1-35:10. The woes continue against reliance on Egypt, but then chapters 32 to 35 move toward a glorious future. Read chapter 35 slowly, as a picture of the transformed world.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The crisis with Assyria is at its height. Hezekiah's advisors continue to look to Egypt for horses and chariots. Isaiah warns them against it, and then describes a righteous king, a poured-out Spirit, a coming judgment on Edom, and the joyful return of the redeemed along "the highway of holiness." Chapters 34 and 35 close the first half of Isaiah with a stark contrast between judgment and joy.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Woe to those who go down to Egypt for help and rely on horses, who trust in chariots because they are many... but do not look to the Holy One of Israel" (31:1).
2. "The Egyptians are man, and not God, and their horses are flesh, and not spirit" (31:3).
3. "Behold, a king will reign in righteousness, and princes will rule in justice" (32:1).
4. "Until the Spirit is poured upon us from on high, and the wilderness becomes a fruitful field" (32:15).
5. "The effect of righteousness will be peace, and the result of righteousness, quietness and trust forever" (32:17).
6. "O LORD, be gracious to us; we wait for you" (33:2).

7. “For the LORD is our judge; the LORD is our lawgiver; the LORD is our king; he will save us” (33:22).

8. “And a highway shall be there, and it shall be called the Way of Holiness” (35:8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The main sin of chapter 31 is stated plainly: trusting in horses and chariots rather than in the Holy One of Israel. Isaiah’s contrast is memorable: “The Egyptians are man, and not God, and their horses are flesh, and not spirit.” Whatever human power we trust in is limited by its own nature. The LORD of hosts will fight for Jerusalem like a lion over its prey or like birds hovering. He will protect and deliver.

Chapter 32 opens with a promise of a righteous king and a time when people will see clearly. It also speaks to the complacent women of the city, who will be shaken from their ease. But then, “until the Spirit is poured upon us from on high.” This is a promise of the Spirit’s coming and of a transformation of the land. The result is justice, righteousness, peace, and security. These flow from God’s Spirit.

Chapter 33 contains a prayer, “O LORD, be gracious to us; we wait for you,” and then the stunning reversal of the Assyrian threat. The enemy who dealt treacherously will be dealt with. Then the prophet asks who can live with the consuming fire, and answers: he who walks righteously and speaks uprightly. And the chapter ends with a great statement: “The LORD is our judge; the LORD is our lawgiver; the LORD is our king; he will save us.”

Chapter 34 is the dark side, a judgment on the nations, symbolized by Edom. And chapter 35 is the bright side. It is a poem of transformation. The desert blossoms. The weak hands are strengthened. The eyes of the blind are opened, the ears of the deaf unstopped, the lame leap like a deer, and the mute sing. A highway is built, the Way of Holiness. The unclean shall not pass over it, but the redeemed shall walk there. “The ransomed of the LORD shall return and come to Zion with singing; everlasting joy shall be upon their heads.” It is the vision of salvation as a return home.

STEP 5

Connection

When John the Baptist’s disciples asked Jesus if he was the one, Jesus answered by pointing to the signs of Isaiah 35: the blind see, the lame walk, the deaf hear (Matthew 11:2-5). Acts 2:17 quotes Joel on the pouring out of the Spirit, and Acts 2 shows its fulfillment. Jesus said, “I am the way” (John 14:6). Hebrews 12:12 echoes Isaiah 35:3. Revelation 21:4 says sorrow and sighing will flee away.

STEP 6

Application

Identify one “horse and chariot” you tend to trust, whether money, connections, or skills. Place it under God’s care.

Pray for the Spirit to be “poured out from on high” on your church and community.

Strengthen a weak hand this week by encouraging someone who is struggling.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess where you trust horses and chariots.

Ask God to pour out his Spirit on his people.

Thank him that he makes a highway of holiness for his redeemed.

ISAIAH 26:3

DAY 397 · WEEK 57

Isaiah 36:1-37:38

The Assyrian crisis; Hezekiah's prayer; Sennacherib falls

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 60 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 36:1-37:38. This is the same story you read in 2 Kings 18-19, now from Isaiah's side. Notice what is added: the sharpness of the Assyrian propaganda, the detail of Hezekiah's prayer, and the poem that Isaiah speaks against Sennacherib.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Isaiah 36-39 is a historical interlude that connects the two halves of the book. It repeats and expands the account in 2 Kings, with an important addition in Isaiah 38. In 701 BC, Sennacherib besieged Jerusalem after capturing the other cities of Judah. He sent his field commander to demoralize the city. This is the pivotal event of the first half of Isaiah: will the nation trust in God or in the powers of the world?

STEP 3

Observation

1. "What is this trust of yours?" (36:4).
2. "Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be able to deliver you" (36:14).
3. "Who among all the gods of these lands have delivered their lands out of my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?" (36:20).
4. "This day is a day of distress, of rebuke, and of disgrace" (37:3).
5. "O LORD of hosts, enthroned above the cherubim, you are the God, you alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth" (37:16).
6. "Incline your ear, O LORD, and hear; open your eyes, O LORD, and see" (37:17).
7. "Whom have you mocked and reviled? Against whom have you raised your voice?" (37:23).

8 “And the angel of the LORD went out and struck down 185,000 in the camp of the Assyrians” (37:36).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The field commander speaks like a skilled propagandist. He begins by undermining confidence in Egypt, then in Hezekiah, then in the LORD. He says that Hezekiah removed the altars of the LORD, which he distorts as an insult to God, though it was a reform. He claims that the LORD told him to attack Judah. And his final argument is the most dangerous: no god of any nation has saved it from Assyria, so why would the LORD? It places the LORD on the same level as the idols of the nations. It is a claim that God is no different from other gods, and it has to be answered.

Hezekiah’s response is quiet. The army is ordered not to answer. The king goes to the house of the LORD and sends for the prophet. Isaiah gives the first word: “Do not be afraid.” Then Sennacherib sends a second letter, and Hezekiah does the thing for which he is remembered. He spreads it out before the LORD. His prayer is a model. It begins with who God is: enthroned above the cherubim, the only God of all the kingdoms, the maker of heaven and earth. It describes the threat honestly. It makes a request: save us. And it states the purpose: “that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you alone are the LORD.”

God’s answer through Isaiah is a poem of mockery against the proud king. “Whom have you mocked and reviled?” It was against the Holy One of Israel. The king thinks he has conquered by his own power, but God says, “Have you not heard that I determined it long ago?” Assyria was an instrument, and its pride is its downfall. God promises to put his hook in Sennacherib’s nose and turn him back the way he came.

That night the angel of the LORD strikes down 185,000 in the camp. In the morning, the army is dead. Sennacherib returns to Nineveh, and years later he is killed by his own sons while worshiping his god. The god he trusted could not protect him.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus told his disciples to pray in his name and promised that the Father would give what they asked (John 16:23-24). Hebrews 4:16 invites us to the throne of grace. 2 Corinthians 10:4-5 says our weapons are not of the flesh but have divine power to destroy strongholds. Psalm 46 and Psalm 48, coming up, celebrate this deliverance. Revelation 12:11 says the saints conquer by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony.

STEP 6

Application

Use Hezekiah's prayer as a pattern: begin with who God is, bring the problem honestly, make your request, and state your purpose.

When voices tell you that no one can help you, remember the 185,000.

Write down a problem and, as Hezekiah did, spread it before the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Spread before God what troubles you, as Hezekiah did.

Ask him to incline his ear and open his eyes.

Praise him as the God, you alone.

ISAIAH 26:3

DAY 398 · WEEK 57

Isaiah 38:1-39:8

Hezekiah's illness and recovery; the Babylonian envoys

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 30 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 38:1-39:8. Hezekiah becomes ill, prays, and is given fifteen more years. Then he makes a mistake with the Babylonian envoys. Read the prayer of thanks in 38:9-20, and notice the sober ending.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the last section of the historical interlude. In about 703 BC, Hezekiah became deathly ill. The prophet told him to set his house in order, because he would die. The king turned his face to the wall and prayed. God heard and added fifteen years to his life. Then envoys arrived from Merodach-baladan of Babylon, ostensibly to congratulate him. The story serves as a hinge: the Assyrian threat is over, but the Babylonian one is coming.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Set your house in order, for you shall die, you shall not recover" (38:1).
2. "Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and prayed to the LORD" (38:2).
3. "Remember how I have walked before you in faithfulness and with a whole heart" (38:3).
4. "I have heard your prayer; I have seen your tears. Behold, I will add fifteen years to your life" (38:5).
5. "Behold, it was for my welfare that I had great bitterness; but in love you have delivered my life from the pit of destruction, for you have cast all my sins behind your back" (38:17).
6. "For Sheol does not thank you; death does not praise you" (38:18).

7. “And Hezekiah was pleased, and showed them his treasure house” (39:2).
8. “Days are coming, when all that is in your house… shall be carried to Babylon. Nothing shall be left” (39:6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The illness comes at the same time as the Assyrian threat, perhaps in the same year. For Hezekiah, the news that he would die meant more than personal loss. He had no son, and the Davidic line seemed at risk. He weeps bitterly and prays. His prayer is honest: remember how I have walked before you. It is not self-righteous but an appeal to the covenant relationship. And God answers. “I have heard your prayer; I have seen your tears.” He gives a sign: the shadow on the stairway goes backward ten steps.

Hezekiah’s psalm records his experience. He describes his life cut off like a weaver rolling up a cloth. He moans like a dove. And then comes the turning point in verse 17: “In love you have delivered my life from the pit of destruction, for you have cast all my sins behind your back.” It is one of the most beautiful phrases in the Bible about forgiveness. What was behind God’s back is out of his sight. And the king concludes that the living thank God: “The fathers make known to the children your faithfulness.” The purpose of his extra years is to praise and to pass faith on.

Then chapter 39 delivers the sad aftermath. When the envoys of Babylon come, Hezekiah is flattered and shows them everything in his house and in all his realm. It may have been vanity, or a political move to find allies against Assyria. Either way, he looked to a human power instead of to God. Isaiah’s rebuke is solemn: everything will go to Babylon, and some of your own sons will be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

Hezekiah’s reply is the most unsettling part: “The word of the LORD that you have spoken is good. For there will be peace and security in my days.” He accepts the word but seems concerned only with his own lifetime. The man who cried out for his life does not cry out for his descendants. Even great believers can be weak in the face of success.

STEP 5

Connection

Micah 7:19 says God will cast all our sins into the depths of the sea, and Colossians 2:13-14 says Christ canceled the record of debt. Psalm 103:12 says he removes our transgressions as far as the east is from the west. James 5:14-16 teaches us to pray for the sick. 2 Timothy 4:7 shows Paul finishing the race well, a contrast with Hezekiah’s mixed ending. Jesus warns in Luke 12:15-21 about the rich man who thinks only of his own ease.

STEP 6

Application

Thank God for any season of extra time, health, or opportunity, and ask what he wants you to do with it.

Pray for the generation after you, as Hezekiah's psalm says: make known God's faithfulness to the children.

Ask whether you have shown your treasures to the world in pride. Return the glory to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for hearing your prayer and seeing your tears.
- Thank him for casting your sins behind his back.
- Ask him to keep you from pride in the good he gives.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Isaiah 26:3 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"You keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on you, because he trusts in you."

ISAIAH 26:3

REST

Meditation

This promise comes in the middle of Isaiah's apocalypse, a section about the shaking of the whole earth. It is a song of confidence for the day of salvation, sung in a time of upheaval. Peace is promised, and it is promised in the midst of unrest.

"You keep him in perfect peace." In Hebrew, the words are "peace, peace," shalom shalom. The double word indicates fullness, a peace that is complete. It is not the absence of trouble but wholeness: well-being in body, soul, and relationships. And the one who gives it is God. He keeps, or guards, the person. The word is used of a sentry on watch.

"Whose mind is stayed on you." The word "stayed" means supported, leaning, resting on something. The mind that is steadied by God is a mind that is propped up. It is a picture of leaning on God, as one leans on a strong staff. The mind in view is not only intellect but the whole inner life, our thoughts, imaginings, and desires. When the center of our attention is God, the heart is stable.

“Because he trusts in you.” The ground of the peace is trust. The man in this verse is not free of problems. He is anchored. Isaiah’s contrast is clear throughout this week’s reading: the people of Judah were anxious because they trusted in Egypt, in treaties, and in horses. The peace came to those who trusted in the LORD, like Hezekiah on the day he spread the letter before him.

Say this verse in times of worry and ask what you are leaning on. In Christ, the Prince of Peace has made peace for us through his blood. He now says, “Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you.”

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the middle chapters of Isaiah’s first half. You prayed Psalm 83 against a coalition of enemy nations and saw that the real aim is that they would know the LORD is the Most High. You read the Isaiah Apocalypse, with its picture of a feast on God’s mountain, the swallowing up of death, and the promise of resurrection. You read the woes against trusting in Egypt, and the beautiful invitation to “return and rest.” You saw the cornerstone laid in Zion and heard of the Way of Holiness. Then you followed the Assyrian crisis through Isaiah’s eyes: Hezekiah spreading the letter before the LORD, the angel striking the camp, and the king’s illness, his healing, and his misstep with Babylon. The week taught that peace belongs to the mind that is stayed on God, and that those who trust in worldly power will be disappointed.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Isaiah calls us to “quietness and trust” rather than frantic human schemes. Where do you need to stop striving and rest in God?

Isaiah 25:8 promises that God will swallow up death forever and wipe away tears. How does this promise speak to your own grief or fear?

Hezekiah faithfully prayed in a crisis but was careless in success. In what area of your life is prosperity a bigger test than trouble?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to keep you in perfect peace with your mind stayed on him.

Thank Christ for swallowing up death in victory.

Rest in quietness and trust.

DAY 400 · WEEK 58

Psalm 46

God is our refuge, Hezekiah's psalm

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 46. You have read it before, but read it now as the song Jerusalem sang after the night the Assyrian army fell. Notice the river, the refrain, and the command in verse 10.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 46 is a song of the sons of Korah. Many readers connect it to the deliverance of Jerusalem from Sennacherib, which you have just read. A city with no great river, Jerusalem is given a river in this psalm, a stream whose waters make glad the city of God. Martin Luther's hymn "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" was inspired by it.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble" (v. 1).
2. "Therefore we will not fear though the earth gives way, though the mountains be moved into the heart of the sea" (v. 2).
3. "There is a river whose streams make glad the city of God, the holy habitation of the Most High" (v. 4).
4. "God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved; God will help her when morning dawns" (v. 5).
5. "The nations rage, the kingdoms totter; he utters his voice, the earth melts" (v. 6).
6. "The LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress" (v. 7).
7. "He makes wars cease to the end of the earth; he breaks the bow and shatters the spear" (v. 9).

8 “Be still, and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth!” (v. 10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm has three stanzas, each ending with a refrain, though the refrain is missing from the first stanza in our texts. The first describes the cosmos in chaos: earth giving way, mountains slipping into the sea, waters roaring. These are pictures of the greatest disaster the ancient mind could imagine. And the response is: “We will not fear.” The reason is not that the danger is small, but that God is a refuge, a very present help.

The second stanza turns to the city. In contrast to the roaring sea is a quiet river. The sea in ancient thought was a symbol of chaos, but Jerusalem has a stream that makes glad the city of God. This is a picture of God’s presence that gives life. And “God will help her when morning dawns.” Recall the 185,000 who lay dead in the morning. The help came at daybreak. The nations rage, but a single word from him melts the earth. The refrain says: “The LORD of hosts is with us.” It is the name Immanuel in the language of the psalms.

The third stanza invites us to look: “Come, behold the works of the LORD.” He makes wars cease, breaks the bow, shatters the spear, burns the chariots. What does that look like? It looks like an empty Assyrian camp.

Then the voice of God himself: “Be still, and know that I am God.” This is not a gentle suggestion to relax, though it may include that. The Hebrew word means “cease striving.” It is addressed to the nations as well as to Israel. Stop fighting, and know who is God. In Hezekiah’s case, the king was told to be quiet and the army to be silent. God did the fighting. The call to stillness is a call to trust, to stop relying on our own efforts and to rest in the one who is exalted among the nations.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus calmed the sea with a word (Mark 4:39), showing that he is the one who rules the chaotic waters. Romans 8:31 asks, “If God is for us, who can be against us?” Revelation 22:1 describes a river of the water of life flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb, the true fulfillment of the river of the city of God. Hebrews 12:28 says we receive a kingdom that cannot be shaken. Matthew 28:20 echoes: “I am with you always.”

STEP 6

Application

Say the refrain, “The LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress,” every time you feel afraid today.

Practice verse 10. Sit in stillness for five minutes and simply know that he is God.

Think of a “morning” when God helped you after a long night. Thank him.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what in your life feels like the earth giving way.
- Thank him that he is a very present help.
- Be still before him for a moment.

ISAIAH 40:31

DAY 401 · WEEK 58

Psalm 48

Walk about Zion, the city of God is secure

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 48. It is a song celebrating Jerusalem, "the city of our God." Imagine walking around the walls and counting the towers, as the psalm invites you to do.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 48 is a song of the sons of Korah. It follows Psalm 46 in this unit and in its original collection. The kings of the earth gathered against Zion, saw it, and fled in panic. It is the song of a city that has been delivered. You read it in Unit 9 as a song about the city of David. Today read it as the song of a city that has seen the Assyrian army vanish.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Great is the LORD and greatly to be praised in the city of our God! His holy mountain, beautiful in elevation, is the joy of all the earth" (vv. 1-2).
2. "Within her citadels God has made himself known as a fortress" (v. 3).
3. "For behold, the kings assembled; they came on together" (v. 4).
4. "As soon as they saw it, they were astounded; they were in panic; they took to flight" (v. 5).
5. "As we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the LORD of hosts" (v. 8).
6. "We have thought on your steadfast love, O God, in the midst of your temple" (v. 9).
7. "Walk about Zion, go around her, number her towers, consider well her ramparts, go through her citadels" (vv. 12-13).
8. "That you may tell the next generation that this is God, our God forever and ever. He will guide us forever" (vv. 13-14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with praise to the LORD and then to his city. The beauty of Zion is not the city for its own sake, but because of the God who lives there. The mountain is "the joy of all the earth," and "the city of the great King." In the ancient world, a city was only as good as its god. The psalmist insists that Jerusalem's strength comes from its God.

The account of the enemies in verses 4 to 7 is brief and almost comic. The kings gathered, they came together, they saw, they were astounded, they fled. It is like a wave dissolving. Like "ships of Tarshish shattered by an east wind." This is the same truth as Psalm 46 and Psalm 76: God defends his city.

Verse 9 is the center of the psalm. After the military story, the psalmist turns to the temple. "We have thought on your steadfast love, O God, in the midst of your temple." The greatest thing about the deliverance is not the defeat of enemies but what it reveals about God's covenant love. The people reflect on it in worship.

Then comes a strange invitation: "Walk about Zion, go around her, number her towers." Walk the walls. Count what is still there. After a great threat, check that everything is intact. And the purpose: "that you may tell the next generation that this is God." This is an educational walk. The visible city teaches children about God's faithfulness. The final verse is a confession: "This is God, our God forever and ever. He will guide us forever." The Hebrew can even be read "guide us beyond death."

The psalm reminds us to remember what God has done and to pass it on.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 5:35 calls Jerusalem "the city of the great King." Hebrews 12:22 says that believers have come "to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem." Revelation 21:2 describes the new Jerusalem coming down from heaven, and verse 23 says it has no need of sun or moon, for the glory of God is its light. Matthew 16:18 says that the gates of hell will not prevail against the church. Deuteronomy 6:7 commands us to tell the next generation.

STEP 6

Application

Take a "walk about Zion." List ten things God has done for your church or family, and number them like towers.

Tell a child, a new believer, or a friend one story of God's faithfulness this week.

Think on God's steadfast love, as the psalm says, during a time of worship.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God for the security of his city.
- Tell him what you have thought on of his steadfast love.
- Ask him to guide you forever.

ISAIAH 40:31

DAY 402 · WEEK 58

Isaiah 40:1-42:25

"Comfort my people"; the Servant introduced

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 89 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 40:1-42:25. The second half of Isaiah begins here. The mood shifts from judgment to comfort. Read chapter 40 slowly, and listen for the voice crying in the wilderness.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Isaiah 40 opens the second half of the book. Chapters 40 to 55 speak to a people who, in the prophet's vision, are in exile in Babylon, as Isaiah 39 foretold. The message is "Comfort, comfort my people." God is going to bring them back. These chapters present the incomparable God, his Servant, and his plan to redeem. They are some of the most beautiful and doctrinally rich in the Old Testament.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Comfort, comfort my people, says your God. Speak tenderly to Jerusalem" (40:1-2).
2. "A voice cries: In the wilderness prepare the way of the LORD" (40:3).
3. "The grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of our God will stand forever" (40:8).
4. "Behold your God! ... He will tend his flock like a shepherd; he will gather the lambs in his arms" (40:9, 11).
5. "To whom then will you compare me, that I should be like him? says the Holy One" (40:25).
6. "They who wait for the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles" (40:31).

7. “Behold my servant, whom I uphold, my chosen, in whom my soul delights; I have put my Spirit upon him; he will bring forth justice to the nations” (42:1).

8. “A bruised reed he will not break, and a faintly burning wick he will not quench” (42:3).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Isaiah 40 begins with a double command: “Comfort, comfort my people.” After the long section of judgment, God speaks tenderly. The warfare is ended, the iniquity pardoned. The people have received double for their sins, which means that their punishment is complete. A voice cries out for a highway to be built for the LORD in the wilderness. This is the announcement of God’s own return to his people.

The chapter next deals with the reasons for trust. First, God’s word stands forever, though human strength is like grass. Second, God is a shepherd who carries the lambs in his arms and gently leads those that are with young. Third, God is incomparable. He measured the waters in the hollow of his hand. The nations are like a drop from a bucket. The idols are made by craftsmen who nail them in place so they do not fall. Those who sit in exile feel forgotten, but God never grows weary. He gives power to the faint and strengthens the weak. Those who wait for him renew their strength.

Chapter 41 continues with God’s courtroom challenge to the idols and the nations. “Fear not, for I am with you; be not dismayed, for I am your God.” To Israel, called “worm Jacob,” he says that he is their redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.

Then in chapter 42 appears the first of the Servant Songs. “Behold my servant.” He is chosen, upheld, and endowed with God’s Spirit. His mission is to bring justice to the nations, not with a loud voice but with gentleness. “A bruised reed he will not break.” The Servant does not crush the weak. He will not grow faint or be discouraged until he has established justice in the earth. And the coastlands wait for his law.

The Servant is a mystery in Isaiah, and the question of who he is will keep returning. In this song, he is presented as the one who will bring God’s justice, with compassion for the weak.

STEP 5

Connection

All four Gospels apply Isaiah 40:3 to John the Baptist (Matthew 3:3; Mark 1:2-3; Luke 3:4-6; John 1:23). Matthew 12:15-21 quotes Isaiah 42:1-4 and applies it to Jesus. At his baptism, the Father’s voice echoed this, “my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased” (Matthew 3:17). 1 Peter 1:24-25 quotes Isaiah 40:6-8. John 10:11 shows Jesus as the good shepherd. Matthew 11:28-30 reveals his gentleness.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Isaiah 40:31, and apply it to an area where you are weary.

Think of someone who feels like a bruised reed. Be gentle with them this week.

Spend time meditating on the greatness of God in Isaiah 40:12-26, and let it shrink your problems.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to comfort his people, including you.

Ask him to prepare the way in your heart.

Thank him for the shepherd who carries the lambs.

ISAIAH 40:31

DAY 403 · WEEK 58

Isaiah 43:1-45:25

You are mine; the only God; Cyrus named

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 90 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 43:1-45:25. God declares that he is the only God, he promises to redeem Israel, and he names Cyrus, a pagan king, as his instrument more than a century before he was born. Read with attention to the repeated “I am the LORD.”

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The exiles in Babylon thought that their God had been defeated by the gods of Babylon. Isaiah answers that God is not only sovereign but alone. The chapters here contain some of the strongest statements of monotheism in the Bible. They also contain the astonishing prophecy that Cyrus of Persia, who conquered Babylon in 539 BC, would be God’s shepherd to free his people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Fear not, for I have redeemed you; I have called you by name, you are mine” (43:1).
2. “When you pass through the waters, I will be with you; and through the rivers, they shall not overwhelm you” (43:2).
3. “I, I am the LORD, and besides me there is no savior” (43:11).
4. “Behold, I am doing a new thing; now it springs forth, do you not perceive it?” (43:19).
5. “I, I am he who blots out your transgressions for my own sake, and I will not remember your sins” (43:25).
6. “Before me no god was formed, nor shall there be any after me” (43:10).
7. “Who says of Cyrus, He is my shepherd, and he shall fulfill all my purpose” (44:28).

8 “Turn to me and be saved, all the ends of the earth! For I am God, and there is no other” (45:22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 43 opens with “But now.” After the discipline of exile, God speaks. “Fear not, for I have redeemed you; I have called you by name, you are mine.” Notice the order: redemption first, then the claim. Israel is his because he bought them. Then the promises: through the waters, the rivers, the fire. These echo the sea and the Jordan. He will gather them from the ends of the earth.

God then argues against the idols. The nations are summoned to a court. Who among them declared the things that would happen? Israel is God’s witness: “You are my witnesses… and my servant whom I have chosen.” There is only one God and one Savior. The strongest part comes next. Though Israel has not called on him, wearied him with sins, and burdened him with iniquities, “I, I am he who blots out your transgressions for my own sake, and I will not remember your sins.” Forgiveness comes from God’s own initiative, not from Israel’s merit.

Chapter 44 contains a famous satire on idolatry. A man cuts down a tree, burns half for warming himself and cooking, and carves the rest into a god and bows down to it. “Deliver me, for you are my god!” Isaiah exposes the foolishness: it is a lie in his right hand. In contrast, the LORD says, “I formed you; you are my servant; O Israel, I will not forget you.”

At the end of chapter 44 and in chapter 45, Cyrus is named. God calls him “my shepherd” and “his anointed.” A pagan king who does not know the LORD is used for God’s purposes. This shows that God is sovereign over history, even over those who do not acknowledge him. God’s purpose is that people “may know, from the rising of the sun and from the west, that there is none besides me.”

The invitation at the end of chapter 45 is a gospel call: “Turn to me and be saved, all the ends of the earth!” One day every knee will bow.

STEP 5

Connection

Philippians 2:10-11 quotes Isaiah 45:23: every knee will bow and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord. Revelation 2:17 and John 10:3 echo God’s calling us by name. Acts 4:12 says there is salvation in no one else. Hebrews 8:12 says that God will remember our sins no more. 2 Corinthians 5:17 speaks of the new creation: “the old has passed away; behold, the new has come.” Romans 9:20-21 draws on the potter and clay imagery of Isaiah 45:9.

STEP 6

Application

Say aloud Isaiah 43:1 as a statement about you: “I have called you by name, you are mine.”

Notice a “new thing” that God may be doing in your life. Ask for eyes to see it.

Reflect on “Cyrus.” How has God used people who do not know him to serve you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that you are called by name and are his.

Thank him that he is with you in the waters.

Thank him for blotting out your transgressions.

Psalm 86

I am poor and needy; you are good and forgiving

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 17 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 86. It is a prayer of David for help, based entirely on God's goodness, not on David's merit. Notice how many times David calls himself God's servant.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 86 is the only psalm in Book 3 attributed to David. It is a personal prayer in the middle of a series of national psalms of Asaph and the sons of Korah. The psalmist is surrounded by insolent men, but the focus is on God's character. It takes up the language of Exodus 34:6, which you saw in Jonah: "merciful and gracious, slow to anger." The psalm balances Isaiah's mighty God with the personal God who hears one man.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Incline your ear, O LORD, and answer me, for I am poor and needy" (v. 1).
2. "Preserve my life, for I am godly; save your servant, who trusts in you" (v. 2).
3. "Gladden the soul of your servant, for to you, O Lord, do I lift up my soul" (v. 4).
4. "For you, O Lord, are good and forgiving, abounding in steadfast love to all who call on you" (v. 5).
5. "There is none like you among the gods, O Lord, nor are there any works like yours" (v. 8).
6. "All the nations you have made shall come and worship before you, O Lord" (v. 9).
7. "Teach me your way, O LORD, that I may walk in your truth; unite my heart to fear your name" (v. 11).

8 “But you, O Lord, are a God merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness” (v. 15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts with the simplest sort of prayer: “I am poor and needy.” David does not mean he lacks money. He means he has nothing that gives him a claim on God. Every request that follows rests on God’s character. “Preserve my life, for I am godly” does not boast of perfection but states his covenant loyalty. “You are good and forgiving, abounding in steadfast love to all who call on you.” That is the heart of the psalm. He asks because God is generous.

David repeatedly calls himself “your servant,” three times in the psalm. The word shows his posture: he belongs to God and depends on him. Being a servant means that he can ask for the master’s protection. And his daily prayer is persistent. “I cry to you all the day.”

Verses 8 to 10 widen the view: no one is like the LORD. All nations will come and worship. This echoes Isaiah 45:22-23 and the mission to the nations. Even a personal prayer is set in a universal frame.

The central request is in verse 11: “Teach me your way, O LORD, that I may walk in your truth; unite my heart to fear your name.” David asks for a divided heart to be united. Anyone who has tried to follow God knows how scattered the heart can be, pulled in many directions. He prays that God would gather it into a single loyalty. It is a prayer that is worth praying every day.

Then he thanks God for deliverance from Sheol. The proud have risen against him. He asks for a sign of God’s goodness, “that those who hate me may see and be put to shame, because you, LORD, have helped me and comforted me.” The psalm moves from need to confidence, and its core is God’s self-description from Exodus 34, spoken back to him in prayer.

STEP 5

Connection

Paul quotes Psalm 86 in the thought that all nations will worship (Romans 15:9-11, along with Psalm 18 and others). Revelation 15:4 says, “All nations will come and worship you.” Ephesians 2:4-5 speaks of God, rich in mercy. James 4:8 says, “Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you… purify your hearts, you double-minded.” Matthew 6:22 and Psalm 119:113 address wholeheartedness. 2 Corinthians 1:3-4 calls him the Father of mercies and God of all comfort.

STEP 6

Application

Pray Psalm 86:11 each morning this week: “Unite my heart to fear your name.”

Begin a prayer by admitting that you are “poor and needy,” with nothing to bring but your need.

Speak God’s own words about himself (Exodus 34:6) back to him in a prayer of trust.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God that you are poor and needy.

Thank him that he is good and forgiving.

Ask him to teach you his way.

DAY 405 · WEEK 58

Psalm 89:1-37

I will sing of the steadfast love of the LORD

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 37 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 89:1-37. The first half of the psalm celebrates God's covenant with David. It is a magnificent statement of confidence. Keep in mind that the second half of the psalm (verses 38-52), which comes later in the plan, brings a painful question.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 89 is a Maskil of Ethan the Ezrahite and the last psalm of Book 3. It was probably written after the Babylonian exile began, when the Davidic king had been taken captive. Yet the first thirty-seven verses are full of praise for the covenant God made with David in 2 Samuel 7. It is placed here in Unit 12 as a bridge between Isaiah's promises of a coming king and the later crisis. Verses 38 to 52 appear in Unit 13.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I will sing of the steadfast love of the LORD, forever; with my mouth I will make known your faithfulness to all generations" (v. 1).
2. "For I said, Steadfast love will be built up forever; in the heavens you will establish your faithfulness" (v. 2).
3. "You have said, I have made a covenant with my chosen one; I have sworn to David my servant" (v. 3).
4. "Who in the skies can be compared to the LORD? Who among the heavenly beings is like the LORD?" (v. 6).
5. "Blessed are the people who know the festal shout, who walk, O LORD, in the light of your face" (v. 15).

6. “I have found David, my servant; with my holy oil I have anointed him” (v. 20).
7. “He shall cry to me, You are my Father, my God, and the Rock of my salvation” (v. 26).
8. “I will not violate my covenant or alter the word that went forth from my lips” (v. 34).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with the word “steadfast love” and “faithfulness,” repeated throughout. These two words are used seven times in the first part of the psalm. The psalmist makes a vow: he will sing of them forever. His confidence rests on what God has said and sworn. God’s love is not a feeling that fluctuates but a covenant that stands.

The first section praises God as the creator and ruler. The heavens praise his wonders. No one is like him. He rules the raging sea, stills its waves, and crushed Rahab, the sea monster. North and south, Tabor and Hermon, all belong to him. And such a God is not distant. Blessed are those who walk in the light of his face.

The second part, verses 19 to 37, recalls the covenant with David in detail. God chose David from among the people, anointed him, strengthened him. He promised that David would call him Father, and that God would make him the firstborn, “the highest of the kings of the earth.” His line would endure as long as the heavens. Even if his sons sin, God says, “I will punish their transgression with the rod,” but “I will not remove from him my steadfast love.” Then the oath: “Once for all I have sworn by my holiness; I will not lie to David.”

Why does this matter in Unit 12? Because Isaiah’s promises of a child, a shoot of Jesse, and a servant all depend on the covenant with David. The psalm is the legal basis for hope. When Judah’s kingdom is threatened, this is what the faithful return to: God has sworn, and he will not lie.

The psalm’s second half asks, “But now you have cast off and rejected.” The painful tension between promise and experience is what the Old Testament waits for Christ to resolve.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 1:32-33 says that the angel told Mary her son would be given the throne of his father David. Acts 13:22-23 says God raised up from David’s offspring a Savior, Jesus. Hebrews 1:5 uses 2 Samuel 7 to say “I will be to him a father.” Colossians 1:18 calls Jesus “the firstborn of all creation” and “the firstborn from the dead.” Revelation 1:5 calls him “the ruler of kings on earth.” Romans 15:8 says Christ confirmed the promises given to the patriarchs.

STEP 6

Application

Choose to sing, or read aloud, Psalm 89:1 as a vow to make known God's faithfulness.

Think about one promise of God that you are holding on to. Write down the verse and what it says.

Thank God that his covenant is not broken by our failure, because Christ has fulfilled it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Sing of God's steadfast love in your own words.

Thank him for his sworn promise to David.

Ask him to make known his faithfulness to those who come after you.

No new reading today. Read Isaiah 40:31 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"But they who wait for the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

ISAIAH 40:31

REST

Meditation

This verse comes at the end of a long argument. The exiles in Babylon had said, "My way is hidden from the LORD." Isaiah answers with a series of reasons to hope: the LORD is the Creator, never weary, whose understanding no one can fathom. And then comes the promise.

"But they who wait for the LORD." The Hebrew word for wait does not mean to sit idly. It means to hope, to look expectantly, as a person watches for the dawn. It has the sense of being bound to someone, twisted together like a rope. To wait for the LORD is to tie your hope to him. This is not passive. It is a posture of active trust.

"Shall renew their strength." The word "renew" means exchange. We trade our strength for his. The previous verses say that even the young grow faint and weary, and young men fall exhausted. Human strength has limits. But those who wait on God exchange their exhaustion for his inexhaustible power.

Then three pictures, in an unusual order. “They shall mount up with wings like eagles.” This is the most dramatic. “They shall run and not be weary.” This is steadier. “They shall walk and not faint.” This is the most ordinary, and perhaps the greatest miracle. Most of life is walking, not soaring. The promise is that God will sustain us in the daily grind as well as in the heights.

Say this verse in a time of fatigue. You may not feel like an eagle today. You may only be walking. The promise is that you will not faint, for you are leaning on the one who “does not faint or grow weary” (Isaiah 40:28).

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you stood with Judah as Jerusalem celebrated its deliverance from Assyria, singing Psalms 46 and 48, with their refrain, “The LORD of hosts is with us,” and their command, “Be still, and know that I am God.” Then you crossed the great divide in the book of Isaiah. In chapters 40 to 42, God speaks comfort to exiles, prepares a highway in the wilderness, and introduces the Servant who will not break a bruised reed. In chapters 43 to 45, you heard the LORD claim his people by name, declare that there is no savior besides him, and name Cyrus as his shepherd. You prayed Psalm 86, a prayer of the poor and needy to a God who is good and forgiving, and Psalm 89, a song about the covenant God swore to David. The week taught that God comforts his people, that he is the only God, and that his covenant promises stand.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Isaiah 40 begins, “Comfort, comfort my people.” Where do you most need to hear God’s comfort right now?

The Servant of Isaiah 42 does not break a bruised reed. How does Jesus’ gentleness with the weak change how you approach him in your own weakness?

God says, “I have called you by name, you are mine.” What difference would it make today if you lived as someone who truly belongs to him?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to give power to the faint, and tell him where you are faint.

Thank him for the Servant who does not break a bruised reed.

Wait for him and ask him to renew your strength.

DAY 407 · WEEK 59

Isaiah 46:1-49:26

Babylon's gods fail; "I have called you by name"

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 100 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 46:1-49:26. Babylon's gods are carried off on wagons, Babylon herself falls, and the Servant speaks in the first person. Notice the contrast between a god who must be carried and a God who carries.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The prophet speaks to exiles who see the glittering idols of Babylon every day. Chapters 46 and 47 contrast the gods who are carried with the God who carries, and announce the fall of proud Babylon. In chapters 48 and 49, God exhorts a stubborn people, and the second Servant Song appears. Here the Servant speaks for himself, and we learn that his work is larger than Israel.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Bel bows down; Nebo stoops; their idols are on beasts and livestock; these things you carry are loaded as burdens on weary beasts" (46:1).
2. "Even to your old age I am he, and to gray hairs I will carry you. I have made, and I will bear; I will carry and will save" (46:4).
3. "I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning" (46:9-10).
4. "You said, I shall be mistress forever" (47:7).
5. "I am the LORD your God, who teaches you to profit, who leads you in the way you should go" (48:17).
6. "The LORD called me from the womb, from the body of my mother he named my name" (49:1).

7. “It is too light a thing that you should be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob… I will make you as a light for the nations, that my salvation may reach to the end of the earth” (49:6).

8. “Can a woman forget her nursing child… Even these may forget, yet I will not forget you. Behold, I have engraved you on the palms of my hands” (49:15-16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 46 gives a stark image. The great gods of Babylon, Bel and Nebo, are loaded onto animals and carted off into captivity. Idols are heavy burdens that have to be carried, and they cannot save. Over against them is the God who carries: “I have made, and I will bear; I will carry and will save.” The difference between the true God and the false is the difference between a weight and a carrier. One needs to be carried by us. The other carries us, from birth to gray hairs.

Chapter 47 is a taunt song against Babylon, depicted as a pampered queen who sits on a throne and is told to sit in the dust. She thought, “I am, and there is no one besides me,” a boast that belongs only to God. Her sorcerers and astrologers cannot save her. The pride that exalts itself to the place of God is brought low.

In chapter 48, God addresses the stubborn exiles who invoke his name but not in truth. He declares the future before it happens so that they cannot say their idols did it. And he laments: “Oh that you had paid attention to my commandments! Then your peace would have been like a river.” Yet he will bring them out: “Go out from Babylon, flee from Chaldea.”

Chapter 49 introduces the Servant speaking, “Listen to me, O coastlands.” He was called before birth, his mouth made like a sharp sword, hidden in the shadow of God’s hand. Strikingly, he says, “I have labored in vain.” Yet his work is given to God. The commission is expanded: it is too light a thing to restore Israel alone. He will be “a light for the nations.” The Servant’s mission is global.

The chapter ends with the loveliest assurance. Zion says, “The LORD has forsaken me.” God answers that a mother may forget her nursing child, but he will not forget. “I have engraved you on the palms of my hands.” The hands that were scarred are the hands that remember.

STEP 5

Connection

Simeon quoted Isaiah 49:6 when he held the infant Jesus and called him “a light for revelation to the Gentiles” (Luke 2:32). Paul and Barnabas applied it to their mission in Acts 13:47. In John 8:12, Jesus says, “I am the light of the world.” The scars on the hands of Jesus (John 20:27) are the true fulfillment of “engraved on the palms of my hands.” Revelation 18 shows the fall of Babylon the great.

STEP 6

Application

Name something you are carrying that you were never meant to carry, and give it to the God who carries.

Read Isaiah 49:15-16 slowly, and let it reassure you if you feel forgotten.

Pray for the spread of the gospel to the ends of the earth, as the Servant’s mission calls.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he will carry you to your old age.

Thank him that you are engraved on the palms of his hands.

Tell him what idol you are tempted to carry yourself.

DAY 408 · WEEK 59

Isaiah 50:1-53:12

The Servant's obedience; the suffering servant

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 74 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 50:1-53:12. This is the heart of the book. The Servant is obedient, beaten, and then, in chapter 53, pierced for our transgressions. Read Isaiah 52:13-53:12 twice. Let the language slow you down.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These chapters contain the third and fourth Servant Songs. Isaiah 50:4-9 describes the Servant's willing suffering. Isaiah 52:13 to 53:12 is the most famous passage in the Old Testament about the Messiah's suffering and death. It was written about 700 years before Jesus. Early Christians, including Philip with the Ethiopian official in Acts 8, took this chapter as the key to understanding the gospel.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I gave my back to those who strike, and my cheeks to those who pull out the beard; I hid not my face from disgrace and spitting" (50:6).
2. "But the Lord GOD helps me; therefore I have not been disgraced" (50:7).
3. "Awake, awake, put on your strength, O arm of the LORD" (51:9).
4. "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good news, who publishes peace" (52:7).
5. "Behold, my servant shall act wisely; he shall be high and lifted up, and shall be exalted" (52:13).
6. "He was despised and rejected by men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief" (53:3).

7. “Surely he has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; yet we esteemed him stricken, smitten by God, and afflicted” (53:4).

8. “But he was pierced for our transgressions; he was crushed for our iniquities; upon him was the chastisement that brought us peace, and with his wounds we are healed” (53:5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 50 gives the Servant’s own voice. He is a disciple who listens, with an ear opened by God, morning by morning. He does not turn back. He gives his back to those who strike, and his face to those who spit. Yet he has set his face like a flint. His trust is in the God who helps him, and so he is not put to shame. The perfect obedience the Servant gives is what Israel never offered.

Chapter 51 and the beginning of 52 contain a great call to awake. God’s arm is stirred as in the days of old, when he cut Rahab in pieces and dried up the sea. And the ransomed of the LORD will return with singing. “How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good news.” The whole earth will see the salvation of our God.

Then comes the fourth song. It begins with a surprise. The Servant will be “high and lifted up,” language used of God in Isaiah 6. Yet his appearance was marred beyond human semblance. Kings will shut their mouths because of him. Then the confession of the people begins in 53:1. He grew up like a tender plant, with no form or majesty. He was despised, rejected, a man of sorrows. “We esteemed him stricken, smitten by God.” We thought he was being punished for his own sins. But verses 5 and 6 reveal the truth: “He was pierced for our transgressions; he was crushed for our iniquities.” Everything he suffered was for us. “All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the LORD has laid on him the iniquity of us all.”

The Servant is silent like a lamb led to the slaughter. He was cut off from the land of the living, assigned a grave with the wicked and with a rich man in his death, though he had done no violence. Yet “it was the will of the LORD to crush him.” Out of his anguish he will see light and be satisfied. “By his knowledge shall the righteous one, my servant, make many to be accounted righteous, and he shall bear their iniquities.” He pours out his soul to death, is numbered with the transgressors, bears the sin of many, and makes intercession.

STEP 5

Connection

Philip began with Isaiah 53 and told the Ethiopian official the good news about Jesus (Acts 8:32-35). 1 Peter 2:22-25 draws on this chapter for the cross. Matthew 8:17 sees Jesus’ healing as fulfilling “he took our illnesses.” Mark 10:45 says the Son of Man came “to give his life as a ransom for many." Luke 22:37 quotes "he was numbered with the transgressors." Romans 5:19 speaks of the many being made righteous through one man's obedience.

STEP 6

Application

Read Isaiah 53:4-6 aloud and replace "our" with "my." Let it become personal.

Thank Jesus specifically for one thing he bore for you: your guilt, shame, sorrow, or sickness.

Share the good news of this chapter with someone this week, as Philip did.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being despised and rejected for you.
- Tell him what it means that he was pierced for your transgressions.
- Ask him to make you trust his healing.

Isaiah 53:1-12; Romans 3:21-26; Hebrews 9:11-28

The Work of Christ, Atonement

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 53:1-12, then Romans 3:21-26, and then Hebrews 9:11-28. Today is a doctrinal pause, so you are reading three passages together: the prophet's picture of the suffering Servant, Paul's explanation of how God justifies sinners, and the author of Hebrews on the blood of Christ. Ask as you read: what exactly did Jesus accomplish on the cross, and how?

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

You read Isaiah 53 yesterday. Today you read it again, alongside two New Testament passages that interpret it. Paul explains that God's righteousness is shown in the cross and that sinners are justified by grace through faith. The author of Hebrews shows that Christ's sacrifice fulfills and surpasses the Old Testament sacrifices. Together they give us the doctrine of the atonement, the work of Christ in dealing with sin.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "He was pierced for our transgressions; he was crushed for our iniquities" (Isaiah 53:5).
2. "The LORD has laid on him the iniquity of us all" (Isaiah 53:6).
3. "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and are justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus" (Romans 3:23-24).
4. "Whom God put forward as a propitiation by his blood, to be received by faith" (Romans 3:25).

5. “This was to show God’s righteousness, because in his divine forbearance he had passed over former sins” (Romans 3:25).
6. “That he might be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus” (Romans 3:26).
7. “He entered once for all into the holy places, not by means of the blood of goats and calves but by means of his own blood, thus securing an eternal redemption” (Hebrews 9:12).
8. “Without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness of sins” (Hebrews 9:22).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The atonement is the work of Christ on the cross by which sinners are reconciled to God. The word itself means “at-one-ment,” the making of peace between two parties who were estranged. The Bible uses several pictures to describe what happened, and each adds something.

The first is sacrifice. In the Old Testament, an animal died in the place of the sinner, and its blood covered the guilt. Hebrews says that these sacrifices were a shadow. They could not take away sins, which is why they had to be repeated. Christ offered himself once for all, a perfect sacrifice. The second is substitution. Isaiah 53 says the Servant bore our iniquities and was pierced for our transgressions. He took our place. The penalty we deserved fell on him. This is sometimes called penal substitution: he bore the penalty in our place.

The third is propitiation. Romans 3:25 says God put forward Christ as a propitiation, a sacrifice that satisfies God’s righteous wrath against sin. This is not a picture of an angry God being calmed by a loving Son. It is God himself who puts forward the sacrifice, out of love. The Father, Son, and Spirit were united in this work. The fourth is redemption. A ransom price was paid to buy slaves out of bondage. Christ’s blood is the price (Mark 10:45; 1 Peter 1:18-19). The fifth is victory. Colossians 2:15 says that on the cross Christ triumphed over the rulers and authorities.

Romans 3:26 states the great puzzle that the cross solves: how can God be both just and the justifier of the ungodly? He cannot simply ignore sin, for he is righteous. The cross shows that he does not ignore it. The penalty is paid. And so God can freely forgive those who trust in Christ.

For believers, the atonement is the ground of our assurance. Our standing before God does not depend on our performance. It depends on what Christ has finished.

STEP 4

Interpretation

The three passages work like three voices in harmony. Isaiah gives the story in prophetic language. A righteous Servant suffers for others, though he did nothing wrong. The language is of sin-bearing and healing. “The LORD has laid on him the iniquity of us all.” Notice that the Father is the one who lays it on him. This was not an accident or a tragedy. “It was the will of the LORD to crush him.” It was God’s plan, carried out in love.

Paul explains why this had to happen. All have sinned, and there is no distinction. No one can earn a place before God. But God offers justification as a gift. To justify means to declare righteous, a legal term. We are not made righteous by our deeds. God declares us righteous because of what Christ has done. This is received by faith, not earned. Paul also says that God “passed over former sins” in his forbearance, meaning that before the cross he had been patient with sin. The cross shows that this patience was not indifference. The debt was real, and it was finally paid.

Hebrews approaches it through the temple. The old high priest entered the Holy of Holies once a year with the blood of animals. Christ, by contrast, entered heaven itself with his own blood, once for all, “securing an eternal redemption.” The old covenant’s sacrifices only cleansed the flesh. Christ’s blood “purifies our conscience from dead works to serve the living God.” And he is the mediator of a new covenant, so that those who are called may receive the promised eternal inheritance. Because he is both priest and sacrifice, nothing more needs to be offered.

Put together, these texts show that the cross was necessary, because sin is serious and God is just. It was sufficient, because Christ’s offering was perfect. And it was personal. The Servant bore “our” sins, and Christ gave himself “for me” (Galatians 2:20).

STEP 5

Connection

Mark 10:45 says Christ came to give his life as a ransom for many. 2 Corinthians 5:21 says, “For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God.” Galatians 3:13 says Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us. 1 John 2:2 and 4:10 speak of him as the propitiation for our sins. Ephesians 1:7 says that in him we have redemption through his blood. Hebrews 10:14 says that by a single offering he has perfected for all time those who are being sanctified.

STEP 6

Application

Write down, in your own words, what Christ did on the cross for you. Use at least two of the pictures: sacrifice, substitution, ransom, victory.

Rest in the finished work. Ask where you are still trying to earn what has been given.

Share one of these truths with someone who is weighed down by guilt.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank the Father for laying on his Son the iniquity of all.

Thank Jesus for bearing your sins.

Tell God how you want to live in light of the cross.

DAY 410 · WEEK 59

Isaiah 54:1-57:21

Covenant expanded; "come, everyone who thirsts"

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 81 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 54:1-57:21. After the cross of chapter 53 comes the fruit: a barren woman sings, the covenant is widened, and everyone who thirsts is invited to come. Read Isaiah 55 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 54 follows directly from the Servant's death. Because the Servant gave himself, Zion, a woman barren and desolate, will have many children. The following chapters broaden the invitation. The gate is opened to foreigners and eunuchs who were once excluded. The covenant now rests on grace. And the section ends with a warning that there is no peace for the wicked.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Sing, O barren one, who did not bear; break forth into singing and cry aloud" (54:1).
2. "For a brief moment I deserted you, but with great compassion I will gather you" (54:7).
3. "For the mountains may depart and the hills be removed, but my steadfast love shall not depart from you" (54:10).
4. "No weapon that is fashioned against you shall succeed" (54:17).
5. "Come, everyone who thirsts, come to the waters; and he who has no money, come, buy and eat!" (55:1).
6. "Seek the LORD while he may be found; call upon him while he is near" (55:6).
7. "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, declares the LORD" (55:8).

8 “So shall my word be that goes out from my mouth; it shall not return to me empty” (55:11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The command to sing in chapter 54 is startling. The one addressed is a barren woman, and yet she is told to sing, for the children of the desolate will be more than those of the married. The cross has made this possible. Because the Servant was cut off from the land of the living, many are born. The promises that follow are tender. God is her husband, her redeemer. He admits that for a moment he forsook her in his anger, but with everlasting love he has compassion. And he swears, as in the days of Noah, that he will not be angry with her again. The mountains may depart, but his love will not.

Chapter 55 is one of the greatest invitations in the Bible. “Come, everyone who thirsts.” It is free: “He who has no money, come, buy and eat… without money and without price.” The paradox of buying without money states the nature of grace. The question: “Why do you spend your money for that which is not bread, and your labor for that which does not satisfy?” It describes the empty pursuits of the world. God offers an everlasting covenant, the “sure mercies of David,” now extended to all.

The call is urgent: “Seek the LORD while he may be found.” It includes a call to repentance: “Let the wicked forsake his way… let him return to the LORD, that he may have compassion on him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.” The reason for confidence is that God’s ways are higher than ours: “As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways.” This is not a statement of distance but of generosity. His pardon is greater than we think possible. And his word is effective, like rain that waters the earth. It does not return empty.

Chapter 56 is a surprising word of inclusion. Foreigners and eunuchs, who were barred from the assembly in the law, are welcomed. “My house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples.” Chapter 57 then contrasts the contrite and humble, with whom God dwells, to the wicked, who have no peace.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink” (John 7:37) and to the woman at the well offered living water (John 4:10-14). Revelation 22:17 invites, “Let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who desires take the water of life without price.” Jesus quoted Isaiah 56:7 when he cleansed the temple (Mark 11:17). Galatians 4:27 quotes Isaiah 54:1. Acts 13:34 quotes “the sure mercies of David” as fulfilled in Christ’s resurrection. Matthew 5:3 echoes “the poor in spirit” of Isaiah 57:15.

STEP 6

Application

Accept Isaiah 55:1 as an invitation. What are you spending on “that which is not bread”? Bring that thirst to God.

Welcome someone who has been left out of your circle, as God welcomed the foreigner and the eunuch.

Trust the word you read, as rain that waters the earth and will not return empty.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what you are thirsty for.
- Confess where you have spent your labor on what does not satisfy.
- Ask him to help you seek him while he may be found.

DAY 411 · WEEK 59

Psalm 22

From the horns of the wild oxen you have rescued me

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 31 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 22. You have read parts of this psalm twice before in earlier units. Read it again now with Isaiah 53 open beside it. Both describe a righteous sufferer who is forsaken, pierced, and then vindicated, so that the nations turn to the LORD.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 22 is a psalm of David, and the Gospels show Jesus praying its first line from the cross. Paired with the fourth Servant Song, it shows the suffering and glory that the Old Testament predicts for the Messiah. Notice especially the second half, in which the sufferer is delivered and the result is worldwide worship. That is the same pattern as Isaiah 53:10-12.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me? Why are you so far from saving me?” (v. 1).
2. “But I am a worm and not a man, scorned by mankind and despised by the people” (v. 6).
3. “All who see me mock me; they make mouths at me; they wag their heads” (v. 7).
4. “They have pierced my hands and feet” (v. 16).
5. “They divide my garments among them, and for my clothing they cast lots” (v. 18).
6. “You who fear the LORD, praise him! … For he has not despised or abhorred the affliction of the afflicted” (vv. 23-24).
7. “All the ends of the earth shall remember and turn to the LORD, and all the families of the nations shall worship before you” (v. 27).

8 “They shall come and proclaim his righteousness to a people yet unborn, that he has done it” (v. 31).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Read beside Isaiah 53, the psalm reveals the same shape. The Servant is despised and rejected, and the psalmist is “a worm and not a man, scorned by mankind.” The Servant is silent before his accusers, and the psalmist is surrounded by bulls, lions, and dogs. The Servant is pierced and crushed, and the psalmist’s bones are out of joint, his heart like wax, his strength dried up. Even his clothes are divided. And then in both, the turn.

In Isaiah 53:10-11, “he shall see his offspring; he shall prolong his days… out of the anguish of his soul he shall see and be satisfied.” In Psalm 22:21-22, the sufferer is heard and begins to declare God’s name to his brothers and praise him in the congregation. The suffering was not the end.

Verses 24 to 31 are the surprising conclusion. God “has not despised or abhorred the affliction of the afflicted, and he has not hidden his face from him, but has heard, when he cried to him.” The cry of dereliction is answered. And its effect is global: “All the ends of the earth shall remember and turn to the LORD.” The affliction of one man brings all nations to worship. “The poor shall eat and be satisfied.” Compare Isaiah 53:11, “make many to be accounted righteous,” and Isaiah 49:6, a light for the nations.

The psalm ends with the future generations: “They shall come and proclaim his righteousness to a people yet unborn, that he has done it.” The Hebrew for “that he has done it” is a single word, much like Jesus’ cry, “It is finished.”

Why is it here? Because Isaiah’s Servant is not an abstract idea. Real suffering is involved, in real flesh. The psalm gives the Servant a voice. It shows what he felt: abandonment, mockery, thirst, and yet, trust, and ultimately praise. Because of this, Christians in suffering have a companion in the one who prayed this psalm to the end.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus cried, “Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani” on the cross (Matthew 27:46), and the details of Psalm 22 are found throughout the passion narratives: mocking (Matthew 27:39-43), the dividing of garments (John 19:23-24), thirst (John 19:28). Hebrews 2:12 puts verse 22 on Jesus’ lips. Revelation 7:9 shows people from all nations worshiping. John 19:30 records “It is finished.” Romans 8:34 says Christ is at the right hand of God, interceding.

STEP 6

Application

Read the psalm aloud as Jesus' prayer. Thank him for walking through abandonment so that you never have to be abandoned.

If you feel forsaken, pray verse 1 honestly, and then continue reading to verse 24.

Pray for a nation or people group that has not heard the gospel, using verse 27.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he did not despise the affliction of his Son.

Thank Jesus for crying out in forsakenness for you.

Ask him to make you tell others of what he has done.

DAY 412 · WEEK 59

Psalm 69:1-21

Save me, O God; reproach has broken my heart

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Psalm · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 69:1-21. It is a cry of deep suffering from one who is hated for the sake of God. Notice how often the New Testament quotes this psalm.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 69 is a psalm of David. It is one of the most quoted psalms in the New Testament, second only to Psalm 22. The psalmist is sinking in deep waters, exhausted from crying, and hated without cause. What makes his suffering unusual is that it comes because of his zeal for God. It pairs well with Isaiah's Servant, who suffered on behalf of others. It will appear again in Unit 18 with a different focus.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Save me, O God! For the waters have come up to my neck" (v. 1).
2. "I sink in deep mire, where there is no foothold" (v. 2).
3. "More in number than the hairs of my head are those who hate me without cause" (v. 4).
4. "What I did not steal must I now restore?" (v. 4).
5. "For it is for your sake that I have borne reproach, that dishonor has covered my face" (v. 7).
6. "I have become a stranger to my brothers, an alien to my mother's sons" (v. 8).
7. "For zeal for your house has consumed me, and the reproaches of those who reproach you have fallen on me" (v. 9).
8. "They gave me poison for food, and for my thirst they gave me sour wine to drink" (v. 21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The opening images are those of drowning: deep waters, mire, floods. The psalmist is worn out with calling for help, his throat parched, his eyes failing from waiting for God. The suffering is intense, and it appears to come from several sources: false accusations, the loss of family, the mockery of those at the gate and the drunkards' songs.

The unusual feature is the reason for it. "For it is for your sake that I have borne reproach." His loyalty to God has made him a target. His zeal for God's house has consumed him, and the insults aimed at God have landed on him. He has fasted and wept, and been mocked for it. There is no sense that the suffering is deserved. Though he acknowledges that he is not without folly (v. 5), the accusation against him is false.

The prayer turns on God's steadfast love. "But as for me, my prayer is to you, O LORD. At an acceptable time, O God, in the abundance of your steadfast love answer me." He asks God to rescue him from the mire, and he appeals to God's goodness: "Answer me, O LORD, for your steadfast love is good; according to your abundant mercy, turn to me." Then comes the heartbreaking description of verses 20 and 21: "Reproaches have broken my heart, so that I am in despair. I looked for pity, but there was none, and for comforters, but I found none. They gave me poison for food, and for my thirst they gave me sour wine to drink."

This psalm helps us see the Servant's suffering from the inside. The Servant is despised and rejected, with no one to comfort him. Yet the psalm leaves us with a question: what should the sufferer do? His answer is to pray. He does not repay hatred with hatred but brings his anguish to God. For the believer who suffers for righteousness' sake, the psalm is a guide and a comfort.

STEP 5

Connection

John 2:17 quotes verse 9, "Zeal for your house will consume me," when Jesus cleansed the temple. John 15:25 quotes verse 4, "They hated me without a cause." Romans 15:3 quotes verse 9, "The reproaches of those who reproached you fell on me," about Christ. Matthew 27:34, 48 and John 19:28-29 record the sour wine on the cross. Acts 1:20 quotes verse 25 in connection with Judas. 1 Peter 4:14 says that if we are insulted for the name of Christ, we are blessed.

STEP 6

Application

If you are suffering for doing right, bring it to God in honest prayer, and do not repay evil for evil.

Ask for the same zeal for God's house that Jesus had, a love for the church that is real and costly.

Look for someone who has "looked for pity and found none." Be the comforter.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Cry out to God about what overwhelms you.
- Thank Jesus for the zeal that consumed him.
- Ask him to teach you to bear reproach for his sake.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"But he was pierced for our transgressions; he was crushed for our iniquities; upon him was the chastisement that brought us peace, and with his wounds we are healed."

ISAIAH 53:5

REST

Meditation

This is the heart of the Old Testament's picture of the cross. It was written some seven centuries before Jesus was born, and it describes what he would do in language that is hard to read without wonder.

"But he was pierced for our transgressions." The word "pierced" means run through, wounded to the point of death. The Servant's wounds are connected to something: our transgressions. The sin was ours. The piercing was his. "He was crushed for our iniquities." The word "crushed" is the strongest word for breaking something to pieces. Iniquity is twisted behavior. Each phrase is a transfer. What belonged to us was borne by him.

"Upon him was the chastisement that brought us peace." Chastisement is discipline, the punishment that was due. It fell on him, and the result is peace for us. Think about what this peace is: not just a feeling of calm, but reconciliation with God. The war between a holy God and a rebellious people has ended.

“And with his wounds we are healed.” The healing is the forgiveness of sins and the restoration of the whole person. 1 Peter 2:24 says that “by his wounds you have been healed.” The wounds that made him unrecognizable are the means of our wholeness. The scars of Christ are the glory of the gospel.

This verse can be said at any time. When you feel guilt, say it. When you are tempted to believe that you must earn God’s favor, say it. When you meet someone who has no hope, tell them. The Servant was wounded for us, and the debt is paid.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you walked through the center of Isaiah. You saw the idols of Babylon carried off on animals, while the true God carries his people from birth to old age. You heard the Servant speak, call him to be a light for the nations, and learned that God has engraved his people on the palms of his hands. Then you came to the heart of the book: the Servant who gave his back to those who strike, who was despised and rejected, pierced for our transgressions, and crushed for our iniquities. On Wednesday’s doctrinal pause you traced the doctrine of the atonement through sacrifice, substitution, propitiation, redemption, and victory. After the cross came the invitation of Isaiah 55, “Come, everyone who thirsts.” And you prayed Psalms 22 and 69, in which the suffering Messiah speaks for himself. The week taught that Jesus bore our sins, that God is both just and the justifier, and that the invitation is free.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Isaiah 53 says the Servant was pierced for our transgressions. What does it mean to you personally that Jesus took your place?

The doctrinal pause described the atonement through several pictures. Which one speaks most clearly to your own need right now: sacrifice, substitution, ransom, or victory?

Isaiah 55 invites everyone who thirsts to come without money. What would it mean for you to accept this invitation without trying to earn it?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that he was pierced and crushed for you.

Thank him that by his wounds you are healed.

Rest in the peace he bought.

DAY 414 · WEEK 60

Isaiah 58:1-60:22

True fasting; the Spirit's anointing; Zion's future glory

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 62 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 58:1-60:22. God describes the fast he wants, the Servant speaks about the Spirit's anointing, and the future glory of Zion shines like sunrise. Read chapter 58 as a challenge, and chapter 60 as a promise.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The last section of Isaiah, chapters 56 to 66, addresses a community that has begun to return from exile, or is on the verge of it, and finds the promised glory slow to appear. The people ask why God does not notice their fasting. The answer is that religion without justice is empty. Then the section moves on to the Spirit-anointed one, a new covenant, and a future in which the nations stream to the light of Zion.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Cry aloud; do not hold back; lift up your voice like a trumpet; declare to my people their transgression" (58:1).
2. "Is not this the fast that I choose: to loose the bonds of wickedness, to undo the straps of the yoke, to let the oppressed go free?" (58:6).
3. "Is it not to share your bread with the hungry and bring the homeless poor into your house?" (58:7).
4. "Then shall your light break forth like the dawn, and your healing shall spring up speedily" (58:8).
5. "Behold, the LORD's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save... but your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God" (59:1-2).

6. “He saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no one to intercede; then his own arm brought him salvation” (59:16).
7. “And a Redeemer will come to Zion, to those in Jacob who turn from transgression” (59:20).
8. “Arise, shine, for your light has come, and the glory of the LORD has risen upon you” (60:1).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 58 begins with a surprise. The people seem religious, “seeking” God daily, delighting to know his ways. They fast, and they wonder why God does not see. God answers that on the day of their fast they pursue their own interests and oppress their workers. They fast with quarreling and strife. A day of bowing the head like a reed is not what God wants. The fast that he chooses is to set the oppressed free, share bread with the hungry, shelter the homeless, and clothe the naked. This is Isaiah 1 again. True worship cannot be separated from compassion.

The promise attached to this obedience is wonderful. “Then shall your light break forth like the dawn.” “You shall be like a watered garden.” And the Sabbath is also mentioned: delight in it, and God will cause you to ride on the heights of the earth.

Chapter 59 turns to the problem beneath. The LORD’s hand is not too short to save. It is sin that separates. The chapter is a bleak confession of corporate guilt: “Our transgressions are multiplied before you.” Justice is turned back, truth stumbles in the street. “He saw that there was no man… then his own arm brought him salvation.” God himself, a divine warrior, puts on righteousness as a breastplate and the helmet of salvation. “And a Redeemer will come to Zion.” A new covenant is promised: “My Spirit that is upon you, and my words that I have put in your mouth, shall not depart.”

Chapter 60 is a wave of light. Darkness covers the earth, but the LORD rises over Zion, and nations come to her light. Kings come to the brightness of her rising. Her gates are open continually. The sun and moon are replaced by the LORD as an everlasting light. “Your people shall all be righteous; they shall possess the land forever.” The people who were exiles become a glorious city.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “Whatever you did for one of the least of these, you did for me” (Matthew 25:35-40). James 1:27 and 2:14-17 echo the call to practical compassion. Paul uses the armor of Isaiah 59:17 in Ephesians 6:14-17. Romans 11:26-27 quotes Isaiah 59:20-21 about the Redeemer. Jesus said, “I am the light of the world” (John 8:12), and Revelation 21:23-25 shows the city lit by the glory of God, its gates never shut, and the nations walking by its light.

STEP 6

Application

Choose one concrete act of justice or mercy: share a meal, give to the poor, or help someone out of a hard situation.

Ask how your spiritual practices, such as fasting, prayer, and church, affect how you treat people.

Let the light of Christ shine in a dark place this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to teach you the fast he chooses, and ask how you can share bread with the hungry.

Confess where your religion has been empty.

Ask him to let your light rise.

ISAIAH 6:3

DAY 415 · WEEK 60

Isaiah 61:1-63:14

The year of the LORD's favor; the divine warrior

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 61:1-63:14. In chapter 61 an anointed one announces good news, which Jesus read aloud in the synagogue at Nazareth. Then comes a vision of a divine warrior and a long memory of the exodus. Read 61:1-3 as if you were in that synagogue.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Isaiah 61 is a text that Jesus chose to read at the beginning of his public ministry (Luke 4:16-21). It describes an anointed herald who announces release to captives. Chapter 62 speaks of Zion's new name and of God's delight in her as a bridegroom delights in his bride. Chapter 63 opens with a figure coming from Edom in blood-stained garments, treading the winepress of wrath, and ends with a remembrance of God's saving acts in the exodus.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me, because the LORD has anointed me to bring good news to the poor" (61:1).
2. "To proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to those who are bound" (61:1).
3. "To proclaim the year of the LORD's favor, and the day of vengeance of our God" (61:2).
4. "To grant to those who mourn in Zion… a beautiful headdress instead of ashes, the oil of gladness instead of mourning" (61:3).
5. "I will greatly rejoice in the LORD; my soul shall exult in my God, for he has clothed me with the garments of salvation" (61:10).
6. "You shall be called by a new name that the mouth of the LORD will give" (62:2).

7. “As the bridegroom rejoices over the bride, so shall your God rejoice over you” (62:5).
8. “In all their affliction he was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them; in his love and in his pity he redeemed them” (63:9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The speaker of chapter 61 is the Servant, now described as anointed with the Spirit. He is a prophet, a king, and a priest. His mission is a series of reversals: good news to the poor, binding up the brokenhearted, liberty for captives, comfort for those who mourn. The promise is of a jubilee, a year of release. The imagery is of the Year of Jubilee in Leviticus 25, when debts were forgiven and slaves went free. The beautiful exchanges are: a crown instead of ashes, gladness instead of mourning, a garment of praise instead of a faint spirit.

When Jesus read this passage in Nazareth, he stopped in the middle of verse 2, after “the year of the LORD’s favor.” He omitted the phrase “and the day of vengeance of our God.” Then he said, “Today this Scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing.” The first coming brings the favor, and the second will bring the vengeance. The two parts are separated by the time of the church.

Chapter 62 expresses God’s passion for his people. He will not keep silent until her righteousness shines like the dawn. She will be called by a new name, “My Delight Is in Her.” “As the bridegroom rejoices over the bride, so shall your God rejoice over you.” This is the language of marriage, as in Hosea. The divine bridegroom delights in his people. Watchmen are posted on the walls who will give God no rest until he makes Jerusalem a praise in the earth.

Chapter 63 begins with a terrifying warrior coming from Edom. His garments are stained red, for he has trodden the winepress alone. It is a picture of God’s judgment on his enemies. Then the prophet looks back with gratitude and prays, remembering the exodus. “In all their affliction he was afflicted.” God suffers with his people. But they rebelled and grieved his Holy Spirit. Even so, the Spirit led them, “like livestock that go down into the valley,” to give them rest.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus announced in Luke 4:18-21 that Isaiah 61 was fulfilled in him. He answered John the Baptist with these signs (Luke 7:22). Matthew 5:4 says, “Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted.” Ephesians 5:25-27 shows Christ as the bridegroom who presents the church to himself in splendor. Revelation 19:13-15 draws on the warrior with the stained garment, and verse 7 speaks of the marriage of the Lamb. Ephesians 4:30 echoes “do not grieve the Holy Spirit.”

STEP 6

Application

Read Isaiah 61:1-3 as a description of your calling in Christ, and see where you can bring good news to someone who is poor, broken, or bound.

Receive the exchange: ask Jesus to give you a crown instead of ashes and the oil of gladness instead of mourning.

Rest in the truth that God rejoices over you, as a bridegroom over a bride.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for bringing good news to the poor and binding up the brokenhearted.
- Tell him what you want him to bind up in you.
- Thank him for the year of favor.

Isaiah 63:15-66:24

Lament and prayer; new creation, the grand finale

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 79 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Isaiah 63:15-66:24. The book ends with a desperate prayer for God to tear open the heavens, an answer that announces a new heavens and a new earth, and a final scene of worship and warning. Read chapter 65 slowly. It is the great finale of the book.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The last part of Isaiah opens with one of the most heartfelt prayers in the Old Testament. The people confess their sin, plead for God to act, and ask for the heavens to be torn open. God replies with a promise of new creation, a place where the LORD's people live in peace and joy, with long life and no tears. The book closes with a contrast between those who tremble at God's word and those who do not.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For you are our Father, though Abraham does not know us, and Israel does not acknowledge us; you, O LORD, are our Father, our Redeemer from of old is your name" (63:16).
2. "Oh that you would rend the heavens and come down, that the mountains might quake at your presence" (64:1).
3. "We have all become like one who is unclean, and all our righteous deeds are like a polluted garment" (64:6).
4. "But now, O LORD, you are our Father; we are the clay, and you are our potter; we are all the work of your hand" (64:8).
5. "Before they call I will answer; while they are yet speaking I will hear" (65:24).

6. “For behold, I create new heavens and a new earth, and the former things shall not be remembered or come into mind” (65:17).
7. “No more shall there be in it an infant who lives but a few days” (65:20).
8. “But this is the one to whom I will look: he who is humble and contrite in spirit and trembles at my word” (66:2).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The prayer of 63:15 to 64:12 is the plea of a people who feel far from God. They look back to the exodus and ask where God’s zeal has gone. “You, O LORD, are our Father.” Their earthly fathers may not know them, but God does. They confess that they have strayed: “Why, O LORD, do you make us wander from your ways and harden our heart?” And the prayer climbs toward a cry: “Oh that you would rend the heavens and come down!” They want God to appear as he did at Sinai.

Then comes the confession of 64:6: “We have all become like one who is unclean, and all our righteous deeds are like a polluted garment.” It is a startling statement. Even our best deeds, apart from God, are stained. No one calls on his name or rouses himself to take hold of God. And then the prayer rests on a relationship: “But now, O LORD, you are our Father; we are the clay, and you are our potter.” If God shapes us, we can trust the shaping.

God’s answer in chapter 65 begins with a rebuke, because he was ready to be sought by a people who did not ask. “I said, Here am I, here am I, to a nation that was not called by my name.” Yet he will preserve a remnant, his servants, who will inherit. And the grand promise: “I create new heavens and a new earth.” The vision includes Jerusalem as a joy, with no weeping, no early deaths, no frustrated labor. “They shall build houses and inhabit them; they shall plant vineyards and eat their fruit.” The wolf and the lamb feed together again.

Chapter 66 emphasizes humility. The temple cannot contain God, and he looks to the one who is humble and contrite and trembles at his word. The book ends with a vision of all nations coming to worship, and a sober picture of the fate of rebels. “All flesh shall come to worship before me.” The last note is a warning, so that the reader will choose well.

STEP 5

Connection

Mark 1:10 describes the heavens being torn open at Jesus’ baptism, an answer to Isaiah 64:1. Romans 10:20-21 quotes Isaiah 65:1-2 about God’s welcome to the Gentiles. 2 Peter 3:13 and Revelation 21:1-4 describe the new heavens and new earth, with God dwelling with his people and wiping away every tear. Romans 9:21 draws on the potter and the clay. Philippians 3:9 says our righteousness comes from God by faith. Jesus quotes Isaiah 66:24 in Mark 9:48.

STEP 6

Application

Pray Isaiah 64:8 as your own: “You are the potter; I am the clay.” Ask him to keep shaping you.

Consider where you still depend on your “righteous deeds.” Rest in Christ’s righteousness.

Meditate on the new creation. Ask God to make you long for it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Call on God as Father and Redeemer.
- Confess that your righteous deeds are like a polluted garment, and tell him whom you trust.
- Thank him for the new heavens and new earth.

DAY 417 · WEEK 60

Nahum 1:1-3:19

Nineveh falls, God's patience exhausted

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Nahum 1:1-3:19. Nahum is a short prophecy of about fifty verses against Nineveh, the Assyrian capital. This is the same city that repented under Jonah. Read it with Jonah in mind, and ask what has changed.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Nahum prophesied in the seventh century BC, sometime after the fall of Thebes in 663 BC and before the fall of Nineveh in 612 BC. A hundred and fifty years earlier, Nineveh had repented at Jonah's preaching. In the generations since, the city returned to violence and cruelty and became the capital of the empire that destroyed Samaria and tormented Judah. Nahum's message is that God's patience, though long, has an end.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD is a jealous and avenging God; the LORD is avenging and wrathful" (1:2).
2. "The LORD is slow to anger and great in power, and the LORD will by no means clear the guilty" (1:3).
3. "The LORD is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; he knows those who take refuge in him" (1:7).
4. "Behold, on the mountains, the feet of him who brings good news, who publishes peace!" (1:15).
5. "Woe to the bloody city, all full of lies and plunder" (3:1).
6. "Behold, I am against you, declares the LORD of hosts" (3:5).
7. "There is no easing your hurt; your wound is grievous" (3:19).

8 “For upon whom has not come your unceasing evil?” (3:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The book opens with a majestic hymn about God’s character, drawing on Exodus 34:6-7. But Nahum emphasizes a different side. He quotes “slow to anger” and then, “will by no means clear the guilty.” God’s patience is not indifference. A holy God must respond to evil. The imagery is of a storm: mountains quake, hills melt, the earth heaves. Who can stand before his indignation? And in the middle, a note of gentle comfort: “The LORD is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; he knows those who take refuge in him.” To the same God, the wicked experience a fire, and the faithful a refuge. Everything depends on which side of him we stand.

The word to Judah in 1:12-15 is a comfort: “Though I have afflicted you, I will afflict you no more.” The yoke of Assyria will be broken. And the herald appears on the mountains with good news. Isaiah 52:7 uses the same image, which Paul applies to the preaching of the gospel in Romans 10:15.

Chapters 2 and 3 describe the fall of Nineveh with vivid military imagery: shields red, chariots flashing, the river gates opening, the palace dissolving. In 612 BC, the city fell when the Tigris flooded and broke part of the wall, and the Babylonians and Medes entered. The prophet describes the city as a den of lions that fed on prey and filled its caves with plunder. “Behold, I am against you.” Her sins are violence, deceit, plunder, and sorceries. She will be exposed, shamed, and no one will mourn.

The book ends with a rhetorical question that reminds us of Jonah: “For upon whom has not come your unceasing evil?” The contrast with the book of Jonah is a lesson. In Jonah’s day, the city repented and was spared. In Nahum’s day, the city had returned to evil and was not spared. God’s mercy is real, and God’s justice is real. Both come from the same character. No generation can live on the repentance of a previous one.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 11:22 says, “Note then the kindness and the severity of God.” Romans 10:15 applies Nahum 1:15 to those who bring the gospel. Jesus’ comparison in Matthew 12:41 says the men of Nineveh will rise at the judgment. 2 Peter 3:9 says the Lord is patient, not wishing that any should perish, and verse 10 says the day of the Lord will come. Hebrews 12:29 says our God is a consuming fire. Psalm 34:8 invites us to taste and see that the LORD is good.

STEP 6

Application

Take refuge in the LORD, who is good, and thank him that you are known by him.

Ask whether you are presuming on God's patience in any area.

Pray for a violent or oppressive regime in the world today, that justice would come and the oppressed would be freed.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he is slow to anger and great in power.

Thank him that he is a stronghold and knows those who take refuge in him.

Pray for those who suffer under cruelty.

DAY 418 · WEEK 60

Habakkuk 1:1-3:19

The just shall live by faith, wrestling with God's ways

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Habakkuk 1:1-3:19. Habakkuk does something unusual for a prophet: he argues with God. Read it as a conversation. Notice how the prophet's questions change, and where the book ends.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Habakkuk prophesied in Judah around 610 to 600 BC, probably in the days of King Jehoiakim, when the Assyrian empire was collapsing and Babylon was rising. Judah was full of violence and injustice. Habakkuk cries out to God, and God's answer disturbs him even more. The book is a dialogue between a troubled believer and a sovereign God. It ends with one of the greatest expressions of faith in the Bible.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "O LORD, how long shall I cry for help, and you will not hear? Or cry to you Violence! and you will not save?" (1:2).
2. "Look among the nations, and see; wonder and be astounded. For I am doing a work in your days that you would not believe if told" (1:5).
3. "For behold, I am raising up the Chaldeans" (1:6).
4. "You who are of purer eyes than to see evil and cannot look at wrong, why do you idly look at traitors?" (1:13).
5. "I will take my stand at my watchpost... and look out to see what he will say to me" (2:1).
6. "Behold, his soul is puffed up; it is not upright within him, but the righteous shall live by his faith" (2:4).

7. “For the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD as the waters cover the sea” (2:14).

8. “Though the fig tree should not blossom… yet I will rejoice in the LORD; I will take joy in the God of my salvation” (3:17-18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Habakkuk’s first complaint is that God is silent in the face of violence in Judah. God answers that he is raising up the Chaldeans, the Babylonians, a fierce and dreadful nation. This is not the answer Habakkuk wanted. He asks a second question: How can a holy God use a nation more wicked than Judah to punish them? “You who are of purer eyes than to see evil… why do you look at traitors and remain silent when the wicked swallows up the man more righteous than he?” It is an honest, hard question about God’s justice and his ways.

Habakkuk then takes his stand like a watchman and waits. God replies, and tells him to write the vision plainly. It will surely come, though it seems slow. And at the center of the answer is the verse that changed history: “The righteous shall live by his faith.” The proud, puffed-up man depends on himself. The righteous person depends on God, and lives by trust in him, even when the answer seems to be delay.

The rest of chapter 2 contains five woes against the Babylonians, those who plunder, build their house by injustice, build cities with blood, make others drunk, and trust in idols. They will fall. “But the LORD is in his holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before him.” It is a verse that stills the questions.

Chapter 3 is a prayer, set to music, that recalls God’s great acts in the exodus and at Sinai. Habakkuk sees God coming in splendor, with light and pestilence. He trembles. And then comes the glorious conclusion: “Though the fig tree should not blossom, nor fruit be on the vines… yet I will rejoice in the LORD.” He lists every kind of agricultural disaster, a picture of complete economic collapse. And still he rejoices. Faith does not depend on circumstances. “God, the Lord, is my strength; he makes my feet like the deer’s; he makes me tread on my high places.” The prophet who began in doubt ends in joy.

STEP 5

Connection

Paul quotes Habakkuk 2:4 in Romans 1:17 and Galatians 3:11, and the author of Hebrews quotes it in Hebrews 10:38. It became the foundation text of the Reformation. Habakkuk 2:14 echoes Isaiah 11:9. Romans 8:28 and 8:35-39 give a New Testament answer to Habakkuk’s questions: nothing can separate us from the love of God. Philippians 4:11-13 shows Paul’s contentment in every circumstance. James 1:2-4 calls us to count it joy when we meet trials.

STEP 6

Application

Bring your hardest question to God in prayer. Habakkuk shows that honest questions are welcome.

Take your “stand at the watchpost.” Set aside time to listen after you have prayed.

Write out your own version of Habakkuk 3:17-18, naming real things that could be taken from you, and say you will still rejoice in the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Bring God your honest questions.
- Ask him to teach you to live by faith.
- Tell him you will rejoice in him even when things are barren.

DAY 419 · WEEK 60

Zephaniah 1:1-3:20

The Day of the LORD; the LORD rejoices over his people

Year 1 · Unit 12 · Reading · 53 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Zephaniah 1:1-3:20. The last of this unit's prophets begins with a terrifying announcement of the Day of the LORD and ends with one of the most tender images of God in the Bible. Read the last four verses twice.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Zephaniah prophesied in the days of King Josiah, around 640 to 609 BC, before Josiah's reforms took hold. His great-grandfather was Hezekiah, so he may have been of royal blood. The book is built around the phrase "the day of the LORD." It begins with a universal judgment, calls Judah to repent, speaks against the nations, and ends with restoration. It prepares the way for the exile that is coming.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I will utterly sweep away everything from the face of the earth, declares the LORD" (1:2).
2. "The great day of the LORD is near, near and hastening fast" (1:14).
3. "Seek the LORD, all you humble of the land, who do his just commands; seek righteousness; seek humility; perhaps you may be hidden on the day of the anger of the LORD" (2:3).
4. "Woe to her who is rebellious and defiled, the oppressing city!" (3:1).
5. "She listens to no voice; she accepts no correction. She does not trust in the LORD; she does not draw near to her God" (3:2).

6. “For at that time I will change the speech of the peoples to a pure speech, that all of them may call upon the name of the LORD” (3:9).

7. “But I will leave in your midst a people humble and lowly. They shall seek refuge in the name of the LORD” (3:12).

8. “The LORD your God is in your midst, a mighty one who will save; he will rejoice over you with gladness; he will quiet you by his love; he will exult over you with loud singing” (3:17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first chapter is relentless. God will sweep away everything: man and beast, birds and fish. The reason is idolatry and spiritual indifference. The people worship Baal and the host of heaven, and others say in their hearts, “The LORD will not do good, nor will he do ill.” They are practical atheists who believe that God does nothing. God will search Jerusalem with lamps. The day is described as a day of wrath, distress, ruin, darkness, and gloom. Not even silver or gold can deliver them.

Then chapter 2 begins with a call: “Gather yourselves together… before the decree takes effect… seek the LORD, all you humble of the land.” The only protection is humility and a search for righteousness. “Perhaps you may be hidden.” The word “perhaps” reminds us that no one deserves to be saved. Yet the invitation is real. The remaining part of the chapter pronounces judgment on Philistia, Moab, Ammon, Cush, and Assyria. Nineveh will be a desolation.

Chapter 3 returns to Jerusalem, “the oppressing city,” which did not listen or trust. Officials are roaring lions, judges evening wolves, prophets reckless and treacherous, priests profane the sanctuary. “The LORD within her is righteous; he does no injustice.” God had hoped that she would learn, but she was eager to make her deeds corrupt.

And then the turn, “For at that time.” The nations will call on the name of the LORD. A humble and lowly remnant will be left, who do no injustice and speak no lies. They will lie down with none to make them afraid. Then the song: “Sing aloud, O daughter of Zion.” The reason is verse 17, one of the most beautiful verses in the Old Testament. The LORD is in your midst, a warrior who saves. He rejoices over you with gladness. “He will quiet you by his love.” He sings over you. The God who judged is the God who sings. The same hand that sweeps away the proud gathers the humble.

Connection

Jesus is the one in the midst of his people who saves (Matthew 1:21; 18:20). Romans 8:1 says there is no condemnation for those in Christ, who have been hidden on the day of wrath. Luke 15:5-7 and 15:20-24 show heaven rejoicing over sinners who return. Hebrews 12:22-24 describes the gathered assembly of the firstborn. Revelation 7:9-17 shows the multitude from every nation, with God wiping away tears. 1 Thessalonians 1:10 says Jesus delivers us from the wrath to come.

STEP 6

Application

Read Zephaniah 3:17 aloud, replacing "you" with your own name, and sit in it for a few minutes.

Ask whether you ever live as if "the LORD will not do good, nor will he do ill," as a practical atheist.

Pray for humility, the posture that Zephaniah says leads to being hidden.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to hide you in the day of his anger.
- Tell him you seek righteousness and humility.
- Thank him that he rejoices over you with singing.

REST

Meditation

This is the cry of the seraphim in Isaiah's vision, and it is the anchor of the whole unit. Everything you have read, from the vineyard song to the suffering Servant to the fall of Nineveh, flows from who God is. He is holy.

"Holy, holy, holy." Hebrew has no way to say "more" or "most." Instead it repeats. To say a word three times is to say it as strongly as language can. Only this one attribute of God is ever repeated three times in the Bible. He is utterly set apart, in power, in purity, and in glory. All other things that we call holy are holy because they are connected to him.

"Is the LORD of hosts." The holy one is not an abstract force. He is the LORD, the covenant God who has a name and who keeps promises. He is also the Lord of hosts, the commander of the armies of heaven. The one who stands against Assyria is the one who reigns over every power.

"The whole earth is full of his glory." The seraphim see glory in every corner of creation. God's glory is not limited to the temple. It fills the whole earth. Later in Isaiah, we learn that the knowledge of that glory will cover the earth as the waters cover the sea, and that all flesh will see it together.

Say this verse from memory, and let it shape how you approach God. The holy God has also become your Savior. He sent a seraph with a coal, and, in Christ, he removed your guilt. The one who is holy has made a way for you to stand before him. He calls us to say with the seraphim, and with all creation, "Holy, holy, holy."

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the book of Isaiah and the prophets of the Assyrian crisis. You read about the fast God chooses, the Spirit-anointed one whom Jesus identified as himself, and the great prayer asking God to tear open the heavens. You read God's answer of a new creation, where the wolf and the lamb feed together and sorrow is no more. You then read three short books: Nahum, which announced the fall of the city that once repented; Habakkuk, who argued with God and learned to live by faith, and who rejoiced in the LORD though everything failed; and Zephaniah, who warned of the Day of the LORD and ended with God exulting over his people with loud singing. The week taught that God is holy and just, that faith is the way to live in uncertain times, and that the God who judges is the God who saves.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

This unit covered one of the most important periods in Old Testament history and one of the greatest books of prophecy. King Hezekiah trusted the LORD when Assyria surrounded Jerusalem, spread Sennacherib's letter before him, and saw 185,000 soldiers struck down in a night. Isaiah, who prophesied through the crisis, saw the Lord high and lifted up, heard the cry of "Holy, holy, holy," was cleansed and sent, and announced Immanuel, the child born to us, and the shoot from Jesse's stump. Chapters 40 to 55 gave comfort to exiles and introduced the Servant, who was despised and rejected, pierced for our transgressions, and yet exalted. You paused on the doctrine of the atonement. Chapters 56 to 66 closed with the invitation to everyone who thirsts, the Spirit-anointed herald, and the promise of new heavens and a new earth. Nahum showed that God's patience with Nineveh ended, Habakkuk taught that the righteous shall live by faith, and Zephaniah ended with the God who sings over his people.

REFLECT

Review Questions

What does Isaiah's vision of God in chapter 6 teach about worship?

Think about the order of the vision: God's holiness, Isaiah's confession, the cleansing coal, and the call to go. What does each step show about how we come before God, and how does the vision change a person?

Who is the Servant in Isaiah 40-55, and what does he do?

Look at the four Servant Songs (42:1-4, 49:1-6, 50:4-9, 52:13-53:12). Consider his calling, his gentleness, his obedience, and his mission to the nations. How does the New Testament say Jesus fulfills this role (Matthew 12:15-21; Acts 8:32-35)?

How does Isaiah 53 describe substitutionary atonement?

Notice the repeated words “our” and “his.” Write a few sentences about what the Servant bore, why he bore it, and what the result is for those who trust in him. Compare with Romans 3:21-26 and 1 Peter 2:24.

What does “the righteous shall live by his faith” mean in Habakkuk’s context?

Recall the dilemma: injustice in Judah, Babylon coming as a rod, and God’s silence. What does it mean to live by faith when the answer is delayed? Consider Habakkuk 3:17-19 and how Paul uses the verse in Romans 1:17.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the Servant who was pierced for your transgressions.

Thank him for what he has taught you through Isaiah and the prophets.

DAY 421 · WEEK 61

2 Kings 21:1-23:37

Manasseh; Josiah's reform; the Book of the Law found

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 95 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Kings 21:1-23:37. Judah's worst king is followed by one of its best, and yet the judgment does not turn back. Read chapter 22 slowly, and notice what happens when the Book of the Law is found.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This unit begins the last chapter of Judah's story. Manasseh reigned fifty-five years, the longest of any king, and the Bible calls his reign the cause of Judah's fall. His grandson Josiah then led the greatest reform in the nation's history, and still the sentence of exile stood. Jeremiah began to prophesy in Josiah's thirteenth year, so the prophet you are about to meet stands inside this story.

STEP 3

Observation

1. Manasseh "did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to the despicable practices of the nations" (21:2).
2. He "burned his son as an offering" and "shed very much innocent blood" (21:6, 16).
3. "I am bringing such disaster upon Jerusalem and Judah that the ears of everyone who hears of it will tingle" (21:12).
4. Josiah "did what was right in the eyes of the LORD" at eight years old (22:1-2).
5. "I have found the Book of the Law in the house of the LORD" (22:8).
6. "When the king heard the words of the Book of the Law, he tore his clothes" (22:11).
7. "Because your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before the LORD… I also have heard you" (22:19).

8 “Before him there was no king like him, who turned to the LORD with all his heart… Still the LORD did not turn from the burning of his great anger” (23:25-26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Manasseh rebuilt the high places, set up altars to the host of heaven inside the temple courts, practiced sorcery, and sacrificed his own son. The writer says he led the people astray to do more evil than the nations God had destroyed before Israel. The sentence given in chapter 21 is clear: Jerusalem will be wiped out like a dish turned upside down.

Then Josiah. When the Book of the Law is found during temple repairs, it has been lost so long that its words come as a shock. The king hears it read and tears his clothes. This is the right response to Scripture: not curiosity but fear and humility. God tells him that judgment will come, but not in his days, because his heart was tender.

Josiah then does everything the book requires. He reads it to all the people and renews the covenant. He tears down the high places, destroys the altars, defiles Topheth where children were burned, and keeps the greatest Passover since the judges. The writer gives him the highest praise: no king turned to the LORD with all his heart, soul, and might like him.

And yet. “Still the LORD did not turn from the burning of his great anger.” Reform could slow the judgment but could not undo a generation’s habits. The people had cleaned the house, but their hearts had not changed. That is the problem the rest of this unit will face, and why Jeremiah will promise a covenant written on the heart. Josiah dies at Megiddo in 609 BC, and within a few years the nation is under Egypt and then Babylon.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus rebuked leaders who “neglect the weightier matters of the law” (Matthew 23:23). Hebrews 8:7-13 says that the first covenant was faulty because the people did not continue in it, and quotes Jeremiah’s promise of a new one. Romans 7:7-25 shows the law exposing sin without being able to change the heart. Luke 4:17 shows Jesus finding the scroll of Isaiah and reading, a better finding of the Word.

STEP 6

Application

Open your Bible today as if you had just found it. Ask what you would do if you really heard it.

Consider whether you have been tidying up outward habits while your heart stays the same.

Pray for a tender heart, one that trembles at God's word.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to make you tremble at his word as Josiah did.
- Ask him not to let you settle for outward reform.
- Confess where your heart has been hard.

DAY 422 · WEEK 61

2 Kings 24:1-25:30

Jerusalem falls; the exile, covenant curses fulfilled

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 48 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Kings 24:1-25:30. This is the end of the kingdom of Judah. Read it as the fulfillment of the covenant curses you saw in Deuteronomy, and look for the small sign of hope in the last verses.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After Josiah's death, Judah's last four kings ruled for about twenty-three years under the shadow of Egypt and Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar took the first exiles, including Daniel and Ezekiel, in 605 and 597 BC. The final siege ended in 586 BC, when Jerusalem and the temple were burned. This chapter is the historical backdrop for all the prophets you will read in this unit.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Surely this came upon Judah at the command of the LORD, to remove them out of his sight" (24:3).
2. Nebuchadnezzar carried off "all Jerusalem… ten thousand captives" in 597 BC (24:14).
3. Zedekiah "rebelled against the king of Babylon" (24:20).
4. "On the seventh day of the fifth month… Nebuzaradan… burned the house of the LORD and the king's house and all the houses of Jerusalem" (25:8-9).
5. They killed Zedekiah's sons before his eyes and then blinded him (25:7).
6. The bronze pillars, the sea, and the temple vessels were broken up and carried to Babylon (25:13-17).
7. "So Judah was taken into exile out of its land" (25:21).

8 “Evil-merodach king of Babylon… graciously freed Jehoiachin from prison… and Jehoiachin dined regularly at the king’s table” (25:27-29).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The story is told with terrible plainness. The writer does not shout or linger. He lists the steps: the siege, the famine, the breach in the wall, the flight of the king, the burning of the temple, the stripping of the bronze, the deportation. The curses of Deuteronomy 28 have come true in order. The nation that was brought out of Egypt is carried back into foreign captivity.

The blame is placed squarely on Judah’s sin, and especially Manasseh’s. But the Lord is the one who sends the Babylonians. This is a point the prophets will make again and again: Babylon is God’s instrument, not his master. Exile is not a sign that God lost. It is a sign that God keeps his word.

Notice the loss of everything that Judah trusted in. The temple is destroyed, which they believed could never fall. The king is blinded and bound. The land is emptied. The articles of worship are melted down. There is nothing left to stand on except God himself.

And then the last four verses. After thirty-seven years in prison, Jehoiachin, the king of David’s line, is released and given a seat at Babylon’s table. It is a small thing. But it shows that David’s line is not extinct. The promise of 2 Samuel 7 has not been cancelled. The writer ends the book with a candle in the dark, and the prophets will light more.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 1:11-12 includes the exile in the genealogy of Jesus: “Jechoniah and his brothers, at the time of the deportation to Babylon.” Jesus predicted another fall of Jerusalem (Luke 21:20-24), and Hebrews 12:27-28 speaks of a kingdom that cannot be shaken. Romans 11:22 pairs God’s kindness and severity. Lamentations will give voice to this grief in a few days.

STEP 6

Application

Take a moment to sit with the weight of this chapter. Judgment is real, and God means what he says.

Ask what you have trusted in as unshakeable: a building, a position, a routine. Where does your security come from?

Remember the small candle at the end, and look for small signs of God's faithfulness in dark times.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to teach you to fear him and not presume on his patience.
- Ask him to hold you when everything is lost.
- Thank him that he keeps his word in judgment and mercy.

DAY 423 · WEEK 61

Psalm 89:38-52

You have renounced the covenant

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 15 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 89:38-52. Last unit you read the first half of this psalm, which celebrates God's covenant with David. Today comes the second half, which seems to contradict it. Read it as the prayer of someone living the fall of Jerusalem.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 89 changes in verse 38. After thirty-seven verses of praise for God's oath to David, the psalmist turns and says, "But now you have cast off and rejected." The king is humiliated, the crown is in the dust, the walls are broken. This is the psalm that fits the end of 2 Kings: the line of David has fallen, and the promise seems to have failed.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "But now you have cast off and rejected; you are full of wrath against your anointed" (v. 38).
2. "You have renounced the covenant with your servant; you have defiled his crown in the dust" (v. 39).
3. "You have breached all his walls; you have laid his strongholds in ruins" (v. 40).
4. "You have not made him stand in battle" (v. 43).
5. "You have cut short the days of his youth; you have covered him with shame" (v. 45).
6. "How long, O LORD? Will you hide yourself forever? How long will your wrath burn like fire?" (v. 46).
7. "Lord, where is your steadfast love of old, which by your faithfulness you swore to David?" (v. 49).

8 “Blessed be the LORD forever! Amen and Amen” (v. 52).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The contrast between the two halves is deliberate and honest. The first half quotes God’s oath: “I will not violate my covenant.” The second half describes what it looks like to live as though God had violated it. The psalmist does not pretend that the promise and the experience match. He says, “You have renounced the covenant.” It is the language of a person who is not hiding his confusion.

Yet he does not walk away. Every complaint is addressed to God. That is the mark of faith in this psalm: the very God who seems to have broken his word is the one the psalmist keeps speaking to. “Lord, where is your steadfast love of old, which by your faithfulness you swore to David?” He holds God to his own promise.

The ending is one of the most surprising in the Psalter. After forty verses of lament, the psalm closes with praise: “Blessed be the LORD forever! Amen and Amen.” This is a doxology that marks the end of Book 3. Nothing has been resolved. The question is still open. But the psalmist blesses God anyway. Sometimes faith is the choice to bless when you cannot see how the story will end.

For Israel, the answer was long in coming. The line of David looked dead for six hundred years. But the answer came in Bethlehem, in a son of David who would never be removed.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 13:32-34 says that God fulfilled the promise to David by raising Jesus from the dead. Luke 1:32-33 announces that the Lord will give him the throne of his father David. Romans 1:3-4 says Jesus was descended from David according to the flesh and declared Son of God by the resurrection. Revelation 5:5 says the Lion of Judah, the Root of David, has conquered. Romans 15:13 prays for hope in the God of hope.

STEP 6

Application

When your experience does not match God’s promise, pray as the psalmist did: honestly, and to God.

Choose to bless the LORD even in an unanswered season. Say “Blessed be the LORD forever” aloud.

Thank God for Jesus, the answer to the question of Psalm 89.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God where his steadfast love is, in your own honest words.

Bring him your questions because you have nowhere else to go.

Bless him even in the hard questions.

DAY 424 · WEEK 61

Psalm 137

By the waters of Babylon we sat down and wept

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 9 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 137. It is the most famous psalm of the exile. Read it slowly. It begins with tears and ends with a prayer that is hard to read. Ask why it is in the Bible.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 137 was written by someone who had been to Babylon. The exiles sat beside the canals of the Euphrates, and their captors asked them to sing the songs of Zion for entertainment. The psalm is about memory, grief, and the burning of anger. It was probably written after the return, as the memory was still raw. It is paired here with the end of the kingdom.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “By the waters of Babylon, there we sat down and wept, when we remembered Zion” (v. 1).
2. “On the willows there we hung up our lyres” (v. 2).
3. “For there our captors required of us songs, and our tormentors, mirth” (v. 3).
4. “How shall we sing the LORD’s song in a foreign land?” (v. 4).
5. “If I forget you, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its skill!” (v. 5).
6. “Let my tongue stick to the roof of my mouth, if I do not remember you” (v. 6).
7. “Remember, O LORD, against the Edomites the day of Jerusalem” (v. 7).
8. “Blessed shall he be who takes your little ones and dashes them against the rock!” (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a scene. The exiles sit by the river and weep. The lyres hang on the poplars. They cannot sing. The captors want songs of Zion as entertainment, and to do so would be to treat the worship of the living God as a performance. “How shall we sing the LORD’s song in a foreign land?” The question carries a deeper one: how can we worship when everything is gone?

The answer is memory. In verses 5 and 6 the singer vows to remember Jerusalem above his highest joy. This is not nostalgia. Jerusalem is where God has put his name. To forget Zion would be to forget God’s promises. The singer binds himself with a vow.

Then the psalm erupts in a cry for vengeance. He asks God to remember the Edomites, who cheered on the destruction. And he addresses Babylon with a curse that includes the killing of infants, in the same way that Babylon had treated others. This is shocking. It is a raw expression of the rage of the grieving, and it is there in Scripture without any softening.

Why is it in the Bible? Because honest prayer includes anger. The Bible does not tell us to hide our worst feelings from God. It gives us a place to pour them out. The psalmist does not take up a weapon. He lays the burning desire for justice before the one who will judge. We should not pray these words as our own wish for revenge, but they teach us that God can bear our rage, and that justice belongs to him. And they point us to the cross, where the justice we cannot execute was carried out in a way that included mercy.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 12:19 says, “Never avenge yourselves, but leave it to the wrath of God.” Jesus on the cross prayed, “Father, forgive them” (Luke 23:34). Revelation 18 shows the fall of Babylon the great, the answer to this psalm’s prayer. 1 Peter 2:11 calls Christians “sojourners and exiles.” Hebrews 13:14 says we seek the city that is to come. Philippians 3:20 says our citizenship is in heaven.

STEP 6

Application

Think about what you refuse to forget about God and his people. Name it.

If you carry anger over a wrong, bring it to God by name, without acting on it.

Pray for Christians who are in exile in a hostile place.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what you grieve and what anger you carry.

Ask him to teach you to sing his song in a foreign land.

Hand your grief over to him.

JEREMIAH 2:13

DAY 425 · WEEK 61

Jeremiah 1:1-3:5

Jeremiah called; the two evils; broken cisterns

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 52 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 1:1-3:5. Jeremiah is the longest book in the Bible by word count, and it is the story of a reluctant prophet. Read his call in chapter 1, and then notice the two evils that God names in chapter 2.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jeremiah was a priest from Anathoth, a village near Jerusalem. He was called as a young man in the thirteenth year of Josiah, around 627 BC, and he prophesied for over forty years, through the reform, the fall of Jerusalem, and the flight to Egypt. His message was unpopular. He was beaten, imprisoned, and thrown into a cistern. He is called the weeping prophet, but he was also a man of great courage.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, and before you were born I consecrated you; I appointed you a prophet to the nations” (1:5).
2. “Ah, Lord GOD! Behold, I do not know how to speak, for I am only a youth” (1:6).
3. “Do not say, I am only a youth; for to all to whom I send you, you shall go” (1:7).
4. “Behold, I have put my words in your mouth” (1:9).
5. “For my people have committed two evils: they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed out cisterns for themselves, broken cisterns that can hold no water” (2:13).
6. “What wrong did your fathers find in me that they went far from me?” (2:5).
7. “My people have changed their glory for that which does not profit” (2:11).

8 “Have you not just now called to me, My father, you are the friend of my youth?” (3:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jeremiah’s call is among the most intimate in Scripture. God says he knew him before he was formed. Before birth, he was set apart. The call is not an accident or a career. It is the purpose of his existence. Jeremiah objects at once: “I am only a youth.” God’s reply is typical: don’t say that. Go where I send you, speak what I command, and “be not afraid of them, for I am with you to deliver you.” God then touches his mouth. The word of the LORD is something God puts in the prophet.

His commission has two sides: “to pluck up and to break down, to destroy and to overthrow, to build and to plant.” Four verbs of judgment and two of restoration. Judgment comes first.

Chapter 2 is one of the great statements of sin in the Bible. God remembers the devotion of Israel’s youth, like a bride following him in the wilderness. Then he asks, “What wrong did your fathers find in me?” It is the question of a husband who cannot understand why his wife left. Then the two evils. First, they forsook the fountain of living waters. A spring is endless, fresh, and free. Second, they dug their own cisterns, cracked and leaking. Idolatry is both ingratitude and folly. The nations do not change their gods, and Israel has changed its glory for what does not profit.

The pattern is the human heart: to leave the source of life and then to spend all our energy on things that cannot hold what we put in them. Every generation digs cisterns. Money, approval, success, and pleasure are broken cisterns.

Yet the chapter ends with an invitation. God says, “Return.” The door is still open.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said to the woman at the well, “Whoever drinks of the water that I will give him will never be thirsty again” (John 4:14), and “If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink” (John 7:37). Paul says he was set apart before he was born (Galatians 1:15). Matthew 16:14 notes that some thought Jesus was Jeremiah. Ephesians 2:10 says we are God’s workmanship, created for good works.

STEP 6

Application

Name one “broken cistern” that you have gone to for satisfaction. Bring your thirst to Christ.

If you have felt too young, too inexperienced, or too weak for what God has asked, hear his words, “I am with you.”

Pray for a fresh sense of being known and called by God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess the cisterns you have dug for yourself.
- Ask him to draw you back to the fountain of living waters.
- Thank him that he knew you before you were formed.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 61

JEREMIAH 2:13

DAY 426 · WEEK 61

Jeremiah 3:6-6:30

Israel and Judah's unfaithfulness; the foe from the north

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 90 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 3:6-6:30. God calls two faithless sisters, Israel and Judah, to return, and then announces a foe from the north. Read the call to return in 3:12-4:4 slowly, and then notice how the people respond to the warning in chapter 6.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These chapters belong to the early part of Jeremiah's ministry, in the days of Josiah. The northern kingdom had already been destroyed. Judah had seen what happened to her sister and had not learned. Jeremiah mixes pleading and warning. The enemy is a nation from the north, which is Babylon. The people were in the middle of Josiah's reform, and yet the prophet says that the heart has not changed.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Faithless Israel has shown herself more righteous than treacherous Judah" (3:11).
2. "Return, faithless Israel, declares the LORD. I will not look on you in anger, for I am merciful" (3:12).
3. "Return, O faithless sons; I will heal your faithlessness" (3:22).
4. "Circumcise yourselves to the LORD; remove the foreskin of your hearts" (4:4).
5. "My anguish, my anguish! I writhe in pain! Oh the walls of my heart!" (4:19).
6. "They are wise to do evil, but how to do good they know not" (4:22).
7. "They have healed the wound of my people lightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace" (6:14).

8 “Stand by the roads, and look, and ask for the ancient paths, where the good way is; and walk in it, and find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk in it” (6:16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The call to return in chapter 3 is full of mercy. God compares Israel and Judah to two unfaithful wives. The northern kingdom had been sent away, and Judah had seen it and kept sinning, and with only a pretense of returning to God. Even so, he pleads: “Return, O faithless sons; I will heal your faithlessness.” The invitation contains the words to say, and the promise of shepherds after God’s own heart.

But the heart of chapter 4 is a demand for inward change: “Circumcise yourselves to the LORD; remove the foreskin of your hearts.” The outward sign of the covenant meant nothing if the heart remained closed. This is the main complaint of the prophets. Josiah could reform worship, but he could not circumcise the hearts of the nation.

Then the alarm. A lion has come up from his thicket. Jeremiah describes the invasion as if he were living it, and his own heart breaks. “My anguish, my anguish!” The prophet does not speak coldly about judgment. He feels it in his body. He is a true intercessor, identifying with the people he warns.

Chapter 6 identifies the problem. The leaders have “healed the wound of my people lightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace.” False comfort is cruel. They are not even ashamed of their abominations. God offers one more chance: “Stand by the roads, and look, and ask for the ancient paths… and find rest for your souls.” The answer is the saddest in the chapter: “We will not walk in it.” They are refusing an offer of rest.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest” (Matthew 11:28-29), alluding to Jeremiah 6:16. Paul says that real circumcision is of the heart, by the Spirit (Romans 2:28-29; Colossians 2:11). Jesus wept over Jerusalem (Luke 19:41), as Jeremiah wept. Hebrews 3:7-8 warns, “Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts.”

STEP 6

Application

Where do you hear “peace, peace” where there is no peace? Be honest about what needs to be dealt with.

Ask God for a circumcised heart, one that is open and responsive to him.

Look for an “ancient path” that you have neglected: Scripture, prayer, fellowship, Sabbath.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to circumcise your heart.

Keep yourself from false peace, and tell him where you want truth.

Thank him for promising to heal your faithlessness.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For my people have committed two evils: they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed out cisterns for themselves, broken cisterns that can hold no water."

JEREMIAH 2:13

REST

Meditation

God diagnoses the whole human problem in one verse, and he calls it two evils.

The first evil is leaving the fountain. God describes himself as "the fountain of living waters." In a dry land, a spring of living water is life. It does not run out or need to be dug. It simply flows. Every good thing we need comes from him, and he offers it freely. To forsake him is to walk away from the one source that cannot fail.

The second evil is building our own cisterns. A cistern is a hole cut in rock to collect rainwater. It is man-made, limited, and dependent on circumstances. And these are "broken" cisterns, cracked, so they cannot even hold what they collect. The picture is of tremendous effort invested in something that cannot deliver. We chisel away at success, approval, comfort, and control, and each time the water drains out.

What stands out is the tone. God is not only angry. He is astonished. Earlier in the chapter he says, “Be appalled, O heavens, at this.” It is baffling to him that anyone would trade a spring for a leaky tank. And behind the astonishment is grief. He loves his people and wants them to have what satisfies.

Jesus claimed to be this fountain. “Let the one who is thirsty come.” The remedy for broken cisterns is not trying harder but turning back. Say this verse when you feel empty, and ask what cistern you have been drinking from.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the exile unit by reading the last days of the kingdom of Judah. You saw Manasseh’s evil, Josiah’s tender-hearted reform, and the sobering line that the LORD still did not turn from his anger. You read the account of Jerusalem’s fall in 2 Kings, with the small candle of Jehoiachin’s release at the end. You prayed Psalm 89’s painful second half and the grief of Psalm 137, learning that honest prayer includes lament. And you met Jeremiah, called before he was born, who named the two evils of his people: forsaking the fountain of living waters and digging broken cisterns. His early preaching called them to return and to circumcise their hearts. The week taught that outward reform is not enough, that God invites us to return, and that he is the only source of life.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Josiah found the Book of the Law and tore his clothes. How do you respond when God’s word exposes something in your life?

Jeremiah describes forsaking the fountain and digging broken cisterns. What is one cistern you tend to drink from instead of God?

Jesus calls himself the source of living water (John 7:37-38). What would it look like to come to him as thirsty this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess the cisterns you have dug.

Thank Jesus for giving water that satisfies.

Rest in him today.

DAY 428 · WEEK 62

Jeremiah 7:1-9:26

The Temple sermon; false security condemned

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 87 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 7:1-9:26. Jeremiah stands in the gate of the temple and preaches the most dangerous sermon of his life. Read it as a warning to people who think that being near the right building makes them safe.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the Temple Sermon, delivered early in the reign of Jehoiakim, around 609 BC (see Jeremiah 26). The people believed that Jerusalem could never fall because the temple of the LORD was there. After the Assyrian army was destroyed in Hezekiah's day, that belief hardened into superstition. Jeremiah tells them it is a lie. Chapters 8 and 9 add the prophet's tears over the nation.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Do not trust in these deceptive words: This is the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD" (7:4).
2. "If you truly amend your ways and your deeds… if you do not oppress the sojourner, the fatherless, or the widow" (7:5-6).
3. "Has this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes?" (7:11).
4. "Go now to my place that was in Shiloh… and see what I did to it" (7:12).
5. "For in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, I did not speak to your fathers… concerning burnt offerings and sacrifices. But this command I gave them: Obey my voice" (7:22-23).

6. “Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there?” (8:22).
7. “Oh that my head were a spring of water, and my eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night” (9:1).
8. “Let not the wise man boast in his wisdom… but let him who boasts boast in this, that he understands and knows me” (9:23-24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The sermon begins with a trap. The people repeat a slogan: “The temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD.” They treat the building as a charm. Jeremiah says that if they are going to live there, they must act justly: no oppression of the foreigner, the orphan, or the widow, no shedding of innocent blood, no following other gods. They steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, and then come into the temple and say, “We are delivered!” That is, they think the temple frees them to keep doing evil.

God’s reply is that they have turned his house into “a den of robbers.” A den is where robbers hide after their crimes. Jesus quotes this very line when he clears the temple. Then God points to Shiloh, where the tabernacle once stood, and which had been destroyed. If he allowed that, he can allow this.

Verses 21 to 23 are a shock. God says that when he brought them out of Egypt, his main command was not about sacrifices but about obedience. The sacrifices were meant to express the relationship, not replace it.

Chapter 8 contains one of the most poignant questions in the Bible: “Is there no balm in Gilead?” Gilead was known for healing ointment. The prophet asks why his people are not healed, since there is a physician. The answer is that they will not be healed. And chapter 9 shows the prophet weeping. “Oh that my head were a spring of water.” He is the true intercessor.

The chapter ends with a great statement of what matters: let no one boast in wisdom, might, or riches, but in knowing the LORD, “who practices steadfast love, justice, and righteousness.”

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus quoted Jeremiah 7:11 when he cleansed the temple (Mark 11:17), and then said that not one stone would be left on another (Mark 13:2). Paul quotes Jeremiah 9:24 in 1 Corinthians 1:31 and 2 Corinthians 10:17. Jesus is the true physician (Mark 2:17). Acts 7:48 reminds us that the Most High does not dwell in houses made by hands. 1 Corinthians 3:16 says that the believers are God's temple.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether any place, ritual, or tradition has become a "temple of the LORD" slogan for you.

Look at how you treat the foreigner, the orphan, and the widow. Is there something to change?

Memorize Jeremiah 9:23-24 and ask what you are tempted to boast in.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to keep you from trusting deceptive words.
- Ask him not to let you hide in his house while sin remains.
- Ask him to make you just and merciful toward the weak.

DAY 429 · WEEK 62

Psalm 79

O God, the nations have come into your inheritance

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 79. It is a communal lament written after the destruction of Jerusalem. Read it as the congregation's cry after reading 2 Kings 25, and notice the way it moves from catastrophe to confession and to a request for forgiveness.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 79 is a psalm of Asaph. It is one of the clearest psalms about the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem, with the temple defiled, the city in ruins, and the bodies unburied. It pairs naturally with Jeremiah's temple sermon, which warned this would happen. It is a prayer of those who know that part of the blame is their own.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "O God, the nations have come into your inheritance; they have defiled your holy temple; they have laid Jerusalem in ruins" (v. 1).
2. "They have given the bodies of your servants to the birds of the heavens for food" (v. 2).
3. "We have become a taunt to our neighbors, mocked and derided by those around us" (v. 4).
4. "How long, O LORD? Will you be angry forever?" (v. 5).
5. "Do not remember against us our former iniquities; let your compassion come speedily to meet us, for we are brought very low" (v. 8).
6. "Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of your name" (v. 9).
7. "Why should the nations say, Where is their God?" (v. 10).

8 “But we your people, the sheep of your pasture, will give thanks to you forever; from generation to generation we will recount your praise” (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with an inventory of ruin. The temple is defiled, the city is rubble, the dead are left unburied. The psalmist holds nothing back. The people have become a mockery to the neighbors, a taunt, and he asks the question every grieving believer asks: “How long, O LORD? Will you be angry forever?”

But notice what the prayer does not do. It does not claim that Judah is innocent. “Do not remember against us our former iniquities.” The people know why this happened. The prophets had told them. The psalm joins confession with the cry for help. “Help us… deliver us, and atone for our sins, for your name’s sake.” The word “atone” is the language of the temple, and it comes from a people who have lost their temple. They ask God himself to cover their sin.

The reason given for the appeal is God’s name. “Why should the nations say, Where is their God?” The people are not asking to be rescued because they deserve it, but because God’s reputation is bound up with theirs. This is the way of intercession in the Bible: to ask God to act for the sake of his own glory.

The psalm ends with a vow of praise. The people are “the sheep of your pasture.” The shepherd has allowed the wolves in, but the sheep still belong to him. They promise to give thanks forever and to tell the story from generation to generation. Even this psalm of ruin ends with testimony, since praise does not depend on circumstances.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus wept over Jerusalem and foretold its destruction (Luke 19:41-44). Hebrews 9:26 says Christ has appeared “to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself,” the atonement for which this psalm cries. 1 John 1:9 promises forgiveness to those who confess. John 10:11-16 shows Jesus as the shepherd who gathers his sheep. 1 Peter 2:25 says we have returned to the Shepherd.

STEP 6

Application

Practice confession as part of lament. Name your sins and ask God to atone for them.

Ask for God’s help for the sake of his name, not just your own comfort.

Tell someone younger the story of one thing God has done for you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to help for the glory of his name.
- Ask him not to remember your former iniquities.
- Ask him to let his compassion come to meet you.

JEREMIAH 17:7-8

DAY 430 · WEEK 62

Psalm 85

LORD, you were favorable to your land

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 85. It is a prayer for revival that remembers past forgiveness and looks for a future where righteousness and peace meet. Read verses 10 to 13 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 85 is a psalm of the sons of Korah. It begins by recalling that God has restored the fortunes of Jacob, and then asks him to do it again. It may have been written after the return from Babylon, when the people were back in the land but the glory had not returned. It will be read again in Unit 14 with an emphasis on the return. Here it is a prayer from the dark side of the exile, asking God to revive his people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “LORD, you were favorable to your land; you restored the fortunes of Jacob” (v. 1).
2. “You forgave the iniquity of your people; you covered all their sin” (v. 2).
3. “Restore us again, O God of our salvation, and put away your indignation toward us!” (v. 4).
4. “Will you not revive us again, that your people may rejoice in you?” (v. 6).
5. “Show us your steadfast love, O LORD, and grant us your salvation” (v. 7).
6. “Steadfast love and faithfulness meet; righteousness and peace kiss each other” (v. 10).
7. “Faithfulness springs up from the ground, and righteousness looks down from the sky” (v. 11).
8. “Righteousness will go before him and make his footsteps a way” (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with memory: God has been favorable before. He forgave and covered sin and turned away from his fierce anger. This past mercy is the basis of the plea. When we do not know what to pray, we can start by recalling what God has already done.

The prayer is for revival. “Will you not revive us again, that your people may rejoice in you?” Joy in God is the goal. Revival here is not an event or a program but a renewal of the people’s delight in the LORD. It assumes that left alone, we dry out.

Then the psalmist does something striking. He says, “Let me hear what God the LORD will speak.” He stops talking and listens. And the word that comes is peace, for those who turn their hearts to him. God’s salvation is near to those who fear him, “that glory may dwell in our land.”

The center of the psalm is its beautiful picture in verses 10 and 11. Four qualities, which usually seem to pull against each other, are brought together: steadfast love and faithfulness, righteousness and peace. They meet and kiss. This is a picture of the gospel. How can God be both loving and just? How can he bring peace without compromising righteousness? In the cross, these meet. Steadfast love forgives, and faithfulness keeps the promise to punish sin. Righteousness is satisfied, and peace is made.

The psalm ends with the hope of the Lord’s appearance: “Righteousness will go before him and make his footsteps a way.” The good that will come will come from heaven and from the earth together.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 3:25-26 shows how God is both just and the justifier, where love and righteousness meet. Colossians 1:20 says that God was pleased “to reconcile to himself all things, making peace by the blood of his cross.” Romans 5:1 says that we have peace with God. John 1:14 says that the Word became flesh, full of grace and truth. Luke 2:14 announces “peace among those with whom he is pleased.”

STEP 6

Application

Make a list of the ways God has been “favorable to your land” in your life.

Pray “Will you not revive us again?” for your church and for yourself.

Sit in silence and say, “Let me hear what God the LORD will speak.” Listen for a few minutes.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to revive you.

Tell him you want steadfast love and faithfulness to meet in your life.

Thank him for his salvation.

JEREMIAH 17:7-8

DAY 431 · WEEK 62

Jeremiah 10:1-13:27

Idols vs. the living God; the linen loincloth

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 75 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 10:1-13:27. These chapters include a satire on idols, the covenant that was broken, Jeremiah's first complaint, and two sign-acts: a linen loincloth and wine jars. Look for how God uses ordinary objects to teach.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The setting continues in the reign of Jehoiakim. The people have been worshiping the gods of the surrounding nations, and Jeremiah mocks them. Chapters 11 and 12 reveal a personal crisis: his own village of Anathoth plots to kill him, and he asks God why the wicked prosper. Chapter 13 contains one of Jeremiah's most visual sermons.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Their idols are like scarecrows in a cucumber field, and they cannot speak" (10:5).
2. "But the LORD is the true God; he is the living God and the everlasting King" (10:10).
3. "It is he who made the earth by his power, who established the world by his wisdom" (10:12).
4. "Cursed be the man who does not hear the words of this covenant" (11:3).
5. "But I was like a gentle lamb led to the slaughter" (11:19).
6. "Why does the way of the wicked prosper? Why do all who are treacherous thrive?" (12:1).
7. "If you have raced with men on foot, and they have wearied you, how will you compete with horses?" (12:5).
8. "So I bought a loincloth… it was spoiled; it was good for nothing" (13:1-7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 10 mocks the idols with a bit of humor. They are like scarecrows. They have to be carried because they cannot walk, and they cannot do good or harm. The contrast with the LORD is sharp: “There is none like you, O LORD.” The idols are made by hands. The LORD made the earth by his power. The call is to reverent fear before the King of the nations.

Chapter 11 turns to the covenant. The people heard the covenant words at Sinai and agreed, but then broke them. Jeremiah’s own townsmen of Anathoth plot to kill him if he does not stop prophesying. Then he opens a window into his heart. In chapter 12, he does what Habakkuk did: he complains to God. “Why does the way of the wicked prosper?” He wants answers. God does not give him a neat theology. He tells him that things will get harder. If racing with men on foot has worn him out, how will he cope with horses? God is preparing him for worse. It is not comforting, but it is honest. God does not coddle his servants.

Chapter 13 shows a sign. God tells Jeremiah to buy a linen loincloth, wear it, bury it by the Euphrates, and later dig it up. It is ruined. The meaning is that Israel was meant to cling to God like a loincloth to a man’s waist, “for a people, a name, a praise, and a glory.” But they would not listen, and so they became useless. The proud will be broken. The chapter ends with a question that pierces: “Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the leopard his spots? Then also you can do good who are accustomed to do evil.” Human nature cannot reform itself. Only God can change a heart, which is why the new covenant is so needed.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 14:15 and 17:22-31 draw on this critique of idols. Jesus was led like a lamb to the slaughter (Isaiah 53:7; Acts 8:32). 1 Corinthians 8:4-6 says there is one God and one Lord, Jesus Christ. John 3:3-7 says no one can see the kingdom without being born again. Romans 7:18 says that nothing good dwells in me, that is, in my flesh. Ezekiel 36:26 promises a new heart.

STEP 6

Application

Name any “scarecrow” idol in your life that cannot speak or act. Turn from it.

If you are weary, remember God’s honesty with Jeremiah: he prepares us for what is ahead.

Ask whether you cling to God like a loincloth, close and for his glory.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God as the true, living God.

Confess where you have trusted scarecrows.

Ask him to strengthen you when you feel worn.

JEREMIAH 17:7-8

DAY 432 · WEEK 62

Jeremiah 14:1-17:27

Drought and sword; the deceitful heart; the Sabbath

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 104 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 14:1-17:27. A drought and a sword fall on Judah, Jeremiah refuses to marry or celebrate, and God exposes the human heart. Read 17:5-10 slowly, which contrasts the person who trusts in man with the one who trusts in the LORD.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These chapters begin with a drought and a series of dialogues between Jeremiah and God. God tells him three times not to intercede for the people. The prophet's personal life becomes part of the message: he is not to marry, mourn, or feast. Chapter 17 contains the famous passage on the deceitful heart, the blessed man, and a call to keep the Sabbath.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Though our iniquities testify against us, act, O LORD, for your name's sake" (14:7).
2. "Then the LORD said to me, Though Moses and Samuel stood before me, yet my heart would not turn toward this people" (15:1).
3. "Your words were found, and I ate them, and your words became to me a joy and the delight of my heart" (15:16).
4. "Why is my pain unceasing, my wound incurable?" (15:18).
5. "If you return, I will restore you, and you shall stand before me" (15:19).
6. "Cursed is the man who trusts in man and makes flesh his strength, whose heart turns away from the LORD" (17:5).
7. "Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD, whose trust is the LORD" (17:7).

8 “The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately sick; who can understand it?” (17:9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The drought is a covenant curse. The land is parched, the cisterns are empty, the deer abandon their fawns. The people pray, but God says they love to wander. Even if Moses and Samuel interceded, he would not turn. The time for the warning is past. It is a hard thing for a prophet who loves his people. In chapter 15, Jeremiah is deeply wounded. His one consolation was God’s word: “Your words were found, and I ate them.” He consumed the word like food, and it was joy. But his joy led to isolation: he sat alone because God’s hand was on him. His complaint about God’s apparent unreliability, “like a deceitful brook,” draws a sharp reply: “If you return, I will restore you.” Even the prophet needs to repent.

Chapter 16 forbids Jeremiah to marry, mourn, or feast. His loneliness is a sermon: life as they know it is ending. And yet, in the middle, a promise that the people will be brought back from the north, and that a new exodus will eclipse the old one.

Chapter 17 is the heart of this section. The sin of Judah is written with an iron pen, engraved on the tablet of their heart. Then a pair of contrasting trees. The person who trusts in man is like a shrub in the desert, unaware of when good comes. The one who trusts in the LORD is like a tree planted by water, unafraid in the heat, still bearing fruit in drought. And the reason: “The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately sick.” No one can fully know his own heart. But the LORD searches it. This is why we need a new heart, not just better habits.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “I am the vine; you are the branches” (John 15:5), and drew on the picture of fruitfulness. Psalm 1:3 describes the same tree. Mark 7:21-23 says that out of the heart come evil thoughts. Hebrews 4:12 says the word of God discerns the thoughts and intentions of the heart. Revelation 10:9-10 shows John eating the scroll, as Jeremiah ate the words. Proverbs 4:23 says to guard your heart.

STEP 6

Application

Ask God to search your heart and show you what you cannot see (Jeremiah 17:10).

Consider where you are trusting in “flesh” this week. Redirect your trust to the LORD.

Receive the word of God as food. Spend time today with a short passage and “eat” it slowly.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess that your heart is deceitful, and ask him to search it.

Ask him to lead you in the way everlasting.

Thank him that he tests the mind.

JEREMIAH 17:7-8

DAY 433 · WEEK 62

Jeremiah 18:1-20:18

The potter's house; the broken flask; Jeremiah beaten

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 18:1-20:18. Jeremiah visits a potter's house, smashes a clay jar in front of the elders, and is beaten and put in stocks. Then he writes one of the darkest prayers in the Bible. Read the potter scene first, then chapter 20.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Two sign-acts mark these chapters: the potter at his wheel (chapter 18) and the shattered flask in the Valley of Hinnom (chapter 19). The second one costs him dearly. The priest Pashhur, chief officer of the temple, has Jeremiah beaten and put in the stocks. When he is released, Jeremiah gives his harshest complaint to God, and the book shows us how a faithful prophet feels when faithfulness seems to ruin his life.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, like the clay in the potter's hand, so are you in my hand, O house of Israel" (18:6).
2. "If that nation concerning which I have spoken turns from its evil, I will relent of the disaster that I intended to do to it" (18:8).
3. "But they say, That is in vain! We will follow our own plans" (18:12).
4. "So you shall break the flask in the sight of the men who go with you" (19:10).
5. "Thus will I break this people and this city, as one breaks a potter's vessel" (19:11).
6. "Then Pashhur… struck Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks" (20:2).
7. "O LORD, you have deceived me, and I was deceived; you are stronger than I, and you have prevailed" (20:7).

8 “If I say, I will not mention him, or speak any more in his name, there is in my heart as it were a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I am weary with holding it in, and I cannot” (20:9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

At the potter’s house, Jeremiah watches a vessel spoil in the potter’s hands, and the potter reshapes it into another. God’s lesson is about sovereignty and responsiveness. The potter has the right to shape the clay. But the passage also teaches that God responds to repentance. If a nation under judgment turns, he will relent. If a nation that was promised blessing turns to evil, he will withdraw it. The warnings and promises of the prophets are not fixed in stone but are addressed to human response. And yet the people reply, “We will follow our own plans.”

In chapter 19, Jeremiah is told to buy a finished clay jar and take the elders to the Valley of Hinnom, where children had been burned to Baal, and smash it. A clay pot that has been fired cannot be remade. The first sign-act showed that a repentant clay could be reshaped. The second shows that stubborn clay will be broken beyond repair. The message: God has been patient, but there is a point at which the vessel is hardened.

The punishment comes at once. Pashhur strikes him and puts him in the stocks overnight. Jeremiah’s reply is a blazing prophecy of exile. Then he is alone with God, and he prays one of the most honest prayers in Scripture. “You have deceived me.” He feels that God has trapped him. The word of the LORD has become a reproach and derision. Yet he cannot quit: “There is in my heart as it were a burning fire shut up in my bones.” He cannot stop speaking.

He ends with trust, “the LORD is with me as a dread warrior,” and then with despair, “Cursed be the day on which I was born.” Both are in one chapter. The Bible does not tidy faith. It shows a servant of God who is faithful and in agony.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 9:20-21 draws on the potter and clay. Isaiah 64:8 says, “You are the potter; we are the clay.” Matthew 27:7-10 connects the potter’s field to the death of Judas, with a quotation attributed to Jeremiah. Paul speaks of treasure in jars of clay (2 Corinthians 4:7). Acts 5:40-41 shows the apostles rejoicing when beaten. Luke 24:32 describes hearts burning within as Jesus opened the Scriptures.

STEP 6

Application

Place one area of your life in the potter's hands, and ask him to reshape it.

If you are discouraged in serving God, pray honestly like Jeremiah. God can handle it.

Ask for the "burning fire" of the word in your heart, and for courage to share it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God you are clay and he is the potter, and let him reshape you.
- Ask him to help you when serving him hurts.
- Thank him for his faithfulness.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD, whose trust is the LORD. He is like a tree planted by water, that sends out its roots by the stream, and does not fear when heat comes."

JEREMIAH 17:7-8

REST

Meditation

Jeremiah wrote these words in a land of drought, to a people who were trusting in everything but God. It is a promise that holds in hard seasons.

"Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD." The word "blessed" means deeply happy, in a good place. The Bible links this blessing not to circumstances but to trust. And the trust is placed in a person: "whose trust is the LORD." He himself is the trust. It is not trust in a technique, a doctrine as such, or a strategy for success. It is a relationship with a person.

"He is like a tree planted by water." The picture is of a tree whose roots go to the stream. In a dry country, the tree by the water has a source that does not depend on rainfall. The roots do the hidden work, "sending out" toward the water. So much of the Christian life is hidden roots: time in prayer, reading Scripture, quiet obedience, worship.

“Does not fear when heat comes.” Notice that heat does come. The blessed person is not spared the heat. But they do not fear it, because the roots are in the stream. The next verse adds, “Its leaves remain green, and is not anxious in the year of drought, for it does not cease to bear fruit.” In the drought it keeps bearing fruit.

Contrast the previous verses: the person who trusts in man is a shrub in the desert. The difference is not in the climate but in the source. Say this verse and ask where your roots are going this week.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you stood in the temple gate with Jeremiah and heard the sermon that said a building cannot save you. You read the great questions: “Is there no balm in Gilead?” and the invitation to boast only in knowing the LORD. You prayed Psalms 79 and 85, a lament over the ruined city and a prayer for revival in which steadfast love and faithfulness meet. You read Jeremiah’s mockery of idols, his own struggle when the wicked prosper, and the ruined loincloth. You read the deceitful heart and the two trees. You watched the potter, the shattered jar, and Jeremiah in the stocks, burning with the word he could not hold in. The week taught that God’s patience has limits, that religion without obedience is empty, and that the one who trusts in the LORD is like a tree by the stream.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jeremiah warned people not to trust in the temple as a charm. What “temple of the LORD” slogan might you be leaning on instead of obedience?

Jeremiah’s prayers are honest, even angry. What do you need to bring honestly to God that you have been holding back?

The blessed man in Jeremiah 17 is like a tree planted by water. What are the “roots” you are sending out each week, and where might they be shallow?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you send roots deep into him.

Tell him how you want to trust him in heat and drought.

Thank Jesus in whom you are blessed.

DAY 435 · WEEK 63

Psalm 102

A prayer of the afflicted

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 28 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 102. It is headed "A prayer of one afflicted, when he is faint and pours out his complaint before the LORD." Notice how the psalm moves from personal misery to the eternal reign of God, and how the New Testament quotes the end.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 102 is one of the seven penitential psalms in church tradition. It has no named author. It is the cry of an individual who feels his life vanishing like smoke, and at the same time a prayer for Zion's restoration, which fits the exile. It sets private suffering inside the story of God's people and the story of creation.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Hear my prayer, O LORD; let my cry come to you!" (v. 1).
2. "For my days pass away like smoke, and my bones burn like a furnace" (v. 3).
3. "I am like a lonely sparrow on the housetop" (v. 7).
4. "For I eat ashes like bread, and mingle tears with my drink" (vv. 9).
5. "My days are like an evening shadow; I wither away like grass" (v. 11).
6. "But you, O LORD, are enthroned forever; you are remembered throughout all generations" (v. 12).
7. "You will arise and have pity on Zion; it is the time to favor her" (v. 13).
8. "Of old you laid the foundation of the earth… They will perish, but you will remain… but you are the same, and your years have no end" (vv. 25-27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a rush of need: hear me, do not hide your face, answer me speedily. The description that follows is vivid and bodily. His days vanish like smoke. His bones burn. His heart is struck down like grass. He forgets to eat. He is wasted by groaning. He is like a pelican in the wilderness or an owl among ruins, a sleepless bird alone on a roof. And he feels that God has lifted him up only to throw him down. Few passages in the Bible describe depression and isolation so plainly.

The turning point is a single word at verse 12: “But you, O LORD.” Against all that is passing and fading, the psalmist sets the One who is enthroned forever. The shadow of his life lengthens, but God’s name endures to all generations. The change of view then opens his prayer outward. He asks that God will have pity on Zion. “The nations will fear the name of the LORD,” and a people yet to be created will praise him.

The psalm ends with creation itself. The heavens and earth will wear out like a garment, but God is the same. This is the final consolation for the dying and discouraged: the one in whom we trust does not change. “The children of your servants shall dwell secure.” The prayer of one man’s faintness is carried by the unchanging God.

Hebrews 1:10-12 quotes verses 25 to 27 and applies them to the Son. The one who laid the foundation of the earth and who will remain when it perishes is Jesus. So the faint and afflicted worshiper in the psalm is praying to Christ, whose years have no end.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 1:10-12 attributes Psalm 102:25-27 to the Son, showing his eternal deity. Hebrews 13:8 says, “Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever.” 2 Corinthians 4:16-18 speaks of the outer self wasting away while the inner self is renewed. Romans 8:18 says the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory to be revealed. Malachi 3:6 says, “I the LORD do not change.”

STEP 6

Application

If you are weary or lonely, pray the first eleven verses honestly, then pray verse 12 as a turning point.

Name something that is fading in your life, and remember who remains.

Pray for the church in the places where it seems to be in ruins.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Cry out to God from your affliction.
- Tell him that he is enthroned forever.
- Ask him to arise and have pity.

DAY 436 · WEEK 63

Psalm 103

Bless the LORD, O my soul, steadfast love as high as heaven

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 103. After a psalm of exhaustion, here is a psalm of praise, one of the most loved in the whole Psalter. You may have read it before. Read it slowly, and let every phrase about forgiveness sink in.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 103 is a psalm of David. It is an individual's call to himself to bless the LORD, which widens out to include all God's people and all creation. After Jeremiah's relentless warnings and Psalm 102's affliction, it stands as a declaration of what the God of the exile is really like. It will appear again later in the plan. Today read it as the answer to what Jeremiah and the psalmists have been asking: what is God like when we have failed?

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Bless the LORD, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless his holy name!" (v. 1).
2. "Forget not all his benefits" (v. 2).
3. "Who forgives all your iniquity, who heals all your diseases" (v. 3).
4. "The LORD works righteousness and justice for all who are oppressed" (v. 6).
5. "The LORD is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love" (v. 8).
6. "He does not deal with us according to our sins, nor repay us according to our iniquities" (v. 10).
7. "As far as the east is from the west, so far does he remove our transgressions from us" (v. 12).

8 “As a father shows compassion to his children, so the LORD shows compassion to those who fear him. For he knows our frame; he remembers that we are dust” (vv. 13-14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David begins by speaking to his own soul. He commands himself to bless the LORD, and to remember. “Forget not all his benefits.” The psalm’s work is remembering, since we are forgetful. Then he lists them: forgiveness, healing, redemption from the pit, a crown of steadfast love, and satisfaction with good, so that your youth is renewed like the eagle’s. Forgiveness is the first item, and it is the benefit that makes the rest possible.

In verses 6 to 8, David recalls the way God made himself known to Moses: merciful and gracious, slow to anger, abounding in steadfast love. This is the self-description from Exodus 34:6, which Jonah quoted, and which echoes through the Bible. And the psalm unpacks it. God does not keep his anger forever. He does not deal with us according to our sins. The heavens are high above the earth, but his steadfast love is greater than that. The east is far from the west, and that is how far he has removed our transgressions.

Here is the point for the unit. This psalm is true even in exile. The exile was real judgment, and it was a sign that God deals with sin. But it was not the whole story. He did not repay them according to their iniquities. He kept a remnant. He promised to bring them back.

Verses 13 to 14 give the reason: God is like a father who knows his children. “He knows our frame; he remembers that we are dust.” God is not surprised by our weakness. He is gentle with it. The psalm ends by calling the angels, the mighty ones, and all creation to bless the LORD, and then returns to the beginning: “Bless the LORD, O my soul.”

STEP 5

Connection

Ephesians 1:7 says that in Christ we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses. Hebrews 8:12 and 10:17 promise that God will remember our sins no more. Romans 8:15 says that we cry, “Abba! Father!” Luke 15:20 shows the father who ran to meet his son. 1 John 1:9 promises forgiveness and cleansing. Micah 7:18-19 says he casts all our sins into the depths of the sea.

STEP 6

Application

Write down five of God’s benefits to you, and thank him for each.

Preach to your own soul: say aloud “Bless the LORD, O my soul” when you feel low.

Rest in the truth that God remembers that you are dust. Bring your weakness to him without fear.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Bless the LORD with all that is within you.

Name a benefit of his that you do not want to forget.

Thank him for his love as high as the heavens.

DAY 437 · WEEK 63

Jeremiah 21:1-24:10

Kings condemned; the good and bad figs; the 70 years

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 73 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 21:1-24:10. Jeremiah speaks to the last kings of Judah, promises a righteous Branch, condemns the false shepherds, and sees two baskets of figs. Read 23:1-8 and chapter 24 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These chapters mostly date to the reign of Zedekiah, the last king, around 590 BC, while Babylon was closing in. The king sends messengers to Jeremiah asking for a miracle, and the prophet answers that God himself is fighting against Jerusalem. Then he describes the failure of the kings of Judah. In the midst of the gloom come some of the book's most important promises of a coming king and a restored remnant.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, I set before you the way of life and the way of death" (21:8).
2. "Woe to him who builds his house by unrighteousness… who makes his neighbor serve him for nothing" (22:13).
3. "Did not your father eat and drink and do justice and righteousness? … He judged the cause of the poor and needy; then it was well. Is not this to know me?" (22:15-16).
4. "Woe to the shepherds who destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture!" (23:1).
5. "Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will raise up for David a righteous Branch" (23:5).
6. "And this is the name by which he will be called: The LORD is our righteousness" (23:6).
7. "Am I a God at hand, declares the LORD, and not a God far away?" (23:23).

8 “Like these good figs, so I will regard as good the exiles from Judah” (24:5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The king asks for a miracle, as Hezekiah once received. But this time there is no deliverance. God says, “I myself will fight against you.” The choice for the people is stark: go out and surrender to Babylon and live, or stay and die. It sounds like treason, and Jeremiah is treated that way. It was actually a call to humble submission to God’s chastening.

Chapters 22 and 23 deal with the kings. Shallum, Jehoiakim, and Jehoiachin are in turn condemned. Jehoiakim built a luxurious palace with forced labor. God contrasts him with his father Josiah, who did justice and righteousness and judged the cause of the poor and needy. The key line: “Is not this to know me?” To know God is to care for the vulnerable. Knowledge of God is shown in justice.

Then the shepherds. God accuses the leaders of scattering his flock. But he will gather the remnant himself and give them shepherds who will feed them. And then the promise: “I will raise up for David a righteous Branch.” This king will reign wisely and do justice. His name is “The LORD is our righteousness.” Zedekiah means “The LORD is my righteousness,” but the last king of Judah did not live up to his name. The Branch will.

The chapter then attacks the false prophets who speak visions of their own minds and say, “It shall be well with you.” They have not stood in the council of the LORD. God’s word is like fire and like a hammer.

Chapter 24 gives a vision of two baskets of figs: good figs and bad. The surprise is who is who. The good figs are the exiles in Babylon, and the bad figs are those left in Jerusalem. God says the exiles are his remnant: “I will build them up, and not tear down.” “I will give them a heart to know that I am the LORD.” What looks like judgment is the path to new life.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 1:21 gives the name Jesus: he will save his people. 1 Corinthians 1:30 says Christ became for us righteousness. Ezekiel 34 develops the shepherd image, and Jesus fulfills it in John 10:11. Matthew 7:15-20 warns about false prophets who are known by their fruit. Philippians 2:12-13 says God works in us to will and to do his good pleasure. Romans 8:28 says that God works all things for good.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether your knowledge of God is shown in how you treat the poor and needy, as Jeremiah says it should be.

Pray for church leaders to be faithful shepherds, and for your own shepherding of those in your care.

Consider a season in your life that seemed like exile. How did God use it to give you a heart to know him?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he is our righteousness.

Thank him for the righteous Branch of David.

Ask him to give his people shepherds after his own heart.

DAY 438 · WEEK 63

Jeremiah 25:1-27:22

The cup of wrath; false prophets; the yoke of Babylon

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 76 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 25:1-27:22. Jeremiah announces seventy years of captivity, passes a cup of wrath to the nations, and nearly loses his life for the temple sermon. Then he wears a wooden yoke. Look for what God says about Nebuchadnezzar.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 25 dates to 605 BC, the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the year of the Battle of Carchemish when Babylon became the dominant power and Nebuchadnezzar took the first exiles, including Daniel. Chapter 26 records the trial that followed the temple sermon. Chapter 27 jumps to the reign of Zedekiah, with Jeremiah wearing a yoke of straps and bars, a living picture of submission to Babylon.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “For twenty-three years… the word of the LORD has come to me, and I have spoken persistently to you, but you have not listened” (25:3).
2. “Behold, I will send for all the tribes of the north… and for Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant” (25:9).
3. “This whole land shall become a ruin and a waste, and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years” (25:11).
4. “Take from my hand this cup of the wine of wrath” (25:15).
5. “You will surely die! … This man deserves the sentence of death” (26:8, 11).
6. “Behold, I am in your hands. Do with me as seems good and right to you. Only know for certain that if you put me to death, you will bring innocent blood upon yourselves”

(26:14-15).

7. "Make yourself straps and yoke bars, and put them on your neck" (27:2).

8. "But any nation that will bring its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon and serve him, I will leave on its own land" (27:11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 25 is the summary of Jeremiah's ministry so far. For twenty-three years he spoke and the people did not listen. Now God declares the sentence: seventy years of Babylonian rule. Remarkably, he calls Nebuchadnezzar "my servant." The pagan king is a tool in God's hand, used for his purposes. After the seventy years, Babylon too will be judged. Daniel would later read this passage in prayer (Daniel 9:2).

God then gives Jeremiah a cup of the wine of his wrath to pass to all the nations. The picture is of a drunken stagger. No one is exempt, from Jerusalem to Egypt to Sheshach, a code word for Babylon. Judgment begins with God's own people ("the city that is called by my name") and extends to everyone.

Chapter 26 shows what it costs Jeremiah to preach this. The priests and prophets demand his death. But the officials and some elders defend him, pointing to Micah, who prophesied judgment in Hezekiah's day and was not killed, because the king repented. Jeremiah's calm defense is moving. He is in their hands, but he warns them not to shed innocent blood. The word of God does not change to suit the listener.

Chapter 27 is the yoke. He wears it publicly and sends models to the neighboring kings. His message: serve Babylon, and live. False prophets say that the vessels of the temple will soon come back. Jeremiah says that they will go. It is the harder message because it is true. Faith here means accepting what God says even when popular prophets say otherwise.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 9:2 says that Daniel understood from the books the number of years that must pass for the desolation of Jerusalem, "seventy years." Isaiah 51:17 and Revelation 14:10 use the cup of wrath imagery. Jesus prayed in Gethsemane, "Let this cup pass from me" (Matthew 26:39), and drank it for us. Romans 13:1 says that governing authorities are instituted by God. Acts 5:29 says we must obey God rather than men.

STEP 6

Application

Consider whether you resist a hard message because it is not what you want to hear. Ask God for ears to hear.

Remember that God can use a Nebuchadnezzar. Look for how he is using something you did not choose.

Pray for courage like Jeremiah's before an angry crowd.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to give you ears to hear his word even when it is hard.
- Thank Jesus for drinking the cup of wrath for you.
- Pray for nations and leaders.

DAY 439 · WEEK 63

Jeremiah 28:1-29:32

Hananiah; the letter to the exiles, seek the city's peace

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 51 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 28:1-29:32. A false prophet breaks Jeremiah's yoke, and Jeremiah writes a letter to the exiles. Pay close attention to 29:4-14. This is one of the most important passages in the Bible on how to live in a foreign place.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In 594 BC, a few years after the first exile, a prophet named Hananiah announced in the temple that Babylon's power would be broken in two years. Jeremiah answered, and then Hananiah died. Meanwhile, the exiles in Babylon were being told by false prophets that their stay would be short. Jeremiah sent them a letter with a different message: settle in, because you will be there for seventy years.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Thus says the LORD of hosts… I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon" (28:2).
2. "Amen! May the LORD do so" (28:6).
3. "The prophet who prophesies peace, when the word of that prophet comes to pass, then it will be known that the LORD has truly sent the prophet" (28:9).
4. "You have broken wooden bars, but you have made in their place bars of iron" (28:13).
5. "Build houses and live in them; plant gardens and eat their produce. Take wives and have sons and daughters" (29:5-6).
6. "But seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile, and pray to the LORD on its behalf, for in its welfare you will find your welfare" (29:7).

7. “For I know the plans I have for you, declares the LORD, plans for welfare and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope” (29:11).

8. “You will seek me and find me, when you seek me with all your heart” (29:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Hananiah’s prophecy was exactly what the people wanted to hear. Jeremiah’s first response is irony: “Amen! May the LORD do so.” He would love for the prophecy to be true. But he reminds Hananiah that true prophets have always spoken of war, famine, and plague, and a message of peace must be proved by its fulfillment. Hananiah breaks the wooden yoke from Jeremiah’s neck, and God replaces it with one of iron. Hananiah dies within two months. A message that contradicts God’s word is not only wrong but dangerous.

Chapter 29 is the exiles’ letter. It must have been a surprise. They were hoping to go home soon. Instead, Jeremiah says to settle: build houses, plant gardens, marry, and have children. Do not shrink. Even more surprising: “Seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile, and pray to the LORD on its behalf.” Pray for Babylon! Because in its welfare is your welfare. The people of God are called to be faithful and good neighbors in a place that is not their home.

Then comes the famous promise, 29:11, so often quoted alone. Read in context, it is not a promise of quick comfort. It was given to people who would spend seventy years in exile. The plans are for welfare and a future, but the timeline is long. The next verses give the way: call on me, pray, seek me with all your heart, and I will be found.

This is an important teaching for all Christians, since we are exiles and sojourners. We are not to withdraw, and we are not to be absorbed. We are to build, plant, pray, and wait for the promised return.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Peter 2:11-17 calls believers “sojourners and exiles” who are to honor everyone and live good lives among the Gentiles. 1 Timothy 2:1-2 urges prayer for kings and all in authority. Matthew 7:15-23 warns against false prophets. Hebrews 11:13-16 says that the faithful were strangers and exiles on the earth, seeking a better country. John 17:15-18 shows Jesus praying that his disciples be kept in the world, not removed from it.

STEP 6

Application

Pray for your city and its leaders by name this week, including those you disagree with.

Think about how you can build and plant where you are rather than waiting for something better.

Read Jeremiah 29:11 with 29:10 and 29:13, and trust that God's plans are long and good.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for his plans for welfare and a future and hope.
- Ask him to teach you to seek the welfare of where you live.
- Ask him for patience in the waiting.

JEREMIAH 29:11

DAY 440 · WEEK 63

Psalm 106

We have sinned like our fathers

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 48 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 106. It is a long review of Israel's history of rebellion, from the Red Sea to the exile, told as a confession. You have seen this theme in earlier units. This time read it as a prayer from within the exile.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 106 is a companion to Psalm 105, which told the story of God's faithfulness. This psalm tells the story of the people's unfaithfulness. It ends with a prayer from the exile, "Save us, O LORD our God, and gather us from among the nations." It closes Book 4 of the Psalter with a doxology. It is a good psalm to pray with Jeremiah, because it confesses the very sin he accuses.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever!" (v. 1).
2. "Both we and our fathers have sinned; we have committed iniquity; we have done wickedly" (v. 6).
3. "Yet he saved them for his name's sake, that he might make known his mighty power" (v. 8).
4. "But they soon forgot his works; they did not wait for his counsel" (v. 13).
5. "They exchanged the glory of God for the image of an ox that eats grass" (v. 20).
6. "Therefore he said he would destroy them, had not Moses, his chosen one, stood in the breach before him" (v. 23).

7. “They served their idols, which became a snare to them. They sacrificed their sons and their daughters to the demons” (vv. 36-37).

8. “Save us, O LORD our God, and gather us from among the nations, that we may give thanks to your holy name and glory in your praise” (v. 47).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins as praise but quickly becomes confession. “Both we and our fathers have sinned.” The writer does not blame the fathers or hide behind history. He includes himself. And he goes through the story: at the Red Sea, the people forgot the miracles. In the wilderness, they craved meat and tested God. At Sinai, they made a golden calf. At the border of Canaan, they refused to enter. At Baal-peor, they joined in the worship of Baal. At Meribah, they provoked Moses. In the land, they mingled with the nations, worshiped their idols, and even sacrificed their children.

The pattern is repeated, and so is God’s response. Again and again, he saves “for his name’s sake.” He hears their cry. He remembers his covenant and relents “according to the abundance of his steadfast love.” Even when he disciplines, he shows compassion. The turning point in several stories is a mediator: Moses stood in the breach, and Phinehas stood up and intervened.

In the context of the exile, the psalm is the historical confession of a generation that realizes where it stands. The nation did not suddenly fall. It was the end of a long habit. And yet the closing prayer is a hopeful one: “Save us, O LORD our God, and gather us from among the nations.” The psalmist asks for what God has always done: save for his name’s sake.

The psalm ends with a doxology: “Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting! And let all the people say, Amen!” The history of failure does not silence praise.

STEP 5

Connection

Stephen’s speech in Acts 7 retells the same history, showing the persistent resistance to the Holy Spirit. 1 Corinthians 10:1-12 uses the wilderness stories as warnings: “These things happened to them as an example.” Romans 1:23 echoes verse 20: exchanging the glory of God for images. Hebrews 7:25 says that Jesus always lives to make intercession, the greater Moses who stands in the breach.

STEP 6

Application

Practice the kind of confession this psalm models: name specific sins, and include yourself in the patterns of your family, church, and culture.

Thank God for the mediators who have stood in the breach for you, and for Christ above all.

Pray the last verse for scattered believers around the world.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess your own forgetting of God's works.
- Thank him for saving you for his name's sake.
- Thank him for the greater Mediator who stands in the breach.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For I know the plans I have for you, declares the LORD, plans for welfare and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope."

JEREMIAH 29:11

REST

Meditation

This is one of the most quoted verses in the Bible, and it is often quoted out of context. To hear it as Jeremiah's first readers did, remember who it was written to.

It was written to exiles, people who had lost their city, their temple, and their king. They were in a foreign land with no sign of returning. False prophets were telling them it would be over soon. Then Jeremiah's letter arrived, and it said that they would be there for seventy years. After that, this promise: "For I know the plans I have for you."

The first thing it says is that God has plans. The exile was not an accident. It was part of what he was doing. The second is that he knows them. We often do not know the plans, and we do not need to, because he knows them. The third is that they are "plans for welfare," shalom, wholeness, "and not for evil." The word for evil is the word for calamity. The exile looked like calamity, but God's purpose was good.

Finally, “to give you a future and a hope.” The future is real. The hope is not a wish but an expectation based on God’s word. In the same chapter, God says he will bring them back. The promise does not remove the seventy years. It gives them meaning.

This verse does not promise an easy life. It promises that the one who holds your future is good. For Christians, the ultimate fulfillment is in Christ, in whom all of God’s promises are “Yes.” Say this verse when you do not know what comes next.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you followed Jeremiah through the rest of his early ministry. You read the king’s last warnings and the promise of a righteous Branch whose name is “The LORD is our righteousness.” You saw the vision of two baskets of figs, in which the exiles were the good figs. You read about the cup of wrath, the seventy years, the yoke of Babylon, and the false prophet Hananiah. Then you read the letter to the exiles, which told them to build, plant, and seek the welfare of the city. You prayed Psalms 102 and 103, the cry of the afflicted and the praise of the God who removes our sins as far as the east is from the west, and Psalm 106, a history of rebellion and mercy. The week taught that God is sovereign over exile, that false hope is dangerous, and that his plans for his people are for welfare and a future.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jeremiah told the exiles to seek the welfare of Babylon. How can you seek the good of the place where God has put you this week?

Psalm 103 says God removes our transgressions as far as the east is from the west. Where do you still carry guilt that Christ has already carried?

The false prophets promised quick relief, and Jeremiah promised a long road with a sure hope. Which do you tend to want, and how does Jeremiah 29:11 speak to that?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for his plans for your welfare and a future and a hope.

Ask him to teach you to seek the good of the place he has put you.

Rest in his faithfulness this Sabbath.

DAY 442 · WEEK 64

Psalm 107:1-22

He redeems from every adversity

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 107:1-22. It begins Book 5 of the Psalter, and it is a song for the redeemed, those gathered from the lands. Notice the refrain that repeats in each scene.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 107 opens the last book of the Psalms. It has no author but clearly looks back on the return from exile: "those he redeemed from trouble and gathered in from the lands." The psalm tells four stories of people in distress: wanderers, prisoners, the sick, and sailors. The first three are in today's reading. The psalm appears several times in this plan, with different parts. Here read it as a thanksgiving song for those who know what it is to be rescued.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever!" (v. 1).
2. "Let the redeemed of the LORD say so, whom he has redeemed from trouble and gathered in from the lands" (vv. 2-3).
3. "Some wandered in desert wastes... hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted within them" (vv. 4-5).
4. "Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he delivered them from their distress" (v. 6).
5. "Some sat in darkness and in the shadow of death, prisoners in affliction and in irons" (v. 10).

6. “He brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death, and burst their bonds apart” (v. 14).
7. “Some were fools through their sinful ways… they drew near to the gates of death” (vv. 17-18).
8. “He sent out his word and healed them, and delivered them from their destruction” (v. 20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm follows a pattern in each of its stories. First, people are in trouble: lost, imprisoned, sick, or at sea. Second, they cry to the LORD in their trouble. Third, he delivers them. And fourth, a refrain: “Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love, for his wondrous works to the children of men.” The repetition teaches us to see all rescue as grace.

The first group are wanderers. They are lost in the desert, hungry, with no city to dwell in. The exiles, scattered across Babylon, would have recognized themselves. God leads them by a straight way to a city to live in. The second are prisoners. They sit in darkness because they rebelled against the words of God. Their bondage is a result of sin. Yet when they cry, he breaks the doors of bronze and cuts the bars of iron. The third are the sick, “fools through their sinful ways,” who suffer affliction because of their iniquities. And again, when they cry, “he sent out his word and healed them.”

Notice the phrase, “He sent out his word and healed them.” The word of God is the instrument of healing. It reminds us of creation, where God spoke, and of the gospel, where Jesus speaks and the sick are healed.

Who are the redeemed? The psalm says: everyone who has been in distress and cried out. Not only Israel, but “the children of men.” Redemption in the Bible is not for the strong or the clean, but for those who cry.

The psalm ends this part with an invitation to offer thank offerings and “tell of his deeds in songs of joy.” Gratitude is the right response to rescue.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 8:5-13 shows Jesus healing the centurion’s servant with a word, as in verse 20. Luke 4:18 says Jesus came to proclaim liberty to the captives. Colossians 1:13 says God “has delivered us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son.” Ephesians 2:1-5 speaks of being dead in trespasses and made alive. Acts 16:25-26 shows prison doors opened as Paul and Silas prayed.

STEP 6

Application

Think about which of the four pictures fits your story: wanderer, prisoner, sick, or sailor. Thank God for his rescue.

Say the refrain aloud: “Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love.”

Tell someone a story of God’s rescue in your life this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks to God for a way he has redeemed you from adversity.
- Thank him that his steadfast love endures forever.
- Tell him whom you want to share this thanks with.

JEREMIAH 31:3

DAY 443 · WEEK 64

Jeremiah 30:1-31:40

The Book of Consolation, the New Covenant promise

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 66 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 30:1-31:40. This is the Book of Consolation, the center of Jeremiah and one of the most important passages in the Old Testament. Read chapter 31 slowly, especially verses 31 to 34. Today's reading contains the New Covenant.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After many chapters of judgment, God tells Jeremiah to write in a book all the words he has spoken, and the tone turns to comfort. These chapters were probably written around 587 BC, as Jerusalem was under siege. They promise restoration, a return from exile, and above all, a new covenant. They are the hinge on which the whole unit turns, and the New Testament quotes them more than any other part of Jeremiah.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Alas! That day is so great there is none like it; it is a time of distress for Jacob; yet he shall be saved out of it" (30:7).
2. "They shall serve the LORD their God and David their king, whom I will raise up for them" (30:9).
3. "For I will restore health to you, and your wounds I will heal, declares the LORD" (30:17).
4. "I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you" (31:3).
5. "A voice is heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping. Rachel is weeping for her children" (31:15).

6. “Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah” (31:31).

7. “I will put my law within them, and I will write it on their hearts. And I will be their God, and they shall be my people” (31:33).

8. “For I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more” (31:34).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 30 begins with distress, “a time of trouble for Jacob,” but quickly turns to salvation. God will break the yoke from their neck. They will serve the LORD and a king from David’s line. “For I will restore health to you.” The wound is incurable, but God says he will heal it. The people thought their situation was hopeless. God says that he is the one who made the wound, and he is the one who will heal it.

Chapter 31 opens with a love poem. “I have loved you with an everlasting love.” Before there was a covenant, there was love. “Therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you.” The exile has not ended his love. He promises to build them up again, with joy and dancing. The weeping at Ramah, where the exiles gathered on their way to Babylon, will turn to hope: “There is hope for your future.” Matthew later applies this verse to the weeping of Bethlehem’s mothers.

Then, in verses 31 to 34, the climax. A new covenant. It will not be like the covenant made at Sinai, which the people broke. This time, God himself will write the law on their hearts. The old covenant was written on stone and often kept externally. The new will be internal. There will be four promises: a new heart (“I will write it on their hearts”), a new relationship (“I will be their God, and they shall be my people”), a new knowledge (“they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest”), and a new forgiveness (“I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more”).

The closing verses guarantee it. As certain as the sun, moon, and stars, God will not cast off Israel. The new covenant is as secure as creation. It is the heart of the gospel, and it is the memory verse of this unit.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said at the Last Supper, “This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood” (Luke 22:20). Hebrews 8:6-13 and 10:15-18 quote this passage in full, saying that Christ is the mediator of the new covenant. 2 Corinthians 3:3-6 says believers are “a letter from Christ… written not with ink but with the Spirit.” Matthew 2:17-18 quotes Jeremiah 31:15. Romans 11:26-27 speaks of the covenant with Israel.

STEP 6

Application

Take Jeremiah 31:33 with you, and ask what it means that God writes rather than demands.

Take the cup at the Lord's Supper, and see in it the fulfillment of verse 31.

Ask God to write his law on your heart, so that obedience becomes your desire.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that he has loved you with an everlasting love.
- Thank him for the new covenant sealed in Jesus' blood.
- Ask him to write his law on your heart so that obedience becomes your desire.

JEREMIAH 31:3

DAY 444 · WEEK 64

Jeremiah 32:1-33:26

Jeremiah buys a field; the Branch of David

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 32:1-33:26. While Babylon is besieging the city, God tells Jeremiah to buy a field. Read it as an act of faith. Then read the promise of the Branch and the covenant with David and the Levites.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is 587 BC, the tenth year of Zedekiah. Jerusalem is under siege, and Jeremiah is imprisoned in the court of the guard for predicting its fall. God tells him that his cousin will come and offer to sell him the family field at Anathoth, which is now in enemy territory. He buys it. The scene is among the most striking acts of faith in Scripture.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Buy my field that is at Anathoth, for you have the right of redemption by purchase” (32:7).
2. “I signed the deed, sealed it, got witnesses, and weighed the money on scales” (32:10).
3. “Ah, Lord GOD! It is you who have made the heavens and the earth by your great power… Nothing is too hard for you” (32:17).
4. “Behold, I am the LORD, the God of all flesh. Is anything too hard for me?” (32:27).
5. “I will make with them an everlasting covenant, that I will not turn away from doing good to them” (32:40).
6. “Fields shall be bought in this land of which you are saying, It is a desolation” (32:43).
7. “Call to me and I will answer you, and will tell you great and hidden things that you have not known” (33:3).

8 “In those days and at that time I will cause a righteous Branch to spring up for David” (33:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jeremiah’s act is a visible sermon. The Babylonian army is at the gate. Anyone who buys land in the country is wasting money. But God says: buy it. The deed is signed, sealed, witnessed, and placed in a clay jar to last a long time. The meaning: “Houses and fields and vineyards shall again be bought in this land.” Jeremiah invests in a future he cannot see. His purchase is a pledge of God’s promise.

Afterward, Jeremiah prays, and he is honest about his confusion. “Behold, the siege mounds have come up to the city… and the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans. What you spoke has come to pass, and behold, you see it. Yet you, O Lord GOD, have said to me, Buy the field.” How can both be true? God answers with a question: “Is anything too hard for me?” He confirms the judgment, but promises restoration. “I will gather them from all the countries.” He will give them one heart and one way, “that they may fear me forever.” And again the promise of the everlasting covenant, “that I will not turn away from doing good to them.”

Chapter 33 continues the theme from a prison. God says, “Call to me and I will answer you, and will tell you great and hidden things.” It is a promise to those who pray in impossible situations. The city will be healed and cleansed. The sounds of joy and gladness will return, “the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride,” and of those who bring thank offerings.

The center is the promise of the Branch: “I will cause a righteous Branch to spring up for David.” The covenant with David will not fail. As sure as day and night, God’s promises stand. Even in the siege, Jeremiah’s hope is not in the army but in the word of God.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 1:37 says, “For nothing will be impossible with God,” echoing Jeremiah 32:17 and 27. Mark 10:27 says that all things are possible with God. Hebrews 11:1 says faith is the assurance of things hoped for. Jeremiah’s purchase of the field fits Ephesians 1:13-14, where the Spirit is the guarantee of our inheritance. Romans 4:17-21 describes Abraham believing against hope. Psalm 50:15 invites us to call on God in the day of trouble.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where God may be asking you to act in faith toward a future you cannot yet see.

Memorize Jeremiah 33:3 and pray it in a situation that seems impossible.

Pray the question, “Is anything too hard for the LORD?” for a specific need.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God that nothing is too hard for him, and name the thing you have been afraid to ask.

Ask him to teach you to “buy fields” in faith, trusting his promises.

Thank him for the Branch of David.

DAY 445 · WEEK 64

Jeremiah 34:1-36:32

Zedekiah; the Rechabites; Baruch's scroll burned

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 84 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 34:1-36:32. The king breaks a covenant to free slaves. A family called the Rechabites keeps its vow. And King Jehoiakim burns Jeremiah's scroll in a fire. Read these three stories as a contrast between faithful and unfaithful responses to God's word.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These chapters are arranged by theme, not chronology. Chapter 34 is during the siege, when Zedekiah freed the slaves as a covenant and then took them back. Chapters 35 and 36 go back to the days of Jehoiakim, about 605 BC. They show a series of contrasts: a nation that would not keep its word, a clan that did, and a king who could not bear to hear God's word.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "You recently repented and did what was right in my eyes... but then you turned around and profaned my name when each of you took back his male servant and his female servant" (34:15-16).
2. "You have not obeyed me by proclaiming liberty, every one to his brother" (34:17).
3. "The Rechabites, the descendants of Jonadab the son of Rechab, have kept the command that their father gave them, but this people has not obeyed me" (35:16).
4. "Because you have obeyed the command of Jonadab your father... Jonadab the son of Rechab shall never lack a man to stand before me" (35:18-19).
5. "Take a scroll and write on it all the words that I have spoken to you" (36:2).

6. “It may be that the house of Judah will hear all the disaster that I intend to do to them” (36:3).
7. “Neither the king nor any of his servants who heard all these words was afraid, nor did they tear their garments” (36:24).
8. “Then Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to Baruch… who wrote on it all the words of the scroll that Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire” (36:32).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In chapter 34, the people showed a flash of obedience. Under siege, they freed their Hebrew slaves, as the law of Exodus 21 and Deuteronomy 15 required. They made a covenant in the temple, passing between the pieces of a calf. Then, when the Babylonian army withdrew for a moment, they took the slaves back. They had made a vow and broken it. God’s reaction is sharp: they profaned his name. The punishment fits the crime: you did not proclaim liberty, so I proclaim liberty to the sword, the pestilence, and the famine.

Chapter 35 offers a contrast. The Rechabites were a clan who, for generations, had obeyed their ancestor’s rule not to drink wine or build houses. Jeremiah sets wine before them in the temple and invites them to drink. They refuse. They have kept the word of a human father for two hundred years. And God says: you, my people, have not kept the word of your divine Father, spoken persistently. The point is not that abstaining from wine is holy, but that obedience to a spoken word is possible. If a family can keep a command for generations, God’s people should be able to keep his.

In chapter 36, Baruch writes Jeremiah’s words on a scroll and reads it in the temple. Officials are afraid and report it to the king. Jehoiakim sits by the fire in the winter house, and as the scroll is read he cuts it up with a knife and throws it in the fire, column by column. The contrast with Josiah, who tore his clothes at the Book of the Law, could not be clearer. But burning the scroll does not destroy the word. God tells Jeremiah to write it again “and many similar words were added to them.” The word of the LORD is indestructible.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 40:8 says, “The grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of our God will stand forever.” Matthew 24:35: “Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.” Hebrews 4:12 says the word of God is living and active. John 14:15 says, “If you love me, you will keep my commandments.” James 1:22 says to be doers of the word. Luke 4:18-19 shows Jesus proclaiming liberty to captives.

STEP 6

Application

Examine whether there is a commitment you have made to God or to others that you have taken back.

Ask what you could do to be as faithful to God's word as the Rechabites were to their father's.

Pray for the preservation and spread of Scripture, and thank God for your own copy.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that his word cannot be burned.

Confess vows you have broken.

Ask him to make you faithful in the small commitments.

JEREMIAH 31:3

DAY 446 · WEEK 64

Jeremiah 37:1-39:18

Jeremiah in the cistern; Jerusalem falls; he is freed

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 59 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 37:1-39:18. These are the chapters of the final siege. Jeremiah is arrested, thrown into a cistern, rescued by a foreigner, and finally freed when Jerusalem falls. Read it as a story of faithfulness costing everything and being vindicated.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The final siege of Jerusalem lasted about eighteen months, from 588 to 586 BC. Jeremiah was accused of deserting to the enemy because he told people to surrender. He was beaten and imprisoned. The officials then dropped him into a muddy cistern to die. Chapter 39 records the city's fall, which the prophet had announced for forty years.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "You are going over to the Chaldeans!" (37:13).
2. "Is there any word from the LORD? ... There is... You shall be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon" (37:17).
3. "Then they took Jeremiah and cast him into the cistern... and Jeremiah sank in the mud" (38:6).
4. "Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, a eunuch... went from the king's house and said to the king, My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they did to Jeremiah" (38:7-9).
5. "Obey now the voice of the LORD in what I say to you, and it shall be well with you" (38:20).
6. "In the ninth year of Zedekiah... a breach was made in the city" (39:1-2).

7. “The king of Babylon slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah at Riblah before his eyes… and put out the eyes of Zedekiah” (39:6-7).

8. “I will deliver you on that day, declares the LORD… because you have put your trust in me” (39:17-18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Zedekiah is the central tragic figure. He is afraid of the officials, afraid of the people, and afraid of the Babylonians. He wants Jeremiah’s counsel but will not follow it. He meets the prophet secretly and asks, “Is there any word from the LORD?” The answer is the same: surrender. “If you will go out… your life shall be spared.” But the fear of men is a snare. He says, “I am afraid of the Judeans who have deserted to the Chaldeans.” The king who might have saved the city is paralyzed.

The cistern scene is vivid. The officials, angry that Jeremiah is weakening morale, drop him in a muddy pit to die. He sinks into the mire. It is a picture of a righteous person abandoned. Then comes an unlikely rescuer: Ebed-melech, an Ethiopian official in the palace. He risks his own position to speak to the king, and he pulls Jeremiah out with ropes padded with old rags so that they do not cut his arms. A foreigner shows more mercy than the leaders of God’s people. He is promised in return: “I will surely save you.”

Chapter 39 is the long-awaited end. The wall is breached, the temple burned, Zedekiah’s sons killed before his eyes, and then his eyes put out. The prophet’s words come true in detail. Yet the Babylonian commander treats Jeremiah kindly. He is released and stays among the poor who are left in the land.

The story shows that faithfulness to God’s word can be costly, and that vindication, though sometimes slow, is sure. And it shows how God honors acts of faith and mercy, even from an outsider.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus was condemned by religious leaders who feared the people (Luke 22:2), and by Pilate who feared the crowd (John 19:12-16). A foreigner, Simon of Cyrene, carried his cross (Luke 23:26). Matthew 25:40 says that what you do for the least of these you do for him. Acts 8:26-39 records an Ethiopian official’s conversion. Proverbs 29:25 says, “The fear of man lays a snare, but whoever trusts in the LORD is safe.”

STEP 6

Application

Ask where the fear of man holds you back from obeying God.

Be an Ebed-melech this week: act on behalf of someone who is being treated unjustly, even at some cost.

Remember Jeremiah when you are faithful and it costs you. God sees.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess the fear of man that has trapped you.
- Ask him for courage like Jeremiah's and compassion like Ebed-melech's.
- Thank him for delivering his servants.

DAY 447 · WEEK 64

Psalm 107:23-43

Those who go down to the sea

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 107:23-43. Here are the sailors in the storm, and then a series of reversals in which God turns deserts into pools and the proud into the humble. Notice how the psalm ends with a wisdom saying.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the second half of Psalm 107, which you began five days ago. The first half told of wanderers, prisoners, and the sick. This half begins with the sailors and then moves to a hymn of reversals. It is a fitting close to the story of Jeremiah's siege and fall, since it shows God as the one who humbles the proud and lifts the lowly. The psalm will return again later in the plan.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Some went down to the sea in ships, doing business on the great waters" (v. 23).
2. "They saw the deeds of the LORD, his wondrous works in the deep" (v. 24).
3. "He commanded and raised the stormy wind, which lifted up the waves of the sea" (v. 25).
4. "They reeled and staggered like drunken men and were at their wits" end' (v. 27).
5. "Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he delivered them from their distress. He made the storm be still" (vv. 28-29).
6. "Then they were glad that need be still, and he brought them to their desired haven" (v. 30).
7. "He turns rivers into a desert, springs of water into thirsty ground" (v. 33).

8 “Whoever is wise, let him attend to these things; let them consider the steadfast love of the LORD” (v. 43).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The sailors are the fourth group. Unlike the others, they are not in trouble by sin or by accident. They are doing their work, “doing business on the great waters,” and a storm comes. God himself “commanded and raised the stormy wind.” This reminds us that not all trouble is a punishment for sin. Sometimes God brings storms to show his deeds in the deep. The sailors reel like drunks and their courage melts. They are at their wits’ end, literally, “all their wisdom was swallowed up.” Then they cry out, and he stills the storm to a whisper. The haven they long for is his gift.

From verse 33, the psalm shifts to a broader picture of God’s rule. He turns rivers into deserts and deserts into pools. The change depends on the moral condition of the people: a fruitful land becomes salt because of the wickedness of its inhabitants. And he settles the hungry in a desert turned to pools. He blesses them so that they multiply. This is God’s rule of reversal: he brings princes into contempt and lifts the needy out of affliction and makes their families like flocks.

The statement in verse 42 is clear: “The upright see it and are glad, and all wickedness shuts its mouth.” The psalm closes with a wisdom call. “Whoever is wise, let him attend to these things.” The wise person reads history and life as the story of God’s steadfast love. In the context of the exile, the lesson is that the return will be a work of God, in the same pattern of rescue after crying out.

All four of the psalm’s stories describe the same truth: when we are at our wits’ end, we can cry out to the LORD, and he hears.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus calmed the storm with a word: “Peace! Be still!” (Mark 4:39), and the disciples asked, “Who then is this?” Psalm 107:29 gives the answer: the LORD. Jesus walked on water (Matthew 14:22-33). Luke 1:52-53 echoes the reversals: he has brought down the mighty and exalted the humble. 2 Corinthians 1:8-10 describes being so utterly burdened that we despaired of life, and God delivering us.

STEP 6

Application

Think about a storm you are in. Pray, “Lord, I am at my wits” end,’ and ask him to still it.

Consider that not every storm is a punishment. Look for what God may be showing you in it.

Take time to “attend to these things” by reviewing the rescues of this psalm, and thank God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God about the storm you are in and that you are at your wits’ end.
- Ask him to bring you to your desired haven.
- Thank Jesus, who stilled the storm.

REST

Meditation

This verse stands at the front of the great chapter of the new covenant. It is spoken to a people who have just lost everything. They had broken the covenant, and the covenant curses had fallen. Here is what God says first: "I have loved you."

"I have loved you with an everlasting love." The word "everlasting" goes back before time and extends beyond it. It is not a love that began when Israel obeyed or ended when they failed. It was there before they did anything. Paul says the same of believers: God chose us in Christ before the foundation of the world. His love is not based on our performance.

"Therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you." The word "therefore" is important. Because of his love, he continues to be faithful. The word for "continued" means to draw out or extend, like drawing a long line. God has stretched his faithfulness over the whole history of their rebellion. He has not given up. Judgment was a form of faithfulness to the covenant, and the promise of restoration is too.

Think of the context. The exiles heard this in Babylon. They might have thought that God's love had ended with the destruction of the temple. This verse says no. The love is everlasting. The exile does not change it.

For the Christian, the cross is the proof. "God shows his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us." Romans 8:38-39 says that nothing can separate us from the love of God. Say this verse whenever you doubt that you are loved.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the heart of Jeremiah: the Book of Consolation. You read the promise of a new covenant, in which God will write his law on the hearts of his people, bring them all to know him, and forgive their sin and remember it no more. You read of Jeremiah's purchase of a field while the Babylonians besieged the city, a picture of faith in a future he could not see. You watched King Zedekiah's fear of men, Jeremiah in the cistern, and Ebed-melech's courage. You saw the Rechabites keep their vow, and a king burn God's word in a fire while the word survived. And you finished the first part with the fall of Jerusalem. In the psalms, you prayed Psalm 107, a song for the redeemed from every kind of trouble. The week taught that God keeps his promises even when everything seems lost, and that his love is everlasting.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

The new covenant promises that God will write his law on our hearts. What part of obedience still feels like an outward duty to you rather than a desire, and how might you ask God to change that?

Jeremiah bought a field when the city was falling. What step of faith might God be asking you to take toward a future you cannot see?

Psalm 107 asks the redeemed to say so. Whose story of rescue could you tell this week, and who needs to hear it?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for his everlasting love and continued faithfulness.

Thank him for the new covenant in Jesus' blood.

Rest in him today.

DAY 449 · WEEK 65

Psalm 108

My heart is steadfast, O God

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 108. It is a psalm made of two earlier psalms, joined together. Notice the confident praise at the beginning and the honest need at the end.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 108 is a psalm of David, made from parts of two other psalms: verses 1 to 5 are almost identical to Psalm 57:7-11, and verses 6 to 13 are almost identical to Psalm 60:5-12. This was used in worship as a song for a nation facing enemies and hoping for God's help. It is a fitting prayer after the fall of Jerusalem, since it begins with praise and ends with trust in God alone when human help fails.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "My heart is steadfast, O God! I will sing and make melody with all my being!" (v. 1).
2. "Awake, O harp and lyre! I will awake the dawn!" (v. 2).
3. "I will give thanks to you, O LORD, among the peoples" (v. 3).
4. "For your steadfast love is great above the heavens; your faithfulness reaches to the clouds" (v. 4).
5. "Be exalted, O God, above the heavens! Let your glory be over all the earth!" (v. 5).
6. "That your beloved ones may be delivered, give salvation by your right hand and answer me!" (v. 6).
7. "Have you not rejected us, O God? You do not go out, O God, with our armies" (v. 11).
8. "Through God we will do valiantly; it is he who will tread down our foes" (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a vow. “My heart is steadfast.” The word means firm, fixed, established. Whatever is happening around him, his heart is anchored in God. And the result is song, with all his being. He even says he will wake the dawn, rather than waiting for morning to wake him. His praise is not tied to circumstances.

The praise then widens to include the nations: “among the peoples… among the nations.” God’s steadfast love is above the heavens, and so his praise must be heard everywhere. The psalmist’s confidence rests on God’s character. Notice the two terms again: steadfast love and faithfulness. They are the pillars of God’s covenant.

Then the psalm shifts to prayer and to a series of divine promises. God has spoken in his holiness: he will divide Shechem, measure the Valley of Succoth, and claim Gilead, Manasseh, Ephraim, and Judah. Moab is his washbasin, Edom his slave. These are the promises of the land, spoken to David. God will give victory.

But the last part is honest. “Who will lead me to the fortified city? Who will lead me to Edom? Have you not rejected us, O God?” The psalmist admits that the people are in trouble, that God does not seem to be going out with their armies. He pleads: “Oh grant us help against the foe, for vain is the salvation of man!” Human help fails. “Through God we will do valiantly.” The psalm ends with a statement of faith in the middle of weakness.

This is a good prayer for the exile and for every believer who is both confident and needy. We can praise the God whose love is above the heavens even as we ask for help in a world where our own strength fails.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 108’s praise among the nations is picked up in Romans 15:9-11. Ephesians 3:20 says God is able to do far more abundantly than all that we ask or think. Philippians 4:13 says, “I can do all things through him who strengthens me.” Psalm 20:7 says some trust in chariots, but we trust in the name of the LORD. John 15:5 says that apart from Christ we can do nothing.

STEP 6

Application

Start tomorrow morning with the vow of verse 2: “I will awake the dawn.” Sing or pray aloud before anything else.

Trust God, not human help, in an area where you have been leaning on your own plans.

Praise the LORD among someone who does not know him, by telling them one thing he has done.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God your heart is steadfast, or ask him to make it so.
- Sing or speak your praise to him in your own words.
- Ask him to be exalted above the heavens.

JEREMIAH 33:3

DAY 450 · WEEK 65

Jeremiah 40:1-42:22

Gedaliah the governor; the people ask Jeremiah

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 59 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 40:1-42:22. After Jerusalem falls, a Babylonian-appointed governor is murdered, and the survivors ask Jeremiah what to do. Read their promise to obey in chapter 42, and notice what happens in chapter 43, which you will read tomorrow.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the destruction of 586 BC, Nebuchadnezzar appointed a Jewish governor, Gedaliah, at Mizpah to oversee the people who remained. Jeremiah chose to stay with them. Then a member of the royal family, Ishmael, assassinated Gedaliah and others. The remaining leaders were afraid of Babylonian reprisal and thought of fleeing to Egypt. They came to Jeremiah and asked for God's guidance.

STEP 3

Observation

1. The captain of the guard says, "The LORD your God pronounced this disaster against this place" (40:2).
2. Jeremiah chooses to stay: "Jeremiah went to Gedaliah... and lived with him among the people who were left in the land" (40:6).
3. "But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam would not believe them" (40:16).
4. Ishmael kills Gedaliah (41:2).
5. "Let the LORD your God show us the way we should go, and the thing that we should do" (42:3).
6. "Whether it is pleasant or unpleasant, we will obey the voice of the LORD our God" (42:6).

7. “If you will remain in this land, then I will build you up and not pull you down” (42:10).
8. “Do not go to Egypt… I solemnly warn you this day that you have gone astray at the cost of your lives” (42:19-20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Babylonian captain gives Jeremiah a choice: come to Babylon and be cared for, or stay in the land. Jeremiah stays with the poor. He had been faithful to God’s word in the city, and he stays faithful among the remnant. For a moment, there is hope. Gedaliah, a good man who protects the people, calls them to settle, serve Babylon, and gather the harvest of the land. The people return from the countries where they had fled, and for a short time there is a summer harvest of wine and fruit.

Then Ishmael, who had been warned, murders Gedaliah at a meal. The murder of the governor and the group around him is shocking, and Ishmael kills pilgrims on their way to the temple as well. Johanan rescues the captives, but he fears Babylon’s reaction.

Johanan and the people come to Jeremiah. Their request sounds pious: “Pray for us to the LORD your God… that the LORD your God may show us the way.” They promise to obey, whether it is good or bad. Jeremiah prays, and after ten days, God answers: stay. “Do not fear the king of Babylon.” If they stay, God will build them up. If they go to Egypt, the sword and famine they fear will follow them there.

The problem is in the heart. Jeremiah says, “You have deceived yourselves.” They had already decided to go to Egypt. They asked for God’s word, but they only wanted his approval. Asking for guidance when you have already decided is not seeking God. The promise to obey whatever he says is easy to make before you know the answer. True obedience begins when what God says is unwelcome.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said in Luke 6:46, “Why do you call me Lord, Lord, and not do what I tell you?” James 1:22-25 warns against hearing without doing. Proverbs 3:5-6 says to trust in the LORD with all your heart and to lean not on your own understanding. Matthew 7:21 says that not everyone who says “Lord, Lord” will enter the kingdom. John 7:17 says that anyone who wills to do God’s will shall know.

STEP 6

Application

Before you ask God for guidance on a decision, tell him honestly that you will obey whatever he says.

Notice whether you have already decided what you will do and are only asking for confirmation.

Be like Jeremiah this week: stay faithful in a hard place with those who have little.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to show you the way you should go.
- Tell him you will obey, whether pleasant or unpleasant.
- Ask him to keep you from deciding first and asking later.

JEREMIAH 33:3

DAY 451 · WEEK 65

Jeremiah 43:1-45:5

Disobedience; the flight to Egypt; Baruch's consolation

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 37 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 43:1-45:5. The leaders refuse God's answer and flee to Egypt, taking Jeremiah with them. Then Jeremiah faces the people's idolatry in Egypt, and a short word is given to Baruch, his scribe. Read chapter 45 carefully.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After God's answer in chapter 42, the leaders accuse Jeremiah of lying and carry off the whole remnant to Egypt. In Tahpanhes, a border town, they settle among other Judean refugees. Even there, they take up the worship of the Queen of Heaven. The prophet's last recorded sermons are directed at their stubbornness. Chapter 45 is a gentle word to Baruch, who had grown discouraged.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "You are telling a lie. The LORD our God did not send you to say, Do not go to Egypt to live there" (43:2).
2. "So Johanan... and all the people did not obey the voice of the LORD" (43:4).
3. "Take some large stones and hide them in the mortar... in front of Pharaoh's palace in Tahpanhes" (43:9).
4. "Why do you provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, making offerings to other gods in the land of Egypt?" (44:8).
5. "We will not listen to you... we will do everything that we have vowed, make offerings to the queen of heaven" (44:16-17).
6. "For then we had plenty of bread, and prospered, and saw no disaster" (44:17).

7. “Behold, I am watching over them for disaster and not for good” (44:27).
8. “And do you seek great things for yourself? Seek them not, for behold, I am bringing disaster upon all flesh… but I will give you your life as a prize of war in all places to which you may go” (45:5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The people’s refusal is blunt. Having asked for God’s word and promised to obey, they now call Jeremiah a liar. The sin of unbelief is compounded by the sin of disobedience. They go to Egypt, the land God had delivered them from. It is a reversal of the exodus. The prophet is taken with them, and even there he continues to speak.

God’s word comes in the form of a sign: Jeremiah buries stones in the pavement in front of Pharaoh’s palace and says that Nebuchadnezzar will set his throne over them. The refuge they chose will not hold.

In chapter 44, the people in Egypt are defiant. When Jeremiah reproaches them for their idolatry, they give a revealing response. They claim that when they worshiped the Queen of Heaven, they had food and no disaster. It was only when they stopped, in Josiah’s reform, that trouble came. This is a classic example of misreading history. They say that the gods worked and the LORD did not. They are reading their own lives with no reference to God’s word. They refuse to repent and vow to continue.

Against this, chapter 45 is a short, tender word to Baruch. He had been in the thick of the struggle with Jeremiah, writing the scrolls and being threatened. He is weary and says, “Woe is me! For the LORD has added sorrow to my pain.” God’s reply is gentle but firm: “Do you seek great things for yourself? Seek them not.” This is not a time for personal ambition. Yet there is a promise: your life will be spared. Baruch’s life is a quiet example of faithful service in a time of collapse.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 6:46-49 contrasts the person who hears and does not act with the one who builds on rock. Matthew 6:33 says to seek first the kingdom of God, which echoes “seek not great things.” Luke 9:23-25 says that whoever would save his life will lose it. Philippians 2:3-4 calls us to count others more significant than ourselves. Hebrews 3:12-13 warns against an evil, unbelieving heart.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether you ever read your life only through your own experience and not through God's word.

Think about whether you are "seeking great things" for yourself. What would it mean to be content with faithful, hidden service?

Encourage someone who is faithfully serving in a quiet role.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to keep you from a hard heart that calls his word a lie.
- Ask him to teach you to read your life through his word.
- Thank him for his patience.

JEREMIAH 33:3

DAY 452 · WEEK 65

Jeremiah 46:1-48:47

Oracles against Egypt and Moab [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 80 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 46:1-48:47. This is a survey day. These are oracles against Egypt, the Philistines, and Moab. Do not worry about every name. Read for the repeated message: God is Lord of the nations, and pride is judged.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapters 46 to 51 are Jeremiah's oracles against the nations. Like Isaiah 13-23 and Ezekiel 25-32, they place the story of Judah inside God's rule over the world. The first oracle is against Egypt, tied to the battle of Carchemish in 605 BC. The next ones concern the Philistines and Moab, with echoes of Isaiah's earlier oracles on Moab. These oracles show that no nation escapes God's judgment and that some of them receive a promise of restoration.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Who is this, rising like the Nile, like rivers whose waters surge?" (46:7).
2. "Egypt rises like the Nile... I will surely punish Amon of Thebes, and Pharaoh" (46:8, 25).
3. "But fear not, O Jacob my servant, nor be dismayed, O Israel" (46:27).
4. "I will make a full end of all the nations among whom I have scattered you, but of you I will not make a full end" (46:28).
5. "Because you trusted in your works and your treasures, you also shall be taken" (48:7).
6. "We have heard of the pride of Moab... his insolence, his pride, and his arrogance" (48:29).
7. "Cursed is he who does the work of the LORD with slackness" (48:10).
8. "Yet I will restore the fortunes of Moab in the latter days, declares the LORD" (48:47).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The oracle against Egypt begins with a military scene: the Egyptian army at Carchemish, preparing for battle, and then fleeing in defeat. “Who is this, rising like the Nile?” The question has the same shape as Isaiah’s against Babylon. Egypt rose in pride, as a flood that covers the earth, but the LORD is greater. The oracle ends in 46:27-28 with comfort for Israel: “Fear not, O Jacob my servant.” God will discipline in just measure, but will not destroy his people.

The oracle against the Philistines in chapter 47 pictures waters from the north that sweep over the land, and the cries of fathers who do not turn to help their children. It is a picture of utter terror.

Chapter 48 is a long lament over Moab, the nation descended from Lot and often hostile to Israel. The reason for its fall is stated clearly: it trusted in its works and treasures, and in its pride. “Moab has been at ease from his youth… like wine left on its dregs.” A people that has never been disturbed grows complacent. The prophet’s sorrow is real: “Therefore I wail for Moab; I cry out for all Moab.” This is no gloating.

Notice 48:10: “Cursed is he who does the work of the LORD with slackness.” It is a warning to the executioners of judgment, but also to everyone. The work of the LORD is serious.

The chapter ends with a surprise. “Yet I will restore the fortunes of Moab in the latter days.” Even this enemy nation has a future. The God who judges the nations is the God who will bring them back. Jeremiah’s prophecies of judgment are never the last word.

STEP 5

Connection

Revelation 18 and 19 draw on the oracles against the nations for the fall of Babylon. Colossians 3:23 says, “Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord.” Revelation 21:24-26 says that the nations will bring their glory into the new Jerusalem. Ruth, a Moabite, was an ancestor of David and Jesus (Matthew 1:5). Acts 17:26-27 says God made all nations that they should seek him.

STEP 6

Application

Pray for a nation that is facing disaster or war.

Consider whether you have grown complacent, like wine left on its dregs, from too much ease.

Do one thing for the Lord with wholehearted effort today and not in slackness.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God as God of all nations.
- Pray for those who suffer under proud powers.
- Ask him not to let you grow complacent.

JEREMIAH 33:3

DAY 453 · WEEK 65

Jeremiah 49:1-51:64

Oracles against Ammon, Edom, Babylon [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 117 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 49:1-51:64. This is another survey day, with oracles against Ammon, Edom, Damascus, Elam, and above all, Babylon. Read the Babylon oracle for its main theme: the empire that destroyed Jerusalem will itself be destroyed.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The long section of oracles ends with Babylon. Jeremiah's message to the exiles is that Babylon, God's instrument, will be punished for its own pride and cruelty. In 51:59-64, Jeremiah sends a scroll with Seraiah, a Judean official, who is to read the oracle in Babylon and then tie a stone to it and throw it into the Euphrates. Babylon fell in 539 BC, though not as dramatically as the prophecies suggest. The final fall is a symbol still awaited.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The pride of your heart has deceived you, you who live in the clefts of the rock" (49:16).
2. "I have heard a message from the LORD, and an envoy has been sent among the nations" (49:14).
3. "Declare among the nations and proclaim... Babylon is taken, Bel is put to shame, Merodach is dismayed" (50:2).
4. "In those days and in that time, declares the LORD, the people of Israel and the people of Judah shall come together, weeping as they come" (50:4).
5. "They shall ask the way to Zion, with faces turned toward it, saying, Come, let us join ourselves to the LORD in an everlasting covenant" (50:5).
6. "Their Redeemer is strong; the LORD of hosts is his name" (50:34).

7. “Babylon was a golden cup in the LORD’s hand, making all the earth drunken” (51:7).

8. “Flee from the midst of Babylon; let every one save his life!” (51:6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The oracles against the nations in chapter 49 follow familiar notes. Edom’s pride in its mountain strongholds will not save it. “Though you make your nest as high as the eagle’s, from there I will bring you down.” Damascus and Hazor and Elam will also fall.

Chapters 50 and 51 are a long poem on Babylon. The great empire that carried God’s people into exile is now the target. The reason is stated: Babylon sinned against the LORD, the Holy One of Israel. It exulted in its destruction of his heritage. Its gods, Bel and Merodach, will be put to shame. God uses a nation from the north, the Medes and Persians, to do it. Babylon will become a desolation.

But the poem is also about Israel. In the middle of the destruction, there is a promise for God’s people: they will come together, weeping, and seek the way to Zion. “Come, let us join ourselves to the LORD in an everlasting covenant that will never be forgotten.” This is the language of the new covenant. The prophet says that their sins will be sought for and not found: “For I will pardon those whom I leave as a remnant.” The people are called to leave Babylon. “Flee from the midst of Babylon… Be not cut off in her punishment.”

The image of Babylon as a golden cup in the LORD’s hand shows God’s control. The empire was an instrument, and when it has done its work, it is broken. The scroll sunk in the Euphrates ends the prophecy with an act of faith: “Thus shall Babylon sink, to rise no more.” The last line of the section is simple: “Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.”

In Scripture, Babylon is more than a city. It becomes the symbol of the world system in opposition to God. Revelation echoes these chapters in its portrayal of the fall of Babylon the great.

STEP 5

Connection

Revelation 18:4 says, “Come out of her, my people, lest you take part in her sins,” echoing Jeremiah 51:45. Revelation 14:8 and 18:2 declare “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great.” Revelation 18:21 describes a millstone thrown into the sea, like Jeremiah’s scroll. Hebrews 8:8-12 confirms the “everlasting covenant” in Christ. 2 Corinthians 6:17 calls us to come out and be separate.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what “Babylon” looks like in your context: a system or value that opposes God. How are you called to live as a faithful exile?

Join in the prayer of Jeremiah 50:5: “Come, let us join ourselves to the LORD in an everlasting covenant.”

Remember that no empire lasts forever. Place your hope in the kingdom of God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he is the Redeemer who judges proud powers.

Ask him to help you come out of whatever he calls you to leave.

Pray for his people living among empires.

JEREMIAH 33:3

DAY 454 · WEEK 65

Jeremiah 52:1-34

Jerusalem's fall retold, the historical anchor

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 34 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jeremiah 52:1-34. This last chapter retells the fall of Jerusalem and ends with a spark of hope. It is almost the same as 2 Kings 24-25. Read it as the book's historical anchor, proof that everything Jeremiah said came true.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The book of Jeremiah ends with this appendix, taken from 2 Kings. It does not add new teaching. It confirms that the prophecies were fulfilled in history. The date, the details, and even the numbers of the exiles are recorded. It ends where 2 Kings ends, with Jehoiachin released from prison. The writer wanted to show the reader that God's word is reliable, and that the exile is not the end.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign... And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD" (52:1-2).
2. "For because of the anger of the LORD it came to the point in Jerusalem and Judah that he cast them out from his presence" (52:3).
3. "In the ninth year of his reign... Nebuchadnezzar... came with all his army against Jerusalem" (52:4).
4. "So the city was besieged till the eleventh year of King Zedekiah" (52:5).
5. "And he burned the house of the LORD and the king's house and all the houses of Jerusalem" (52:13).

6. “The Chaldeans broke the bronze pillars… and carried all the bronze to Babylon” (52:17).
7. “Thus Judah was taken into exile out of its land” (52:27).
8. “Jehoiachin king of Judah… was released from prison… and he dined regularly at the king’s table all the days of his life” (52:31-33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The chapter is almost dry in its detail: the dates, the lists, the weights of the bronze. This is the point. The prophecies of Jeremiah were not vague. They were specific, and the specifics came true. A prophet is tested by whether his words come to pass (Deuteronomy 18:22), and by this test, Jeremiah is vindicated, despite the opposition he faced.

The chapter reports the same terrible sequence as 2 Kings: the siege, the famine, the breach in the wall, the flight and capture of the king, the blinding, the burning of the temple, the breaking of the bronze pillars called Jachin and Boaz, and the deportation. The bronze pillars at the temple’s entrance, which had symbolized stability, are chopped up. The vessels of the temple are carried off. The number of those taken into exile in three waves is recorded: 3,023, then 832, then 745. These numbers are small. The nation has been reduced to a remnant.

There is one difference from 2 Kings: the date of the final release is stated, the twenty-fifth day of the twelfth month in the thirty-seventh year of exile, when Evil-merodach released Jehoiachin from prison. He is given a seat above the other kings in Babylon, a new set of clothes, and a daily allowance. It is a small mercy, and yet a sign. The line of David is alive.

Why end here? The book has told the whole story of judgment, but it wants the reader to see the tiny signs of hope. The final image is of a king in exile eating at a table. It is a promise in miniature: the God who judged is the God who preserves. For the faithful reader, this is the foretaste of the great feast that is coming.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 1:12 lists Jehoiachin (Jechoniah) in Jesus’ genealogy, and the line of David that seemed to end was continued in the one who is called Christ. Deuteronomy 18:21-22 gives the test of a true prophet. Hebrews 6:18-19 speaks of a hope that anchors the soul. Psalm 23:5 says, “You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies.” Revelation 19:9 says, “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.”

STEP 6

Application

Thank God that his word is always reliable, down to the last detail.

Look for the small signs of hope in a hard season: a table set in exile.

Reflect on how the line of David, nearly lost, led to Jesus. What does this teach you about God's faithfulness?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that his word is true and comes to pass.

Thank him that in judgment he kept David's line alive.

Ask him to teach you to trust his promises.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Call to me and I will answer you, and will tell you great and hidden things that you have not known."

JEREMIAH 33:3

REST

Meditation

This verse was spoken to a man in prison. Jeremiah was locked in the court of the guard while Jerusalem burned. He had nothing: no freedom, no city, and no apparent future. And God said, "Call to me."

It is an invitation. The first thing God asks of someone in trouble is not to fix it but to call. Prayer is the simple act of speaking to God. No special words are required. The one who is in prison, who is at the end of his strength, can call.

"And I will answer you." It is a promise. The word for answer includes the sense of responding to someone who has spoken. God is not deaf or distant. He hears and replies. Not every answer comes in the form or on the schedule we expect. But he answers. He had already answered Jeremiah's earlier question by telling him to buy the field.

“And will tell you great and hidden things that you have not known.” This is a surprise. God offers more than relief. He offers revelation. “Great and hidden” might also be translated “fortified, inaccessible.” There are things that human wisdom cannot reach. In Jeremiah’s case, God goes on to reveal the restoration of Israel, the righteous Branch, and the everlasting covenant. They are the most glorious promises of the book, and they came in prison.

Say this verse when you feel confined. God often does his greatest teaching in the narrowest places. Call to him. He will answer, and he will show you more than you thought to ask.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the book of Jeremiah. You prayed Psalm 108, a song that begins with a steadfast heart and ends with trust in God because human help is vain. You read about the tragedy that followed the fall of Jerusalem: Gedaliah’s murder, the people’s request for God’s guidance that was already settled in their hearts, and their flight to Egypt in disobedience, where they took up idolatry again. You heard God’s quiet word to Baruch not to seek great things for himself. You read the oracles against Egypt, Moab, Edom, and above all Babylon, learning that no empire stands forever and even enemies have a future. And you read the closing chapter, which confirmed in history everything Jeremiah said and ended with Jehoiachin eating at the king’s table. The week taught that God’s word is reliable, that guidance requires willingness to obey, and that hope survives the fall.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

The people asked Jeremiah for God’s guidance but had already decided. Is there a decision in your life where you are asking God but have not truly surrendered the answer?

Baruch was told not to seek great things for himself. Where do you struggle with wanting recognition for your service?

Jeremiah’s longest prophecies ended with a king eating at a table in exile. Where might God be giving you a small sign of hope in a difficult season?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Call to God and ask him to tell you great and hidden things.

Thank him for his reliable word.

Rest in him today.

DAY 456 · WEEK 66

Psalm 119:145-176

I cry with my whole heart; your word is my hope

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 32 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 119:145-176. This is the last two stanzas of the long acrostic psalm on God's word. You have read parts of Psalm 119 several times. Today read it as the prayer of a believer in exile, far from home but holding on to the word.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 119 is the longest chapter in the Bible, a poem of 176 verses in twenty-two stanzas, one for each letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Every verse speaks of God's word, using eight or so words for it: law, testimonies, precepts, statutes, commandments, rules, word, and promise. The last stanzas are written as a cry. The psalmist is pursued by persecutors and ends with an image of a lost sheep. It is a good psalm for the exile, as people without a temple clung to the written word.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "With my whole heart I cry; answer me, O LORD! I will keep your statutes" (v. 145).
2. "I rise before dawn and cry for help; I hope in your words" (v. 147).
3. "My eyes are awake before the watches of the night, that I may meditate on your promise" (v. 148).
4. "Those who persecute me with evil purpose draw near; they are far from your law. But you are near, O LORD" (vv. 150-151).
5. "Long have I known from your testimonies that you have founded them forever" (v. 152).

6. “The sum of your word is truth, and every one of your righteous rules endures forever” (v. 160).
7. “Great peace have those who love your law; nothing can make them stumble” (v. 165).
8. “I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek your servant, for I do not forget your commandments” (v. 176).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalmist prays with his whole heart. He gets up before dawn and stays awake through the night, because his hope is in God’s word. In exile, the word of God was what remained. The temple was gone, the sacrifices ceased, but the written word could still be read, meditated on, and prayed. Many scholars believe the Scriptures became central to Jewish life in exile for this reason.

The situation is not easy. Persecutors are near, but the psalmist notes that “you are near, O LORD.” The enemy is close, but God is closer. The contrast is a source of strength. And he adds, “All your commandments are true.” Even when circumstances are hostile, the word does not change.

There is a beautiful summary in verse 160: “The sum of your word is truth.” The whole is true, and every part is true. The psalmist is not picking out the verses he likes. He has taken all of it. And the result is verse 165: “Great peace have those who love your law.” Peace, shalom, belongs to those who love the word. Nothing makes them stumble.

The last verse is surprising. After 175 verses of praise for the word, the psalmist confesses: “I have gone astray like a lost sheep.” It is an honest ending. He loves the word, and yet he knows he wanders. And his request is, “Seek your servant.” He does not say, “I will find my way back.” He asks the shepherd to find him. The word of God does not make us self-sufficient. It leads us to depend on the God who seeks.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “I am the good shepherd” (John 10:11), and told the story of the shepherd who leaves ninety-nine sheep to seek the one that is lost (Luke 15:3-7). “I have come to seek and to save the lost” (Luke 19:10). 2 Timothy 3:16-17 says that all Scripture is breathed out by God. John 17:17 says, “Your word is truth.” John 14:27 gives Christ’s peace. 1 Peter 2:25: “You were straying like sheep, but have now returned to the Shepherd and Overseer of your souls.”

STEP 6

Application

Set aside time before dawn this week, as the psalmist did, and cry to God from Scripture.

Memorize one verse of Psalm 119 that speaks to your situation.

Pray verse 176 as your own: “Seek your servant.” Thank Jesus for being the shepherd who finds.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Cry out to God with your whole heart.

Tell him your hope is in his word.

Thank him that he is near.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 66

“The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is your faithfulness.”

LAMENTATIONS 3:22-23

DAY 457 · WEEK 66

Psalm 120; Psalm 121

In my distress I called; I lift my eyes to the hills

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 120 and Psalm 121. These are the first two Songs of Ascents, which pilgrims sang on the way up to Jerusalem. Psalm 120 starts in distress far from home, and Psalm 121 lifts its eyes to the hills.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalms 120 to 134 are the Songs of Ascents, sung by pilgrims climbing to Jerusalem for the festivals. After the exile, they may also have been the songs of those returning. Psalm 120 begins in a foreign place: "Too long have I had my dwelling among those who hate peace." Psalm 121 is the voice of someone on the journey who asks where help comes from. They belong at this point in the plan as songs for exiles on the road home.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In my distress I called to the LORD, and he answered me" (120:1).
2. "Deliver me, O LORD, from lying lips, from a deceitful tongue" (120:2).
3. "Woe is me, that I sojourn in Meshech, that I dwell among the tents of Kedar!" (120:5).
4. "Too long have I had my dwelling among those who hate peace. I am for peace, but when I speak, they are for war" (120:6-7).
5. "I lift up my eyes to the hills. From where does my help come?" (121:1).
6. "My help comes from the LORD, who made heaven and earth" (121:2).
7. "He will not let your foot be moved; he who keeps you will not slumber" (121:3).
8. "The LORD will keep your going out and your coming in from this time forth and forevermore" (121:8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Psalm 120 begins with a testimony and then a prayer. “In my distress I called to the LORD, and he answered me.” The psalmist remembers a time of rescue, and in the present he again needs it. His troubles are liars. Deceitful tongues surround him. He asks God to deal with them as arrows and burning coals. He is in a foreign place, Meshech and Kedar, far-off lands, a symbolic way of saying that he is among people who do not share his values. His last line is poignant: “I am for peace, but when I speak, they are for war.” It is the lament of anyone who longs for peace and meets hostility.

Psalm 121 is the answer. The pilgrim looks up at the hills of Judea. Some read the question as fear: the hills held pagan shrines and bandits. Others read it as longing for Zion. Either way, the answer is clear: “My help comes from the LORD, who made heaven and earth.” The one who made the hills is greater than they are. Help does not come from the landscape, but from its Creator.

Then the psalm uses a word again and again: keep. The LORD is your keeper. He will not let your foot slip. He does not sleep. He is your shade at your right hand. The sun will not strike you by day, nor the moon by night. He will keep your life. He will keep your going out and your coming in.

Together the two psalms give the journey of faith: from the foreign land of distress to the God who keeps. The travelers learn that their security does not depend on the road but on the one who walks it with them.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “I will never leave you nor forsake you” (Hebrews 13:5, paraphrasing Deuteronomy 31:6), and “I am with you always” (Matthew 28:20). John 10:28 says that no one will snatch his sheep out of his hand. Jude 24 says he is able to keep you from stumbling. 1 Peter 1:5 says we are guarded by God’s power. Psalm 127 and Mark 4:38 remind us that Jesus slept in the boat, but the Father does not slumber. Romans 12:18 says, “If possible, so far as it depends on you, live peaceably with all.”

STEP 6

Application

When you are in distress, begin as Psalm 120 does: remember a past time that God answered you.

Pray Psalm 121 as a blessing over someone who is traveling or starting a new job.

When you feel surrounded by hostility, say aloud, “My help comes from the LORD, who made heaven and earth.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what distresses you and ask him to answer.
- Lift your eyes to him as your help.
- Thank him that he will keep you.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 66

“The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is your faithfulness.”

LAMENTATIONS 3:22-23

DAY 458 · WEEK 66

Lamentations 1:1-2:22

Jerusalem's mourning; the city as widow

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 66 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Lamentations 1:1-2:22. The book of Lamentations is a collection of five poems of grief over the fall of Jerusalem. Read it slowly and honestly, without hurrying to the good news. Notice who is speaking in each part.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Lamentations was traditionally written by Jeremiah, though the text does not name an author. It follows the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BC, and the five poems are written as acrostics: the first four use the Hebrew alphabet as a frame, a way of giving order to disorder. The book shows how to grieve in faith. It does not offer quick answers. It gives words for sorrow so that the people can bring it to God.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "How lonely sits the city that was full of people! How like a widow has she become" (1:1).
2. "She weeps bitterly in the night, with tears on her cheeks; among all her lovers she has none to comfort her" (1:2).
3. "The LORD has afflicted her for the multitude of her transgressions" (1:5).
4. "Is it nothing to you, all you who pass by? Look and see if there is any sorrow like my sorrow" (1:12).
5. "The LORD is in the right, for I have rebelled against his word" (1:18).
6. "The Lord has become like an enemy; he has swallowed up Israel" (2:5).

7. “My eyes are spent with weeping; my stomach churns; my bile is poured out to the ground” (2:11).
8. “Arise, cry out in the night, at the beginning of the night watches! Pour out your heart like water before the presence of the Lord!” (2:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The opening line is among the saddest in the Bible. “How lonely sits the city that was full of people!” Jerusalem is pictured as a widow, once great among the nations and now a slave. She weeps in the night. Her friends have betrayed her. Her roads mourn because no one comes to the festivals. Her priests groan, her young women grieve. And no one comforts her.

The poem speaks in two voices: the narrator, who looks at the city and describes her pain, and Jerusalem herself, who speaks from verse 9 on. “Look, O LORD, and see, for I am despised.” The most piercing cry is in verse 12: “Is it nothing to you, all you who pass by?” It is the cry of someone suffering whose pain is invisible to the busy.

Yet already in chapter 1 there is honesty about the cause. “The LORD is in the right, for I have rebelled against his word.” The poet does not blame God for injustice. He confesses, and still he cries for help. Grief and repentance go together.

Chapter 2 is more shocking. The speaker says that the Lord himself has become like an enemy. The language is of God’s anger: he has torn down the stronghold, rejected his altar, and scorned his sanctuary. This was the hardest thing for the exiles to accept: God had done this. Yet the point of the poem is that God is real and his word is true.

The turning point is verse 19: “Arise, cry out in the night… pour out your heart like water before the presence of the Lord!” The right response to sorrow is to bring it to God. Lamentations teaches us that lament is a form of prayer, and that to pour out our hearts to God is itself an act of faith.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus wept over Jerusalem and said, “How often would I have gathered your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing!” (Luke 13:34). On the road to Golgotha, he told the women, “Do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves” (Luke 23:28). Romans 12:15 says, “Weep with those who weep.” Hebrews 5:7 says Jesus offered up prayers with loud cries and tears. Matthew 5:4: “Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted.”

STEP 6

Application

Spend time grieving something you have lost, without trying to fix it. Pour it out to God.

Be present with someone who is suffering. Do not hurry them. Sit with them.

Pray with the words of Lamentations 2:19 when you cannot find your own.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Pour out your heart to God, naming a sorrow.
- Confess where you have rebelled against his word.
- Ask him to look on your affliction.

LAMENTATIONS 3:22-23

DAY 459 · WEEK 66

Lamentations 3:1-66

"Great is your faithfulness", hope in the midst of suffering

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 66 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Lamentations 3:1-66. This is the center of the book, a long poem in which the poet moves from despair to a stunning declaration of hope. Read verses 19 to 33 slowly. They are the heart of the book.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 3 is the only chapter in which the speaker is an individual, "the man who has seen affliction." It is a triple acrostic, in which three verses in a row begin with each letter of the Hebrew alphabet, making 66 verses. Its structure of increasing order is placed over its disorder. At the center, the poet speaks of hope in the middle of suffering.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I am the man who has seen affliction under the rod of his wrath" (v. 1).
2. "He has driven and brought me into darkness without any light" (v. 2).
3. "He has besieged me and surrounded me with bitterness and tribulation" (v. 5).
4. "So I say, My endurance has perished; so has my hope from the LORD" (v. 18).
5. "But this I call to mind, and therefore I have hope" (v. 21).
6. "The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is your faithfulness" (vv. 22-23).
7. "The LORD is my portion, says my soul, therefore I will hope in him" (v. 24).
8. "For he does not afflict from his heart or grieve the children of men" (v. 33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The chapter opens in complete darkness. The speaker catalogs his suffering: God has walled him in, bound him with heavy chains, shut out his prayer, made his path crooked. He is like a bear or a lion lying in wait. The images are of a person who feels that God himself has become his enemy. And he reaches the bottom in verse 18: "My endurance has perished; so has my hope from the LORD."

Then comes the hinge: "But this I call to mind." The word "call to mind" means to bring back to the heart. He does not argue himself out of his pain. He remembers something. And what he remembers is the character of God. "The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is your faithfulness."

This is among the best known passages in Lamentations, and it is worth noting where it appears: in the center of the book of grief, in the aftermath of the destruction of Jerusalem. These are not words from a place of comfort. They are words from the ashes. The faithfulness of God is great precisely when everything else is gone.

The poet continues: "The LORD is my portion... therefore I will hope in him." He has lost everything but has God. It is good to wait quietly for the salvation of the LORD. It is good to bear the yoke in youth. God's discipline is not endless: "Though he cause grief, he will have compassion according to the abundance of his steadfast love." And he adds a statement that gives light to everything: "He does not afflict from his heart." Judgment is God's "strange work." His heart is mercy.

The rest of the chapter returns to prayer and to a plea for justice. But the poem has made its point: hope is a decision to remember who God is.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 4:15-16 says we have a high priest who can sympathize with our weaknesses. 2 Corinthians 4:8-9 says we are afflicted but not crushed. Hebrews 12:5-11 explains that the Lord disciplines the one he loves. Romans 5:3-5 says that suffering produces endurance, character, and hope. Isaiah 53:3 describes Jesus as a man of sorrows. The hymn "Great Is Thy Faithfulness" is based on verses 22 and 23.

STEP 6

Application

Start each day this week by saying, "His mercies are new every morning."

Think of a time of affliction when you remembered something about God that gave you hope. Write it down.

Wait quietly before God for a few minutes, as verse 26 teaches.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God how weary you are.

Call to mind his steadfast love and mercies, and name one.

Tell him you wait for him because he is good.

LAMENTATIONS 3:22-23

DAY 460 · WEEK 66

Lamentations 4:1-5:22

The city's degradation; the final plea, restore us

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 44 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Lamentations 4:1-5:22. The last two poems describe the siege in horrifying detail and end with a communal prayer. Read the last chapter as a prayer for the people to say together, and notice the unsettled final verses.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 4 is a fourth acrostic and a description of the city's degradation: children starving, nobles in rags, prophets and priests defiled. Chapter 5 is not an acrostic, though it has 22 verses. It is a prayer for the whole community, a plea to remember what has happened and restore them. It ends without resolution, with a question. The book of Lamentations is meant to be read in its brokenness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "How the gold has grown dim, how the pure gold is changed!" (4:1).
2. "The tongue of the nursing infant sticks to the roof of its mouth for thirst; the children beg for food, but no one gives to them" (4:4).
3. "The punishment of the daughter of my people has been greater than the punishment of Sodom" (4:6).
4. "This was for the sins of her prophets and the iniquities of her priests" (4:13).
5. "Remember, O LORD, what has befallen us; look, and see our disgrace!" (5:1).
6. "Our fathers sinned, and are no more; and we bear their iniquities" (5:7).
7. "The joy of our hearts has ceased; our dancing has been turned to mourning" (5:15).

8 “Restore us to yourself, O LORD, that we may be restored! Renew our days as of old” (5:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 4 begins with a symbol of dimmed gold, used for the precious stones of the temple, now scattered at the head of every street. The precious sons of Zion, “worth their weight in fine gold,” are regarded as clay pots. Even jackals nurse their young, but the daughters of Jerusalem are cruel like ostriches in the wilderness. The poet describes starvation, even to the point of cannibalism, which Deuteronomy 28 had warned of. Nothing is spared.

The cause is again the sin of the leaders: “the sins of her prophets and the iniquities of her priests, who shed in the midst of her the blood of the righteous.” The people who should have led them to God led them astray.

The last chapter turns from description to prayer. “Remember, O LORD, what has befallen us.” The community pleads. They list their losses: inheritance turned over to strangers, orphans without fathers, water bought for money, wood sold at a price, slaves ruling over them. They acknowledge, “Woe to us, for we have sinned!” But they also affirm God’s rule: “But you, O LORD, reign forever; your throne endures to all generations.” Even in disaster, the throne of God is secure. This is the anchor of the book.

The prayer ends with a petition: “Restore us to yourself, O LORD, that we may be restored!” The initiative is God’s. They cannot return by themselves. Repentance itself is a gift. And then the book ends with a question that remains open: “Or have you utterly rejected us? Are you exceedingly angry with us?” Jewish tradition repeats verse 21 after the last verse, so as not to end on a note of despair. The unsettled ending is honest. It leaves the reader waiting for the answer, which the prophets Ezekiel and Daniel, and eventually Christ, will give.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 12:2 says Jesus endured the cross for the joy set before him. Revelation 21:4 promises that God will wipe away every tear. Acts 3:19-20 says, “Repent, therefore, and turn back, that your sins may be blotted out, that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord.” 2 Corinthians 7:10 says godly grief produces repentance that leads to salvation. Romans 8:35-39 assures us that nothing can separate us from God’s love.

STEP 6

Application

Pray for a place where there is famine or war, and give practically if you can.

Use the prayer of 5:21: “Restore us to yourself, O LORD, that we may be restored.” Pray it for yourself and for your church.

Rest in the truth that God’s throne endures even when ours do not.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to remember his people and restore them.

Tell him he reigns forever.

Ask him to turn you back to him.

LAMENTATIONS 3:22-23

DAY 461 · WEEK 66

Ezekiel 1:1-3:27

The vision of God's throne, glory above the exile

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 73 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 1:1-3:27. A priest in exile by a canal in Babylon sees a vision of God's throne, eats a scroll, and is made a watchman. Read chapter 1 as a picture rather than a puzzle, and ask what it tells Ezekiel about where God is.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Ezekiel was a priest, taken to Babylon with the first group of exiles in 597 BC, together with King Jehoiachin. In the fifth year of that exile, at the age of thirty, the age when priests began their service, he saw the vision. He had no temple to serve in, but God came to him by the river Chebar in a foreign land. Ezekiel prophesied for about twenty-two years, and his book is full of visions and sign-acts.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God" (1:1).
2. "Out of the midst of it came the likeness of four living creatures" (1:5).
3. "And above the expanse over their heads there was the likeness of a throne, in appearance like sapphire" (1:26).
4. "Such was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD. And when I saw it, I fell on my face" (1:28).
5. "Son of man, stand on your feet, and I will speak with you" (2:1).
6. "And whether they hear or refuse to hear… they will know that a prophet has been among them" (2:5).

7. “Son of man, eat whatever you find here. Eat this scroll… and it was in my mouth as sweet as honey” (3:1, 3).

8. “Son of man, I have made you a watchman for the house of Israel” (3:17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Ezekiel’s first vision is overwhelming, and all details point to one great truth: God is on his throne, and he is not confined to Jerusalem. A great storm cloud comes from the north, with flashing fire. Within it are four living creatures with faces of a man, a lion, an ox, and an eagle. Beside each is a wheel within a wheel, full of eyes, moving in every direction. Above is an expanse like crystal, and above that a throne with a figure like a man, surrounded by a rainbow. It is the glory of the LORD.

The point of the vision is clear to anyone who knows the situation. The exiles thought God had stayed in the temple in Jerusalem. They were in a foreign land, far from his presence. But God’s throne is mobile. It comes to Babylon. He is not limited to one place. The wheels move in any direction. He is sovereign over the whole earth.

Ezekiel falls on his face. God calls him “son of man,” a title used about ninety times in the book, emphasizing his humble humanity. He is raised by the Spirit and sent to a people who are “rebellious,” “hard of heart” and “stubborn.” The prophet is warned that they will not listen. His job is to speak, whether they hear or not.

Then he eats a scroll with words of lament, mourning, and woe, and it tastes sweet as honey. The word of God is sweet even when its message is bitter. In the Bible, to eat the word is to take it fully in before speaking it.

At the end of chapter 3, God makes him a watchman. If he warns, and they do not listen, he has saved himself. If he does not warn, he will be held accountable. The prophet is given seven days of silence, overwhelmed by the task. And then God binds his tongue, so that he speaks only when God gives him a word.

STEP 5

Connection

Revelation 4:6-8 shows four living creatures around the throne, and Revelation 1:12-18 shows the glorified Christ. John 1:14 says the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, “and we have seen his glory.” Matthew 28:19-20 sends the disciples into all the world and promises his presence. Revelation 10:8-11 shows John eating a scroll, as Ezekiel did. Acts 20:26-31 shows Paul acting as a watchman, innocent of the blood of all.

STEP 6

Application

Pause and remember that God is not confined to the places you associate with him. Pray to him wherever you are today.

Eat the word: take a short passage and read it slowly until you taste it.

Think about whom God has made you a watchman for: family, friends, a church. How are you warning and encouraging them?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God for being seated on his throne.
- Thank him that he came to the exiles in Babylon, and to you.
- Ask him to give you ears to hear his word.

DAY 462 · WEEK 66

Sabbath Rest

No new reading today. Rest, remember, and look back over the week.

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Sabbath

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Lamentations 3:22-23 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is your faithfulness."

LAMENTATIONS 3:22-23

REST

Meditation

Few verses have comforted more people in grief than this one. It is surprising because of where it appears: in the center of a book of mourning over a destroyed city.

"The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases." The word for steadfast love, hesed, is the covenant word. It means loyal, faithful, committed love. It is the love of God that holds to the covenant even when his people have broken it. And "never ceases" means that it does not run out, even after disaster. The city has fallen, but God's love has not. The people had been tempted to think that they had exhausted God's patience. This verse says that his love is not a resource that can be used up.

"His mercies never come to an end." Mercies are acts of compassion, plural, as in many small acts. They are tender, like a mother's compassion for a child. They never come to an end. The two phrases say the same thing in two ways, as Hebrew poetry often does: God's love and compassion are inexhaustible.

“They are new every morning.” Each day brings fresh supplies. The mercy we need for today is not leftover mercy from yesterday. It is given new. This is a daily rhythm. We do not need to carry yesterday’s failures or tomorrow’s worries, because mercy is renewed with every sunrise.

“Great is your faithfulness.” The conclusion is a statement of praise, which gives us the title of the famous hymn. Faithfulness is God’s reliability. He keeps his word. Say this verse every morning this week, as you wake. Let it set the tone for the day.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you moved from the end of Jeremiah into the exile itself. You prayed Psalm 119’s closing stanzas as the prayer of one who clings to God’s word and then confesses that he is a lost sheep, and the first two Songs of Ascents, which move from distress to the confidence that the LORD is our keeper. You read all five poems of Lamentations, which give words for grief: the weeping widow, the cry of “Is it nothing to you?”, the center that remembers God’s steadfast love, and the final plea, “Restore us to yourself, O LORD.” Then you began Ezekiel, a priest in exile, who saw the glory of God on a mobile throne in Babylon, ate a scroll that tasted sweet as honey, and was made a watchman. The week taught that grief is a form of prayer, that God’s mercy is new every morning, and that God is present even in exile.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Lamentations gives a voice to grief. What sorrow have you not yet brought to God in prayer, and what might it look like to do so?

The hope in the center of Lamentations comes from remembering who God is. What is one truth about God’s character that has held you in a hard time?

Ezekiel saw God’s glory in a foreign land. Where do you feel far from God, and how does this vision speak to that place?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that his mercies are new every morning.

Name a way he was faithful this week.

Rest in him today.

DAY 463 · WEEK 67

Psalm 73

Asaph was nearly slipping; then he entered the sanctuary

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 28 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 73. A believer almost loses his faith because the wicked seem to prosper. You have read this psalm before. Read it now as the prayer of someone in exile, who has lost the temple but finds God's presence anyway.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 73 is the first psalm of Book 3, a psalm of Asaph. It begins with a confession: "But as for me, my feet had almost stumbled." The psalmist envied the arrogant when he saw their ease. The turning point is when he entered "the sanctuary of God." For the exiles, the question was sharper: what could it mean to enter the sanctuary when the sanctuary was a ruin? The psalm answers that what matters is the presence of God himself.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Truly God is good to Israel, to those who are pure in heart" (v. 1).
2. "But as for me, my feet had almost stumbled, my steps had nearly slipped" (v. 2).
3. "For I was envious of the arrogant when I saw the prosperity of the wicked" (v. 3).
4. "All in vain have I kept my heart clean and washed my hands in innocence" (v. 13).
5. "But when I thought how to understand this, it seemed to me a wearisome task, until I went into the sanctuary of God; then I discerned their end" (vv. 16-17).
6. "I was brutish and ignorant; I was like a beast toward you" (v. 22).
7. "Nevertheless, I am continually with you; you hold my right hand" (v. 23).
8. "Whom have I in heaven but you? And there is nothing on earth that I desire besides you" (v. 25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is autobiographical. The writer was a believer who nearly gave up. He looked around and saw that the arrogant seemed to have no pain. Their bodies were fat, they were free from burdens, they spoke with malice, and they said, “How can God know?” Meanwhile, he had kept his heart clean, and had been plagued all day long. It seemed that holiness was in vain.

This is the question of the whole book of Jeremiah and Lamentations too. Why do the wicked prosper and the faithful suffer? The psalmist says that he tried to figure it out, but it was too hard for him. “Until I went into the sanctuary of God.” In God’s presence, his view changed. He saw the end of the wicked: slippery ground, sudden ruin. And he saw himself. He realized that his envy had made him “brutish and ignorant.” The sanctuary did not give him a theory. It gave him God.

Then comes the great turn. “Nevertheless, I am continually with you; you hold my right hand.” The psalmist realizes that his security was never that he held God, but that God held him. And he declares: “Whom have I in heaven but you? And there is nothing on earth that I desire besides you.” God is the one thing that cannot be lost. “My flesh and my heart may fail, but God is the strength of my heart and my portion forever.”

For the exiles, there was no sanctuary in Jerusalem to enter. But there was the sanctuary of God’s presence, which Ezekiel had just seen by the river Chebar. To “enter the sanctuary” is to come into God’s presence and see things from his perspective. The psalm ends with a summary: “For me it is good to be near God.” It is a mark of mature faith. The best thing is not the removal of trouble but nearness to God.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom” (Luke 12:32). Hebrews 10:19-22 says we may enter the holy places by the blood of Jesus. Philippians 3:7-8 says that Paul counted everything as loss compared to knowing Christ. John 10:28-29 says no one can snatch us out of the Father’s hand. Matthew 5:8 says the pure in heart will see God. 2 Corinthians 4:17-18 contrasts the momentary affliction with eternal glory.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a time you envied someone. Take that envy into the sanctuary of God’s presence in prayer, and ask what he shows you.

Say verse 25 aloud, and ask whether it is true: “Whom have I in heaven but you?”

Thank God that he holds your right hand when you cannot hold his.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess your envy and tell God where your feet nearly slipped.
- Tell him what you saw when you entered his presence.
- Tell him he is the strength of your heart.

PSALM 73:26

DAY 464 · WEEK 67

Psalm 77

I cry aloud to God; then I remember

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 77. You have read this psalm twice before, in Unit 6 and in Unit 11. Read it a third time as a prayer for the exile, and notice the line about God's footprints. This time hold it beside Ezekiel's vision of the chariot throne you have just read.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 77 is a psalm of Asaph. Earlier readings looked at it as a lesson in remembering, and as the lament of the northern kingdom. Now, in the exile, a third reading is possible. Ezekiel has just seen that God's throne moves on wheels and is not tied to Jerusalem. The psalmist says God's way was through the sea, and his footprints were unseen. God is at work even when we cannot trace him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I cry aloud to God, aloud to God, and he will hear me" (v. 1).
2. "In the day of my trouble I seek the Lord; in the night my hand is stretched out without wearying" (v. 2).
3. "Selah" appears after verses 3, 9, and 15, three pauses (vv. 3, 9, 15).
4. "Has God forgotten to be gracious? Has he in anger shut up his compassion?" (v. 9).
5. "I will ponder all your work, and meditate on your mighty deeds" (v. 12).
6. "Your way, O God, is holy. What god is great like our God?" (v. 13).
7. "You are the God who works wonders; you have made known your might among the peoples" (v. 14).

8 “Your way was through the sea, your path through the great waters; yet your footprints were unseen” (v. 19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The three Selahs mark three pauses in the psalm, and they trace a journey. The first, after verse 3, comes after the psalmist says that remembering God makes him groan. The second, after verse 9, follows the string of questions about God’s compassion. The third, after verse 15, comes after the declaration that God has redeemed his people. The psalm moves from groaning, to doubt, to testimony, and each pause gives time to think.

The center of the psalm is verse 13: “Your way, O God, is holy.” The Hebrew can also mean, “Your way is in the sanctuary.” Both are true. God’s way is holy, set apart and pure. And it is found in his presence, not in our understanding. When the psalmist cannot explain what God is doing, he does not deny his goodness. He says the way is holy. He may not see all of it, but he trusts it.

This fits what Ezekiel saw. The living creatures and wheels moved in every direction, full of eyes. God sees all. His movements are not random, even though they are beyond our grasp. When the exiles felt that God had lost control, Ezekiel showed them his throne in the midst of the storm.

The final image of the psalm is quiet. “Your way was through the sea, your path through the great waters; yet your footprints were unseen.” God passed through the sea, but left no trace. And then the last line: “You led your people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron.” The great Redeemer led through two ordinary men.

In the exile, God was still leading, through prophets like Ezekiel, through the hidden hand of providence, through the covenant he had promised not to forget. The footprints were unseen, but he was walking ahead.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 11:33 says, “How unsearchable are his judgments and how inscrutable his ways!” Job 23:8-10 expresses the same hiddenness: “If I go forward, he is not there… but he knows the way that I take.” Isaiah 55:8-9 says that his thoughts are higher than ours. Luke 24:13-35 shows Jesus walking beside the disciples unrecognized on the road to Emmaus. Romans 8:28 says that God works all things together for good. John 13:7: “What I am doing you do not understand now, but afterward you will understand.”

STEP 6

Application

Look back at a hard period and ask where God's footprints might have been unseen at the time.

Trace one "pause" in your own faith: groaning, doubt, or testimony. Where are you now?

Pray "Your way, O God, is holy" as an act of trust in something you do not understand.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Cry aloud to God, and tell him what troubles you.

Remember his wonders and rest on them.

Praise him as the God who works wonders.

PSALM 73:26

DAY 465 · WEEK 67

Ezekiel 4:1-7:27

Signs of Jerusalem's siege; judgment is certain

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 92 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 4:1-7:27. God commands Ezekiel to act out the siege of Jerusalem in strange and difficult ways. Read these chapters as sermons without words, and then listen to the words in chapters 6 and 7, which say that the end has come.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Ezekiel's early prophecies, from 593 to 586 BC, are warnings of the fall of Jerusalem. The exiles in Babylon hoped that the city would be spared. Ezekiel's task was to break that false hope. The sign-acts in chapter 4 and 5 are acted out for the exiles. He is bound, silent, and lying on his side, while they watch. The message is that the siege is coming and God himself is the enemy.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Take a brick and lay it before you and engrave on it a city, even Jerusalem" (4:1).
2. "Then lie on your left side… and I will lay the punishment of the house of Israel upon you" (4:4).
3. "And behold, I will put cords upon you, so that you cannot turn from one side to the other" (4:8).
4. "This is Jerusalem. I have set her in the center of the nations, with countries all around her" (5:5).
5. "Behold, I, even I, am against you" (5:8).
6. "And they shall know that I am the LORD" (6:7, a repeated refrain).
7. "An end! The end has come upon the four corners of the land" (7:2).

8 “Their silver and gold cannot deliver them in the day of the wrath of the LORD” (7:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Ezekiel’s sign-acts are strange. He draws Jerusalem on a clay brick and sets up a model siege around it. He lies on his left side for 390 days to bear the iniquity of Israel, and on his right side for 40 days for Judah. He eats rationed food baked over dung, a symbol of the defilement of exile. He shaves his head and beard with a sword and divides the hair into thirds: burned, struck with the sword, and scattered to the wind. The meaning is clear. Jerusalem will be besieged, starved, and destroyed. Only a few will survive.

The reason is in 5:5-8. Jerusalem was set in the center of the nations, to be a light. Instead, she has been more rebellious than the nations around her. “Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I, even I, am against you.” This is the stark reality: the one who had fought for Jerusalem is now fighting against her.

Chapter 6 addresses the mountains, because the people worshiped on the high places. It is an oracle to the land itself: the idols will be broken and the bones scattered. The refrain begins to appear: “Then you will know that I am the LORD.” This phrase occurs about sixty-five times in Ezekiel. The purpose of everything is the knowledge of God. Judgment and later salvation both serve this end.

Chapter 7 announces the end: “An end! The end has come.” The language is of a flood approaching. No one will go to battle, because God’s wrath is on all the multitude. Money and gold will be worthless. Famine and plague will fill the city. Even the temple will be profaned.

Why does Ezekiel tell us all this? Because the exiles needed to know that God does not lose control. The destruction of the temple was not a defeat for God. It was an act of God, the same God who loves them, and who will, in later chapters, restore.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus predicted the siege of Jerusalem in Luke 19:43-44 and Luke 21:20-24. In Mark 13, he warns that not one stone will be left. Hebrews 12:25-29 says our God is a consuming fire. John 8:28 shows that people will know who he is when the Son of Man is lifted up. Romans 11:22: “Note then the kindness and the severity of God.” Revelation 6:15-17 describes people hiding from the wrath of the Lamb.

STEP 6

Application

Reflect on the gravity of sin. Take time to confess something you might be treating lightly.

Ask what God might be teaching you through the “acts” of your own life, such as your family, work, and church.

Remember that every judgment in Ezekiel serves the purpose that people will know the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to keep you from treating his word lightly.
- Ask him to teach you to fear him.
- Tell him you know judgment is real.

PSALM 73:26

DAY 466 · WEEK 67

Ezekiel 8:1-11:25

The glory departs from the Temple

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 96 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 8:1-11:25. In a vision, Ezekiel is carried to Jerusalem and sees the idolatry inside the temple. Then the glory of the LORD leaves. Read it slowly, and let the departure of the glory register. Then read the promise at the end of chapter 11.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In 592 BC, Ezekiel is sitting in his house with the elders of Judah when the Spirit lifts him up in a vision to the temple in Jerusalem. He sees four abominations, each worse than the last. Then the glory of the LORD, which had dwelt in the temple since Solomon dedicated it, rises from the cherubim and moves out of the city. This is the central event of the first part of Ezekiel.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Son of man, do you see what they are doing, the great abominations that the house of Israel are committing here, to drive me far from my sanctuary?" (8:6).
2. "Every form of creeping things and loathsome beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel, engraved on the wall all around" (8:10).
3. "They say, The LORD does not see us, the LORD has forsaken the land" (8:12).
4. "Behold, there sat women weeping for Tammuz" (8:14).
5. "Mark the foreheads of the men who sigh and groan over all the abominations that are committed in it" (9:4).
6. "Then the glory of the LORD went out from the threshold of the house" (10:18).

7 “And I will give them one heart, and a new spirit I will put within them. I will remove the heart of stone from their flesh and give them a heart of flesh” (11:19).

8 “And the glory of the LORD went up from the midst of the city and stood on the mountain that is on the east side of the city” (11:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Ezekiel is shown four scenes of corruption in the temple. First, an idol of jealousy at the north gate. Second, seventy elders of Israel offering incense to carved creatures on the walls, saying, “The LORD does not see us.” Third, women weeping for Tammuz, a fertility god. Fourth, twenty-five men with their backs to the temple, bowing to the sun in the east. The leaders, the priests, the women, and the men are all involved. The house built for the worship of the one true God is a pantheon of idols.

God’s response is judgment. In chapter 9, a man in linen marks the foreheads of those who grieve over the abominations. They will be spared. Then others follow to strike. It is a picture of discerning judgment. Even in the midst of destruction, God knows those who are his.

Then comes the heartbreaking departure of the glory. In chapter 10, Ezekiel sees the cherubim and wheels again, and the glory of the LORD rises from the threshold. It moves in stages: from the cherubim to the threshold, to the east gate, up from the city and onto the Mount of Olives. It is an act of reluctant departure. The glory leaves slowly. It is as though God lingers, hoping that they will turn.

In the midst of judgment, in chapter 11, the promise breaks through. God will gather them from the nations. He will remove the heart of stone and give a heart of flesh, with one heart and a new spirit. “Then they will be my people, and I will be their God.” Even though the temple is empty, he promises to be “a sanctuary for a little while” in the countries where they have gone.

This is the theological center: the presence of God is not tied to a building. And it points forward to a day when God’s glory will return, not to a stone temple but to a people with new hearts.

STEP 5

Connection

John 1:14 says the Word became flesh and “tabernacled” among us, and we have seen his glory. The glory that left the temple through the east gate stood on the Mount of Olives. Jesus ascended from the Mount of Olives (Acts 1:9-12) and will return there (Zechariah 14:4). 1

Corinthians 3:16 says that believers are God's temple. Revelation 7:3 and 9:4 echo the sealing of foreheads. 2 Corinthians 3:3 says we are a letter written on hearts of flesh.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what "idols in the temple" might be in your life: hidden things you do where you think God does not see.

Remember that God knows those who sigh and groan over sin. Do you grieve over sin in your own life and in the world?

Thank God that he has taken away your heart of stone and given a heart of flesh. Ask him to keep it soft.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess the idols in your heart.
- Ask him to give you a heart that grieves over sin.
- Thank him that he sees all that you do.

PSALM 73:26

DAY 467 · WEEK 67

Ezekiel 12:1-14:23

The rebellious house; false prophets

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 72 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 12:1-14:23. Ezekiel packs his bags to dramatize exile, condemns false prophets who say “Peace,” and exposes idols in the heart. Read especially 14:1-11 and 14:12-23.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The exiles in Babylon were hearing prophets who told them that the fall of Jerusalem was far off, or would not happen. Ezekiel’s sign-acts and words in these chapters answer them. Chapter 12 shows him leaving his house like an exile. Chapter 13 attacks false prophets and prophetesses. Chapter 14 deals with elders who come to inquire of the LORD while hiding idols in their hearts.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Son of man, you dwell in the midst of a rebellious house, who have eyes to see, but see not, who have ears to hear, but hear not” (12:2).
2. “None of my words will be delayed any longer, but the word that I speak will be performed” (12:28).
3. “Woe to the foolish prophets who follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing!” (13:3).
4. “They have misled my people, saying, Peace, when there is no peace, and because, when the people build a wall, these prophets smear it with whitewash” (13:10).
5. “Son of man, these men have taken their idols into their hearts, and set the stumbling block of their iniquity before their faces” (14:3).

6. “Repent and turn away from your idols, and turn away your faces from all your abominations” (14:6).

7. “Even if these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, they would deliver but their own lives by their righteousness” (14:14).

8. “I have not done without cause all that I have done in it, declares the Lord GOD” (14:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Ezekiel’s sign-act in chapter 12 is an exile’s departure. He packs his baggage in daylight, digs through a wall in the evening, covers his face, and goes out in the dark. It dramatizes what will happen to the prince in Jerusalem: Zedekiah will try to flee through a hole in the wall, and be caught. The people ask, “The vision that he sees is for many days from now.” God says, “None of my words will be delayed any longer.” The false comfort of delay is removed.

Chapter 13 attacks those who profit from false hope. The prophets “prophesy from their own hearts.” They are like jackals in the ruins, not repairing the breach in the wall. They are like those who whitewash a flimsy wall. When the storm comes, it falls. A wall looks solid but cannot stand. The false prophetesses use magic bands to ensnare souls. The common thread is that they lead God’s people away from reality.

Chapter 14 is one of the most searching passages in the Bible. Elders come to Ezekiel to inquire of the LORD. God says that they have idols in their hearts. They are outwardly respectable and inwardly corrupted. “Should I be consulted by them at all?” God will answer such a person himself in a way that will frighten him. The call is to repent. God does not want a religious show but a turned heart.

The chapter ends with four judgments: famine, wild beasts, sword, and plague. Even if Noah, Daniel, and Job were there, they would save only themselves. Righteousness is personal. No one can be saved by the faith of another. Yet there will be survivors, and when they arrive in Babylon, the exiles will see how wicked they were and be comforted. The last line gives God’s reason: “You shall know that I have not done without cause all that I have done.” The judgment is just.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus warned against false prophets in sheep’s clothing (Matthew 7:15) and said, “You are like whitewashed tombs” (Matthew 23:27). 1 John 5:21 says, “Little children, keep yourselves from idols.” Colossians 3:5 says that covetousness is idolatry. 2 Timothy 4:3-4 speaks of teachers who say what itching ears want to hear. James 4:8 says, “Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts.” Romans 14:12: “Each of us will give an account of himself to God.”

STEP 6

Application

Ask: What idol have I taken into my heart? Name it honestly before God.

Are there places in your life where you whitewash a weak wall: appearances, excuses, or comfortable lies?

Be wary of comfort that does not come from the word of God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to search your heart and show you your idols.
- Repent and turn from them in your own words.
- Ask him to keep you from false teachers.

PSALM 73:26

DAY 468 · WEEK 67

Ezekiel 15:1-17:24

The vine; the unfaithful wife; the two eagles

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 59 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 15:1-17:24. Three parables: a useless vine, an unfaithful wife, and two eagles with a cedar. Read the second one, in chapter 16, carefully. It is among the most intense chapters in the Bible, and it ends with an everlasting covenant.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Ezekiel uses a series of images to explain Jerusalem's history. Chapter 15 compares Israel to the wood of a vine, which is good for nothing but fire. Chapter 16 tells the story of a foundling girl who was rescued by God, adorned, married, and then unfaithful. Chapter 17 uses two eagles and a cedar shoot to describe Zedekiah's rebellion against Babylon. They explain why Jerusalem is falling and prepare for the promise of restoration.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "How does the wood of the vine surpass any wood, the vine branch that is among the trees of the forest?" (15:2).
2. "On the day you were born your navel cord was not cut... No eye pitied you... but you were cast out on the open field" (16:4-5).
3. "I passed by you and saw you wallowing in your blood, and I said to you in your blood, Live!" (16:6).
4. "I spread the corner of my garment over you and covered your nakedness; I made my vow to you and entered into a covenant with you, declares the Lord GOD, and you became mine" (16:8).
5. "But you trusted in your beauty and played the whore because of your renown" (16:15).

6. “Yet I will remember my covenant with you in the days of your youth, and I will establish for you an everlasting covenant” (16:60).
7. “I will take a sprig from the lofty top of the cedar and will plant it” (17:22).
8. “And all the trees of the field shall know that I am the LORD; I bring low the high tree, and make high the low tree” (17:24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The vine in chapter 15 is a short parable with a clear point. A vine is valuable for its fruit. Its wood is useless for building. A vine that does not bear fruit is only for fire. Jerusalem’s status as God’s vine does not protect her. If she does not bear fruit, she is fuel. The people had grown proud of their position. Ezekiel says that position without fruit is worthless.

The story of chapter 16 is a long and unsettling picture. A baby is abandoned in a field, unwashed, uncut, with no one to pity her. God passes by and says, “Live!” He raises her, and when she is grown, he enters into a covenant with her, clothes her in fine linen and jewelry, and makes her queen. This is the history of Israel from Abraham, a rescued foundling. She is adopted and adorned. Then she trusts in her beauty and uses her gifts to play the prostitute with every passerby: Egypt, Assyria, Babylon. She even sacrifices her children. She is worse than Sodom.

The chapter is hard to read, and it is meant to be. It shows the ugliness of idolatry from God’s point of view: not just rule-breaking but betrayal of love. Everything Israel had was a gift, and she used it against the giver.

Yet the end of the chapter is astonishing. “Yet I will remember my covenant with you in the days of your youth, and I will establish for you an everlasting covenant.” God will make atonement for her. “That you may remember and be confounded, and never open your mouth again because of your shame, when I atone for you for all that you have done.” Grace is the final word.

Chapter 17 ends with another promise: God himself will take a sprig from the top of the cedar and plant it on a high mountain, where it becomes a noble cedar. It is a messianic promise, the Davidic king who will shelter all birds.

STEP 5

Jesus said, “I am the true vine” (John 15:1-6) and warned that branches that bear no fruit are thrown into the fire. Ephesians 5:25-27 says Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her to present her to himself in splendor. Romans 5:8 says that God showed his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us. Mark 4:30-32 describes the kingdom as a mustard seed that becomes a tree where birds find shelter. Hebrews 13:20 speaks of the blood of the eternal covenant.

STEP 6

Application

Remember where you came from: you were like the abandoned baby in the field, and God said “Live!”

Think about the gifts God has given you. Are you using them for him?

Receive the promise of an everlasting covenant, and rest in the atonement made for you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for finding you cast out, and telling you to live.

Thank him for covering you and entering into covenant.

Confess where you have been unfaithful.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Psalm 73:26 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"My flesh and my heart may fail, but God is the strength of my heart and my portion forever."

PSALM 73:26

REST

Meditation

This verse is the climax of Psalm 73, written by a man who almost lost his faith. After all his struggles, he comes to this confession.

"My flesh and my heart may fail." He is honest about his limits. Flesh is the body, with its weakness and mortality. Heart is the inner life, with its feelings and strength. Both can fail. The prosperous wicked looked so strong, and the psalmist felt so weak. But he does not say that his flesh and heart will not fail. They may. He admits it.

"But God is the strength of my heart." The word for strength can mean rock. God is the rock of my heart. When all else gives way, he is solid. Notice the difference: it is not that I am strong, but that God is my strength. The psalmist did not discover an inner reserve of courage. He discovered that God holds him up.

“And my portion forever.” A portion was a share of inheritance. In the land of Israel, each family received a portion. The Levites received none, because the LORD was their portion. The psalmist makes this his own. He says that God is his inheritance. Everything else may be lost, but God is his share. And it is forever, beyond death.

This is a verse for the weak and the weary. It does not ask you to be strong. It invites you to rest your weakness on the one who is. Say this verse when your body is tired, when your heart is troubled, or when you fear the future. God is the strength of your heart, and he is your portion forever.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you prayed two psalms of crisis: Psalm 73, where Asaph nearly stumbled when he saw the prosperity of the wicked until he entered God’s presence and declared, “Whom have I in heaven but you?”, and Psalm 77, where God’s footprints were unseen but his way was holy. You walked through the first part of Ezekiel. You saw the prophet act out the siege of Jerusalem, and watched the idolatry in the temple in his vision. You watched the glory of the LORD depart from the temple in reluctant stages, and heard the promise of a heart of flesh and a new spirit. You read God’s warnings against false prophets who whitewash a weak wall, and against idols in the heart. And you read the parables of the useless vine, the faithless wife, and the cedar sprig, which ended with an everlasting covenant. The week taught that God takes sin seriously, that his glory is not confined to a building, and that he promises a new heart.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Asaph’s view changed when he entered God’s presence. What would it look like to bring a question or envy into God’s presence this week, and wait?

Ezekiel saw the glory of God leave the temple, and then promised a heart of flesh. What hardness in your heart do you most need God to soften?

God says “Live!” to the abandoned child in chapter 16. How does this image of grace shape how you understand your own story?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what is failing in you, and tell him he is the strength of your heart.

Thank him for the new heart he has promised.

Rest in him.

DAY 470 · WEEK 68

Psalm 122

I was glad when they said, "Let us go to the house of the LORD"

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 8 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 122. It is a Song of Ascents of David, a joyful song for a pilgrim arriving in Jerusalem. Read it as a hope for the exiles, who longed to go up again.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 122 is the third of the Songs of Ascents you have started reading. Pilgrims sang these as they climbed to Jerusalem for the festivals. For exiles in Babylon, it was a memory and a promise: someday they would stand in those gates again. The psalm is about three things: the joy of going to the house of the LORD, the city as a place of unity and justice, and the prayer for its peace.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I was glad when they said to me, Let us go to the house of the LORD!" (v. 1).
2. "Our feet have been standing within your gates, O Jerusalem!" (v. 2).
3. "Jerusalem, built as a city that is bound firmly together" (v. 3).
4. "To which the tribes go up, the tribes of the LORD, as was decreed for Israel, to give thanks to the name of the LORD" (v. 4).
5. "There thrones for judgment were set, the thrones of the house of David" (v. 5).
6. "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem! May they be secure who love you!" (v. 6).
7. "Peace be within your walls and security within your towers!" (v. 7).
8. "For the sake of the house of the LORD our God, I will seek your good" (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with gladness. The psalmist was glad when others said, “Let us go.” It is a statement about the joy of communal worship. We do not usually travel alone to God’s house. Someone invites us, and we go together. And he remembers the first words: “Let us go.” There is something about being invited into worship that stirs the heart.

The second verse is the arrival. “Our feet have been standing within your gates.” The journey is over, and they are in the city. For the exiles, this verse must have been bittersweet. They had no gates to stand in. But they could dream of it, and the psalm gave them words.

Jerusalem is described as a city “bound firmly together,” a place of unity. The tribes go up together to give thanks, and justice is administered there. The city is the center of the covenant community. It is a picture of what God’s people are meant to be: united, worshiping, and just.

The psalm ends with a prayer for peace. “Pray for the peace of Jerusalem!” There is a word play on the city’s name, which means “foundation of peace.” The peace prayed for is shalom, wholeness and well-being, within the walls and in the towers. And the motive is love: “For the sake of my brothers and companions, I will say, Peace be within you!” And the highest reason: “For the sake of the house of the LORD our God, I will seek your good.”

For Christians, Jerusalem is not just a geographic place. The church is described as the new Jerusalem, the “Jerusalem above.” This psalm teaches us to love the gathered people of God, to take joy in worship, and to pray for the church’s peace and unity.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 12:22-24 says that believers have come to Mount Zion, “the heavenly Jerusalem.” Galatians 4:26 speaks of “the Jerusalem above” as our mother. Revelation 21:2 describes the new Jerusalem coming down from heaven like a bride. Hebrews 10:24-25 calls us not to neglect meeting together. Ephesians 4:3 urges us to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. John 14:27: “Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you.”

STEP 6

Application

Be glad in going to church this week. Pray ahead of time for those you will meet.

Pray for the peace and unity of your own church by name, as the psalm prays for Jerusalem.

Invite someone to worship with you, as in verse 1: “Let us go to the house of the LORD.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God you are glad to go to his house.
- Ask him to bind his church together in peace.
- Pray for your own church by name.

EZEKIEL 18:32

DAY 471 · WEEK 68

Psalm 123; Psalm 126

Eyes on the LORD; restored fortunes

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 123 and Psalm 126. Psalm 123 lifts the eyes to God in humble need. Psalm 126 celebrates the return from captivity and then prays for more. Read them together as songs of people who depend completely on God.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These are two more Songs of Ascents. Psalm 123 is a short, almost whispered prayer of a people who have been treated with contempt. Psalm 126 is a classic song of return: it looks back on the joy of release from exile and forward to the harvest still to come. In the context of this unit, they offer a glimpse of what lies on the far side of the exile.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “To you I lift up my eyes, O you who are enthroned in the heavens!” (123:1).
2. “Behold, as the eyes of servants look to the hand of their master… so our eyes look to the LORD our God, till he has mercy upon us” (123:2).
3. “Have mercy upon us, O LORD, have mercy upon us, for we have had more than enough of contempt” (123:3).
4. “When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion, we were like those who dream” (126:1).
5. “Then our mouth was filled with laughter, and our tongue with shouts of joy” (126:2).
6. “The LORD has done great things for us; we are glad” (126:3).
7. “Restore our fortunes, O LORD, like streams in the Negeb!” (126:4).
8. “Those who sow in tears shall reap with shouts of joy! He who goes out weeping, bearing the seed for sowing, shall come home with shouts of joy, bringing his sheaves with him" (126:5-6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Psalm 123 is a prayer of upward gaze. The psalmist lifts his eyes to the one "enthroned in the heavens." He compares his people to servants who watch their master's hand, waiting for a signal. The servant does not make demands. He watches, ready, depending on the master for provision. So Israel's eyes are on the LORD until he shows mercy. The reason is contempt: "We have had more than enough of contempt... the scorn of those who are at ease." It is the cry of a people who have been mocked and who have only one place to look.

There is humility here that is rare. The servant does not need to understand. He only needs to see the hand. In a world where we are encouraged to look to ourselves, this psalm teaches us to look to God.

Psalm 126 begins with a memory of a joy so great that it seemed like a dream. "When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion, we were like those who dream." The return from Babylon was too good to be true. The nations noticed: "The LORD has done great things for them." And they said so too. Laughter and shouting filled the people.

But then, in verse 4, the psalm becomes a prayer: "Restore our fortunes, O LORD, like streams in the Negeb." The Negeb is a dry desert region where streams flow only after the rains, suddenly and abundantly. The people have returned, but the restoration is incomplete. They ask for more. And the psalm ends with a great promise: "Those who sow in tears shall reap with shouts of joy!" The sower weeps because seed is precious in a famine. Yet he goes out and sows. And he will come home carrying sheaves. The tears are not wasted. Sowing in tears is an act of faith that the harvest will come.

For exiles reading these psalms from afar, they are both a hope and a pattern: depend on God, and remember that sowing in sorrow will end in joy.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, "Blessed are you who weep now, for you shall laugh" (Luke 6:21), and "Your sorrow will turn into joy" (John 16:20). 2 Corinthians 9:6 says whoever sows bountifully will reap bountifully. Galatians 6:9 says, "Let us not grow weary of doing good, for in due season we will reap." Hebrews 12:2 says that Jesus, for the joy set before him, endured the cross. Revelation 7:17 promises that God will wipe away every tear.

STEP 6

Application

Choose to look to God today as the servant looks to the master's hand. Wait for his direction.

Think of something you have been "sowing in tears," such as a hard prayer, a difficult relationship, or a sacrificial act. Continue.

Remember a joy that felt like a dream, and thank God for it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Lift your eyes to God as a servant looks to his master.
- Ask him to show mercy to you.
- Thank him for restoring fortunes.

DAY 472 · WEEK 68

Ezekiel 18:1-20:49

Individual responsibility; elegy for Israel's princes [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 104 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 18:1-20:49. This is a survey day. Chapter 18 is the great chapter on individual responsibility and God's desire for repentance. Chapter 19 is a lament for Israel's princes. Chapter 20 is another review of Israel's history. Focus on chapter 18.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The exiles had a proverb: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." They were blaming their ancestors for the exile and saying that nothing they did could change it. God answers through Ezekiel with one of the most important chapters on personal responsibility and repentance. Chapters 19 and 20 then give two more views of Israel's story: laments for her kings and another review of her history of rebellion.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "What do you mean by repeating this proverb... The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?" (18:2).
2. "Behold, all souls are mine; the soul of the father as well as the soul of the son is mine: the soul who sins shall die" (18:4).
3. "If a man is righteous and does what is just and right... he shall surely live, declares the Lord GOD" (18:5, 9).
4. "Have I any pleasure in the death of the wicked, declares the Lord GOD, and not rather that he should turn from his way and live?" (18:23).
5. "Yet you say, The way of the Lord is not just. Hear now, O house of Israel: Is my way not just?" (18:25).

6. “Repent and turn from all your transgressions, lest iniquity be your ruin” (18:30).
7. “Make yourselves a new heart and a new spirit! Why will you die, O house of Israel?” (18:31).
8. “For I have no pleasure in the death of anyone, declares the Lord GOD; so turn, and live” (18:32).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The proverb about sour grapes expresses fatalism. The exiles felt trapped by their ancestors’ sins. God rejects the proverb and states a principle: each person is accountable for their own sin. “The soul who sins shall die.” The chapter gives three cases: a righteous father who lives, his violent son who dies, and his righteous grandson who lives. The grandson does not die for the father’s sins. Each stands on his own.

The point is not that God abandoned the principle of corporate solidarity, which appears elsewhere. It is that no one can blame the past to avoid responsibility. And it is also a word of hope: a wicked person who turns from sin will live. “None of the transgressions that he has committed shall be remembered against him.” Repentance is real. The way is open.

The question God asks in verse 23 is among the most beautiful in the Bible: “Have I any pleasure in the death of the wicked… and not rather that he should turn from his way and live?” God does not enjoy judgment. His desire is that people turn and live. The exiles complain that “the way of the Lord is not just,” but God replies that his ways are just. It is their ways that are unjust.

The chapter ends with an invitation: “Make yourselves a new heart and a new spirit!” It sounds like a command to do the impossible, since later chapters will promise that God himself gives the new heart (36:26). Both are true. We are commanded to turn, and God enables the turning. “For I have no pleasure in the death of anyone; so turn, and live.” The gospel is already audible.

Chapter 19 is a dirge about Judah’s last kings, as lion cubs trapped and a vine uprooted. Chapter 20 reviews God’s mercy and Israel’s rebellion from Egypt, closing with a promise to gather them and be sanctified in them.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Peter 3:9 says that the Lord is “not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance.” 1 Timothy 2:4 says he desires all people to be saved. Romans 14:12 says that each of us will give an account of himself to God. John 9:2-3 shows Jesus rejecting the idea that suffering always traces to a particular person's sin. Acts 3:19 calls us to repent. Romans 6:23: "The wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life."

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether you are using someone else's sin or your past as an excuse. Take responsibility, and then turn to God.

Write down Ezekiel 18:32 and carry it with you as a reminder of God's heart.

Offer the invitation of this chapter to someone who feels trapped: "Turn, and live."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you blame others or your past.
- Turn from a specific transgression and tell him so.
- Thank him that he has no pleasure in anyone's death.

DAY 473 · WEEK 68

Ezekiel 21:1-24:27

The sword of judgment; Ezekiel's wife dies, sign act

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 117 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 21:1-24:27. A sword is drawn against Jerusalem, a rusty pot boils on a fire, and Ezekiel's wife dies at God's command. Read chapter 24 slowly. It is one of the saddest passages in the prophets.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is now 588 BC, and the siege of Jerusalem is beginning. On the very day, Ezekiel, far away in Babylon, is told to write down the date. The rest of this section describes the sword of the LORD and the sins of the city. Chapter 24 ends the first main part of the book. God tells Ezekiel that his wife will die, and he is not to mourn publicly. His grief becomes a sign to the exiles of what will happen to them when the temple falls.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, I am against you, and will draw my sword from its sheath" (21:3).
2. "A sword, a sword is sharpened and also polished" (21:9).
3. "I will make you a ruin, ruin, ruin… until he comes, the one to whom the judgment belongs, and I will give it to him" (21:27).
4. "And I sought for a man among them who should build up the wall and stand in the breach before me for the land, that I should not destroy it, but I found none" (22:30).
5. "Son of man, there were two women, the daughters of one mother" (23:2).
6. "Son of man, write down the name of this day, this very day. The king of Babylon has laid siege to Jerusalem this very day" (24:2).

7. “Behold, I am about to take the delight of your eyes away from you at a stroke; yet you shall not mourn or weep” (24:16).

8. “So I spoke to the people in the morning, and at evening my wife died” (24:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 21 shows the sword of the LORD, polished for slaughter. The king of Babylon stands at a fork in the road and uses divination to decide whether to attack Jerusalem or Rabbah. God directs the lot toward Jerusalem. It is a reminder that even pagan decisions serve God’s purpose. And the last line hints at hope: “until he comes, the one to whom the judgment belongs.” This is a messianic hint. The rightful king will come.

Chapter 22 lists the sins of the city: bloodshed, idolatry, contempt for parents, extortion from the sojourner, oppression of the fatherless and widow, profaning the Sabbath, adultery, bribery. The leaders are blamed: priests, princes, prophets, and people. Then comes the saddest verse: “I sought for a man among them who should build up the wall and stand in the breach before me for the land, that I should not destroy it, but I found none.” God was looking for an intercessor, someone like Moses. There was no one. The absence of a mediator is a deep need.

Chapter 23 tells the story of two sisters, Oholah (Samaria) and Oholibah (Jerusalem), who gave themselves to foreign lovers. It is a harsh allegory of political and religious unfaithfulness.

Chapter 24 begins with a boiling pot. The rusty pot, full of choice pieces of meat, is set on a fire until it is empty and burned clean. It shows Jerusalem under siege, with her bloodguilt cooked in her. Then comes the personal blow. God tells Ezekiel that his wife, “the delight of your eyes,” will die. He is told not to mourn publicly. The next day, he does as commanded. When the people ask why, he says that when the temple, “the delight of your eyes,” is taken, they too will be struck silent. His grief was a sign.

We should not skip past the cost to Ezekiel. He is a person with real feelings, who loves his wife. Prophetic ministry is not detached. It can mean personal loss. And in his silence, we hear the weight of the judgment.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Timothy 2:5 says, “There is one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.” Hebrews 7:25 says he always lives to make intercession. Isaiah 59:16 says God saw that there was no one to intercede, and his own arm brought salvation. Jesus stood in the breach on the cross. Romans 12:15 says to weep with those who weep. 1 Thessalonians 4:13 says we do not grieve as those who have no hope.

STEP 6

Application

Be someone who stands in the breach for others. Pray earnestly for a specific person, family, or situation.

Think about the cost to those who serve God faithfully, and pray for pastors and missionaries who have suffered loss.

Thank Jesus, the one mediator, who stood in the breach for you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for standing in the breach for you.
- Pray for someone you can stand in the breach for.
- Ask him to keep you from indifference.

EZEKIEL 18:32

DAY 474 · WEEK 68

Ezekiel 25:1-28:26

Oracles against the nations [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 88 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 25:1-28:26. This is a survey day. These are oracles against Ammon, Moab, Edom, Philistia, and above all Tyre and its king. Look for the reasons given, and for one of the clearest echoes of the story of the fall of Satan.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the fall of Jerusalem is announced, Ezekiel turns to the nations around Judah. They had gloated over Jerusalem's fall. The long oracle against Tyre in chapters 26 to 28 is the central part. Tyre was a wealthy commercial city on the Phoenician coast and the center of Mediterranean trade. Its king is addressed with language that goes beyond any human ruler.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Because you said, Aha! over my sanctuary when it was profaned... I will give you to the people of the East" (25:3-4).
2. "Behold, I am against you, O Tyre, and will bring up many nations against you, as the sea brings up its waves" (26:3).
3. "You were the signet of perfection, full of wisdom and perfect in beauty" (28:12).
4. "You were in Eden, the garden of God" (28:13).
5. "You were an anointed guardian cherub. I placed you; you were on the holy mountain of God" (28:14).
6. "You were blameless in your ways from the day you were created, till unrighteousness was found in you" (28:15).

7. “Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor” (28:17).

8. “Thus says the Lord GOD: When I gather the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered… they shall dwell securely in it” (28:25-26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first oracles are brief. Ammon, Moab, Edom, and Philistia are each condemned because they mocked or took vengeance on Judah. “Because you said Aha!” God takes personally what is done to his people. The vindication of his name is the repeated purpose: “Then they will know that I am the LORD.”

Tyre’s sin is arrogance. It rejoiced in Jerusalem’s downfall because it expected to profit from the loss of a trade rival. God promises the city’s destruction, with many nations coming against it like waves. Nebuchadnezzar besieged the mainland city for thirteen years, and Alexander the Great later destroyed the island fortress. Chapter 27 is a magnificent lament over Tyre as a great merchant ship laden with goods from all the world, which sinks.

Chapter 28 addresses the prince of Tyre first as a man who said, “I am a god, I sit in the seat of the gods.” He is mocked: “You are indeed wiser than Daniel; no secret is hidden from you.” Then, in verse 12, there is a lament for the “king of Tyre,” and the language soars beyond any human king. He was in Eden. He was an anointed guardian cherub on the holy mountain of God. He was blameless until iniquity was found in him. He was cast out in pride. Many readers, from early church writers on, see in this an echo of the fall of Satan, the power behind pride. Whether or not the language refers directly to him, the pattern is the same as in Isaiah 14: pride goes before a fall.

The chapter ends with a promise to Israel. God will gather his people, and they will dwell in security, with no more pricking briers or painful thorns among their neighbors. The enemies who mocked will be removed, and God’s holiness will be shown.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 10:18: Jesus said, “I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven.” 1 Timothy 3:6 warns that a recent convert may fall into the condemnation of the devil through conceit. Revelation 18 laments the fall of Babylon in terms like Ezekiel 27. Proverbs 16:18: “Pride goes before destruction.” James 4:6: “God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble.” Philippians 2:5-8 shows Christ, who humbled himself, the opposite of the king of Tyre.

STEP 6

Application

Examine where pride or self-sufficiency has crept in. Humble yourself before God.

Do not rejoice when others fall. Ask God to guard your heart from the spirit of “Aha!”

Look to Jesus, who did not count equality with God something to be grasped, but humbled himself.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to guard you from pride in gifts and wealth.
- Ask him to keep you from rejoicing in another’s downfall.
- Thank him for giving grace to the humble.

EZEKIEL 18:32

DAY 475 · WEEK 68

Ezekiel 29:1-32:32

Oracles against Egypt [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 100 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 29:1-32:32. This is a survey day. These chapters are oracles against Egypt and its Pharaoh, including the famous images of the crocodile in the Nile and the great tree cut down. Read for the theme: pride before God is brought low.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Ezekiel's seven oracles against Egypt fill these chapters. Judah had often looked to Egypt for help against Babylon, and Egypt had often failed her. The oracles say that God will humble Egypt, and that she will never again be a source of false security for Israel. They are dated to the siege of Jerusalem and afterward, between 587 and 571 BC.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, I am against you, Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great dragon that lies in the midst of his streams, that says, My Nile is my own; I made it for myself" (29:3).
2. "You have been a staff of reed to the house of Israel" (29:6).
3. "And it shall be the most lowly of the kingdoms, and never again exalt itself above the nations" (29:15).
4. "And they will know that I am the LORD" (29:21, one of many repetitions).
5. "Wail, Alas for the day!" (30:2).
6. "Whom are you like in your greatness? Behold, Assyria was a cedar in Lebanon" (31:2-3).
7. "Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because it towered high… I will give it into the hand of a mighty one among the nations" (31:10-11).
8. "They lie among the uncircumcised, with those who are slain by the sword" (32:32).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Egypt is addressed as a great crocodile in the Nile who claims, “My Nile is my own; I made it for myself.” It is a claim of self-creation, the essence of pride. God will pull him out with hooks in his jaws and leave him in the desert. Egypt had been a “staff of reed” to Israel. When Judah leaned on it, it splintered and pierced their hand. The lesson is that trusting in political alliances rather than in God is a broken support.

The oracles describe Egypt’s fall in various images: a land laid waste, a sword coming on Cush and Put, a Pharaoh with a broken arm. God will scatter the Egyptians and bring them back after forty years, but as a lowly kingdom that never again rules. The reason is not only for judgment, but “then they will know that I am the LORD.”

Chapter 31 compares Pharaoh to the great cedar of Lebanon, a tree that towered above all others in the garden of God. All the birds nested in its boughs. But it was proud, and God cut it down. The lesson is for Egypt by comparing it to Assyria, which had been another great tree and was cut down. If Assyria fell, so will Egypt.

Chapter 32 contains two laments over Pharaoh and a picture of his descent to Sheol, among the uncircumcised and the slain, in the company of Assyria, Elam, and others. The nations are brought down to the pit, one after another. It is a solemn picture of the equality of death. All who exalt themselves will lie among the dead.

The main message in all of these oracles is simple: God rules over the nations. No power, however great, is beyond his hand. It is a comfort for those who feel crushed by empires, and a warning for those who think they are secure.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 12:21-23 shows Herod struck down for accepting worship as a god. Isaiah 31:1 warns against going down to Egypt for help. Luke 1:52: “He has brought down the mighty from their thrones and exalted those of humble estate.” Psalm 20:7: “Some trust in chariots and some in horses, but we trust in the name of the LORD our God.” Matthew 2:13-15 shows God calling his Son out of Egypt.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a “staff of reed” you have leaned on: a person, a plan, or a resource that has broken. Place your weight on God instead.

Pray for nations experiencing the pride of power and for those who suffer under it.

Remember that God rules history, and that no power is permanent.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God as ruler over every nation.
- Ask him to forgive where you lean on reed staffs.
- Tell him whom you trust, and give it to him.

DAY 476 · WEEK 68

Sabbath Rest

No new reading today. Rest, remember, and look back over the week.

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Sabbath

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Ezekiel 18:32 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For I have no pleasure in the death of anyone, declares the Lord GOD; so turn, and live."

EZEKIEL 18:32

REST

Meditation

This verse is both a word of judgment and a word of love. It stands at the end of the chapter about individual responsibility, and it is God's own explanation of why he calls people to repentance.

"I have no pleasure in the death of anyone." This is a statement about God's heart. Many people think of God as someone who is eager to punish. This verse says the opposite. When someone dies in sin, God takes no delight in it. Judgment is real, and God carries it out. But it is his "strange work," as Isaiah calls it. It is not his joy.

"Declares the Lord GOD." The title used here, Adonai Yahweh, is the strongest possible way to say that the Master and covenant God is speaking. The statement is not a casual opinion. It is a sworn declaration.

“So turn, and live.” This is the invitation. The command to turn is a command to repent, to change direction. The result is life. Notice the simplicity: turn, and live. The exiles had been saying that their situation was hopeless. God says the way is open. Turn.

The Christian reads this verse in light of the cross. God’s desire for people to live is shown in the fact that he sent his Son. “God so loved the world that he gave his only Son.” In Christ, the call to turn is also a call to come to the one who has taken the death we deserved.

Say this verse for yourself when you are tempted to think that God is only waiting to condemn you. Say it for others when you pray for them. God does not want anyone to die. Turn, and live.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you prayed three Songs of Ascents: Psalm 122, the joy of going up to the house of the LORD, and Psalms 123 and 126, the servant’s eyes on his master and the promise that those who sow in tears will reap with shouts of joy. You read Ezekiel 18, in which God rejects the proverb about sour grapes, declares that each soul is accountable, and says that he has no pleasure in the death of anyone. You read about the sword drawn against Jerusalem, God’s search for someone to stand in the breach, and the death of Ezekiel’s wife as a sign of the grief to come. You surveyed the oracles against the nations: Ammon, Moab, Edom, Philistia, Tyre and its proud king, and Egypt with its crocodile and fallen cedar. The week taught that each person is responsible before God, that he delights in repentance, and that pride before him is brought low.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Ezekiel 18 insists that no one can blame the past for their present. Is there an area where you have been tempted to say, “The fathers have eaten sour grapes”?

God looked for someone to stand in the breach and found none. Who is someone you could stand in the breach for through prayer this week?

Psalm 126 says that those who sow in tears will reap with shouts of joy. What is something you are sowing in tears right now, and what would it look like to trust the harvest?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he has no pleasure in anyone's death.

Thank him for the cross where he stood in the breach for you.

Turn to him and live.

DAY 477 · WEEK 69

Psalm 128; Psalm 129

Blessed is everyone who fears the LORD

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 128 and Psalm 129. These are Songs of Ascents. Psalm 128 describes the blessing of a family that fears the LORD. Psalm 129 remembers a long history of affliction and survival. Read them as the two sides of pilgrim life: peace at home, and enemies on the road.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These two psalms are placed side by side in the Songs of Ascents. Psalm 128 is a wisdom psalm that was likely sung at weddings and family festivals. Psalm 129 recalls how Israel had been attacked "from my youth" yet never overcome. Together they speak to people who had been through exile and survived: God blesses the faithful, and he preserves his people through persecution.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Blessed is everyone who fears the LORD, who walks in his ways!" (128:1).
2. "You shall eat the fruit of the labor of your hands; you shall be blessed, and it shall be well with you" (128:2).
3. "Your wife will be like a fruitful vine within your house; your children will be like olive shoots around your table" (128:3).
4. "Behold, thus shall the man be blessed who fears the LORD" (128:4).
5. "The LORD bless you from Zion! May you see the prosperity of Jerusalem all the days of your life!" (128:5).
6. "Greatly have they afflicted me from my youth" (129:1).

7. “Yet they have not prevailed against me” (129:2).

8. “The LORD is righteous; he has cut the cords of the wicked” (129:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Psalm 128 is a short portrait of a blessed life. The blessing is not described in terms of wealth or power, but of ordinary things: work that is fruitful, a family that is flourishing, and a table with children around it. The source is “the fear of the LORD,” a reverent trust that shapes daily life. The man who walks in God’s ways finds that his labor is blessed, and his home is a place of joy.

The picture of the fruitful vine and olive shoots is of life and growth. A vine in a home was a sign of abundance. Olive shoots, around a table, were a sign of vitality. The psalm does not promise that every godly person will have a large family or comfortable job. It describes the shape of God’s blessing in the ordinary life of his people, and it places that blessing within the larger blessing of Zion: “May you see the prosperity of Jerusalem all the days of your life! May you see your children’s children!” Personal and communal blessing go together.

Psalm 129 is a contrast. “Greatly have they afflicted me from my youth.” Israel’s history from Egypt on has been one of oppression. “Yet they have not prevailed against me.” It is a statement of survival. Plowmen plowed on my back, and made long their furrows. But the LORD is righteous. He cut the cords of the wicked. And the psalm closes with a curse on those who hate Zion: let them be like grass on the housetops, which withers before it grows, and which no reaper can use. Even in affliction, the people were not destroyed.

Together, these psalms speak to the situation of the exiles. They had survived. They were returning home to rebuild homes and families. The God who had kept them through persecution would bless them in ordinary life.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 6:33 says to seek first the kingdom of God. Ephesians 5:22-33 and 6:1-4 teach about the family under God. Psalm 1:2-3 describes the blessed person like a tree by the water. Romans 8:35-37 says that in all things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us. 2 Corinthians 4:8-9: “We are afflicted in every way, but not crushed.” Matthew 16:18: the gates of hell shall not prevail against the church.

STEP 6

Application

Give thanks for ordinary blessings: your work, your table, your family or friends. Name them to God.

Pray for the families in your church to flourish in the fear of the LORD.

Remember the afflictions you have survived. Say, “Yet they have not prevailed against me,” as a testimony.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to bless your work and your home.
- Thank him that he is righteous and cuts the cords of the wicked.
- Bless the families of your church.

DAY 478 · WEEK 69

Psalm 131; Psalm 133; Psalm 134

Childlike trust; unity; blessing

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 131, Psalm 133, and Psalm 134. These are three of the shortest psalms in the Psalter, and they are full. Read each one slowly. They teach childlike trust, brotherly unity, and a blessing at night.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Three more Songs of Ascents. Psalm 131 is a psalm of David about quieting the soul. Psalm 133 celebrates the unity of God's people. Psalm 134 is the last of the group of pilgrim songs before the final two, a call to the servants of the LORD who stand by night in the house of the LORD. Together they are a tender picture of what the pilgrim learned on the journey to Zion: humility, fellowship, and worship.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "O LORD, my heart is not lifted up; my eyes are not raised too high; I do not occupy myself with things too great and too marvelous for me" (131:1).
2. "But I have calmed and quieted my soul, like a weaned child with its mother; like a weaned child is my soul within me" (131:2).
3. "O Israel, hope in the LORD from this time forth and forevermore" (131:3).
4. "Behold, how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity!" (133:1).
5. "It is like the precious oil on the head, running down on the beard, on the beard of Aaron" (133:2).
6. "It is like the dew of Hermon, which falls on the mountains of Zion!" (133:3).
7. "For there the LORD has commanded the blessing, life forevermore" (133:3).

8 “Come, bless the LORD, all you servants of the LORD, who stand by night in the house of the LORD!” (134:1).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Psalm 131 is a prayer of humility and rest. David says, “My heart is not lifted up.” He is not proud and does not chase after impossible things. Then he describes how he has calmed his soul like a weaned child with its mother. A weaned child no longer fusses for milk but rests content in the mother’s arms, not because of what she provides, but because of who she is. This is a mature form of trust. It does not demand answers or benefits. It rests in the presence of the one who loves. The psalm ends with a call to Israel: hope in the LORD. Humility and hope go together.

Psalm 133 is a short celebration of unity. “Behold, how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity!” The image is of two kinds of abundance. The first is the anointing oil poured on Aaron’s head, running down to his beard and the collar of his robes, a picture of a lavish, fragrant blessing that covers the whole person. The second is the dew of Hermon falling on Zion. It is refreshing and life-giving. The meaning is that unity among the people of God is not something small but a rich gift from God. And “there the LORD has commanded the blessing, life forevermore.” God commands blessing where his people dwell together.

Psalm 134 is the last of the set before the closing pair. It is a call to worship, spoken to the temple servants who keep watch by night. “Come, bless the LORD.” Their work is praise. They lift up their hands in the sanctuary and bless the LORD. Then the response comes: “May the LORD bless you from Zion, he who made heaven and earth!” The blessing goes both ways.

The whole sequence of pilgrim songs ends with a night watch and a blessing. After a long journey, the people arrive, and the end of the journey is worship.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “Unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven” (Matthew 18:3). Matthew 11:28-29 invites those who are weary to take his yoke, for he is gentle and lowly in heart. John 17:20-23 shows Jesus praying that his people may be one. Ephesians 4:1-6 urges the unity of the Spirit. Colossians 3:14 says love binds everything together in perfect harmony. Revelation 7:15 shows the multitudes serving God day and night in his temple.

STEP 6

Application

Quiet your soul today. Sit for five minutes, like a weaned child with its mother, asking for nothing.

Work for unity in your church or family. Is there someone you need to forgive or reconcile with?

Pray Psalm 134 at the end of the day, as a night watch, blessing the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God you want to quiet your soul like a weaned child.
- Thank him for the gift of unity among his people.
- Bless the LORD in your own words.

DAY 479 · WEEK 69

Ezekiel 33:1-35:15

The watchman renewed; the shepherds; the mountains of Israel

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 73 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 33:1-35:15. The news that Jerusalem has fallen reaches Babylon, and Ezekiel's tone changes. God renews the watchman's call and then turns on the false shepherds of Israel and promises to be the shepherd himself. Read chapter 34 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In 585 BC, a fugitive from Jerusalem arrived in Babylon with the news that the city had fallen. Ezekiel's long silence ended, and he began to speak with a new message: hope. The first part of his book was about judgment. The next is about restoration. Chapter 33 reconfirms his role as a watchman and renews God's appeal to repent. Chapter 34 is one of the greatest chapters on shepherds in the Bible.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "So you, son of man, I have made a watchman for the house of Israel" (33:7).
2. "As I live, declares the Lord GOD, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live" (33:11).
3. "Behold, you are to them like one who sings lustful songs with a beautiful voice and plays well on an instrument, for they hear what you say, but they will not do it" (33:32).
4. "Woe to the shepherds of Israel who have been feeding themselves! Should not shepherds feed the sheep?" (34:2).
5. "The weak you have not strengthened, the sick you have not healed, the injured you have not bound up" (34:4).
6. "Behold, I, I myself will search for my sheep and will seek them out" (34:11).

7. “I will make them lie down, declares the Lord GOD. I will seek the lost, and I will bring back the strayed” (34:15-16).

8. “And I will set up over them one shepherd, my servant David, and he shall feed them” (34:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The news of Jerusalem’s fall releases Ezekiel from his silence. God renews his commission as watchman. The principle is repeated: if the watchman sees danger and warns, he has done his duty. If not, the blood is on his hands. And God restates the call to repentance of chapter 18: “Turn back, turn back from your evil ways, for why will you die, O house of Israel?” The people still say, “Our transgressions are upon us… how then can we live?” God’s answer is always the same: turn and live.

Verse 32 is a sober observation. The people come to hear Ezekiel as if he were an entertainer. They enjoy the sermon like a beautiful song, but do not act on it. Hearing without doing is the persistent danger.

Chapter 34 is the heart of this section. God condemns the shepherds, meaning the leaders, who have fed themselves and not the flock. They have not strengthened the weak or healed the sick or sought the lost. They have ruled with force and harshness. As a result, the sheep were scattered. God declares that he is against the shepherds. Then comes the most comforting passage: “I, I myself will search for my sheep and will seek them out.” Again and again God says what he will do: search, rescue, gather, bring, feed, make them lie down, seek the lost, bind up the injured, strengthen the weak. He will be the shepherd himself.

And then the promise: “I will set up over them one shepherd, my servant David.” God will shepherd through a king of David’s line, and make a covenant of peace, so that the wild beasts cease from the land, showers of blessing come, and the sheep live securely.

The people of God are described as “my sheep, human sheep, and I am your God.” It is among the most intimate pictures of the relationship between God and his people.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus says, “I am the good shepherd” (John 10:11), and lives out chapter 34: he seeks the lost (Luke 19:10), heals the sick, and binds up the brokenhearted. Luke 15:4-7 tells the story of the shepherd who seeks the one lost sheep. Matthew 9:36 shows him having compassion on the crowds because they were “like sheep without a shepherd.” 1 Peter 5:1-4 calls elders to shepherd the flock willingly, as examples, and promises the unfading crown from the chief Shepherd. Hebrews 13:20 calls him the great shepherd.

STEP 6

Application

Thank Jesus for being the shepherd who searched for you.

If you have a role of leadership, ask whether you are feeding the flock or feeding yourself. Pray for pastors and church leaders.

Look for a “strayed” or “injured” sheep near you, and reach out to them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank the Good Shepherd for seeking the lost and binding up the injured.

Ask him to strengthen you where you are weak.

Pray for the shepherds you know.

DAY 480 · WEEK 69

Ezekiel 36:1-37:28

The new heart; the valley of dry bones, Spirit and resurrection

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 63 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 36:1-37:28. These are among the most important chapters in the Old Testament. God promises to cleanse his people, give them a new heart, and put his Spirit within them. Then Ezekiel sees a valley of dry bones that come to life. Read both slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the central passage of Ezekiel's message of hope. The exiles are in despair: "Our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost." God's answer is a series of promises that go beyond a mere return to the land. He will transform the people themselves, from within. These chapters were written around 586 to 570 BC, and they are quoted in the New Testament as a description of the work of the Spirit.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you shall be clean from all your uncleannesses, and from all your idols I will cleanse you" (36:25).
2. "And I will give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will put within you. And I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh" (36:26).
3. "And I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes and be careful to obey my rules" (36:27).
4. "You shall be my people, and I will be your God" (36:28).
5. "It is not for your sake, O house of Israel, that I am about to act, but for the sake of my holy name" (36:22).

6. “Then he said to me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord GOD, you know” (37:3).
7. “Behold, I will cause breath to enter you, and you shall live” (37:5).
8. “And I will put my Spirit within you, and you shall live, and I will place you in your own land. Then you shall know that I am the LORD” (37:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 36 begins with the mountains of Israel and God’s promise to restore the land. But the central part is about the people. God says that he is acting for the sake of his holy name, which had been profaned among the nations. The restoration is not because Israel deserves it. It is for God’s glory. This is the root of grace.

Then come the promises. First, cleansing: “I will sprinkle clean water on you.” Second, a new heart: “I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh.” The stone heart is hard, unresponsive. The flesh heart is soft and alive. Third, the Spirit: “I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes.” This is the answer to Jeremiah’s promise of the new covenant: the law written on the heart. It is accomplished by the Spirit. The command in chapter 18, “Make yourselves a new heart,” is now fulfilled by God’s gift. The result: you will be my people, and I will be your God.

Chapter 37 gives the valley of dry bones. Ezekiel is set down in a valley full of bones, very many and very dry. God asks, “Can these bones live?” Ezekiel replies, “O Lord GOD, you know.” He is told to prophesy to the bones, and they come together, bone to bone. Sinews and flesh appear, and skin covers them. But there is no breath. He then prophesies to the breath, and the breath comes, and they stand on their feet, an exceedingly great army. It is a picture of national revival: “Our bones are dried up… we are cut off.” God says: “I will open your graves and raise you from your graves.”

The two chapters together show the means: the word of God and the Spirit of God. The same Word that prophesies and the same Spirit that gives life. Ezekiel ends with the vision of the two sticks, Judah and Israel, joined into one in the hand of the LORD, with David as king and an everlasting covenant of peace, and the sanctuary in their midst forever.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said to Nicodemus, “Unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God” (John 3:5), echoing Ezekiel 36:25-27. Titus 3:5 speaks of “the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit.” 2 Corinthians 3:3 and Romans 8:9-11 describe the Spirit within us. Ephesians 2:1-5 says we were dead in trespasses, and God made us alive. John 5:25 says the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God and live. Romans 11:15 speaks of life from the dead.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Ezekiel 36:26, and pray it for yourself and someone you love.

Reflect on the phrase, “Can these bones live?” Where do you feel spiritually dry? Answer as Ezekiel did: “O Lord GOD, you know.”

Ask the Holy Spirit to breathe on a dead place in your life or your church.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the new heart and the Spirit he has put within you.
- Ask him to breathe life into a dry place in you.
- Ask him to cleanse you from your idols.

EZEKIEL 36:26

DAY 481 · WEEK 69

Ezekiel 38:1-39:29

Gog and Magog, God's ultimate protection

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 38:1-39:29. A great invasion by Gog of Magog is described, and God defeats it. These chapters are hard to interpret, so read for the main point: God protects his restored people, and the nations will know he is the LORD.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the restoration promises of chapters 33 to 37, these chapters describe a final attack on God's people. Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal, comes with a coalition of nations from the far north against a people living securely in unwalled villages. The name Gog does not match any known historical king. Interpreters understand the passage in different ways: as a symbol of the final assault against God's people, as a prediction of a particular event, or as apocalyptic imagery. All agree on its main point.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Son of man, set your face toward Gog, of the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal" (38:2).
2. "I will turn you about and put hooks into your jaws" (38:4).
3. "After many days you will be mustered. In the latter years you will go against the land that has been restored from war" (38:8).
4. "You will say, I will go up against the land of unwalled villages" (38:11).
5. "I will show my greatness and my holiness and make myself known in the eyes of many nations" (38:23).
6. "I will give to Gog a place for burial in Israel" (39:11).

7. “And the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God, from that day forward” (39:22).

8. “And I will not hide my face anymore from them, when I pour out my Spirit upon the house of Israel” (39:29).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The attack comes at a time of peace. The people are dwelling securely, apparently defenseless. Gog’s plan is to seize plunder. But God says, “I will turn you about and put hooks into your jaws.” Though Gog thinks he is acting by his own will, God is leading him out. The invasion is under God’s control, and its purpose is to display God’s greatness.

The defeat is dramatic: an earthquake, a plague, torrential rain, hailstones, fire and sulfur. The invading armies turn on each other. Their weapons are so numerous that Israel will burn them for seven years. The bodies are buried in a valley, and it takes seven months to clear the land. All of this serves the aim: “I will make myself known in the eyes of many nations. Then they will know that I am the LORD.”

The big question is how to understand this. Some interpret it as a literal battle in the end times. Others see in it a symbol of the continuing assault of the powers of this world against God’s people, which ends with God’s victory. Revelation 20:7-9 takes up the names Gog and Magog for the final rebellion of the nations after the thousand years, and says fire comes down from heaven and consumes them. In this use, Gog and Magog stand for the last desperate attack on God’s people. Whatever the details, the point is that God has the last word.

The conclusion in chapter 39 is a reminder of why the exile happened and a promise: “The nations shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity.” But now God will restore their fortunes, “and I will not hide my face anymore from them, when I pour out my Spirit upon the house of Israel.” The final note is the Spirit. The people who were scattered will be gathered and filled.

STEP 5

Connection

Revelation 20:7-10 describes the last rebellion of the nations, “Gog and Magog,” and their defeat by fire from heaven. Revelation 19:17-21 pictures the great supper of God, echoing Ezekiel 39:17-20. Joel 2:28-29 and Acts 2:16-18 speak of the pouring out of the Spirit. Romans 8:31 asks, “If God is for us, who can be against us?” Psalm 2 shows the nations raging and the LORD laughing in heaven. Matthew 16:18 says the gates of hell will not prevail.

STEP 6

Application

Whatever happens in the world, remember that God has the last word.

Do not let fear of the future overshadow your trust in the God who protects his people.

Pray that the Spirit would be poured out on your church and on the people of God worldwide.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what you fear from the enemies of his people.

Thank him that he is sovereign over every nation.

Ask him for confidence in the end.

DAY 482 · WEEK 69

Ezekiel 40:1-43:27

The new Temple vision begins [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 107 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 40:1-43:27. This is a survey day. A man with a measuring rod leads Ezekiel through a vision of a new temple, and then the glory of the LORD returns. Do not worry about the measurements. Read for the return of the glory in chapter 43.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In 573 BC, the twenty-fifth year of the exile and the fourteenth after Jerusalem's fall, Ezekiel is taken in a vision to a very high mountain in Israel. A man whose appearance is like bronze, with a measuring line in his hand, shows him a great temple complex. This is the last major vision of the book. It is a temple that has never been built in this form. Interpreters differ on its meaning, but it clearly points to a restored worship in which God's presence is central.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In visions of God he brought me to the land of Israel, and set me down on a very high mountain" (40:2).
2. "And behold, there was a man whose appearance was like bronze, with a linen cord and a measuring reed in his hand" (40:3).
3. "Son of man, look with your eyes, and hear with your ears, and set your heart upon all that I shall show you" (40:4).
4. "And behold, the glory of the God of Israel was coming from the east" (43:2).
5. "And the glory of the LORD entered the temple by the gate facing east" (43:4).
6. "Behold, the glory of the LORD filled the temple" (43:5).

7. “Son of man, this is the place of my throne and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the people of Israel forever” (43:7).

8. “This is the law of the temple: the whole territory on the top of the mountain all around shall be most holy” (43:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The measuring of the temple takes up chapters 40 to 42, and its precision is striking. The gates, the courts, the chambers, the altar, the walls are all measured with exact detail. The temple is a perfect square, ordered and holy. The point is not the architecture but its meaning: God intends to dwell among his people in an orderly, holy relationship. The exiles lost the first temple, and this vision gave them hope that God would restore a place of worship.

The vision is a puzzle, because the dimensions do not match Solomon’s temple or the second temple that was later built. Some scholars take it as a literal temple yet to come. Others see it as a symbolic picture of God’s perfect dwelling with his people, fulfilled in Christ and the church, and consummated in the new creation. Revelation 21 describes the new Jerusalem as a cube, with no temple, “for its temple is the Lord God the Almighty and the Lamb.” Whatever view is held, the vision shows that God’s dwelling is not abandoned.

The climax is in chapter 43. Ezekiel had watched the glory leave the temple through the east gate in chapters 10 and 11. Now it returns through the same gate. The sound is like the sound of many waters, and the earth shines with his glory. The prophet falls on his face. “The glory of the LORD filled the temple.” This is the answer to the question that haunted the exiles: Has God left us forever? No. The glory returns.

God says, “This is the place of my throne… where I will dwell in the midst of the people of Israel forever.” And the condition is repentance: they must no more defile his holy name. The restoration includes a call to measure the pattern and be ashamed of their iniquities.

The message for all believers is that God wants to dwell among his people. The distance caused by sin has been overcome, and his glory returns.

STEP 5

Connection

John 1:14 says, “The Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we have seen his glory.” John 2:19-21 shows Jesus speaking of the temple of his body. 1 Corinthians 3:16-17 and Ephesians 2:19-22 call the church God’s temple, built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets with Christ as the cornerstone. Revelation 21:3 says, “Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man.” Revelation 21:22 says there is no temple in the city, for the Lord God and the Lamb are its temple.

STEP 6

Application

Thank God that his glory is not confined to a building, and that through Christ it has returned to dwell among his people.

Think of yourself as part of a temple being built. What does it mean for your holiness and your relationships in the church?

Pray for the return of God’s manifest presence in your worship.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that his glory fills his house.

Thank Jesus, in whom his presence dwells among us.

Ask him to make you a holy temple.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Ezekiel 36:26 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And I will give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will put within you. And I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh."

EZEKIEL 36:26

REST

Meditation

This verse is one of the clearest statements in the Old Testament of what God does in salvation. It describes an operation, not a program of self-improvement.

"I will give you a new heart." Notice who is the actor: "I." God does it. The people had been told to make themselves a new heart (Ezekiel 18:31), and they could not. Here, God promises to give one. The heart in Hebrew thought is the center of the whole person: mind, will, and emotions. Salvation reaches that deep. It is not just a change of behavior or beliefs but of the self at its center.

"And a new spirit I will put within you." The new spirit is a new disposition, a renewed inner life. In the next verse, God clarifies that this is his own Spirit: "I will put my Spirit within you." The new life is the life of the Holy Spirit in us.

“And I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh.” The heart of stone is the natural condition of fallen humanity, hard, unresponsive to God, impossible to change by willpower. A stone cannot make itself soft. Only God can remove it.

“And give you a heart of flesh.” The heart of flesh is warm, living, and responsive. It can feel, love, trust, and obey. This is what happens at conversion and continues in sanctification. We are given hearts that want what God wants.

For the Christian, this verse is both an encouragement and a prayer. It encourages us because we do not have to manufacture our own spiritual life. It is a gift. And it is a prayer because we constantly need our hearts to be kept soft. Say it for yourself and for those you love who seem far from God. He is the one who gives hearts of flesh.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you prayed three groups of Songs of Ascents on family blessing, survival through affliction, childlike trust, and the beauty of unity. In Ezekiel, you heard the watchman called again and the people warned that they were listening to him like a song but not acting. You read God’s rebuke of the false shepherds and his promise to search for his sheep himself and to set up one shepherd, his servant David. You read the great promises of Ezekiel 36 and 37: cleansing water, a new heart and spirit, and the Spirit within us, and the valley of dry bones that live by the word and the breath. You read of Gog’s final assault and God’s victory, and then the vision of the new temple and the return of the glory by the east gate. The week taught that God himself will do what his people cannot, giving them hearts of flesh and his own Spirit, and returning to dwell among them.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

God says he will give a heart of flesh and put his Spirit within us. Where do you most need him to do this soft, living work in you?

God promises to shepherd his sheep himself, to seek the lost and bind up the injured. Which of these do you need the Shepherd to do for you right now?

Ezekiel asked whether dry bones can live, and answered, “O Lord GOD, you know.” What seems dead in your life or church that you can bring to God in that spirit?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to give you a new heart.

Ask him to remove the heart of stone in you.

Thank him for the Shepherd who seeks you.

DAY 484 · WEEK 70

Ezekiel 44:1-46:24

The Prince; priestly regulations; the inheritance [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 79 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 44:1-46:24. This is a survey day. These chapters describe the closed east gate, the rules for priests, the division of the land, and the worship of the prince and the people. Read for the main principle: worship in the restored temple is holy and ordered, and God's people are to approach with reverence.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This section follows the return of the glory in chapter 43. The details of the restored worship are laid out: who may enter, who may serve, how the festivals are to be kept. Many of the details are hard to match with any known period of Israel's history, and Christians have understood them in different ways. The common thread is the holiness of God and the order of worship he requires.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "This gate shall remain shut; it shall not be opened, and no one shall enter by it, for the LORD, the God of Israel, has entered by it" (44:2).
2. "No foreigner, uncircumcised in heart and flesh, of all the foreigners who are among the people of Israel, shall enter my sanctuary" (44:9).
3. "They shall teach my people the difference between the holy and the common, and show them how to distinguish between the unclean and the clean" (44:23).
4. "I am their inheritance: you shall give them no possession in Israel; I am their possession" (44:28).
5. "The land shall be for the LORD… a holy portion" (45:1).

6. “My princes shall no more oppress my people” (45:8).
7. “You shall have just balances, a just ephah, and a just bath” (45:10).
8. “The people of the land shall bow down at the entrance of that gate before the LORD on the Sabbaths and on the new moons” (46:3).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The closed east gate is a symbol of God’s presence. The glory entered through it, so it stays shut. It is a picture of the finality of God’s return. Only the prince may sit in the gateway to eat bread before the LORD. The restored community is to be ordered around the holy.

The priests’ regulations are demanding. The Levites who went astray in idolatry are limited to lesser duties, while the sons of Zadok, who stayed faithful, may come near. The priests are to be careful in their clothing, grooming, and conduct. They are to teach the people the difference between the holy and the common, to judge disputes, and to keep the Sabbaths. In 44:28, there is a note that echoes Psalm 73: “I am their inheritance.” The priests have no land because God himself is their portion.

Chapter 45 sets aside a holy portion of land for the sanctuary, for the priests, and for the Levites, and a portion for the city and the prince. The prince is warned not to oppress the people. It is a vision of just leadership. “Enough, O princes of Israel! Put away violence and oppression.” He is to maintain just weights and measures. Worship and justice are joined.

Chapter 46 describes the offerings and worship of the prince and the people. The prince leads the people and enters with them: “When they go in, he shall go in.” He is among them, not above them. The chapter ends with the kitchens where the priests and people boil and bake the sacrifices.

For the Christian, the details are difficult. But we can see the principles. God is to be approached with reverence. The leader must be just and humble. Those who serve are to know God as their portion. And the people are to come together to worship. The New Testament shows that Christ has become our great high priest and our sacrifice, so these shadows find their fulfillment in him.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 8:1-6 and 9:11-14 show that Christ is the high priest of the true tent, and that his blood obtains eternal redemption. Hebrews 10:19-22 invites us to enter the holy places by the blood of Jesus. 1 Peter 2:5, 9 calls the church a holy priesthood and a royal priesthood.

Revelation 1:6 says Christ has made us a kingdom, priests to his God and Father. Romans 12:1: present your bodies as a living sacrifice.

STEP 6

Application

Approach worship this week with reverence. Prepare your heart before you gather.

If you lead others, ask whether you walk among them, as the prince did, or above them.

Thank God that he is your portion and inheritance, like the Levites.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that his presence is among his people.
- Ask him to teach you to distinguish the holy from the common.
- Ask him to guard your worship.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 70

"If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up."

DANIEL 3:17-18

DAY 485 · WEEK 70

Ezekiel 47:1-48:35

The river of life; the new land, new creation anticipated

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 58 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezekiel 47:1-48:35. A river flows from the temple and turns a desert into a place of life, and the land is divided among the twelve tribes, ending with a city whose name is "The LORD Is There." Read the river carefully, and notice what it does.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the last vision of Ezekiel's book. After the return of the glory, a river flows from the threshold of the temple. It grows deeper as it moves toward the Dead Sea, and wherever it goes, it brings life. Then the land is divided fairly among the tribes, including foreigners who live among them. The book ends with the new name of the city, a promise that answers the sorrow of the first part: the glory had left, and now God is present forever.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, water was issuing from below the threshold of the temple toward the east" (47:1).
2. "Again he measured a thousand, and led me through the water, water that was to the ankles... to the knees... to the loins" (47:3-4).
3. "It was a river that I could not pass through, for the water had risen. It was deep enough to swim in" (47:5).
4. "This water flows toward the eastern region and goes down into the Arabah, and enters the Sea. When the water flows into the Sea, the water of the Sea will become fresh" (47:8).
5. "Swarms of creatures will live wherever the river goes... everything will live where the river goes" (47:9).

6. “On the banks, on both sides of the river, there will grow all kinds of trees for food. Their leaves will not wither, nor their fruit fail” (47:12).

7. “You shall divide it for an inheritance among yourselves and for the sojourners who reside among you” (47:22).

8. “And the name of the city from that time on shall be, The LORD Is There” (48:35).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The river begins as a trickle under the temple threshold. Following the guide, Ezekiel wades in at the ankles, then the knees, then the waist, and then it is a river he cannot cross. The image is of overflowing, increasing grace. A small source from the presence of God becomes a flood of life. And the direction is downhill into the Judean desert, to the Dead Sea, the most lifeless place on earth. The salty water becomes fresh, and fish swarm there. Fishermen stand on the shore. The river brings life even to death.

On the banks, fruit trees grow every month. The leaves do not wither. The fruit is for food, and the leaves for healing. And the reason is stated: “because the water for them flows from the sanctuary.” All life flows from the presence of God. This is Eden restored.

The rest of the chapter deals with the boundaries of the land and the division among the tribes. Notable is the inclusion of the sojourners: “You shall allot it for an inheritance among yourselves and for the foreigners who reside among you and have fathered children among you. You shall treat them as native-born Israelites.” The covenant community is extended to include outsiders.

Chapter 48 lists the tribal portions, each as a strip running east to west, with the holy portion at the center. The city has twelve gates, named for the twelve tribes. And the book ends with its last line: “The name of the city from that time on shall be, The LORD Is There.” It is a fitting end for a book that began with God’s glory leaving. The glory is back, and it will not leave again.

For the Christian, the river is a picture of the Spirit and the gospel, flowing from the presence of God to the dead places of the world. It finds its fulfillment in Revelation 22.

STEP 5

Connection

John 7:37-39 says that Jesus invited anyone who is thirsty to come, and that out of his heart will flow rivers of living water, referring to the Spirit. Revelation 22:1-2 describes the river of the water of life flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb, with the tree of life on both banks, “and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.” Revelation 21:3 says, “The dwelling place of God is with man.” Revelation 21:12-14 describes the city with twelve gates. Ephesians 2:19 says that Gentiles are no longer strangers but fellow citizens.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a “Dead Sea” in your life or community. Pray for the river of God’s life to reach it.

Ask whether the grace you have received is deeper than “ankle-deep.” Wade further in.

Welcome a stranger into your community, as the tribes were told to welcome the sojourners.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to let the river of his life flow into dead places in you.
- Thank Jesus, the source of living water.
- Pray for a place that is barren.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 70

“If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up.”

DANIEL 3:17-18

DAY 486 · WEEK 70

Daniel 1:1-2:49

Faithfulness in exile; Nebuchadnezzar's dream

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 81 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Daniel 1:1-2:49. A young man taken to Babylon refuses to compromise, and later interprets a king's dream about a statue and a stone. Notice how Daniel and his friends live as exiles, and notice what the dream says about the kingdoms of the earth.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Daniel was taken to Babylon as a teenager in 605 BC, in the first deportation. He and three friends were selected to be trained for the king's service. Daniel is the book that addresses the question of how God's people live in a foreign empire. It is written partly in Hebrew and partly in Aramaic, the language of international affairs (2:4 to 7:28). It moves from stories of faithfulness in the first six chapters to visions of the future in the last six.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "But Daniel resolved that he would not defile himself with the king's food" (1:8).
2. "God gave these four youths learning and skill in all literature and wisdom" (1:17).
3. "Let the name of God be blessed forever and ever, to whom belong wisdom and might" (2:20).
4. "He changes times and seasons; he removes kings and sets up kings" (2:21).
5. "No wise men, enchanters, magicians, or astrologers can show to the king the mystery that the king has asked, but there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries" (2:27-28).
6. "You, O king, were looking, and behold, a great image" (2:31).
7. "A stone was cut out by no human hand, and it struck the image on its feet of iron and clay, and broke them in pieces" (2:34).

8 “And in the days of those kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed” (2:44).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first chapter shows the pressure of assimilation. The young men are renamed with Babylonian names that honor Babylonian gods, taught a new language and literature, and given food from the king’s table. Daniel draws a line at the food, probably because it had been offered to idols or violated the law. He does so respectfully, asks for a test, and God honors it. Faithfulness here is both principled and wise. They serve the empire well, and God gives them skill. The lesson is that we can serve in a foreign place without compromising our loyalty to God.

Chapter 2 introduces the first great vision. Nebuchadnezzar has a dream that troubles him, and he demands that his wise men tell him both the dream and its meaning. They cannot. The king orders them all killed, including Daniel. Daniel asks for time and prays with his friends. God reveals the dream in the night. Daniel’s response is a hymn of praise: “Blessed be the name of God forever and ever, to whom belong wisdom and might. He changes times and seasons; he removes kings and sets up kings.” Before he tells the king, he gives God the credit. And in front of the king, he says plainly: “No wise men… can show the king the mystery, but there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries.”

The dream is of a great statue with a head of gold, chest of silver, belly of bronze, legs of iron, and feet of iron mixed with clay. A stone, not cut by human hands, strikes the feet, and the whole statue becomes dust. The stone grows into a mountain that fills the earth. Daniel interprets: the head is Nebuchadnezzar, and the other metals are successive kingdoms. The stone is the kingdom that God will set up, which will never be destroyed. The message is that the great empires of human history will pass, and God’s kingdom will last forever.

Nebuchadnezzar falls on his face and acknowledges Daniel’s God as “God of gods and Lord of kings.” Though the king’s confession is incomplete, it shows that God’s hand can reach even the rulers of the earth.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus is the stone that the builders rejected (Matthew 21:42-44; 1 Peter 2:4-8). Luke 1:33 says of Jesus, “Of his kingdom there will be no end.” Matthew 6:10 teaches us to pray, “Your kingdom come.” Romans 12:2 says, “Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed.” Colossians 2:3 says that in Christ are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. 1 Peter 2:11-12 calls us to live as exiles with good conduct.

STEP 6

Application

Where do you face pressure to compromise? Decide, as Daniel did, what you will not defile yourself with, and do it graciously.

Pray with friends, as Daniel did, when you face a situation you cannot handle on your own.

Praise God before you ask for his help. Say Daniel 2:20-21 aloud.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Bless the name of God, to whom wisdom and might belong.

Ask him to help you stand firm in a foreign place.

Thank him that he changes times and seasons.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 70

"If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up."

DANIEL 3:17-18

DAY 487 · WEEK 70

Daniel 3:1-4:37

The fiery furnace; Nebuchadnezzar humbled

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Daniel 3:1-4:37. Three men are thrown into a furnace for refusing to bow, and a fourth appears with them. Then Nebuchadnezzar, the proudest man on earth, is humbled and learns that Heaven rules. Read the three men's reply in 3:16-18 carefully.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 3 happens some years after the dream of chapter 2. Nebuchadnezzar builds a gold statue ninety feet high and commands everyone to bow when the music plays. Three of Daniel's friends, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, refuse. Chapter 4 is a first-person account from the king himself, a testimony of how God humbled him for his pride, then restored him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king" (3:17).
2. "But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up" (3:18).
3. "Behold, I see four men unbound, walking in the midst of the fire, and they are not hurt; and the appearance of the fourth is like a son of the gods" (3:25).
4. "Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who has sent his angel and delivered his servants" (3:28).
5. "The Most High rules the kingdom of men and gives it to whom he will" (4:17).

6. “Is not this great Babylon, which I have built by my mighty power as a royal residence and for the glory of my majesty?” (4:30).
7. “At the end of the days I, Nebuchadnezzar, lifted my eyes to heaven, and my reason returned to me” (4:34).
8. “And those who walk in pride he is able to humble” (4:37).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The three men’s reply to the king is among the greatest declarations of faith in the Bible. They do not argue or beg. They say that God is able to deliver them. And they add: “But if not.” Their obedience does not depend on a miracle. They will not bow whether or not God rescues them. This is faith that is not tied to outcome. It trusts God’s character, not his results.

The furnace is heated seven times hotter. It is so hot that it kills the soldiers who throw them in. But inside, there are four men walking, unbound, and the fourth looks like a son of the gods. The rescue shows that God is present in the fire. He does not always spare us from the furnace, but he is with us in it. When they come out, they do not even smell of smoke. The king blesses their God and decrees that no one may speak against him.

Chapter 4 is the king’s personal story. He has a dream of a great tree that is cut down, and Daniel tells him that the tree is himself. For seven periods of time, he will be driven from among men and live like an animal, until he acknowledges that Heaven rules. Daniel gives pastoral advice: “Break off your sins by practicing righteousness, and your iniquities by showing mercy to the oppressed.” A year later, while walking on his roof, the king boasts of Babylon, “which I have built by my mighty power.” The words are still in his mouth when judgment falls.

When his sanity returns, he lifts his eyes to heaven and blesses the Most High. His testimony ends with a statement of the book’s theme: “All his works are right and his ways are just; and those who walk in pride he is able to humble.” The greatest emperor of the age is brought to confess what Daniel’s friends knew all along.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 43:2 says, “When you pass through the waters, I will be with you… when you walk through fire you shall not be burned.” Hebrews 11:34 mentions those who “quenched the power of fire.” Acts 5:29: “We must obey God rather than men.” Revelation 13:15 shows a similar demand to worship an image. Matthew 1:23: Immanuel, God with us. Proverbs 16:18 says pride goes before destruction. 1 Peter 5:5-6 says, “God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble.”

STEP 6

Application

Pray “But if not” for a situation where you do not know how God will act. Commit to obedience regardless of the outcome.

Take comfort that Jesus is with you in your furnace.

Examine your own “Is not this great Babylon?” boast. Where might God be humbling pride in you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what fire you are facing.

Say, “Even if he does not,” and tell him whom you will serve.

Thank him that he walks with you in the fire.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 70

“If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up.”

DANIEL 3:17-18

DAY 488 · WEEK 70

Psalm 135

Praise the name of the LORD

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 135. It is a hymn of praise that celebrates the LORD's greatness over the idols of the nations. Notice how it echoes Daniel's chapters: the God of Israel against the gods of Babylon.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 135 is a hymn built from other Scripture. It quotes Exodus, Deuteronomy, Jeremiah, and other psalms. It was sung after the exile as the community recalled what God had done. It comes at the right place in this unit, after the stories of Daniel, where the living God confronts idols and kings. The psalm mocks idols and praises God for his choice of Israel. It will appear again later in the plan.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! Praise the name of the LORD, give praise, O servants of the LORD" (v. 1).
2. "For I know that the LORD is great, and that our Lord is above all gods" (v. 5).
3. "Whatever the LORD pleases, he does, in heaven and on earth, in the seas and all deeps" (v. 6).
4. "He it was who struck down the firstborn of Egypt, both of man and of beast" (v. 8).
5. "Your name, O LORD, endures forever, your renown, O LORD, throughout all ages" (v. 13).
6. "The idols of the nations are silver and gold, the work of human hands" (v. 15).
7. "They have mouths, but do not speak; they have eyes, but do not see" (vv. 16-17).

8 “Those who make them become like them, so do all who trust in them” (v. 18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a call to praise and quickly gives reasons: the LORD is good, he chose Jacob, and he is great. The key statement is in verse 6: “Whatever the LORD pleases, he does.” This is God’s sovereignty. Unlike the idols, he acts, in the heavens and on earth. He makes clouds rise, lightning flash, and wind come from his storehouses. In history, he struck down the firstborn of Egypt and defeated kings such as Sihon and Og. He gave their land as a heritage to Israel.

The psalm then contrasts God with idols. The idols are silver and gold, the work of human hands. They have mouths but cannot speak, eyes but cannot see, ears but cannot hear, and there is no breath in their mouths. The list is almost comical, and it is exactly the argument Isaiah and Jeremiah made. And the psalm ends with the most striking line: “Those who make them become like them; so do all who trust in them.” We become like what we worship. People who worship dead things become dead. They lose sight, hearing, and speech. Those who worship the living God become alive.

The final section widens the call to praise. The house of Israel, the house of Aaron, the house of Levi, and all who fear the LORD are summoned to bless him. And the last line is: “Blessed be the LORD from Zion, he who dwells in Jerusalem! Praise the LORD!”

For the exiles, who saw the grandeur of Babylon’s temples and idols, this was an important reminder. The gods of the empire were silent and powerless. The God of Israel, who seemed to be defeated, was alive and in control. The statue of Daniel 2 and the image of Daniel 3 were nothing before him.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 14:15-17 and 17:24-29 use this argument to preach to pagans. 1 Corinthians 8:4-6 says there is no God but one. Romans 1:22-23 says people who exchange the glory of God for images become fools. 2 Corinthians 3:18 says that beholding the glory of the Lord, we are being transformed into the same image. 1 Peter 2:9 calls the church a chosen race, God’s own possession, to proclaim his excellencies. Revelation 4:11 praises the worthy Lord and God.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what you tend to worship that cannot speak, see, or hear. What are you becoming like?

Use this psalm as a call to praise. Name what the LORD has done as a list in your own words.

Say verse 6 as a statement of trust: “Whatever the LORD pleases, he does.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God as great above all gods.
- Confess any idol of silver and gold, literal or modern.
- Thank him for what he pleases to do.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 70

“If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up.”

DANIEL 3:17-18

DAY 489 · WEEK 70

Psalm 136

His steadfast love endures forever

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Psalm · 26 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 136. Every verse ends with the same refrain: “for his steadfast love endures forever.” Read it aloud if you can, as a litany, with the second half as a response.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 136 is called the Great Hallel in Jewish tradition and is sung at Passover. It is a liturgy: one voice would say the first line, and the congregation would respond with the refrain. It recounts creation and the exodus and the conquest in the language of God’s steadfast love. After Daniel’s stories, it is a fitting close to Unit 13’s reading of the exile: the God who is sovereign over empires is the God whose love endures forever. It will return later in the plan.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever” (v. 1).
2. “Give thanks to the God of gods, for his steadfast love endures forever” (v. 2).
3. “To him who alone does great wonders, for his steadfast love endures forever” (v. 4).
4. “To him who by understanding made the heavens, for his steadfast love endures forever” (v. 5).
5. “To him who struck down the firstborn of Egypt, for his steadfast love endures forever” (v. 10).
6. “To him who divided the Red Sea in two” (v. 13).
7. “It is he who remembered us in our low estate, for his steadfast love endures forever” (v. 23).
8. “He who gives food to all flesh, for his steadfast love endures forever” (v. 25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The refrain, repeated twenty-six times, is the heart of the psalm. “His steadfast love endures forever.” The Hebrew word hesed, covenant love, is the theme. The psalm teaches that every act of God, in creation, in redemption, and in daily provision, flows from this love.

The structure is a story. The first section is creation: God made the heavens by understanding, spread out the earth, and made the great lights. The sun rules the day, and the moon and stars the night. The creation is not an accident or a conflict but a gift of love. The second section is redemption: God struck down the firstborn of Egypt, brought out Israel with a strong hand, divided the sea, and led his people through the wilderness. Even the destruction of the enemy kings is told as part of this love. The point is not cruelty but faithfulness to the covenant. The third section is the land given as a heritage.

Then there is a turn in verse 23: “It is he who remembered us in our low estate.” This is likely about the exile and the return. In the lowest point of the people’s history, God did not forget. And so the psalm ends with the universal provision of God: “He who gives food to all flesh,” and a final call: “Give thanks to the God of heaven, for his steadfast love endures forever.”

Reading Psalm 136 after the book of Lamentations is powerful. In Lamentations 3:22, the poet says, “The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases.” Here it is made into a song. After a unit about judgment, exile, and the fall of nations, the closing word is not wrath but love that endures.

STEP 5

Connection

1 John 4:8 says, “God is love.” Romans 8:38-39 says nothing can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord. Ephesians 2:4-5 says, “God, being rich in mercy, because of the great love with which he loved us, even when we were dead in our trespasses, made us alive.” John 3:16 shows God’s love in giving his Son. Matthew 26:30 says that Jesus and his disciples sang a hymn after the Last Supper, probably the Hallel.

STEP 6

Application

Pray Psalm 136 as a litany, aloud, with a friend or family member. One person reads the first line, and the other answers the refrain.

Add your own verses: “To him who … for his steadfast love endures forever.” Name three things from your own life.

Remember a time God “remembered you in your low estate.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Give thanks to God, line by line, for his steadfast love in your own story.

Remember how he remembered you in your low estate.

Give thanks to the God of heaven.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 70

"If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up."

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Sabbath

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Daniel 3:17-18 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up."

DANIEL 3:17-18

REST

Meditation

These words were spoken by three young men facing death. They stand at the center of the book of Daniel, and they define what faithfulness looks like when the stakes are highest.

"Our God whom we serve is able to deliver us." The first statement is about God's ability. They do not doubt that he can save them. They believe in a God who is powerful enough to rescue from a furnace seven times hotter than normal. They call him "our God whom we serve," because their relationship is one of service. It is a statement of confidence.

"And he will deliver us out of your hand, O king." The second statement is of expectation. They think God will rescue them. They are not stoic, bracing for the worst. They hope in God.

“But if not.” These two words are among the most powerful in Scripture. They show that their faith is not conditional. If God does not rescue them, their obedience stands. They do not make their loyalty depend on getting what they want from God. Their faith is in God himself, not in his rescue.

“Be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods.” The conclusion is a clear statement of allegiance. They do not argue about the details of the law. They simply refuse. And what follows is the rescue, with the fourth figure in the fire.

For the Christian, this is a model of faith in uncertain times. We pray for deliverance, believe that God can, and believe that he will. And we commit to obey in either case. Say this verse when you face a situation where the outcome is unknown. The God who is able is also with you in the fire.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the last chapters of Ezekiel and began the book of Daniel. You prayed Psalms 128, 129, 131, 133, and 134, with their blessing of home and unity, their quiet trust, and their night blessing. In Ezekiel, you heard the watchman renewed, God’s promise to be the shepherd himself, the new heart and the Spirit within, the dry bones that lived, the final defeat of Gog, and the vision of the glory returning to a new temple. You read the river flowing from the sanctuary and bringing life to the Dead Sea, and the book’s last words: “The LORD Is There.” Then you met Daniel: the young man who would not defile himself, the dream of the statue and the stone, the three men in the fiery furnace, and the proud king humbled. Psalms 135 and 136 closed the week with God’s sovereignty over idols and his steadfast love that endures forever. The week taught that God himself will make his people new, that he dwells among them, and that faithfulness in exile is possible.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Ezekiel’s river grows deeper as it flows, giving life to the Dead Sea. What place in your life or community needs God’s river of life?

Daniel and his friends lived faithfully in a foreign empire. What are the “Babylonian” pressures in your life, and what would faithful, gracious resistance look like?

The three men said, “But if not.” How does that kind of faith, not dependent on the outcome, challenge or comfort you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God that he is able to deliver you.

Thank him that he walks with you in the fire.

Rest in him today.

DAY 491 · WEEK 71

Daniel 5:1-6:28

The writing on the wall; the den of lions

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 57 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Daniel 5:1-6:28. A king's feast ends with a hand writing on the wall, and an elderly Daniel is thrown into a den of lions for praying. Read the two stories together as the fall of the proud and the rescue of the faithful.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 5 takes place in 539 BC, the night Babylon fell to the Medes and Persians. Belshazzar, the crown prince and co-regent, holds a great feast and uses the sacred vessels from Jerusalem's temple as drinking cups. Chapter 6 takes place under Darius the Mede, in the early years of Persian rule. Daniel is now an old man of about eighty, and his enemies set a trap using his prayer life.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Belshazzar... gave command to bring the gold and silver vessels that Nebuchadnezzar his father had taken out of the temple in Jerusalem" (5:2).
2. "Immediately the fingers of a human hand appeared and wrote on the plaster of the wall" (5:5).
3. "You have not humbled your heart, though you knew all this, but you have lifted up yourself against the Lord of heaven" (5:22-23).
4. "MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN" (5:25).
5. "You have been weighed in the balances and found wanting" (5:27).
6. "That very night Belshazzar the Chaldean king was killed" (5:30).

7. “When Daniel knew that the document had been signed, he went to his house… and he got down on his knees three times a day and prayed and gave thanks before his God, as he had done previously” (6:10).

8. “My God sent his angel and shut the lions” mouths, and they have not harmed me, because I was found blameless before him’ (6:22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Belshazzar’s feast shows the arrogance of a ruler who has learned nothing. His grandfather Nebuchadnezzar had been humbled, yet he drinks from the vessels of God’s temple and praises the gods of gold and silver. The hand appears, and the king is terrified, his knees knocking. The wise men cannot read it. The queen mother recommends Daniel. He refuses the reward and reads the sentence: God has numbered the days of your kingdom, weighed you, and divided it. The words are about weights: a mina, a shekel, and half-shekels. The reading is clear: the kingdom is over. That very night, Babylon fell.

The charge is that Belshazzar knew what had happened to Nebuchadnezzar and did not humble himself. Knowledge without humility is the greater guilt. “The God in whose hand is your breath, and whose are all your ways, you have not honored.”

Chapter 6 is a contrast. Daniel’s enemies, jealous of his rank, can find no fault in him except “in the law of his God.” They persuade the king to sign a decree that no one may pray to any god or man except the king for thirty days. Daniel, hearing it, does exactly what he had always done. He goes to his upper room, opens his windows toward Jerusalem, and prays three times a day. He does not make a show, and does not hide. He simply continues.

He is thrown to the lions. The king, who loves him, spends a sleepless night. At dawn, Daniel is alive. “My God sent his angel and shut the lions” mouths.’ The king issues a new decree: that in all his kingdom people are to tremble before the God of Daniel, “for he is the living God, enduring forever; his kingdom shall never be destroyed.”

Two kings, two responses. Belshazzar lifted himself up and fell. Daniel humbled himself in prayer and was preserved. The difference is not strength but allegiance.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “Pray then like this: Our Father in heaven” (Matthew 6:9), and told his disciples to pray always (Luke 18:1). 1 Thessalonians 5:17 says to pray without ceasing. Hebrews 11:33 mentions those who “stopped the mouths of lions.” Acts 5:29 says we must obey God rather than men. 2 Timothy 4:17 says Paul was rescued from the lion's mouth. Psalm 1:2 says the blessed person meditates on the law day and night. Revelation 14:8 echoes "Fallen, fallen is Babylon."

STEP 6

Application

Establish a regular, consistent prayer rhythm, even if no one sees. Let it be as natural as breathing.

Examine whether you have "weighed" yourself against God's standard. Thank God that Christ was weighed in your place.

Pray for those facing opposition because of their faith.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to keep you from lifting yourself against him.
- Ask him to teach you to pray as Daniel did, with steady faithfulness.
- Thank him that your breath and ways are in his hand.

EZRA 3:11

DAY 492 · WEEK 71

Daniel 7:1-8:27

The Son of Man; the four beasts

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 54 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Daniel 7:1-8:27. The second half of Daniel begins with visions. Four beasts rise from the sea, and one like a son of man comes with the clouds of heaven. Read chapter 7 slowly, especially verses 9 to 14. This is one of the most important passages in the Bible.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The visions of Daniel 7 and 8 date to about 553 and 551 BC, before the events of chapters 5 and 6, but they are placed here to open the apocalyptic part of the book. The visions use symbolic beasts to describe the empires of the earth. In chapter 7, which is in Aramaic, Daniel sees four beasts and then a heavenly courtroom. In chapter 8, he sees a ram and a goat, which many interpreters understand as Persia and Greece.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Four great beasts came up out of the sea, different from one another” (7:3).
2. “As I looked, thrones were placed, and the Ancient of Days took his seat” (7:9).
3. “His clothing was white as snow, and the hair of his head like pure wool; his throne was fiery flames” (7:9).
4. “A stream of fire issued and came out from before him” (7:10).
5. “Behold, with the clouds of heaven there came one like a son of man, and he came to the Ancient of Days and was presented before him” (7:13).
6. “And to him was given dominion and glory and a kingdom, that all peoples, nations, and languages should serve him” (7:14).

7. “His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom one that shall not be destroyed” (7:14).

8. “And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High” (7:27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The four beasts are a lion with eagle’s wings, a bear raised on one side, a leopard with four heads, and a terrifying fourth beast with iron teeth and ten horns. They are usually understood as successive empires: Babylon, Persia, Greece, and Rome or a later power. They rise from the chaotic sea. The fourth has a little horn that speaks great things and wages war against the saints. The beasts show the nature of human empires: violent, devouring, and arrogant.

Then the scene shifts. Thrones are set, and the Ancient of Days takes his seat. The picture is of a heavenly court. His clothing is white as snow, and his throne is flames of fire with wheels of burning fire. Thousands upon thousands serve him. The books are opened. The beast is slain, and its body burned. The other beasts lose their dominion.

Then comes the climax: “With the clouds of heaven there came one like a son of man.” Clouds are the vehicle of God in the Old Testament. This figure approaches the Ancient of Days and receives everlasting dominion over all peoples. The kingdoms of the beasts rise from the sea. The kingdom of the son of man comes from heaven. Beasts devour, but the son of man is given all authority.

Daniel is troubled by the vision. An attendant explains: the four beasts are four kings. “But the saints of the Most High shall receive the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever.” The Son of Man shares his rule with his people.

Chapter 8 is a second vision of a ram, a goat, and a little horn that desecrates the sanctuary. It looks beyond to the persecution under Antiochus Epiphanes in the second century BC, a type of later enemies. Daniel is overcome by the vision and falls sick. The consistent message: the powers of this world, however terrifying, are limited by God’s decree.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus called himself “the Son of Man” more than eighty times. At his trial, he said to the high priest, “You will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of Power and coming on the clouds of heaven” (Mark 14:62), and the high priest tore his robes, understanding the claim.

Matthew 28:18: “All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me.” Revelation 1:7, 13-14 shows him coming with the clouds, white-haired. Revelation 13 shows the beast, and Revelation 5 shows the Lamb receiving the kingdom.

STEP 6

Application

Spend time meditating on Daniel 7:13-14, and think about Jesus as the one to whom all dominion is given.

When world powers seem terrifying, remember that the Ancient of Days is on the throne and the books are open.

Pray for those who are persecuted, remembering that the kingdom will be given to the saints.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise the Ancient of Days.
- Thank him for the Son of Man whose kingdom will not pass away.
- Ask him to give you courage in the meantime.

EZRA 3:11

DAY 493 · WEEK 71

Daniel 9:1-10:21

Daniel's prayer; the 70 weeks

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 52 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Daniel 9:1-10:21. Daniel reads Jeremiah, prays one of the greatest prayers of confession in the Bible, and receives the prophecy of the seventy weeks. Then a vision of a glorious man and a message from an angel who was delayed by spiritual conflict. Read the prayer first, and take your time.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 9 is dated to 539 BC, the first year of Darius. Daniel, now an old man, reads Jeremiah's prophecy of seventy years (Jeremiah 25:11-12; 29:10), and realizes that the time is near. He responds by prayer. Chapter 10 is dated three years later, in 536 BC. Daniel is mourning and fasting when he sees a vision of a man in linen, and receives a message about the conflict between spiritual powers.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I, Daniel, perceived in the books the number of years that, according to the word of the LORD to Jeremiah the prophet, must pass before the end of the desolations of Jerusalem" (9:2).
2. "Then I turned my face to the Lord God, seeking him by prayer and pleas for mercy with fasting and sackcloth and ashes" (9:3).
3. "We have sinned and done wrong and acted wickedly and rebelled, turning aside from your commandments" (9:5).
4. "To the Lord our God belong mercy and forgiveness, for we have rebelled against him" (9:9).

5. “For we do not present our pleas before you because of our righteousness, but because of your great mercy” (9:18).
6. “O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive. O Lord, pay attention and act. For your own sake, O my God, do not delay” (9:19).
7. “Seventy weeks are decreed about your people and your holy city, to finish the transgression, to put an end to sin, and to atone for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness” (9:24).
8. “Fear not, Daniel, for from the first day that you set your heart to understand and humbled yourself before your God, your words have been heard” (10:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Daniel’s prayer is a model. He begins with God’s word: he has read the book and trusts the promise. But the promise leads him to pray, not to relax. He knows that God’s promises are fulfilled in the context of repentance. He fasts and confesses, using the first person plural, “we have sinned,” though Daniel himself is portrayed as blameless. He identifies with the people. He praises God as great and awesome, keeping covenant and steadfast love. He admits that the curses of Moses have fallen because of their disobedience.

Notice what he does not argue. He does not appeal to his own righteousness or to Israel’s merits. “We do not present our pleas before you because of our righteousness, but because of your great mercy.” The appeal is for God’s name’s sake. The prayer is urgent: “O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, pay attention and act.”

The answer comes by Gabriel, who says that as soon as Daniel began to pray, a word went out. Then the prophecy of the seventy weeks: seventy sevens decreed for the people and the city. Six things are to be accomplished: to finish the transgression, to put an end to sin, to atone for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal the vision and prophecy, and to anoint a most holy place. These are the great goals of redemption. The details of the timeline are debated, but Christians have long seen in it a pointer to the Messiah, the anointed one, who will be cut off and bring the atonement.

Chapter 10 shows a heavenly dimension. Daniel’s prayer had been heard from the first day, but the angel was delayed 21 days by “the prince of the kingdom of Persia” until Michael came to help. This is a glimpse of spiritual warfare behind the scenes of history. Daniel is strengthened by the angel’s touch: “Peace be with you; be strong and of good courage.”

STEP 5

Connection

1 John 1:9 says, “If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins.” Romans 5:6-11 speaks of Christ dying for the ungodly. Hebrews 9:26 says Christ has appeared “to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself,” fulfilling the goals of Daniel 9:24. Ephesians 6:12 says we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against the spiritual forces of evil. Revelation 1:12-18 shows the glorified Christ in a similar picture to Daniel 10.

STEP 6

Application

Use Daniel’s prayer as a pattern. Start with God’s word, confess honestly, appeal to his mercy and not your merit.

Pray for your community or nation, using “we” and not “they.”

Take courage from Daniel 10:12. Your prayers are heard from the first day, even if the answer is delayed.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess your sin and the sin of your people in your own words.
- Tell God you do not plead your righteousness but his mercy.
- Ask him to hear and act for his own name’s sake.

EZRA 3:11

DAY 494 · WEEK 71

Daniel 11:1-12:13

The kings of north and south; the resurrection of the dead

Year 1 · Unit 13 · Reading · 57 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Daniel 11:1-12:13. This is a long and detailed prophecy of the conflicts between kings of the north and south. Do not get lost in the details. Read for the ending in chapter 12: the resurrection of the dead, and the final word to Daniel.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This last vision comes in 536 BC, and it traces the history of the Persian and Greek empires, and especially the conflicts between the Ptolemies of Egypt (the king of the south) and the Seleucids of Syria (the king of the north). It culminates in the persecution of the Jewish people under Antiochus Epiphanes in the second century BC, and looks beyond to the end times. Chapter 12 gives the clearest statement of resurrection in the Old Testament.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “But the people who know their God shall stand firm and take action” (11:32).
2. “And those who are wise among the people shall make many understand, though for some days they shall stumble by sword and flame” (11:33).
3. “At that time shall arise Michael, the great prince who has charge of your people” (12:1).
4. “And there shall be a time of trouble, such as never has been since there was a nation till that time. But at that time your people shall be delivered, everyone whose name shall be found written in the book” (12:1).
5. “And many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt” (12:2).

6. “And those who are wise shall shine like the brightness of the sky above; and those who turn many to righteousness, like the stars forever and ever” (12:3).
7. “But you, go your way till the end. And you shall rest and shall stand in your allotted place at the end of the days” (12:13).
8. “Shut up the words and seal the book, until the time of the end” (12:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 11 is a long survey of history in prophecy, with such detail that critics have claimed it must have been written after the events. Believers see in it the sovereign foreknowledge of God. The point is that history is not random. The kings of the north and south rise and fall, make treaties and break them, and God is working through it. The history culminates in the desecration of the temple by a contemptuous king, and then the picture moves beyond him.

In the midst of the persecution, there is a counterpoint. “The people who know their God shall stand firm and take action.” This is the verse of the chapter. Persecution does not destroy those who know their God. They shall stand firm. And those who are wise will make many understand, even though they stumble by sword and flame. The suffering of the saints is not meaningless: it refines and purifies.

Chapter 12 turns to the end. A time of trouble will come, unlike any before. But Daniel’s people will be delivered, “everyone whose name shall be found written in the book.” Then comes the resurrection promise: “Many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.” This is one of the clearest teachings of the resurrection of the dead in the Old Testament. Both the righteous and the wicked will rise. The wise will shine like the stars.

The book ends with a personal word to Daniel. He is told to seal the book until the time of the end, and then, tenderly: “But you, go your way till the end. And you shall rest and shall stand in your allotted place at the end of the days.” The old prophet will rest and rise. It is a fitting close to the long unit of exile. After everything, the final word is of rest and resurrection.

STEP 5

Connection

John 5:28-29 says that all who are in the tombs will hear his voice and come out, “those who have done good to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil to the resurrection of judgment.” 1 Corinthians 15:51-58 speaks of the resurrection. Matthew 24:21 echoes the “time of trouble such as never has been.” Philippians 2:15 says believers shine like stars in the world. Revelation 20:12-15 mentions the book of life. 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 comforts us with the hope of resurrection.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Daniel 11:32b: “The people who know their God shall stand firm and take action.” Ask how your knowledge of God can lead to firm action.

Take comfort in the promise of resurrection when you grieve.

Seek to be one who “turns many to righteousness.” Ask whom God may be calling you to encourage in the faith.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to help you know him and stand firm.
- Thank him that your name is written in his book.
- Thank him for the hope of the resurrection.

Unit Verse

> "I will put my law within them, and I will write it on their hearts. And I will be their God, and they shall be my people."
> JEREMIAH 31:33

REST

Meditation

This is the unit's anchor verse, the heart of the new covenant promise. After the long account of judgment, exile, and loss, it is the answer God gives to the problem of the human heart.

"I will put my law within them." The old covenant was written on stone tablets. It was holy, righteous, and good, but it was external. The people heard it, agreed to it, and broke it. God did not change the law. He changes where it is kept. "Within them." The law moves from tablet to the center of the person.

"And I will write it on their hearts." To write on the heart is to make obedience a matter of desire, not just duty. It is what Ezekiel describes as a new heart and the Spirit within. Where there was resistance, there is delight. Psalm 40:8 says, "I delight to do your will, O my God; your law is within my heart." The new covenant makes this the normal experience of God's people.

"And I will be their God, and they shall be my people." This is the covenant formula running through the whole Bible. It is the goal of redemption: a people who belong to God, and a God who belongs to his people. It is the language of marriage and family. It is also the language of Revelation 21:3.

Say this verse from memory, and think about the unit as a whole. It began with the fall of Jerusalem and ended with promises of a new heart, a new temple, and a kingdom that will never be destroyed. All of this is fulfilled in Jesus, who said at the Last Supper, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood." If you have trusted in him, this promise is for you.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

This unit covered the exile, the darkest period of the Old Testament and one of the richest in hope. Josiah's reform could not undo Manasseh's sin, and Jerusalem fell in 586 BC. Jeremiah, the weeping prophet, warned for forty years, confronted false hope in the temple and in false prophets, and wrote to the exiles that they should seek the welfare of Babylon. At the center of his book is the Book of Consolation, with the promise of a new covenant, in which God writes his law on the heart and forgives sin forever. Lamentations gave voice to grief and found hope in the steadfast love that is new every morning. Ezekiel saw God's glory on a mobile throne in Babylon, watched it leave the temple, and then heard the promise of a heart of flesh, the Spirit within, the dry bones that live, and the return of the glory to a city whose name is "The LORD Is There." Daniel showed what faithful life looks like in a foreign empire: refusing to defile himself, trusting God in the furnace and the lions' den, and seeing the Son of Man receive an everlasting kingdom. The psalms of the unit gave words for lament, trust, and praise.

REFLECT

Review Questions

What is the New Covenant promise in Jeremiah 31?

Recall the four promises: the law written on the heart, a restored relationship, direct knowledge of God, and complete forgiveness. How is this different from the covenant at Sinai? Look at Hebrews 8:6-13 and Luke 22:20 to see how it is fulfilled in Christ.

What does the glory departing from the Temple in Ezekiel 8-11 mean?

Think about the reasons the glory left (the idolatry in the temple), the slow stages of its departure, and what it meant for the exiles. What is the significance of the glory's return in Ezekiel 43, and how does John 1:14 relate?

What does Ezekiel 36-37 promise about the Spirit's work in the New Covenant?

Consider the cleansing water, the new heart and new spirit, and the Spirit within us who causes us to walk in God's statutes. Consider the valley of dry bones. How does Jesus' conversation with Nicodemus in John 3:1-8 draw on this passage?

Who is the Son of Man in Daniel 7, and why is this title important?

Describe the scene: the beasts, the Ancient of Days, and the one like a son of man coming with the clouds. Why did Jesus use this title for himself, and why did the high priest react as he did in Mark 14:61-64?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for writing his law on your heart.

Thank him for what you have learned through the exile.

DAY 496 · WEEK 71

Ezra 1:1-3:13

The return decreed; the Temple foundation, joy and weeping

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 69 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezra 1:1-3:13. A pagan king releases the exiles, and a remnant returns to rebuild the temple. The chapter ends with a sound that is half laughter and half weeping. Read the last verses slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the final unit of the Old Testament. It covers about 150 years, from the decree of Cyrus in 538 BC to the close of the prophets around 400 BC. The exile ended just as Jeremiah said, after seventy years. Ezra and Nehemiah tell what happened next. Chronicles retells the whole story for the returned community. The theme of the unit is a partial return: God keeps his promises, but the full restoration is still to come.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “In the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus” (1:1).
2. “Whoever is among you of all his people, may his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem” (1:3).
3. Cyrus returned the temple vessels that Nebuchadnezzar had taken (1:7-11).
4. About 42,360 people returned, along with servants and singers (2:64-65).
5. “Then Jeshua… and his kinsmen… arose and built the altar of the God of Israel” (3:2).
6. “They set up the altar on its foundation, for fear was on them because of the peoples of the lands” (3:3).

7. “And they sang responsively, praising and giving thanks to the LORD, For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever toward Israel” (3:11).

8. “Many of the priests and Levites and heads of fathers” houses, old men who had seen the first house, wept with a loud voice when they saw the foundation of this house’ (3:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Ezra begins by repeating the last verses of 2 Chronicles. God “stirred up the spirit of Cyrus,” the same Cyrus Isaiah had named by name 150 years earlier. The mightiest king in the world was moved by the LORD to send his people home. God works through pagan kings as easily as through prophets.

Only a remnant goes. Of the hundreds of thousands in exile, about 42,000 make the journey. Most stayed in Babylon, comfortable and settled. The ones who go are those whose spirits God stirred. Return costs something. The list in chapter 2 is full of names, as if to say that God knows each family who made that trip.

Their first act is not building a house for themselves. They build the altar. “For fear was on them because of the peoples of the lands,” yet they begin with worship. Then, in the second year, they lay the temple foundation. The priests blow trumpets, the Levites clash cymbals, and the people sing the refrain you met in Psalm 136: “He is good, for his steadfast love endures forever toward Israel.”

Then comes the strange mixture. Many shout for joy. But the old men who remembered Solomon’s temple weep aloud, because this foundation is so small by comparison. “The sound was heard far away.” No one could tell the shouts of joy from the sound of weeping. That is the mark of the whole unit. The return is real, and it is smaller than the promise. The people have come home, but they are still under Persia, and the glory has not yet returned. Joy and sorrow sit side by side, and both are right.

STEP 5

Connection

Haggai 2:3 asks, “Who is left among you who saw this house in its former glory?” Jesus began with small things: a mustard seed (Matthew 13:31-32). Zechariah 4:10 says, “Who has despised the day of small things?” Romans 8:23 says that we groan inwardly as we wait for redemption, though we have the first fruits of the Spirit. Philippians 1:6 promises that God who began a good work will bring it to completion.

STEP 6

Application

Where has God given you a beginning that seems small compared to what you hoped? Thank him for it anyway.

Build your altar first: begin your day or your project with worship.

Be honest that joy and sorrow can coexist. You do not have to choose only one.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to stir your spirit to go where he calls.
- Thank him for bringing a remnant home.
- Tell him what you want to rebuild.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Ezra 3:11 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And they sang responsively, praising and giving thanks to the LORD, For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever toward Israel."

EZRA 3:11

REST

Meditation

This sentence was sung by a small group of people standing in front of a foundation. They had come back to a ruined city. The walls were down. The temple was a pile of stones. And they sang.

"They sang responsively." One group sang a line, and another answered. Worship together has a shape: we speak to each other and to God. No one is alone. In a time of rebuilding, they needed each other's voices.

"Praising and giving thanks to the LORD." The foundation was only a foundation. But they praised God for what he had done, not for what was finished. Gratitude does not wait until the work is complete.

“For he is good.” This is the reason for praise: God himself, not their circumstances. The circumstances were mixed. The old men were weeping. Persia was still in charge. Enemies were waiting. But God was good.

“For his steadfast love endures forever toward Israel.” The word “endures” reminds us that the exile did not end it. Seventy years of captivity could not cancel God’s covenant love. It is the same refrain as Psalm 136 and the same truth as Lamentations 3. Their song was an act of faith: the God who sent them away has brought them back.

Say this verse whenever you stand at the foundation of something that is not yet finished. You do not have to wait for the walls to go up. Sing now.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the Old Testament’s exile story and began its last chapter. You finished Daniel with the writing on the wall, the lions’ den, the vision of the Son of Man, and the promise of resurrection. Then, on the first day of Unit 14, you read the decree of Cyrus and followed the first returning exiles home. You saw them build the altar before the temple, and lay the foundation to the sound of trumpets, cymbals, and a song of thanks. And you heard the sound that mixes shouting with weeping. The week taught that God keeps his promises and moves the hearts of kings, that he brings his people home, and that the return, though real, is still only a beginning.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

The returning exiles built the altar before they built anything else. What would it look like to put worship first in your day, your work, or your home?

The old men wept when they saw the small foundation. Is there something in your life that is smaller than you hoped, and how might God want you to receive it?

God stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, a pagan king, to fulfill his word. Where have you seen God work through someone who did not know him?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Give thanks to God for his steadfast love.

Thank him for bringing his people home.

Rest in him.

DAY 498 · WEEK 72

Ezra 4:1-6:22

Opposition; the Temple completed; Passover kept

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 72 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezra 4:1-6:22. Enemies stop the work for about fifteen years, and God uses two prophets to restart it. The temple is finished, and the people keep the Passover. Read for the way opposition is met.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The neighbors of the returning Jews, resettled peoples of the former northern kingdom, offered to help build the temple. When Zerubbabel and Jeshua refused, they became enemies. They discouraged the builders, bribed officials, and finally wrote letters to the Persian court. The work stopped from about 536 to 520 BC. Haggai and Zechariah, whom you will read near the end of this unit, then preached, and the work resumed. The temple was finished in 516 BC, seventy years after its destruction.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “You have nothing to do with us in building a house to our God” (4:3).
2. “Then the people of the land discouraged the people of Judah and made them afraid to build” (4:4).
3. “Then the work on the house of God in Jerusalem stopped” (4:24).
4. “Then the prophets, Haggai and Zechariah the son of Iddo, prophesied to the Jews” (5:1).
5. “But the eye of their God was on the elders of the Jews, and they were not stopped” (5:5).
6. “We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are rebuilding the house that was built many years ago” (5:11).

7. “And the elders of the Jews built and prospered through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet” (6:14).

8. “And they kept the Feast of Unleavened Bread seven days with joy, for the LORD had made them joyful” (6:22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The conflict begins with an offer that sounds friendly. The local peoples say, “Let us build with you, for we worship your God.” Zerubbabel refuses. It was not unkind but wise. These people had mixed the worship of the LORD with other gods (2 Kings 17:33). To build together would have meant a compromised temple. The refusal cost them, because opposition followed: discouragement, fear, bribes, and accusations. Tactics of those who oppose God’s work have not changed.

The work stops. For sixteen years, the foundation sits unfinished. The people turn to their own homes. This is a lesson in how a good beginning can stall when we are tired, afraid, or distracted.

But God sends help. Haggai and Zechariah prophesy, and the leaders rise and start building again. When the governor Tattenai asks who authorized them, the Jews answer with confidence and with their history: “We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth.” A letter is sent to Darius, and he discovers the original decree of Cyrus in the archives. He not only allows the work but orders the provinces to pay for it. The enemies who tried to stop it are made to fund it.

The note in 5:5 is the heart of it: “The eye of their God was on the elders of the Jews, and they were not stopped.” God is watching. The temple is finished in the sixth year of Darius, and the dedication is full of joy. They keep the Passover, as in Hezekiah’s and Josiah’s days. And the writer adds: “The LORD had made them joyful, and had turned the heart of the king of Assyria toward them.” Even the opposition was in God’s hand.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, “I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it” (Matthew 16:18). Nehemiah and Paul faced similar opposition (Acts 19, 2 Corinthians 11). 1 Peter 2:5 says we are being built up as a spiritual house. Galatians 6:9 says, “Let us not grow weary of doing good.” Philippians 4:6: do not be anxious. Romans 8:31: if God is for us, who can be against us?

STEP 6

Application

Think about a project God gave you that has stalled. Ask what is needed to start again.

Pray for those who face opposition in their ministry or work.

Be discerning about offers of "help" that would compromise your devotion to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to keep you building when you are afraid or tired.
- Thank him that his eye is on those who serve him.
- Ask him to raise up encouragers around you.

EZRA 7:10

DAY 499 · WEEK 72

Psalm 126

When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 126. You read this psalm in Unit 13 as a hope for the exiles. Now that the first exiles are home, read it again as their own song, sung with the foundation of the temple in front of them.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 126 is a Song of Ascents. Earlier, you read it as a dream of return. Today read it as a song of those who have returned. The joy of verses 1 to 3 is the joy of the day the decree was announced. The prayer of verses 4 to 6 fits the days of delay, opposition, and small beginnings that you have just read in Ezra. It holds both: thanks for what God has done, and a plea for more.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion, we were like those who dream” (v. 1).
2. “Then our mouth was filled with laughter, and our tongue with shouts of joy” (v. 2).
3. “Then they said among the nations, The LORD has done great things for them” (v. 2).
4. “The LORD has done great things for us; we are glad” (v. 3).
5. “Restore our fortunes, O LORD, like streams in the Negeb!” (v. 4).
6. “Those who sow in tears shall reap with shouts of joy!” (v. 5).
7. “He who goes out weeping, bearing the seed for sowing” (v. 6).
8. “Shall come home with shouts of joy, bringing his sheaves with him” (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a song of already and not yet. In the first half, the people remember the day God restored them. It was so wonderful that it felt like a dream. Laughter, shouts of joy, and even the nations noticing. Ezra 1 and 3 are a commentary on this: a pagan king's decree, the singing at the foundation. They were glad.

But in the second half, there is a request. "Restore our fortunes, O LORD." The returned exiles are back, and yet they still pray for restoration. The land was poor, the walls were broken, the Persians ruled, and the opposition was strong. The first restoration was real, and the work was incomplete. They prayed for more, like the desert streams of the Negeb that burst into life after rain.

Then comes the image of sowing. The farmer goes out weeping because seed is precious, and in a time of famine, it hurts to put it in the ground. He sows in tears, trusting that it will grow. And God promises that he will come back with shouts of joy and with sheaves. The pattern is that tears and joy are connected. Tears are not wasted. They are part of the sowing.

This is what the returned community needed to hear while building the temple under threat. And it is what believers need while waiting for a final restoration. We have tasted the first fruits, and we wait for the harvest. We sow in tears because we live in a world that is not yet made new, and we do it in hope.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus said, "Blessed are you who weep now, for you shall laugh" (Luke 6:21). John 16:20: "You will be sorrowful, but your sorrow will turn into joy." Galatians 6:9: "In due season we will reap, if we do not give up." 1 Corinthians 15:58: "Your labor is not in vain in the Lord." Romans 8:23-25 describes waiting for the redemption of our bodies. Revelation 21:4 promises no more tears.

STEP 6

Application

Name something you are currently "sowing in tears." Offer it to God, and trust the harvest.

Thank God for a restoration he has already given you, and ask for more.

Encourage someone who is weeping as they work or serve.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the great things he has done for you.

Ask him to restore what is dry in you.

Tell him about tears you are sowing.

EZRA 7:10

DAY 500 · WEEK 72

Psalm 85

LORD, you were favorable, will you not revive us again?

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 85. You read this psalm in Unit 13 as a prayer for revival in exile. Read it now as the prayer of people who are back in the land and find that the glory is not what they hoped. Notice again verses 10 to 13.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 85 begins by recalling that God has been favorable to his land and restored the fortunes of Jacob. For the returned exiles, this meant the decree of Cyrus. But the psalm goes on to ask, "Will you not revive us again?" It fits the period of Ezra and Haggai, when the people had returned and still lacked the full blessing. On Day 430 you read it as a lament from the dark side of exile. Today read it as a post-return prayer.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "LORD, you were favorable to your land; you restored the fortunes of Jacob" (v. 1).
2. "You forgave the iniquity of your people; you covered all their sin" (v. 2).
3. "Restore us again, O God of our salvation, and put away your indignation toward us!" (v. 4).
4. "Will you be angry with us forever? Will you prolong your anger to all generations?" (v. 5).
5. "Will you not revive us again, that your people may rejoice in you?" (v. 6).
6. "Let me hear what God the LORD will speak, for he will speak peace to his people" (v. 8).
7. "Steadfast love and faithfulness meet; righteousness and peace kiss each other" (v. 10).
8. "Righteousness will go before him and make his footsteps a way" (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The post-return period was a time of mixed feelings. The people had been brought home, but life was hard. Crops failed, the economy was poor, the temple lagged, and neighbors were hostile. Haggai said that they earned wages and put them in a bag with holes. It would have been easy to think that God was still angry.

The psalm answers by returning to history: God has already forgiven. “You covered all their sin.” It is a statement of faith that does not depend on present feelings. The past forgiveness is the ground for the present request. “Restore us again.” We are allowed to ask God to do again what he has already done.

The psalmist then does something wise. He stops talking and listens: “Let me hear what God the LORD will speak.” The word is peace, but with a condition: “Let them not turn back to folly.” Peace is for those who fear him, and God’s salvation is near to them. The glory will dwell in the land.

The great picture follows. Steadfast love and faithfulness meet. Righteousness and peace kiss. Faithfulness springs from the ground and righteousness looks down from heaven. The Lord will give what is good. This is a vision of heaven and earth cooperating. For Ezra’s generation, it was a hope: someday the land would be so blessed. For us it points to Christ, in whom heaven and earth meet.

The last line is a promise of a path: righteousness will go before him and make his footsteps a way. God is coming. His footsteps prepare the road.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 1:78-79 says, “The sunrise shall visit us from on high to give light to those who sit in darkness… to guide our feet into the way of peace.” John 1:14 says the Word became flesh, full of grace and truth. Colossians 1:20 says God made peace by the blood of his cross. Romans 5:1: “Since we have been justified by faith, we have peace with God.” Ephesians 2:14: “He himself is our peace.” Isaiah 40:3 speaks of preparing the way of the LORD.

STEP 6

Application

Pray “Will you not revive us again?” for your church or community.

Be still and ask what God is speaking. Listen for five minutes.

Thank God that in Christ, steadfast love and faithfulness have met, and righteousness and peace have kissed.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to revive you.

Ask him to speak peace to you and keep you from turning back to folly.

Thank him that righteousness and peace will kiss.

DAY 501 · WEEK 72

Psalm 107:1-22

Give thanks to the LORD; he gathered the exiles

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 107:1-22. You read this passage on Day 442 as a song of rescue for those in every kind of trouble. Read it now as the psalm of the ones who have actually come home. Let the opening lines be the first words they said.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 107 opens the last book of the Psalter with the words, “Let the redeemed of the LORD say so, whom he has redeemed from trouble and gathered in from the lands.” That is the exact situation of Ezra’s generation. They were gathered from the east, the north, the south, and the west. On Day 442 you read this as the cry of those still waiting. Today, read it as the thanks of those who have returned and are rebuilding.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever!” (v. 1).
2. “Let the redeemed of the LORD say so” (v. 2).
3. “Gathered in from the lands, from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south” (v. 3).
4. “He led them by a straight way till they reached a city to dwell in” (v. 7).
5. “Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love, for his wondrous works to the children of men!” (v. 8).
6. “For he satisfies the longing soul, and the hungry soul he fills with good things” (v. 9).

7. “He brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death, and burst their bonds apart” (v. 14).

8. “And let them offer sacrifices of thanksgiving, and tell of his deeds in songs of joy!” (v. 22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

This is the testimony of the redeemed. The psalm does not tell them to wait until the story is complete. It tells them to say so. A redeemed person has something to say, and the first thing is thanks.

The first story is of wanderers in the desert, hungry and thirsty, who found no city to live in. Think of the caravan from Babylon, traveling over 800 miles to a city that lay in ruins. God “led them by a straight way till they reached a city to dwell in.” Their journey was real, and so was God’s guidance.

The second story is of prisoners in darkness. This is what the exile was. They were captives for rebelling against the words of God. And yet, when they cried out, “he burst their bonds apart.” The third is the sick, who were “fools through their sinful ways.” God’s word healed them.

What is the common thread? Each group was in trouble, each cried out, and each was rescued. Each time the response is the same: “Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love, for his wondrous works.” The psalm names what the right response is, thanks and sacrifice and songs of joy.

In the setting of the return, thanksgiving was also practical. The altar had been built, and sacrifices of thanksgiving were being offered. Telling of God’s deeds was part of the rebuilding. Remembering and recounting is what keeps the people alive. In the unit’s larger story, Chronicles will do the same on a larger scale, telling the whole history so that the community remembers who they are.

STEP 5

Connection

Colossians 1:13-14 says God “has delivered us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son.” Luke 4:18-19: the Spirit anoints him to proclaim liberty to the captives. Ephesians 2:13 says that those who were far off have been brought near. Hebrews 13:15 invites us to offer a sacrifice of praise. 1 Peter 2:9: “that you may proclaim the excellencies of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light.”

STEP 6

Application

Say it out loud: tell one person today what God has redeemed you from.

Write a short thank-you list in the pattern of the psalm: from what you were rescued, how you cried out, and how God answered.

Offer a “sacrifice of thanksgiving” this week, through a gift, a word of praise, or a service.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Give thanks to God for gathering you from a far place.

Let your own story say, “The LORD is good,” in your own words.

Thank him that his steadfast love endures forever.

EZRA 7:10

DAY 502 · WEEK 72

Ezra 7:1-8:36

Ezra arrives; the journey from Babylon to Jerusalem

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezra 7:1-8:36. Fifty-eight years after the temple is finished, Ezra the scribe arrives in Jerusalem. Notice what the text says about his heart in 7:10, and how he organizes the journey in chapter 8.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Ezra comes to Jerusalem in 458 BC, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes. He is a priest descended from Aaron and a scribe skilled in the Law of Moses. The temple was built, but the community was spiritually weak, and many were not following the law. The king gave Ezra authority to teach and enforce it. He leads a second group of returning exiles, about 1,800 people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “This Ezra went up from Babylonia. He was a scribe skilled in the Law of Moses” (7:6).
2. “And the king granted him all that he asked, for the hand of the LORD his God was on him” (7:6).
3. “For Ezra had set his heart to study the Law of the LORD, and to do it and to teach his statutes and rules in Israel” (7:10).
4. “Blessed be the LORD, the God of our fathers, who put such a thing as this into the heart of the king” (7:27).
5. “I was ashamed to ask the king for a band of soldiers and horsemen to protect us against the enemy on the way” (8:22).

6. “The hand of our God is for good on all who seek him, and the power of his wrath is against all who forsake him” (8:22).
7. “So we fasted and implored our God for this, and he listened to our entreaty” (8:23).
8. “The hand of our God was on us, and he delivered us from the hand of the enemy and from ambushes by the way” (8:31).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Verse 10 of chapter 7 is among the best descriptions of a teacher of God’s word in the Bible. Ezra “set his heart” to do three things in order: to study the Law of the LORD, to do it, and to teach it. First he studied. Second he practiced. Only then did he teach. The order matters. A teacher who has not studied is shallow. A teacher who has not obeyed is a hypocrite. And study and obedience exist for the sake of sharing.

The phrase “the hand of the LORD his God was on him” appears again and again. Ezra does not take credit. The king’s favor, the safe journey, the gifts and authority all come from God’s hand. The letter from Artaxerxes is remarkable: it commands the treasurers to give whatever Ezra requests for the house of the God of heaven, “lest his wrath be against the realm of the king.” Again, the heart of a Persian king is in God’s hand.

Chapter 8 gives the list of the families and the preparation for the journey. Ezra gathers the people at the river Ahava and discovers that no Levites have come. He sends for them, and they come. Then he does something striking. He is ashamed to ask the king for an armed escort, since he had told the king that “the hand of our God is for good on all who seek him.” Having said it, he proves it. The group fasts and prays for a safe journey. “And he listened to our entreaty.” The caravan carries a fortune in silver, gold, and vessels, and they are not robbed.

The principle is that faith is shown in dependence. Ezra could have asked for soldiers. He chose prayer. He took a risk, the kind that invites God to show who he is.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Timothy 2:15 says, “Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved, a worker who has no need to be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth.” James 1:22 says to be doers of the word. Ezekiel 3:1-3 shows the prophet eating the scroll. Ezra’s study, practice, and teaching match Jesus’ pattern (Acts 1:1). Psalm 20:7: “Some trust in chariots and some in horses, but we trust in the name of the LORD our God.”

STEP 6

Application

Follow Ezra's order: study something in Scripture this week, apply it, and then share it with someone.

Think about when you reached for "soldiers and horsemen" instead of prayer. What would it look like to depend on God in that area?

Give thanks for those who teach God's word faithfully.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to give you a heart set to study his law, do it, and teach it.
- Ask him to let his hand be on you for good.
- Tell him where you are trusting him over human protection.

EZRA 7:10

DAY 503 · WEEK 72

Ezra 9:1-10:44

Mixed marriages; covenant faithfulness restored

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 59 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ezra 9:1-10:44. Ezra discovers that many in Israel have married women from the surrounding peoples, who worship other gods. He responds with grief and prayer, and the people respond with repentance. This is a hard passage. Read it carefully.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Soon after Ezra arrives, the leaders report that the people, including priests and Levites, have taken wives from the peoples of the land, adopting their abominations. The concern is not ethnic. The law forbade intermarriage with the Canaanite nations because it would draw Israel into idolatry (Deuteronomy 7:1-4). The same law welcomed foreigners like Rahab and Ruth who came to worship the LORD. The issue here is covenant faithfulness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "As soon as I heard this, I tore my garment and my cloak and pulled hair from my head and beard and sat appalled" (9:3).
2. "O my God, I am ashamed and blush to lift my face to you, my God, for our iniquities have risen higher than our heads" (9:6).
3. "And now, for a brief moment, grace has been shown by the LORD our God, who has left us a remnant" (9:8).
4. "Our God has not forsaken us in our slavery, but has extended to us his steadfast love in the sight of the kings of Persia" (9:9).
5. "O LORD, God of Israel, you are righteous, for we are left a remnant that has escaped, as it is this day" (9:15).

6. “While Ezra prayed and made confession, weeping and casting himself down before the house of God, a very great assembly of men, women, and children gathered” (10:1).
7. “Shecaniah… said to Ezra, We have broken faith with our God… But even now there is hope for Israel in spite of this” (10:2).
8. “Arise, for it is your task, and we are with you; be strong and do it” (10:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Ezra’s response is not anger at others. He tears his garment, pulls his hair, and sits appalled until the evening sacrifice. Then he prays on his knees. His prayer is a model. He says “we,” not “they.” He had not married foreign wives himself, but he identifies with the people. He is ashamed. “Our iniquities have risen higher than our heads.” He recalls the history of exile as the result of such sins. And he admits that they have done it again, after all God’s mercy.

The key note is grace. “For a brief moment, grace has been shown by the LORD our God.” Even in the middle of the confession, he acknowledges that being back in the land is itself a gift, “a little reviving in our slavery.” He does not ask for anything. He simply puts himself and the people before the righteous God: “We cannot stand before you because of this.”

The prayer moves the people. A great crowd gathers, weeping. Shecaniah speaks: “We have broken faith with our God… But even now there is hope for Israel in spite of this.” This is the grace of repentance. They propose a covenant to put away the foreign wives and children. It is a painful and controversial decision, and the chapter ends with a long list of names of those who did so. The text does not hide that this was costly and difficult.

We should read this with care. Some readers see in it a harsh ethnic rule. But the text emphasizes the matter of faith: the wives came from idolatrous peoples, and the people of God were in danger of losing their identity as the people who worship the LORD alone. For Christians, the principle is found in 2 Corinthians 6:14-18 and 1 Corinthians 7:12-16, where those already married to unbelievers are told to remain. The heart of the passage is not the specific remedy but the seriousness of repentance and the priority of covenant faithfulness to God.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 9:4-19 shows the same kind of identifying prayer. 1 John 1:9: “If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us.” 2 Corinthians 7:10 says godly grief produces repentance that leads to salvation. Ruth, a Moabite, became part of the family of the Messiah by faith (Ruth 4:13-22; Matthew 1:5). Galatians 3:28 says that in Christ there is neither Jew nor Greek. Revelation 7:9 pictures every nation, tribe, people, and language worshiping together.

STEP 6

Application

Pray Ezra's kind of prayer with "we" for your church or community. Confess sins that you share in, even when you were not directly involved.

Ask where your closest alliances and loyalties might draw you away from the LORD.

Receive Shecaniah's words as encouragement: "Even now there is hope."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess in your own words where you are ashamed before God.
- Thank him for being righteous and merciful.
- Ask him to help you turn from what you must leave.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Ezra 7:10 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For Ezra had set his heart to study the Law of the LORD, and to do it and to teach his statutes and rules in Israel."

EZRA 7:10

REST

Meditation

This verse is a summary of a whole life. Ezra's greatness was not in a position but in a heart, and the verse tells us exactly what was in it.

"Ezra had set his heart." To set the heart is a decision, a firm resolve. It did not happen by accident or by drift. It was a choice made on purpose and kept over time. The Hebrew word means to fix or establish. His heart was anchored.

"To study the Law of the LORD." The first thing is study. The word means to seek, to inquire, to dig. Ezra approached Scripture as someone who wanted to know it deeply. He was a scribe, skilled in the Law, but skill was not enough. He studied because he loved it.

"And to do it." The second thing is practice. Knowledge without obedience is empty. Ezra aimed to live what he studied. James 1:22 would later say the same: be doers of the word and not hearers only.

“And to teach his statutes and rules in Israel.” The third thing is teaching. Having studied and obeyed, he shared. His goal was the good of the whole people.

The order here is the pattern for anyone who handles the word of God. You cannot teach what you do not do, and you cannot do what you do not know. If you are a parent, a teacher, a leader in the church, or simply a friend, this verse describes the path. Say it as a prayer: set my heart to study, to do, and to teach.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you followed the returned exiles through their first sixty years in the land. You read of the foundation of the temple, the opposition that stopped the work, and the prophets who started it again. You saw the temple finished and the Passover kept with joy. You prayed three psalms of return: Psalm 126, the dream of coming home and the hope of sowing in tears; Psalm 85, the prayer for revival; and Psalm 107, the thanks of those redeemed and gathered from the lands. Then you met Ezra, the scribe who set his heart to study, practice, and teach the law of the LORD. You followed him as he prayed for a safe journey, and as he wept over the sin of the people. The week taught that God keeps his word through the hearts of kings, that opposition cannot stop his work, and that repentance and the word of God are the basis of renewal.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Ezra studied, practiced, and then taught. Which of the three is hardest for you right now, and what is one step you could take?

When the work stopped, God sent prophets to encourage the builders. Who has encouraged you in a stalled season, and who might you encourage?

Ezra prayed with “we” and not “they.” What would it look like to confess sin on behalf of your church or community?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to set your heart to study his law and to do it.

Thank him for teachers who have taught you.

Rest in him today.

DAY 505 · WEEK 73

Nehemiah 1:1-2:20

Nehemiah's prayer; commissioned to rebuild the wall

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 31 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Nehemiah 1:1-2:20. Nehemiah, a cupbearer to the Persian king, hears that Jerusalem's walls are still broken. Notice that he prays before he speaks, and speaks only after he has prayed for months.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is 445 BC, about thirteen years after Ezra. The temple stands, but Jerusalem has no walls, which leaves it defenseless and shameful. Nehemiah serves in the palace at Susa as cupbearer to Artaxerxes, a trusted position close to the king. A visitor from Judah brings him news of the city's "great trouble and shame." Nehemiah's own memoir fills this book, and it is full of prayer.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "When I heard these words I sat down and wept and mourned for days, and I continued fasting and praying before the God of heaven" (1:4).
2. "Let your ear be attentive and your eyes open, to hear the prayer of your servant" (1:6).
3. "Both I and my father's house have sinned" (1:6).
4. "Remember the word that you commanded your servant Moses" (1:8).
5. "Then the king said to me, What are you requesting? So I prayed to the God of heaven" (2:4).
6. "And the king granted me what I asked, for the good hand of my God was upon me" (2:8).
7. "Let us rise up and build. So they strengthened their hands for the good work" (2:18).

8 “The God of heaven will make us prosper, and we his servants will arise and build” (2:20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Nehemiah’s first response to bad news is tears and prayer. He does not rush to a plan. For about four months, from Chislev to Nisan, he fasts and prays. His prayer follows the pattern of Daniel 9 and Ezra 9: he praises God for his covenant love, confesses sins including his own and his father’s house, remembers the promise of Moses to gather the scattered, and asks for success before the king.

Then comes the moment. The king notices that his cupbearer is sad, which is dangerous, since sadness in the royal presence could cost a man his life. “Then I was very much afraid.” The king asks what he wants. Nehemiah does something wonderful: “So I prayed to the God of heaven.” In the span of a breath, between the king’s question and his own answer, he sends up a prayer. Then he answers boldly and specifically. He asks for time, letters of safe passage, and timber. All of it is given, “for the good hand of my God was upon me.”

Nehemiah arrives in Jerusalem and quietly inspects the walls at night. Only then does he tell the leaders about the vision God gave him. His appeal ties the work to what God has already done: “I told them how the hand of my God had been upon me for good.” They answer, “Let us rise up and build.”

Opposition appears at once, in the form of Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem, who mock and accuse. Nehemiah’s reply is calm: “The God of heaven will make us prosper.” He does not argue or defend himself. He states whose work it is.

The pattern is prayer, planning, and perseverance. Prayer came first and was sustained. Planning followed, with specific requests and a night survey. Then came bold action.

STEP 5

Connection

Jesus told his disciples to pray and not lose heart (Luke 18:1). Philippians 4:6 says, “In everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God.” James 1:5 promises wisdom to those who ask. Proverbs 21:1 says the king’s heart is a stream of water in the hand of the LORD. Colossians 4:2-3 asks us to continue steadfastly in prayer. Luke 14:28 teaches counting the cost before building.

STEP 6

Application

Practice the “arrow prayer” today: breathe a quick prayer before a hard conversation or decision.

Name a broken wall in your family, church, or community that burdens you. Pray about it for a week before you act.

Confess sins you share in, as Nehemiah did, and then ask God for his good hand.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Pray as Nehemiah did: praise God, confess your sin and your people’s, and name what burdens you.

Ask him to let his ear be attentive.

Tell him what you are asking him for.

NEHEMIAH 8:10

DAY 506 · WEEK 73

Nehemiah 3:1-4:23

The wall rebuilt; opposition from without

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 55 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Nehemiah 3:1-4:23. A long list of names builds the wall, and then opposition turns to ridicule and threat. Notice how Nehemiah answers both.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 3 is a work roster. Priests, goldsmiths, perfumers, rulers, daughters, and merchants each repair a section, often opposite their own homes. Chapter 4 shows the enemy's reaction: mockery, a plot to attack, and discouragement from within Judah itself. The wall is half built when the strain begins to tell.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Next to him Zadok the son of Baana repaired. Next to him the Tekoites repaired" (3:4-5).
2. "but their nobles would not stoop to serve their Lords" (3:5).
3. "Next to him Shallum... repaired, he and his daughters" (3:12).
4. "What are these feeble Jews doing?" (4:2).
5. "Hear, O our God, for we are despised" (4:4).
6. "So we built the wall... for the people had a mind to work" (4:6).
7. "And we prayed to our God and set a guard as a protection against them day and night" (4:9).
8. "Do not be afraid of them. Remember the Lord, who is great and awesome, and fight for your brothers" (4:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 3 may look like dull reading, but it carries a point. Everyone had a place. The high priest rebuilt a gate. Goldsmiths and perfumers, who knew nothing of masonry, took up stone. A man named Shallum "and his daughters" worked together. People repaired the part nearest their own houses, so that the protection of the wall mattered to them personally. The wall was a community project.

There is also a note of sadness: "the nobles of the Tekoites would not stoop to serve their Lord." God records the names of those who work and he also notes who did not. Yet the Tekoites, ordinary families, repaired two sections.

Chapter 4 shows the opposition growing. First comes ridicule: "Even what they are building, if a fox goes up on it he will break down their stone wall!" Nehemiah's response is to pray and keep building. He does not retaliate. He simply asks God to hear. "So we built the wall... for the people had a mind to work."

Then comes the threat. The enemy plans to attack, and Judah itself is discouraged: "The strength of those who carry the burdens is failing, and there is much rubbish." Their weariness is honest. Nehemiah answers with a double strategy: "We prayed to our God and set a guard." Faith and wisdom work together. He then arms families by sections and speaks the words that settle them: "Remember the Lord, who is great and awesome." Fear shrinks when God is seen as big.

The chapter ends with workers holding a trowel in one hand and a weapon in the other, sleeping in their clothes. "Our God will fight for us." It was hard, and it was done together.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Corinthians 12:12-27 describes the church as one body with many members, each needed. Ephesians 4:16 says the whole body is "joined and held together by every joint." Ephesians 6:10-18 speaks of the armor of God. Matthew 26:41 says to watch and pray. 2 Corinthians 10:4 says the weapons of our warfare are not worldly. Exodus 14:14: "The LORD will fight for you."

STEP 6

Application

Find your "section of the wall." What is nearest to your own house that you can repair or serve?

When criticized, try Nehemiah's response: pray briefly, and keep working.

Thank someone whose steady, unnoticed work holds up your community.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God for a place in his work beside others.
- Tell him what mockery or discouragement you face.
- Ask him to strengthen your hands.

NEHEMIAH 8:10

DAY 507 · WEEK 73

Nehemiah 5:1-7:73

Social justice; the wall completed; the exiles registered

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 107 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Nehemiah 5:1-7:73. A crisis arises inside the community, and Nehemiah rebukes the wealthy for exploiting the poor. Then the enemies change tactics. The wall is finished in fifty-two days.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

While the wall is rising, a cry goes up from the poor. Famine, taxes, and debt have driven them to mortgage their fields and sell their children into slavery to their own countrymen. This is a problem more dangerous than any external enemy. Nehemiah also faces personal schemes to distract and frighten him, but the wall is finished in the month of Elul.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “There was a great outcry of the people and of their wives against their Jewish brothers” (5:1).
2. “I was very angry when I heard their outcry” (5:6).
3. “I consulted with myself, and I brought charges against the nobles” (5:7).
4. “The thing that you are doing is not good. Ought you not to walk in the fear of our God?” (5:9).
5. “Out of reverence for God I did not do so” (5:15).
6. “Come and let us meet together... But they intended to do me harm” (6:2).
7. “I am doing a great work and I cannot come down” (6:3).
8. “So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul, in fifty-two days” (6:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The hardest challenge to the wall came from within. The poor were crushed by debt, and some of the rich were profiting from their brothers' misery. This was exactly what the law of Moses forbade (Exodus 22:25, Leviticus 25:35-37). Nehemiah is furious, yet notice what he does: he "consulted with myself," meaning he took time to think before he acted. Then he called a great assembly and made his case on the basis of the fear of God and the witness to the nations. The nobles repent and give back the fields and interest. Nehemiah then points to his own example. As governor, he refused the food allowance due to him, because "the service was too heavy on the people." He led with his own life.

Then the enemy changes tactics. Four times they invite him to a meeting, planning to harm him. Nehemiah's answer is a classic: "I am doing a great work and I cannot come down." He knew his calling and would not be pulled off it. The enemy tries a false accusation, then a hired prophet who tries to scare him into hiding in the temple. Nehemiah sees through it: "Should such a man as I run away?" He discerned that the prophet was bribed. Then he prays: "Now, O God, strengthen my hands."

And the wall is finished in fifty-two days. Even the enemies recognize "this work had been accomplished with the help of our God." But the end of chapter 6 shows that trouble remains: Tobiah keeps sending letters. Chapter 7 sets up the next task, which is to repopulate the city and put people back in order.

STEP 5

Connection

James 5:1-6 condemns those who defraud their workers. Luke 3:11 and Acts 4:34-35 describe sharing with those in need. 1 Peter 5:2-3 calls leaders to serve as examples. Luke 9:51 says Jesus set his face toward Jerusalem. Philippians 3:13-14: "one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind… I press on." Galatians 6:2: bear one another's burdens.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether there is anyone you could help who is burdened by debt or need. Act on it.

Think of your "great work." What distractions do you need to say "I cannot come down" to?

Lead by example in one area where others look to you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God for the fear of him that treats others justly.

Ask him to keep you from taking advantage of the poor.

Thank him for the finished work.

Psalm 147

Praise the LORD who rebuilds Jerusalem

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 147. Imagine the people standing before the finished wall. Notice who builds, who gathers, and who counts.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 147 is one of the five "Hallelujah" psalms that close the Psalter. Verse 2 reads, "The LORD builds up Jerusalem; he gathers the outcasts of Israel." Many readers connect it to the dedication of the wall in Nehemiah 12. Whether or not it was written for that day, it fits perfectly. It praises the God who builds cities, heals the brokenhearted, counts the stars, and feeds the animals.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! For it is good to sing praises to our God" (v. 1).
2. "The LORD builds up Jerusalem; he gathers the outcasts of Israel" (v. 2).
3. "He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds" (v. 3).
4. "He determines the number of the stars; he gives to all of them their names" (v. 4).
5. "Great is our Lord, and abundant in power; his understanding is beyond measure" (v. 5).
6. "The LORD lifts up the humble; he casts the wicked to the ground" (v. 6).
7. "His delight is not in the strength of the horse, nor his pleasure in the legs of a man" (v. 10).
8. "He declares his word to Jacob, his statutes and rules to Israel" (v. 19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm gives us a surprising list of what God does, all in the same breath. He builds Jerusalem. He gathers outcasts. He heals the brokenhearted and binds their wounds. And he counts and names every star. The same God who handles the vastness of the cosmos kneels to bandage a wound. There is no contradiction: greatness and tenderness belong together.

This is a good word for a people who had just finished a wall. The wall was built by Nehemiah and the workers, and yet "the LORD builds up Jerusalem." Our work is real, and God is the true builder (Psalm 127:1).

Verse 6 declares God's character: he lifts the humble and casts down the wicked. Verses 7 to 9 move to creation: rain on the earth, grass on the hills, food for the beasts and for the young ravens when they cry. God provides for the ravens. If he cares for them, he cares for his people.

Then verse 10 draws a line. He does not delight in the strength of the horse or the legs of a man. He takes pleasure "in those who fear him, in those who hope in his steadfast love." God is not impressed by human power. He is moved by humble trust.

The psalm ends with the word: God has given his statutes to Israel. "He has not dealt thus with any other nation." The greatest gift is not military strength or good weather but a God who speaks. The word is what makes the people a people.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 4:18 shows Jesus proclaiming healing for the brokenhearted and release for captives. Matthew 6:26 says the Father feeds the birds of the air. Matthew 10:29-31 teaches that he knows the sparrows and the hairs of our heads. John 10:3 says the shepherd calls his own sheep by name. Isaiah 40:26 also speaks of the God who calls the stars by name. John 1:1: In the beginning was the Word.

STEP 6

Application

Go outside tonight and look at the sky. Thank the God who named the stars and also knows your name.

Name a brokenhearted person you know. Ask God how you might be part of binding up their wounds.

Praise God aloud for his word, which he has given to you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God for rebuilding what is broken.

Thank him that he heals the brokenhearted.

Tell him what has been healed in you.

DAY 509 · WEEK 73

Psalm 148

Praise the LORD from the heavens

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 148. This psalm calls every part of creation to praise: heavens, deeps, weather, mountains, animals, kings, and children. Read it aloud as a roll call.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 148 is a hymn that commands praise from everything God has made. It is structured in two halves: praise from the heavens (vv. 1-6) and praise from the earth (vv. 7-14). You will read this psalm again in Unit 24. Today, read it as the response of the rebuilt city, standing on a wall whose stones, towers, and gates lie under the open sky.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Praise the LORD from the heavens; praise him in the heights!” (v. 1).
2. “Praise him, all his angels; praise him, all his hosts!” (v. 2).
3. “Praise him, sun and moon, praise him, all you shining stars!” (v. 3).
4. “Let them praise the name of the LORD! For he commanded and they were created” (v. 5).
5. “Praise the LORD from the earth, you great sea creatures and all deeps” (v. 7).
6. “Fire and hail, snow and mist, stormy wind fulfilling his word!” (v. 8).
7. “Kings of the earth and all peoples, princes and all rulers of the earth! Young men and maidens together, old men and children!” (vv. 11-12).
8. “He has raised up a horn for his people, praise for all his saints” (v. 14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a vast choir. First the heavens: angels, hosts, sun, moon, stars, even "you waters above the heavens." They praise because "he commanded and they were created." Creation did not come from chance or from rival gods but from a spoken word. Everything in the sky exists by the will of God and is meant to bring him glory.

Then the earth: sea creatures, fire, hail, snow, stormy winds, mountains, fruit trees, cattle, creeping things, and flying birds. Notice the wildness. The deeps and the storms are not enemies of praise; even "stormy wind fulfilling his word." The elements that frightened ancient people are in the choir. Creation praises by being what God made it to be.

Finally comes humanity: kings and peoples, young and old, men and women. Everyone, from the throne to the cradle, is summoned. Humans praise with words and wills, which the rest of creation cannot do. We give voice to the whole choir.

The reason for praise is that "his name alone is exalted; his majesty is above earth and heaven." And then a surprising turn: "He has raised up a horn for his people." The God of galaxies takes special notice of a small people. A horn meant strength and a ruler. For a community just rebuilt, it carried the hope of a coming king.

For you, the point is that praise is not a private act that fits in the margins. It is the purpose of everything that exists. When you praise, you join a choir that is as old as creation.

STEP 5

Connection

Colossians 1:16 says all things were created through him and for him. Romans 8:19-22 says creation waits and groans for the revealing of the sons of God. Luke 1:69 says God "has raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David." Philippians 2:10 says every knee will bow. Revelation 5:13 hears every creature in heaven and earth and under the earth and in the sea saying, "To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing."

STEP 6

Application

Spend ten minutes outdoors. Name five things you see and thank God for each.

Praise God with your whole voice today, by singing or speaking aloud.

Notice how everything around you was commanded into being by God's word.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Join creation in praising God, naming what in creation moves you.
- Thank him that he commanded and you were created.
- Praise him for raising up a horn for his people.

DAY 510 · WEEK 73

Nehemiah 8:1-10:39

The law read; the Feast of Booths; covenant renewal

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 92 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Nehemiah 8:1-10:39. The people gather in the square and ask Ezra to read the Book of the Law. They stand, listen for hours, weep, and then are told to rejoice. They confess their sins and sign a covenant. Read it as the high point of the book.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The wall is done, and the people settle in their towns. In the seventh month, at the Feast of Trumpets, they gather “as one man” in the square before the Water Gate. They have not been summoned by a king. They ask for the Book. This is a revival driven by the word of God. It is the only time in the Bible that we see an entire congregation hear the law and respond with weeping, joy, confession, and covenant renewal.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “And all the people gathered as one man into the square” (8:1).
2. “And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people… and as he opened it all the people stood” (8:5).
3. “They read from the book, from the Law of God, clearly, and they gave the sense, so that the people understood the reading” (8:8).
4. “For all the people wept as they heard the words of the Law” (8:9).
5. “Do not be grieved, for the joy of the LORD is your strength” (8:10).
6. “And there was very great rejoicing” (8:17).
7. “You are the LORD, you alone. You have made heaven” (9:6).

8 “But you are a God ready to forgive, gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love” (9:17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

This is a scene of a people hungry for the word. Ezra stands on a wooden platform and reads from early morning until midday. Others “gave the sense” so everyone could understand. This is the pattern of faithful preaching: read the text, explain it, and apply it. The people stand, say “Amen, Amen,” lift their hands, and bow. The word was not a lecture but an encounter.

Then they weep. The law had convicted them of how far they had drifted. But the leaders say, “This day is holy to the LORD your God; do not mourn or weep.” The word does not leave them in grief. “Go your way, eat the fat and drink sweet wine… for the joy of the LORD is your strength.” The joy here is not their own mood. It is God’s joy in them, and it is a source of strength. Godly sorrow leads to joy.

They discover the Feast of Booths and keep it with great gladness. For the first time since Joshua, they build and live in booths. Then they gather again to confess. Chapter 9 contains one of the longest prayers in the Bible, a sweeping retelling of history from creation to the present. It praises God for faithfulness and confesses Israel’s repeated rebellion. The refrain is that God was “ready to forgive, gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love,” and he did not forsake them. It ends with honesty: “Behold, we are slaves this day… in the land that you gave.” The return is real and still incomplete.

Chapter 10 records their response: a written covenant, signed by leaders. They promise to walk in God’s law, to avoid mixed marriages, to keep the Sabbath, to support the temple, and to bring the firstfruits. “We will not neglect the house of our God.”

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 119:105: “Your word is a lamp to my feet.” Luke 24:32: “Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked to us on the road?” Romans 10:17: “Faith comes from hearing, and hearing through the word of Christ.” John 15:11: “that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full.” 2 Timothy 4:2 says to preach the word. Hebrews 12:2: “for the joy that was set before him.”

STEP 6

Application

Set aside time this week to read Scripture aloud, perhaps a whole chapter.

Ask what you could do to help others understand the word. “Give the sense” to someone younger in the faith.

When conviction comes, listen for the second sentence: “The joy of the LORD is your strength.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to give you a hunger for his word.
- Ask him to turn your weeping into joy when his word convicts you.
- Thank him that the joy of the LORD is your strength.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Nehemiah 8:10 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Do not be grieved, for the joy of the LORD is your strength."

NEHEMIAH 8:10

REST

Meditation

This verse was spoken to a crowd in tears. They had just heard God's law read aloud, and the weight of their failure came crashing down. The leaders did not tell them their sorrow was wrong. They told them where it should lead.

"Do not be grieved." The command is not to deny sorrow. It is to refuse to stay in it. Grief that leaves us stuck is not the grief God wants. 2 Corinthians 7:10 says that godly grief leads to repentance, and repentance leads to life. The next step after sorrow is not more sorrow. It is joy.

"For the joy of the LORD." Whose joy is it? It is the LORD's joy. Not merely the joy the people have in him, though that is included. It is the joy God himself has: in his creation, in his people, in forgiving. Zephaniah 3:17 says he rejoices over us with gladness. This day was a feast day, and their Father was glad to have them home.

“Is your strength.” The word means a stronghold, a refuge. When your joy depends on circumstances, it can be taken. When it rests in God’s own delight, it holds. The people were facing opposition, poverty, and an uncertain future. They needed a strength that did not depend on any of that.

Say this verse when you feel heavy with guilt or weariness. Let it turn your face from yourself to God. He has not given up on you. He is glad to forgive, and his gladness is where you find strength.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you walked with Nehemiah from a palace in Susa to the walls of Jerusalem. You watched him pray for four months, then pray again in a breath before the king. You saw ordinary people repair the wall in front of their own houses, and you saw the enemy change tactics from ridicule to threat to flattery to fear. You saw Nehemiah rebuke the nobles for oppressing the poor and refuse to come down from his great work. The wall was finished in fifty-two days. In Psalm 147 and Psalm 148, you heard God praised as the builder of Jerusalem, healer of the brokenhearted, namer of the stars, and the one whose name every creature is called to praise. At the end of the week, the people gathered at the Water Gate, listened to the word of God for hours, wept, were told to rejoice, kept the Feast of Booths, confessed their sins, and signed a covenant.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Nehemiah prayed for months and also sent up quick prayers in the moment. How might you practice both kinds of prayer this week?

The returned exiles wept at the law and were told to rejoice. How does the gospel of Jesus Christ turn conviction into joy?

The wall was built by many hands, each near their own house. Where is your section of the wall, and who is working beside you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that his joy is your strength.

Thank him for a word that convicts and comforts.

Rest in him.

DAY 512 · WEEK 74

Nehemiah 11:1-13:31

Jerusalem populated; the wall dedicated; final reforms

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 108 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Nehemiah 11:1-13:31. The city is repopulated and the wall is dedicated with two great choirs. Then Nehemiah returns from a trip to Susa and finds that the people have already slipped back into old sins. Notice the ending.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 11 lists those who settled in Jerusalem, chosen by lot to bring one in ten from the towns. Chapter 12 describes the joyful dedication of the wall. Chapter 13 jumps ahead, probably about 432 BC. Nehemiah had returned to Persia for a time. When he comes back, he finds that Tobiah has been given a room in the temple, the Levites are unpaid, the Sabbath is being broken, and some have married foreign wives again.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “And the people blessed all the men who willingly offered to live in Jerusalem” (11:2).
2. “And at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought the Levites… to celebrate the dedication with gladness” (12:27).
3. “And I brought the leaders of Judah up onto the wall, and appointed two great choirs that gave thanks” (12:31).
4. “And they offered great sacrifices that day and rejoiced, for God had made them rejoice with great joy” (12:43).
5. “And the sound of the joy of Jerusalem was heard far away” (12:43).
6. “And I was very angry, and I threw all the household furniture of Tobiah out of the chamber” (13:8).

7. “Why is the house of God forsaken?” (13:11).
8. “Remember me, O my God, for good” (13:31).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The dedication of the wall is a high point. Two great choirs and processions go around the wall in opposite directions, singing, with cymbals, harps, and lyres, and meet at the temple. The people offer sacrifices, and “God had made them rejoice with great joy.” Women and children rejoice too. The sound of Jerusalem’s joy is heard far away. This recalls the sound at the foundation of the temple in Ezra 3, but now it is clearly joy, without the weeping.

And then chapter 13 is a sober coda. Nehemiah returns and finds the covenant broken. Tobiah, the enemy who had mocked the builders, now lives in a storeroom of the temple. The Levites have gone back to their farms because no one paid them. The Sabbath markets are in full swing. Some have married foreign wives. Nehemiah’s reaction is fierce. He throws out Tobiah’s furniture, restores the tithes, shuts the gates on the Sabbath, and rebukes those who intermarried.

The lesson is plain. Reform does not last on its own. A wall can be built in fifty-two days, a covenant can be signed in a day, but the human heart drifts back. Even after confession and revival, the people forgot. This is why the Old Testament ends not with triumph but with a longing for something deeper. The law written on stone and walls built of stone cannot change the heart.

Nehemiah ends with a prayer: “Remember me, O my God, for good.” It is the prayer of a faithful servant who knows that his work is not finished. The book closes with unresolved tension: God’s people are back, but they need a better covenant. The new covenant promised in Jeremiah 31 and Ezekiel 36 is still ahead.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 31:33 promises a law written on the heart. Hebrews 8:6-13 says Jesus mediates a better covenant. Ezekiel 36:26: “I will give you a new heart.” Galatians 3:3 asks, “Are you so foolish? Having begun by the Spirit, are you now being perfected by the flesh?” Revelation 2:4 warns about leaving our first love. 1 Corinthians 10:12: “Let anyone who thinks that he stands take heed lest he fall.”

STEP 6

Application

Think about a reform in your life that has slipped. What helps a good change last?

Be humble about your own heart. Ask a trusted friend to check on you in an area of past failure.

Thank God that the new covenant does not depend on our consistency but on Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the joy of those who worship him.

Ask him to keep you from drifting back.

Ask him to write his law on your heart.

ESTHER 4:14

DAY 513 · WEEK 74

Esther 1:1-3:15

Esther becomes queen; Haman's plot

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Esther 1:1-3:15. A Persian king deposes his queen, a Jewish orphan becomes queen, and a proud official plots to destroy the Jews. Notice what is missing from the book: God's name is never mentioned.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Esther is set in Susa, the Persian capital, around 483 to 473 BC, between the first return under Zerubbabel and the return under Ezra. Most Jews had stayed in the empire. The book is a story of those who remained scattered. It never names God, never mentions prayer except fasting, and yet shows his hand everywhere. The theme is "God unseen but sovereign."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In those days, when King Ahasuerus sat on his royal throne in Susa, the citadel" (1:2).
2. "For the queen's behavior will become known to all women" (1:17).
3. "Mordecai… had taken her as his own daughter" (2:7).
4. "Esther had not made known her people or kindred, for Mordecai had commanded her" (2:10).
5. "And the king loved Esther more than all the women" (2:17).
6. "Mordecai told them that he was a Jew" (3:4).
7. "Haman… sought to destroy all the Jews, the people of Mordecai, throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus" (3:6).
8. "And the king and Haman sat down to drink, but the city of Susa was thrown into confusion" (3:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

This is a story full of coincidences. The queen refuses to appear, so she is replaced, and a Jewish orphan girl is chosen. Her cousin Mordecai happens to overhear a plot against the king and reports it, and the deed is written in the chronicles. Haman is promoted. Mordecai refuses to bow, and Haman's pride turns his anger against a whole people. He casts lots, called "pur," to choose the day of destruction, and the lot falls on a date eleven months away.

The author never says "God did this." Yet the reader sees a pattern: nothing is an accident. The Hebrew Bible keeps the name of God out of the text, but his purposes steer every scene. This is a book for people who live in a world where God seems silent. Most Jews of that age lived under pagan rule, far from the temple, with no prophet, no miracle, no visible sign. Esther says that God is still working.

There is a deeper background. Haman is an Agagite, a descendant of Agag, king of the Amalekites (1 Samuel 15). Mordecai is from the line of Kish, Saul's father. The old conflict between Israel and Amalek, which Saul failed to finish, is reborn. The enemy of God's people tries again to wipe them out. The question is whether God's promise to Abraham, to bless the nations through his seed, will survive.

The edict goes out, and the chapter ends with an ugly picture: the king and Haman sit down to drink while the city is in confusion. The powerful feast while the powerless tremble.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 8:28 says that God works all things together for good. Genesis 50:20: "You meant evil against me, but God meant it for good." Proverbs 16:33: "The lot is cast into the lap, but its every decision is from the LORD." Exodus 17:14-16 is the LORD's war against Amalek. Psalm 121:4: he who keeps Israel will neither slumber nor sleep.

STEP 6

Application

Where do you feel that God is silent in your life? Ask God to open your eyes to his unseen hand.

Look back at one "coincidence" in your story and thank God for it.

Pray for believers living under hostile or indifferent governments.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he rules even when his name is not spoken.

Ask him to open your eyes to his hand in your circumstances.

Tell him what feels like an accident in your life.

Esther 4:1-7:10

"For such a time as this"; the king's banquet; Haman exposed

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Esther 4:1-7:10. Esther is called to risk her life for her people. Read for the turning point in 4:14, and for the reversal at the end of chapter 7.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

When Mordecai learns of the decree, he puts on sackcloth and ashes and weeps in the city. Esther, in the palace, hears of it. Anyone who approaches the king unsummoned may be put to death, unless the king holds out the golden scepter. Esther has not been called in thirty days. Mordecai's message to her is one of the great speeches of the Bible.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And in every province… there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting and weeping and lamenting" (4:3).
2. "For if you keep silent at this time, relief and deliverance will rise for the Jews from another place, but you and your father's house will perish" (4:14).
3. "And who knows whether you have not come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" (4:14).
4. "Go, gather all the Jews to be found in Susa, and hold a fast on my behalf" (4:16).
5. "And if I perish, I perish" (4:16).
6. "On that night the king could not sleep. And he gave orders to bring the book of memorable deeds" (6:1).
7. "What honor or dignity has been bestowed on Mordecai for this?" (6:3).
8. "So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai" (7:10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Mordecai's message is the heart of the book. He makes two points. First, Esther cannot hide in the palace: "Do not think to yourself that in the king's palace you will escape." Second, God's purpose does not depend on her. "Relief and deliverance will rise for the Jews from another place." This is as close as the book comes to naming God. Then comes the question: "Who knows whether you have not come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" It is a call to see one's position as a calling.

Esther's response grows from fear to courage. She asks for a three-day fast, which means prayer in all but name, and says, "If I perish, I perish." She will go to the king, trusting not in her beauty but in God. When she enters, the king holds out the scepter. She does not blurt out her request. She invites the king and Haman to a banquet, then to a second one. This is not hesitation but wisdom.

Meanwhile, the narrative shifts to a sleepless night. The king "could not sleep," and so he calls for the chronicles. They open to the record of Mordecai's good deed. The ironies multiply. Haman, who has just come to ask permission to hang Mordecai, is asked what should be done for the man the king delights to honor. Thinking it is himself, he proposes royal robes and a parade, and then must lead Mordecai through the streets.

At the second banquet, Esther names her request: "Let my life be granted me, and my people." Haman is exposed, and the gallows he built for Mordecai becomes his own. "Sleeplessness" in the ordinary world is a vehicle for providence.

STEP 5

Connection

Moses faced the same choice in Hebrews 11:24-26, giving up Pharaoh's palace to be mistreated with the people of God. Jesus said, "Greater love has no one than this, that someone lay down his life for his friends" (John 15:13). Psalm 7:15-16 and Proverbs 26:27 describe the trap that falls on the one who set it. Acts 17:26 says God determined the allotted periods of nations. 1 Peter 4:10: use your gifts to serve others.

STEP 6

Application

Ask: for what "such a time as this" might God have put you where you are?

Fast and pray before a major decision, as Esther and the Jews did.

Notice the people God has placed in your path, and be ready to speak up for them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to show you what purpose he has put you where you are.

Ask for courage to speak when it costs you.

Ask for wisdom in choosing the right moment.

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Esther 8:1-10:3. The decree is reversed, the Jews defend themselves, and the festival of Purim is established. Read for the language of reversal.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Haman is dead, but the first decree, written in the king's name, cannot be revoked under Persian law. Esther and Mordecai are authorized to write a second decree, allowing the Jews to defend themselves on the appointed day. The book ends with the establishment of the festival of Purim, still celebrated by Jews today, and a brief note on Mordecai's greatness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "On that day King Ahasuerus gave to Queen Esther the house of Haman" (8:1).
2. "And Mordecai… was set over the house of Haman" (8:2).
3. "For how can I bear to see the calamity that is coming to my people?" (8:6).
4. "The Jews had light and gladness and joy and honor" (8:16).
5. "And many from the peoples of the country declared themselves Jews, for fear of the Jews had fallen on them" (8:17).
6. "On the very day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to gain mastery over them, the reverse occurred" (9:1).
7. "As the days on which the Jews got relief from their enemies, and as the month that had been turned for them from sorrow into gladness" (9:22).
8. "For Mordecai the Jew was second in rank to King Ahasuerus… seeking the welfare of his people and speaking peace to all his people" (10:3).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The second half of the book is a great reversal. What was meant for evil is turned to good. The day appointed for the destruction of the Jews becomes a day of their deliverance. The man who sought the throne's favor hangs on his own gallows. The man who would have been executed wears the king's ring. Mourning becomes feasting. Fear falls on the enemies.

The Jews are allowed to defend themselves, which they do. The text insists that they "laid no hand on the plunder," emphasizing that they were not seeking gain, in contrast to the Amalekite conflict where Saul kept the spoil. This time, the enemy of God's people is finished, and the people do what Saul failed to do.

Purim, from "pur," the lot, is established as a perennial reminder. "The month that had been turned for them from sorrow into gladness." The feast would include sending gifts to one another and to the poor. The memory of deliverance becomes an act of generosity.

Why is God never named? Many see a theological point. The book is written for the diaspora, the Jews who stayed behind. They would have to live by faith without temple or prophet. Esther shows them that God's providence is not limited to Jerusalem. He works through palaces, sleepless nights, banquets, and edicts. He keeps his promise to preserve the line of Abraham, through which the Messiah would come. The Jewish people cannot be wiped out, because the seed of the woman must come.

The last verse describes Mordecai as one who "sought the welfare of his people and spoke peace to all his people." It is a picture of faithful service in a foreign court, much like Joseph and Daniel before him.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 8:31: "If God is for us, who can be against us?" Isaiah 61:3 promises a garland instead of ashes. John 16:20: "Your sorrow will turn into joy." Psalm 30:11: "You have turned for me my mourning into dancing." Jeremiah 29:7 told the exiles to seek the welfare of the city. Galatians 4:4: "But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son." The preservation of the Jews led to the birth of Jesus.

STEP 6

Application

Think about a situation that seems hopeless. Ask God for the "reversal" he can bring.

Practice the spirit of Purim: send a gift to a friend and to someone in need.

Seek the welfare of your city or workplace, as Mordecai did.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for turning sorrow into gladness.
- Thank him for preserving his people when his name is unseen.
- Ask him to make you glad and generous.

Psalm 145

I will extol you, my God and King

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 145. This is the last psalm of David in the Psalter, and the only one labeled "A Praise." Read it as a response to the book of Esther, which never mentions God, by a psalm that does nothing else.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 145 is an acrostic, with each verse beginning with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet, covering praise from A to Z. It sets the tone for the final five psalms, which are full of hallelujahs. After reading Esther, where God's name is hidden, Psalm 145 shows that God's character is plain: he is great, good, near, and faithful.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I will extol you, my God and King, and bless your name forever and ever" (v. 1).
2. "Great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised, and his greatness is unsearchable" (v. 3).
3. "One generation shall commend your works to another, and shall declare your mighty acts" (v. 4).
4. "The LORD is gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love" (v. 8).
5. "The LORD is good to all, and his mercy is over all that he has made" (v. 9).
6. "Your kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and your dominion endures throughout all generations" (v. 13).
7. "The eyes of all look to you, and you give them their food in due season" (v. 15).
8. "The LORD is near to all who call on him, to all who call on him in truth" (v. 18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a sustained song of delight in God. David starts with a personal vow to praise every day, forever. But his praise is not private. “One generation shall commend your works to another.” The faith is passed along by telling.

The center of the psalm is verse 8, which echoes God’s self-revelation to Moses in Exodus 34:6: “gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love.” This phrase recurs throughout the Old Testament as the summary of God’s character. You have met it in Nehemiah 9 and will find it in Joel and Jonah. David builds on it: God is good to all, and his mercy is over all he has made.

The psalm then celebrates his kingdom, which is everlasting. Human kingdoms rise and fall: Babylon, Persia, and so on. But God’s reign does not end. And yet this great King is near. He upholds all who are falling, raises those who are bowed down, and opens his hand to satisfy the desire of every living thing.

Verses 17 to 20 speak about God’s nearness and justice. “The LORD is near to all who call on him in truth. He fulfills the desire of those who fear him; he also hears their cry and saves them.” This is the answer for the diaspora. Even when God’s name is not on the page, he is near.

The psalm ends with the promise that the wicked will be destroyed, and the call for all flesh to bless his holy name forever. There is a stunning phrase in the Hebrew Bible: there is no verse starting with the letter “nun” in the standard Hebrew text, though some ancient copies have one. Even the most careful praise is not complete; there is always more to say.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 34:6-7 is the source of the phrase in verse 8. Matthew 5:45 says that God makes his sun rise on the evil and the good. Matthew 6:33 promises that those who seek first the kingdom will be provided for. Luke 1:33 says of Jesus, “Of his kingdom there will be no end.” James 4:8: “Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you.” Revelation 4:11 praises the Lord for creating all things.

STEP 6

Application

Read the psalm aloud as your morning praise. Let each verse draw you into worship.

Tell a younger person about something God has done for you. “One generation shall commend your works to another.”

Memorize verse 18, and pray it when you feel far from God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Extol God as King, in your own words.
- Tell him one thing he has done that you want to commend to another generation.
- Thank him that he is near to all who call on him.

Psalm 149; Psalm 150

Sing a new song; let everything that has breath praise

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 16 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalms 149 and 150. These are the final two psalms in the Psalter, and they close the book with praise. You will read them again in Unit 24. Read them now as the response to Esther's deliverance and the dedication of the wall.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 149 calls the people to sing a new song, with dancing and with a two-edged sword in hand. Psalm 150 is the grand finale, naming where, why, and with what to praise God. The Psalter began with Psalm 1, the blessed man who meditates on the law. It ends with every breath praising the LORD.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Sing to the LORD a new song, his praise in the assembly of the godly!" (149:1).
2. "Let Israel be glad in his Maker; let the children of Zion rejoice in their King!" (149:2).
3. "For the LORD takes pleasure in his people; he adorns the humble with salvation" (149:4).
4. "Let the high praises of God be in their throats and two-edged swords in their hands" (149:6).
5. "This is honor for all his godly ones. Praise the LORD!" (149:9).
6. "Praise God in his sanctuary; praise him in his mighty heavens!" (150:1).
7. "Praise him for his mighty deeds; praise him according to his excellent greatness!" (150:2).
8. "Let everything that has breath praise the LORD! Praise the LORD!" (150:6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Psalm 149 begins with a new song. Throughout the Psalms, a "new song" is sung when God does something new. For the returned community, it means the new thing God has done in bringing them back, rebuilding, and keeping them safe. Praise includes dancing and music with tambourine and lyre.

Verse 4 is wonderful: "The LORD takes pleasure in his people; he adorns the humble with salvation." God is not only worshiped but delights in the worshipers. The humble, those who do not rely on themselves, are crowned with salvation.

Then the psalm takes a surprising turn: "two-edged swords in their hands, to execute vengeance on the nations." This has been read in many ways. In its Old Testament setting, it refers to God's people participating in his justice. The people of God are not passive. In the New Testament, the sword of the Spirit is the word of God (Ephesians 6:17; Hebrews 4:12). The final victory belongs to the Lord, and his people stand with him.

Psalm 150 is the climax. It answers four questions. Where? In his sanctuary and in the mighty heavens, which is everywhere. Why? For his mighty deeds and his excellent greatness. How? With trumpet, harp, lyre, tambourine, strings, pipe, and loud clashing cymbals. Praise is wholehearted and full of sound. Who? "Let everything that has breath praise the LORD." That includes you.

The five books of the Psalter each end with a doxology, and the fifth book ends with this final one that is itself the doxology of the whole. After 150 psalms of laments, confessions, complaints, and hope, the book ends in praise. It tells us where all prayer is meant to end.

STEP 5

Connection

Ephesians 6:17 identifies the sword of the Spirit as the word of God. Hebrews 4:12: "The word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword." Revelation 5:9 speaks of the new song sung to the Lamb. Colossians 3:16 says to sing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs with thankfulness. Luke 19:40: if the people were silent, the stones would cry out. Revelation 19:1-6 is the hallelujah of the multitude.

STEP 6

Application

Use Psalm 150 as a morning prayer for a week. Praise with your breath, your voice, and your body.

Sing or listen to a hymn or song that is new to you.

Ask: where is God doing something new that deserves a new song?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Sing or speak a new song to God, and let it be yours.
- Thank him that he takes pleasure in his people.
- Let everything that has breath praise him, and add your own.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And who knows whether you have not come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

ESTHER 4:14

REST

Meditation

This question was asked by an older cousin to a frightened young queen. It is a question, not a command, and that is part of its power.

"Who knows." Mordecai does not claim certainty. He cannot see the future. He is asking Esther to consider a possibility. God's purposes are often hidden, and we act without a guarantee. Faith lives in the space between what we know and what we hope.

"Whether you have not come to the kingdom." Esther did not choose to be queen. She was taken to the palace by force, hidden her identity, and lived in a gilded cage. Everything that happened to her could have looked like loss. Mordecai invites her to see a different story. Her position was not an accident.

“For such a time as this.” This is a call to the present. Esther was not asked to be queen in some other age. She was asked to act now. Our callings are tied to particular moments: this family, this job, this friendship, this crisis. We do not choose the time, but we are asked to meet it.

The verse comes just after a sobering warning. If she keeps silent, deliverance will come from another place. God does not need us. But he invites us. The honor is in being used.

Keep this verse near when you face a decision that is uncomfortable. You are where you are for a reason. Ask God what he wants to do through you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished Nehemiah and read the book of Esther. You saw the wall dedicated with two choirs and a sound of joy heard far away, and you saw how quickly the people slipped back into their old ways. Nehemiah ended with a prayer: “Remember me, O my God, for good.” Then you moved to Persia and read the story of Esther, in which God’s name never appears and his hand is everywhere. You watched a queen risk her life, a sleepless king, a proud man hanged on his own gallows, and a day of sorrow turned into gladness. In Psalm 145, you praised the God who is near to all who call on him. In Psalms 149 and 150, you sang a new song and let everything that has breath praise the LORD.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Esther was asked to risk her position for others. What position, gift, or influence has God given you that could be used for someone else?

The book of Esther never names God, yet his work is visible. Where do you see his hidden hand in your own story?

Both Nehemiah and Esther point to a people who still need a better deliverer. How does Jesus fulfill what these books long for?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to give you courage and wisdom for the season you are in.

Thank him for his hidden hand and nearness.

Rest in him.

DAY 519 · WEEK 75

Psalm 115

Not to us, O LORD, not to us, but to your name give glory

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 18 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 115. This psalm contrasts the living God with lifeless idols. Read it as the song of a small, exposed community in a land full of other gods.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 115 was probably used in the second temple period. It begins with a famous line: "Not to us, O LORD." The nations ask, "Where is their God?" That question could be asked of the returned exiles, a small people under Persian rule. The psalm's answer is that God is in heaven and does as he pleases, while the gods of the nations are silver and gold, made by human hands.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Not to us, O LORD, not to us, but to your name give glory, for the sake of your steadfast love and your faithfulness!" (v. 1).
2. "Why should the nations say, Where is their God?" (v. 2).
3. "Our God is in the heavens; he does all that he pleases" (v. 3).
4. "Their idols are silver and gold, the work of human hands" (v. 4).
5. "They have mouths, but do not speak; eyes, but do not see" (v. 5).
6. "Those who make them become like them; so do all who trust in them" (v. 8).
7. "O Israel, trust in the LORD! He is their help and their shield" (v. 9).
8. "The heavens are the LORD's heavens, but the earth he has given to the children of man" (v. 16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a humble prayer. “Not to us.” The people had just been through exile, return, and rebuilding, and they could easily have taken pride in their achievements. They deflect the glory. It belongs to God’s name, for the sake of his steadfast love and faithfulness.

The taunt of the nations is real: “Where is their God?” Israel has no king, no army, no visible image of their God. The answer is bold. Our God is in heaven and does whatever he pleases. He is not an object to be carried around. He is free and sovereign.

Then comes a sharp description of idols. They have mouths but cannot speak, eyes but cannot see, ears but cannot hear, noses but cannot smell, hands that cannot feel, feet that cannot walk. They are lifeless things dressed as persons. And the verdict in verse 8 is chilling: “Those who make them become like them.” What we worship shapes us. Whoever puts trust in something dead becomes deadened. Whoever worships power becomes hard; whoever worships money becomes cold. We become what we love.

The next section calls three groups to trust: Israel, the house of Aaron, and those who fear the LORD. Three times: “He is their help and their shield.” The refrain is a reminder that trust is a communal act.

The psalm closes with a blessing. “May the LORD give you increase, you and your children.” And with a promise of praise: “The dead do not praise the LORD… But we will bless the LORD from this time forth and forevermore.” Life is for praise.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 44:9-20 is a satirical description of idol-making. Romans 1:21-23 says people exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images. 1 John 5:21: “Little children, keep yourselves from idols.” 2 Corinthians 3:18: we are being transformed into the image of the Lord from one degree of glory to another. Colossians 3:5 says that covetousness is idolatry. John 8:50 shows Jesus seeking not his own glory.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what you might be becoming like. What do you give your attention and trust to most?

When you succeed at something, pray “Not to us, O LORD” before accepting the praise.

Identify one modern idol (money, image, comfort, control) and renounce it in prayer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Give God the glory for something you were tempted to take credit for.

Confess any trust in idols.

Ask him to bless those who trust him.

DAY 520 · WEEK 75

Psalm 71

In you, O LORD, do I take refuge, the prayer of the aging saint

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 24 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 71. This is the prayer of an old believer, looking back on a lifetime of God's faithfulness and forward to the end. Read it slowly, as if praying it for a grandparent, or for yourself in forty years.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 71 has no title, but it follows Psalm 70 and reads like a continuation. The writer has trusted God from youth and now faces old age and enemies. Many in the second temple community, old men who had seen the first temple, would have prayed it. It is the great psalm of lifelong faith.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In you, O LORD, do I take refuge; let me never be put to shame!" (v. 1).
2. "Be to me a rock of refuge, to which I may continually come" (v. 3).
3. "For you, O Lord, are my hope, my trust, O LORD, from my youth" (v. 5).
4. "Do not cast me off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength is spent" (v. 9).
5. "But I will hope continually and will praise you yet more and more" (v. 14).
6. "O God, from my youth you have taught me, and I still proclaim your wondrous deeds" (v. 17).
7. "So even to old age and gray hairs, O God, do not forsake me, until I proclaim your might to another generation" (v. 18).

8 “You who have made me see many troubles and calamities will revive me again; from the depths of the earth you will bring me up again” (v. 20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

This is an elder’s prayer. The speaker has relied on God since birth: “Upon you I have leaned from before my birth; you are he who took me from my mother’s womb.” God has been faithful through every season. Yet old age brings new fears: “Do not cast me off in the time of old age.” Strength is ebbing, and enemies see weakness as an opportunity: “God has forsaken him; pursue and seize him.”

The psalmist’s answer is not despair but renewed praise. “I will hope continually and will praise you yet more and more.” Hope grows rather than fades. His mouth will tell of God’s righteous acts all day long, “for their number is past my knowledge.” He cannot count them all.

The center of the psalm is verse 18. The old man asks for continued life with a purpose: “until I proclaim your might to another generation, your power to all those to come.” This is what old age is for. The aim of long life is not comfort but testimony. Those who have walked with God for decades are a treasure to the church. They have seen troubles and calamities, and they can say, “God brought me through.”

The psalm ends with confidence: “You will revive me again.” The one who made him see many troubles will bring him up from the depths. There is a note here that reaches beyond this life, toward resurrection. And the final word is praise, with harp, lyre, and lips that shout for joy.

For the young, the psalm is a challenge: build a life of trust now, so that you can pray this in old age. For the old, it is a comfort.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 46:4: “Even to your old age I am he, and to gray hairs I will carry you.” Titus 2:2-5 charges older believers to teach the younger. 2 Corinthians 4:16: “Though our outer self is wasting away, our inner self is being renewed day by day.” Psalm 92:14: the righteous “still bear fruit in old age.” 2 Timothy 4:7-8: “I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race.” Deuteronomy 6:7: teach your children.

STEP 6

Application

Call or visit an older believer and ask them to tell you how God has been faithful to them.

If you are older, write down three stories of God's faithfulness to pass on.

Pray verse 18 for yourself: "Let me proclaim your might to another generation."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for being your hope from youth.

Ask him not to cast you away when you are old or weak.

Pray for the generation that comes after you.

Psalm 144

Blessed be the LORD, my rock, a new song for restoration

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 15 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 144. This is a psalm of David asking for deliverance from enemies, and it ends with a vision of a blessed people. Read the first half as a war prayer and the second half as a prayer for peace.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 144 is attributed to David and combines several earlier psalms. It begins with praise to God as the trainer of his hands for battle and ends with a vision of a prosperous society. It sits well here in the unit because the returned exiles lived under constant threat. They longed for the kind of safety and blessing that the final verses describe.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Blessed be the LORD, my rock, who trains my hands for war, and my fingers for battle” (v. 1).
2. “He is my steadfast love and my fortress, my stronghold and my deliverer, my shield and he in whom I take refuge” (v. 2).
3. “O LORD, what is man that you regard him, or the son of man that you think of him?” (v. 3).
4. “Man is like a breath; his days are like a passing shadow” (v. 4).
5. “I will sing a new song to you, O God” (v. 9).
6. “Rescue me and deliver me from the hand of foreigners, whose mouths speak lies” (v. 11).
7. “May our sons in their youth be like plants full grown” (v. 12).

8 “Blessed are the people to whom such blessings fall! Blessed are the people whose God is the LORD!” (v. 15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a remarkable confession. David is a warrior, and he knows his skill is a gift: God “trains my hands for war.” Strength and courage come from God. He lists eight names for him: rock, steadfast love, fortress, stronghold, deliverer, shield, refuge, and the one who subdues peoples. Each is a different image of security.

Then comes a note of wonder: “O LORD, what is man that you regard him?” It is a smaller echo of Psalm 8. Man is a breath, a shadow. And yet God notices. The contrast between our frailty and God’s attention is the basis for the plea that follows: “Bow your heavens, O LORD, and come down.” The psalmist asks for the kind of divine intervention seen at Sinai, with mountains smoking and lightning flashing.

The second half moves from threat to peace. The prayer is for sons like full-grown plants, daughters like carved pillars, barns full, flocks multiplying, no breach in the walls and no cry in the streets. This is a picture of shalom: safe homes, thriving families, plentiful provision. It is what the returned exiles hoped for, with a rebuilt wall and a re-established covenant community.

The last line is profound: “Blessed are the people whose God is the LORD!” The blessing is not just the peace and plenty. It is having the LORD as God. If the barns are empty and the sons are weak, the people are still blessed because they have him. If everything else were provided and he were missing, they would have nothing.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 8:4 is the source of the question about man. Hebrews 2:6-9 applies it to Jesus, who tasted death for everyone. James 4:14: “You are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes.” Ephesians 6:10-17 describes spiritual warfare and armor. Matthew 5:3-12 gives the blessings of the kingdom. Revelation 21:3: “Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man.”

STEP 6

Application

Name eight ways God is your security, as David did in verse 2.

Pray for peace and flourishing for the families of your church and neighborhood.

Ask yourself whether you count yourself blessed because of what God gives, or because he is your God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God as your rock, fortress, and refuge.
- Ask him to teach your hands and bless your people.
- Tell him you want to sing a new song.

DAY 522 · WEEK 75

1 Chronicles 1:1-2:55

Genealogies from Adam through Judah's line [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 109 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 1:1-2:55. This is a survey reading, so do not try to study every name. Read it as the opening of a story: the line from Adam to Abraham to Israel to Judah. Watch where the genealogy slows down.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chronicles was written for the returned community, probably after 400 BC, to answer a pressing question: are we still the people of God? The first book begins with nine chapters of genealogies, a surprising start. But to a people who had lost their kingdom, temple, and land, these lists said: you belong. The line from Adam never broke. Chronicles retells the history of Israel from Adam to the decree of Cyrus, focusing on David, the temple, and the hope of restoration. It is a different perspective from Samuel and Kings, which were written in exile.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Adam, Seth, Enosh" (1:1).
2. "The sons of Noah: Shem, Ham, and Japheth" (1:4).
3. "Abraham, that is, Abraham" (1:27).
4. "The sons of Abraham: Isaac and Ishmael" (1:28).
5. "These are the sons of Israel: Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun" (2:1).
6. "The sons of Judah: Er, Onan, and Shelah" (2:3).
7. "Achan, the troubler of Israel, who broke faith in the matter of the devoted thing" (2:7).
8. "Jesse fathered Eliab his firstborn… David the seventh" (2:13-15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The genealogy begins with Adam and moves quickly through the nations of the world. The Chronicler wants his readers to see that Israel's story is part of the world's story. All nations descend from Adam and Noah, and Israel is chosen out of them. Then the lists narrow: Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and the twelve sons.

Then the writer slows down on Judah, listing his sons and their descendants. Judah is the line of the king, and the lists lead toward David. The genealogy is not neutral. It is shaped to tell a story of promise. Even in the lists, we see grace: Tamar, who was wronged and acted, is named. Rahab, once a Canaanite prostitute, is in the line of Judah. Even Achan, the troubler, is remembered, a reminder that failure is part of the story.

Why include these names? In the ancient world, a genealogy was a kind of identity card. To the returned exiles, the names proved that they were not forgotten. Every name stands for a person known to God. The Chronicler's point is that the promises to Abraham and David were still alive.

There is also a subtle emphasis on God's choice. David is the seventh son of Jesse, the youngest, not the oldest. The one who was passed over by his own family is the one God chose. Throughout the Chronicles, the surprising pattern appears again and again: God chooses the unexpected.

As you read, do not feel lost in the names. Treat them like a family photo album. You do not need to know everyone in it, but you can feel that you belong to a story much bigger than yourself.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 1:1-17 opens the New Testament with a genealogy of Jesus, including Tamar, Rahab, and Ruth. Luke 3:23-38 traces Jesus back to Adam. Luke 10:20 says to rejoice that your names are written in heaven. Philippians 4:3 speaks of names in the book of life. Revelation 21:27 mentions the Lamb's book of life. Acts 17:26 says that God made from one man every nation.

STEP 6

Application

Take a few minutes to write the names of three generations of your family. Thank God for each.

Remember that you are known by name. Read Luke 10:20 aloud.

Notice God's surprising choices, in Scripture and in your life.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that your name is known to him.

Thank him that no one is forgotten in his plan.

Ask him to keep you faithful to your place.

1 CHRONICLES 16:34

DAY 523 · WEEK 75

1 Chronicles 3:1-5:26

David's descendants; Levi, Reuben, Gad, half-Manasseh [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 76 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 3:1-5:26. This is another survey reading. Look for the royal line of David, the prayer of Jabez, and the notes about warriors who cried out to God.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The next section lists David's sons, the kings of Judah to the exile, and then the genealogies of the remaining tribes. Chapter 3 ends with the line of David continuing after the exile through Jehoiachin and Zerubbabel. The Chronicler is saying that the Davidic line did not die in Babylon. Scattered through the lists are brief stories, little windows into lives.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "These were the sons of David who were born to him in Hebron" (3:1).
2. "The sons of Jeconiah, the captive: Shealtiel his son… Zerubbabel" (3:17-19).
3. "Jabez was more honorable than his brothers; and his mother called his name Jabez, saying, Because I bore him in pain" (4:9).
4. "Jabez called upon the God of Israel, saying, Oh that you would bless me and enlarge my border" (4:10).
5. "And God granted what he asked" (4:10).
6. "For they cried out to God in the battle, and he granted their urgent plea because they trusted in him" (5:20).
7. "But they broke faith with the God of their fathers, and whored after the gods of the peoples of the land" (5:25).
8. "So the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of Pul king of Assyria" (5:26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The royal line is carefully traced. David's sons are listed, including Solomon, and then the long line of the kings of Judah. After the exile, the line continues: Jehoiachin, Shealtiel, and Zerubbabel, who led the first return. This is deliberate. Chronicles says that the house of David did not end. God's covenant with David stands, even though there is no king on the throne at the time of writing.

In the middle of the genealogies, we find a short story of a man named Jabez. His name means "pain," because his mother bore him in sorrow. He could have lived under the weight of that name. Instead, he cried out to God. He asked for blessing, for enlarged borders, for God's hand to be with him, and to be kept from harm. "And God granted what he asked." The story tells us that our origins do not determine our future. A person with a painful beginning can pray boldly and be heard. But note the point is not a formula for prosperity. It is trust in God's ability to bless.

Chapter 5 includes another telling detail about the tribes east of the Jordan, who "cried out to God in the battle, and he granted their urgent plea because they trusted in him." Victory is credited to trust, not strength. But by the end of the chapter, those same tribes broke faith and were exiled. This is the Chronicler's pattern: faith leads to blessing, and unfaithfulness leads to loss, but prayer is always open.

Notice also the ending: "The God of Israel stirred up the spirit of Pul king of Assyria." Even the exile is seen as God's hand at work. The same phrase, "stirred up the spirit," appeared in Ezra 1:1 for Cyrus. God stirs up both judgment and restoration.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 1:12-13 includes Zerubbabel in the line of Jesus. Luke 11:9-10 says to ask, seek, and knock. James 4:2: "You do not have, because you do not ask." Ephesians 3:20 says God is able to do far more than all we ask or think. Psalm 34:6: "This poor man cried, and the LORD heard him." John 16:24: "Ask, and you will receive, that your joy may be full."

STEP 6

Application

If you carry a painful name or beginning, offer it to God, and ask him to rename your future.

Pray a bold, specific prayer today, in line with God's character and purposes.

When facing a battle, practice crying out to God first.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Cry to God about where your beginnings were painful.

Ask him to bless you and enlarge your borders for his purpose.

Thank him for hearing those who cry out.

1 CHRONICLES 16:34

DAY 524 · WEEK 75

1 Chronicles 6:1-9:44

Levitical genealogies; Jerusalem after the exile [survey]

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 124 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 6:1-9:44. This is the last survey reading from the genealogies. Pay attention to the Levites, who serve in worship, and to the people who returned to Jerusalem at the end of chapter 9.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Chronicler gives special attention to the tribe of Levi, because the temple and its worship were central for the returned community. Chapter 6 lists the priestly line from Aaron and the singers appointed by David. Chapter 9 ends the genealogies with a roll call of those who returned from exile and lived in Jerusalem. The introduction is over, and the story of David begins in chapter 10.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “These are the men whom David put in charge of the service of song in the house of the LORD” (6:31).
2. “And they ministered with song before the tabernacle of the tent of meeting” (6:32).
3. “But Aaron and his sons made offerings on the altar of burnt offering” (6:49).
4. “All these, chosen as gatekeepers at the thresholds, were 212” (9:22).
5. “Now the first to dwell again in their possessions in their cities were Israel, the priests, the Levites, and the temple servants” (9:2).
6. “And some of the sons of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh lived in Jerusalem” (9:3).
7. “Some of them had charge of the vessels of service” (9:28).

(8) “They were in the singers, the heads of fathers” houses of the Levites, dwelling in the chambers of the temple, free from other service, for they were on duty day and night’ (9:33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Levites are given a large place for a reason. The Chronicler wanted the community to remember that worship is not an afterthought. After the exile, with no king, the temple and its worship were the center of national life. Levi’s line is listed in detail: the gatekeepers, the singers, and the priests. Even the musicians are named. David appointed men to the service of song, and they “ministered with song” before the tabernacle until Solomon built the temple.

This is one of the Chronicler’s emphases. Music is ministry. Those who sang were serving in the house of the LORD, just as those who offered sacrifices. The worship of God deserves skill, order, and care. Chapter 9 says some singers were “on duty day and night.” There was constant praise.

Chapter 9 ends with the list of those who settled in Jerusalem after the exile. It mirrors the lists in Nehemiah 11. After the long genealogy, we arrive at the present: the people are back, the city is occupied, the work of worship resumes. The genealogy is not an empty record. It leads to the community that is reading it.

Then the chapter ends with a reminder of King Saul’s genealogy, and immediately chapter 10 will tell of his death. The mood shifts. The introduction is over. The Chronicler has given us a map of the people. Now he will tell the story.

Do not be discouraged if these chapters feel dry. They are the foundation. Everything that follows, the story of David’s kingdom and the temple, rests on the belief that God knows his people by name and has a place for each.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Peter 2:9 calls the church a royal priesthood. Hebrews 4:14-16 names Jesus as our great high priest. Revelation 1:6 says he made us a kingdom, priests to his God and Father. Ephesians 5:19 says to sing and make melody to the Lord with your heart. Colossians 3:16 mentions teaching one another with psalms and hymns. Romans 12:1 invites us to present our bodies as a living sacrifice.

STEP 6

Application

Think about those who serve behind the scenes in your church, such as musicians, ushers, and volunteers. Thank one of them.

If you have a musical or creative gift, ask how God might use it in worship.

Practice offering your ordinary work as service to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he has a place for each person in his work.

Thank someone who serves behind the scenes.

Ask him to show you your place.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 1 Chronicles 16:34 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; for his steadfast love endures forever!"

1 CHRONICLES 16:34

REST

Meditation

This verse comes from the song David gave to Asaph and his brothers on the day the ark was brought to Jerusalem. You will read the whole song in a few days, in 1 Chronicles 16. It is a verse that bridges the Chronicler's world and yours.

"Oh give thanks to the LORD." This is a command in the form of an invitation. The word for thanks means to acknowledge, to confess, to give credit where it is due. Thanks is not just a feeling but a public statement. We say out loud who God is and what he has done.

"For he is good." The reason for thanks is God's character. He is good in himself. Not just good to us when things go well, but good in his nature. Jesus said, "No one is good except God alone" (Mark 10:18). All goodness comes from him.

“For his steadfast love endures forever.” The Hebrew word is hesed, covenant love, loyal love. It is the love that sticks. The word “endures” says that it does not run out. After the exile, the returned community needed this assurance. They had seen the covenant curses fall. And yet his love was still there.

The verse recurs again and again in the Bible: in Ezra 3:11, in Psalm 136, and in Jeremiah 33:11. When something appears so many times in Scripture, God is telling us to remember it. It was the song of the people at every major moment: bringing the ark, dedicating the temple, laying the foundation. It can be your song too, at every turning point in your life.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the book of Chronicles with the great genealogies. You moved from Adam through Noah, Abraham, Israel, and Judah, and saw the royal line of David continue past the exile to Zerubbabel. You met Jabez, whose painful name did not decide his future, and the eastern tribes who cried out in battle and were heard. You read about the Levites, singers, and gatekeepers who served in worship, and you saw the list end with those who returned to Jerusalem. Along the way, you prayed three psalms: Psalm 115, against idols and for God’s glory alone; Psalm 71, the prayer of the aged believer; and Psalm 144, a prayer for deliverance and for a blessed people.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

The Chronicler’s lists told the exiles that they belonged. Where do you find assurance that you belong to God’s people?

Jabez prayed boldly for blessing. What bold prayer, consistent with God’s will, might you offer this week?

Jesus appears in a genealogy that includes sinners and outsiders. How does that shape the way you see your own family story?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he is good and his steadfast love endures forever.

Thank him for your place in his story.

Rest in him.

DAY 526 · WEEK 76

1 Chronicles 10:1-13:14

Saul's death; David made king; the ark journey

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 77 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 10:1-13:14. Chronicles passes over Saul's life and tells only his death, then moves quickly to David's anointing as king over all Israel. Read for what the Chronicler chooses to emphasize.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Chronicler's story begins with the death of Saul, which he gives a theological explanation: Saul died for his unfaithfulness. Then, in a single move, "all Israel" gathers at Hebron to make David king. The Chronicler skips David's years as a fugitive and his seven-year reign over Judah. He wants to show a unified nation under God's chosen king, with David's first act being to capture Jerusalem and bring the ark there.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "So Saul died for his breach of faith. He broke faith with the LORD in that he did not keep the command of the LORD" (10:13).
2. "And he did not seek guidance from the LORD. Therefore the LORD put him to death" (10:14).
3. "Then all Israel gathered to David at Hebron and said, Behold, we are your bone and flesh" (11:1).
4. "And the LORD your God said to you, You shall be shepherd of my people Israel" (11:2).
5. "And David became greater and greater, for the LORD of hosts was with him" (11:9).
6. "These were the chiefs of David's mighty men, who gave him strong support in his kingdom" (11:10).

7. “And David said to all the assembly of Israel, If it seems good to you, and from the LORD our God… let us bring again the ark of our God to us” (13:2-3).

8. “And Uzzah put out his hand to take hold of the ark… and God struck him down because he put out his hand to the ark” (13:9-10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Chronicler’s judgment on Saul is one sentence: he broke faith and he did not seek the LORD. That is the key. The central question of Chronicles is whether the kings “sought the LORD.” This phrase recurs throughout the books and is the test of every reign. Saul did not. David did.

The story shifts to David at Hebron, where all the tribes come together. Notice the key phrase: the LORD said, “You shall be shepherd of my people.” David’s reign is a gift from God. Jerusalem is taken, and the Chronicler stresses that David’s power grew because “the LORD of hosts was with him.” The list of mighty men follows, each of whom contributed to the kingdom. Chapter 12 describes the soldiers who came from all the tribes: “all of one mind to make David king.” Unity around God’s king is a major theme.

Then David consults with the leaders about the ark, which had been neglected since the days of Eli. “Let us bring again the ark of our God to us, for we did not seek it in the days of Saul.” The ark was the symbol of God’s presence, and bringing it to Jerusalem would make the city the spiritual center.

But the first attempt fails. They put the ark on a new cart, as the Philistines had done, rather than carry it on the shoulders of Levites as the law prescribed. When the oxen stumble, Uzzah reaches out to steady the ark and dies on the spot. It is a shocking moment. David is angry and afraid. The lesson is that good intentions are not enough. God’s presence is holy, and it must be approached on his terms. The ark is left at the house of Obed-edom for three months, and that house is blessed.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 12:28-29 says our God is a consuming fire, and we should offer acceptable worship with reverence and awe. John 4:24 says true worshipers worship in spirit and truth. Matthew 2:6 quotes Micah on the shepherd of Israel, and John 10:11 says Jesus is the good shepherd. Ephesians 4:3-6 urges unity of the Spirit. Leviticus 10:1-3 and Numbers 4:15 show the holiness of sacred things. 1 Samuel 13:13-14 records Saul’s disobedience.

STEP 6

Application

Ask yourself how you seek the LORD in your decisions, not after the fact but before.

Think about approaching God with reverence. Is there any casualness in your worship that needs correcting?

Pray for unity among believers around Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to make you one who seeks him, as David did.
- Confess where you have gone your own way.
- Ask for his presence.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 76

"Now you have been pleased to bless the house of your servant, that it may continue forever before you. For it is you, O LORD, who have blessed, and it is blessed forever."

1 CHRONICLES 17:27

DAY 527 · WEEK 76

1 Chronicles 14:1-17:27

David's victories; the ark in Jerusalem; the covenant

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 88 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 14:1-17:27. The ark comes to Jerusalem with joy, David sings a great psalm of thanksgiving, and God makes his covenant with David. Read chapter 16 as worship and chapter 17 as promise.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the failure of the first attempt, David prepares a tent for the ark and has the Levites carry it properly. The procession is a feast of music and dancing. David then appoints Asaph and his brothers to give thanks daily before the ark. Then David, living in a house of cedar, wants to build a house for God, and God responds with a covenant that is the pivot of the whole Bible: God will build David a house.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For none but the Levites may carry the ark of God" (15:2).
2. "Thus all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouting, to the sound of the horn, trumpets, and cymbals, and made loud music on harps and lyres" (15:28).
3. "On that day David first appointed that thanksgiving be sung to the LORD by Asaph and his brothers" (16:7).
4. "Oh give thanks to the LORD; call upon his name; make known his deeds among the peoples!" (16:8).
5. "Sing to the LORD, all the earth! Tell of his salvation from day to day" (16:23).
6. "Moreover, I declare to you that the LORD will build you a house" (17:10).

7. “I will raise up your offspring after you… and I will establish his kingdom” (17:11).
8. “I will establish his throne forever” (17:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

This time David does it right. The Levites carry the ark on their shoulders, as the law prescribed. The music and sacrifices are offered. David even dances in joy, which his wife Michal despises, though the Chronicler does not dwell on it. The ark is placed in the tent David prepared, and then David delivers a psalm that is a compilation of what we know as parts of Psalms 105, 96, and 106. It is a missionary hymn: “Make known his deeds among the peoples! Sing to the LORD, all the earth! Declare his glory among the nations.” David was not satisfied with a local, tribal religion. His praise reached to all peoples.

The psalm ends with the refrain that you memorized at the weekly rest: “Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; for his steadfast love endures forever.” Then comes the daily ministry of the Levites. The worship of Israel was constant.

Then comes chapter 17, the greatest moment. David says, “I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of the covenant of the LORD is under a tent.” He wants to build a house for God. God, through Nathan, turns it around: you will not build a house for me, but I will build a house for you. A dynasty. “I will raise up your offspring after you, one of your own sons, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house for me, and I will establish his throne forever.” Solomon will build the temple, but the promise reaches farther. The Chronicler, writing after the monarchy ended, holds on to this promise. The throne of David will be established forever, and that can only be fulfilled in someone greater than any of David’s sons.

David’s response is a model prayer: “Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my house, that you have brought me thus far?” It is humility before grace.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 1:32-33: the angel says that the Lord God will give Jesus the throne of his father David, and “of his kingdom there will be no end.” Hebrews 1:5 quotes “I will be to him a father” from this chapter. Acts 13:22-23 connects David and Jesus. Matthew 28:19 sends the church to all nations. Romans 15:9-11 shows the nations praising God. Psalm 89:3-4 recalls the covenant with David.

STEP 6

Application

Make the praise of 16:8-36 your own. Read it aloud and mention God’s deeds in your life.

Ask: who might I tell about God's deeds this week? Make known his deeds among the peoples.

Pray David's prayer: "Who am I, O LORD God, that you have brought me thus far?"

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks to God and call upon his name.
- Ask him to help you make known his deeds among the nations.
- Thank him for the covenant he made with David.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 76

"Now you have been pleased to bless the house of your servant, that it may continue forever before you. For it is you, O LORD, who have blessed, and it is blessed forever."

1 CHRONICLES 17:27

DAY 528 · WEEK 76

Psalm 96

Sing to the LORD a new song, David's psalm at the ark

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 96. You read this in Unit 3 as a song of the nations. Notice that much of it is quoted in 1 Chronicles 16, where David first gave it to Asaph, and read it now as the missionary song of the returned people.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 96 appears almost word for word in 1 Chronicles 16:23-33. The Chronicler included it because it captures the heart of David's worship: a song that sends praise to the whole earth. A small, fragile community, rebuilding in a corner of the Persian empire, still sang that God is king over all nations. That is the faith of the returned exiles. They did not shrink their God to fit their circumstances.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh sing to the LORD a new song; sing to the LORD, all the earth!" (v. 1).
2. "Sing to the LORD, bless his name; tell of his salvation from day to day" (v. 2).
3. "Declare his glory among the nations, his marvelous works among all the peoples!" (v. 3).
4. "For great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised; he is to be feared above all gods" (v. 4).
5. "For all the gods of the peoples are worthless idols, but the LORD made the heavens" (v. 5).
6. "Ascribe to the LORD, O families of the peoples, ascribe to the LORD glory and strength" (v. 7).
7. "Say among the nations, The LORD reigns!" (v. 10).

8 “He will judge the world in righteousness, and the peoples in his faithfulness” (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a missionary hymn. Its first three verses are a chain of commands: sing, bless, tell, declare. The song is not meant to stay in the temple. The goal is to tell the nations. This was an extraordinary thing for a small people to say. They had nothing to boast about: no army, no king, no wall until recently. And yet they said, “Declare his glory among the nations.”

The reason is who God is. He is great and above all gods. The gods of the peoples are “worthless idols,” a word that plays on “elilim,” meaning “nothings.” But the LORD made the heavens. The contrast is between nothing and the Maker. Having heard Psalm 115 only a few days ago, you recognize the theme.

Then the psalm calls the “families of the peoples” to ascribe glory to the LORD and to bring an offering and come into his courts. The nations are not simply an audience; they are invited to worship. This is the vision first given to Abraham: “In you all the families of the earth shall be blessed.”

The announcement at the center is the best news: “Say among the nations, The LORD reigns!” The heavens rejoice, the earth is glad, the sea roars, the fields exult, and the trees of the forest sing for joy. All creation celebrates because he is coming to judge. The judgment is good news: it means that wrongs will be set right, the oppressed will be vindicated, and the world will finally be put in order. He will judge “in righteousness” and “in his faithfulness.”

You read this in Unit 3 as an invitation. Today, remember that the people who sang it were few and weak. And God used them.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 12:3 promises that all families of the earth will be blessed through Abraham. Matthew 28:19-20 sends the disciples to make disciples of all nations. Acts 17:30-31 says God will judge the world in righteousness by a man he has appointed. Revelation 7:9-10 shows people from every nation praising God. Romans 10:14-15 asks how people will hear without a preacher. Revelation 11:15: “The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ.”

STEP 6

Application

Tell someone this week one thing about God that you believe is good news for them.

Pray for a missionary or a people group that has not heard.

Sing or read the psalm aloud outdoors, joining the trees of the forest.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Sing to the LORD a new song, in your own words.

Tell him he is greater than every other thing you are tempted to rely on.

Ask him to help you declare his glory.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 76

"Now you have been pleased to bless the house of your servant, that it may continue forever before you. For it is you, O LORD, who have blessed, and it is blessed forever."

1 CHRONICLES 17:27

DAY 529 · WEEK 76

Psalm 105:1-15

Give thanks to the LORD; remember his covenant

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 15 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 105:1-15. You read this in earlier units as a recital of God's covenant faithfulness. The first fifteen verses were also part of David's song in 1 Chronicles 16. Notice how the song uses the covenant with Abraham as a ground for present thanks.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 105 is a long historical psalm, recounting God's care of Israel from Abraham to the conquest. The first fifteen verses were sung on the day the ark came to Jerusalem (1 Chronicles 16:8-22). They set out the call to remember and then the heart of what they were to remember: the covenant. The returned exiles were reading this in a time when the land was again precarious. It reminded them that the promise to Abraham did not depend on their strength.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh give thanks to the LORD; call upon his name; make known his deeds among the peoples!" (v. 1).
2. "Sing to him, sing praises to him; tell of all his wondrous works!" (v. 2).
3. "Let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice!" (v. 3).
4. "Seek the LORD and his strength; seek his presence continually!" (v. 4).
5. "Remember the wondrous works that he has done, his miracles, and the judgments he uttered" (v. 5).
6. "He is the LORD our God; his judgments are in all the earth" (v. 7).

7. “He remembers his covenant forever, the word that he commanded, for a thousand generations” (v. 8).

8. “When they were few in number, of little account, and sojourners in it” (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a string of imperatives, nine in a row: give thanks, call, make known, sing, sing praises, tell, glory, rejoice, seek. Worship in Scripture is active, public, and full of verbs. Notice verse 3: “Let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice.” Seeking, which is often hard, is joyful.

Verse 5 gives the central command: remember. “Remember the wondrous works that he has done.” The main work of faith is memory. We forget so easily. The returned exiles had been through trauma, and remembering God’s past acts was how they kept hope alive. For you too, remembering is a spiritual discipline. Keep a journal, mark anniversaries, tell stories.

The heart of the psalm is verses 8 to 11: God “remembers his covenant forever.” Not just for one or two generations, but “for a thousand generations.” The covenant given to Abraham, repeated to Isaac and Jacob, includes the promise of Canaan. That promise was kept even though Israel was “few in number, of little account, and sojourners.” The people were small, weak, and wandering, yet God protected them: “He allowed no one to oppress them; he rebuked kings on their account.” Pharaoh and Abimelech are the examples. God said of the patriarchs, “Touch not my anointed ones, do my prophets no harm.”

For the post-exilic community, the phrase “few in number, of little account” described them exactly. And the psalm tells them that their smallness did not matter to God. The covenant he made held them. This is a major part of the Chronicler’s message: you are small, but you are the people to whom God made promises, and he will keep them.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 22:19: “Do this in remembrance of me.” Deuteronomy 7:7-9 says God did not set his love on Israel because they were many, but because he loved them and kept his oath. 1 Corinthians 1:26-29 says God chooses the weak and lowly. Galatians 3:29: “If you are Christ’s, then you are Abraham’s offspring.” Luke 1:72-73 says God remembered his holy covenant. Matthew 28:20: “I am with you always.”

STEP 6

Application

Make a list of ten “wondrous works” of God in your life. Read it aloud this week.

Take the Lord's Supper, or think about it if you are not able, and remember Christ's work.

Seek the LORD's presence continually: set a time each day to be still with him.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks and remember his wondrous works, naming one.
- Thank him that he remembers his covenant forever.
- Ask him to let you seek his face always.

DAY 530 · WEEK 76

1 Chronicles 18:1-22:19

David's victories; the census; preparing for the Temple

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 109 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 18:1-22:19. David's victories are summarized, and the book tells of his census sin and the choice of the temple site. David then prepares for the temple he will not build. Notice what the Chronicler leaves out.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Chronicler summarizes David's wars in a single chapter or two, and he leaves out the story of Bathsheba and Uriah entirely. This is not a cover-up, since the readers knew Samuel and Kings. His purpose is different. He wants to show the faithful side of David and focus on the temple. The one sin he does include is the census, because it led to the site of the temple.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And the LORD gave victory to David wherever he went" (18:6).
2. "Satan stood against Israel and incited David to number Israel" (21:1).
3. "But the king's word prevailed against Joab" (21:4).
4. "And God was displeased with this thing, and he struck Israel" (21:7).
5. "I have sinned greatly in that I have done this thing. But now, please take away the iniquity of your servant, for I have acted very foolishly" (21:8).
6. "Let us fall into the hand of the LORD, for his mercy is very great, but let me not fall into the hand of man" (21:13).
7. "But I will buy it for the full price. I will not take for the LORD what is yours, nor offer a burnt offering that costs me nothing" (21:24).

8 “Here shall be the house of the LORD God and here the altar of burnt offering for Israel” (22:1).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Chronicler selects. He tells us about David’s victories and his order of mighty men, but not about the affair with Bathsheba. He includes the census, a sin that brought a plague upon Israel and killed 70,000 people. Why this one? Because the story ends with David buying the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite, where he sees the angel of the LORD stand with a drawn sword. That place becomes the site of the temple. Out of the worst moment of David’s reign, God brings forth the place where sacrifices will be offered for the sin of the people.

It begins in a surprising way: “Satan stood against Israel and incited David.” The parallel in 2 Samuel 24 says the anger of the LORD incited David. The Chronicler preserves both: God allows the adversary to test, and God’s purposes are served. David’s sin is pride in numbers: he is relying on his army, not on God. When he recognizes his guilt, he confesses honestly. He does not blame Joab, who objected. And when given the choice of punishments, David says, “Let us fall into the hand of the LORD, for his mercy is very great.” Even in judgment, he trusts God’s character more than any human hand.

At the threshing floor, Ornan offers to give the land free. But David says, “I will not offer a burnt offering that costs me nothing.” Real worship costs. David pays full price. And the fire from heaven answers his offering.

Chapter 22 shows David preparing materials for the temple, though God says Solomon, a man of rest, will build it because David has shed much blood. David accepts it. He gathers gold, silver, iron, bronze, and timber “in great quantities” for the son who will build. This is a picture of a person who works for what he will not see finished.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 10:1-14 says the repeated sacrifices could not take away sin, but Christ offered himself once for all. 2 Samuel 24:24 is the parallel verse about costly offerings. Romans 12:1 says to present our bodies as a living sacrifice. 1 Peter 1:18-19 says we were ransomed with the precious blood of Christ. Matthew 6:21: where your treasure is, there your heart will be. Genesis 22:2 mentions Mount Moriah, linked to this site in 2 Chronicles 3:1.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether any of your giving or service “costs you nothing.” What would it look like to give something that costs?

Remember David’s choice: when you fail, fall into the hands of the LORD, for his mercy is great.

Prepare for something you will not see completed, a ministry, a legacy, or a gift for the next generation.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess sin to God honestly and ask him to take away your iniquity.
- Tell him you trust his mercy.
- Thank him for the altar and the sacrifice.

DAY 531 · WEEK 76

1 Chronicles 23:1-26:32

The Levites organized; the courses of priests

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 105 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 23:1-26:32. This is another survey reading. David organizes the Levites, priests, singers, and gatekeepers for the temple. Look for what the lists say about worship and service.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

David, old and full of days, makes Solomon king and then organizes the worship of the future temple. He assigns the Levites to duties, divides the priests into twenty-four divisions, assigns singers by lot, and sets the gatekeepers and treasurers. These chapters may feel technical. The point is that worship in God's house is meant to be ordered, skilled, and shared.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "When David was old and full of days, he made Solomon his son king over Israel" (23:1).
2. "For David said, The LORD, the God of Israel, has given rest to his people, and he dwells in Jerusalem forever" (23:25).
3. "And the Levites no longer need to carry the tabernacle" (23:26).
4. "And they are to stand every morning, thanking and praising the LORD, and likewise at evening" (23:30).
5. "David and the chiefs of the service also set apart for the service some of the sons of Asaph, and of Heman, and of Jeduthun, who prophesied with lyres, with harps, and with cymbals" (25:1).

6. “They were all under the direction of their father in the music in the house of the LORD” (25:6).
7. “All these were trained and skillful, 288” (25:7).
8. “And they cast lots for their duties, small and great, teacher and pupil alike” (25:8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Levites’ duties change. With the ark at rest in the temple, they no longer need to carry the tabernacle. Instead, they serve in the work of the house: assisting the priests, keeping the courts, cleaning, preparing the showbread, and standing every morning and evening to thank and praise the LORD. Praise was part of their daily work.

The singers receive special attention. Chapter 25 says they “prophesied with lyres, harps, and cymbals.” Music and prophecy are connected. They were trained and skillful, 288 of them, and the lots were cast fairly, “small and great, teacher and pupil alike.” Everyone had a place. Notice the family: “all under the direction of their father.” Their gifts were exercised in families.

In chapter 26, the gatekeepers and treasurers are listed. Those who guarded the doors and kept the treasuries were also Levites. Some were mighty men of valor. The care of the temple’s gifts was a holy trust. Even the doorkeepers had a calling: “I would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God” (Psalm 84:10).

Why does the Chronicler give such attention to these matters? Because after the exile, the community needed to rebuild worship on the pattern that God had given. They were to base it not on their own creativity but on what David had commanded “by the word of the LORD.” At the same time, there is freedom: David reorganized the Levites for new circumstances. Order serves worship.

This section teaches that God cares about the practical details of worship and service: who sings, who guards, who keeps the books. Nothing in his house is too small.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Corinthians 14:40 says that all things should be done decently and in order. Romans 12:4-8 describes different gifts in the body. 1 Peter 4:10 says that each has received a gift to serve one another. Ephesians 4:11-12 says Christ gave gifts to equip the saints for the work of ministry. Psalm 84:10 values being a doorkeeper in God’s house. Matthew 25:21: “Well done, good and faithful servant.”

STEP 6

Application

Think of your gift. Ask how it can serve in your local church.

Thank someone who does a quiet or behind-the-scenes task in your community.

Bring order and care to a part of your worship life.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the gifts he has given you for his people.

Ask him to show you where to use them.

Ask him to keep you from envying others' gifts.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 1 Chronicles 17:27 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Now you have been pleased to bless the house of your servant, that it may continue forever before you. For it is you, O LORD, who have blessed, and it is blessed forever."

1 CHRONICLES 17:27

REST

Meditation

This is the last line of David's prayer after God made the covenant with him. It is a prayer of someone who has just been handed an astonishing promise and is still catching his breath.

"Now you have been pleased to bless." David begins with God's pleasure. God was not forced to bless. He chose to, and he took pleasure in it. The blessing flowed from his good will. It was not earned.

"The house of your servant." David calls himself a servant, though he is the king. His house is not a palace of his own making but a household that God has chosen to bless. Notice that God's promise reached beyond David to his descendants. We are blessed, and so are our children after us.

“That it may continue forever before you.” David asks for the promise to endure. He knows that it will outlast him. The Chronicler wrote these words when there was no king in David’s line on the throne, and so this prayer was an act of hope. The promise had not failed. It was waiting for its fulfillment.

“For it is you, O LORD, who have blessed, and it is blessed forever.” This is the final confidence. The promise rests on the God who made it. David is not bragging about his future. He is resting in God’s word. If God has said it, it will happen.

As a Christian, you can pray this verse with joy. The promise to David is fulfilled in Jesus, and through him we too are blessed forever. When you are tempted to doubt that God will finish what he started, say this verse.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the heart of David’s story according to the Chronicler. You saw how the Chronicler passes quickly over Saul’s death and gathers all Israel to David. You watched the first attempt to move the ark fail with Uzzah, and the second attempt succeed with joyful music. You read David’s psalm of thanksgiving and God’s great covenant promise: “I will establish his throne forever.” You also saw David’s sin in the census and his choice to fall into the hand of the LORD, whose mercy is great, and his refusal to offer a sacrifice that cost him nothing. Then you read about the careful ordering of the Levites, singers, and gatekeepers. In Psalm 96 and the opening of Psalm 105, you sang the songs David gave to Asaph.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

David refused to offer a sacrifice that cost him nothing. What is a cost you are willing to bear for the sake of worship or service?

The promise to David finds its fulfillment in Jesus, the Son of David whose kingdom has no end. How does that give you confidence in God’s promises?

David prepared for a temple that Solomon would build. What are you preparing for the next generation that you may never see completed?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for being pleased to bless his servant.

Thank him for the promise fulfilled in Christ.

Rest in his faithfulness.

DAY 533 · WEEK 77

1 Chronicles 27:1-29:30

Military and civil officers; David's final assembly

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 71 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Chronicles 27:1-29:30. David organizes the kingdom, charges Solomon and the people, and gives toward the temple from his own treasure. Then he prays one of the great prayers of the Bible. Read 29:10-20 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the end of 1 Chronicles. David is old, and the transition to Solomon is a formal public event. After listing the officers of the kingdom, the Chronicler records David's final address to the assembly. He gives the plans for the temple to Solomon, urges the leaders to give, and then leads the people in blessing God. Solomon is made king a second time, and David dies "in a good old age, full of days, riches, and honor."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Now therefore in the sight of all Israel, the assembly of the LORD, and in the hearing of our God, observe and seek out all the commandments of the LORD your God" (28:8).
2. "And you, Solomon my son, know the God of your father and serve him with a whole heart and with a willing mind" (28:9).
3. "If you seek him, he will be found by you, but if you forsake him, he will cast you off forever" (28:9).
4. "Be strong and courageous and do it. Do not be afraid and do not be dismayed, for the LORD God, even my God, is with you" (28:20).
5. "Who then is willing to offer willingly, consecrating himself today to the LORD?" (29:5).

6. “Then the people rejoiced because they had given willingly, for with a whole heart they had offered freely to the LORD” (29:9).
7. “Yours, O LORD, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the victory and the majesty” (29:11).
8. “For all things come from you, and of your own have we given you” (29:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David’s charge to Solomon is among the finest pieces of fatherly advice in Scripture. “Know the God of your father and serve him with a whole heart and with a willing mind.” Knowledge comes first, then service. The heart must be whole, undivided, and the mind willing. Then the sober promise: “If you seek him, he will be found by you, but if you forsake him, he will cast you off forever.” This is the Chronicler’s whole theology in one verse. Seek and find; forsake and lose.

David then gives the plans for the temple, which he received “by the Spirit,” and a mass of gold and silver from his own treasure. He challenges the leaders: “Who then is willing to offer willingly?” They respond, and the giving is joyful. The key note is voluntary generosity. “The people rejoiced because they had given willingly.” Giving is meant to be a joy.

Then comes David’s prayer. It begins with praise: “Yours, O LORD, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the victory and the majesty, for all that is in the heavens and in the earth is yours.” It is the source of the line often used in the doxology of the Lord’s Prayer. Then comes the great humility: “Who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to give thus willingly? For all things come from you, and of your own have we given you.” Nothing we give is ours. We hand back what was lent.

He also prays for the people’s hearts: “Keep this forever in the intentions of the thoughts of the heart of your people, and direct their hearts toward you.” David knows that the heart is the key and that only God can keep it.

The book ends with David’s death and the note that his acts are “written in the chronicles.” The great king is gone, but the work continues.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 6:13 (in some manuscripts) ends the Lord’s Prayer with “For yours is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever.” 2 Corinthians 9:7: “God loves a cheerful giver.” 1 Corinthians 4:7: “What do you have that you did not receive?” Acts 20:35: “It is more blessed to give than to receive." 2 Timothy 1:5 mentions faith passed down. Proverbs 4:23: guard your heart.

STEP 6

Application

Pray David's prayer about giving: ask God to help you give willingly and joyfully.

Think about who you are charging to "know the God of your father." Pray for them by name.

Write a letter or blessing for a younger person about what you have learned of God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God that everything you have comes from him.
- Offer him something willingly and with joy.
- Ask him to keep your heart loyal to him.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 77

"If my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land."

2 CHRONICLES 7:14

DAY 534 · WEEK 77

2 Chronicles 1:1-4:22

Solomon's wisdom; the Temple built

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 76 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 1:1-4:22. Solomon asks for wisdom and begins to build the temple. Read the account of the building as a picture of heaven on earth, and watch for where the Chronicler says the temple was built.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

2 Chronicles begins with Solomon's reign. The Chronicler tells the story with an emphasis on the temple and on Solomon's early faithfulness, leaving out his later failures. Solomon goes to Gibeon to sacrifice, and God appears to him in a dream. Then the building begins on Mount Moriah, the site David purchased.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And Solomon the son of David established himself in his kingdom, and the LORD his God was with him and made him exceedingly great" (1:1).
2. "Give me now wisdom and knowledge to go out and come in before this people" (1:10).
3. "Wisdom and knowledge are granted to you. I will also give you riches, possessions, and honor" (1:12).
4. "Behold, I am about to build a house for the name of the LORD my God" (2:4).
5. "But who is able to build him a house, since heaven, even highest heaven, cannot contain him?" (2:6).
6. "Then Solomon began to build the house of the LORD in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah" (3:1).
7. "And he overlaid the house with gold" (3:7).

8 “And he made the veil of blue and purple and crimson fabrics and fine linen, and he caused cherubim to be embroidered on it” (3:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Solomon’s request for wisdom shows a humble heart. God offers anything, and Solomon asks not for riches or long life but for wisdom to govern God’s people. God grants it and adds the riches he did not ask for. There is a lesson: seek first what matters, and the rest is added.

The Chronicler lingers over the temple. He ties it to the past: it is built on Mount Moriah, “where the LORD had appeared to David his father,” the same site where Abraham offered Isaac in Genesis 22. The significance is that this place, associated with sacrifice and provision, is where God’s presence will dwell.

Solomon’s message to Hiram of Tyre contains a profound statement: “Heaven, even highest heaven, cannot contain him.” The temple is not meant to hold God. It is a place for his name, where he promises to meet his people. Solomon knows the paradox: the infinite God condescends to dwell among humans.

The building is described in lavish detail. Gold overlays the walls. Two great cherubim stand in the Most Holy Place. Two bronze pillars stand at the entrance, named Jachin and Boaz. The bronze altar, the molten sea, the lampstands, and the tables are all made by skilled workmen. The craftsmanship and beauty were part of the worship. God is worthy of the best.

To the returned exiles, the description of the first temple meant something. They had built a smaller one, and the old men wept. But the Chronicler tells them about Solomon’s temple to say, “This is the pattern. This is who God is. His presence once dwelled here, and he will come again.”

STEP 5

Connection

John 2:19-21 says Jesus spoke of the temple of his body. 1 Corinthians 3:16 says “you are God’s temple and God’s Spirit dwells in you.” Ephesians 2:21-22 says the church is a holy temple in the Lord. James 1:5 promises wisdom to those who ask. Colossians 2:3: in Christ are hidden all the treasures of wisdom. Acts 7:48: the Most High does not dwell in houses made by hands. Revelation 21:22: no temple, for the Lord is its temple.

STEP 6

Application

Pray Solomon’s prayer for wisdom for a specific decision you face.

Remember that you are now a temple of the Spirit. Think about how you care for your body and your thoughts.

Offer your best skills to God, whatever they are.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God for wisdom to lead those he has given you.
- Marvel that heaven cannot contain him and yet he hears you.
- Ask him to teach you to honor him in your work.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 77

"If my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land."

2 CHRONICLES 7:14

DAY 535 · WEEK 77

2 Chronicles 5:1-7:22

The Temple dedicated; the glory fills the house

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 5:1-7:22. The ark is brought into the temple, the glory cloud fills the house, Solomon prays, and fire falls from heaven. Then God answers with a promise and a warning. Pay special attention to 7:14.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The temple is complete, and the ark is brought in. The Levite singers stand with cymbals, harps, and lyres, along with 120 priests blowing trumpets. At the moment they begin to praise, God's glory fills the house. Solomon then dedicates the temple with a long prayer. God appears again and gives a conditional promise to Israel.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "It was the duty of the trumpeters and singers to make themselves heard in unison in praise and thanksgiving to the LORD" (5:13).
2. "For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever" (5:13).
3. "The house, the house of the LORD, was filled with a cloud" (5:13).
4. "The glory of the LORD filled the house of God" (5:14).
5. "But will God indeed dwell with man on the earth? Behold, heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you; how much less this house that I have built!" (6:18).
6. "And listen to the pleas of your servant and of your people Israel, when they pray toward this place" (6:21).
7. "When the people of Israel… fire came down from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices" (7:1).

8 “If my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land” (7:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The dedication scene is built on musical praise and visible glory. At the moment the singers sound as “one voice” praising the LORD with the refrain, “For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever,” the cloud fills the house. The priests could not stand to minister because of the glory. This repeats the experience at the tabernacle in Exodus 40. God accepts the house.

Solomon’s prayer is among the longest in the Bible. He begins with praise, recalls the promise to David, and then asks the central question: “Will God indeed dwell with man on the earth?” He knows the paradox. Then comes a series of petitions: when someone wrongs a neighbor, when the nation is defeated, when there is drought, famine, or plague, when a foreigner comes to pray, when the people go to war, and when they sin and are exiled. For each, Solomon asks: “Hear from heaven.” The temple is a place of prayer for every need. And for the exile, he prays: “If they repent… and pray toward this land, which you gave to their fathers, then hear from heaven.”

That petition is directly answered in chapter 7. Fire falls from heaven, and the people bow and worship. Then, at night, God appears to Solomon and gives the promise that returned exiles needed most: “If my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land.” This verse is often quoted out of context, as though about a modern nation. In its original context, it was spoken to Israel about the temple and the land, and it gives the pattern for restoration: humility, prayer, seeking, and repentance. God’s promise is certain. But a warning follows: if they turn away and serve other gods, the temple itself will become a byword.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 9:11-12 says Christ entered once for all into the holy places, by means of his own blood. Matthew 18:20: “Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I among them.” Acts 2:1-4 describes the Spirit filling the believers like fire. 1 John 1:9: if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive. James 4:6-10 says to humble yourselves before the Lord. Luke 11:2: “Hallowed be your name.”

STEP 6

Application

Practice the four steps of 7:14: humble yourself, pray, seek his face, and turn from sin.

Pray Solomon's "Hear from heaven" for specific needs of your church and community.

Ask God to fill your gatherings with his presence, not just your plans.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks that his steadfast love endures forever.
- Ask him to fill his house, your church, with his glory.
- Ask him to hear from heaven when you pray.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 77

"If my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land."

2 CHRONICLES 7:14

DAY 536 · WEEK 77

Psalm 132

Remember, O LORD, in David's favor

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 18 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 132. This psalm recalls David's oath to find a dwelling place for the LORD and the LORD's oath to establish David's line. It echoes 2 Chronicles 6 and 7. Read the two oaths side by side.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 132 is a Song of Ascents, sung by pilgrims on the way up to Jerusalem. It recalls the bringing of the ark to Zion. Verses 8 to 10 are quoted in Solomon's prayer in 2 Chronicles 6:41-42, so it is easy to connect with this week's reading. It celebrates two oaths: David's oath to God, and God's oath to David.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Remember, O LORD, in David's favor, all the hardships he endured" (v. 1).
2. "How he swore to the LORD and vowed to the Mighty One of Jacob" (v. 2).
3. "I will not enter my house or get into my bed, I will not give sleep to my eyes... until I find a place for the LORD" (vv. 3-5).
4. "Let us go to his dwelling place; let us worship at his footstool!" (v. 7).
5. "Arise, O LORD, and go to your resting place, you and the ark of your might" (v. 8).
6. "The LORD swore to David a sure oath from which he will not turn back" (v. 11).
7. "One of the sons of your body I will set on your throne" (v. 11).
8. "This is my resting place forever; here I will dwell, for I have desired it" (v. 14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with David's passion. He could not rest until God had a place. The word "find" suggests a long search; the ark had been scattered for years. This longing for God's presence is the engine of the psalm. For David, a house for himself was nothing if the ark of God remained in a tent.

The pilgrims then go to the place: "Let us go to his dwelling place." They sing, "Arise, O LORD, to your resting place." This was probably sung at the entrance of the ark into the temple. They ask for the priests to be clothed with righteousness and the saints to shout for joy.

Then the psalm turns to God's oath, which is the center. "The LORD swore to David a sure oath from which he will not turn back." God's promise is not a negotiation. It is sworn, which means it does not depend on the performance of David's descendants. Yet it comes with a condition for them: if your sons keep my covenant, their sons will also sit on the throne. The Davidic promise is both unconditional in its ultimate fulfillment and conditional in its enjoyment by each generation. This is exactly the tension the Chronicler resolves: the line may fail, but the promise will not.

Then God speaks about Zion: "This is my resting place forever; here I will dwell, for I have desired it." God desires to dwell with his people. And he promises food for the poor, salvation for the priests, and joy for the saints. The final image is stunning: "There I will make a horn to sprout for David; I have prepared a lamp for my anointed." The horn is a symbol of strength, the lamp of continuing life. The line looks dark, but the lamp is lit. The Chronicler's readers would see it as a promise: a king will come.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 1:69 says God has raised up a horn of salvation in the house of David. John 8:12: "I am the light of the world." Acts 2:30 says David knew God had sworn an oath to set one of his descendants on his throne. Revelation 21:3: the dwelling place of God is with man. Matthew 11:28: "Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Hebrews 4:9-11 speaks of a Sabbath rest for the people of God.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether you long for God's presence as David did. What are you willing to give up for it?

Sing or pray verses 8 to 9 as part of your worship, as the pilgrims did.

Thank God for the "sure oath" of the gospel, which does not depend on your performance.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to remember his covenant.
- Ask him to clothe his priests with righteousness.
- Thank him for making his home among his people.

DAY 537 · WEEK 77

Psalm 135

Praise the name of the LORD in his house

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 135. You read this psalm on Day 488 beside Daniel's idols. Read it now as a hymn of the returned community, who sang it in the rebuilt temple, calling the servants of the LORD to praise.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 135 is made largely of quotations from other parts of Scripture: Exodus, Deuteronomy, and the Psalms. It was a worship song for the second temple, calling the priests and Levites "who stand in the house of the LORD" to praise. It celebrates God's greatness in creation and in history, and it ridicules idols. On Day 488 you read it beside the idols of Babylon. Today, notice how it pulls together the Chronicler's themes: the temple, the Levites, God's choice, and God's mighty acts.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! Praise the name of the LORD, give praise, O servants of the LORD, who stand in the house of the LORD" (vv. 1-2).
2. "For the LORD has chosen Jacob for himself, Israel as his own possession" (v. 4).
3. "For I know that the LORD is great, and that our Lord is above all gods" (v. 5).
4. "Whatever the LORD pleases, he does, in heaven and on earth" (v. 6).
5. "He it was who struck down the firstborn of Egypt" (v. 8).
6. "Your name, O LORD, endures forever, your renown, O LORD, throughout all ages" (v. 13).
7. "Those who make them become like them, so do all who trust in them" (v. 18).

8 “O house of Israel, bless the LORD! O house of Aaron, bless the LORD! O house of Levi, bless the LORD!” (vv. 19-20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a collage of Scripture, and that is its point. The worshipers of the second temple did not invent new words. They drew on the Torah and the earlier Psalms, weaving them into a new song. This is how worship grows: from the word of God into the heart of the people.

The first section calls the servants of the LORD to praise. The reason is that the LORD has chosen Jacob. The word “possession” is a treasure, a special possession. Israel is not great, but God chose them, and this is the ground of their joy.

The psalm then looks at God’s power in creation and at his deeds in Egypt. “Whatever the LORD pleases, he does.” He sends lightning with the rain, brings the wind from his storehouses, and strikes down the firstborn of Egypt. He gave Israel the land as a heritage. These are not abstractions but stories, and they are told in order to say: our God acts.

At the center is the contrast with the idols, as in Psalm 115. The language is almost the same, which tells us how deep it ran in the memory of the community. Idols are silver and gold. They have mouths, eyes, ears, but no breath. “Those who make them become like them.” The community that remembered Babylon’s idols had a vivid sense of how empty they were.

The psalm ends by calling the whole community by name: house of Israel, house of Aaron, house of Levi, and “you who fear the LORD.” Each group is told to bless the LORD. It ends where it began: “Blessed be the LORD from Zion, he who dwells in Jerusalem! Praise the LORD!” The point is that the people who worship the living God are alive to him.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 19:5-6 says Israel is God’s treasured possession. 1 Peter 2:9 applies it to the church: “a people for his own possession.” Ephesians 1:4 says he chose us in him before the foundation of the world. Isaiah 44:9-20 mocks idols. Revelation 4:11 says all things were created by his will. Psalm 115:3-8 parallels verses 15 to 18. Colossians 3:16: let the word of Christ dwell in you richly, singing.

STEP 6

Application

Compose a short prayer of praise using only words from Scripture, as the psalmist did.

Thank God that he chose you, not because of anything in you, but out of love.

Notice what in your life might be shaping you into its image. Are you becoming like what you worship?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God for choosing you as his own possession.
- Thank him that he is above all gods.
- Ask him to keep you from idols.

2 CHRONICLES 7:14

DAY 538 · WEEK 77

Psalm 136

His steadfast love endures forever

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 26 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 136. You read this on Day 489 as a liturgy of God's love beside Daniel's trials. Read it now aloud with a partner if you can, one reading the first line of each verse and the other answering with the refrain. It was probably sung at the temple's dedication.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 136 is the refrain psalm: twenty-six verses, each ending "for his steadfast love endures forever." It is the refrain sung in 2 Chronicles 5:13, 7:3, and 7:6 at the dedication of the temple, and in Ezra 3:11 when the second temple's foundation was laid. This week, you have met the refrain at nearly every turn. Today you read the whole song. On Day 489 you read it against exile. Now read it as the temple's song.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever" (v. 1).
2. "To him who alone does great wonders, for his steadfast love endures forever" (v. 4).
3. "To him who by understanding made the heavens" (v. 5).
4. "To him who spread out the earth above the waters" (v. 6).
5. "To him who struck down the firstborn of Egypt" (v. 10).
6. "And brought Israel out from among them" (v. 11).
7. "It is he who remembered us in our low estate" (v. 23).
8. "He who gives food to all flesh" (v. 25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a story told in a chorus. The first lines call for thanks to the God of gods and Lord of lords. Then it narrates creation: heavens, earth, sun, moon, and stars. Then it moves to the exodus: striking the firstborn of Egypt, dividing the Red Sea, leading the people through the wilderness. Then the conquest: striking down great kings and giving their land as a heritage. Then the final line: "It is he who remembered us in our low estate." The psalm covers creation, redemption, and conquest in a pattern of repeated assurance.

The most important feature is the repetition. "His steadfast love endures forever" appears twenty-six times. A modern reader might wonder why. But the people were not reading silently. They were singing, and one group sang the line while another answered. The refrain became a habit of the heart. Hearing it again and again taught them something that could not be taught in one sentence: God's love does not wear out.

Notice the surprising items in the list of God's deeds. The striking of Egypt's firstborn is in the same breath as creation. For Israel, God's love included his judgment on those who oppressed them. His love is not sentimental. It rescues, and rescue sometimes means defeating the enemy.

Verse 23 is for the exiles: "He remembered us in our low estate." They knew what "low estate" meant. They had been in Babylon and then returned to a small, ruined city. And God remembered. "And rescued us from our foes." The last verse reaches out to all creation: "He who gives food to all flesh." His love covers the whole world.

For the dedication of the temple, no better song could have been chosen. Every item in the list pointed back to the one truth that had held them through everything.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 8:35-39 asks what can separate us from the love of Christ. 1 John 4:10: "In this is love, not that we have loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son." Lamentations 3:22-23 says the steadfast love of the LORD never ceases. Ephesians 3:17-19 prays that we may know the love of Christ. John 3:16 gives the greatest expression of that love. Psalm 103:11: as high as the heavens are above the earth, so great is his steadfast love.

STEP 6

Application

Read the psalm aloud with someone, and let the refrain sink in.

Write your own “Psalm 136”: a list of ten things God has done for you, each ending with “for his steadfast love endures forever.”

When you struggle with doubt, repeat the refrain.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks to God for his steadfast love, line by line, in your own words.
- Thank him for his great wonders.
- Thank him for what he has done in your life.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"If my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land."

2 CHRONICLES 7:14

REST

Meditation

This is one of the most quoted verses in the Old Testament, and it is easy to misuse. So begin with its setting. God is speaking to Solomon, at night, after the temple is dedicated. He is speaking about Israel, the land, and the temple. In its original context, the "land" is the land of Israel. We should not simply apply it to any modern nation, but we can learn the pattern, which is repeated across Scripture.

"If my people who are called by my name." The promise is for a particular people: those who bear God's name. The church is also called by his name. God's concern is first with his own people.

"Humble themselves." This is the first step. The problem is not mainly outside; it begins with pride. Humility is the beginning of any restoration.

“And pray and seek my face.” Prayer is asking. To seek his face is to want God himself, not just his gifts. It is looking for his presence and his favor.

“And turn from their wicked ways.” Repentance is not only sorrow but change. There is a turning around.

“Then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land.” God’s response is threefold: he hears, he forgives, and he heals. Every verb is his gift. We do not heal the land; he does. Our part is to humble, pray, seek, and turn.

Remember that this passage was fulfilled in part under Hezekiah and Josiah. It points toward the greater turning that Christ makes possible. Pray this verse for your church first, then for your community. Begin with yourself.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the end of David’s reign and the beginning of Solomon’s according to the Chronicler. You heard David’s charge to Solomon, “Know the God of your father and serve him with a whole heart,” and his great prayer, “All things come from you, and of your own have we given you.” You watched Solomon ask for wisdom, build the temple on Mount Moriah, and dedicate it as God’s glory filled the house. You heard God’s answer to Solomon’s prayer in 7:14. In Psalm 132, you read the two oaths, David’s to God and God’s to David. In Psalms 135 and 136, you sang the songs of the second temple: the God who chose Israel, who is above all idols, and whose steadfast love endures forever.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

David said, “All things come from you, and of your own have we given you.” How does that change the way you think about your money, time, and talents?

2 Chronicles 7:14 gives four responses: humble, pray, seek, turn. Which is hardest for you right now?

Solomon’s temple is fulfilled in Jesus and in his people. How does it change your daily life to know that God’s Spirit dwells in you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Humble yourself before God and ask him to hear from heaven.

Ask him to forgive sin and heal what is broken.

Thank him for Christ, the true temple.

DAY 540 · WEEK 78

2 Chronicles 8:1-12:16

Solomon's reign; the kingdom divides; Rehoboam

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 84 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 8:1-12:16. Solomon's reign ends, the kingdom divides, and Rehoboam, humbled by Shishak's invasion, repents for a moment. Read for the Chronicler's pattern: seek the LORD and prosper; forsake him and suffer.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Chronicler gives Solomon's reign a glowing finish, with the visit of the queen of Sheba, and omits his sin with foreign wives. He wants his readers to remember the golden age. Then the story turns on Rehoboam, who rejects wise counsel, and the northern tribes break away. From this point, the Chronicler largely follows the kings of Judah, the line of David, and ignores the northern kingdom except where it touches Judah.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And the queen of Sheba said, The report was true that I heard in my own land of your words and of your wisdom" (9:5).
2. "Blessed be the LORD your God, who has delighted in you and set you on his throne" (9:8).
3. "But he abandoned the counsel that the old men gave him" (10:8).
4. "So Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David to this day" (10:19).
5. "The priests and Levites who were in all Israel presented themselves to him from all places" (11:13).
6. "And those who set their hearts to seek the LORD God of Israel came after them from all the tribes of Israel" (11:16).

7. “When Rehoboam had established his kingdom and was strong, he abandoned the law of the LORD, and all Israel with him” (12:1).

8. “And when he humbled himself the wrath of the LORD turned from him, so as not to make a complete destruction” (12:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Chronicler gives the pattern that will recur in every reign. The king and the people either seek the LORD or abandon him, and the results follow. Solomon’s wisdom draws the queen of Sheba from afar. She marvels, and she blesses the LORD. The glory of Solomon’s reign points beyond itself.

Rehoboam shows the reverse. He asks for advice from the elders, who counsel gentleness, and from his young friends, who counsel harshness. He chooses the young men’s counsel and answers the people roughly. The kingdom splits. Notice that the Chronicler says it was “a turn of affairs brought about by God,” to fulfill his word. Even human folly is under God’s rule.

The Levites and priests leave the north, and many from all the tribes who “set their hearts to seek the LORD” come to Jerusalem. This is a key idea: the true Israel was where God’s worship was. Jeroboam had appointed his own priests for the high places and golden calves. The faithful choose to follow God and leave their land and property behind.

When Rehoboam is established and strong, he forsakes the law, and Egypt’s Shishak comes up against Jerusalem. A prophet explains: “You abandoned me, so I have abandoned you.” The leaders humble themselves, saying, “The LORD is righteous.” God relents in part. Judah will serve Shishak “that they may know the difference between serving me and serving the kings of the countries.” The chapter ends with a verdict: Rehoboam “did evil, for he did not set his heart to seek the LORD.”

Contrast this with Ezra, who “set his heart to study the law.” The heart is the central matter.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 12:42 says the queen of the South will rise at the judgment, “for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold, something greater than Solomon is here.” Proverbs 11:14: in an abundance of counselors there is safety. James 4:6: God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble. Hebrews 11:25 notes Moses choosing to share ill-treatment with God’s people. 1 Kings 12 records the split.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you are tempted to take the advice that is easy instead of the advice that is wise. Seek counsel from someone older and wiser.

Notice the “set your heart to seek the LORD” language and ask whether your heart is set.

When you fail, remember Rehoboam’s brief humbling and God’s mercy.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to set your heart to seek him.
- Ask him to give you humility to listen to wise counsel.
- Ask him to help you return when you fail.

DAY 541 · WEEK 78

2 Chronicles 13:1-16:14

Abijah, Asa, Chronicles' portrait of reform

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 70 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 13:1-16:14. Abijah speaks to Jeroboam, Asa seeks the LORD and has peace, and then Asa relies on Syria and on physicians and not the LORD. Watch how his story changes.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Abijah, king of Judah, faces Jeroboam's much larger army. Then his son Asa begins a long reign with a great reform and thirty-five years of peace. But in his later years, he trusts in a human alliance instead of God, rejects the prophet, and dies after seeking help from physicians only. The Chronicler makes him an example of a good start and a poor finish.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "God is with us at our head, and his priests with their battle trumpets to sound the call to battle against you" (13:12).
2. "And the men of Judah cried out. And when the men of Judah shouted, God defeated Jeroboam" (13:15).
3. "Thus the men of Israel were subdued at that time, and the men of Judah prevailed, because they relied on the LORD" (13:18).
4. "And Asa did what was good and right in the eyes of the LORD his God" (14:2).
5. "LORD, there is none like you to help, between the mighty and the weak. Help us, O LORD our God, for we rely on you" (14:11).
6. "The LORD is with you while you are with him. If you seek him, he will be found by you" (15:2).

7. “For the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to give strong support to those whose heart is blameless toward him” (16:9).

8. “Yet even in his disease he did not seek the LORD, but sought help from the physicians” (16:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Chronicler tells the stories as case studies in dependence. Abijah is outnumbered two to one and ambushed. But he stands on a hill and speaks to Jeroboam, reminding him of God’s covenant with David and of Jeroboam’s golden calves. When the battle is joined, Judah cries out to the LORD, the priests blow trumpets, and God routs the enemy. “They relied on the LORD.” The word means to lean.

Asa’s first years are the model. He removes the foreign altars and high places, commands Judah to seek the LORD, and gets peace. When a million Ethiopians come against him, he prays one of the best prayers of the Bible: “LORD, there is none like you to help, between the mighty and the weak.” God gives victory.

The prophet Azariah then gives the principle that summarizes the Chronicler’s theology: “The LORD is with you while you are with him. If you seek him, he will be found by you, but if you forsake him, he will forsake you.” Asa and the people enter a covenant to seek the LORD with all their heart and soul, and “he was found by them.” He even deposes his own grandmother for idolatry.

But in the thirty-sixth year, Baasha of Israel comes against him, and Asa takes the temple’s silver and gold to hire the king of Syria. It works, politically. Then the seer Hanani rebukes him: “Because you relied on the king of Syria, and did not rely on the LORD your God… the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to give strong support to those whose heart is blameless.” Asa’s response is to throw the prophet into prison and oppress some of the people.

The saddest note: when he is diseased in his feet, he “did not seek the LORD, but sought help from the physicians.” The point is not that doctors are wrong, but that he sought only them. He had lost the habit of dependence.

STEP 5

Connection

Proverbs 3:5-6: “Trust in the LORD with all your heart, and do not lean on your own understanding.” Jeremiah 17:5-8 contrasts those who trust in man with those who trust in the LORD. 2 Corinthians 12:9: “My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness." Philippians 3:13-14 speaks of pressing on. Hebrews 3:14 warns that we share in Christ if we hold our original confidence firm to the end. John 15:5: "Apart from me you can do nothing."

STEP 6

Application

Pray Asa's prayer: "There is none like you to help, between the mighty and the weak."

Think about a place in your life where you rely on human solutions only. Bring God into it.

Pray for finishing well. Ask God to keep you dependent on him in the later seasons of life.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God that you rely on him, not on your own strength.
- Thank him that there is none like him to help the weak.
- Ask him to keep you from turning to others first.

2 CHRONICLES 16:9

DAY 542 · WEEK 78

2 Chronicles 17:1-20:37

Jehoshaphat, faithfulness and compromise

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 92 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 17:1-20:37. Jehoshaphat sends teachers throughout Judah, makes an unwise alliance with Ahab, and then, when a vast army comes, leads the nation in prayer. Read 20:1-30 closely.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jehoshaphat is one of the Chronicler's favorite kings. He sends officials, Levites, and priests with the Book of the Law to teach in every city of Judah. He appoints judges. But he also allies himself with the wicked Ahab. When Moab, Ammon, and others come against him, he proclaims a fast and leads Judah in a great prayer. The result is one of the most remarkable victories in Scripture.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And they taught in Judah, having the Book of the Law of the LORD with them" (17:9).
2. "Should you help the wicked and love those who hate the LORD?" (19:2).
3. "Consider what you do, for you judge not for man but for the LORD" (19:6).
4. "Then Jehoshaphat was afraid and set his face to seek the LORD, and proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah" (20:3).
5. "O our God, will you not execute judgment on them? For we are powerless against this great horde that is coming against us. We do not know what to do, but our eyes are on you" (20:12).
6. "Do not be afraid and do not be dismayed at this great horde, for the battle is not yours but God's" (20:15).

7. “Believe in the LORD your God, and you will be established; believe his prophets, and you will succeed” (20:20).

8. “And when they began to sing and praise, the LORD set an ambush against the men of Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir” (20:22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jehoshaphat’s best moment is when he sends teachers. Notice the method: officials, Levites, and priests go through the cities “having the Book of the Law of the LORD with them.” Spiritual health comes through teaching God’s word. The result was that the fear of the LORD fell on neighboring kingdoms, and they did not make war against Judah.

His worst moment is his alliance with Ahab. The prophet Micaiah is the one true voice against four hundred false prophets, and Jehoshaphat sees the king of Israel struck and nearly dies himself. The prophet Jehu asks, “Should you help the wicked and love those who hate the LORD?” But he adds that there is some good in him. God’s grace works in people with mixed records.

Then the great crisis arrives. A vast army comes from beyond the Dead Sea. The king is afraid, and the fear drives him to God, not away from him. He gathers the whole nation, including “their little ones, their wives, and their children,” and prays. His prayer begins with who God is, “You rule over all the kingdoms of the nations,” recalls God’s promises about the temple, and then admits the truth: “We are powerless… We do not know what to do, but our eyes are on you.” That sentence is one of the best prayers a person can pray.

God answers through a Levite named Jahaziel: “The battle is not yours but God’s.” The next morning, Jehoshaphat appoints singers to go before the army, praising “for his steadfast love endures forever.” When they began to sing, God set ambushes, and the enemy destroyed each other. Judah collected plunder for three days and gathered in the Valley of Beracah, “blessing.” The nation returned to Jerusalem with harps, lyres, and trumpets.

STEP 5

Connection

Ephesians 6:12: we do not wrestle against flesh and blood. Romans 8:31: if God is for us, who can be against us? 2 Corinthians 4:8: “We are afflicted in every way, but not crushed… perplexed, but not driven to despair.” Acts 16:25-26 shows Paul and Silas singing in prison. 1 Samuel 17:47: “The battle is the LORD’s.” Isaiah 26:3: you keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on you.

STEP 6

Application

Use Jehoshaphat's prayer the next time you face something beyond you: "I do not know what to do, but my eyes are on you."

Try praising God in the middle of a hard situation, before you see the answer.

Be careful with your closest alliances, and ask whether they pull you toward or away from God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what you cannot manage, and say, "My eyes are on you."

Thank him that the battle is his.

Ask him to teach you to worship before you see the victory.

2 Chronicles 21:1-24:27

Jehoram, Athaliah, Joash, the throne preserved

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 89 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 21:1-24:27. Jehoram and Ahaziah lead Judah into evil, Athaliah usurps the throne, and young Joash is rescued and crowned. Joash starts well under the priest Jehoiada and then falls. Watch how the Chronicler explains the change.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jehoshaphat's alliance with Ahab leads to the marriage of his son Jehoram to Athaliah, Ahab's daughter. The consequence is tragic. Jehoram kills his brothers, Ahaziah is killed, and Athaliah slaughters the royal family except for one baby, Joash. The line of David hangs by a thread. This is the low point of Judah's early history.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, for the daughter of Ahab was his wife" (21:6).
2. "Yet the LORD was not willing to destroy the house of David, because of the covenant that he had made with David" (21:7).
3. "Jehosheba… took Joash the son of Ahaziah and stole him away from among the king's sons who were being put to death" (22:11).
4. "Behold, the king's son! Let him reign, as the LORD spoke concerning the sons of David" (23:3).
5. "And Joash did what was right in the eyes of the LORD all the days of Jehoiada the priest" (24:2).

6. “But after the death of Jehoiada the officials of Judah came and paid homage to the king” (24:17).
7. “The Spirit of God clothed Zechariah the son of Jehoiada the priest, and he stood above the people” (24:20).
8. “Thus Joash the king did not remember the kindness that Jehoiada, Zechariah’s father, had shown him, but killed his son” (24:22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 21 shows how a bad alliance bears bitter fruit. Jehoram marries Ahab’s daughter and imports Baal worship. He murders his six brothers, and God sends an Edomite revolt and a Philistine and Arab raid. Elijah sends a letter of judgment. He dies in agony of the bowels, and “no one desired his departure.” It is a terrible epitaph.

Yet the Chronicler adds a note of mercy: “The LORD was not willing to destroy the house of David, because of the covenant.” God’s faithfulness to his promise is bigger than the faithlessness of the kings. And at the lowest moment, when Athaliah murders the heirs of David, God has a baby hidden. Jehosheba, the king’s daughter and wife of the priest Jehoiada, saves Joash and hides him in the temple for six years. The promise to David depended on a woman’s courage.

Jehoiada then stages the coup. He gathers the Levites and the commanders, brings out the boy king, and crowns him. The priest makes a covenant between God, the king, and the people. The people rejoice, and the city is quiet. Athaliah is put to death, and the Baal altar is torn down.

Joash starts well, repairing the temple with a collection from the people. But Jehoiada dies at 130, and everything changes. The officials come and persuade the king, and “they abandoned the house of the LORD… and served the Asherim and the idols.” Joash’s faith had been a borrowed faith, propped up by his mentor. When God sends prophets, the king responds by having Zechariah, the priest’s son, stoned in the temple court. “May the LORD see and avenge.”

The tragedy of Joash is that he never made the faith his own. The lesson is to build a faith that stands even when the people who first taught you are gone.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Timothy 1:5 praises the faith that dwelt in Timothy's grandmother and mother, and now in him. Matthew 23:35 refers to the blood of Zechariah, who was killed between the temple and the altar. Hebrews 3:12: "Take care, brothers, lest there be in any of you an evil, unbelieving heart." 2 Corinthians 6:14: do not be unequally yoked. Jude 24: "Now to him who is able to keep you from stumbling."

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether your faith depends on a person or a community more than on your own walk with God. Take a step to own it.

Thank someone who played the role of Jehoiada in your life.

Be a Jehoiada to a young person: protect, teach, and pray.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for his faithfulness when his people fail.

Thank him for preserving David's line.

Ask him to keep you from taking his patience for granted.

DAY 544 · WEEK 78

2 Chronicles 25:1-28:27

Amaziah, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, mixed faithfulness

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 90 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 25:1-28:27. Amaziah, Uzziah, Jotham, and Ahaz take the throne in turn. Look for the word “strong,” and for what happens when strength leads to pride.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These four kings cover about 100 years. Amaziah starts well and ends with idolatry. Uzziah is one of the most successful kings, but he oversteps in the temple and is struck with leprosy. Jotham is faithful. Ahaz is among the worst, closing the temple and sacrificing his own children. Isaiah’s early ministry takes place in this period, which you read in Unit 12.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, yet not with a whole heart” (25:2).
2. “The LORD is able to give you much more than this” (25:9).
3. “And he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD… And as long as he sought the LORD, God made him prosper” (26:4-5).
4. “And his fame spread far, for he was marvelously helped, till he was strong” (26:15).
5. “But when he was strong, he grew proud, to his destruction” (26:16).
6. “So Jotham became mighty, because he ordered his ways before the LORD his God” (27:6).
7. “For the LORD humbled Judah because of Ahaz king of Israel, for he had made Judah act sinfully” (28:19).
8. “In the time of his distress he became yet more faithless to the LORD” (28:22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Amaziah's description is chilling: he did what was right, "yet not with a whole heart." He listens to a prophet when it costs him money, dismissing 100,000 hired soldiers from Israel because "the LORD is able to give you much more than this." But after defeating Edom, he brings home their gods and worships them. When a prophet confronts him, he threatens the prophet. A partial faith ends in ruin.

Uzziah's story is the most important in this section. He reigned for 52 years and "as long as he sought the LORD, God made him prosper." He built towers, dug cisterns, organized a large army, and developed new weapons. His fame spread. "He was marvelously helped, till he was strong." And then the dangerous line: "But when he was strong, he grew proud, to his destruction." He went into the temple to burn incense, which was the priest's job. When eighty priests confronted him, he raged. And leprosy broke out on his forehead. He lived in isolation the rest of his life. The point is stark: success, apart from humility, destroys. This is the same Uzziah in whose death year Isaiah saw the LORD (Isaiah 6:1).

Jotham is a quiet counterexample. "He ordered his ways before the LORD his God." The word "ordered" means to establish firmly. No dramatic event, just steady faithfulness, and he "became mighty."

Ahaz is the opposite: he made metal images for Baals, burned his children, and shut the temple doors. When Assyria pressed him, he sent them the temple treasures. Verse 22 says, "In the time of his distress he became yet more faithless." Hardship should drive us to God. For Ahaz it drove him away.

STEP 5

Connection

Proverbs 16:18: "Pride goes before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." James 4:6: God gives grace to the humble. Luke 18:14: "Everyone who exalts himself will be humbled." Isaiah 6:1-5 records the vision that came in the year Uzziah died. Hebrews 7:26-27 says Jesus is the high priest we need. Romans 12:3: do not think of yourself more highly than you ought.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether any success in your life has made you less dependent on God.

Be like Jotham: order your ways before the LORD, steadily and quietly.

Notice where you are serving God "not with a whole heart," and ask him to unify your heart.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God for a whole heart.

Ask him to keep you humble when you are strong.

Ask him to drive you to him, not away, when you are distressed.

DAY 545 · WEEK 78

2 Chronicles 29:1-32:33

Hezekiah's great reform, Temple worship restored

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 88 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 29:1-32:33. Hezekiah reopens the temple, restores the Passover, and trusts God when Sennacherib invades. Read for the extraordinary Passover, where the whole kingdom seeks the LORD, and note 30:18-20.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Hezekiah is the Chronicler's greatest reformer. He begins in the first month of his first year, opening the doors of the temple. Unlike the account in Kings, which emphasizes Sennacherib's invasion, the Chronicler spends three chapters on the temple's cleansing and the great Passover. You read the Sennacherib story in Isaiah in Unit 12. Here it is brief, and in this book it is the reward of faithfulness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he opened the doors of the house of the LORD and repaired them" (29:3).
2. "For our fathers have been unfaithful and have done what was evil in the sight of the LORD our God" (29:6).
3. "Be not like your fathers and your brothers, who were faithless to the LORD" (30:7).
4. "But some men of Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem" (30:11).
5. "May the good LORD pardon everyone who sets his heart to seek God, the LORD, the God of his fathers, even though not according to the sanctuary's rules of cleanness" (30:18-19).

6. “And the LORD heard Hezekiah and healed the people” (30:20).
7. “So there was great joy in Jerusalem, for since the time of Solomon… there had been nothing like this” (30:26).
8. “Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid or dismayed… for there is one greater with us than with him” (32:7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Hezekiah acts at once. In the first month of his first year, he reopens the temple, and the priests spend sixteen days cleansing it. His words to the Levites: “Do not now be negligent, for the LORD has chosen you to stand in his presence.” Then the temple is rededicated with burnt offerings and with singing, “the song to the LORD began also, and the trumpets.” The people bring thank offerings, so many that the priests need help.

Then he does something unusual: he invites the northern tribes, now in ruin under Assyria, to come to Jerusalem to keep the Passover. Couriers go throughout Israel, from Beersheba to Dan. Some laugh at them. But others humble themselves and come. The result is a massive celebration, for two weeks, with joy that Jerusalem had not seen since Solomon.

One detail is gracious. Many who came had not purified themselves according to the rules. Hezekiah prays: “May the good LORD pardon everyone who sets his heart to seek God, even though not according to the sanctuary’s rules of cleanness.” And the LORD heard and healed the people. God cares about the heart above ritual precision, though he does not dismiss ritual.

When Sennacherib invades, the Chronicler tells it in a few verses. Hezekiah strengthens the walls, digs a tunnel to bring water into the city, and encourages the people: “With him is an arm of flesh, but with us is the LORD our God, to help us and to fight our battles.” He and Isaiah cry to heaven, and an angel destroys the Assyrian army. The chapter ends with a hint of pride in Hezekiah’s heart, which he repents of, and then notes his prosperity. “God left him to himself, in order to test him and to know all that was in his heart.” Even the best king is human.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 4:16: “Let us then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace.” 1 Corinthians 5:7-8: Christ, our Passover lamb, has been sacrificed. Luke 15:20 shows the father welcoming the returning son. Joel 2:12-13 calls for returning with all your heart. 1 John 4:4: “He who is in you is greater than he who is in the world.” Romans 10:1-3 speaks of zeal for God, rightly understood.

STEP 6

Application

Do the first thing first: what is one area where God's "house" in your life needs to be cleaned out and opened?

Invite someone who is far from God to come with you to worship.

When you fear, remember: "There is one greater with us than with him."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to pardon everyone who sets their heart to seek him, including you.

Ask him to help you cleanse what is unclean in your life.

Thank him for healing.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 2 Chronicles 16:9 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to give strong support to those whose heart is blameless toward him."

2 CHRONICLES 16:9

REST

Meditation

This verse was spoken as a rebuke to King Asa, but it is full of encouragement. It was meant to say, "You could have had so much more help if you had trusted me." For us, it is an invitation.

"For the eyes of the LORD run to and fro." The image is of God's active attention. His eyes are not still. They run, like a scout surveying the land. The LORD is looking, searching, always watching. Nothing is hidden from him. For those who want to hide, this is a threat. For those who are seeking him, it is a comfort.

"Throughout the whole earth." His watch covers the entire world, not just Israel. No place is outside his sight. No believer is forgotten, however remote.

“To give strong support.” This is what he is looking for: someone to help. The word means to strengthen or make firm. He is not scanning in order to catch people out but to find those he can support. God is looking for people to help.

“To those whose heart is blameless toward him.” The condition is a heart that is whole, undivided, and loyal. “Blameless” does not mean sinless. Asa was no angel, and neither was David. It means a heart that is fully turned toward him, that does not divide its trust. God looks for those whose reliance is wholly on him.

When you feel alone, small, or unnoticed, remember that God’s eyes are running through the whole earth with a purpose: to help you. Give him a heart that is completely his.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you followed the kings of Judah through the Chronicler’s eyes. You saw Solomon’s glory fade into Rehoboam’s folly, and the kingdom divide. You watched Asa cry out to the LORD against a million Ethiopians and then rely on Syria and doctors in his old age. You saw Jehoshaphat teach the law, make an unwise alliance, and then lead the nation in prayer: “We do not know what to do, but our eyes are on you.” You followed the tragedy of Athaliah and the rescue of baby Joash, then Joash’s fall after Jehoiada’s death. You read of Uzziah’s pride and Jotham’s steady faithfulness, and Hezekiah’s reform and Passover. The Chronicler’s lesson is clear: seek the LORD and you will find him; forsake him and he will forsake you.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

The Chronicler repeats the word “seek” again and again. What does seeking the LORD look like in your daily rhythm?

Asa began well and ended poorly. What practices might help you to finish well?

Hezekiah prayed, “May the good LORD pardon everyone who sets his heart to seek God.” How does the gospel assure us of that pardon?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God for a heart that is wholly his.

Thank him that his eyes run to and fro to strengthen the blameless.

Rest in him.

DAY 547 · WEEK 79

2 Chronicles 33:1-36:23

Manasseh's repentance; Josiah; exile; Cyrus's decree

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 101 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Chronicles 33:1-36:23. Manasseh sins, repents, and is restored. Josiah finds the Book of the Law. Then the kings fall one by one, and the temple is burned. The book ends with a decree of Cyrus. Read the final verses twice.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The last four chapters of Chronicles trace the fall of Judah. Manasseh is the worst king, and the Chronicler tells a story found nowhere else: his repentance in Babylon. Josiah's reform is the last great revival. Then come four weak kings, the siege, and the exile. The book closes not with defeat but with an invitation: "Let him go up." It ends where Ezra begins.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Manasseh led Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem astray, to do more evil than the nations" (33:9).
2. "And when he was in distress, he entreated the favor of the LORD his God and humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers" (33:12).
3. "Then Manasseh knew that the LORD was God" (33:13).
4. "And Josiah… while he was still a boy, began to seek the God of David his father" (34:3).
5. "Hilkiah the priest found the Book of the Law of the LORD given through Moses" (34:14).
6. "Because your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before God" (34:27).
7. "But they kept mocking the messengers of God, despising his words and scoffing at his prophets, until the wrath of the LORD rose against his people, until there was no remedy" (36:16).

8 “Whoever is among you of all his people, may the LORD his God be with him. Let him go up” (36:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Manasseh reigned for 55 years, the longest of any king. He rebuilt high places, set up altars to Baal in the temple, practiced sorcery, and sacrificed his sons. He led the people to do “more evil than the nations.” The Chronicler tells what Kings did not: when the Assyrians took Manasseh in hooks and bronze fetters to Babylon, “he entreated the favor of the LORD his God and humbled himself greatly.” And God “was moved by his entreaty and heard his plea and brought him again to Jerusalem.” “Then Manasseh knew that the LORD was God.” This is one of the great stories of grace in the Old Testament. If Manasseh could be forgiven, anyone can.

Josiah was eight when he began to reign, and at sixteen he began to seek God. At twenty he began purging the land of idols. At twenty-six, while repairing the temple, they found the Book of the Law. When it was read, he tore his clothes. The prophetess Huldah said disaster was coming, but because he humbled himself, he would be gathered in peace. His Passover was the greatest since Samuel. Then, strangely, he is killed at Megiddo after ignoring a warning from Pharaoh Neco, “from the mouth of God.”

After Josiah, four kings fall quickly: Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin, and Zedekiah. The key verses are 36:15-16: God sent messengers again and again, “because he had compassion on his people.” But they mocked and despised. “Until there was no remedy.” Babylon burns the temple, breaks down the wall, and carries off the people. The land enjoys its Sabbaths for seventy years, as Jeremiah said.

The book ends with a decree from Cyrus, the same words that open Ezra. It is an open ending. The Hebrew Bible places Chronicles last, so it ends with a call: “Let him go up.” The story invites its readers to return. That is how the Old Testament closes.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 15:11-24 tells the story of the prodigal son who comes to himself and returns. 1 Timothy 1:15-16: Paul, the foremost of sinners, received mercy as an example. 2 Peter 3:9: “The Lord is not slow to fulfill his promise… but is patient toward you, not wishing that any should perish.” Romans 5:20: “Where sin increased, grace abounded all the more.” Matthew 11:28 invites the weary to come. John 14:2-3: “I go to prepare a place for you.”

STEP 6

Application

Remember Manasseh when you feel too sinful to be forgiven, or when someone you love seems beyond reach.

Pray for someone you have given up on, that God would humble them and bring them home.

Read the last verse of Chronicles aloud: “Let him go up.” Hear it as an invitation to come home to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that no one is beyond his mercy.
- Ask him to give you a heart that returns to him quickly.
- Pray for someone far from him.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 79

“Rend your hearts and not your garments. Return to the LORD your God, for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love; and he relents over disaster.”

JOEL 2:13

DAY 548 · WEEK 79

Joel 1:1-2:32

The locust plague; the Spirit poured out, Pentecost foretold

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 54 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Joel 1:1-2:32. A plague of locusts becomes a picture of the coming day of the LORD. Joel calls for repentance, and the LORD promises restoration and the outpouring of his Spirit. Read 2:12-14 and 2:28-32 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Joel's date is uncertain. Many place him in the post-exilic period, which fits the focus on the temple, priests, and elders and the lack of a king. He writes after a devastating plague of locusts and a drought. He uses it as a warning and a sign: if a locust swarm is this terrible, think of the day of the LORD. The book is short and its main message is sharp: return to the LORD, and he will restore.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "What the cutting locust left, the swarming locust has eaten" (1:4).
2. "Wake up, you drunkards, and weep" (1:5).
3. "Put on sackcloth and lament, you priests" (1:13).
4. "Alas for the day! For the day of the LORD is near" (1:15).
5. "Yet even now, declares the LORD, return to me with all your heart, with fasting, with weeping, and with mourning" (2:12).
6. "And rend your hearts and not your garments" (2:13).
7. "For he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love" (2:13).
8. "I will restore to you the years that the swarming locust has eaten" (2:25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The book opens with an ugly scene. Locusts have stripped the land. Grain, wine, and oil are cut off. The priests cannot offer sacrifices because there is nothing to offer. Even the animals groan. Joel tells the people to look at this and to pass it on to their children. It is a living picture of God's judgment.

Then Joel sees something more. The locusts are a shadow of a greater army, the day of the LORD. "Blow a trumpet in Zion." Chapter 2 describes an unstoppable army before which the earth quakes and the sun and moon grow dark. "The day of the LORD is great and very awesome; who can endure it?"

And then comes one of the sweetest turns in the Old Testament: "Yet even now." Even now, with all of this, the door is open. "Return to me with all your heart." The word for "return" is the main word for repentance. And the repentance is not external: "Rend your hearts and not your garments." Tearing clothes was the visible sign of grief. God asks for the inside to be torn.

The reason to return is God himself. "He is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love." This is the same description you met in Nehemiah 9 and Psalm 145. "And he relents over disaster." The fast, assembly, and prayers that follow are marked by hope: "Who knows whether he will not turn and relent?"

God answers. He is jealous for his land and pities his people. He promises grain, wine, and oil, and then: "I will restore to you the years that the swarming locust has eaten." The lost years are not just forgotten; they are repaid. And the great promise follows: "I will pour out my Spirit on all flesh." Sons, daughters, old men, young men, even servants. This is the most important promise of the book, and it is fulfilled at Pentecost.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 2:16-21: Peter quotes Joel 2:28-32 on the day of Pentecost. Romans 10:13: "Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved." Luke 15:20: the father runs to the returning son. 2 Corinthians 7:10: godly grief produces repentance. Psalm 51:17: a broken and contrite heart, O God, you will not despise. Revelation 9:1-11 uses locust imagery for the final judgment.

STEP 6

Application

Where do you need to "return with all your heart"? Confess it to God.

Ask what your religion looks like on the outside only. Pray that God would tear your heart, not just your garment.

Trust God to restore “the years the locust has eaten” in your life: the seasons you feel were wasted.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Return to God with all your heart, and tell him what it means.

Thank him that he is gracious, merciful, and slow to anger.

Ask him to pour out his Spirit.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 79

“Rend your hearts and not your garments. Return to the LORD your God, for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love; and he relents over disaster.”

JOEL 2:13

DAY 549 · WEEK 79

Joel 3:1-21

Judgment on the nations; the LORD dwells in Zion

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Joel 3:1-21 (in some Bibles, Joel 2:28-3:21). The LORD gathers the nations for judgment, and the book ends with a vision of a fountain from the LORD's house. Read it as the final answer to the locusts.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Joel's last chapter looks forward to the final day. The LORD will judge the nations for how they treated his people, and his own people will dwell in safety. The language is vivid, with images of a valley of decision and a fountain flowing from the temple. It points past the post-exilic community to the end of history.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For behold, in those days and at that time, when I restore the fortunes of Judah and Jerusalem" (3:1).
2. "I will gather all the nations and bring them down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat" (3:2).
3. "Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears" (3:10).
4. "Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! For the day of the LORD is near in the valley of decision" (3:14).
5. "The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining" (3:15).
6. "But the LORD is a refuge to his people, a stronghold to the people of Israel" (3:16).
7. "So you shall know that I am the LORD your God, who dwells in Zion, my holy mountain" (3:17).

8 “And a fountain shall come forth from the house of the LORD and water the Valley of Shittim” (3:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Joel moves from the locusts to the end of the world. God promises to “restore the fortunes of Judah and Jerusalem,” language like Psalm 126. Then he will gather the nations to the Valley of Jehoshaphat, a name meaning “the LORD judges.” There he will judge them for scattering his people and dividing the land, and for selling the children of Israel as slaves.

This section is hard to read, because it describes judgment. But it contains a fundamental truth. God sees injustice and will set it right. For those who are oppressed, this is good news. The prayer for justice is answered. The line “Beat your plowshares into swords” is an inversion of the later promise in Isaiah 2:4 and Micah 4:3, where swords are beaten into plowshares. Here, the nations are summoned to war and are met by God.

The “valley of decision” is the place where judgment is decided. The phrase can mean the decision God makes, not our decision. Still, the image captures the seriousness of the moment. Everyone will stand before the Judge. The sun and moon darken, and the LORD roars from Zion. Yet “the LORD is a refuge to his people, a stronghold to the people of Israel.” The same event that terrifies his enemies shelters his people.

The book ends with restoration. The mountains drip sweet wine, the hills flow with milk, and the streambeds run with water. A fountain flows from the house of the LORD. Egypt and Edom will be desolate, but Judah will be inhabited forever. “The LORD dwells in Zion.” That final sentence is the book’s answer to the locusts. The land will be restored, and God will be with his people.

The fountain from the temple is a thread through the whole Bible, from Eden’s river to Ezekiel 47 to Revelation 22.

STEP 5

Connection

Revelation 22:1-2 shows the river of the water of life flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb. John 7:37-38: “If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink.” Isaiah 2:4 and Micah 4:3 invert the swords and plowshares. Matthew 25:31-46 describes the judgment of the nations. Revelation 14:14-20 uses the harvest image from Joel 3:13. Romans 12:19: “Vengeance is mine, I will repay, says the Lord.”

STEP 6

Application

Pray for those who suffer injustice, trusting God to judge rightly.

Remember that the same day that is terrifying to enemies is a refuge for those who trust in the LORD.

Drink from the fountain: spend time in worship, asking Christ to satisfy your thirst.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he judges rightly and is a refuge to his people.

Ask him to make you ready for his day.

Ask him to let his fountain flow from his house.

DAY 550 · WEEK 79

Obadiah 1:1-21

Edom falls, God defends his people

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Obadiah (one chapter, 21 verses). This is the shortest book in the Old Testament. It is a prophecy against Edom, Israel's brother nation, for the pride and violence shown to Judah. Read it in one sitting.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Edom descended from Esau, Jacob's twin brother. The two nations had a history of rivalry. When Babylon destroyed Jerusalem in 586 BC, Edom stood by, gloated, and even took part, looting and handing over fugitives. Obadiah's prophecy was likely given soon after. Psalm 137:7 and Lamentations 4:21 also remember Edom's betrayal. The book answers a question: will God let this stand?

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The pride of your heart has deceived you, you who live in the clefts of the rock" (v. 3).
2. "Though you soar aloft like the eagle… from there I will bring you down, declares the LORD" (v. 4).
3. "Because of the violence done to your brother Jacob, shame shall cover you" (v. 10).
4. "On the day that you stood aloof, on the day that strangers carried off his wealth" (v. 11).
5. "You should not gloat over the day of your brother in the day of his misfortune" (v. 12).
6. "You should not enter the gate of my people in the day of their calamity" (v. 13).
7. "For the day of the LORD is near upon all the nations. As you have done, it shall be done to you" (v. 15).
8. "And the kingdom shall be the LORD's" (v. 21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Edom's capital Sela, "the rock," was built in the cliffs of the mountains, in a nearly impregnable position. The Edomites thought they were safe: "Who will bring me down to the ground?" Obadiah says God will. Pride has deceived them. No place is high enough to escape God's reach.

The chief charge is against Edom's treatment of Judah. Verses 10 to 14 lay out a series of failures, each introduced by "you should not." Edom stood aloof when strangers invaded. It gloated, rejoiced, boasted, entered the gate, looted, and cut off the fugitives. This is not a case of ordinary rivalry. It is a betrayal of kin. And that is what makes it worse. A brother stands by while his brother is attacked.

Notice what is condemned: standing aloof counts as a sin. "On the day that you stood aloof… you were like one of them." Passive indifference is complicity. Gloating over the misfortune of someone else is a serious sin. Proverbs 24:17-18 says, "Do not rejoice when your enemy falls."

God's judgment is described by the principle of reciprocity: "As you have done, it shall be done to you." The proud will be brought low.

But the book does not end in judgment alone. It ends with a vision of deliverance: "On Mount Zion there shall be those who escape, and it shall be holy." Jacob will possess his own. "Saviors shall go up to Mount Zion to rule Mount Esau, and the kingdom shall be the LORD's." This final sentence is the aim of the whole prophecy: God's kingdom will prevail, and all pride will fall before it.

Obadiah is a reminder that God sees how we treat others, especially when they fall.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 25:41-45 says that what we do or fail to do for the least of these, we do or fail to do for Christ. Luke 10:30-37 shows the priest and Levite who passed by on the other side. Proverbs 24:17: "Do not rejoice when your enemy falls." James 4:6: God opposes the proud. Revelation 11:15: "The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ." 1 Corinthians 12:26: if one member suffers, all suffer together.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a person whose downfall you secretly enjoyed. Confess it, and pray for them.

Ask whether you have “stood aloof” when someone in your family, church, or community was in trouble.

Be on guard against the pride of security, the sense that nothing can touch you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to humble the pride of your heart.

Ask him to keep you from gloating over another’s misfortune.

Ask him to give you a heart that grieves with those who grieve.

JOEL 2:13

DAY 551 · WEEK 79

Psalm 97

The LORD reigns; let the earth rejoice

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 97. You will read it again later in the plan. Read it now as the answer to Obadiah: the LORD reigns, and pride cannot stand before him.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 97 is a royal psalm, one of a group (Psalms 93, 95 to 99) that begin or center on "The LORD reigns." Coming after Obadiah's judgment on proud Edom, it celebrates God's rule, which terrifies the proud and delights the righteous. The returned community, small and surrounded by hostile neighbors, sang it as a reminder of who is really in charge.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD reigns, let the earth rejoice; let the many coastlands be glad!" (v. 1).
2. "Clouds and thick darkness are all around him; righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne" (v. 2).
3. "Fire goes before him and burns up his adversaries all around" (v. 3).
4. "The mountains melt like wax before the LORD, before the Lord of all the earth" (v. 5).
5. "The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the peoples see his glory" (v. 6).
6. "All worshipers of images are put to shame, who make their boast in worthless idols" (v. 7).
7. "The LORD loves those who hate evil; he preserves the lives of his saints" (v. 10).
8. "Light is sown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in heart" (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with joy: the reign of God is good news for the whole earth, even the distant coastlands. This is a striking claim. The one who rules is not a distant tyrant but the one on whose throne "righteousness and justice" rest. His reign is moral. It means that the world is not left to chance or to the powerful.

But his presence is awesome. Clouds and thick darkness, fire, lightning, and melting mountains. These are the images of Sinai. They remind the readers that God is holy. The imagery says that no one can approach him without fear unless he provides a way.

The effect on idols is immediate. "All worshipers of images are put to shame." Even the so-called gods bow down before him. This is the same truth you saw in Psalm 115, and Obadiah's warning to Edom. The proud who trust in themselves, in their strongholds, in their false gods will be shamed.

Yet the psalm is not only about terror. Zion hears and is glad, and the daughters of Judah rejoice. The judgments of God are matters for gladness among his people because they mean that wrongs will be set right. And then the psalm gives instruction: "O you who love the LORD, hate evil." Love and hate are linked. Loving the good means rejecting what destroys it. And God "preserves the lives of his saints; he delivers them from the hand of the wicked."

The last two verses contain a beautiful promise: "Light is sown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in heart." The image is of a seed planted in darkness that will rise as light. Those who walk uprightly may seem to sow in sorrow, but God has sown light for them. In the end, the psalm tells us to rejoice in the LORD and give thanks to his holy name.

STEP 5

Connection

Revelation 19:6: "Hallelujah! For the Lord our God the Almighty reigns." Hebrews 1:6 quotes verse 7: "Let all God's angels worship him." John 8:12: "Whoever follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life." Romans 12:9: "Abhor what is evil; hold fast to what is good." Matthew 5:14-16 says we are the light of the world. Isaiah 9:2: the people who walked in darkness have seen a great light.

STEP 6

Application

Say aloud, "The LORD reigns," when you feel anxious about the world.

Ask what it means to "hate evil" in a way that is tender toward people.

Receive the promise: “Light is sown for the righteous.” Trust that your faithfulness is not wasted.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God you rejoice that he reigns.
- Ask him to shame the idols you are tempted by.
- Thank him for preserving the lives of his saints.

DAY 552 · WEEK 79

Psalm 98

Sing to the LORD a new song, his salvation revealed

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 9 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 98. You will read it again later in the plan. Read it now as the song that follows the judgment: the nations see the salvation of God.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 98 is another royal psalm with a new song. Its last verses mirror Psalm 96. Isaac Watts based "Joy to the World" on this psalm, though he reapplied it to the coming of Christ. For the returned exiles, it carried a message: the God who has brought us home will be seen by the whole world.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh sing to the LORD a new song, for he has done marvelous things!" (v. 1).
2. "His right hand and his holy arm have worked salvation for him" (v. 1).
3. "The LORD has made known his salvation; he has revealed his righteousness in the sight of the nations" (v. 2).
4. "He has remembered his steadfast love and faithfulness to the house of Israel" (v. 3).
5. "All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God" (v. 3).
6. "Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth; break forth into joyous song and sing praises!" (v. 4).
7. "Let the rivers clap their hands; let the hills sing for joy together" (vv. 8).
8. "For he comes to judge the earth. He will judge the world with righteousness, and the peoples with equity" (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a new song, because God has done something new. The language of verse 1 is like Isaiah's: his right hand and holy arm have worked salvation. This was the language of the exodus. It is a God who saves, not a God who waits to be saved.

The key is verses 2 and 3. "He has remembered his steadfast love and faithfulness to the house of Israel." God is not forgetful. After the exile, the people had wondered if he had forgotten them. The answer is that he has remembered. And the result is for the whole earth: "All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God." God's saving acts for Israel are meant to be visible to all nations. This is the universal side of God's choice of Israel.

The music rises. A joyful noise, then a whole orchestra: lyre, trumpets, horn. The sea roars and the rivers clap their hands. The hills sing for joy. Creation joins because the Lord is coming. And the reason is judgment: "He will judge the world with righteousness." Again, judgment is a cause for rejoicing. If the judge is righteous, it means that the world will be set right.

In this psalm the coming of the LORD has a double face. For Israel, it is salvation and remembrance of love. For the nations, it is the revelation of his righteousness. For creation, it is the end of groaning. For those who trust him, it is the greatest joy.

When Isaac Watts wrote "Joy to the World," he saw in this psalm the coming of Christ. "Let earth receive her King." It is a faithful reading. The one whose salvation was revealed to the nations came as a baby in Bethlehem, and he will come again.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 2:30-32: Simeon said, "My eyes have seen your salvation that you have prepared in the presence of all peoples, a light for revelation to the Gentiles." Luke 1:54-55 says God has remembered his mercy. Romans 8:19-21: creation waits with eager longing. Acts 17:31: God will judge the world in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed. Revelation 5:9: they sang a new song. Isaiah 52:10: all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.

STEP 6

Application

Sing a hymn today, such as "Joy to the World," and think of the psalm behind it.

Ask: what "marvelous thing" has God done for you recently? Write it as a new song or a short note.

Pray for the ends of the earth to see his salvation.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Sing to the LORD a new song, in your own words.
- Thank him for the salvation he has revealed.
- Ask him to help you make a joyful noise.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Joel 2:13 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Rend your hearts and not your garments. Return to the LORD your God, for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love; and he relents over disaster."

JOEL 2:13

REST

Meditation

This verse is a call to real repentance, and it begins with a contrast. It does not say that outward signs are wrong. It says they are not enough.

"Rend your hearts and not your garments." In the ancient world, tearing your clothes was the standard sign of grief or repentance. But a person could tear a garment and keep a hard heart. God asks for the real thing. Sorrow over sin, turning from it, wanting God. In Psalm 51:17, David says, "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit."

"Return to the LORD your God." The call is to return, to come home. The picture is of someone who has wandered and needs to return to a loving master. "Your God." Even in rebellion, he is still their God.

“For he is gracious and merciful.” This is the reason to return. It is not that you can earn his favor, but that he is already kind. Gracious means he gives what we do not deserve. Merciful means he does not give what we do deserve.

“Slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love.” His anger is real but slow. His love is abundant, overflowing. This is God’s own description of himself in Exodus 34:6, and it is repeated across the Old Testament, in Nehemiah 9:17, Psalm 145:8, Jonah 4:2, and here.

“And he relents over disaster.” God is willing to turn back from judgment when people turn to him. This does not mean God changes his character, but that he responds to repentance with mercy.

Whenever you feel you have failed, say this verse. It describes a God who is waiting.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the Chronicler’s story of the fall of Judah, with Manasseh’s repentance in Babylon and Josiah’s finding of the Book of the Law. You saw how the book ends with an open door: “Let him go up.” Then you moved to the prophets of the return. In Joel, a swarm of locusts became a picture of the coming day of the LORD, and the prophet’s call was clear: “Return to me with all your heart.” You read the promise of the Spirit poured out on all flesh, and a fountain from the house of the LORD. In Obadiah, you heard God judge proud Edom for standing aloof in the day of Judah’s trouble, and promise that the kingdom shall be the LORD’s. In Psalms 97 and 98, you sang that the LORD reigns and that all the ends of the earth will see his salvation.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Joel says to rend your heart and not your garments. What outward religious habits in your life need an inner reality behind them?

Obadiah condemns standing aloof when a brother suffers. Whom in your life might you be tempted to ignore?

Joel promised the Spirit on all flesh, and Peter said it came at Pentecost. How have you seen the Spirit at work in your life or in your church?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Return to God with all your heart.

Thank him for pouring out his Spirit.

Rest in his love.

DAY 554 · WEEK 80

Psalm 99

The LORD reigns; let the peoples tremble

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Psalm · 9 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 99. You will read it again later in the plan. Read it now as a hymn of the holy God who answers prayer. Notice the refrain “Holy is he.”

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 99 is the last of the “LORD reigns” psalms. It has a threefold refrain: “Holy is he” (vv. 3, 5) and “Holy is the LORD our God” (v. 9). It recalls Moses, Aaron, and Samuel as those who called on God and were answered. Coming right before the prophet Haggai, who will call the people to build the temple, it is a good reminder of the holiness of the place where God meets his people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “The LORD reigns; let the peoples tremble! He sits enthroned upon the cherubim; let the earth quake!” (v. 1).
2. “The LORD is great in Zion; he is exalted over all the peoples” (v. 2).
3. “Let them praise your great and awesome name! Holy is he!” (v. 3).
4. “The King in his might loves justice. You have established equity; you have executed justice and righteousness in Jacob” (v. 4).
5. “Exalt the LORD our God; worship at his footstool! Holy is he!” (v. 5).
6. “Moses and Aaron were among his priests, Samuel also was among those who called upon his name. They called to the LORD, and he answered them” (v. 6).
7. “You were a forgiving God to them, but an avenger of their wrongdoings” (v. 8).

8 “Exalt the LORD our God, and worship at his holy mountain; for the LORD our God is holy!” (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with God’s majesty. He sits enthroned on the cherubim, which refers to the ark’s mercy seat. He is great in Zion and exalted over all peoples. The proper response is trembling. Holiness is not just moral purity but God’s otherness, his set-apartness, the fact that he is not like us.

The first refrain, “Holy is he,” appears after the call to praise his name. The second appears after the call to worship at his footstool, the temple or ark. The third appears at the end. These three refrains remind us of Isaiah’s vision of the seraphim, who cried “Holy, holy, holy.” This psalm gives the three-fold chant in a different form.

In the center, the psalm says that the strong King loves justice. His holiness is not cold but moral. He establishes equity. A holy God is a just God.

Then comes a surprise. This awesome, holy God answers prayer. “Moses and Aaron… Samuel… called to the LORD, and he answered them.” He spoke to them in the pillar of cloud and gave them his testimonies. The God who sits on the cherubim is the God who speaks to his servants. Holiness and nearness are not opposed.

And then the key line: “You were a forgiving God to them, but an avenger of their wrongdoings.” Moses interceded and was heard, yet there were consequences. God’s forgiveness does not erase reality. This is the pattern of the exile: he forgave, yet the people bore the discipline.

For the returned community, the temple was a holy place to be approached with reverence. The message of Haggai is coming: build the house, because the holy God will dwell there. And for us, the holiness is met by the cross.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 6:3: “Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of hosts.” Revelation 4:8 repeats the threefold holy around the throne. 1 Peter 1:15-16: “You shall be holy, for I am holy.” Hebrews 4:14-16: we have a great high priest who sympathizes with our weaknesses. Hebrews 12:28-29: let us offer acceptable worship with reverence and awe. James 5:16-18: the prayer of a righteous person has great power.

STEP 6

Application

Pause before prayer and remember who you are addressing: the holy God who sits enthroned.

Remember that you can approach him in Christ, and call on him as Moses, Aaron, and Samuel did.

Ask where you have treated God casually, and recover reverence.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tremble before the God who reigns.
- Thank him that he answered those who called on him.
- Worship him at his footstool.

ZECHARIAH 4:6

DAY 555 · WEEK 80

Haggai 1:1-2:23

Rebuild the Temple; the latter glory will be greater

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 38 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Haggai 1:1-2:23. Sixteen years after the return, the temple is still unfinished. Haggai's short messages stir the people to build. Notice the repeated call to "consider your ways."

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is 520 BC, the second year of Darius. The foundation of the temple was laid in 536, and then the work stopped. The people built their own houses and left God's house in ruins. Then Haggai appears, with four messages over about four months. His words are brief, direct, and effective. Within weeks the work resumes. The book is a model of how a prophet can move a people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Is it a time for you yourselves to dwell in your paneled houses, while this house lies in ruins?" (1:4).
2. "Now therefore, thus says the LORD of hosts: Consider your ways" (1:5).
3. "You have sown much, and harvested little... and he who earns wages does so to put them into a bag with holes" (1:6).
4. "Go up to the hills and bring wood and build the house, that I may take pleasure in it and that I may be glorified" (1:8).
5. "And the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel... and the spirit of Joshua... and the spirit of all the remnant of the people" (1:14).
6. "I am with you, declares the LORD" (1:13).

7. “The latter glory of this house shall be greater than the former, says the LORD of hosts. And in this place I will give peace” (2:9).

8. “On that day… I will take you, O Zerubbabel… and make you like a signet ring, for I have chosen you” (2:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Haggai’s first message is a question: “Is it a time for you to dwell in your paneled houses, while this house lies in ruins?” The people had said, “The time has not yet come.” They had excuses. Hard times, opposition, economic pressure. But Haggai shows that their priorities were backward. They had put their own comfort first, and the result was frustration. “You have sown much and harvested little.” When you put God last, even your best efforts leak away. The phrase “consider your ways” appears twice. It is a call to honest reflection.

The remarkable response is that the leaders and people obey. And God’s answer is brief and wonderful: “I am with you.” He stirs up their spirits, and they begin to work, twenty-three days after Haggai’s first word.

A month later, the older people are discouraged, since this temple looks like nothing compared with Solomon’s. Haggai answers: “Be strong… and work, for I am with you.” Then he says, “The latter glory of this house shall be greater than the former.” This was not because of gold, but because of whose presence would fill it. It points to the day when Jesus, the glory of God in flesh, would walk in that temple.

The third message is about holiness: you cannot make unclean things clean by touching the holy. Ritual and obedience cannot be separated. But from this day forward, God promises to bless.

The last message is to Zerubbabel. God will shake the heavens and earth, overthrow the kingdoms, and make Zerubbabel “like a signet ring.” The signet ring was a symbol of authority. In Jeremiah 22:24, Jehoiachin was rejected as a signet ring. Now the line of David is chosen again. Zerubbabel is a sign that God’s promise to David is alive.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 6:33: “Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added to you.” Hebrews 12:26-28 quotes Haggai 2:6 about the shaking of heaven and earth and the unshakable kingdom. John 1:14: the Word became flesh and dwelt among us. Matthew 1:12-13: Zerubbabel is in the line of Jesus. 1 Corinthians 3:16-17 says we are God’s temple. Philippians 1:6.

STEP 6

Application

“Consider your ways.” Review how you spend time and money. Is there anything where your own comfort has crowded out God?

Start something you have been postponing for God. Take one small step today.

Take courage from “I am with you” in your work.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to show you where you have put your own house before his.

Ask him to stir your spirit to work for him.

Thank him for the promise that his presence is with you.

ZECHARIAH 4:6

DAY 556 · WEEK 80

Zechariah 1:1-3:10

The eight visions begin; the Branch foretold

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Zechariah 1:1-3:10. Zechariah begins with a call to return, and then he sees eight night visions. Today you will read the first four. Read for what each one says about God's care for Jerusalem and his people.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Zechariah began prophesying two months after Haggai. He was both a prophet and a priest. His book is full of visions, symbols, and messianic promises, and it is the longest of the Minor Prophets. The first six chapters report eight visions that came in one night. They reassure the discouraged community that God has not forgotten Jerusalem.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Return to me, says the LORD of hosts, and I will return to you" (1:3).
2. "Your fathers, where are they? And the prophets, do they live forever? But my words and my statutes… did they not overtake your fathers?" (1:5-6).
3. "I have returned to Jerusalem with mercy; my house shall be built in it" (1:16).
4. "Jerusalem shall be inhabited as villages without walls, because of the multitude of people and livestock in it" (2:4).
5. "And I will be to her a wall of fire all around, declares the LORD, and I will be the glory in her midst" (2:5).
6. "Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion, for behold, I come and I will dwell in your midst" (2:10).
7. "Is not this a brand plucked from the fire?" (3:2).

8 “Behold, I have taken your iniquity away from you, and I will clothe you with pure vestments” (3:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The book opens with a call that matches the whole Old Testament: “Return to me, and I will return to you.” The previous generation did not listen, but God’s word did what it said. “They repented and said, As the LORD of hosts purposed to deal with us… so has he dealt with us.” Now it is the new generation’s turn.

The visions follow. The first is a man on a red horse among myrtle trees, with angelic patrols. They report that the earth is at rest. But the angel asks, “O LORD of hosts, how long?” The LORD answers with “gracious and comforting words”: “I am exceedingly jealous for Jerusalem.” The second vision, four horns and four craftsmen, shows that the powers that scattered Judah will be dealt with.

The third vision is a man with a measuring line, ready to measure Jerusalem. An angel says that the city will be unwalled, because there will be so many people. And God himself will be “a wall of fire all around” and “the glory in her midst.” This is better than any stone wall. It was wonderful news for those who were proud of Nehemiah’s wall: the true security was the presence of God. “Many nations shall join themselves to the LORD in that day, and shall be my people.”

The fourth vision, in chapter 3, is the center. Joshua the high priest stands before the angel of the LORD, in filthy garments, with Satan at his right hand to accuse him. The LORD rebukes Satan: “Is not this a brand plucked from the fire?” Joshua’s filthy clothes are removed. “Behold, I have taken your iniquity away from you, and I will clothe you with pure vestments.” A clean turban is put on his head. The picture is of justification by grace. Joshua does nothing to earn it. The chapter ends with a promise of “my servant the Branch,” the coming Messiah, and “I will remove the iniquity of this land in a single day.”

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 8:33-34: “Who shall bring any charge against God’s elect? It is God who justifies.” 2 Corinthians 5:21: for our sake he made him to be sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God. Revelation 7:14: they washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Isaiah 61:10: he has clothed me with the garments of salvation. Hebrews 10:10-14: one offering has perfected for all time. Revelation 12:10 describes the accuser of our brothers.

STEP 6

Application

When the accuser reminds you of your failures, answer with chapter 3: “The LORD rebuke you.” Remember you are a brand plucked from the fire.

Thank God for the clean clothes of Christ’s righteousness.

Remember that the best security is God’s presence, not any wall you have built.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Return to God, and thank him for returning to you.

Ask him to be a wall of fire around his people.

Thank him for the Branch.

ZECHARIAH 4:6

DAY 557 · WEEK 80

Zechariah 4:1-6:15

The lampstand; the flying scroll; the Branch crowned

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 35 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Zechariah 4:1-6:15. You will read the remaining four visions: the lampstand and olive trees, the flying scroll, the woman in a basket, and the four chariots. The chapter ends with a crowning ceremony for Joshua. Read 4:6 and 6:12-13 carefully.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The visions continue. The fifth vision shows a golden lampstand fed by two olive trees, and it is meant to encourage Zerubbabel, the governor who is leading the temple's rebuilding. The next three visions deal with sin, and the eighth shows God's judgment on the nations. The section ends with a symbolic act: the crowning of the high priest Joshua, who stands as a picture of the Messiah.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, says the LORD of hosts" (4:6).
2. "Who has despised the day of small things? For these seven shall rejoice, when they see the plumb line in the hand of Zerubbabel" (4:10).
3. "These are the two anointed ones who stand by the Lord of the whole earth" (4:14).
4. "This is the curse that goes out over the face of the whole land" (5:3).
5. "The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundation of this house; his hands shall also complete it" (4:9).
6. "Take from the exiles… silver and gold, and make a crown" (6:10-11).
7. "Behold, the man whose name is the Branch: for he shall branch out from his place, and he shall build the temple of the LORD" (6:12).

8 “And he shall bear royal honor, and shall sit and rule on his throne. And there shall be a priest on his throne” (6:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The lampstand vision is among the best known. Zechariah sees a golden lampstand with seven lamps, fed with oil from two olive trees through pipes, with no human hand pouring. The meaning is given in a single sentence: “Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit.” Zerubbabel faces a mountain of difficulty, and he is told that the work will be done by the Spirit of God, not by human strength. The oil is the Spirit, the light is the witness of God’s people, and the supply is limitless. “Who has despised the day of small things?” The small beginning would be finished.

The next three visions are about sin. The flying scroll, thirty feet by fifteen, goes out over the land with a curse on thieves and those who swear falsely. The woman in the basket, “Wickedness,” is carried away to Babylon. God is not just rebuilding a building. He is removing evil from the land. This answers the problem that Ezra and Nehemiah faced: how could the community stay faithful? God would purge it.

The eighth vision of the four chariots goes out to the four winds, and the one going north has “set my Spirit at rest in the north country.” God’s judgment on Babylon is complete.

Then the symbolic act: Zechariah is told to make a crown and set it on the head of Joshua the high priest, and say, “Behold, the man whose name is the Branch.” Joshua is not the Branch himself; he is a sign. The Branch will build the temple, sit and rule on his throne, “and there shall be a priest on his throne.” In Israel, kings and priests were separate. But the Messiah would hold both offices. “The counsel of peace shall be between them both.” This is a clear promise of a priest-king, who is Jesus. And “those who are far off shall come and help to build the temple of the LORD.” The Gentiles will join.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 7:1-3 and Psalm 110:4 describe a priest-king in the order of Melchizedek. Hebrews 4:14-16 names Jesus our great high priest. Luke 1:78 calls Jesus the “sunrise” or “Branch.” Revelation 11:4 uses the two olive trees. Galatians 5:16-25 teaches walking by the Spirit. Acts 1:8: “You will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you.” Ephesians 2:19-22 shows Gentiles built into the temple.

STEP 6

Application

Where are you trying “by might and by power”? Pray, “Not by my strength, but by your Spirit.”

Don’t despise a small beginning. Ask God to finish what he started.

Thank Jesus that he is both king and priest, and has done what Joshua only pictured.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God that it is not by might or power but by his Spirit.
- Ask him not to let you despise the day of small things.
- Ask him to remove wickedness from your life.

ZECHARIAH 4:6

DAY 558 · WEEK 80

Zechariah 7:1-8:23

True fasting; the LORD returns; nations included

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 37 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Zechariah 7:1-8:23. A delegation asks whether they should keep a fast, and Zechariah answers with a question about justice and mercy. Then come eight promises of restoration. Read the final verses of chapter 8.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Two years after the visions, in 518 BC, a delegation from Bethel asks the priests whether they should continue to mourn and fast in the fifth month, the month the temple was destroyed. Zechariah answers in two parts: first a rebuke about the heart behind religious practice, and then a series of promises. This is the point where the book turns from visions to messages.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “When you fasted and mourned… was it for me that you fasted?” (7:5).
2. “Render true judgments, show kindness and mercy to one another” (7:9).
3. “Do not oppress the widow, the fatherless, the sojourner, or the poor, and let none of you devise evil against another in your heart” (7:10).
4. “They made their hearts diamond-hard lest they should hear the law” (7:12).
5. “I am jealous for Zion with great jealousy” (8:2).
6. “I will return to Zion and dwell in the midst of Jerusalem” (8:3).
7. “Old men and old women shall again sit in the streets of Jerusalem, each with his staff in his hand because of great age. And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing” (8:4-5).

8 “In those days ten men from the nations of every tongue shall take hold of the robe of a Jew, saying, Let us go with you, for we have heard that God is with you” (8:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The question is about a fast. For seventy years the exiles had fasted in the fifth and seventh months to remember the destruction. Now that the temple is being rebuilt, should they continue? Zechariah first asks a hard question: “Was it for me that you fasted? And when you eat and drink, do you not eat and drink for yourselves?” Their religion had become self-focused. They were going through the motions.

Then he reminds them of the former prophets, who said the same thing: “Render true judgments, show kindness and mercy to one another. Do not oppress the widow, the fatherless, the sojourner, or the poor.” The ancestors would not listen. “They made their hearts diamond-hard.” Justice and mercy were the point. The exile resulted from ignoring them. The people of the return must learn from this.

Then chapter 8 brings ten promises, each beginning, “Thus says the LORD of hosts.” God is jealous for Zion. He will return and dwell in Jerusalem, which will be called the “faithful city.” The picture is of an ordinary, peaceful city: old men and women sitting in the streets, boys and girls playing. It is one of the loveliest images in the prophets. God’s salvation is not only grand but domestic, a place safe for the old and the young.

The people are told: “Let your hands be strong.” And God promises that their fasts will become “joy and gladness and cheerful feasts.” The fast of the fourth, fifth, seventh, and tenth months, all memories of Jerusalem’s fall, will be turned into feasts. Sorrow will be transformed. The chapter ends with a vision of the nations: ten men take hold of a Jew’s robe and say, “Let us go with you, for we have heard that God is with you.” The mission of Israel to the nations is fulfilled in the church.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 58:3-7 describes the fast God desires. Matthew 6:16-18 speaks of fasting before the Father. Matthew 23:23: justice, mercy, and faithfulness are the weightier matters of the law. Micah 6:8: do justice, love kindness, walk humbly. James 1:27: religion that is pure is to visit orphans and widows in their affliction. Luke 5:34-35: when the bridegroom is with us, there is no mourning. Revelation 21:4.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether any spiritual practice in your life has become a ritual done for yourself. Reshape it around love for God and neighbor.

Show “kindness and mercy” to a widow, an orphan, a foreigner, or a poor person this week.

Pray for the day when old men and women sit in the streets and children play, and work for the safety of such a place.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where your religion has been for yourself.
- Ask him to teach you to render true judgments and show mercy.
- Ask him to make you glad in him.

ZECHARIAH 4:6

DAY 559 · WEEK 80

Zechariah 9:1-11:17

The humble king on a donkey; the shepherd-king

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 50 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Zechariah 9:1-11:17. A king comes to Zion on a donkey, and a shepherd is rejected and sold for thirty pieces of silver. These chapters are rich in messianic promises, and the New Testament quotes them often. Read 9:9-10 and 11:12-13 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The second half of Zechariah is made of two oracles, chapters 9 to 11 and 12 to 14. They are set in a different style than the visions, and they look to the distant future. They describe the coming of the king, the rejection of the shepherd, and the victory of the LORD. This reading covers the first oracle. The memory verse of this unit comes from chapter 9.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Shout aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem!” (9:9).
2. “Behold, your king is coming to you; righteous and having salvation is he, humble and mounted on a donkey” (9:9).
3. “I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim and the war horse from Jerusalem” (9:10).
4. “And he shall speak peace to the nations; his rule shall be from sea to sea” (9:10).
5. “As for you also, because of the blood of my covenant with you, I will set your prisoners free from the waterless pit” (9:11).
6. “Return to your stronghold, O prisoners of hope” (9:12).
7. “Then I took my staff Grace, and I cut it in two, annulling the covenant that I had made with all the peoples” (11:10).
8. “So they weighed out as my wages thirty pieces of silver” (11:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 9 begins with judgment on the nations around Israel, Syria, Tyre, and Philistia, as God clears the way for his people. Then the focus narrows to a single, striking image: a king arrives in Jerusalem. Everything about him is surprising. He is "righteous and having salvation." He is "humble," or "afflicted." And he rides a donkey, not a war horse. The donkey was a sign of peace and humility. Kings rode horses to war; they rode donkeys when they came in peace (1 Kings 1:33).

His kingdom is likewise surprising. He cuts off the chariot and war horse and the battle bow, and "speaks peace to the nations." His rule reaches from sea to sea. This is a king of peace whose reign is universal, and whose weapon is speech. The Hebrew reading is that his word does it.

Then, "because of the blood of my covenant with you," the prisoners are set free. Notice the phrase "prisoners of hope." Even those who are still in the pit have hope, for a ransom is coming. The covenant is sealed in blood.

Chapters 10 and 11 shift. The people have followed false shepherds. God will care for his flock. But in chapter 11, Zechariah is told to play the part of a shepherd and to care for a doomed flock. He takes two staffs, "Favor" and "Union." The flock rejects him, and he asks for his wages. They weigh out thirty pieces of silver, the price of a slave (Exodus 21:32). The LORD says, "Throw it to the potter," and Zechariah throws the silver into the house of the LORD. It is a bitter irony: the shepherd is valued at the price of a slave.

The final verses describe the worthless shepherd who abandons the flock. This section of Zechariah shows two kings: the humble king who comes in peace and the shepherd who is rejected. They are one person.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 21:1-11 shows Jesus entering Jerusalem on a donkey, quoting Zechariah 9:9. Matthew 26:15 records Judas receiving thirty pieces of silver. Matthew 27:3-10 records the silver being thrown into the temple and used to buy the potter's field. Luke 22:20: "This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood." John 10:11: "I am the good shepherd." Philippians 2:5-8 describes Christ's humility.

STEP 6

Application

Read Matthew 21:1-11 alongside today's reading. Notice how precisely Jesus fulfilled Zechariah.

Think about humility in your leadership or relationships. What does it look like to come in peace, “on a donkey”?

Thank Jesus for being the shepherd who was sold for thirty pieces of silver for you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Rejoice that your King has come, humble and riding on a donkey.

Tell him what you want to say to the shepherd-king.

Thank him for speaking peace.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Zechariah 4:6 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, says the LORD of hosts."

ZECHARIAH 4:6

REST

Meditation

This verse was spoken to a governor who was staring at a mountain. Zerubbabel had laid the foundation of the temple, and for years had been unable to finish it. Armies, kings, and officials stood in the way. Into that situation, God spoke a short sentence.

"Not by might." The word means an army or a strong force. Zerubbabel might have thought that the solution was more soldiers or more money. God says no. Human resources are not what will finish the temple.

"Nor by power." The second word means personal strength, ability, or skill. It is not just armies but individuals. Not by his talent, his leadership, or his charisma.

"But by my Spirit." The third phrase is the answer. The work of God is done by the Spirit of God. This is the oil in the lampstand vision, flowing without human hands. The Spirit gives the energy, the wisdom, and the ability to finish.

"Says the LORD of hosts." This is the ground of the promise. The LORD of hosts, the commander of heaven's armies, makes the promise. He can do what armies cannot.

The verse does not say we do nothing. Zerubbabel had to keep building. But the building was to be done in dependence. The result: "He shall bring forward the top stone amid shouts of Grace, grace to it!" When the work is done, the glory goes to God.

Say this verse when you are tempted to rely on your own strength: in a ministry, a marriage, a job, a struggle with sin. It is a reminder that the work belongs to God, and so does the power.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the prophets of the return. In Haggai, you heard a call to "consider your ways" and to build God's house first, and you saw the people's response and God's promise: "I am with you." In Zechariah, you read the eight night visions: the man among the myrtle trees, the wall of fire, Joshua in filthy garments made clean, the lampstand fed by the Spirit, and the crowning of the Branch, a priest on his throne. You heard a rebuke of empty fasting and a promise of old men and children in the streets of a restored Jerusalem. Then you read the first oracle, with the humble king on a donkey, the prisoners of hope, and the shepherd sold for thirty pieces of silver. Earlier in the week, Psalm 99 reminded you of the holiness of the God who answers.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Haggai said, "Consider your ways." What might God show you if you honestly reviewed how you spend your time, energy, and money?

Zechariah showed Joshua cleansed and clothed by grace alone. How does this picture comfort you when you feel unworthy?

The king of Zechariah 9:9 comes humble and on a donkey, yet his rule reaches the ends of the earth. What does that teach you about how God's kingdom advances?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God that it is not by might or power but by his Spirit.

Thank him for the humble King who has come.

Thank him for clothing you in his righteousness.

DAY 561 · WEEK 81

Zechariah 12:1-14:21

The pierced one; the Day of the LORD; living waters

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 36 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Zechariah 12:1-14:21. The LORD defends Jerusalem, a mourning comes over the house of David, a fountain opens for sin, a shepherd is struck, and the LORD becomes king over all the earth. Read 12:10, 13:1, and 14:9 with care.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the second oracle, and it is the most apocalyptic section of the book. It uses vivid, symbolic language to describe the end: a siege of Jerusalem, a great mourning, a day of cleansing, and the final victory of the LORD. The New Testament draws heavily on it, especially in the stories of Jesus' death and in Revelation.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And I will pour out on the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and pleas for mercy" (12:10).
2. "When they look on me, on him whom they have pierced, they shall mourn for him, as one mourns for an only child" (12:10).
3. "On that day there shall be a fountain opened for the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to cleanse them from sin and uncleanness" (13:1).
4. "Strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered" (13:7).
5. "And I will put this third into the fire, and refine them as one refines silver" (13:9).
6. "They will call upon my name, and I will answer them. I will say, They are my people; and they will say, The LORD is my God" (13:9).
7. "On that day his feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives" (14:4).

8 “And the LORD will be king over all the earth. On that day the LORD will be one and his name one” (14:9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 12 begins with a statement of God’s power: he stretched out the heavens and founded the earth. Then he promises that Jerusalem will become a cup of staggering and a heavy stone for all the peoples who attack her. God defends his people. But the real victory is spiritual. Verse 10 is among the most important verses in the Old Testament: God will pour out “a spirit of grace and pleas for mercy,” and the people “will look on me, on him whom they have pierced.” God himself speaks, and the pierced one is both God and someone else. The result is great mourning, like the mourning for an only child. It is repentance, a result of grace.

Chapter 13 gives the cleansing. “A fountain opened… to cleanse them from sin and uncleanness.” It is the answer to the problem the whole Old Testament has been dealing with. Sin cannot be washed away by ritual. A fountain must be opened. Idols and false prophets will be removed.

Then comes the haunting verse 7: “Strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.” The shepherd is “my companion,” says the LORD. God commands the striking of the one who is close to him. This is the suffering shepherd of chapter 11. Through it, one third will be refined as silver and gold, and will say, “The LORD is my God.”

Chapter 14 takes us to the end: the nations fight against Jerusalem, the LORD goes out to fight, his feet stand on the Mount of Olives, which splits in two. Living waters flow out from Jerusalem. Darkness and cold are no more. “And the LORD will be king over all the earth.” Even the pots in Jerusalem will be “holy to the LORD.” The book ends with everything, even the common cooking pots, marked as holy. All of life is consecrated.

STEP 5

Connection

John 19:34-37 says that after the soldiers pierced Jesus’ side, “They will look on him whom they have pierced,” quoting Zechariah 12:10. Revelation 1:7: “Behold, he is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see him, even those who pierced him.” Matthew 26:31 quotes “I will strike the shepherd.” 1 John 1:7: the blood of Jesus cleanses us from all sin. Acts 1:11-12: Jesus ascends from the Mount of Olives. Revelation 22:1: the river of the water of life.

STEP 6

Application

Read John 19:31-37 and look at the pierced one.

Thank God for the fountain opened for sin, and take your own sin there.

Ask God to make “everything holy,” even the ordinary pots of your life: your kitchen, your work, your errands.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to pour out a spirit of grace and pleas for mercy on you.
- Look on the one who was pierced, and tell him what you see.
- Thank him for the fountain that cleanses sin.

MATTHEW 1:21

DAY 562 · WEEK 81

Malachi 1:1-2:17

“Have I not loved you?”; corrupt priests; broken faith

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 31 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Malachi 1:1-2:17. This is the last prophetic book of the Old Testament, written around 430 BC. God opens with love, and then the people argue back at every point. Watch for the repeated pattern: God’s claim, the people’s question, God’s answer.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Malachi’s name means “my messenger.” He writes after the temple is rebuilt and the wall is finished, in the generation of Nehemiah’s second term. The excitement of the return has faded. The sacrifices are routine and halfhearted, the priests are careless, and many have been unfaithful to their wives. The book is set up as a series of six disputes in which God makes a statement, the people ask “How?” or “What?”, and God answers.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “I have loved you, says the LORD. But you say, How have you loved us?” (1:2).
2. “A son honors his father, and a servant his master. If then I am a father, where is my honor?” (1:6).
3. “When you offer blind animals in sacrifice, is that not evil?” (1:8).
4. “Oh that there were one among you who would shut the doors, that you might not kindle fire on my altar in vain!” (1:10).
5. “For from the rising of the sun to its setting my name will be great among the nations” (1:11).
6. “For the lips of a priest should guard knowledge, and people should seek instruction from his mouth” (2:7).

7. “Have we not all one Father? Has not one God created us?” (2:10).
8. “For the man who does not love his wife but divorces her, says the LORD, the God of Israel, covers his garment with violence” (2:16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first line gives the key to the whole book: “I have loved you.” It is a statement of fact. But the people respond with doubt: “How have you loved us?” After the return, life was hard. The land was poor, and the nation was a small province under Persia. They wondered whether God’s love was real. God answers by pointing to his choice of Jacob over Esau. He had loved them from the beginning, by electing grace.

The first rebuke is to the priests. Their worship has become an insult. They bring blind, lame, and sick animals for sacrifice, things they would not offer to their governor. “A son honors his father… If then I am a father, where is my honor?” God says he would rather have the temple doors shut than have this halfhearted worship. “I have no pleasure in you.” Worship is not about the ritual but the heart’s honor of God.

In the middle of this rebuke is a remarkable promise: “From the rising of the sun to its setting my name will be great among the nations, and in every place incense will be offered to my name.” The Gentiles will worship. The sacrifices that the priests despise will be replaced by pure offerings from all nations.

Chapter 2 is about the priests’ failure to teach. “The lips of a priest should guard knowledge.” They have turned aside from the way and caused many to stumble. God’s covenant with Levi was one of life and peace, but they have corrupted it.

Then the prophet turns to the people. They have been faithless to one another, marrying foreign wives who worship other gods and divorcing the wives of their youth. The altar of the LORD was covered with tears. “The LORD was witness between you and the wife of your youth.” God hates divorce that comes from faithlessness. The chapter ends with a weary people who have “wearied the LORD with your words.” They say, “Where is the God of justice?” They are asking the question that the whole book is about to answer.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 9:13 quotes “Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated” to speak about God’s electing grace. 1 Peter 2:5 calls us to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God. John 4:21-24 speaks of true worshipers who worship in spirit and truth. Ephesians 5:25: husbands, love your wives as Christ loved the church. Matthew 19:3-9 speaks of marriage and divorce. Romans 12:1: present your bodies as a living sacrifice. 1 Timothy 3:2 requires teachers to be above reproach.

STEP 6

Application

Ask: am I giving God my best or my leftovers, in time, money, and attention?

Hold onto “I have loved you” when you are tempted to doubt his love.

If you are married, renew your faithfulness. If you teach or lead, guard the knowledge that others depend on.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God where you have doubted his love.
- Confess where you give him what is blind and lame.
- Ask him to teach you to give him your best.

MATTHEW 1:21

DAY 563 · WEEK 81

Malachi 3:1-4:6

The forerunner; the sun of righteousness, silence before the Word

Year 1 · Unit 14 · Reading · 24 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Malachi 3:1-4:6. The messenger will prepare the way, the LORD will suddenly come to his temple, and the book ends with the promise of Elijah. This is the last page of the Old Testament in the Christian canon. Read it slowly, as the lights go down.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Malachi's last two chapters answer the people's question, "Where is the God of justice?" God says he is coming. But first a messenger will prepare the way. Then, the LORD himself will come to his temple. The book also addresses the question of tithing, and distinguishes those who serve God from those who do not. It ends with a promise and a warning. After this, there are about four hundred years of silence before the word of God comes again.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, I send my messenger, and he will prepare the way before me" (3:1).
2. "And the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple; and the messenger of the covenant in whom you delight, behold, he is coming" (3:1).
3. "But who can endure the day of his coming?... For he is like a refiner's fire and like fullers' soap' (3:2).
4. "For I the LORD do not change; therefore you, O children of Jacob, are not consumed" (3:6).
5. "Return to me, and I will return to you" (3:7).
6. "Bring the full tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house" (3:10).

7. “But for you who fear my name, the sun of righteousness shall rise with healing in its wings” (4:2).

8. “Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the great and awesome day of the LORD comes. And he will turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the hearts of children to their fathers” (4:5-6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The key announcement is in 3:1. A messenger will prepare the way, and then “the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple.” The people were asking, “Where is the God of justice?” God says, “I am coming.” But the coming will not be what they expect. They wanted judgment on their enemies. But the LORD says that he will first purify his own people. “Who can endure the day of his coming?” He is like a refiner’s fire and fullers’ soap. He will purify the sons of Levi until they present right offerings.

The next section is a call to return, based on God’s unchanging character: “I the LORD do not change; therefore you, O children of Jacob, are not consumed.” This is one of the great verses of grace. The reason Israel survives is not their faithfulness but God’s. “Return to me, and I will return to you.” The people then ask, “How shall we return?” God says they have robbed him in tithes and offerings. He invites them to bring the full tithe and “put me to the test,” with the promise that he will open the windows of heaven. The test is about trust, not a formula for wealth.

Then there is a division. The people had said that it is vain to serve God. But a group “who feared the LORD spoke with one another,” and the LORD listened and wrote a book of remembrance. “They shall be mine… in the day when I make up my treasured possession.” God keeps a record of the faithful.

The last chapter describes the day coming, burning like an oven, when the proud will be stubble. But for those who fear his name, “the sun of righteousness shall rise with healing in its wings.” That is one of the most beautiful images in the Old Testament. The book ends with a command to remember the law of Moses, and a promise of Elijah to turn hearts before the great day.

Then there is silence. For four hundred years, no prophet speaks. But the promise is hanging in the air: a messenger, a coming Lord, a rising sun.

STEP 5

Connection

Mark 1:2-4 and Matthew 11:10-14 identify John the Baptist as the messenger and as Elijah. Luke 1:17 says John would go before him "in the spirit and power of Elijah." Luke 1:78-79: "The sunrise shall visit us from on high." John 2:13-22: Jesus comes to the temple. Hebrews 13:8: "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever." Revelation 20:12 mentions the books that are opened. Matthew 3:1-3 introduces John the Baptist.

STEP 6

Application

Read Mark 1:1-8 immediately after this passage. Notice where the Old Testament ends and the Gospel begins.

Give to God first, and trust him to provide.

Pray for the "turning of hearts" between fathers and children in your family.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he does not change and so you are not consumed.

Ask him to refine you and return you to him.

Ask him to prepare you for the coming of the Lord.

Unit Verse

> "Behold, your king is coming to you; righteous and having salvation is he, humble and mounted on a donkey."
> ZECHARIAH 9:9

REST

Meditation

This verse stands near the end of the Old Testament like a lamp in a dark room. After centuries of kings who failed, a king is promised who will not. Every phrase counts.

"Behold." The word calls us to stop and look. Something is about to be shown.

"Your king is coming to you." The king is not a distant ruler. He comes to his people. After the return, the Jews had no king of their own. They were governed by Persians. The promise is that their king would come in person. The one who comes belongs to them and comes toward them.

"Righteous." Every earthly king in the Old Testament had flaws. Even David failed. This king is righteous, fully and perfectly. He does what is right.

"And having salvation is he." The phrase can mean he is saved, or he brings salvation. Both are true. He is delivered by God and he delivers others. His mission is to save.

"Humble." The Hebrew word means afflicted or lowly. This king comes not with power but in weakness. He enters Jerusalem not in the pride of a conqueror but in the humility of a servant.

"Mounted on a donkey." The picture is of peace. The next verse says he will cut off the war horse and speak peace to the nations. The kingdom he brings does not come by the sword.

When Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a donkey, the crowds shouted, “Hosanna!” They were seeing this verse come true. He was the king who came to them, righteous, saving, and humble, and he would give his life.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

Unit 14 closed the Old Testament with a partial return. You saw God keep his word through Cyrus, bringing a remnant home to rebuild the altar, the temple, and the wall. In Ezra and Nehemiah, you read of prayer and obstruction, of the word of God read aloud, and of joy and tears mingled, followed by the sad return to old sins. In Esther, you saw God’s hidden hand preserve his people in a foreign land. In Chronicles, the whole story was retold for the returned community, from Adam to Cyrus, with David’s covenant at its center and the repeated call to seek the LORD. Then the prophets of the return spoke. Joel called for hearts to be torn and promised the Spirit. Obadiah warned against pride and standing aloof. Haggai stirred the builders. Zechariah showed a clean Joshua, a humble king on a donkey, a pierced one, an opened fountain, and a Lord who will be king over all the earth. Malachi ended with love, a sharp rebuke, and a promise: a messenger, a Lord who will come suddenly to his temple, a sun of righteousness, and Elijah before the day. The Old Testament closes with its promises unfulfilled. The people are home, but the glory is not yet fully back, and the king has not come. Four hundred years of silence will follow, but the promise stands. Everything you have read from Genesis to Malachi has been preparing for the Gospel.

REFLECT

Review Questions

Why does the post-exilic community’s joy at the Temple’s rebuilding turn to weeping?

Think about Ezra 3:10-13 and Haggai 2:3. What did the old men remember, and what does the contrast say about the return being partial?

What does Chronicles add to our understanding of the monarchy?

Consider the Chronicler’s focus on David, the temple, and the repeated call to “seek the LORD.” How does it differ from Kings, and what does it say to a people with no king?

How does Malachi set up the 400 years of silence before Christ?

Look at Malachi 3:1, 4:2, and 4:5-6. What promises are left hanging, and who do the Gospels say fulfills them?

What do the visions in Zechariah reveal about the coming Messiah?

Think of the Branch, the priest on his throne, the humble king on a donkey, the shepherd sold for thirty pieces of silver, and the pierced one. How do these pictures fit together?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for carrying his people through exile and return.

Thank him for the promises that point to Christ.

DAY 565 · WEEK 81

Matthew 1:1-2:23

The genealogy; the birth; the Magi, new Israel begins

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 48 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 1:1-2:23. The New Testament opens with a list of names. Read it as the final page of the Old Testament's story, then follow the child from Bethlehem to Egypt and back to Nazareth.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After four hundred years of prophetic silence, the first words of the New Testament are "The book of the genealogy of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham." Matthew was a tax collector who became one of the Twelve, and he writes mainly for Jewish readers. His aim is to show that Jesus is the one the whole Old Testament was waiting for. He quotes or echoes Israel's Scriptures more than any other Gospel writer, and he says again and again that something happened "to fulfill what the Lord had spoken by the prophet."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The book of the genealogy of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham" (1:1).
2. "And Judah the father of Perez and Zerah by Tamar" (1:3).
3. "And Salmon the father of Boaz by Rahab, and Boaz the father of Obed by Ruth" (1:5).
4. "You shall call his name Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins" (1:21).
5. "And they shall call his name Immanuel (which means, God with us)" (1:23).
6. "Where is he who has been born king of the Jews? For we saw his star when it rose and have come to worship him" (2:2).
7. "And you, O Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, are by no means least among the rulers of Judah" (2:6).

8 “Out of Egypt I called my son” (2:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Matthew’s genealogy is a short history of the covenants. It begins with Abraham, to whom God promised a blessing for all nations, and moves to David, to whom God promised a throne that would never end. It ends at the exile and then with Jesus. Matthew arranges it in three sets of fourteen, a pattern that is itself a quiet claim: David’s line, broken in Babylon, has now arrived at its Messiah.

Notice who is in the list. Four women are named, which was unusual in a genealogy: Tamar, Rahab, Ruth, and the wife of Uriah. Several were outsiders and some were involved in scandal. Matthew is telling us at the outset that the Messiah comes through the real, messy story of sinners and foreigners, and that grace has been at work in his family tree all along.

The birth story is told from Joseph’s side. He is a righteous man who plans to quietly end the engagement, and God steps in. The name Jesus means “the LORD saves,” and the angel gives its meaning: he will save his people from their sins. That is a bigger rescue than overthrowing Rome. Then Isaiah’s promise is quoted: Immanuel, God with us. The book will end with Jesus saying, “I am with you always,” so the whole Gospel is framed by that promise.

In chapter 2, foreign astrologers come to worship the new king while the king in Jerusalem is troubled and the religious experts know where he will be born but do not go. Herod tries to kill the child. Jesus is taken to Egypt and brought back, and Matthew quotes Hosea: “Out of Egypt I called my son.” Hosea was speaking about Israel in the exodus. Matthew sees Jesus as the true Israel, who relives the nation’s story and does what it failed to do.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 12:3 promised that all families of the earth would be blessed through Abraham, and the Magi are the first fruits of that. 2 Samuel 7:12-13 is the promise of David’s throne. Isaiah 7:14 is the Immanuel passage you read in Unit 11. Micah 5:2 names Bethlehem. Romans 5:20 says that where sin increased, grace abounded all the more. Galatians 4:4-5 says that in the fullness of time God sent his Son to redeem those under the law.

STEP 6

Application

Read the genealogy aloud, slowly, and thank God for the sinners and outsiders in it. Then thank him that your own story is not too messy for his grace.

Ask what it would mean to treat Jesus as “God with us” in your ordinary Tuesday.

Notice the difference between the Magi and the scribes: one group traveled far to worship, and the other knew the Bible and stayed home. Which are you more like this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for keeping every promise to Abraham and David in Jesus.
- Tell him what it means that Jesus came to save his people from their sins.
- Ask him to teach you to worship as the Magi did.

MATTHEW 1:21

DAY 566 · WEEK 81

Matthew 3:1-4:25

John the Baptist; the baptism; the temptation

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 49 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 3:1-4:25. John prepares the way, Jesus is baptized, and the Father speaks. Then Jesus is led into the wilderness, where he is tempted, and he begins to call disciples. Watch how Jesus answers the devil.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is about thirty years old when his public ministry begins. John the Baptist has been preaching in the Judean wilderness near the Jordan, calling Israel to repent in preparation for the king. Matthew presents what happens at the Jordan and in the wilderness as the start of a new exodus: Israel passed through the sea and was tested for forty years, and now Israel's true Son passes through the water and is tested for forty days.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (3:2).
2. "Bear fruit in keeping with repentance" (3:8).
3. "I baptize you with water for repentance, but he who is coming after me is mightier than I" (3:11).
4. "Let it be so now, for thus it is fitting for us to fulfill all righteousness" (3:15).
5. "This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased" (3:17).
6. "Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil" (4:1).
7. "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God" (4:4).

8 “Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men” (4:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John’s message is simple: the king is coming, so turn around. The crowds come to be baptized, confessing their sins, but when religious leaders come, John warns them not to rest on being Abraham’s descendants. Fruit, not family, shows repentance.

Then Jesus comes to be baptized, which seems backward. John hesitates, because Jesus has no sins to confess. Jesus says it is fitting “to fulfill all righteousness.” He stands with sinners and takes his place among them, which anticipates the cross. The heavens open, the Spirit descends, and the Father speaks the words that combine Psalm 2 (a royal son) and Isaiah 42 (the servant in whom God delights). Jesus is both the king and the suffering servant.

Immediately the Spirit drives him into the wilderness. Israel failed its testing at hunger, at testing God, and at idolatry. Jesus faces the same three. When he is hungry, he answers with Deuteronomy 8: people live by every word from God’s mouth. When the devil quotes Scripture and tells him to throw himself down, Jesus answers from Deuteronomy 6: do not put the LORD your God to the test. When offered all the kingdoms of the world without a cross, he answers from Deuteronomy 6 again: worship the Lord alone. Every answer is a verse from the book Israel had been given in the wilderness. Jesus succeeds where Israel failed, and he does it by knowing and trusting the word.

Chapter 4 ends with the first disciples leaving their nets and the crowds beginning to gather. The kingdom he announces comes with healing and teaching.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 2:7 and Isaiah 42:1 stand behind the Father’s words at the baptism. Deuteronomy 8:3, 6:16, and 6:13 are the three verses Jesus quotes. Hebrews 4:15 says we have a high priest who in every respect has been tempted as we are, yet without sin. 1 Corinthians 10:1-13 compares Israel’s wilderness failures to our own testing. Ephesians 6:17 calls the word of God the sword of the Spirit.

STEP 6

Application

When you are tempted, answer with a specific verse you know. Choose one this week and memorize it for that purpose.

Notice that Jesus was tempted right after he was told he was God’s beloved Son. Being loved by the Father does not mean being spared trials.

Respond to Jesus' call to follow. What is one "net" you may need to put down?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for standing with sinners at the Jordan and standing firm in the wilderness.

Ask him to teach you to live by every word from God's mouth.

Tell him what you are tempted by.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Matthew 1:21 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"You shall call his name Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins."

MATTHEW 1:21

REST

Meditation

An angel speaks these words to Joseph in a dream, and they contain the whole mission of Jesus in one sentence.

"You shall call his name Jesus." The name is the Greek form of Joshua, which means "the LORD saves." Names in Scripture often carry meaning, and this one is a sermon. Joseph does not choose it. God does. Joseph is asked to take the child as his own and to give him the name.

"For he will save." The verb is about rescue. Matthew does not say he will try, or offer help, or point the way. He will save. The child in the manger is the rescuer.

"His people." The people are those who belong to him. In the Old Testament, that meant Israel. By the end of this Gospel, it includes people from every nation who follow him. Matthew begins with a family tree that includes outsiders for a reason.

“From their sins.” This is the surprising part. A first-century Jew would have expected rescue from Rome. Matthew says the deepest problem is not political but moral, and the solution is a Savior who deals with sin itself. He does this at the cross, where he bears it.

Say this verse whenever you wonder what Jesus came to do. He came to save his people from their sins, and that includes you if you belong to him.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the Old Testament and began the New. You read Zechariah’s vision of a fountain, a pierced one, and the LORD as king over all the earth. In Malachi you heard God’s love, his rebuke, and the promise of a messenger and a sun of righteousness. You reviewed the whole Unit 14 story of the return. Then, on the first two days of Matthew, you saw the genealogy that gathers up the covenants of Abraham and David, the virgin birth and the name Jesus, the Magi who came to worship, and the escape to Egypt. You watched John prepare the way, Jesus baptized with the Father’s voice from heaven, and Jesus overcome the devil’s temptations by quoting Deuteronomy. The silence between the Testaments is over, and the promises are arriving in a person.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Matthew’s genealogy includes Tamar, Rahab, and Ruth. What does that tell you about the kind of people Jesus came for?

The name Jesus means “the LORD saves.” In what area of your life do you most need to remember that he saves?

Jesus answered each temptation with Scripture. Which Scripture is helping you stand right now, and which one might you memorize next?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for coming to save his people from their sins.

Thank God for the long story that led to him.

Rest in his salvation.

DAY 568 · WEEK 82

Matthew 5:1-20

The Beatitudes; salt and light; the law fulfilled

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 5:1-20. This is the opening of the Sermon on the Mount. Read the Beatitudes slowly, one at a time, and notice how each begins with a blessing and ends with a promise.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus goes up on a mountain, sits down as a teacher would, and speaks to his disciples while crowds listen. Matthew has just shown Jesus as the new Israel. Now he shows him as the new Moses, giving a teaching from a mountain, as Moses did at Sinai. The Sermon is not a list of requirements for earning God's favor. It is a portrait of life in the kingdom that has arrived, addressed to people who already belong to him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" (5:3).
2. "Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted" (5:4).
3. "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth" (5:5).
4. "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be satisfied" (5:6).
5. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God" (5:8).
6. "Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness" sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven' (5:10).
7. "You are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hidden" (5:14).

8 “Do not think that I have come to abolish the Law or the Prophets; I have not come to abolish them but to fulfill them” (5:17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Beatitudes turn the world’s idea of success upside down. The people called blessed are the poor in spirit, the mourners, the meek, and the persecuted. These are not the ones the world admires. Yet each is promised something: the kingdom, comfort, the earth, satisfaction, mercy, the sight of God. The blessing is not a reward for being good enough. These are people who know their need, and the kingdom belongs to those who know they cannot get there on their own.

The first and last Beatitudes promise the same thing, the kingdom of heaven, which frames the whole list. The ones between them describe what kingdom people are like: they grieve over sin, they are gentle, they long for what is right, they show mercy, they have undivided hearts, and they make peace. And as the verses go on, Jesus tells them to expect opposition.

He then calls his followers salt and light. Salt preserves and flavors, and light shows the way. Both are useless if hidden or diluted. The point is not to draw attention to ourselves but that people “may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven.”

Verses 17 to 20 are the hinge. Jesus did not come to throw away the Old Testament. He came to fulfill it, which means to bring it to its intended goal. The law and prophets pointed to him, and he completes what they began. And when he says that our righteousness must exceed that of the scribes and Pharisees, he sets up an impossible standard that only he can meet and then give to us. The rest of the Sermon shows how deep that righteousness goes.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 19 and 20 describe the giving of the law from a mountain. Isaiah 61:1-3 promises good news for the poor and comfort for those who mourn. Psalm 37:11 says the meek shall inherit the land. Psalm 24:3-4 asks who may ascend the hill of the LORD, and the answer is the clean of hands and pure of heart. Philippians 2:15 says believers shine as lights in the world. Romans 10:4 says Christ is the end, or goal, of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes.

STEP 6

Application

Pick one Beatitude and ask where it describes you or challenges you. Pray about that specific one today.

Ask what “poor in spirit” would look like in your work, your marriage, or your church. How would you act if you knew you needed God for everything?

Do one visible good work today that points toward the Father, not toward you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to make you poor in spirit, aware of your need.
- Tell him what you hunger and thirst for.
- Ask him to let your light shine so that others give glory to him.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 82

“In the same way, let your light shine before others, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven.”

MATTHEW 5:16

DAY 569 · WEEK 82

Matthew 5:21-48

The law's true demand, heart-level obedience

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 28 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 5:21-48. Jesus takes six commands from the law and goes beneath the surface of each one. Notice the repeated phrase "You have heard that it was said... But I say to you."

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Having said he came to fulfill the law, Jesus now shows what that means. The religious teachers of the day had narrowed the law to outward behavior, often with loopholes. Jesus takes six examples, murder, adultery, divorce, oaths, retaliation, and love for enemies, and shows that God's law was always aimed at the heart. He does not set aside Moses. He reveals what Moses meant.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "You have heard that it was said to those of old, You shall not murder... But I say to you that everyone who is angry with his brother will be liable to judgment" (5:21-22).
2. "So if you are offering your gift at the altar and there remember that your brother has something against you, leave your gift there before the altar and go. First be reconciled to your brother" (5:23-24).
3. "Everyone who looks at a woman with lustful intent has already committed adultery with her in his heart" (5:28).
4. "If your right eye causes you to sin, tear it out and throw it away" (5:29).
5. "Let what you say be simply Yes or No" (5:37).
6. "But I say to you, Do not resist the one who is evil" (5:39).

7. “Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you” (5:44).
8. “You therefore must be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect” (5:48).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Each of the six examples follows the same pattern. Jesus quotes the commandment, and then he goes to the root. Murder starts in anger and contempt. Adultery starts in lust. Faithfulness in speech should not need oaths. Love should not stop at those who love us back. He is not adding new rules but exposing what the old ones always demanded.

The effect is meant to be unsettling. A person who thinks he has kept the law by avoiding murder finds that he has been angry. A person who has avoided adultery finds that he has looked with desire. No one can say, “I have kept all these.” Jesus has made the standard so high that everyone has to see that righteousness cannot be earned. That is why the Beatitudes began with the poor in spirit.

His strong language about tearing out an eye is not a command to self-harm but a way of saying that sin must be dealt with seriously, whatever it costs. And his teaching on retaliation points to a different way of living. Instead of getting even, his people absorb insult and give generously, trusting the Father to be their defender.

The last command is the most demanding: “Be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect.” The context is love for enemies. God sends rain and sun on the just and unjust alike, and his children are meant to look like him. “Perfect” here means whole, complete, not partial. Only one person has ever lived this out. That is why the Sermon drives us to Christ, who lived it for us and then gives his Spirit to begin forming it in us.

STEP 5

Connection

1 John 3:15 says everyone who hates his brother is a murderer. James 1:14-15 traces sin from desire to death. Proverbs 4:23 says to guard your heart. Romans 12:17-21 echoes Jesus on overcoming evil with good. Luke 23:34 shows Jesus praying for his enemies on the cross. Romans 5:8 says that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us. Galatians 3:10-14 says Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law.

STEP 6

Application

Think of someone you are angry with. Ask what first step toward reconciliation God might want from you today.

Be honest about one area where outward obedience hides an inward struggle. Confess it to God, who already knows.

Pray for an enemy or a difficult person by name this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess the anger, desire, or love that stops short in you.

Thank Jesus for fulfilling the law you cannot.

Ask him to change your heart from the inside.

MATTHEW 5:16

DAY 570 · WEEK 82

Matthew 6:1-34

Prayer, fasting, treasure, anxiety, the Father in heaven

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 34 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 6:1-34. Jesus turns from the law to the practices of the religious life: giving, praying, and fasting. Then he deals with money and anxiety. Notice how often he says “your Father who sees in secret.”

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The second part of the Sermon is about the heart behind devotion. In first-century Judaism, giving, prayer, and fasting were the three marks of a pious person, and it was tempting to do them for the applause of others. Jesus asks his followers to do them for an audience of one. Then he addresses the two great rivals to trust in the Father: money and worry.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Beware of practicing your righteousness before other people in order to be seen by them” (6:1).
2. “But when you give to the needy, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing” (6:3).
3. “Go into your room and shut the door and pray to your Father who is in secret” (6:6).
4. “Your Father knows what you need before you ask him” (6:8).
5. “Pray then like this: Our Father in heaven, hallowed be your name” (6:9).
6. “Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth… but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven” (6:19-20).
7. “No one can serve two masters… You cannot serve God and money” (6:24).

8 “But seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added to you” (6:33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus warns about acting religious for show. The people who give, pray, and fast to be seen get exactly what they wanted, the praise of people, and nothing more. Those who do these things in secret have a Father who sees and will reward. The difference is who we are performing for.

At the center is the model prayer. It starts with “Our Father,” not “My Father,” and with God’s name, his kingdom, and his will before our needs. Then it asks for daily bread, forgiveness, and protection from temptation. Notice that the prayer is short and simple. Jesus says that pagans heap up empty phrases, thinking they will be heard for their many words, but the Father already knows what we need. Prayer is not about informing or persuading God. It is about coming to him as children.

The teaching on forgiveness (6:14-15) is sobering. The forgiven are expected to forgive. This is not a transaction, but it describes the character of those who have truly received mercy.

Then Jesus turns to treasure and worry. We cannot serve both God and money. He points to the birds, which do not farm and yet are fed, and to the lilies, which do not spin and yet are clothed. “Are you not of more value than they?” Anxiety assumes that we are on our own. Jesus says we have a Father. The cure for worry is not simply to try harder to stop, but to seek first the kingdom and trust that the Father will provide. Take one day at a time: “Sufficient for the day is its own trouble.”

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 58:6-9 describes the fasting God desires. Luke 11:1-4 gives Luke’s version of the Lord’s Prayer. 1 Timothy 6:6-10 warns about the love of money. Philippians 4:6-7 says not to be anxious, but to pray with thanksgiving and receive God’s peace. 1 Peter 5:7 says to cast all your anxieties on him because he cares for you. Psalm 55:22 says to cast your burden on the LORD. Romans 8:32 says that the God who gave his Son will also give us all things.

STEP 6

Application

Do one act of giving or service this week that no one will know about except God.

Name your biggest worry. Hand it to the Father in prayer, using Jesus’ reasoning: “You are of more value than the birds.”

Pray the Lord's Prayer slowly today, pausing on each phrase.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Pray the Lord's Prayer slowly, pausing at each line to add your own words.
- Ask him for today's bread and to forgive your sins.
- Ask him to loosen your anxiety and teach you to trust your Father.

MATTHEW 5:16

DAY 571 · WEEK 82

Matthew 6:5-15; Luke 11:1-13

Prayer

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 6:5-15, then Luke 11:1-13. Today is a doctrinal pause on prayer, so you are reading two accounts together. Notice that in Luke the disciples ask Jesus to teach them to pray, and he gives the prayer and then a parable and a promise.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Yesterday you read the Lord's Prayer within the Sermon on the Mount. Luke records a different occasion. Jesus had been praying, and when he finished, one of his disciples said, "Lord, teach us to pray." Jesus gave them the pattern again in a slightly shorter form, and then taught about asking, seeking, and knocking. Together the two passages give a foundation for what the Bible teaches about prayer.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "When you pray, you must not be like the hypocrites" (Matthew 6:5).
2. "Your Father knows what you need before you ask him" (Matthew 6:8).
3. "Our Father in heaven, hallowed be your name" (Matthew 6:9).
4. "Forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors" (Matthew 6:12).
5. "Lord, teach us to pray, as John taught his disciples" (Luke 11:1).
6. "Father, hallowed be your name. Your kingdom come" (Luke 11:2).
7. "Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you" (Luke 11:9).
8. "How much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him!" (Luke 11:13).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Prayer is the means by which believers speak to God as their Father through Jesus Christ, in the power of the Holy Spirit. It includes praise, thanksgiving, confession, and petition. God does not need to be informed of what we need, and prayer does not change his purposes. Rather, he has chosen to bring about his purposes through the prayers of his people. We pray in Jesus' name, which means that we come through his work and on his authority, not our own merit. Prayer is not a technique for getting what we want but a relationship in which we are conformed to the Father's will.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus' teaching on prayer begins with how not to pray. Hypocrites pray to be seen, and pagans pile up words. Neither is how a child talks to a father. Jesus says to go into your room, close the door, and pray to your Father in secret. Real prayer is a personal conversation, not a performance.

The prayer itself begins with "Our Father." This word alone changes everything. We are not approaching a distant ruler or a force. Through Christ we are children addressing a Father who loves us. Then come three petitions about God: his name be treated as holy, his kingdom come, his will be done. We start by wanting what he wants. Only then do we turn to ourselves: daily bread, forgiveness, and deliverance from the evil one. The order teaches us what to put first.

Luke adds a story. A man knocks at his friend's door at midnight to borrow bread, and the friend gets up not out of friendship but because of the man's persistence. Jesus' point is a contrast: if even a reluctant neighbor responds, how much more will the Father? So we ask, seek, and knock. The verbs are in the present tense, suggesting continual asking.

And then the surprising conclusion. A father does not give a snake to a child who asks for a fish. If earthly parents, "who are evil," give good gifts, how much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him? The greatest answer to prayer is not an object but God himself, present in us by his Spirit. This does not mean that every request will be granted as we ask, but that the Father will always give what is good.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 8:15-16 says we have received the Spirit of adoption by whom we cry "Abba, Father." Romans 8:26-27 says the Spirit helps us in our weakness when we do not know what to pray. John 14:13-14 teaches prayer in Jesus' name. Hebrews 4:16 invites us to approach the throne of grace with confidence. 1 John 5:14 says that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. Philippians 4:6 says to make requests known to God with thanksgiving. James 4:2-3 warns about asking with wrong motives.

STEP 6

Application

Set aside a regular time and place to pray, even for ten minutes. Use the Lord's Prayer as an outline: praise, God's kingdom, daily needs, forgiveness, protection.

Keep a short list of requests you are bringing to the Father, and note when he answers.

Ask for the Holy Spirit, as Jesus invites, and ask specifically for help in a weakness.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that through Jesus you can call him Father.
- Pray each petition of the Lord's Prayer in your own words.
- Ask him to teach you to pray with persistence.

MATTHEW 5:16

DAY 572 · WEEK 82

Matthew 7:1-29

Judging, asking, the narrow way, the two foundations

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 29 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 7:1-29. Jesus ends the Sermon with warnings about judging, a call to ask the Father, the narrow gate, false prophets, and the two builders. Pay attention to the last verses of the chapter.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The final chapter of the Sermon moves from describing the kingdom life to urging a response. Jesus warns his hearers against false religion and calls for decision. The Sermon ends not with a list of rules but with a choice between two roads, two trees, and two foundations. Everyone who hears must act.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Judge not, that you be not judged” (7:1).
2. “First take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your brother’s eye” (7:5).
3. “Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you” (7:7).
4. “So whatever you wish that others would do to you, do also to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets” (7:12).
5. “Enter by the narrow gate. For the gate is wide and the way is easy that leads to destruction” (7:13).
6. “You will recognize them by their fruits” (7:16).

7. “Not everyone who says to me, Lord, Lord, will enter the kingdom of heaven, but the one who does the will of my Father” (7:21).

8. “And when Jesus finished these sayings, the crowds were astonished at his teaching, for he was teaching them as one who had authority” (7:28-29).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus does not forbid all discernment, since he later tells us to recognize false prophets by their fruit. He forbids a harsh, hypocritical spirit that picks at others’ faults while ignoring our own. The image of a log in the eye is humorous and deliberate. First deal with yourself, and then you can help your brother with clear sight.

The call to ask, seek, and knock comes back again, because the Christian life depends on a Father who gives. And the Golden Rule sums up the whole ethic: treat others as you want to be treated. It is the Law and the Prophets in a sentence.

Then comes a choice. There are two gates, one wide and easy, and one narrow and hard. There are two kinds of trees and two kinds of fruit. The popular road is not the safe one. Jesus’ warning that some who say “Lord, Lord” will be turned away is one of the most sobering in the Bible. These people did religious things, prophesied, cast out demons, and did mighty works in his name. But he says, “I never knew you.” The test is not activity but a relationship with Christ shown in obedience.

The closing story is of two builders. Both heard the same words. One built on rock and one on sand. The storm tested both, and only the house on the rock stood. The difference was not hearing but doing. The crowds were astonished, because Jesus taught with his own authority, not by quoting other rabbis. The one who has given the Sermon is also the one who will judge. The way to be safe is to build on him.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 2:1 warns that when you judge another, you condemn yourself. James 1:22-25 says to be doers of the word and not hearers only. Luke 6:46-49 gives the parallel to the two builders. John 10:9: “I am the door; if anyone enters by me, he will be saved.” John 14:6: “I am the way, and the truth, and the life.” Ephesians 2:20 says Christ Jesus himself is the cornerstone. 1 Corinthians 3:11: no one can lay a foundation other than Christ.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you are looking at the speck in someone else while ignoring your own log. Confess it.

Pick one thing from the Sermon on the Mount that you have heard but not done. Do it this week.

Ask yourself honestly: are you building your life on Christ, or on something that will not survive a storm?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you judge others while ignoring your own sin.
- Ask him to help you enter by the narrow way.
- Ask him to build your life on the rock of his words.

MATTHEW 5:16

DAY 573 · WEEK 82

Psalm 1

Blessed is the man, the two ways behind the Sermon

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 1. This short psalm is the doorway to the whole Psalter, and its two paths sit right behind the Sermon on the Mount. Read it aloud and compare the tree with the chaff.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 1 has no title and no author, and it opens the book of Psalms by setting two ways of life side by side. After reading Jesus' Sermon, with its two gates, two trees, and two foundations, you can hear that Jesus was drawing on this psalm. It is a wisdom poem that asks the reader to choose.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Blessed is the man who walks not in the counsel of the wicked" (v. 1).
2. "Nor stands in the way of sinners, nor sits in the seat of scoffers" (v. 1).
3. "But his delight is in the law of the LORD, and on his law he meditates day and night" (v. 2).
4. "He is like a tree planted by streams of water that yields its fruit in its season" (v. 3).
5. "And its leaf does not wither" (v. 3).
6. "In all that he does, he prospers" (v. 3).
7. "The wicked are not so, but are like chaff that the wind drives away" (v. 4).
8. "For the LORD knows the way of the righteous, but the way of the wicked will perish" (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a progression: walking, standing, sitting. The person who drifts from listening to the wicked, to lingering with sinners, to settling in with scoffers is on a slide. The blessed person turns away from this and finds his delight in God's law, his instruction, and thinks about it all the time.

The picture of the tree is lovely. It is planted, not wild, so someone has put it where the water is. Its roots go down to the stream, and so it bears fruit in season and its leaf does not wither. A person who is rooted in God's word is not immune to hardship, but he has resources the world does not see.

The wicked are like chaff, the light husk of the grain that blows away when the wheat is threshed. They have no weight and no roots. "The wicked will not stand in the judgment." The psalm ends with the contrast: the LORD knows the way of the righteous, and the way of the wicked will perish. To be known by the LORD is the ultimate security.

Read after Matthew 5 to 7, the psalm gets sharper. Who is the truly blessed man who perfectly delights in the law and never walks with sinners? Jesus. He is the true tree planted by the water, and he is the one who gives his Spirit so that others may be rooted in him. The Beatitudes echo this psalm's first word: "Blessed." The Sermon on the Mount is the same invitation to choose the path of life.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 17:7-8 uses the same tree image for the one who trusts in the LORD. John 15:5 says, "I am the vine; you are the branches. Whoever abides in me and I in him, he it is that bears much fruit." Matthew 7:24-27 is Jesus' version of the two ways. Joshua 1:8 commands meditating on the book of the law day and night. Colossians 2:6-7 says to be rooted and built up in him. Revelation 22:2 shows the tree of life by the river.

STEP 6

Application

Take five minutes today to meditate on one verse, not just read it. Turn it over and ask what it means.

Ask who or what is shaping your "counsel" right now: the voices you listen to and the company you keep.

Memorize verses 1 to 3 as a picture of the life you want.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God you want to be a tree planted by streams of water.

Ask him to keep you from the counsel of the wicked.

Thank him that he knows your way.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"In the same way, let your light shine before others, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven."

MATTHEW 5:16

REST

Meditation

This verse comes at the end of Jesus' picture of his followers as the light of the world. It tells us what the light is for.

"In the same way." Jesus has just said that a lamp is not lit and hidden under a basket but put on a stand to give light to all in the house. His followers are like that. The point of a light is to be seen, and the point of being seen is to help others find their way.

"Let your light shine." The light is not manufactured. Jesus has already said, "You are the light of the world." The light comes from him, and he says elsewhere, "I am the light of the world." We reflect what we have received. Our task is not to produce it but to let it be seen and not to hide it out of fear or embarrassment.

“Before others.” Faith is not private only. It is lived in front of people, at work, at home, among neighbors. Others notice how we treat people, how we handle trouble, and how we speak.

“So that they may see your good works.” The good works are real, practical acts of love and honesty. They are the visible side of a changed heart.

“And give glory to your Father who is in heaven.” This is the goal. The aim of shining is not that people admire us, but that they look past us to the Father. Good works are windows, not mirrors. If someone praises you today, pass it up to him.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you walked through the opening of Matthew and the heart of the Sermon on the Mount. You saw Jesus’ birth announced with the name that means “the LORD saves,” the baptism where the Father called him his beloved Son, and the wilderness where Jesus beat the devil by quoting Scripture. In the Sermon, Jesus described the blessed life of kingdom people in the Beatitudes, called you salt and light, and showed what the law really demands: a clean heart, not just clean hands. He taught you to pray, to give and fast in secret, and to trust the Father instead of worrying. Then he asked you to choose between two roads and two foundations. Psalm 1 gave the same choice in older words.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said the poor in spirit are blessed. What would it look like for you to come to God this week with empty hands?

The Sermon shows that the law reaches the heart. In light of that, how does the gospel, that Christ fulfilled the law for us, change the way you read these chapters?

Jesus invites us to call God “Our Father.” What difference does it make to your prayer life, your worries, and your sense of identity to know that?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to let your light shine so that others give him glory.

Thank Jesus for fulfilling the law in your place.

Thank him that you can call him Father.

DAY 575 · WEEK 83

Psalm 146

Praise the LORD who executes justice, the Beatitudes' God

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 10 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 146. Read it as the Beatitudes in song form: a psalm about the God who blesses the poor, the hungry, and the oppressed. Notice the warning in verses 3 and 4 and the blessing in verse 5.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 146 is the first of the five closing Hallelujah psalms, and its theme matches the Sermon on the Mount you have just read. It is a praise song that centers on the character of God as the helper of the helpless. Jesus' opening words in the Sermon, "Blessed are the poor in spirit," sound much like this psalm's "Blessed is he whose help is the God of Jacob."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD, O my soul!" (v. 1).
2. "I will praise the LORD as long as I live" (v. 2).
3. "Put not your trust in princes, in a son of man, in whom there is no salvation" (v. 3).
4. "When his breath departs, he returns to the earth; on that very day his plans perish" (v. 4).
5. "Blessed is he whose help is the God of Jacob, whose hope is in the LORD his God" (v. 5).
6. "Who executes justice for the oppressed, who gives food to the hungry" (v. 7).
7. "The LORD opens the eyes of the blind" (v. 8).
8. "The LORD will reign forever, your God, O Zion, to all generations" (v. 10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with the writer talking to his own soul: “Praise the LORD, O my soul!” He decides to praise for as long as he lives. Then comes a warning: do not trust princes, mortals, or any human leader as your final hope. Their breath leaves them, they return to dust, and their plans die with them. This is not cynicism about human government but realism. No leader can save you.

The alternative is the God of Jacob. He made heaven and earth and the sea, and he keeps faith forever. That last line is the foundation of everything. God’s faithfulness is not temporary. And what does this God do? He executes justice for the oppressed, gives food to the hungry, sets prisoners free, opens the eyes of the blind, lifts up those who are bowed down, loves the righteous, watches over strangers, and upholds the widow and fatherless.

Now read the Gospels in this light. When Jesus heals the blind, feeds the hungry, and welcomes the outsiders in the chapters ahead, he is doing what this psalm says the LORD does. John the Baptist will ask from prison whether Jesus is the one who is to come, and Jesus will answer by pointing to the blind who see and the poor who hear good news. The psalm tells us what to look for.

The psalm ends with “the LORD will reign forever.” Princes die. The king lives. Our hope rests there.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 11:2-6 shows Jesus answering John with the very works this psalm describes. Luke 4:18-19 has Jesus reading Isaiah 61 about good news to the poor, liberty to captives, and sight to the blind. Isaiah 2:22 says to stop regarding man, whose breath is in his nostrils. Jeremiah 17:5-8 contrasts trust in man with trust in the LORD. James 1:27 says pure religion is to visit orphans and widows. Revelation 11:15 declares that he shall reign forever and ever.

STEP 6

Application

Think about where you might be putting too much trust in a leader, a party, or a system. Re-center your hope on the LORD.

Choose one group named in verses 7 to 9 (the hungry, the oppressed, the foreigner, the widow, the orphan) and do one concrete thing to help.

Praise the LORD out loud today, with your whole soul, for something specific.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God as long as you live, in your own words.

Confess where you trust in princes instead of him.

Thank him that he keeps faith forever and executes justice for the oppressed.

MATTHEW 11:28

DAY 576 · WEEK 83

Psalm 147:1-11

He heals the brokenhearted

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 147:1-11. You read all of Psalm 147 on Day 508 as a song for the rebuilt wall. Today read only the first eleven verses, and let them sit beside what Jesus does in the next chapters: healing the brokenhearted and binding up wounds.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The first half of Psalm 147 pairs two pictures: God the builder and gatherer, and God the healer. It also tells us what pleases him. Read these verses today with the Gospel of Matthew open in your mind, where the Messiah begins to touch lepers, lift the paralyzed, and call the weary to himself.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Praise the LORD! For it is good to sing praises to our God” (v. 1).
2. “The LORD builds up Jerusalem; he gathers the outcasts of Israel” (v. 2).
3. “He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds” (v. 3).
4. “He determines the number of the stars; he gives to all of them their names” (v. 4).
5. “Great is our Lord, and abundant in power; his understanding is beyond measure” (v. 5).
6. “The LORD lifts up the humble; he casts the wicked to the ground” (v. 6).
7. “He gives to the beasts their food, and to the young ravens that cry” (v. 9).
8. “But the LORD takes pleasure in those who fear him, in those who hope in his steadfast love” (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

On Day 508, you heard this psalm at the dedication of the wall. Today, notice what stands out about verse 3: “He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds.” Right after the gathering of the outcasts, the psalm turns to the personal. God does not only manage nations. He kneels to bandage individual hurts.

The next verse sets this beside the stars. The same God who counts and names the stars is the one who tends the brokenhearted. His power and his tenderness are not in competition. The Gospel of Matthew gives this a face. In the chapters you are about to read, Jesus touches a leper, raises a girl, and heals the sick. Matthew says that this fulfilled what Isaiah said: “He took our illnesses and bore our diseases.” The God of the stars came near to the broken.

Verses 10 and 11 tell us what God values. He does not delight in the strength of the horse or the legs of a man, which means military might and human physical power. He takes pleasure in those who fear him and hope in his steadfast love. God is not impressed by what we can do. He is moved by trust.

For a person who is hurting, this psalm is an invitation. You do not have to fix yourself before you come. The LORD heals the brokenhearted, and he does it because that is who he is.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 8:16-17 quotes Isaiah 53:4 about Jesus healing the sick. Matthew 11:28 calls the weary and burdened to come. Luke 4:18 says he has been sent to bind up the brokenhearted. Isaiah 61:1 is the source of that verse. Psalm 34:18 says the LORD is near to the brokenhearted. 2 Corinthians 1:3-4 calls God the Father of mercies and God of all comfort. Revelation 21:4 promises that he will wipe away every tear.

STEP 6

Application

Name one hurt you have been carrying. Bring it to the Lord in prayer without trying to tidy it first.

Look for someone brokenhearted near you and offer a quiet act of care: a call, a note, a meal.

Tonight, look at the stars and remember that the one who named them knows your name.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds.

Tell him what is broken in you.

Praise him for the stars he counts and names.

DAY 577 · WEEK 83

Matthew 8:1-9:38

Ten miracles, the King demonstrates the Kingdom's arrival

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 75 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 8:1-9:38. Matthew gathers ten miracles into two chapters: a leper, a centurion's servant, Peter's mother-in-law, a storm, two demon-possessed men, a paralytic, a dead girl, a woman with bleeding, two blind men, and a mute man. Read for what the miracles reveal about the King.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the Sermon on the Mount, in which Jesus spoke with authority, Matthew shows Jesus acting with authority. The Sermon was the King's words, and these chapters are the King's works. Each miracle demonstrates that the kingdom of heaven has arrived, and each shows power over a different enemy: disease, nature, demons, sin, and death. Alongside the miracles, Matthew places the cost of following him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Lord, if you will, you can make me clean" (8:2).
2. "Truly, I tell you, with no one in Israel have I found such faith" (8:10).
3. "This was to fulfill what was spoken by the prophet Isaiah: He took our illnesses and bore our diseases" (8:17).
4. "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head" (8:20).
5. "What sort of man is this, that even winds and sea obey him?" (8:27).
6. "Take heart, my son; your sins are forgiven" (9:2).

7. “I desire mercy, and not sacrifice. For I came not to call the righteous, but sinners” (9:13).

8. “When he saw the crowds, he had compassion for them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd” (9:36).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first miracle is a leper, the most unclean person in Israel. The law said that a leper must keep away and cry “Unclean!” Yet Jesus touches him, and instead of Jesus becoming unclean, the man becomes clean. Then comes a Roman centurion, a Gentile, who recognizes that Jesus needs only to say the word. Jesus is amazed at his faith and says that many will come from east and west to sit at table with Abraham. The kingdom is wider than Israel.

On the Sea of Galilee, a storm threatens to sink the boat while Jesus sleeps. He rebukes the wind and the waves, and there is a great calm. The disciples ask, “What sort of man is this?” Only God commands the sea (Psalm 107:29). He then sends demons into pigs and heals a paralyzed man. Here the order is striking: he first says “Your sins are forgiven,” and only then heals the body. The scribes call it blasphemy, and they are right that only God can forgive sins. Jesus proves his authority by healing.

Matthew himself, the tax collector, is called to follow. Jesus eats with tax collectors and sinners and says he is a physician for the sick. Then a ruler’s daughter is raised, a woman’s bleeding is healed, the blind see, and the mute speak.

The section ends with Jesus’ compassion. He sees the crowds as sheep without a shepherd and says the harvest is plentiful but the laborers are few. The miracles are not displays. They show the heart of the Messiah, who has come to rescue and to gather.

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 13 and 14 describe the laws for leprosy. Psalm 107:23-30 describes God calming the storm. Isaiah 53:4 is quoted in 8:17. Mark 2:1-12 gives a fuller account of the paralytic. Hosea 6:6 is quoted in 9:13. Ezekiel 34:5 describes shepherdless sheep. John 11:25: “I am the resurrection and the life.” Hebrews 4:15: we have a high priest who sympathizes with our weaknesses.

STEP 6

Application

Pray the leper’s prayer: “Lord, if you will, you can make me clean.” Name the specific thing you need cleansed or healed.

When storms come, remember that Jesus is in the boat. Say aloud, “Even the winds and sea obey him.”

Ask the Lord of the harvest to send workers, and ask whether you may be one.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell Jesus you believe, and ask him to help your unbelief.
- Ask him to make you clean where you need cleansing.
- Thank him for his power over storms, sin, and death.

DAY 578 · WEEK 83

Matthew 10:1-11:30

The Twelve sent; "Come to me, all who are weary"

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 79 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 10:1-11:30. Jesus sends out the Twelve and warns them about opposition. Then John the Baptist sends a question from prison, and Jesus ends the chapter with one of the most beloved invitations in the Bible. Read 11:28-30 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Having shown his compassion for the harassed crowds, Jesus calls twelve disciples and sends them to the lost sheep of Israel. The twelve apostles echo the twelve tribes: Jesus is gathering a renewed Israel. His instructions are honest about the cost. Then, in chapter 11, we see doubt and rejection, and Jesus responds with an invitation to the weary.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And he called to him his twelve disciples and gave them authority over unclean spirits" (10:1).
2. "These twelve Jesus sent out, instructing them, Go nowhere among the Gentiles and enter no town of the Samaritans, but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (10:5-6).
3. "Behold, I am sending you out as sheep in the midst of wolves, so be wise as serpents and innocent as doves" (10:16).
4. "Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me" (10:37).
5. "Whoever finds his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it" (10:39).
6. "Are you the one who is to come, or shall we look for another?" (11:3).

7. “Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest” (11:28).
8. “For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light” (11:30).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The commission is clear and costly. The disciples are to proclaim the kingdom, heal, and cast out demons, depending on others for hospitality. Jesus warns them that they will be hated, brought before governors, and divided from their families. Yet he repeats, “Do not be afraid,” because the Father who cares for the sparrows cares for them. Those who acknowledge him before people, he will acknowledge before his Father.

His words about family are hard: loving him above father and mother. This is not a call to hate one’s family, but a statement that he must come first. And the paradox: finding your life means losing it for his sake.

Then John the Baptist, in prison, sends a question. He had announced the coming judge, and now he is in a cell, and Jesus is healing and eating with sinners. He wonders, “Are you the one?” It is a very human doubt. Jesus does not rebuke him. He points to the works: the blind see, the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, the poor have good news. And he says, “Blessed is the one who is not offended by me.” He then praises John as the greatest of the prophets.

Jesus condemns the cities that saw miracles and did not repent. And then, to the surprise of the reader, he prays and offers an invitation. “Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden.” The yoke is the picture of a teacher’s way of life. The Pharisees’ yoke was heavy with rules. Jesus’ yoke is gentle. His rest is not a break from work but a relationship in which he carries the weight with us.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 31:25 promises to satisfy the weary soul. Exodus 33:14 records God saying, “My presence will go with you, and I will give you rest.” Acts 15:10 calls the burden of the law a yoke that neither we nor our fathers could bear. Hebrews 4:9-11 speaks of a Sabbath rest for the people of God. Luke 14:26-33 teaches the cost of discipleship. Philippians 3:7-8 shows Paul counting all things as loss for Christ. 1 John 5:3: his commandments are not burdensome.

STEP 6

Application

If you are weary today, stop and take Jesus’ invitation personally. Tell him specifically what is heavy.

Think of a person who is doubting. Respond like Jesus did to John: patiently, with evidence of God's goodness.

Ask what it means to take his yoke and learn from him. What practice could you begin?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Come to Jesus weary and burdened, and tell him what weighs on you.

Ask him to teach you, for he is gentle and lowly in heart.

Take his yoke, and tell him what that means.

DAY 579 · WEEK 83

Matthew 12:1-13:23

Sabbath controversies; Beelzebul; the Sower

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 82 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 12:1-13:23. Jesus is Lord of the Sabbath, the Pharisees accuse him of working by Satan's power, and he tells the first parables. Pay close attention to the parable of the sower and Jesus' explanation.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Opposition has been building, and in chapter 12 it becomes open conflict. The Pharisees object to Jesus' disciples picking grain on the Sabbath and to his healing on the Sabbath. They then accuse him of casting out demons by Beelzebul. Jesus responds with arguments from Scripture and warnings. In chapter 13, he begins teaching in parables, stories that reveal the kingdom to those with ears to hear and conceal it from those who harden their hearts.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For the Son of Man is lord of the Sabbath" (12:8).
2. "I desire mercy, and not sacrifice" (12:7).
3. "Behold, my servant whom I have chosen, my beloved with whom my soul is well pleased" (12:18).
4. "If I cast out demons by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God has come upon you" (12:28).
5. "Whoever is not with me is against me" (12:30).
6. "For something greater than Solomon is here" (12:42).
7. "And he told them many things in parables, saying, A sower went out to sow" (13:3).

8 “As for what was sown on good soil, this is the one who hears the word and understands it. He indeed bears fruit” (13:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Sabbath conflicts reveal a clash between two ways of reading God’s law. The Pharisees saw rules to protect. Jesus saw mercy to practice. He cites David, who ate the consecrated bread when hungry, and the priests who work in the temple on the Sabbath. Then he says, “Something greater than the temple is here,” and that the Son of Man is lord of the Sabbath. This is a startling claim: he is the one who gave the Sabbath and the one to whom the Sabbath points.

Matthew quotes Isaiah’s servant song, showing a gentle servant who will not break a bruised reed. Then when Jesus casts out a demon, the Pharisees say he does it by the prince of demons. Jesus answers: a kingdom divided against itself cannot stand. If he casts out demons by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom has arrived. The unforgivable sin, blasphemy against the Spirit, is attributing the Spirit’s work to Satan, persistently and with a hardened heart. People who seek forgiveness have not committed it.

The parable of the sower begins chapter 13. A farmer scatters seed on four kinds of soil: the path, rocky ground, thorns, and good soil. The seed is the same. The difference is in the hearers. Some do not understand and the evil one snatches the word. Some receive it with joy but have no root. Some are choked by worries and wealth. And some hear, understand, and bear fruit. Jesus explains that parables reveal truth to those who are open and conceal it from those who are not.

The point is for you to ask which soil you are. The remedy for a hard heart is not to try harder but to ask the Sower to work on the soil.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 20:8-11 gives the Sabbath command. Hosea 6:6 is quoted in 12:7. Isaiah 42:1-4 is quoted in 12:18-21. Mark 3:28-30 gives a parallel to the warning about the Spirit. Isaiah 6:9-10 is quoted in 13:14-15 about hardened hearts. Hebrews 4:1-11 teaches Sabbath rest fulfilled in Christ. Colossians 2:16-17 says the Sabbath was a shadow of what was to come. James 1:21 says to receive with meekness the implanted word.

STEP 6

Application

Honestly ask which soil describes you right now. If the thorns of worry or wealth are choking the word, name them.

Remember that Jesus is Lord of the Sabbath. Receive rest as a gift from him, not a rule to earn.

Pray for someone close to you who seems hard or unresponsive to the gospel.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being Lord of the Sabbath.
- Ask him to break up hard ground in your heart.
- Ask him to help you bear fruit.

MATTHEW 11:28

DAY 580 · WEEK 83

Psalm 78:1-16

He commanded our fathers to teach their children

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 16 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 78:1-16. This psalm begins with a teacher's voice and a plan to teach the next generation. Notice that the first verse is quoted in Matthew 13:35 as a reason Jesus spoke in parables.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 78 is a long historical poem, and its first sixteen verses introduce its purpose. Asaph invites the people to listen to a "parable," a teaching that recounts the exodus and the wilderness. Matthew applies the psalm's opening line to Jesus: "I will open my mouth in parables; I will utter what has been hidden since the foundation of the world." Jesus was telling the story of God's people in a new way.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Give ear, O my people, to my teaching; incline your ears to the words of my mouth!" (v. 1).
2. "I will open my mouth in a parable; I will utter dark sayings from of old" (v. 2).
3. "We will not hide them from their children, but tell to the coming generation the glorious deeds of the LORD" (v. 4).
4. "He established a testimony in Jacob and appointed a law in Israel" (v. 5).
5. "That the next generation might know them, the children yet unborn" (v. 6).
6. "So that they should set their hope in God and not forget the works of God" (v. 7).
7. "The Ephraimites, armed with bows, turned back on the day of battle" (v. 9).

8 “He divided the sea and let them pass through it, and made the waters stand like a heap” (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a lesson in how faith is passed on. The speaker says that what we have heard and known, and what our fathers told us, we will not hide from our children. God commanded the fathers to teach their children, so that each generation would know and set hope in God, and not be like their stubborn ancestors. The goal is not information alone, but hope, remembrance, and obedience.

Then the psalm gives a negative example: the Ephraimites, who were armed and yet turned back in battle because they “did not keep God’s covenant.” They forgot his works. The rest of the psalm, which you will read later, is a catalog of Israel’s forgetfulness.

The first verses of the history begin with the exodus. God divided the sea, led them with a cloud by day and fire by night, and split rocks in the wilderness to give them water “abundantly as the deep.” These are wonders that should have inspired lasting trust.

Matthew quotes the psalm’s opening in 13:35 to explain Jesus’ parables. The parable of the Sower came right before. Jesus was now doing what Asaph said: opening his mouth in parables and uttering what had been hidden. And the content was the story of Israel retold. The King was both the teacher and the fulfillment of the story.

For parents, teachers, and the children’s ministry, this psalm is a charter. The purpose of teaching is that the next generation will “set their hope in God.” Tell the stories. Do not hide them.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 13:34-35 quotes verse 2 as fulfilled in Jesus. Deuteronomy 6:6-7 commands teaching the words of God to your children. Exodus 14 and 17 are the events recalled. Proverbs 22:6 says to train up a child in the way he should go. 2 Timothy 1:5 and 3:14-15 describe faith passed through grandmother and mother. Ephesians 6:4 tells fathers to bring up their children in the discipline and instruction of the Lord. Joel 1:3: tell your children of it.

STEP 6

Application

Tell one younger person, a child, a grandchild, a student, or a new believer, a story of what God has done.

Write down three works of God in your own life, so you will not forget them.

If you serve with children, pray for the next generation to set their hope in God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you pass on what you have heard and known.

Confess where you hide his deeds from the next generation.

Thank him for those who taught you.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Matthew 11:28 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

MATTHEW 11:28

REST

Meditation

This invitation comes right after Jesus has condemned cities that would not repent, and right after he has said that the Father has revealed these things to little children. It is addressed to people who know they are tired.

"Come to me." Jesus does not say, "Come to a system," or "Come to my teaching." He says, "Come to me." Rest is found in a person. The invitation is personal, direct, and present. You are not asked to improve first.

"All who labor and are heavy laden." "Labor" means to be worn out from toil, and "heavy laden" means loaded down. It includes the weariness of trying to earn God's favor, the weight of guilt, the burden of grief, and the sheer tiredness of life in a fallen world. The invitation is for "all." No one is excluded.

“And I will give you rest.” The word “give” is crucial. Rest is a gift. It is not wages. Jesus gives soul rest: peace with God, relief from the need to prove ourselves, and a settled place in him. In the next verses, he says that his yoke is easy and his burden light.

This verse is for the weary Christian as well as the seeker. Keep it near. When you are exhausted by life or by trying to be good enough, hear him say it to you again: Come.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you followed Jesus through the Sermon’s conclusion and into his works. You learned from Psalm 1 and Matthew 7 that there are two roads and two foundations. In Psalms 146 and 147, you praised the God who helps the helpless and heals the brokenhearted, and in Matthew 8 and 9 you saw Jesus do exactly that: cleansing a leper, calming a storm, forgiving a paralytic, and raising a girl. You saw him send out the Twelve, answer John’s doubt with works, and invite the weary to come to him. You watched the opposition grow as he declared himself Lord of the Sabbath, and you heard the parable of the sower. Psalm 78 reminded you to pass the stories of God’s deeds to the next generation.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said, “Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden.” What weights are you carrying that you have not yet brought to him?

Jesus forgave the paralytic’s sins before healing his body. Why do you think he started there, and what does that say about our deepest need?

The parable of the sower asks what kind of soil we are. What is one practical way you can prepare your heart to receive and keep the word this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Come to Jesus tired and burdened, and thank him for the rest he gives.

Ask him to heal what is broken.

Ask him to forgive what needs forgiving.

DAY 582 · WEEK 84

Psalm 25

Make me to know your ways, O LORD

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 25. This is a prayer of David, an acrostic, in which he asks God to teach him his ways. Read it as a disciple's prayer, the prayer of someone who wants to learn from the Master.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 25 is a prayer of someone in trouble, surrounded by enemies and burdened by guilt, who turns to God for guidance and forgiveness. It is arranged as an acrostic, with each line starting with the next Hebrew letter. Coming after Jesus' call to "learn from me," it works as a prayer of discipleship: "Make me to know your ways, O LORD; teach me your paths."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "To you, O LORD, I lift up my soul" (v. 1).
2. "Make me to know your ways, O LORD; teach me your paths" (v. 4).
3. "Lead me in your truth and teach me, for you are the God of my salvation" (v. 5).
4. "Remember not the sins of my youth or my transgressions; according to your steadfast love remember me" (v. 7).
5. "Good and upright is the LORD; therefore he instructs sinners in the way" (v. 8).
6. "He leads the humble in what is right, and teaches the humble his way" (v. 9).
7. "The friendship of the LORD is for those who fear him, and he makes known to them his covenant" (v. 14).
8. "Turn to me and be gracious to me, for I am lonely and afflicted" (v. 16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with trust: “To you, I lift up my soul.” The soul is lifted like a hand, in dependence. The psalmist asks not to be put to shame and says that those who wait on the LORD will not be.

Then comes the core request, repeated in several forms: show me your ways, teach me your paths, lead me in your truth. Notice the humility. David the king asks to be taught. He knows that guidance is not automatic, and that he needs God to show him the way. And the ground of his hope is not his own merit. He says, “You are the God of my salvation.”

He asks God to forget the sins of his youth and remember him according to steadfast love. This is the language of grace. David knows his past. He asks to be dealt with by God’s mercy, not by his record. “For your name’s sake, O LORD, pardon my guilt, for it is great.” He does not minimize his sin.

The central insight is verse 8: “Good and upright is the LORD; therefore he instructs sinners in the way.” God teaches sinners. The qualification for a student is not being good already but being humble. “He leads the humble in what is right.”

Verse 14 is a gem: “The friendship of the LORD is for those who fear him.” The word for friendship can be “intimacy” or “confidential counsel.” God shares his secrets with those who revere him. The psalm ends with a plea for rescue and for the redemption of Israel from all his troubles. It is a model for a new believer who wants to learn.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 11:29: “Learn from me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart.” John 15:15: “I have called you friends.” Proverbs 3:5-6 says to trust in the LORD and he will make your paths straight. James 1:5 promises wisdom to those who ask. Psalm 119:105 says his word is a lamp to our feet. Isaiah 30:21 promises a voice saying, “This is the way, walk in it.” Romans 8:1: there is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus.

STEP 6

Application

Make verses 4 and 5 your daily morning prayer for a week.

Bring a specific decision to God and ask him to show you the way. Listen through his word.

Confess one sin from your past that still weighs on you, and trust his steadfast love to remember you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Lift up your soul to God, and tell him what you want to know of his ways.

Ask him to lead you in his truth.

Ask him not to remember the sins of your youth.

MATTHEW 17:5

DAY 583 · WEEK 84

Matthew 13:24-14:36

Kingdom parables; John beheaded; the feeding

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 13:24-14:36. Jesus tells more parables of the kingdom, is rejected in Nazareth, and hears of John's death. Then he feeds five thousand and walks on the sea. Notice Peter in the boat.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The parables of Matthew 13 explain what the kingdom is like now that the King is here. It is not what many expected, an immediate military takeover. It begins small, grows slowly, and exists alongside evil until the end. Then the narrative moves quickly: Jesus is rejected at home, John the Baptist is killed, and the crowds are fed. In each scene, the identity of Jesus is the question.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed that a man took and sowed in his field" (13:31).
2. "The kingdom of heaven is like leaven that a woman took and hid in three measures of flour" (13:33).
3. "The kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field, which a man found and covered up. Then in his joy he goes and sells all that he has and buys that field" (13:44).
4. "Is not this the carpenter's son?" (13:55).
5. "And he did not do many mighty works there, because of their unbelief" (13:58).
6. "They took up his body and buried it, and they went and told Jesus" (14:12).
7. "You give them something to eat" (14:16).

8 “Take heart; it is I. Do not be afraid” (14:27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The parables of the weeds, mustard seed, and leaven teach that the kingdom starts small and spreads quietly, and that good and evil grow together until the harvest. The wheat and the weeds will be separated at the end, and not before. This protects us from two errors: trying to purify the church by force, and thinking that evil has won.

The treasure and the pearl show the worth of the kingdom. A man finds treasure and sells everything for joy. This is not grudging sacrifice but delighted exchange. Following Jesus costs everything, and it is worth it.

Then comes rejection. In his hometown, the people take offense at him: “Is not this the carpenter’s son?” Familiarity breeds contempt. Matthew says he did not do many works there because of unbelief.

When Jesus hears about John’s death, he withdraws to a quiet place, but the crowds follow. He has compassion and heals them. In the evening, the disciples want to send the people away. Jesus says, “You give them something to eat.” With five loaves and two fish, he feeds five thousand men, besides women and children, with twelve baskets left over. It echoes the manna in the wilderness and anticipates the Lord’s Supper.

Then Jesus sends the disciples ahead in the boat and goes up to pray. In the storm he comes walking on the sea, which only God does (Job 9:8). Peter steps out, walks, sees the wind, and begins to sink. “Lord, save me.” Jesus catches him. The disciples worship: “Truly you are the Son of God.”

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 2:34-35 and 44-45 compare the kingdom to a stone that becomes a mountain. Ezekiel 17:22-24 uses the image of a tree where birds nest. Philippians 3:7-8 shows Paul counting all things as loss for Christ. Exodus 16 describes manna in the wilderness. Job 9:8 says God alone treads on the waves of the sea. Psalm 77:19 says God’s way was through the sea. John 6:35: “I am the bread of life.” Hebrews 12:2 says to look to Jesus.

STEP 6

Application

Think of the kingdom like treasure. Is there something you are holding too tightly that you would be glad to exchange for it?

When Jesus says, “You give them something to eat,” ask what small thing you can offer. He can multiply it.

When you start to sink, say Peter’s prayer: “Lord, save me.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell Jesus what you are holding too tightly.
- Ask him to teach you to treasure the kingdom above all.
- Thank him for feeding you.

MATTHEW 17:5

DAY 584 · WEEK 84

Matthew 15:1-16:28

Defilement; Peter's confession; the cross predicted

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 72 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 15:1-16:28. Jesus teaches what really defiles a person, heals a Gentile woman's daughter, feeds four thousand, and asks the disciples who they say he is. Peter's confession is the center of the Gospel. Read 16:13-28 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The conflict with the Pharisees continues. Jesus turns away from the hand-washing traditions to the heart. He then travels into Gentile territory, where he meets a woman of great faith. Then, in the region of Caesarea Philippi, he asks the question that changes everything. From that point on, Matthew says, Jesus begins to show the disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me" (15:8).
2. "What comes out of the mouth proceeds from the heart, and this defiles a person" (15:18).
3. "Woman, great is your faith! Be it done for you as you desire" (15:28).
4. "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees" (16:6).
5. "Who do you say that I am?" (16:15).
6. "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God" (16:16).
7. "And I tell you, you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (16:18).

8 “If anyone would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me” (16:24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus says that defilement is not about unwashed hands or food. It is about the heart. Evil thoughts, murder, adultery, theft, and slander all come from within. This was shocking to people who defined holiness by external rules. The real problem is inside, and only God can change it.

The Canaanite woman is a surprising example of faith. She is a Gentile who cries out to the Son of David. Jesus tests her, and she persists with humility: even dogs eat the crumbs from the table. Jesus commends her: “Great is your faith!” A foreigner understands what the leaders of Israel do not.

Then comes the pivot. Jesus asks who people say he is, and then, “Who do you say that I am?” Peter answers, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.” This is the memory verse of the unit. Christ means the Messiah, the anointed king. Jesus says that this was revealed to Peter by the Father. On this confession, Jesus will build his church, and not even death’s gates will stand against it. Whether “the rock” refers to Peter, to his confession, or both, the church rests on the truth that Jesus is the Christ.

But immediately Jesus begins to explain that the Christ must suffer, be killed, and be raised. Peter rebukes him, and Jesus calls him Satan, a stumbling block, for setting his mind on the things of man. Then the call goes out to all: deny yourself, take up your cross, and follow. “Whoever loses his life for my sake will find it.” The Christ is a crucified Christ, and his followers walk the same road.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 29:13 is quoted in 15:8. Mark 7:14-23 adds that Jesus declared all foods clean. Romans 10:9 says if you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him, you will be saved. Ephesians 2:20 says the household of God is built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus himself being the cornerstone. Galatians 2:20: “I have been crucified with Christ.” Luke 9:23 adds “daily.” Hebrews 12:2.

STEP 6

Application

Answer Jesus’ question in your own words: “Who do you say that I am?” Write it down.

Ask where your heart is far from God while your lips are near. Bring that to him.

Think about what taking up your cross looks like in your current season.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess with Peter who you believe Jesus is.
- Ask him to cleanse your heart from the inside.
- Ask him to teach you what it means to take up your cross.

DAY 585 · WEEK 84

Matthew 17:1-18:35

The Transfiguration; greatness and forgiveness

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 65 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 17:1-18:35. Jesus is transfigured on the mountain, the Father speaks, and then Jesus teaches about greatness, discipline, and forgiveness. Read the Transfiguration in light of the end of chapter 16.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Six days after Peter's confession and Jesus' first prediction of his death, Jesus takes Peter, James, and John up a high mountain. There his appearance changes, and Moses and Elijah, the law and the prophets, appear and speak with him. It is a glimpse of his glory, given to strengthen the disciples for the road to the cross. Then, in chapter 18, Jesus gives teaching on life in the community of the kingdom.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became white as light" (17:2).
2. "And behold, there appeared to them Moses and Elijah, talking with him" (17:3).
3. "This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased; listen to him" (17:5).
4. "Jesus came and touched them, saying, Rise, and have no fear" (17:7).
5. "If you have faith like a grain of mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, Move from here to there, and it will move" (17:20).
6. "Unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven" (18:3).
7. "For where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I among them" (18:20).

8 “I do not say to you seven times, but seventy-seven times” (18:22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

On the mountain, the disciples see the glory that is usually hidden. Jesus shines like the sun, and Moses and Elijah, who both met God on a mountain, speak with him. Luke tells us they spoke of his “departure,” literally his exodus, which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem. The law and the prophets bear witness to Jesus and his coming death.

Peter wants to build three tents, but a cloud covers them, and the Father says almost the same words as at the baptism, with an addition: “Listen to him.” Moses and Elijah fade away. Jesus alone remains. The Law and the Prophets point to him, and now the voice of heaven says that he is the one to hear. When they look up, they see only Jesus.

Coming down, they find the disciples failing to heal a boy, and Jesus tells them that even a small faith moves mountains. He again predicts his death and resurrection.

In chapter 18, Jesus teaches that greatness in the kingdom belongs to the humble like children. He warns about causing little ones to stumble and tells the story of the lost sheep: the Father does not want any to perish. He then gives a process for restoring a sinning brother, and promises his presence where two or three gather in his name.

Peter asks how often to forgive, and Jesus says seventy-seven times. The parable of the unforgiving servant follows, a man forgiven a huge debt who refuses to forgive a small one. The lesson is that those who have been forgiven much must forgive. The mercy we have received is the pattern and power for the mercy we give.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 34:29-35 shows Moses’ face shining. 2 Peter 1:16-18 recalls Peter’s witness of this event. Luke 9:31 mentions the exodus Jesus would accomplish. Deuteronomy 18:15 promises a prophet like Moses to whom Israel should listen. Hebrews 1:1-2 says God has spoken to us by his Son. Colossians 3:13: “As the Lord has forgiven you, so you also must forgive.” Ephesians 4:32. Revelation 1:12-18.

STEP 6

Application

Listen to Jesus this week. Read a Gospel passage slowly, with the sense that the Father is saying, “Listen to him.”

Think of someone who has wronged you. Consider the size of your own forgiven debt, and take a step toward forgiveness.

Seek out a small child or a humble person and learn something about trust.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you listen to his beloved Son.

Thank him for showing his glory to strengthen you.

Ask him to make you someone who forgives.

MATTHEW 17:5

DAY 586 · WEEK 84

Psalm 2

You are my Son, the voice at the Transfiguration

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 2. The Father's voice at the baptism and the Transfiguration drew on this psalm: "You are my Son." Read it as the coronation of the Messiah, and notice the warning and the invitation at the end.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 2 is a royal psalm, probably first used at the crowning of a king in the line of David. It has four parts: the nations plot (vv. 1-3), God laughs from heaven (vv. 4-6), the king declares God's decree (vv. 7-9), and the nations are warned to submit (vv. 10-12). The New Testament sees its full meaning in Jesus. After the Transfiguration, it gives the background to the Father's words.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Why do the nations rage and the peoples plot in vain?" (v. 1).
2. "The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD and against his Anointed" (v. 2).
3. "He who sits in the heavens laughs; the Lord holds them in derision" (v. 4).
4. "As for me, I have set my King on Zion, my holy hill" (v. 6).
5. "You are my Son; today I have begotten you" (v. 7).
6. "Ask of me, and I will make the nations your heritage, and the ends of the earth your possession" (v. 8).
7. "Now therefore, O kings, be wise; be warned, O rulers of the earth" (v. 10).
8. "Blessed are all who take refuge in him" (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a question that every generation has asked: why do the nations rage against God? Rulers conspire against the LORD and his Anointed. They want to throw off his rule: “Let us burst their bonds apart.” The scene is of human defiance.

Heaven’s reaction is surprising. God laughs. It is not a cheerful laugh but the scorn of one whose throne is not threatened. Human rebellion is real, but it does not unseat him. He has already installed his king on Zion.

Then the king speaks. He announces the decree: “You are my Son; today I have begotten you.” In the ancient world, a king was adopted as God’s son on the day of his coronation. For David’s line, this was a title and a covenant. For Jesus, it is more. At his baptism and Transfiguration, the Father spoke these words about him, and Hebrews 1:5 applies it to his resurrection and enthronement. He is the Son in a unique sense.

The Son is promised the nations as his inheritance, and he will rule them with a rod of iron. The psalm does not hide that the Messiah’s reign includes judgment on those who persist in rebellion.

Yet the psalm ends with an invitation. Kings are told to be wise, to serve the LORD with fear, and to “kiss the Son,” a gesture of homage, “lest he be angry.” The final line is a beatitude: “Blessed are all who take refuge in him.” The same Son who will judge is the refuge for all who come to him. The Sermon began with “Blessed”; Psalm 1 began with “Blessed”; Psalm 2 ends with “Blessed.” The choice is to resist him or take refuge in him.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 4:25-28 quotes this psalm about the plot against Jesus. Acts 13:33 applies verse 7 to the resurrection. Hebrews 1:5 and 5:5 quote verse 7. Revelation 2:26-27 and 19:15 allude to the iron rod. Matthew 3:17 and 17:5 echo verse 7. Philippians 2:9-11 says every knee will bow. Romans 1:4 says Jesus was declared to be the Son of God in power by his resurrection from the dead.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether any part of your life is in rebellion against his rule. Surrender it.

When the news feels chaotic and the nations rage, remember that God has set his King on Zion.

Take refuge in the Son. Name a fear or burden, and say aloud, “I take refuge in him.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what rage and plotting you see in the world.
- Thank him for the Son he has enthroned.
- Take refuge in him, and say so.

MATTHEW 17:5

DAY 587 · WEEK 84

Psalm 110

The LORD says to my Lord, Melchizedek and priesthood

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 7 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 110. This is the Old Testament psalm quoted most often in the New Testament. Jesus used it in Matthew 22 to ask the Pharisees a question they could not answer. Read it as the portrait of a king who is also a priest.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 110 is a short psalm of David, only seven verses. It records a conversation within God: the LORD speaks to David's Lord. It describes a king who sits at God's right hand and a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek. Today you read it after Psalm 2 and the Transfiguration, and just before Jesus uses it in the temple.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD says to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool" (v. 1).
2. "The LORD sends forth from Zion your mighty scepter. Rule in the midst of your enemies!" (v. 2).
3. "Your people will offer themselves freely on the day of your power" (v. 3).
4. "The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind: You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek" (v. 4).
5. "The Lord is at your right hand; he will shatter kings on the day of his wrath" (v. 5).
6. "He will execute judgment among the nations" (v. 6).
7. "He will drink from the brook by the way; therefore he will lift up his head" (v. 7).

8 “He will execute judgment among the nations, filling them with corpses; he will shatter chiefs over the wide earth” (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first verse is a puzzle. David, the king, calls someone “my Lord.” The LORD (Yahweh) speaks to this other Lord and invites him to sit at his right hand, the place of highest honor and authority. Who is this? A king calls no one lord except God. Yet this figure is also David’s descendant. In Matthew 22:41-46, Jesus asks the Pharisees exactly this: if the Christ is David’s son, how does David call him Lord? They have no answer. The answer is that the Messiah is both David’s son and David’s Lord, fully human and fully divine.

The psalm describes his reign. He rules from Zion in the midst of his enemies. His people come willingly, “in holy garments,” ready to serve. His enemies become his footstool.

Then verse 4 gives the second puzzle: this king is also a priest forever. In Israel, kings came from Judah and priests from Levi, and the two offices were kept apart. But Melchizedek was both king of Salem and priest of God Most High, who blessed Abraham in Genesis 14. The psalm says the Messiah will be a priest like him, not by genealogy, but by God’s oath. And it is an oath God will not change.

Hebrews builds its whole argument on this verse. Jesus is the priest who offered himself once for all, and is now seated at God’s right hand, where he intercedes for us. He is not standing like the Old Testament priests, whose work was never done. He sits because his work is finished.

The psalm ends with the king refreshed and lifting up his head, a picture of victory. After the Transfiguration and before the passion week, this psalm sets the course: the Son will suffer, be raised, and reign.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 22:41-46 records Jesus’ question about this psalm. Acts 2:33-36 applies it to the ascension. Hebrews 5:5-10, 7:1-28, and 10:11-14 explain Melchizedek and Christ’s priesthood. Genesis 14:18-20 introduces Melchizedek. Romans 8:34: Christ Jesus is at the right hand of God, interceding for us. 1 Corinthians 15:25 says he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. Colossians 3:1.

STEP 6

Application

Remember today that Jesus is seated at the Father’s right hand, in authority, praying for you.

When you feel guilty, remember that your priest is the perfect one who has offered the final sacrifice.

Offer yourself willingly to his service today, as the psalm says his people do.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship Jesus as David's son and David's Lord.
- Thank him that he is a priest forever.
- Ask him to make his enemies his footstool in your life too.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased; listen to him."

MATTHEW 17:5

REST

Meditation

The Father spoke these words from a bright cloud on the mountain. Peter had just suggested building three tents, one for Jesus, one for Moses, and one for Elijah. The Father interrupted him.

"This is my beloved Son." The Father identifies Jesus. He is not a prophet among prophets or a teacher among teachers. He is the Son, and the Father loves him. This is the same voice that spoke at the baptism, now speaking to the disciples directly.

"With whom I am well pleased." The Father delights in the Son. Jesus' obedience, his life, and his mission please the Father. And because we are in Christ, the Father's delight in the Son reaches us.

"Listen to him." This is the addition, and it is a command. Moses and Elijah, the law and the prophets, were great. But now the final word has come in the Son. Hebrews 1:1-2 says that God spoke in many ways long ago by the prophets, but in these last days he has spoken to us by his Son. We are not to listen to Jesus alongside other equal voices. We are to listen to him above all.

What does it mean to listen to him? Not just to hear, but to obey. The disciples fell on their faces in fear, and Jesus came and touched them and said, “Rise, and have no fear.” The one we are told to listen to is gentle. When you read the Gospels this week, imagine the Father saying, “Listen to him.”

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you moved from the quiet parables to the great confession. You heard Jesus teach that the kingdom starts small, like a mustard seed, and is worth more than all you own. You watched him feed five thousand and walk on the sea, and you saw Peter step out and sink. You read that defilement comes from the heart, that a Gentile woman showed great faith, and that Peter confessed, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.” You saw Jesus begin to speak of the cross and call his followers to take up theirs. On the mountain you saw him transfigured, and heard the Father say, “Listen to him.” You then learned about humility, correction, and forgiveness. The psalms framed it: Psalm 25 asked to be taught, Psalm 2 crowned the Son, and Psalm 110 showed a king and priest at God’s right hand.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Peter confessed that Jesus is the Christ, and almost immediately rebuked him for talking about the cross. Where are you tempted to want a Jesus without a cross?

The Father said, “Listen to him.” What does listening to Jesus look like in your daily routine?

Jesus told Peter to forgive seventy-seven times. Whom do you find hardest to forgive, and how does knowing how much you have been forgiven change that?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you listen to his beloved Son and obey.

Thank him for the glory shown and the cross carried.

Rest in him.

DAY 589 · WEEK 85

Matthew 19:1-20:34

Marriage, children, wealth; servant leadership

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 63 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 19:1-20:34. Jesus teaches on marriage, children, and wealth, then tells the parable of the workers in the vineyard. He predicts his death a third time and heals two blind men. Read 20:25-28 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus has left Galilee and is traveling toward Jerusalem. Along the road, he teaches about the shape of kingdom life: faithfulness in marriage, welcome for the vulnerable, freedom from the grip of money, and a radical idea of greatness. The shadow of the cross grows longer, and the disciples still do not understand.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “What therefore God has joined together, let not man separate” (19:6).
2. “Let the little children come to me and do not hinder them, for to such belongs the kingdom of heaven” (19:14).
3. “If you would be perfect, go, sell what you possess and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me” (19:21).
4. “It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God” (19:24).
5. “With man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible” (19:26).
6. “But many who are first will be last, and the last first” (19:30).
7. “Are you envious because I am generous?” (20:15).

8 “Whoever would be great among you must be your servant… even as the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many” (20:26-28).

STEP 4

Interpretation

On marriage, Jesus goes back to Genesis. God made them male and female, and the two become one flesh. Divorce was permitted by Moses because of hardness of hearts, but it was not the original design. Jesus takes marriage seriously, as a covenant joined by God.

When parents bring children for blessing, the disciples try to send them away. Jesus rebukes them. The kingdom belongs to those who receive it with a child’s openness and dependence.

The rich young man is a tragic scene. He has kept the commandments, and he asks what he still lacks. Jesus lovingly tests his heart: sell what you have, give to the poor, and follow me. The man goes away sorrowful, for he had great wealth. His possessions had hold of him. Jesus tells the disciples how hard it is for the rich to enter the kingdom, and when they ask who can be saved, he says, “With man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible.” Salvation is a gift of God’s power, not something we manage. Peter asks what the disciples will get, and Jesus promises great reward, and then warns that the first will be last.

The vineyard parable makes the point. Workers hired at the last hour receive the same pay as those who worked all day. The owner says, “Are you envious because I am generous?” God’s grace is not wages. It is a gift.

Then comes the third prediction of death, and immediately two disciples ask for the best seats. Jesus redefines greatness. In the world, leaders lord it over others. In the kingdom, the great one serves. And he gives himself as the model: the Son of Man came to give his life as a ransom for many. This is the key to the Gospel.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:27 and 2:24 are quoted in 19:4-5. Mark 10:17-31 gives a parallel to the rich young ruler. Philippians 2:5-8 describes the servant-hearted mind of Christ. 1 Timothy 6:17-19 teaches the rich to be generous. Isaiah 53:10-12 describes the suffering servant who bears the sin of many. 1 Peter 1:18-19 says we were ransomed by the precious blood of Christ. Ephesians 2:8-9 says salvation is a gift of God, not a result of works.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what you would find hardest to give up if Jesus asked. Pray about it honestly.

Welcome a child or a person of low status this week in a way that costs you something.

Practice servant leadership in one place where you have influence: at home, at work, or at church.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for giving his life as a ransom for you.
- Ask him to free you from the love of money or status.
- Ask him to teach you to serve.

DAY 590 · WEEK 85

Matthew 21:1-22:14

The Triumphal Entry; Temple cleansing; the wicked tenants

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 60 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 21:1-22:14. Jesus enters Jerusalem on a donkey, cleanses the temple, curses a fig tree, is challenged on his authority, and tells three parables of judgment. Read the entry in light of Zechariah 9:9, which you memorized last unit.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the beginning of the final week of Jesus' earthly life. He enters Jerusalem to the shouts of the crowds, and what follows is a series of confrontations in and around the temple. The religious leaders, who see him as a threat, try to trap him. Jesus responds with parables that expose their rejection of God's messengers and of his Son.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, your king is coming to you, humble, and mounted on a donkey" (21:5).
2. "Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!" (21:9).
3. "My house shall be called a house of prayer, but you make it a den of robbers" (21:13).
4. "By what authority are you doing these things?" (21:23).
5. "But when the tenants saw the son, they said to themselves, This is the heir. Come, let us kill him and have his inheritance" (21:38).
6. "The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone" (21:42).
7. "Therefore I tell you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a people producing its fruits" (21:43).
8. "For many are called, but few are chosen" (22:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus plans his entry. He sends for a donkey and a colt, and Matthew says this fulfilled the prophecy of Zechariah 9:9, the verse you memorized at the end of Unit 14. The king comes humble and on a donkey. The crowds spread cloaks and branches, and shout “Hosanna,” which means “save us,” quoting Psalm 118. They see him as the Son of David.

He goes straight to the temple and drives out the merchants. The temple was meant to be a house of prayer for all nations, and it had become a marketplace. He heals the blind and lame there, and the children shout his praise, while the leaders are indignant.

The cursed fig tree is a parable in action. It had leaves, which promised fruit, but no fruit. It pictures a religion with outward show and no reality. The leaders then challenge his authority, and he answers with a question about John’s baptism that they cannot answer without exposing themselves.

The parable of the two sons shows that tax collectors and prostitutes are entering the kingdom ahead of the religious leaders, because they repented. The parable of the wicked tenants is the clearest. The landowner sends servants, who are beaten and killed, and finally he sends his son. The tenants kill him to seize the inheritance. Jesus quotes Psalm 118: the stone the builders rejected becomes the cornerstone. The leaders perceive that he is speaking about them.

The wedding feast is the last parable. Those invited refuse, and the invitation goes out to everyone. But one man arrives without a wedding garment, and he is cast out. The garment pictures what God provides for entry. “Many are called, but few are chosen.”

STEP 5

Connection

Zechariah 9:9 and Psalm 118:25-26 stand behind the entry. Isaiah 56:7 and Jeremiah 7:11 are quoted at the temple cleansing. Isaiah 5:1-7 is the background to the vineyard parable. Psalm 118:22-23 is the cornerstone passage, also cited in Acts 4:11 and 1 Peter 2:4-8. Isaiah 61:10 speaks of being clothed with garments of salvation. Revelation 19:7-9 describes the marriage supper of the Lamb. Galatians 3:27: as many as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ.

STEP 6

Application

Welcome Jesus as the king who comes humbly. Is there an area where you want a more impressive king?

Ask whether your life has leaves without fruit. What is one practical step toward real fruit?

Think about the wedding garment: are you trusting in your own righteousness or in the clothing Christ provides?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Say “Hosanna” to the Son of David, and tell him why.
- Thank him for coming humbly to Jerusalem.
- Ask him to cleanse the temple of your own heart.

MATTHEW 22:37

DAY 591 · WEEK 85

Matthew 22:15-23:39

Controversies; the greatest commandment; woes to scribes

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 65 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 22:15-23:39. The leaders test Jesus with questions about taxes, the resurrection, and the greatest commandment. Then Jesus turns the tables and pronounces seven woes on the scribes and Pharisees. Read 22:34-40 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The final week in the temple courts is a series of tests. First the Pharisees and Herodians ask about taxes to Caesar, then the Sadducees ask about the resurrection, and then a lawyer asks about the greatest commandment. Jesus answers all of them with wisdom. Then he asks the question that silences his opponents, and he turns to the crowds and disciples to warn them about the hypocrisy of their leaders.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to God the things that are God’s” (22:21).
2. “You are wrong, because you know neither the Scriptures nor the power of God” (22:29).
3. “He is not God of the dead, but of the living” (22:32).
4. “You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind” (22:37).
5. “On these two commandments depend all the Law and the Prophets” (22:40).
6. “The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand” (22:44).
7. “They preach, but do not practice” (23:3).

8 “Whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be exalted” (23:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus answers the question about taxes with wisdom. The coin bears Caesar’s image, so give it to Caesar. But humans bear God’s image, so give yourselves to God. The Sadducees, who deny the resurrection, bring a trick question, and Jesus answers from the Scriptures they accept: God said, “I am the God of Abraham,” and he is the God of the living. The resurrection is rooted in who God is.

The lawyer asks which commandment is the greatest. Jesus gives two: love God with everything, and love your neighbor as yourself. All the law and the prophets hang on these. This is not a replacement for the law but its summary. The whole of the Old Testament is about love of God and neighbor.

Then Jesus asks his question about Psalm 110. If the Christ is David’s son, how does David call him Lord? No one could answer, and from that day, no one dared to ask him any more questions. The Messiah is both human and divine.

Chapter 23 is the most severe passage in the Gospels. Jesus warns the crowds and his disciples about the scribes and Pharisees. They sit on Moses’ seat, so their teaching from Scripture should be heeded, but their practice should not be imitated. They love honor, burden people with rules, and neglect justice, mercy, and faithfulness. “Woe to you, hypocrites!” occurs again and again. They clean the outside of the cup and are full of greed inside. They are whitewashed tombs.

Yet the chapter ends with sorrow, not just anger: “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem… How often would I have gathered your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing!” The judgment comes from a broken heart. Even so, he promises that they will say, “Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.”

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 6:5 and Leviticus 19:18 are the two commandments quoted. Exodus 3:6 is quoted about the God of the living. Psalm 110:1 is the psalm you read on Day 587. Micah 6:8 sums up justice, kindness, and walking humbly. Romans 13:8-10 says love is the fulfilling of the law. 1 John 4:19-21: we love because he first loved us. Luke 13:34-35 has the lament over Jerusalem. Philippians 2:3.

STEP 6

Application

Practice the two great commandments today: choose one concrete act of love for God and one for a neighbor.

Check yourself for hypocrisy: where do you say one thing and do another?

Remember that Jesus grieves over those who refuse him. Pray for someone who resists the gospel.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask Jesus to teach you to love God with all your heart, soul, and mind.
- Ask him to help you love a specific neighbor.
- Ask him to keep you from the hypocrisy he warns about.

DAY 592 · WEEK 85

Matthew 24:1-25:46

The Olivet Discourse; virgins, talents, sheep and goats

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 97 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 24:1-25:46. This is the Olivet Discourse, followed by three parables: the ten virgins, the talents, and the sheep and goats. It is a long reading, so take it in three parts. Notice the repeated call to watch and be ready.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

As Jesus leaves the temple, the disciples point out its buildings. He says that not one stone will be left on another. Later, on the Mount of Olives, they ask when this will happen and what will be the sign of his coming and the close of the age. Jesus' answer includes the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70, and it also looks further to his return. The point of the chapters is not to give a timetable but to call for readiness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "See that no one leads you astray. For many will come in my name, saying, I am the Christ" (24:4-5).
2. "But the one who endures to the end will be saved" (24:13).
3. "And this gospel of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the whole world as a testimony to all nations, and then the end will come" (24:14).
4. "Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away" (24:35).
5. "But concerning that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, nor the Son, but the Father only" (24:36).
6. "Watch therefore, for you do not know on what day your Lord is coming" (24:42).

7. “Well done, good and faithful servant. You have been faithful over a little; I will set you over much” (25:21).

8. “Truly, I say to you, as you did it to one of the least of these my brothers, you did it to me” (25:40).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The discourse mixes near and far. Jesus warns of false messiahs, wars, famines, persecution, and the abomination of desolation, details that were fulfilled in part in the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70. He also speaks of his coming “like lightning” and the gathering of his elect. Scholars differ on how to divide the near and far. What is clear is the pattern: before the end there will be trouble, the gospel will go to all nations, and no one will know the day.

The repeated call is to be ready. The faithful servant is the one found working when the master returns. This is not paranoia but steady faithfulness.

Three parables apply the point. The ten virgins: five were wise and took extra oil, and five were foolish. When the bridegroom came at midnight, the foolish ones were shut out. Readiness cannot be borrowed at the last minute. The talents: a master entrusts money to three servants and goes away. Two invest and double it, and the third buries his out of fear. The master praises faithfulness and condemns the one who did nothing. We are to use what Jesus has entrusted to us.

The sheep and goats is the final scene of judgment. The Son of Man sits on his throne and separates the nations. The sheep are those who fed the hungry, welcomed the stranger, clothed the naked, and visited the sick and imprisoned, and they did so to Jesus without knowing it. The goats failed to do so. The standard is not a list of achievements but the fruit of a changed heart: love shown to the least of these, who are Christ’s brothers.

The discourse ends on a note of both warning and hope. The King will return. Those who are his will be welcomed into the kingdom prepared for them since the foundation of the world.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 7:13-14 and 9:27 stand behind the language of the Son of Man and the abomination. 1 Thessalonians 4:13-5:11 describes the Lord’s return and the call to be awake. 2 Peter 3:8-13 explains the delay. Luke 19:11-27 gives a similar parable of the minas. James 2:14-17 says faith without works is dead. Revelation 20:11-15 depicts the final judgment. Titus 2:13 speaks of waiting for the blessed hope.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what you have been entrusted with, such as time, gifts, resources, and relationships. How can you invest it for the King?

Do one concrete act of mercy for “the least of these” this week.

Live ready, not fearful: do today’s work faithfully, knowing that he is coming.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell Jesus you are watching and ready, or ask him to make you so.
- Ask him for the faithfulness that lasts like oil in a lamp.
- Ask him to show you how to care for the least of these.

MATTHEW 22:37

DAY 593 · WEEK 85

Psalm 118

Blessed is he who comes in the name of the LORD

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Psalm · 29 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 118. This is the last of the Hallel psalms, which Jews sang at Passover. It was likely sung by Jesus and the disciples on the night of the Last Supper. Read it as the psalm of the week you have just entered.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 118 is a thanksgiving liturgy for a king who has been delivered. Verses 22 to 29 were part of what the crowds shouted on Palm Sunday. Jesus quoted it in the parable of the tenants. The Hallel (Psalms 113 to 118) was sung at Passover, which makes it very likely that this was the last hymn Jesus sang before Gethsemane (Matthew 26:30).

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; for his steadfast love endures forever!” (v. 1).
2. “Out of my distress I called on the LORD; the LORD answered me and set me free” (v. 5).
3. “The LORD is on my side; I will not fear. What can man do to me?” (v. 6).
4. “It is better to take refuge in the LORD than to trust in man” (v. 8).
5. “The LORD is my strength and my song; he has become my salvation” (v. 14).
6. “I shall not die, but I shall live, and recount the deeds of the LORD” (v. 17).
7. “The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone” (v. 22).
8. “Blessed is he who comes in the name of the LORD!” (v. 26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins and ends with the same refrain: “Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good.” Between those lines, a man who has been surrounded and nearly killed tells how God rescued him. “All nations surrounded me; in the name of the LORD I cut them off!” He was pushed hard, but the LORD helped him. “The LORD has disciplined me severely, but he has not given me over to death.”

Then he asks to enter the gates of righteousness to give thanks, and the main verses follow. The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. This is the Lord’s doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes. In the original setting, it probably referred to Israel, once despised by the nations, or to the Davidic king. In the New Testament it is applied to Jesus. The builders, the leaders of Israel, rejected him, and God made him the cornerstone of the new temple.

Then the crowd’s words: “Save us, we pray, O LORD!” (Hosanna) and “Blessed is he who comes in the name of the LORD!” On Palm Sunday, the crowd shouted these words to Jesus. They did not yet understand how he would save. The one who comes in the LORD’s name would enter the gates of Jerusalem and go to a cross.

Think about Jesus singing this psalm on the night he was betrayed. “The LORD is on my side; I will not fear.” “I shall not die, but I shall live.” “Bind the festal sacrifice with cords, up to the horns of the altar!” The psalm of the rejected stone was sung by the rejected stone, on his way to be rejected.

And it ends with praise. “You are my God, and I will give thanks to you.” The cross is not the end.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 21:9, 21:42, and 23:39 quote this psalm. Matthew 26:30 says that after singing a hymn they went out to the Mount of Olives. Acts 4:11-12 and 1 Peter 2:6-8 apply the cornerstone to Jesus. Ephesians 2:20-22 describes the household of God built on the cornerstone. Romans 8:31: if God is for us, who can be against us? Hebrews 13:6 quotes verse 6. Hebrews 12:2.

STEP 6

Application

Sing or read Psalm 118:1 and 29 as a frame for your day. Begin and end with thanks.

Remember a time when God brought you out of distress. Tell someone about it.

Pray verse 25, “Save us, we pray,” for your church and for someone who needs rescue.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks to God for his steadfast love.
- Tell him: “The LORD is on my side; I will not fear.”
- Thank him for the stone the builders rejected.

DAY 594 · WEEK 85

Matthew 26:1-46

The plot; the anointing; the Last Supper; Gethsemane

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 46 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 26:1-46. The plot against Jesus, the anointing at Bethany, Judas's betrayal, the Last Supper, Peter's denial predicted, and Gethsemane. Read the words of institution (26:26-29) and the prayer in the garden (26:36-46) slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is Passover week. The religious leaders are plotting to arrest Jesus quietly. At the same time, a woman anoints him with costly perfume, Judas bargains to betray him, and Jesus shares the Passover meal with his disciples. In the garden afterward, he prays in anguish. Matthew shows that everything is happening according to the Scriptures, and that Jesus goes to the cross willingly.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "You know that after two days the Passover is coming, and the Son of Man will be delivered up to be crucified" (26:2).
2. "Why this waste? For this could have been sold for a large sum and given to the poor" (26:8-9).
3. "What will you give me if I deliver him to you?" (26:15).
4. "Take, eat; this is my body" (26:26).
5. "For this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins" (26:28).
6. "Even if I must die with you, I will not deny you" (26:35).
7. "My soul is very sorrowful, even to death; remain here, and watch with me" (26:38).

8 “My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as you will” (26:39).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The chapter moves between devotion and betrayal. A woman pours an expensive jar of ointment on Jesus’ head, and the disciples object to the waste. Jesus defends her: she has prepared him for burial, and her act will be remembered. Immediately afterward, Judas goes to the chief priests and sells Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. The price recalls Zechariah 11:12, the price of a slave.

At the Passover meal, Jesus predicts that one of them will betray him. Each asks, “Is it I, Lord?” Then he takes bread and wine and gives them new meaning. The bread is his body and the cup is his blood of the covenant, poured out for the forgiveness of sins. This is the new covenant promised in Jeremiah 31. The Passover lamb saved Israel from judgment, and Jesus is the Lamb whose blood saves his people. He also promises that he will drink it new with them in the Father’s kingdom.

On the way to the Mount of Olives, he tells the disciples that they will all fall away. Peter protests that he will never deny him. Jesus says that before the rooster crows, he will deny him three times.

In Gethsemane, we see Jesus in anguish. “My soul is very sorrowful, even to death.” He falls on his face and prays, “Let this cup pass from me.” The cup is the cup of God’s wrath against sin. Yet he adds, “Not as I will, but as you will.” The second Adam, in a garden, submits to the Father’s will where the first Adam rebelled. He prays three times, and the disciples sleep. Then he stands: “Rise, let us be going; see, my betrayer is at hand.”

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 12 describes the first Passover. Jeremiah 31:31-34 promises the new covenant. Zechariah 11:12-13 and 13:7 are fulfilled in the thirty pieces and the scattering of the sheep. Isaiah 51:17 describes the cup of the LORD’s wrath. Hebrews 5:7-8 describes Jesus’ prayers with loud cries and tears. 1 Corinthians 11:23-26 gives Paul’s account of the Lord’s Supper. Genesis 3 and Romans 5:19 contrast Adam’s disobedience with Christ’s obedience. Luke 22:44.

STEP 6

Application

If you are able, take the Lord's Supper this week, and think about what "the forgiveness of sins" cost him.

In your own Gethsemane, whatever that may be, pray as Jesus did: "Not as I will, but as you will."

Ask where you have said, "I will never deny you," and been overconfident.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for the bread and cup given for the forgiveness of your sins.
- Ask him to keep you awake and praying when you are tempted to sleep.
- Tell him what cup you are afraid to drink, and pray, "Not my will but yours."

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Sabbath

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Matthew 22:37 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind."

MATTHEW 22:37

REST

Meditation

A lawyer tried to test Jesus with a question: which commandment in the law is the greatest? Jesus quoted the Shema from Deuteronomy 6, the words every Jewish child learned.

"You shall love." The center of the law is love. Love is a command, which means it is a settled direction of the will as well as a feeling. We are commanded because love is owed, and because God knows our hearts will wander if left alone.

"The Lord your God." The object of love is the Lord, and he is our God, in covenant relationship. He is not an idea or a force. He is a person who has made himself known and who loves us first.

"With all your heart." The heart in Hebrew thought is the center of the person, including will and desire. To love with all the heart is to desire God above all.

“And with all your soul.” The soul is the whole life. To love with all the soul is to give our lives and energy to him.

“And with all your mind.” The mind is our thinking and understanding. Christianity is not anti-intellectual. We are meant to think about God and his word, and to love him with our minds.

The whole person is to be engaged. Nothing is left over. This is the great and first commandment, and Jesus says that the second is like it: love your neighbor as yourself. No one has ever fully kept it except Jesus. He loved the Father perfectly and loved us to the cross. Say this verse each morning and ask him to grow your love.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you walked with Jesus toward Jerusalem and into Holy Week. You heard his teaching on marriage, children, and wealth, and saw the rich young man walk away. You learned that greatness in the kingdom means serving, since the Son of Man came to give his life as a ransom for many. You watched the king enter Jerusalem on a donkey, clean out the temple, and tell parables about wicked tenants and a wedding feast. You heard the two great commandments and the seven woes. In the Olivet Discourse, he called you to be ready: like the wise virgins, faithful servants, and those who serve the least of these. Psalm 118 gave you the words the crowds sang and Jesus likely sang that final night. At the Last Supper, he gave you his body and blood of the new covenant, and in Gethsemane he prayed, “Not as I will, but as you will.”

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus summed up the law in two commandments: love God and love neighbor. Which of the two do you find harder right now, and why?

In the parable of the sheep and goats, the righteous served Christ without realizing it. Who are “the least of these” near you, and what is one concrete way to serve them?

At the Last Supper, Jesus said his blood is poured out “for the forgiveness of sins.” What does it mean to you personally that he drank the cup of judgment for you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask Jesus to help you love God with all your heart and your neighbor as yourself.

Thank him for the cup he drank for you.

Rest in him.

DAY 596 · WEEK 86

Matthew 26:47-27:31

Arrest; trials before the Sanhedrin and Pilate

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 81 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 26:47-27:31. Jesus is arrested, tried by the Sanhedrin, denied by Peter, handed over to Pilate, and mocked by soldiers. Watch how Jesus responds to each trial, and contrast his behavior with that of Peter and Judas.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is the night and early morning of Good Friday. Jesus is arrested in the garden by a crowd sent by the chief priests, led by Judas. He is taken to the high priest Caiaphas, where he is tried at night. At dawn he is delivered to the Roman governor Pilate, because only Rome could carry out a death sentence. The man who had healed and taught is now abandoned, mocked, and condemned.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Friend, do what you came to do” (26:50).
2. “Put your sword back into its place. For all who take the sword will perish by the sword” (26:52).
3. “Do you think that I cannot appeal to my Father, and he will at once send me more than twelve legions of angels?” (26:53).
4. “I adjure you by the living God, tell us whether you are the Christ, the Son of God” (26:63).
5. “You have said so. But I tell you, from now on you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of Power” (26:64).
6. “And he went out and wept bitterly” (26:75).

7. “I have sinned by betraying innocent blood” (27:4).
8. “His blood be on us and on our children” (27:25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Everything in the arrest shows that Jesus is in control. He tells Peter to put away his sword. He could call twelve legions of angels, but then the Scriptures could not be fulfilled. He goes willingly. All the disciples flee.

Before the Sanhedrin, the trial is a sham. False witnesses cannot agree. Finally the high priest asks under oath if he is the Christ. Jesus answers by combining Psalm 110 and Daniel 7: he will be seen seated at the right hand of Power and coming on the clouds of heaven. The high priest tears his robes and declares blasphemy. The council spits on him and strikes him. Jesus is condemned for telling the truth about who he is.

Meanwhile, Peter denies him three times as Jesus predicted, and when the rooster crows, he goes out and weeps bitterly. Judas, too, is filled with remorse and returns the silver, saying, “I have sinned.” But he goes and hangs himself. The difference between Peter and Judas is not in their sin but where they turned. Peter would later be restored. Judas despaired. True repentance turns to Christ and is met by his mercy.

Before Pilate, Jesus is silent when accused. Pilate knows that the leaders delivered him up out of envy. His wife sends a message: “Have nothing to do with that righteous man.” Pilate offers to release Barabbas or Jesus. The crowd chooses Barabbas, a criminal. The innocent one takes the guilty man’s place. Pilate washes his hands and has Jesus flogged. The soldiers mock him with a scarlet robe, a crown of thorns, and a reed scepter, and kneel to him in mockery. They did not know they were saying the truth: here is the King.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 53:7 says “like a lamb that is led to the slaughter… he opened not his mouth.” Psalm 22:7-8 describes the mocking. Daniel 7:13-14 and Psalm 110:1 stand behind Jesus’ answer. 1 Peter 2:21-24 says Christ suffered for you, leaving you an example. 2 Corinthians 5:21: for our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin. Luke 22:61-62 adds that the Lord turned and looked at Peter. Galatians 3:13. Hebrews 12:2-3.

STEP 6

Application

Place yourself in Peter’s sandals. Where have you denied Jesus by silence or by fear? Bring it to him, and know that he restores.

Consider Barabbas: Jesus took the place of a guilty man. You are Barabbas. Let that humble and move you.

Notice the silence of Jesus before his accusers, and ask the Spirit to give you patience when you are misjudged.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for going willingly to be arrested for you.

Confess where you have denied him.

Ask him to restore you.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 86

"Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you. And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age."

MATTHEW 28:19-20

DAY 597 · WEEK 86

Matthew 27:32-66

The crucifixion; the burial, the King dies for his people

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 35 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 27:32-66. Jesus is crucified, mocked, abandoned, and dies. The temple curtain is torn, the earth shakes, and a centurion confesses. Read this slowly and quietly. Then notice the burial and the guard at the tomb.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is led to Golgotha, "the place of a skull," and crucified between two robbers. Matthew tells the story with restraint, but with signs that show its cosmic meaning. Darkness covers the land, the temple veil splits, the earth quakes, and the dead are raised. The King dies for his people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And over his head they put the charge against him, which read, This is Jesus, the King of the Jews" (27:37).
2. "He saved others; he cannot save himself. He is the King of Israel; let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe in him" (27:42).
3. "Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour" (27:45).
4. "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani? That is, My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" (27:46).
5. "And Jesus cried out again with a loud voice and yielded up his spirit" (27:50).
6. "And behold, the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom" (27:51).
7. "Truly this was the Son of God!" (27:54).

8 “Make it as secure as you can” (27:65).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The mocking is cruel and ironic. The leaders say, “He saved others; he cannot save himself.” They are right in a way they do not realize. He did not save himself precisely because he was saving others. The sign over his head, “King of the Jews,” is written as a mockery and is true.

At noon, darkness falls over the land for three hours. At the ninth hour, Jesus cries, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” This is the opening of Psalm 22. It is the cry of one bearing the weight of sin. The Son who has never been separated from the Father experiences the abandonment that we deserve. This is the heart of the atonement. He bore the wrath for his people.

Then he yields up his spirit. Matthew records what follows. The temple curtain, which separated the Holy of Holies from the people, is torn from top to bottom, by God. The way into God’s presence is open. The earth shakes, the rocks split, and tombs open: the power of death is broken. A Roman centurion who watched him die says, “Truly this was the Son of God!” The first confession after the cross is from a Gentile.

Women who followed Jesus watch from a distance. Joseph of Arimathea, a rich disciple, asks Pilate for the body, wraps it in clean linen, and lays it in his own new tomb. The chief priests, who remembered that Jesus said he would rise on the third day, ask Pilate for a guard and seal the stone. They do all they can to keep him in the grave. But human security cannot stop God’s plan.

The chapter ends in silence. It is Saturday. The King is dead and buried. The disciples are scattered. And the reader holds their breath.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 22 describes the crucifixion in detail, from the cry of abandonment to the mocking and the casting of lots. Isaiah 53:4-6 and 10-12 describe the servant bearing our sins. Hebrews 10:19-22 says that through the curtain, that is, his flesh, we have confidence to enter the holy places. Galatians 3:13 says Christ became a curse for us. Romans 5:8. 1 Peter 3:18. 2 Corinthians 5:21. Mark 15:39 gives the centurion’s confession.

STEP 6

Application

Spend a few minutes in silence with this chapter. Let the weight of it settle.

Say aloud, “He did this for me,” and thank him specifically.

Because the curtain is torn, come boldly into God’s presence in prayer today.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being forsaken so that you never would be.
- Tell him what it means that he bore your sin and the wrath you deserved.
- Sit in silence for a moment, and let it settle.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 86

“Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you. And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age.”

MATTHEW 28:19-20

DAY 598 · WEEK 86

Matthew 28:1-20

The resurrection; the Great Commission, all authority, all nations

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Reading · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 28:1-20. The women find the tomb empty, the risen Jesus meets them, the guards are bribed, and Jesus commissions his disciples on a mountain. This is the climax of the Gospel. Read the Great Commission aloud.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Early on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary go to the tomb. Matthew's Gospel, which began with "God with us," ends with the risen Lord promising to be with his people always. The same Jesus who was rejected and killed now claims all authority in heaven and on earth.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And behold, there was a great earthquake, for an angel of the Lord, descending from heaven… rolled back the stone and sat on it" (28:2).
2. "He is not here, for he has risen, as he said. Come, see the place where he lay" (28:6).
3. "So they departed quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples" (28:8).
4. "Do not be afraid; go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee, and there they will see me" (28:10).
5. "And when they saw him they worshiped him, but some doubted" (28:17).
6. "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me" (28:18).
7. "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit" (28:19).

8 “And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age” (28:20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The resurrection is announced by the angel: “He has risen, as he said.” The tomb is empty, and the grave clothes are no longer needed. The women are told to go and tell the disciples. On the way, Jesus meets them, and they take hold of his feet and worship him. Notice that he calls the disciples “my brothers,” even after they abandoned him. He is gracious to those who failed.

The guards report to the chief priests, who bribe them to say the disciples stole the body. Matthew notes that this story was still spread among the Jews “to this day.” The empty tomb was too well known to deny. The only alternative was to invent a story. The resurrection is a fact that must be explained.

On the mountain in Galilee, the eleven see him and worship, though some doubt. Jesus does not rebuke them. He draws near and speaks. His words are the climax of the Gospel. First, authority: “All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me.” This is the fulfillment of Daniel 7:13-14, where the Son of Man receives dominion over all peoples. Then a command: make disciples of all nations. The mission that began with Abraham, “in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed,” now goes out to the world. The method is baptizing and teaching them to obey all that Jesus commanded. Finally, a promise: “I am with you always, to the end of the age.”

The book has come full circle. It began with Immanuel, “God with us,” and ends with “I am with you.” The King has conquered death, and his people are sent out in his authority and presence.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 7:13-14 is the background to “all authority.” Genesis 12:3 promised blessing for all families. Romans 1:4 says Jesus was declared to be the Son of God in power by his resurrection. 1 Corinthians 15:3-8 lists the appearances. Acts 1:8 repeats the commission. Isaiah 7:14 and Matthew 1:23 give Immanuel. Ephesians 1:20-22 describes Christ raised and seated above all rule. Revelation 7:9. John 20:21.

STEP 6

Application

Celebrate. Say aloud, “He is risen,” and let it be joy.

Think of one person you can invite or encourage to follow Jesus. Take a small step this week.

When you doubt, as some did, remember that Jesus came to them and spoke. Ask him to draw near.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise Jesus that he is risen as he said.

Thank him for all authority and the promise to be with you always.

Ask him to send you to someone to share his good news.

MATTHEW 28:19-20

DAY 599 · WEEK 86

Deuteronomy 6:4; Matthew 28:18-20; 2 Corinthians 13:14

The Trinity

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Deuteronomy 6:4, Matthew 28:18-20, and 2 Corinthians 13:14. Today is a doctrinal pause on the Trinity. Notice that Deuteronomy says God is one, and the two New Testament verses name the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit together.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Bible never uses the word "Trinity," but it teaches the truth the word describes. In Deuteronomy, Israel confesses, "The LORD our God, the LORD is one." In the Great Commission, Jesus tells us to baptize in the singular "name" of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Paul ends 2 Corinthians with a blessing that names all three. The church has summarized this teaching in its creeds.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one" (Deuteronomy 6:4).
2. "Baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit" (Matthew 28:19).
3. "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me" (Matthew 28:18).
4. "Teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you" (Matthew 28:20).
5. "And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age" (Matthew 28:20).
6. "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Corinthians 13:14).
7. "And the love of God" (2 Corinthians 13:14).

8 “And the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all” (2 Corinthians 13:14).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The Trinity is the biblical teaching that there is one God who eternally exists as three distinct persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, who are each fully God, and who share one divine essence. The persons are not three gods, and they are not three modes or masks of one person. The Father is not the Son, the Son is not the Spirit, and the Spirit is not the Father, yet there is one God. The persons are equal in glory and eternal, and they relate to one another in love: the Father eternally begets the Son, and the Spirit eternally proceeds from the Father and the Son. In salvation, the Father plans and sends, the Son accomplishes redemption, and the Spirit applies it.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Start with Deuteronomy 6:4, the Shema. Israel’s creed was that the LORD is one. In a world of many gods, this was the foundation of Israel’s faith. The New Testament does not abandon it. Instead it reveals that this one God has a fuller inner life than Israel knew.

In Matthew 28:19, Jesus commands baptism “in the name” (singular) of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. A single name for three persons, side by side, as equals. If the Son and the Spirit were mere creatures, to place them alongside the Father in this way would be blasphemy. Jesus also claims “all authority in heaven and on earth,” and promises to be present everywhere with his people always, which only God can do.

In 2 Corinthians 13:14, Paul names the three together in a blessing. He does not explain it, but assumes it. The blessing is the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit. Each person gives something, and all are equally God. Similar patterns appear throughout the New Testament, at Jesus’ baptism (the Father speaks, the Son is baptized, the Spirit descends), and in Ephesians 1, where the Father chooses, the Son redeems, and the Spirit seals.

Why does this matter? First, it means that God is love in himself. Before creation, the Father, Son, and Spirit shared perfect love. God did not need us to be loving. Second, it means that salvation is the work of the whole Trinity. Third, it means that when we worship Jesus, we are not violating monotheism, and when we pray by the Spirit we are speaking with God. The doctrine is a mystery, something we receive and adore, not something we fully comprehend. But it is the shape of the gospel.

STEP 5

Connection

John 1:1-3 and 14 reveal the Word who was with God and was God. John 14:16-17 mentions the Father, Son, and the Spirit as another Helper. Genesis 1:26 says “Let us make man.” Matthew 3:16-17 shows all three at Jesus’ baptism. Ephesians 1:3-14 sets out the work of each person. Romans 8:9-11 speaks of the Spirit of God and the Spirit of Christ. 1 Peter 1:2. Isaiah 6:8. Hebrews 9:14.

STEP 6

Application

Pray to each person of the Trinity this week: thank the Father for his love, the Son for his grace, and the Spirit for his fellowship.

Use the blessing in 2 Corinthians 13:14 to end a prayer or bless a loved one.

Resist the urge to reduce the Trinity to a neat illustration. Worship the mystery.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, in your own words.
- Thank the Father for his love, the Son for his grace, and the Spirit for his fellowship.
- Ask them to help you know each more.

Matthew 28:18-20; Romans 6:1-4; Acts 2:38-41; Colossians 2:11-12

The Sacraments, Baptism

Year 2 · Unit 15 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 28:18-20, Romans 6:1-4, Acts 2:38-41, and Colossians 2:11-12. Today is a doctrinal pause on baptism. Notice what each passage says baptism pictures and what it commits us to.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus commanded baptism as part of making disciples. The early church practiced it from the first day: in Acts 2, three thousand were baptized after Peter's sermon. In his letters, Paul explains what baptism means. Christians have disagreed about some aspects of baptism, particularly about who should be baptized and the mode. This lesson focuses on what the Scriptures say about its meaning, and notes where traditions differ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit" (Matthew 28:19).
2. "Do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?" (Romans 6:3).
3. "We were buried therefore with him by baptism into death" (Romans 6:4).
4. "So that… we too might walk in newness of life" (Romans 6:4).
5. "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins" (Acts 2:38).
6. "And you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit" (Acts 2:38).

7. “So those who received his word were baptized, and there were added that day about three thousand souls” (Acts 2:41).

8. “Having been buried with him in baptism, in which you were also raised with him through faith in the powerful working of God” (Colossians 2:12).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Baptism is the sign, commanded by Christ, of entrance into the new covenant community. It pictures union with Christ in his death and resurrection, the washing away of sin, and the gift of the Spirit, and it publicly marks a person as belonging to the triune God and his people. Baptism does not save by itself; salvation comes by grace through faith. But baptism is not optional, for it is Christ’s command and the normal response of faith. Christians have differed on whether the proper subjects are believers only, or also the infant children of believers, and on the mode of baptism. Reformed churches have held both views. All agree that baptism is a gift to be received with faith and that it points to Christ.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Baptism begins with a command. After the resurrection, Jesus told the disciples to make disciples by baptizing and teaching. It is not an extra for the especially devoted but a normal part of becoming a disciple. It is done in the name of the triune God, which means the person is brought under the ownership and protection of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

Romans 6 gives the central meaning. Paul is answering the question, “Should we continue in sin that grace may abound?” He says no, because in baptism we were united with Christ in his death and burial, and raised to walk in newness of life. Baptism is a picture of the gospel: death to the old life and resurrection to the new. Colossians 2:11-12 says the same: buried with him in baptism and raised with him through faith. The faith is key. Baptism is a sign of what God does for those who believe.

On the day of Pentecost, Peter says to repent and be baptized for the forgiveness of sins, and promises the gift of the Spirit. Baptism goes with repentance and faith. Notice that the promise is “for you and for your children,” which is where the different traditions find support for their practice. Those who baptize only professing believers see baptism as the outward sign of an inward faith that has already begun. Those who baptize infants of believers see it as a covenant sign like circumcision, promising what God will do. Both agree that the sign is empty without faith and that the reality is Christ.

For a new believer, baptism is a joyful step. If you have not been baptized, talk with your pastor. If you have, remember it: you were marked as Christ’s.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 17:9-14 describes circumcision as the sign of the old covenant. Galatians 3:26-29 says all who are baptized into Christ have put on Christ. 1 Peter 3:21 says baptism now saves you as an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus. Acts 8:36-39 and 16:31-34 record baptisms. Titus 3:5. Ephesians 4:4-6 speaks of one Lord, one faith, one baptism. Mark 16:16.

STEP 6

Application

If you have not been baptized, speak to a pastor or leader about it this week.

If you have been baptized, remember the day, and thank God for the promise it signified.

When you struggle with sin, remember Romans 6: you are united with Christ, dead to sin and alive to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for baptism and what it shows about your washing and new life.
- Tell him where you need to remember your baptism.
- Pray for those who have not been baptized.

REST

Meditation

Peter spoke these words in the region of Caesarea Philippi, a place full of temples to pagan gods. Jesus had asked, "Who do you say that I am?" and Peter answered for the group.

"You are the Christ." The word means the Anointed One, the Messiah, the king who was promised to David and for whom Israel had waited. Peter is saying that all the Old Testament hopes are fulfilled in Jesus. Everything you read in the Old Testament, the promised seed, the prophet like Moses, the son of David, the servant, and the king, was pointing to him.

"The Son of the living God." This phrase goes further. "Son of God" was a title for the king, but Peter's words, heard with the later Gospel, mean more. And he says "the living God," in contrast to the dead idols all around. Jesus is the Son of the one real, living God.

Jesus answered that this was not revealed by flesh and blood but by the Father in heaven. Faith is a gift. If you confess Jesus as the Christ, the Son of the living God, it is because the Father has opened your eyes.

And on this confession, Jesus said he would build his church. The church is a community of people who say what Peter said. Carry this sentence with you as the center of the whole unit. Every chapter of Matthew is meant to bring you to say it from the heart.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

Unit 15 opened the New Testament with Matthew's Gospel, and it showed that Jesus is the one for whom the whole Old Testament was waiting. His genealogy gathered Abraham and David. He was the new Israel, called out of Egypt, baptized in the Jordan, and tested in the wilderness, where he answered every temptation with Scripture. He was the new Moses, who gave the Sermon on the Mount from a mountain, showing that the law was always aimed at the heart and that he came to fulfill it, not abolish it. He taught us to pray to our Father, to seek first the kingdom, and to build our lives on the rock. His miracles showed the kingdom's power over disease, nature, demons, sin, and death, and his parables showed that it begins small and grows. Peter confessed that he is the Christ, the Son of the living God, and Jesus began to teach that the Christ must suffer. On the mountain the Father said, "Listen to him." In Jerusalem he rode in as the humble king, taught the two great commandments, and warned of judgment. At the Last Supper he gave his body and blood for the new covenant. At the cross, he bore the Father's wrath, the veil was torn, and the way into God's presence was opened. On the third day he rose and sent his disciples to all nations with all authority and with his presence. Two doctrinal days taught the Trinity and baptism. The King has come, and the kingdom has been inaugurated. The rest of the New Testament shows how it spreads.

REFLECT

Review Questions

How does Matthew's genealogy establish Jesus as the fulfillment of the OT covenants?

Think of Matthew 1:1 and the three sets of fourteen. What do Abraham and David represent, and why do the four women matter?

What does the Sermon on the Mount reveal about the relationship between law and gospel?

Think of the Beatitudes for the poor in spirit, the demand to go beyond the letter of the law in 5:21-48, and the impossible standard in 5:48. How does it drive us to Christ?

What does it mean that Jesus came not to abolish the law but to fulfill it?

Look at Matthew 5:17-20 and 22:37-40. How does Jesus keep the law, complete it, and bring it to its goal?

How does Matthew present the death and resurrection of Jesus as the climax of Israel's story?

Consider the Last Supper and the new covenant, the cry from Psalm 22, the torn veil, the centurion, and the Great Commission.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for Jesus, the Christ, the Son of the living God.

Tell him what you have seen in the King through Matthew.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Matthew 28:19-20 slowly, several times, and then say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you. And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age."

MATTHEW 28:19-20

REST

Meditation

These are the last words of Matthew's Gospel, spoken by the risen Lord. They sum up what the church exists to do and the promise that makes it possible.

"Go therefore." The "therefore" connects to the claim in the previous verse: all authority belongs to Jesus. Because he is Lord of all, we go. The mission rests on his authority and not on our ability.

"And make disciples of all nations." The main command is to make disciples, followers and learners of Jesus. "Go," "baptize," and "teach" all serve this. And it is for all nations, every people and language. The blessing promised to Abraham now goes out to the world.

“Baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit.” New disciples are brought into the community of the triune God and his people.

“Teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you.” Discipleship is about obedience and not just information. It takes time, and it includes the whole of Jesus’ teaching, including the Sermon on the Mount.

“And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age.” The promise is the secret to all of it. We are not sent alone. The one with all authority is with us in every place and every year until he comes. “Behold” tells us to look at this and take courage.

You may not be going to another country, but you are called to make disciples where you are: at home, work, school, and church. Say this verse as a commission and as a comfort.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you walked through the last days of Jesus’ ministry in Matthew. You saw him teach about marriage, wealth, and servant leadership, and give his life as a ransom for many. You watched the king enter Jerusalem on a donkey, answer his enemies with parables and wisdom, and give the two great commandments. In the Olivet Discourse, he called you to be ready and faithful until he returns. In Psalm 118, you read the song of the rejected stone. You sat at the Last Supper, heard the words of the new covenant, and watched him pray in Gethsemane. You followed him through the trials, the mockery, and the cross, and you stood at the empty tomb to hear the Great Commission. Two doctrinal days gave you the Trinity and baptism. Together, they show that the King has come, died, and risen, and that he sends his people to the nations with his presence.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

The Great Commission says to make disciples of all nations. Who is one person in your life that you could invest in as a disciple, or from whom you could learn as a disciple?

Jesus promises, “I am with you always.” In what situation do you most need to believe that promise right now?

Matthew began with Immanuel, “God with us,” and ended with “I am with you always.” How does that frame change the way you read the whole Gospel?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that all authority is his and he is with you always.

Ask him to send you to make disciples where you are.

Tell him who you will begin with.

DAY 603 · WEEK 87

Luke 1:1-80

The promise; the Magnificat; the Benedictus

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 80 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 1:1-80. Luke begins with a careful preface, then tells of two miraculous births: John to an old priest and his wife, and Jesus to a young virgin. Read Mary's song (1:46-55) and Zechariah's song (1:68-79) aloud, slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Luke was a physician and a traveling companion of Paul. He was not an eyewitness, and he says so. He investigated everything carefully and wrote an orderly account for a man named Theophilus, so that he might know the certainty of what he had been taught. Luke also wrote the book of Acts, and together the two books make up about a quarter of the New Testament. Luke is especially interested in the Holy Spirit, in prayer, in women, in the poor and outcast, and in good news that reaches the Gentiles. The Gospel opens in the temple in Jerusalem, in the dusty hill country, and in a small town of Galilee, and it begins with songs.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "It seemed good to me also, having followed all things closely for some time past, to write an orderly account for you, most excellent Theophilus" (1:3).
2. "And he will be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother's womb" (1:15).
3. "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore the child to be born will be called holy, the Son of God" (1:35).
4. "For nothing will be impossible with God" (1:37).
5. "Behold, I am the servant of the Lord; let it be to me according to your word" (1:38).
6. "My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior" (1:46-47).

7. “He has brought down the mighty from their thrones and exalted those of humble estate; he has filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he has sent away empty” (1:52-53).

8. “Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he has visited and redeemed his people” (1:68).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Luke tells us at the outset what kind of book this is. It is history, researched and arranged with care. The faith is not built on rumor. It is built on events that happened, which witnesses saw and Luke investigated.

The first scene is in the temple. An old priest named Zechariah is told that his barren wife Elizabeth will bear a son who will go before the Lord “in the spirit and power of Elijah,” to turn hearts and prepare a people. Zechariah doubts and is made silent. The Gospel begins where the Old Testament ended, with Malachi’s promise of Elijah, and with silence broken.

Then the angel comes to Mary, a young woman in Nazareth, and Luke gives us one of the great statements of the incarnation. The Holy Spirit will come upon her, and the child will be the Son of God. Mary’s response is a model of faith: “Let it be to me according to your word.” She does not understand how, but she trusts.

Mary visits Elizabeth, and the unborn John leaps. Then Mary sings the Magnificat, which is built from the songs of the Old Testament, especially Hannah’s. It is a song about reversal. God lifts up the lowly, feeds the hungry, and sends the rich away empty. It is also a song about promise kept: God has helped his servant Israel, “as he spoke to our fathers, to Abraham and to his offspring forever.” The salvation Mary sings about is both spiritual and concrete, and it will turn the world’s order upside down.

The chapter ends with Zechariah’s song, the Benedictus. His tongue is loosed, and he is filled with the Spirit and praises God for visiting and redeeming his people, for raising up a horn of salvation in the house of David, and for remembering his holy covenant. He closes with the image of the sunrise from on high, giving light to those in darkness and guiding feet into the way of peace. A new day is dawning.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 18:14 asked, “Is anything too hard for the LORD?” and Luke 1:37 answers it. 1 Samuel 2:1-10 is Hannah’s song, which stands behind Mary’s. Malachi 4:5-6 promised Elijah, and Luke 1:17 shows John fulfilling it. 2 Samuel 7:12-16 is the promise to David that Gabriel echoes in 1:32-33. Isaiah 7:14 and 9:6-7 are in the background. John 1:14 says the Word became flesh. Galatians 4:4 says God sent forth his Son, born of woman.

STEP 6

Application

Read the Magnificat aloud. Which line speaks to you most, and why?

Think of a promise from God that seems impossible. Pray Mary's answer: "Let it be to me according to your word."

Notice how many people in this chapter are ordinary and humble. Thank God that he works through those the world overlooks.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Say to God, "Let it be to me according to your word," and tell him what that means for you.
- Thank him for keeping his promises to Abraham and David.
- Praise him, as Mary did, in your own words.

LUKE 2:11

DAY 604 · WEEK 87

Luke 2:1-52

The birth; the shepherds; Simeon and Anna; the boy Jesus

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 52 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 2:1-52. Luke gives the birth of Jesus with historical care and quiet wonder. Notice who hears the news first, and notice the last verse of the chapter.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Luke sets the birth of Jesus in the larger world: Caesar Augustus, a census, Quirinius governing Syria. The emperor is moving millions of people with a decree, yet the real King is being born in a stable to a peasant couple. Luke wants us to see the contrast between earthly power and heavenly power. Bethlehem is the city of David, so the birth fulfills the promise that the Messiah would come from David's line.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And she gave birth to her firstborn son and wrapped him in swaddling cloths and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the inn" (2:7).
2. "And in the same region there were shepherds out in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night" (2:8).
3. "Fear not, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy that will be for all the people" (2:10).
4. "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord" (2:11).
5. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among those with whom he is pleased!" (2:14).
6. "But Mary treasured up all these things, pondering them in her heart" (2:19).

7. “For my eyes have seen your salvation… a light for revelation to the Gentiles, and for glory to your people Israel” (2:30-32).

8. “And Jesus increased in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man” (2:52).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The birth is told simply. There is no room for them in the inn, and the Savior is laid in a feeding trough. The Son of God enters the world in poverty and obscurity.

The first announcement is not to the powerful but to shepherds, who were low on the social ladder and often distrusted. An angel appears, and the glory of the Lord shines around them. The news is “good news of great joy that will be for all the people,” and the titles in verse 11 are rich. The child is a Savior, the Christ, and the Lord. A baby in a manger is all three. The shepherds go in haste, find the child as they were told, and return glorifying and praising God. They are the first evangelists.

When the child is brought to the temple, two old people recognize him. Simeon had been promised by the Spirit that he would not die before seeing the Lord’s Christ. He takes the child in his arms and sings: his eyes have seen salvation, prepared in the presence of all peoples, “a light for revelation to the Gentiles, and for glory to your people Israel.” This is the universal note of Luke. Simeon also tells Mary that a sword will pierce her own soul, because the child will cause the rising and falling of many and be opposed. Joy and sorrow are linked from the start. Anna, an elderly prophetess who never left the temple, gives thanks and tells everyone who was waiting for the redemption of Jerusalem.

The chapter ends with the twelve-year-old Jesus in the temple, listening to teachers and asking questions. When his parents find him, he says, “Did you not know that I must be in my Father’s house?” Already he knows who his Father is. And yet he goes home and is subject to them. The Son of God grows up, with all the ordinary stages of human life.

STEP 5

Connection

Micah 5:2 names Bethlehem as the place of the ruler’s birth. Isaiah 9:6 says to us a child is born. Isaiah 49:6 speaks of a light for the nations. Luke 2:34-35 points ahead to the cross. Philippians 2:6-8 describes the Son who emptied himself and took the form of a servant. 2 Corinthians 8:9 says that though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor. Hebrews 2:14 says he shared in our flesh and blood.

STEP 6

Application

Take time to listen to the angels' words as if they were spoken to you: "Fear not… unto you is born this day a Savior."

Ponder, like Mary, one thing from this week's reading. Hold it in your heart and pray over it.

Be like the shepherds and tell someone the good news of great joy this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for sending his Son in humility.

Tell him what it is like to hear that the news of his birth is for all people.

Ask him to teach you to treasure it, as Mary did.

LUKE 2:11

DAY 605 · WEEK 87

Luke 3:1-4:13

John; baptism; genealogy; the temptation

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 51 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 3:1-4:13. John preaches, Jesus is baptized and prays, a genealogy runs back to Adam, and the devil tests him in the wilderness. Compare this with Matthew's accounts, and notice what Luke adds.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Luke again places the story in history, naming Tiberius, Pilate, Herod, and the high priests. Into that world, the word of God comes to John in the wilderness. Luke's account of John is fuller in some ways than Matthew's, with specific advice for the crowds, tax collectors, and soldiers. His genealogy of Jesus runs backward to Adam rather than forward from Abraham, which fits Luke's concern for all people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The word of God came to John the son of Zechariah in the wilderness" (3:2).
2. "And all flesh shall see the salvation of God" (3:6).
3. "Bear fruits in keeping with repentance" (3:8).
4. "Whoever has two tunics is to share with him who has none, and whoever has food is to do likewise" (3:11).
5. "Now when all the people were baptized, and when Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, the heavens were opened" (3:21).
6. "The son of Adam, the son of God" (3:38).
7. "And Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness" (4:1).

8 “And when the devil had ended every temptation, he departed from him until an opportune time” (4:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Luke 3:6 quotes Isaiah 40 and goes a step further than the other Gospels, ending with “all flesh shall see the salvation of God.” This is Luke’s theme. John’s message is practical. When the crowds ask what to do, he tells them to share. Tax collectors are told to collect no more than they are authorized. Soldiers are to stop extorting. Repentance has a concrete shape: generosity and honesty.

At the baptism, Luke alone notes that Jesus was praying. This is the first of many times in Luke that prayer precedes a decisive moment in Jesus’ life. While he prays, the Spirit descends in bodily form and the Father speaks: “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.” The Trinity is present: the Father speaks, the Son prays, and the Spirit descends.

The genealogy that follows runs from Jesus back through David, Abraham, Noah, and finally to Adam, “the son of God.” Jesus is the second Adam, and his story is humanity’s story. Where Adam failed in a garden, he will succeed in a wilderness.

In the temptation, Luke notes that Jesus was full of the Holy Spirit and led by the Spirit. He is hungry after forty days. The devil first tempts him to turn stones into bread, then offers him all the kingdoms of the world, and finally takes him to the pinnacle of the temple and quotes Scripture to him. Jesus answers each time with a verse from Deuteronomy. Luke reverses the order of the second and third temptations from Matthew, ending in Jerusalem, where the story will end. The devil departs “until an opportune time,” a hint that the real battle is still ahead.

The Son of God does not use his power to serve himself. He relies on the word of God and the Spirit, as we must.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 40:3-5 is the passage John fulfills. Genesis 3 is the first temptation, and Romans 5:12-19 contrasts Adam and Christ. 1 Corinthians 15:45 calls Christ the last Adam. Hebrews 2:18 says that because he himself has suffered when tempted, he is able to help those who are being tempted. Luke 22:3 shows the devil’s return at the “opportune time,” when Satan enters Judas. Ephesians 6:17 describes the sword of the Spirit.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what fruit in keeping with repentance would look like for you this week. Be as practical as John was.

When temptation comes, answer it with Scripture, as Jesus did. Choose a verse to carry.

Pray before big decisions, as Jesus did at his baptism.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus, the last Adam, for resisting where the first fell.

Ask him to fill you with his Spirit.

Tell him where you are being tempted.

LUKE 2:11

DAY 606 · WEEK 87

Luke 4:14-5:39

Nazareth; first disciples; controversies

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 72 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 4:14-5:39. Jesus preaches in Nazareth, is rejected, begins to heal and call disciples, and meets his first controversies. Read 4:18-21 slowly. It is the mission statement of the whole Gospel.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus returns to Galilee in the power of the Spirit. He goes to the synagogue in Nazareth, his hometown, as was his custom, and he is handed the scroll of Isaiah. The reading he chooses is from Isaiah 61, which describes the anointed one who will bring good news to the poor. What he says next, and how the people respond, sets the pattern for his ministry: great grace and great opposition.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to proclaim good news to the poor" (4:18).
2. "He has sent me to proclaim liberty to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed" (4:18).
3. "Today this Scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing" (4:21).
4. "Truly, I say to you, no prophet is acceptable in his hometown" (4:24).
5. "But he would withdraw to desolate places and pray" (5:16).
6. "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord" (5:8).
7. "Do not be afraid; from now on you will be catching men" (5:10).
8. "I have not come to call the righteous but sinners to repentance" (5:32).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Nazareth, Jesus reads the words of Isaiah and sits down, as a teacher does. Every eye is fastened on him. “Today this Scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing.” That is a stunning claim. He is the anointed one of Isaiah 61: the Spirit is upon him, and he brings good news to the poor, freedom to captives, sight to the blind, and release to the oppressed. The “year of the Lord’s favor” is the jubilee, the great year of release.

The people at first marvel at his gracious words. But then he reminds them that God sent Elijah to a widow in Sidon and Elisha to heal Naaman the Syrian, both Gentiles, while Israel’s own needy were passed over. The hometown crowd erupts in fury and tries to throw him off a cliff. The pattern is set. The good news will go to outsiders, and many insiders will reject it. Jesus passes through the midst of them and goes away.

In Capernaum, he teaches with authority, casts out a demon, heals Peter’s mother-in-law, and heals many at sundown. Luke notes that he withdraws to pray in desolate places. Even when crowds clamor for him, he keeps to his mission: “I must preach the good news of the kingdom of God to the other towns also; for I was sent for this purpose.”

The miraculous catch of fish leads to Peter’s confession. Seeing the power of Jesus, Peter does not rejoice but falls at his knees, saying, “Depart from me, for I am a sinful man.” The presence of holiness exposes sin. Jesus does not depart. He says, “Do not be afraid,” and calls Peter to follow. Peter, James, and John leave everything.

Then come the first controversies: Jesus forgives and heals a paralyzed man, calls Levi the tax collector, and eats with sinners. The Pharisees grumble, and Jesus answers: “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick.” He then speaks of new wine in new wineskins. The new covenant cannot be poured into the old forms.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 61:1-2 and 58:6 stand behind Jesus’ reading. Leviticus 25 describes the year of jubilee. 1 Kings 17:8-16 and 2 Kings 5 are the Old Testament stories Jesus cites. Isaiah 6:5 shows the prophet’s cry, “Woe is me!” before the holy God. Mark 2:17 has the parallel on the physician. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says that if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. John 1:11 says he came to his own, and his own people did not receive him.

STEP 6

Application

Read Isaiah 61:1-2 slowly and ask where Jesus has done this in your life.

Notice Jesus' habit of slipping away to pray. Plan a regular time and place for it.

Like Peter, bring your sinfulness to Jesus without hiding it, and hear him say, "Do not be afraid."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for bringing good news to the poor, liberty to captives, and sight to the blind.

Tell him what you need him to set free in you.

Ask him to teach you to follow.

LUKE 2:11

DAY 607 · WEEK 87

Luke 6:1-49

Sabbath disputes; the Twelve; the Sermon on the Plain

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 49 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 6:1-49. Sabbath disputes, the choosing of the Twelve after a night of prayer, and the Sermon on the Plain. Compare it with the Sermon on the Mount from Matthew 5 to 7.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Opposition from the religious leaders grows over the Sabbath. Then Jesus spends a night in prayer on the mountain, chooses twelve apostles, and comes down to a level place to teach a great crowd. The Sermon on the Plain is shorter than Matthew's version and focused on a few things: blessings and woes, love for enemies, mercy, and obedience. It is likely the same teaching given on another occasion, or a summary.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The Son of Man is lord of the Sabbath" (6:5).
2. "In these days he went out to the mountain to pray, and all night he continued in prayer to God" (6:12).
3. "Blessed are you who are poor, for yours is the kingdom of God" (6:20).
4. "But woe to you who are rich, for you have received your consolation" (6:24).
5. "But I say to you who hear, Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you" (6:27).
6. "Be merciful, even as your Father is merciful" (6:36).
7. "Why do you call me Lord, Lord, and not do what I tell you?" (6:46).
8. "But the one who hears and does not do is like a man who built a house on the ground without a foundation" (6:49).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Sabbath conflicts show what is at stake. The disciples pluck grain, and Jesus defends them, citing David, and declares himself lord of the Sabbath. On another Sabbath, he heals a man's withered hand, and asks, "Is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good or to do harm, to save life or to destroy it?" The Pharisees are filled with fury.

Then comes the night of prayer. Before choosing the Twelve, Jesus spends the whole night in prayer. A major decision is preceded by deep communion with the Father. He names twelve, including Judas Iscariot, "who became a traitor." The Twelve are the foundation of the renewed Israel.

On the plain, with a great crowd, he gives the Beatitudes with a difference. Luke records four blessings and four woes. "Blessed are you who are poor... hungry... weep... hated." And "woe to you who are rich... full... laugh... spoken well of." These are not general wishes. Jesus speaks to his disciples, and he puts the reversal clearly: those who look secure now may be empty later, and those who suffer for him will be rewarded.

The heart of the sermon is love for enemies. "Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you." This is not just a rule for sentiment but for action: give, lend, and expect nothing back. The standard is the character of God himself: "Be merciful, even as your Father is merciful." The Father is kind even to the ungrateful and the evil.

Then come warnings about judging, the log in the eye, and a tree known by its fruit. The sermon ends with the two builders. The one who hears and does is like the one who dug deep and laid the foundation on rock. The difference is obedience, and the question is pointed: "Why do you call me Lord, Lord, and not do what I tell you?"

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 5 to 7 is the longer Sermon on the Mount, and you read it in Unit 15. Psalm 1 is the background to the two ways. 1 Samuel 21:1-6 is the story of David's eating the bread. Romans 12:14-21 repeats Jesus' teaching on enemies. 1 Peter 2:21-23 says Christ left us an example. James 1:22 says to be doers of the word. Ephesians 4:32 says to forgive as God in Christ forgave you.

STEP 6

Application

Pray through the night, or at least for an hour, before a significant decision.

Choose one enemy or difficult person and do something good for them this week, without expecting anything back.

Ask the Lord's own question of yourself: do I call him Lord and do what he says?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for being Lord of the Sabbath.

Thank him for praying all night before choosing his apostles.

Ask him to help you do what he says, not only hear.

LUKE 2:11

DAY 608 · WEEK 87

Psalm 113

He raises the poor from the dust, the Magnificat's psalm

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 9 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 113. This is the first psalm in the Hallel (Psalms 113 to 118). It praises the God who raises the poor from the dust, and it echoes Hannah's song and Mary's song. Read it beside the Magnificat.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 113 opens a group of six psalms sung at Passover and other great feasts. It is short and structured as three stanzas: God's name is to be praised, God is high above all nations, and yet he stoops to lift the needy. It stands behind Hannah's song in 1 Samuel 2 and Mary's song in Luke 1. Reading it just after Luke 1 and 2 shows where Mary found her words.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! Praise, O servants of the LORD, praise the name of the LORD!" (v. 1).
2. "Blessed be the name of the LORD from this time forth and forevermore!" (v. 2).
3. "From the rising of the sun to its setting, the name of the LORD is to be praised!" (v. 3).
4. "The LORD is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens!" (v. 4).
5. "Who is like the LORD our God, who is seated on high" (v. 5).
6. "Who looks far down on the heavens and the earth?" (v. 6).
7. "He raises the poor from the dust and lifts the needy from the ash heap" (v. 7).
8. "He gives the barren woman a home, making her the joyous mother of children" (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with praise and its scope grows wider with each verse. First the servants of the LORD, then all time ("from this time forth and forevermore"), then all space ("from the rising of the sun to its setting"). The name of the LORD is to be praised everywhere and always.

Then the question: "Who is like the LORD our God?" He is seated on high, above all nations and above the heavens. In the ancient world, the great gods were high and distant. But here is the surprise. This God "looks far down on the heavens and the earth." He is so high that even the heavens are far below him, and yet he looks down and sees the lowly.

What does he do? He raises the poor from the dust. He lifts the needy from the ash heap and seats them with princes, even the princes of his people. And he gives the barren woman a home and a family. This is the pattern of the Bible's story: Sarah, Rebekah, Rachel, Hannah, and Elizabeth. Again and again the barren woman receives a child, and God's purposes advance through those who seemed least likely.

Now read Luke 1 again. Mary sings, "He has brought down the mighty from their thrones and exalted those of humble estate." She draws on this psalm and on Hannah's song. Elizabeth, barren, has a son in her old age. Mary herself is of humble estate, and she carries the Son of God. The one who raises the poor from the dust has come down in person. The incarnation is the greatest instance of the psalm: the God who is high above all stoops lower than anyone could expect, to a manger and a cross, and lifts people up.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Samuel 2:1-10 is Hannah's song, and Luke 1:46-55 is Mary's. Isaiah 57:15 says God dwells in the high and holy place and also with the contrite and lowly. Philippians 2:5-11 describes Christ's descent and exaltation. Ephesians 2:4-6 says God raised us up with Christ and seated us with him in the heavenly places. James 4:6 says God gives grace to the humble. Matthew 26:30 says that after the Last Supper they sang a hymn, likely the Hallel.

STEP 6

Application

Praise God today from the "rising of the sun to its setting." Make it a thread through your day.

Think of someone overlooked or lowly. Ask how you might lift them up.

Thank God that he lifted you from the dust through Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God for raising the poor from the dust.

Tell him what he has lifted you from.

Bless his name now and forevermore.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord."

LUKE 2:11

REST

Meditation

An angel says these words to shepherds in the dark, on a hillside outside Bethlehem. It is the message at the center of the Christmas story and of the Gospel.

"For unto you." The news is personal. The angel does not say, "For the world in general." He says, "For you." The first people to hear it were common workers in the fields. The gospel comes to people where they are, and it is addressed to each of us.

"Is born this day." The word "today" is one of Luke's favorites. Salvation is not only a future hope. It has arrived in time and space, on a particular day, in a real town. God has acted in history.

"In the city of David." The Savior comes in the line of the great king. Every promise about David's throne is being fulfilled in this child.

“A Savior.” The word means rescuer. He is born not just to teach or to inspire but to save. Matthew told us he would save his people from their sins. Luke says that he is a Savior for “all the people.”

“Who is Christ the Lord.” Christ means the anointed king. Lord means the one who rules, and it is the word the Greek Old Testament used for God himself. The baby in the manger is God’s anointed king and God himself.

When you feel that the gospel is too big or too distant, say this verse. It was spoken first to shepherds, and it is for you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the Gospel of Luke. You read Luke’s careful preface, the promise of two births, and the songs of Mary and Zechariah, which celebrate God’s keeping of every promise. You saw the Savior born in a manger and heard the angels announce good news to shepherds. You watched Simeon and Anna recognize him in the temple. You followed John’s call to repentance, Jesus’ baptism and temptation, and his first sermon in Nazareth, where he read Isaiah and said, “Today this Scripture has been fulfilled.” You saw him call sinners, eat with outcasts, and spend a whole night in prayer before choosing the Twelve. The Sermon on the Plain called you to love your enemies and build on the rock. Psalm 113 gave you the words behind the Magnificat: the God who is high above all stoops to raise the poor from the dust.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Luke records that the angels’ first announcement was to shepherds. What does that tell you about the kind of people the gospel is for, and how might it change who you notice this week?

Jesus read Isaiah 61 in Nazareth and said, “Today this Scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing.” How does Jesus fulfill the good news for the poor, the captives, and the blind?

Mary said, “Let it be to me according to your word.” Where do you most need to say that to God right now?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that to us a Savior is born.

Thank him that the good news is for all people.

Let yourself rest in it.

DAY 610 · WEEK 88

Psalm 116

I love the LORD, because he has heard my voice

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 19 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 116. This is a song of thanks from someone who was near death and was saved. It is part of the Hallel, sung at Passover. Read it aloud as a personal testimony.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 116 is a thanksgiving psalm. The singer has cried out in deep trouble and God has answered, and now he comes to the congregation to keep his vows. The psalm is anonymous, but it is easy to imagine David or Hezekiah behind it. Because it belongs to the Hallel, Jesus and his disciples almost certainly sang it on the night before he died, a few hours before Gethsemane.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I love the LORD, because he has heard my voice and my pleas for mercy" (v. 1).
2. "Because he inclined his ear to me, therefore I will call on him as long as I live" (v. 2).
3. "The snares of death encompassed me; the pangs of Sheol laid hold on me; I suffered distress and anguish" (v. 3).
4. "Gracious is the LORD, and righteous; our God is merciful" (v. 5).
5. "The LORD preserves the simple; when I was brought low, he saved me" (v. 6).
6. "For you have delivered my soul from death, my eyes from tears, my feet from stumbling" (v. 8).
7. "What shall I render to the LORD for all his benefits to me?" (v. 12).
8. "Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints" (v. 15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with love: “I love the LORD.” The reason is not a general feeling but a specific answer. He heard my voice. The God of the universe bent down his ear to a person in need. The psalmist concludes that he will call on God for as long as he lives.

Then he tells his story. Death had wrapped around him like a snare. Distress and anguish found him. In that darkness he called, “O LORD, I pray, deliver my soul!” and the LORD answered. The character of the God who answers is given in verse 5: gracious, righteous, and merciful. These three words belong together. His grace is never at odds with his justice.

He says he was “brought low,” and the LORD saved him. Now he can rest: “Return, O my soul, to your rest, for the LORD has dealt bountifully with you.” Deliverance from death, tears, and stumbling is the work of God alone.

Then comes one of the great questions of the Psalter: “What shall I render to the LORD for all his benefits to me?” The answer is not a payment, since no one can repay God. It is worship and trust: “I will lift up the cup of salvation and call on the name of the LORD.” He will pay his vows in the presence of all the people.

Verse 15 is for the grieving: “Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints.” Death is not meaningless to God. Every believer who dies is watched over with care.

Read this psalm beside the Last Supper. Jesus lifted a cup that night, and the psalm was in his mouth. He would soon drink a cup of suffering so that we might receive the cup of salvation. The cry of the psalmist became the cry of Jesus, and the deliverance he sang about was won in his death and resurrection.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 18:4-6 describes similar cords of death. Matthew 26:30 and Mark 14:26 say they sang a hymn before going out. Luke 22:17-20 describes the cup at the Supper. 1 Corinthians 10:16 speaks of the cup of blessing. Romans 12:1 offers the answer to “What shall I render?” Hebrews 2:14-15 says Christ delivered those enslaved by fear of death. Revelation 14:13 speaks of those who die in the Lord.

STEP 6

Application

Tell the story of a time God answered you. Write it down or tell it to someone.

Answer verse 12 for yourself. What will you render to the LORD this week? Make it concrete.

If you have lost a believer, rest in verse 15. Their death is precious to the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God that you love him and why.
- Thank him for delivering you from death and tears.
- Ask him what you can render to him for all his benefits.

DAY 611 · WEEK 88

Psalm 117

Praise the LORD, all nations, the shortest psalm; widest vision

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 2 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 117. It has only two verses. Read it three times, slowly, once for each phrase of the call, and notice how much is packed into so few words.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 117 is the shortest chapter in the Bible and the middle chapter of the Bible's chapters, by number. It is part of the Hallel, sung at the feasts. In two verses it calls the whole world to praise the God of Israel, and gives the reason. Paul quotes it in Romans 15 to show that the Gentiles were always meant to glorify God.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD" (v. 1).
2. "all nations" (v. 1).
3. "Extol him" (v. 1).
4. "all peoples" (v. 1).
5. "great is his steadfast love" (v. 2).
6. "toward us" (v. 2).
7. "the faithfulness of the LORD" (v. 2).
8. "endures forever" (v. 2).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is short, but it is wide. The call is not to Israel only but to “all nations” and “all peoples.” Under the old covenant, God’s saving work was centered on one nation. But from the beginning, the aim was the world. God promised Abraham that in him all the families of the earth would be blessed. The psalmists often sing of a day when the nations will bow. Psalm 117 states it as a command: praise the LORD, all of you.

Notice the reason: “For great is his steadfast love toward us.” The word “us” is Israel, the people who knew God’s covenant love. The nations are called to praise him because of what he has done for his people. When the nations see the LORD’s love to Israel, they are drawn to worship. And the Gentiles who come in are included in the “us” by faith.

The two characteristics that the psalm names are the two that run through the whole Old Testament: steadfast love and faithfulness. They were revealed to Moses on Sinai (“abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness”) and they are the foundation of the covenant. God does not just love; he keeps his word. His faithfulness “endures forever.”

This is the Bible in miniature: the LORD’s love for his people, his faithfulness through time, and his purpose for the world. Luke’s Gospel carries the same note. Simeon sang of a light for the Gentiles. John the Baptist quoted Isaiah, “All flesh shall see the salvation of God.” Jesus will praise the faith of a Roman centurion. The psalm that told the nations to sing is being fulfilled in the church today, as people from every tribe and language come to Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 12:3 promised blessing to all the families of the earth. Exodus 34:6 states the LORD’s character. Psalm 67 prays that all the nations praise him. Isaiah 49:6 speaks of salvation to the end of the earth. Luke 2:32 echoes it. Romans 15:11 quotes this psalm. Revelation 7:9 pictures a great multitude from every nation, praising God.

STEP 6

Application

Read the psalm aloud in a different voice each time: quietly, with joy, and as a shout.

Pray for one nation or people group by name today, that they would praise the LORD.

Memorize the two verses. They are the shortest way to remember what God’s love and faithfulness mean.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God with all the nations in your own words.

Thank him for his great steadfast love toward us.

Pray for the nations to know him.

DAY 612 · WEEK 88

Luke 7:1-8:21

The centurion; the widow's son; the sinful woman; the Sower

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 71 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 7:1-8:21. A Gentile's faith, a widow's son, a sinful woman, and the parable of the sower. Notice who Jesus honors, and who he rebukes.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the Sermon on the Plain, Jesus enters Capernaum and then Nain, then dines with a Pharisee, then tells parables by the lake. Luke gathers stories that show Jesus' compassion for the outsider: a Roman soldier, a widow, a woman with a bad reputation. These are the people the religious leaders overlooked. Jesus will respond to John the Baptist's doubts by pointing to what he is doing.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I tell you, not even in Israel have I found such faith" (7:9).
2. "And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her and said to her, Do not weep" (7:13).
3. "The blind receive their sight, the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, the poor have good news preached to them" (7:22).
4. "But he who is forgiven little, loves little" (7:47).
5. "Your faith has saved you; go in peace" (7:50).
6. "The seed is the word of God" (8:11).
7. "And as for that in the good soil, they are those who, hearing the word, hold it fast in an honest and good heart, and bear fruit with patience" (8:15).
8. "My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and do it" (8:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

A Roman centurion sends friends to ask Jesus to heal his servant. He says he is not worthy to have Jesus come under his roof, and that Jesus need only say the word. Jesus marvels, and says he has not found such faith in Israel. A pagan soldier understood authority better than the religious insiders. Faith is believing that Jesus' word is enough.

At Nain, Jesus meets a funeral procession. A widow's only son is dead. Luke notes simply that when the Lord saw her, he had compassion. He touches the bier, speaks, and the young man sits up. Jesus gives him back to his mother. The crowd says, "God has visited his people!" That is the right conclusion.

John the Baptist, now in prison, sends disciples to ask whether Jesus is the one. Jesus does not give a direct yes. He tells them to report what they see and hear: the blind see, the lame walk, the dead are raised, the poor hear good news. These are the signs of Isaiah's promised age.

In Simon the Pharisee's house, an uninvited woman, known as a sinner, weeps on Jesus' feet, wipes them with her hair, and anoints them. Simon is scandalized. Jesus tells a story of two debtors, one forgiven a large debt and one a small debt. The one forgiven more loves more. Then he turns to the woman and says, "Your sins are forgiven." Her love was the result of forgiveness, not the cause. Simon, who thought he needed little, loved little.

The parable of the sower closes the section. The seed is the word, and the soils are hearts. Some hearts are hard, some shallow, some choked, and some good. The good soil hears, holds fast, and bears fruit with patience. Jesus' real family are not those with the right blood but those who hear and do the word of God.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 35:5-6 and 61:1 stand behind Jesus' answer to John. 1 Kings 17:17-24 is Elijah raising the widow's son, the pattern Jesus fulfills. Psalm 103:3 praises the God who forgives all your iniquity. Ephesians 2:8 says we are saved by grace through faith. Hebrews 11:6 says without faith it is impossible to please God. Romans 10:17 says faith comes from hearing. James 1:22 repeats the call to be doers of the word.

STEP 6

Application

Ask yourself: which soil is closest to my heart right now? What would it take to be good soil?

Think of the woman who loved much. What has Jesus forgiven you? Let that fuel your love this week.

Be like the centurion and trust Jesus' word without needing to see how.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for his compassion for outsiders and sinners.

Tell him how much you have been forgiven, and let love rise.

Ask him to help you love as one who has been forgiven much.

LUKE 9:23

DAY 613 · WEEK 88

Luke 8:22-9:50

The storm; Jairus; Peter's confession; the Transfiguration

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 80 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 8:22-9:50. A storm stilled, a girl raised, the Twelve sent out, Peter's confession, the Transfiguration. This section turns on one question: who is Jesus?

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus now shows his power over nature, demons, sickness, and death. Then, in chapter 9, the question of his identity moves to the center. Herod wonders who he is, the crowds guess, Peter answers. Right after the confession, Jesus speaks plainly of his coming suffering and the cost of following him. Eight days later, three disciples see his glory on the mountain.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Master, Master, we are perishing!" (8:24).
2. "Where is your faith?" (8:25).
3. "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace" (8:48).
4. "Do not fear; only believe, and she will be well" (8:50).
5. "But who do you say that I am?" Peter answered, "The Christ of God" (9:20).
6. "If anyone would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me" (9:23).
7. "This is my Son, my Chosen One; listen to him!" (9:35).
8. "For he who is least among you all is the one who is great" (9:48).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The storm on the lake shows who Jesus is. The disciples, some of them experienced fishermen, cry out that they are perishing. Jesus rebukes the wind and the waves, and there is calm. They ask, “Who then is this, that he commands even winds and water, and they obey him?” The Old Testament says only God does that (Psalm 107:29).

Then he crosses to the Gerasenes and frees a man possessed by many demons. The man, once naked and chained among the tombs, is found sitting at Jesus’ feet, clothed and in his right mind. When the people ask Jesus to leave, he tells the man to go home and declare how much God has done for him. The first missionary to the Gentiles was a former demoniac.

Jairus’s daughter and the woman with the flow of blood are woven together. The woman has been unclean and suffering for twelve years, and she touches the edge of his garment. Jesus stops, and calls her “Daughter.” A message comes that Jairus’s daughter has died. Jesus says, “Do not fear; only believe.” He takes her hand and says, “Child, arise,” and she does. Jesus is Lord over sickness and death.

The Twelve are sent out with power and authority. Herod hears and is perplexed. Jesus feeds the five thousand, and then asks the key question. The crowds say John, Elijah, or one of the prophets. Peter says, “The Christ of God.” Jesus warns them not to tell anyone yet, and speaks of suffering, rejection, death, and resurrection. Then he tells all who would follow that they must take up their cross daily. To follow the Christ is to follow the way of the cross.

Eight days later, on the mountain, Jesus is transfigured. Moses and Elijah speak with him about his “departure,” literally his exodus, which he will accomplish at Jerusalem. The voice from the cloud says, “This is my Son, my Chosen One; listen to him!” Then the disciples argue about who is greatest, and Jesus sets a child beside him. In the kingdom, greatness is humility.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 107:23-30 describes the sea stilled by the LORD. Isaiah 53 is the suffering servant behind Jesus’ words about his death. Exodus 24 and 34 recall Moses on the mountain. Deuteronomy 18:15 told Israel to listen to the coming prophet. Matthew 16:13-28 and Mark 8:27-9:1 are the parallels. Romans 6:3-5 says we are united with Christ in his death and resurrection. Galatians 2:20 says, “I have been crucified with Christ.”

STEP 6

Application

Name the storm you are in. Bring it to Jesus as the disciples did, and hear him ask, “Where is your faith?”

Answer Jesus’ own question in your own words: “Who do you say that I am?”

Take up your cross daily. What does that mean today for your habits, your time, and your pride?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Say with Peter who Jesus is.
- Tell him what storm you are facing.
- Ask him to teach you to listen to him.

LUKE 9:23

DAY 614 · WEEK 88

Luke 9:51-11:13

The Good Samaritan; Mary and Martha; teaching on prayer

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 91 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 9:51-11:13. The journey to Jerusalem begins, and with it the great central section of Luke. Notice the parable of the Good Samaritan, Mary and Martha, and the Lord's Prayer.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Luke 9:51 is the hinge of the Gospel: "When the days drew near for him to be taken up, he set his face to go to Jerusalem." From here to chapter 19, most of the material is on the road. Much of it is found only in Luke, including the Good Samaritan, Mary and Martha, and many of the parables. The journey is about discipleship, mercy, and prayer, with the cross ahead.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "When the days drew near for him to be taken up, he set his face to go to Jerusalem" (9:51).
2. "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head" (9:58).
3. "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few" (10:2).
4. "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind, and your neighbor as yourself" (10:27).
5. "But a Samaritan, as he journeyed, came to where he was, and when he saw him, he had compassion" (10:33).
6. "Mary has chosen the good portion, which will not be taken away from her" (10:42).
7. "Lord, teach us to pray" (11:1).

8 “How much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him!” (11:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus sets his face toward Jerusalem. A Samaritan village will not receive him, and James and John want to call down fire. Jesus rebukes them. The way of Jesus is not vengeance. Would-be followers are warned of the cost: no home, no looking back.

Seventy-two others are sent ahead, two by two, with a message of peace and the kingdom. They come back rejoicing, but Jesus says, “Do not rejoice that the spirits are subject to you, but rejoice that your names are written in heaven.” Salvation is a greater joy than power.

A lawyer asks what he must do to inherit eternal life, and Jesus asks what the Law says. The answer is to love God and neighbor. Wanting to justify himself, the lawyer asks, “Who is my neighbor?” Jesus tells of a man beaten by robbers. A priest and a Levite pass by on the other side. A Samaritan, a despised outsider, stops, binds the wounds, pays for the care. Jesus then turns the question around: not “who is my neighbor,” but “who proved to be a neighbor?” The answer is “The one who showed him mercy.” “You go, and do likewise.” Many Christians also see in the story a picture of Christ himself, the outsider who finds us half dead and pays the price. But the point of the story is mercy toward anyone in need.

At Martha and Mary’s house, Martha is busy and anxious, and Mary sits at Jesus’ feet to listen. Jesus does not scold service, but he says Mary has chosen the better thing. Hearing him comes first.

Then a disciple asks, “Lord, teach us to pray.” Jesus gives a short prayer: Father, hallowed be your name, your kingdom come, give us bread, forgive us, lead us not into temptation. He tells of the friend at midnight and urges persistence: ask, seek, knock. If earthly fathers give good gifts, how much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask. The best answer to prayer is God himself.

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 19:18 and Deuteronomy 6:5 are the two commands the lawyer quotes. 2 Kings 1 is Elijah calling down fire, the story James and John echo. Isaiah 50:7 says the Servant set his face like a flint. Matthew 6:9-13 gives the longer version of the Lord’s Prayer. John 4 shows Jesus with a Samaritan woman. Romans 8:15 speaks of the Spirit of adoption by whom we cry, “Abba, Father.” James 2:13 says mercy triumphs over judgment.

STEP 6

Application

Pray the Lord's Prayer slowly today, one line at a time, adding your own words to each.

Ask who the Samaritan is in your life, a person you are tempted to avoid. Show mercy to them.

Sit at Jesus' feet for ten quiet minutes before the busyness begins.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Pray the Lord's Prayer slowly in your own words.

Ask him to teach you to sit at his feet as Mary did.

Ask him to show you who your neighbor is.

DAY 615 · WEEK 88

Luke 11:14-13:21

Beelzebul; the rich fool; fear God; the narrow door

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 102 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 11:14-13:21. Conflict with the crowds and the Pharisees, warnings about hypocrisy and greed, the call to be ready, and parables of the kingdom. Read it with the question, “What do I treasure?”

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

On the road to Jerusalem the opposition grows. Some accuse Jesus of casting out demons by Satan. Others demand a sign. Jesus speaks sharply to the Pharisees and lawyers, then turns to the crowds and his disciples with teaching on fear, money, and readiness. These chapters are full of warnings, but also of tenderness: “Fear not, little flock.”

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Blessed rather are those who hear the word of God and keep it!” (11:28).
2. “Take care, and be on your guard against all covetousness, for one’s life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions” (12:15).
3. “Fool! This night your soul is required of you” (12:20).
4. “Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom” (12:32).
5. “For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also” (12:34).
6. “Everyone to whom much was given, of him much will be required” (12:48).
7. “Unless you repent, you will all likewise perish” (13:3).
8. “It is like a grain of mustard seed that a man took and sowed in his garden” (13:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

When Jesus casts out a demon, some say he does it by Beelzebul, and others ask for a sign. Jesus answers that a kingdom divided cannot stand, and that if he casts out demons by the finger of God, then the kingdom of God has come upon them. There is no neutral ground: “Whoever is not with me is against me.” The only sign will be Jonah’s: his death and resurrection. A woman in the crowd calls out a blessing on his mother, and Jesus replies that those who hear and keep the word of God are blessed rather.

At a Pharisee’s meal, Jesus points out that cleaning the outside of the cup while the inside is full of greed is foolish. Six woes follow, to the Pharisees and to the lawyers. These are not words of hatred but of heartbreak for those who keep the outward forms and miss justice and the love of God.

Then he turns to the disciples: beware the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. Do not fear those who kill the body. God knows each sparrow, and you are of more value than many sparrows. Whoever acknowledges Christ before others will be acknowledged before the angels of God.

A man asks Jesus to settle an inheritance dispute, and Jesus tells of the rich fool, who stored up barns of grain and planned to relax, and heard, “Fool! This night your soul is required of you.” It is folly to be rich toward self and not rich toward God. He then tells the disciples not to be anxious: the ravens and lilies are cared for. “Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom.” Sell, give, and lay up treasure in heaven.

The rest of the section calls for readiness: be dressed for action, like servants waiting for the master. Much given means much required. Jesus warns that he has come to bring division, and calls for repentance when tragedies occur. The fig tree is given one more year. A woman bent over for eighteen years is healed on the Sabbath, and Jesus calls her a daughter of Abraham. Two short parables close the section: the mustard seed and the leaven. The kingdom starts small and grows beyond expectation.

STEP 5

Connection

Jonah 1 to 3 is the sign Jesus points to. Psalm 84:11 and Matthew 6:19-34 parallel his teaching on treasure and anxiety. Isaiah 5:1-7 is the background to the fig tree. Ecclesiastes 2 describes the vanity of laboring for riches. 1 Timothy 6:6-10 warns about the love of money. Hebrews 3:12-14 warns of the deceitfulness of sin. 1 Peter 5:7 says to cast all your anxieties on him.

STEP 6

Application

Look honestly at where your treasure is. What does your calendar and your bank statement say?

Name an anxiety you carry and give it to the Father who feeds the ravens.

Pray for readiness. If Jesus returned today, what would you want to have finished?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess where you store up for yourself and are not rich toward God.

Thank him for giving you the kingdom.

Ask him to loosen your grip on worry.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"If anyone would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me."

LUKE 9:23

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this just after Peter's confession and his first prediction of his death. He says it to everyone: "If anyone would come after me." It is an open invitation and a hard one.

"Deny himself." This does not mean to hate yourself or to lose your identity. It means to say no to the self that sits on the throne. To follow Jesus is to stop being the center of your own life.

"Take up his cross." The cross was not a symbol of jewelry in the first century. It was an instrument of public execution, and a person who carried one was walking to his death. Jesus calls his followers to a life of surrender, willing to lose reputation, comfort, and control for his sake.

"Daily." Luke alone adds this word. The cross is not a single dramatic moment but a daily rhythm. Every morning we choose again.

“And follow me.” The road is not an empty road. We follow someone who went before us, and he did not ask us to carry anything he did not carry first. The next verse gives the promise: whoever loses his life for Jesus’ sake will save it.

When you are tempted to protect your comfort, say this verse. The way of the cross is the way of life.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you sang Psalm 116, the thanks of someone saved from death, and Psalm 117, the shortest call to the nations. In Luke 7 and 8 you saw Jesus honor a centurion’s faith, raise a widow’s son, forgive a woman who loved much, and teach about the soils of the heart. You watched him still a storm, free a demoniac, and raise Jairus’s daughter. You heard Peter confess him as the Christ of God and the Father say, “Listen to him.” On the road to Jerusalem you met the Good Samaritan, sat with Mary at Jesus’ feet, and learned to pray. You heard warnings against greed and hypocrisy and the promise to the little flock that the Father is pleased to give the kingdom.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said Mary chose the good portion by sitting at his feet. What would it look like for you to make listening to him the first thing in your day?

In Luke 9:20, Peter confessed Jesus as the Christ of God, and then Jesus spoke of the cross. How does Jesus’ own suffering shape what it means to follow him?

The rich fool stored up treasure for himself and was not rich toward God. What is one way you can be rich toward God this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell Jesus you want to follow him and say what that costs you.

Ask him to teach you to take up your cross daily.

Thank him for going first.

DAY 617 · WEEK 89

Psalm 27

The LORD is my light and my salvation

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 27. It begins with confident trust and ends with patient waiting. Notice how fear and faith sit side by side.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 27 is a psalm of David. The first half (vv. 1-6) is bold, an army encamped around him and his heart unafraid. The second half (vv. 7-14) is a plea, almost trembling, for God to hear. Some think it is two psalms joined, but the effect is true to life: courage in the morning, anxiety in the evening, and both brought to God. It comes in the plan beside Luke's teaching on fear and trust.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear?" (v. 1).
2. "The LORD is the stronghold of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" (v. 1).
3. "Though an army encamp against me, my heart shall not fear" (v. 3).
4. "One thing have I asked of the LORD, that will I seek after: that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to gaze upon the beauty of the LORD" (v. 4).
5. "You have said, Seek my face. My heart says to you, Your face, LORD, do I seek" (v. 8).
6. "For my father and my mother have forsaken me, but the LORD will take me in" (v. 10).
7. "I believe that I shall look upon the goodness of the LORD in the land of the living!" (v. 13).
8. "Wait for the LORD; be strong, and let your heart take courage; wait for the LORD!" (v. 14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with three names for God: light, salvation, stronghold. Light shows the way and drives out darkness. Salvation delivers. A stronghold protects. With these three, David asks, “Whom shall I fear?” The questions are not worried. They expect the answer, “No one.”

Then he lists the threats: evildoers who devour, an army, war. And still: “In this I will be confident.” His confidence rests on one desire: “One thing have I asked of the LORD.” Out of all the things he could ask, he asks for God’s presence. He wants to dwell in the house of the LORD, gaze on his beauty, and inquire in his temple. In the day of trouble, God will hide him in his shelter and set him high on a rock. Then he will offer sacrifices with shouts of joy.

At verse 7 the tone shifts. “Hear, O LORD, when I cry aloud; be gracious to me and answer me!” The confident man is also a man in need. He remembers God’s invitation, “Seek my face,” and answers with the same words. He asks God not to hide his face, not to cast him off. Even if his father and mother forsake him, the LORD will take him in.

He asks to be taught God’s way and led on a level path, and he asks to be saved from false witnesses. Then verse 13 is the hinge: “I believe that I shall look upon the goodness of the LORD in the land of the living!” He does not wait for heaven to see God’s goodness. It will come here.

The last verse is an exhortation to himself and to us: wait. Be strong. Take courage. Wait. Waiting is not passive but active trust. In Luke, Jesus said, “Fear not, little flock.” David and Jesus say the same thing. The Lord is light, and there is nothing to fear in his presence.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 23 shares the theme of God’s presence in danger. Psalm 42 and 63 share the thirst for God. Isaiah 60:1 and John 8:12 speak of the light. Matthew 6:33 says to seek first the kingdom. 2 Corinthians 4:6 says God has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. Romans 8:31 asks, “If God is for us, who can be against us?” Isaiah 40:31 promises renewed strength to those who wait on the LORD.

STEP 6

Application

Say verse 1 aloud, then name the thing you are most afraid of right now and say “Whom shall I fear?”

Write down your “one thing” from verse 4. What do you most want from God?

Choose something to wait on in prayer, and wait with courage.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what you fear, and say, “The LORD is my light and my salvation.”

Ask him for the one thing: to dwell with him and see his beauty.

Tell him you wait for him.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 89

DAY 618 · WEEK 89

Psalm 28

Hear the voice of my pleas for mercy

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 9 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 28. It begins with a desperate cry and ends with a shout of praise. Notice what changes between verse 5 and verse 6.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 28 is a psalm of David. He is surrounded by wicked people and fears being swept away with them. He cries to the LORD, his rock, and asks for justice. Halfway through there is a change: he hears the answer, and the psalm ends in praise and a prayer for God's people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "To you, O LORD, I call; my rock, be not deaf to me" (v. 1).
2. "Hear the voice of my pleas for mercy, as I cry to you for help" (v. 2).
3. "Do not drag me off with the wicked" (v. 3).
4. "Because they do not regard the works of the LORD, or the work of his hands, he will tear them down and build them up no more" (v. 5).
5. "Blessed be the LORD! For he has heard the voice of my pleas for mercy" (v. 6).
6. "The LORD is my strength and my shield; in him my heart trusts, and I am helped" (v. 7).
7. "The LORD is the strength of his people; he is the saving refuge of his anointed" (v. 8).
8. "Oh, save your people and bless your heritage! Be their shepherd and carry them forever" (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David's fear is silence. "If you are deaf to me, I become like those who go down to the pit." He cannot bear the thought that God might not answer. He lifts his hands toward the holy sanctuary, and asks God not to treat him as he treats the wicked, whose speech is smooth but whose hearts are full of evil.

He prays for justice in verse 4, asking that they receive what their deeds deserve. This is not personal revenge. It is the cry for a righteous God to act against evil. The reason is verse 5: they do not regard the works of the LORD. They ignore him and act as though no one will answer.

Then, without a transition, the mood changes. "Blessed be the LORD! For he has heard the voice of my pleas for mercy." Between verses 5 and 6, something has happened. Perhaps a priest spoke a word of assurance, or perhaps David simply felt the burden lift. Whatever it was, he now says, "The LORD is my strength and my shield; in him my heart trusts, and I am helped; my heart exults, and with my song I give thanks to him."

The final verses widen the circle. The LORD is not just his strength but "the strength of his people." He is the saving refuge of his anointed. And David asks for the whole flock: "Save your people and bless your heritage. Be their shepherd and carry them forever." The same shepherd who walked with David is asked to carry all his people.

Jesus is the final Shepherd and the final Anointed. He cried out to his Father in distress and was heard. And now he carries his flock.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 23 and Ezekiel 34 describe the LORD as shepherd. Psalm 18:2 uses the same strength and shield language. Psalm 22:24 says he has not hidden his face but has heard when he cried to him. John 10:11-16 shows Jesus as the Good Shepherd. Hebrews 5:7 says Jesus offered up prayers with loud cries and tears, and was heard. 1 Peter 5:4 speaks of the Chief Shepherd.

STEP 6

Application

Take a burden to the LORD today, and keep praying until you can, like David, bless him.

Pray verse 9 for your church: save your people, bless them, shepherd them, and carry them.

Thank God for a time he heard you when you felt unheard.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to hear your pleas for mercy.
- Thank him that he is your strength and shield.
- Bless him for hearing you.

DAY 619 · WEEK 89

Psalm 31:1-18

Into your hands I commit my spirit

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 18 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 31:1-18. This is a psalm of trust in deep distress. Verse 5 is the one Jesus prayed on the cross, and you will meet it again in Luke 23.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 31 is a psalm of David written when he was in danger, grieving, and slandered. It moves back and forth between trust and complaint, a mark of honest prayer. The first eighteen verses cover the prayer for refuge, the description of suffering, and the declaration, "My times are in your hand." The rest of the psalm (vv. 19 to 24) comes in a few days.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In you, O LORD, do I take refuge; let me never be put to shame; in your righteousness deliver me!" (v. 1).
2. "Be to me a rock of refuge, a strong fortress to save me!" (v. 2).
3. "For you are my rock and my fortress" (v. 3).
4. "Into your hand I commit my spirit; you have redeemed me, O LORD, faithful God" (v. 5).
5. "Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am in distress" (v. 9).
6. "For my life is spent with sorrow, and my years with sighing" (v. 10).
7. "But I trust in you, O LORD; I say, You are my God" (v. 14).
8. "My times are in your hand" (v. 15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts with a refuge. David has run to the LORD, and he asks to be delivered. He uses the image of a rock and a fortress, and asks the LORD to lead and guide him "for your name's sake." Whatever happens, God's own honor is tied to his people.

Verse 5 is the center: "Into your hand I commit my spirit; you have redeemed me, O LORD, faithful God." This was a prayer a pious Jew might say at bedtime. It means, "I place my life in your keeping." Jesus will pray it on the cross, with one change: he begins with "Father." The prayer David prayed in danger is the prayer Jesus prayed in death, and it has been the prayer of many Christians in their last moments.

Then David describes his suffering. He is in distress. His eye, soul, and body waste away with grief. His strength fails because of his iniquity, and his bones waste away. He has become a reproach to his adversaries and an object of dread to his neighbors. People who see him flee from him. He is forgotten like one who is dead, a broken vessel. He hears the whispering of many, terror on every side, as they scheme to take his life.

And yet: "But I trust in you, O LORD; I say, You are my God." The word "but" turns the psalm. In the middle of terror he declares, "My times are in your hand." All of life's seasons, the good and the bad, are in God's hand. No enemy can reach beyond it. So he asks God to make his face shine on him and to save him in his steadfast love.

This is the heart of faith. It does not deny the pain, and it does not say the pain is small. It says that the pain is held by a hand that is good.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 23:46 has Jesus praying verse 5 on the cross. Acts 7:59 has Stephen praying a similar prayer at his death. Jonah 2:8 and Psalm 71:1-3 parallel the refuge language. Psalm 22 is also a psalm of suffering and trust. Romans 8:28 says God works all things together for good. 1 Peter 4:19 says to entrust your souls to a faithful Creator. 1 Peter 5:7 says to cast all your anxieties on him.

STEP 6

Application

Pray verse 5 tonight before you sleep, and let it become a habit.

Write "My times are in your hand" on a card and place it where you will see it.

Name a season of your life that feels out of control and entrust it to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Commit your spirit into God's hand, as Jesus did.

Tell him what you need as your refuge.

Thank him for redeeming you.

DAY 620 · WEEK 89

Luke 13:22-15:32

The narrow door; the great banquet; the lost sheep, coin, son

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 81 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 13:22-15:32. The narrow door, a banquet where the guests make excuses, the cost of discipleship, and three parables about the lost: a sheep, a coin, and a son. Chapter 15 is among the most loved in the Bible.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is still on the way to Jerusalem. Someone asks whether only a few will be saved, and Jesus replies with a warning. Then he dines with a Pharisee on the Sabbath and tells about banquets. Tax collectors and sinners draw near to hear him, and the Pharisees grumble. In response, Jesus tells three parables of lost things, and the third becomes the best known of all his stories.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Strive to enter through the narrow door” (13:24).
2. “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets… How often would I have gathered your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing!” (13:34).
3. “For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted” (14:11).
4. “Go out to the highways and hedges and compel people to come in, that my house may be filled” (14:23).
5. “Whoever does not bear his own cross and come after me cannot be my disciple” (14:27).

6. “There will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who need no repentance” (15:7).

7. “But while he was still a long way off, his father saw him and felt compassion, and ran and embraced him and kissed him” (15:20).

8. “For this your brother was dead, and is alive; he was lost, and is found” (15:32).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Someone asks if only a few will be saved. Jesus does not answer with a number but with a command: strive to enter the narrow door. Many will seek to enter and not be able. The door will be shut, and those outside will say, “We ate and drank in your presence.” Being near Jesus is not the same as knowing him. Yet people will come from east, west, north, and south to sit at table in the kingdom, and “some who are last will be first.” Jesus mourns over Jerusalem like a mother hen. “You were not willing.”

At a Pharisee’s table, Jesus heals a man with dropsy, and teaches that the humble will be exalted. He tells the host to invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind, who cannot repay. Then he tells of a great banquet where invited guests make excuses. The master sends his servants to the poor, then to the highways and hedges. “That my house may be filled.” The kingdom is a feast, and the grace of the host reaches the outcast. Jesus then warns the crowds about the cost of following him. One must count the cost, like a builder or a king. No one can be his disciple without giving up everything.

The three parables of chapter 15 answer the grumbling Pharisees. A shepherd leaves ninety-nine to find one lost sheep, carries it home on his shoulders, and calls friends to rejoice. A woman sweeps the house for one lost coin, and rejoices when it is found. In each, the lost is sought and found, and heaven rejoices.

The third story is of a father and two sons. The younger son demands his inheritance, wastes it, and ends up feeding pigs. “He came to himself.” He plans a speech and heads home. “While he was still a long way off, his father saw him,” ran, embraced him, and kissed him. He interrupts the speech, calls for the best robe, a ring, sandals, and a feast. This is how God receives a returning sinner.

But there is an older brother, who stays outside, angry. He has been dutiful, yet he does not share his father’s joy. The father goes out to him, too: “All that is mine is yours. It was fitting to celebrate.” The story ends without telling us whether he goes in. Jesus leaves the Pharisees with the question. Will they join the feast, or stay outside?

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 55:6-7 invites the wicked to return to the LORD, who will abundantly pardon. Ezekiel 34:11-16 has God as the seeking shepherd. Psalm 103:8-13 says the LORD has compassion as a father has compassion on his children. Hosea 11 shows God's tender love for a wandering son. Matthew 7:13-14 parallels the narrow gate. Romans 5:8 says God shows his love in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us. Ephesians 2:13 says we who were far off have been brought near.

STEP 6

Application

Imagine yourself in the story as the younger son, then as the older. Which is harder to see in yourself?

Is there someone you have written off as lost? Pray for them by name.

Celebrate when someone repents or comes to faith. Heaven does.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for running to meet you while you were far off.
- Tell him where you have been the older brother.
- Rejoice with him over those who come home.

LUKE 15:7

DAY 621 · WEEK 89

Luke 16:1-17:37

The rich man and Lazarus; faith; the coming kingdom

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 68 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 16:1-17:37. A shrewd manager, the rich man and Lazarus, warnings about stumbling, forgiveness, faith, ten lepers, and the coming of the kingdom. These are hard sayings. Read slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

On the road to Jerusalem, Jesus continues to teach the disciples while the Pharisees, who love money, listen and scoff. His teaching in these chapters keeps coming back to money, faithfulness, and readiness for the kingdom. Luke 16 is the most pointed teaching on wealth in the Gospels.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “One who is faithful in a very little is also faithful in much” (16:10).
2. “You cannot serve God and money” (16:13).
3. “Son, remember that you in your lifetime received your good things, and Lazarus in like manner bad things” (16:25).
4. “If they do not hear Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be convinced if someone should rise from the dead” (16:31).
5. “Increase our faith!” (17:5).
6. “If you had faith like a grain of mustard seed” (17:6).
7. “Were not ten cleansed? Where are the nine?” (17:17).
8. “For behold, the kingdom of God is in the midst of you” (17:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The parable of the shrewd manager is puzzling. A manager, about to be fired, reduces the debts of his master's debtors to make friends. The master commends his shrewdness. Jesus does not praise dishonesty. The point is that the people of this age plan ahead for their future, so the children of light should use worldly wealth with an eye to eternity. "Make friends for yourselves by means of unrighteous wealth." Money is a tool, not a master: "You cannot serve God and money." The Pharisees sneer, and Jesus tells them that what is exalted among men is an abomination in the sight of God.

Then comes the rich man and Lazarus. A rich man dresses in purple and feasts daily, while a beggar named Lazarus lies at his gate covered with sores. Both die. Lazarus is carried by angels to Abraham's side, and the rich man is in torment. This is the only parable in which a character has a name, and he is the poor one. The rich man asks Abraham to send Lazarus to warn his brothers. Abraham answers, "They have Moses and the Prophets." If they do not listen to Scripture, they will not be convinced even by one who rises from the dead. The story is a warning about hardened hearts, and an irony: someone did rise from the dead, and many did not believe.

Chapter 17 begins with a warning about causing little ones to stumble, and a call to forgive repeatedly. The apostles say, "Increase our faith!" Jesus replies that faith the size of a mustard seed can do surprising things. It is not the quantity but the object that matters. Then he tells them that servants who have done all that was commanded say, "We are unworthy servants."

Ten lepers are healed, and only one returns to give thanks, a Samaritan. Jesus says, "Your faith has made you well." Then the Pharisees ask when the kingdom will come, and Jesus replies, "The kingdom of God is in the midst of you." The King is standing among them. He then speaks of the days of the Son of Man, which will come suddenly like lightning, and warns, "Remember Lot's wife."

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 15:7-11 commands generosity toward the poor. Proverbs 14:31 says whoever oppresses the poor shows contempt for his Maker. Isaiah 8:19-20 sends people to the law and the testimony. Matthew 6:24 has the same saying about two masters. Luke 24:25-27 returns to the importance of Moses and the Prophets. 1 Timothy 6:17-19 gives instructions to the rich. 2 Kings 5 recounts the healing of Naaman, the leper who was a foreigner. 1 Thessalonians 5:18 says to give thanks in all circumstances.

STEP 6

Application

Look at your own giving and spending. Are you using money as a tool for eternity?

Be the one leper who returns. Write a thank you note to God or to someone who has helped you.

Read your Bible faithfully. Moses and the Prophets still speak.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what you are tempted to serve besides him, such as money.
- Ask him to open your eyes to the “Lazarus” at your gate.
- Ask him to teach you to be faithful in little.

DAY 622 · WEEK 89

Luke 18:1-19:27

The widow and judge; the Pharisee and the tax collector; Zacchaeus

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 70 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 18:1-19:27. Two parables about prayer, children brought to Jesus, a rich ruler, a blind man healed, and Zacchaeus. Chapter 19:10 is the key verse of the whole Gospel.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is near the end of his journey. He is about to enter Jericho and then go up to Jerusalem. These chapters hold several of Luke's best known scenes: the Pharisee and the tax collector, Zacchaeus, and the parable of the minas. They show who receives the kingdom: the humble, the childlike, the despised, and the seeking.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "He told them a parable to the effect that they ought always to pray and not lose heart" (18:1).
2. "And will not God give justice to his elect, who cry to him day and night?" (18:7).
3. "God, be merciful to me, a sinner!" (18:13).
4. "For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, but the one who humbles himself will be exalted" (18:14).
5. "Let the children come to me, and do not hinder them, for to such belongs the kingdom of God" (18:16).
6. "What is impossible with men is possible with God" (18:27).
7. "Zacchaeus, hurry and come down, for I must stay at your house today" (19:5).
8. "For the Son of Man came to seek and to save the lost" (19:10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The widow and the unjust judge teach persistence. A widow keeps coming to a judge who neither fears God nor respects people, and finally he gives her justice because she wears him out. If even an unjust judge responds, how much more will God, who is just and loving, answer his chosen ones? The lesson is to pray always and not lose heart.

The Pharisee and the tax collector teach humility. The Pharisee stands and thanks God that he is not like other men. The tax collector stands far off, beats his chest, and says, "God, be merciful to me, a sinner!" Jesus says this man went down to his house justified. Justification comes through humble faith in God's mercy, not through the record of our good deeds.

Parents bring infants to Jesus, and the disciples try to stop them. Jesus welcomes them and says the kingdom belongs to such as these, and that whoever does not receive it like a child will not enter it. Then a rich ruler asks what he must do to inherit eternal life. Jesus points him to the commandments, and then says to sell everything and follow him. The man goes away sad, for he is very rich. Jesus says it is hard for the rich to enter the kingdom. The bystanders ask, "Who then can be saved?" and Jesus answers, "What is impossible with men is possible with God." Salvation is a miracle.

For the third time, Jesus speaks of his death in Jerusalem. The disciples do not understand. Outside Jericho, a blind beggar cries, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" The crowd tells him to be quiet, but he cries out louder. Jesus heals him, and he follows, glorifying God.

In Jericho, Zacchaeus, a chief tax collector and wealthy, climbs a sycamore tree to see Jesus. Jesus calls him by name and invites himself to his house. The crowd grumbles. Zacchaeus repents, gives half his goods to the poor, and repays fourfold anyone he cheated. Jesus says, "Today salvation has come to this house." Then verse 10 summarizes his whole mission: "For the Son of Man came to seek and to save the lost." The parable of the minas follows, to correct the idea that the kingdom will appear at once. The King is going away, and his servants are to be faithful until he returns.

STEP 5

Connection

Habakkuk 2:4 says the righteous shall live by his faith. Psalm 51:1-4 is the prayer of a broken sinner. Psalm 34:18 says the LORD is near to the brokenhearted. Isaiah 66:2 says God looks to the humble and contrite. Ezekiel 34:16 promises that God will seek the lost. Romans 3:21-26 explains justification by faith. Luke 15 gave three parables of the lost. 1 Timothy 1:15 says Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.

STEP 6

Application

Pray the tax collector's prayer slowly, ten times: "God, be merciful to me, a sinner."

Keep praying for the thing you have prayed about for the longest time. Do not lose heart.

Ask who the Zacchaeus is in your life, someone others have written off. Reach out to them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to teach you to pray always and not lose heart.
- Pray, "God, be merciful to me, a sinner," and mean it.
- Thank Jesus for receiving sinners like Zacchaeus.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Just so, I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who need no repentance."

LUKE 15:7

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this at the end of the parable of the lost sheep, to Pharisees who complained that he welcomed sinners and ate with them. It is his answer to their grumbling and a window into the heart of heaven.

"Just so." The shepherd's joy over the found sheep is a picture of heaven's joy. Jesus is not describing an anxious God who tolerates repentant sinners. He is describing a God who celebrates.

"More joy in heaven." Heaven is not a quiet place. It rejoices. When a single person turns from sin and trusts in God, the angels rejoice and the Father himself is glad. Your repentance was a reason for celebration in heaven.

“One sinner who repents.” One, not a crowd. Each person matters to God. The shepherd left ninety-nine to seek one. Repentance here means a change of mind and direction, turning from self and sin to God.

“Ninety-nine righteous persons who need no repentance.” Jesus says this with irony, for the Pharisees thought they were righteous. In truth, everyone needs to repent. The only people who miss the party are those who think they do not need it.

If you have ever felt that God is disappointed in you, say this verse. When you come home, he runs to meet you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you prayed Psalm 27 and its bold trust, “Whom shall I fear?”, and Psalm 28, which moves from a cry to praise. Psalm 31:1-18 gave you the prayer “Into your hand I commit my spirit,” and “My times are in your hand.” In Luke 13 to 19 you heard Jesus warn about the narrow door and tell the stories of the lost sheep, the lost coin, and the lost son, in which a father runs to meet a returning child. You listened to his hard words about money, the rich man and Lazarus, the ten lepers, and the coming of the kingdom. You saw a widow persist in prayer, a tax collector go home justified, a blind man receive his sight, and Zacchaeus climb down from a tree. You read the verse that sums up the Gospel: “The Son of Man came to seek and to save the lost.”

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

In the parable of the lost son, the father runs to meet the returning child. What does this tell you about how God receives you when you come back to him?

Jesus said he came to seek and to save the lost (19:10). How does his seeking of Zacchaeus, and of you, show who Jesus is?

The tax collector prayed, “God, be merciful to me, a sinner.” Where do you need to stop justifying yourself and simply ask for mercy?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that heaven rejoices over one sinner who repents.

Thank him for seeking you and bringing you home.

Ask him to keep you from the elder brother’s spirit.

DAY 624 · WEEK 90

Luke 19:28-21:38

The Entry; controversies; the widow's offering; signs of the end

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 116 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 19:28-21:38. The King rides into Jerusalem, weeps over the city, cleanses the temple, and teaches there while the leaders try to trap him. It ends with his words about the end of the age. Read it as the week before the cross.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The long journey is over. Jesus comes to Jerusalem at the time of Passover. For the next few days he teaches in the temple, answering questions from priests, scribes, Pharisees, Sadducees, and the Herodians. Each group tries to catch him in his words, and each is silenced. Luke records the events in an orderly way, and the shadow of the cross lies over every scene.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Blessed is the King who comes in the name of the Lord! Peace in heaven and glory in the highest!" (19:38).
2. "Would that you, even you, had known on this day the things that make for peace!" (19:42).
3. "It is written, And my house shall be a house of prayer, but you have made it a den of robbers" (19:46).
4. "The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone" (20:17).
5. "Then render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's" (20:25).
6. "Now he is not God of the dead but of the living, for all live to him" (20:38).

7. “Truly, I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all of them” (21:3).

8. “Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away” (21:33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus sends two disciples for a colt that no one has ever ridden. As he rides toward the city, the crowd of disciples spreads cloaks on the road and cries out, “Blessed is the King who comes in the name of the Lord!” Zechariah 9:9 is being fulfilled. When the Pharisees ask him to rebuke them, he says that if they were silent, the very stones would cry out.

But as he draws near and sees the city, he weeps. He knows that Jerusalem does not recognize the time of her visitation, and he foretells its destruction, which came in AD 70. The King who enters in triumph weeps for those who reject him.

In the temple he drives out those who sell, saying the house is meant to be a house of prayer. Then he teaches daily, and the chief priests and scribes seek to destroy him but cannot find a way, because all the people hang on his words.

They challenge his authority, and he answers with a question about John’s baptism. They will not answer, so neither will he. Then he tells the parable of the wicked tenants. A man plants a vineyard and sends servants, who are beaten, and finally his beloved son, whom they kill. This is the story of Israel’s leaders and of Jesus himself. He quotes Psalm 118: the rejected stone becomes the cornerstone.

Then come the traps. Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar? “Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to God the things that are God’s.” The Sadducees, who deny the resurrection, ask about the woman married to seven brothers. Jesus answers that those who rise are like angels and that God is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, “not God of the dead but of the living.” Then Jesus asks his own question: how can the Christ be David’s son, when David calls him Lord (Psalm 110)? Because he is both. Jesus warns against the scribes who devour widows’ houses, and then points out a poor widow who put in two small coins. She gave all she had.

The last chapter is the Olivet discourse, speaking of the destruction of the temple, persecution, signs in the sun, moon, and stars, and the coming of the Son of Man with power and great glory. Jesus’ call is: “Straighten up and raise your heads, because your redemption is drawing near.” Stay awake, and pray that you may have strength to stand before the Son of Man. Interpreters differ on how to divide what refers to AD 70 and what refers to the end of the age, but the pastoral aim is clear: be watchful, and do not be afraid.

STEP 5

Connection

Zechariah 9:9 is the prophecy of the humble king on a donkey. Psalm 118:22-26 is the background to the crowd's shout and the cornerstone. Isaiah 5:1-7 is the vineyard song behind the tenants. Psalm 110:1 is the verse Jesus asks about. Jeremiah 7:11 is the "den of robbers." Daniel 7:13-14 describes the Son of Man coming with the clouds. Exodus 3:6 is the verse Jesus cites for the resurrection. Romans 13:1-7 teaches about the state.

STEP 6

Application

Welcome Jesus as King today. Is there an area of your life where you would rather he not enter?

Give something to God out of what you need, not just out of your surplus, like the widow.

Practice watchfulness. Pray for strength for whatever is ahead.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Welcome Jesus as King, and tell him what you want to lay at his feet.
- Ask him to give you tears for what he weeps over.
- Ask him to teach you to give, like the widow, all you have.

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 31:19-24. This is the second half of the psalm you read on Day 619. After the trouble, the singer turns to thanks. Read it with the verses 1 to 18 fresh in your mind.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The first half of Psalm 31 was a prayer in the middle of distress. These closing verses look back from the other side. David has been heard, and he reflects on the goodness of God that is stored up for those who trust him. He ends by calling all God's people to love him and take courage.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh, how abundant is your goodness" (v. 19).
2. "stored up for those who fear you" (v. 19).
3. "In the cover of your presence you hide them from the plots of men" (v. 20).
4. "he has wondrously shown his steadfast love to me when I was in a besieged city" (v. 21).
5. "I had said in my alarm, I am cut off from your sight" (v. 22).
6. "you heard the voice of my pleas for mercy" (v. 22).
7. "Love the LORD, all you his saints!" (v. 23).
8. "Be strong, and let your heart take courage, all who wait for the LORD!" (v. 24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Verse 19 is an exclamation: “Oh, how abundant is your goodness!” David is overwhelmed. The goodness of God is not scarce, and it is stored up, like treasure in a storehouse, for those who fear him and take refuge in him. It is given “in the sight of the children of mankind,” so that others can see.

Verse 20 describes how it is delivered. God hides his people “in the cover of your presence” from the plots of men and “in your shelter from the strife of tongues.” David had been slandered (see verse 13), and he knows that God’s nearness is the safest place.

In verse 21, he blesses the LORD for showing steadfast love in a “besieged city.” He had felt trapped, surrounded, and helpless. Then he admits, “I had said in my alarm, I am cut off from your sight.” This is the honest confession of a believer who felt abandoned. But he was not. “You heard the voice of my pleas for mercy when I cried to you for help.” What he felt in alarm was not the truth. God had been listening all along.

Then David turns outward. “Love the LORD, all you his saints!” He has learned something he wants others to know. The LORD preserves the faithful, and abundantly repays the proud. And the last words are an encouragement: “Be strong, and let your heart take courage, all who wait for the LORD.”

Read this beside Luke 19 to 21. Jesus entered a besieged city in the week of his death. He felt the plots of men. Yet he was not cut off, and the Father vindicated him. And because of the cross, the goodness stored up for those who take refuge in God is ours.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 27:13-14 ends with almost the same call to wait and take courage. Psalm 34:8-10 says to taste and see that the LORD is good. Isaiah 64:4 and 1 Corinthians 2:9 speak of what God has prepared for those who wait for him. Romans 8:35-39 says nothing can separate us from the love of God. Ephesians 1:3 says he has blessed us with every spiritual blessing. Jonah 2:4 echoes the feeling of being cast out from his sight.

STEP 6

Application

Make a list of the goodness God has stored up and given you. Thank him for each one.

Remember a time you felt cut off from God and he was close. Write it down.

Tell a friend, as David does: love the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for goodness he has stored up for those who fear him.

Thank him for hiding you in the cover of his presence.

Ask him to make you strong and take heart.

Psalm 41

Blessed is the one who considers the poor

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 41. It closes the first book of the Psalter. Notice verse 9, which Jesus applies to Judas in John 13, and the blessing for those who care for the poor at the beginning.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 41 is a psalm of David written in illness, when enemies gloated and a close friend turned against him. It begins with a beatitude for the one who considers the poor, and it ends with a doxology that closes the first of the five books of the Psalms. It comes in the plan at the point in Luke where the shadow of betrayal falls.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Blessed is the one who considers the poor! In the day of trouble the LORD delivers him” (v. 1).
2. “The LORD sustains him on his sickbed; in his illness you restore him to full health” (v. 3).
3. “As for me, I said, O LORD, be gracious to me; heal me, for I have sinned against you!” (v. 4).
4. “My enemies say of me in malice: When will he die, and his name perish?” (v. 5).
5. “Even my close friend in whom I trusted, who ate my bread, has lifted his heel against me” (v. 9).
6. “By this I know that you delight in me: my enemy will not shout in triumph over me” (v. 11).

7. “But you have upheld me because of my integrity, and set me in your presence forever” (v. 12).

8. “Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting! Amen and Amen” (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a blessing on those who consider the poor. This means paying attention, thinking about, and caring for the weak. The reward is that the LORD delivers them in the day of trouble, protects them, keeps them alive, and sustains them on a sickbed.

Then David turns to his own distress. He is sick, and he prays, “O LORD, be gracious to me; heal me, for I have sinned against you!” He does not claim innocence. He asks for mercy, trusting that God’s grace is greater than his guilt.

His enemies wait for him to die. Visitors come with empty words, and then go out to spread slander. “They imagine the worst for me.” Then comes the sharpest pain: “Even my close friend in whom I trusted, who ate my bread, has lifted his heel against me.” Betrayal by someone who shared your table is a particular kind of grief.

Jesus quotes this verse at the Last Supper (John 13:18) about Judas. David’s betrayal by his friend, probably Ahithophel, is a pattern of the greater betrayal of the Son of David. In Luke 22, Jesus eats the Passover with his betrayer at the table.

David asks to be raised up, so that he may repay them. But he trusts that God delights in him because the enemy has not triumphed. “You have upheld me because of my integrity, and set me in your presence forever.” David’s integrity is not sinlessness but the sincerity of one who has confessed and been forgiven. The end of the psalm is the doxology that closes Book I: “Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting! Amen and Amen.”

For Christians, the one who truly considered the poor, who bore betrayal, and who was upheld and raised up forever, is Jesus.

STEP 5

Connection

John 13:18 quotes verse 9. 2 Samuel 15 to 17 tells of Ahithophel’s betrayal of David. Matthew 26:14-16 and Luke 22:3-6 describe Judas’s betrayal. Proverbs 14:21 and 19:17 speak of kindness to the poor. Psalm 72:12-14 says the king delivers the needy. 2 Corinthians 8:9 says Christ became poor for our sake. Matthew 25:31-46 describes the judgment in terms of care for the least.

STEP 6

Application

Consider the poor this week: give, visit, or serve someone in need.

If you have been betrayed, bring it to the LORD in prayer. Forgive as he leads you.

Pray David's prayer in verse 4 honestly, naming your sins and asking for grace.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to be gracious and heal you, and tell him your sin.
- Ask him to teach you to consider the poor.
- Thank Jesus, who knows the pain of betrayal.

DAY 627 · WEEK 90

Psalm 55:1-23

My companion stretched out his hand against me

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Psalm · 23 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 55:1-23. David's closest friend betrays him, and he longs to fly away. Notice the turn in verse 22, and read it against the betrayal in Luke 22.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 55 is a psalm of David, probably from the time of Absalom's rebellion, when his trusted advisor Ahithophel joined the conspiracy. David is in anguish. The city is full of violence, and the one who hurt him the most was a friend. It is one of the most honest psalms about betrayal, and it ends with one of the most quoted verses in the Psalter.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Give ear to my prayer, O God, and hide not yourself from my plea for mercy!" (v. 1).
2. "My heart is in anguish within me; the terrors of death have fallen upon me" (v. 4).
3. "Oh, that I had wings like a dove! I would fly away and be at rest" (v. 6).
4. "But it is you, a man, my equal, my companion, my familiar friend" (v. 13).
5. "We used to take sweet counsel together; within God's house we walked in the throng" (v. 14).
6. "His speech was smooth as butter, yet war was in his heart" (v. 21).
7. "Cast your burden on the LORD, and he will sustain you; he will never permit the righteous to be moved" (v. 22).
8. "But I will trust in you" (v. 23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David begins with a plea: “Give ear to my prayer.” He is restless, he moans, his heart is in anguish. Fear and trembling overwhelm him, and horror covers him. In the middle of that, he wishes he could escape: “Oh, that I had wings like a dove! I would fly away and be at rest.” Everyone has felt this. We want to flee the pain, find a quiet place, and wait out the storm.

The city is full of violence and strife, and iniquity and trouble are within it. But what hurts most is not the enemy outside. “It is not an enemy who taunts me; then I could bear it… But it is you, a man, my equal, my companion, my familiar friend.” They had walked together to the house of God. The betrayer had broken covenant. His speech was smooth as butter, “yet war was in his heart.”

Notice what David does. He does not hide his rage. He asks God to confuse the tongues of the wicked and to bring them down. But he also does something more: he calls on God, evening, morning, and noon, and God hears.

And then, the center of the psalm: “Cast your burden on the LORD, and he will sustain you; he will never permit the righteous to be moved.” David speaks to himself and to us. A burden you cannot carry can be put on someone who can. The word here is gift or lot, whatever has been given to you. Give it to the LORD, and he will hold you up. The final line is a short declaration: “But I will trust in you.”

Peter later quotes this verse: “Casting all your anxieties on him, because he cares for you.” And Jesus, betrayed in a garden by a friend with a kiss, lived this psalm. He cast his burden on the Father. In Gethsemane he prayed, “Not my will, but yours,” and he was sustained. His betrayal means that when we are betrayed, we have a High Priest who understands.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Samuel 15:12 and 17:23 tell of Ahithophel’s betrayal and death. Psalm 41:9 uses the same betrayal imagery. Matthew 26:47-50 shows Judas’s kiss. Luke 22:48 is Jesus’ word to Judas. 1 Peter 5:7 quotes verse 22. Philippians 4:6-7 invites us to bring everything to God in prayer. Hebrews 4:15 says Jesus can sympathize with our weaknesses. Matthew 11:28 invites the weary to come to him.

STEP 6

Application

Name your burden aloud and give it to the LORD. Do it again when it returns.

If you are tempted to run, ask where you can find rest, then go to him in prayer.

Pray for the one who hurt you. Entrust the justice to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God the anguish of your heart.
- Cast your burden on him and tell him what it is.
- Thank him that he sustains you.

Luke 22:1-46

The Last Supper; teaching on greatness; Gethsemane

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 46 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 22:1-46. The plot, the betrayal bargain, the Last Supper, the argument about greatness, Peter's warning, and Gethsemane. Read slowly, and let the Supper words settle.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is the week of Passover. The religious leaders are looking for a way to put Jesus to death without upsetting the people. Satan enters Judas. In an upper room, Jesus eats the Passover with his disciples and gives the meal a new meaning. Then he leads them to the Mount of Olives to pray, as was his custom. Luke's account is among the most intimate in the Gospels.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Then Satan entered into Judas called Iscariot, who was of the number of the twelve" (22:3).
2. "I have earnestly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (22:15).
3. "This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me" (22:19).
4. "This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood" (22:20).
5. "But not so with you. Rather, let the greatest among you become as the youngest, and the leader as one who serves" (22:26).
6. "But I have prayed for you that your faith may not fail. And when you have turned again, strengthen your brothers" (22:32).
7. "Father, if you are willing, remove this cup from me. Nevertheless, not my will, but yours, be done" (22:42).

8 “Why are you sleeping? Rise and pray that you may not enter into temptation” (22:46).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Luke moves quickly. The leaders are afraid of the people, and Satan enters Judas, who agrees to betray Jesus for money. Meanwhile Jesus sends Peter and John to prepare the Passover meal.

At the table, Jesus says, “I have earnestly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer.” He takes bread and says, “This is my body, given for you,” and after supper takes the cup and says, “This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood.” This is the heart of the chapter. The Passover remembered the lamb whose blood spared Israel in Egypt. Now Jesus says that his body and blood will be given for his people. He is the Lamb, and the new covenant promised in Jeremiah 31 is being inaugurated by his death. Christians have disagreed about exactly how Christ is present in the Supper, but all agree that he commanded the church to keep it, and that it proclaims his death until he comes.

At the table, Jesus names his betrayer, and the disciples argue about which of them is the greatest. It is one of the saddest scenes in the Gospels. Jesus answers with a reversal: the kings of the Gentiles lord it over them, but “not so with you.” The greatest must be as the youngest, and the leader as one who serves. “I am among you as the one who serves.” Then he promises that they will sit on thrones, a covenant of kingdom from his Father.

He turns to Peter: “Satan demanded to have you, that he might sift you like wheat, but I have prayed for you that your faith may not fail.” Notice that Jesus does not say he will keep Peter from falling. He says he has prayed that his faith will not fail, and that Peter will turn again and strengthen his brothers. Jesus foretells Peter’s denial, and Peter swears he will never deny him.

On the Mount of Olives, Jesus withdraws a stone’s throw and prays: “Father, if you are willing, remove this cup from me. Nevertheless, not my will, but yours, be done.” An angel strengthens him. Then in agony he prays more earnestly. (Some early manuscripts omit verses 43 and 44, but the scene they describe fits the whole.) He finds the disciples sleeping from sorrow. “Rise and pray that you may not enter into temptation.” The Son does what Adam did not: he submits to the will of the Father.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 12 is the Passover. Jeremiah 31:31-34 promises the new covenant. Isaiah 53:12 says he poured out his soul to death. 1 Corinthians 11:23-26 is Paul’s account of the Supper. Hebrews 5:7-8 describes the prayers and cries of Jesus. Mark 10:42-45 is the parallel on servant leadership. John 13:1-17 shows Jesus washing the disciples' feet. 1 Peter 5:8 warns that the devil prowls like a roaring lion.

STEP 6

Application

When you receive the Lord's Supper, think about each word: broken for you, poured out for you.

Practice the service of the one who serves. Do something humble for someone today, unseen if possible.

Pray Jesus' prayer in your hardest decision: "Not my will, but yours."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for the Passover he earnestly desired to eat with his disciples.
- Tell him about the cup you are afraid to drink, and pray, "Not my will but yours."
- Ask him to help you stay awake and pray.

Luke 22:47-23:25

Arrest; trials; Peter's denial; before Pilate and Herod

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 50 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 22:47-23:25. The arrest, Peter's denial, the mockery, and the trials before the council, Pilate, and Herod. Notice how many times Jesus is declared innocent.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Judas arrives with a crowd, and Jesus is arrested at night. He is taken to the high priest's house while Peter follows at a distance. Before dawn he stands before the council, then before Pilate, the Roman governor, then Herod Antipas, and again Pilate. Luke stresses that Jesus is innocent. Pilate says so three times, and Herod finds nothing worthy of death.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Judas, would you betray the Son of Man with a kiss?" (22:48).
2. "But this is your hour, and the power of darkness" (22:53).
3. "And the Lord turned and looked at Peter. And Peter remembered the saying of the Lord" (22:61).
4. "And he went out and wept bitterly" (22:62).
5. "You say that I am" (22:70).
6. "I find no guilt in this man" (23:4).
7. "Why? What evil has he done? I have found in him no guilt deserving death" (23:22).
8. "But he delivered Jesus over to their will" (23:25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus is arrested in the garden. A disciple cuts off the ear of the high priest's servant, and Jesus says, "No more of this!" and heals the ear. This is the last healing Luke records, and it is for one of those arresting him. Jesus tells the crowd, "This is your hour, and the power of darkness." Everything is happening by God's plan, yet the guilt is real.

Peter follows at a distance, and in the courtyard denies knowing Jesus three times. Then the rooster crows, and "the Lord turned and looked at Peter." Only Luke tells us this. In that look Peter remembered, "and he went out and wept bitterly." The look was not condemnation but love. Jesus had prayed for Peter, and the prayer was working.

Jesus is mocked and beaten. At dawn the council asks if he is the Christ, and he replies, "From now on the Son of Man shall be seated at the right hand of the power of God." They ask, "Are you the Son of God?" and he says, "You say that I am." They have what they want.

They take him to Pilate and accuse him of misleading the nation, forbidding tribute to Caesar, and claiming to be a king. Pilate asks if he is the King of the Jews and then declares, "I find no guilt in this man." When he learns Jesus is a Galilean, he sends him to Herod, who has wanted to see him for a long time and hopes for a sign. Jesus is silent. Herod and his soldiers mock him and send him back. "That same day Herod and Pilate became friends." The powers of the world unite against the Son of God.

Pilate tries three times to release him. "I have found in him no guilt deserving death." But the crowd shouts, "Crucify him!" and asks for Barabbas, a murderer. Pilate gives in. "He delivered Jesus over to their will." An innocent man took the place of a guilty one. Barabbas is a picture of every sinner: set free because Jesus stood in his place.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 53:7 says he opened not his mouth. Psalm 41:9 and 55:12-14 describe betrayal by a friend. Zechariah 13:7 foretold the striking of the shepherd. Isaiah 50:6 describes the servant who gave his back to those who strike. Psalm 2:1-2 describes the rulers gathering against the LORD and his anointed. Acts 4:25-28 applies that psalm to Herod and Pilate. 1 Peter 2:22-24 says he committed no sin and bore our sins in his body.

STEP 6

Application

Consider Peter. Have you denied Jesus in word or silence? Let his look of love meet you, and weep as Peter did.

Notice how the innocent one is silent. Where do you need to hold your tongue?

Thank Jesus for being your Barabbas substitute.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for being betrayed, denied, and mocked for you.

Confess where you have denied him.

Thank him that he looked at Peter, and ask him to look at you.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me."

LUKE 22:19

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this at the table on the night before his death. He takes the Passover bread, gives thanks, breaks it, and gives it to his disciples. In a few hours he will be arrested, and he knows it.

"This is my body." At the Passover, Israel ate bread and remembered the exodus. Jesus takes the bread of that meal and attaches it to himself. His body will be broken, and the true exodus from sin and death will come through him. Christians have understood the exact nature of the bread in different ways, but all hold that this meal is about Christ.

"Which is given for you." The word "for" is the heart of the gospel. He is not simply a martyr or an example. His body is given in your place, on your behalf. And it is personal: for you.

"Do this." Jesus gives a command. The Lord's Supper is not optional for the church. It is a gift and an instruction, and it has been kept for two thousand years.

“In remembrance of me.” To remember in the Bible is more than recalling a fact. It is to bring the past into the present, to be fed by it, and to proclaim it. When we take the bread and the cup, we look back to the cross, look up to the risen Christ, and look forward to the day he comes again.

When you doubt that you are loved, say this verse. His body was given for you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read Psalm 31:19-24, where the goodness of God is stored up for those who fear him, and Psalm 41 and Psalm 55, where David’s own friend lifted his heel against him, and where he learned to cast his burden on the LORD. In Luke 19 to 21 the King rode into Jerusalem, wept over it, cleansed the temple, and silenced every question. He praised a poor widow and spoke of his return. In Luke 22 and 23 you came to the upper room, where Jesus gave the bread and the cup of the new covenant, and to Gethsemane, where he prayed, “Not my will, but yours.” You watched him be betrayed with a kiss, denied by Peter, mocked, declared innocent three times, and handed over to the crowd in place of Barabbas.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said his body was given “for you” and his blood poured out for you. What does it mean to you personally that he did this?

In Gethsemane, Jesus prayed, “Not my will, but yours, be done.” How does his submission to the Father shape the way you pray when you face something hard?

Peter denied Jesus, and Jesus looked at him. Where do you need to receive that look of love, rather than of condemnation?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Remember Jesus with the bread and the cup, in your own words.

Thank him for his body given and his blood poured out.

Rest in what he did.

DAY 631 · WEEK 91

Luke 23:26-56

The crucifixion, "Father, forgive them"; the burial

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 31 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 23:26-56. The road to the cross, the crucifixion, two criminals, the death of Jesus, and his burial. This is the center of the Gospel. Read slowly and in silence if you can.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is led out of Jerusalem to a place called The Skull, carrying his cross, and a bystander, Simon of Cyrene, is forced to carry it for him. A great crowd follows, including women who mourn. Luke's account is marked by mercy. Even on the cross, Jesus forgives his killers and promises paradise to a dying criminal.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children" (23:28).
2. "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do" (23:34).
3. "He saved others; let him save himself, if he is the Christ of God, his Chosen One!" (23:35).
4. "Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom" (23:42).
5. "Truly, I say to you, today you will be with me in paradise" (23:43).
6. "And the curtain of the temple was torn in two" (23:45).
7. "Father, into your hands I commit my spirit!" (23:46).
8. "Now there was a man named Joseph… a good and righteous man" (23:50).

STEP 4

Interpretation

On the way, Jesus turns to the weeping women and tells them to weep for themselves and for their children. He is thinking of Jerusalem's coming judgment. Even on his way to die, he cares for others.

At the cross, they crucify him between two criminals. His first words in Luke's account are a prayer: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." This is the opposite of what any of us would pray. The soldiers divide his garments by lot, the rulers sneer, the soldiers mock him, and a sign over his head reads, "This is the King of the Jews." The mockers say, "Save yourself." They don't realize that he is saving others precisely by not saving himself.

One criminal joins the mockery. The other rebukes him: "Do you not fear God?" He acknowledges that they are justly condemned, but this man has done nothing wrong. Then he says, "Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom." This is faith in its barest form. He has no good works, no time to be baptized, and no way to make amends. He asks only to be remembered. And Jesus answers, "Today you will be with me in paradise." This is the gospel in a sentence: salvation by grace through faith, immediately, for a dying thief.

Darkness covers the land for three hours, and the curtain of the temple tears in two. The way into the presence of God is now open through the death of Jesus. Then he cries with a loud voice, "Father, into your hands I commit my spirit!" He quotes Psalm 31:5, which you prayed on Day 619, and breathes his last. He does not lose his life. He gives it. The centurion praises God and says, "Certainly this man was innocent!" The crowds go home beating their breasts.

Joseph of Arimathea, a member of the council who had not consented to the plan, asks for the body and lays it in a new tomb. The women from Galilee see where it is laid, prepare spices, and rest on the Sabbath according to the commandment. The body is in the tomb. Everything depends on what happens next.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 53:4-12 describes the servant who bore our griefs, was numbered with the transgressors, and made intercession. Psalm 22 begins with the cry of forsakenness and ends in praise. Psalm 31:5 is the prayer Jesus prays. Exodus 26:31-33 describes the curtain before the Holy of Holies. Hebrews 10:19-22 says we have confidence to enter the holy places by the blood of Jesus. Romans 5:8 shows his love for sinners. Acts 7:60 has Stephen echoing the prayer for forgiveness.

STEP 6

Application

Sit with the cross for ten minutes in silence. Do not rush to the resurrection.

Pray the thief's prayer: "Jesus, remember me." It is enough.

Forgive someone as Jesus forgave. If you can't yet, ask him for the willingness.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for praying, "Father, forgive them," and ask him to forgive you.

Pray the thief's prayer: "Jesus, remember me."

Thank him for the promise of paradise.

Luke 24:1-53

The resurrection; Emmaus; the ascension

Year 2 · Unit 16 · Reading · 53 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Luke 24:1-53. The empty tomb, the road to Emmaus, the appearance to the disciples, and the ascension. This is the climax of the Gospel and the key to reading the whole Bible.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

On the first day of the week, at early dawn, the women come to the tomb with spices. The disciples are scattered and afraid. Luke's last chapter takes place in a single day: the morning at the tomb, the afternoon on the road to Emmaus, and the evening in Jerusalem. It ends with the ascension, and leads straight into the book of Acts.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Why do you seek the living among the dead? He is not here, but has risen" (24:5-6).
2. "But we had hoped that he was the one to redeem Israel" (24:21).
3. "O foolish ones, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken!" (24:25).
4. "And beginning with Moses and all the Prophets, he interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself" (24:27).
5. "Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked to us on the road, while he opened to us the Scriptures?" (24:32).
6. "See my hands and my feet, that it is I myself. Touch me, and see" (24:39).
7. "Thus it is written, that the Christ should suffer and on the third day rise from the dead, and that repentance for the forgiveness of sins should be proclaimed in his name to all nations" (24:46-47).

8 “And they worshiped him and returned to Jerusalem with great joy” (24:52).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The women find the stone rolled away and the tomb empty. Two men in dazzling clothes say, “Why do you seek the living among the dead? He is not here, but has risen.” They remind the women of what Jesus said in Galilee. The women tell the apostles, but the words seem to them an idle tale, and they do not believe. Peter runs to the tomb, sees the linen cloths, and goes home marveling.

That afternoon, two disciples walk to Emmaus, discussing the events. A stranger joins them, and they do not recognize him. He asks what they are talking about, and they stand still, looking sad. “We had hoped that he was the one to redeem Israel.” Their hope was crushed. The stranger replies, “O foolish ones, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken! Was it not necessary that the Christ should suffer these things and enter into his glory?” And “beginning with Moses and all the Prophets, he interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself.”

This is the key to reading the whole Bible. All of Scripture, from Moses to the Prophets, points to Christ: his sufferings and his glory. The Old Testament is not a collection of unrelated stories. It is a single story that leads to him. This is the reason the Old Testament is read with the cross in view. At supper, in the breaking of the bread, their eyes were opened and they recognized him, and he vanished. “Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked to us on the road, while he opened to us the Scriptures?” They returned to Jerusalem the same hour.

While they are telling the others, Jesus himself stands among them and says, “Peace to you!” They think he is a ghost, and he shows them his hands and feet and eats a piece of broiled fish. The resurrection was bodily. Then he opens their minds to understand the Scriptures and says that everything written about him in the Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms must be fulfilled. The Christ suffers and rises, and repentance and forgiveness of sins are to be proclaimed in his name to all nations, beginning from Jerusalem. “You are witnesses of these things.” He promises the gift of the Holy Spirit, “the promise of my Father.”

He leads them out to Bethany, lifts up his hands, blesses them, and is carried up into heaven. They worship him and return to Jerusalem with great joy, continually in the temple blessing God. The Gospel that began in the temple with a priest who was struck silent ends in the temple with a people full of praise.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 53 and Psalm 22 are among the passages about the suffering and glory of the Christ. Genesis 3:15, Deuteronomy 18:15, 2 Samuel 7, and Psalm 110 are all part of the testimony. Acts 1:1-11 continues the story. 1 Corinthians 15:3-8 lists the appearances of the risen Christ. John 20:19-29 gives the parallel appearances. 2 Timothy 3:15 says the Scriptures are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. Hebrews 1:1-2 says God has spoken by his Son.

STEP 6

Application

Think of an Old Testament passage you have loved, and ask: where does it point to Christ?

When you feel your hopes are crushed, remember that the stranger on the road was alive.

Ask the Lord to open the Scriptures to you, so that your heart burns as you read.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus that he is alive, and walks with the discouraged.
- Ask him to open your mind to understand the Scriptures.
- Ask him to make your heart burn as you read.

Unit Verse

> LUKE 19:10

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this to the crowd that grumbled that he had gone to be the guest of a sinner. Zacchaeus has just given half his goods to the poor, and Jesus replies with his own mission statement.

"For the Son of Man." This is Jesus' favorite title for himself. It comes from Daniel 7, the one who receives dominion from the Ancient of Days, and it also speaks of his humanity. He is the glorious King and the humble servant.

"Came." He came on purpose. Salvation is not a rescue improvised in an emergency. The Son came from the Father with a mission, and Luke has shown it from the manger to the empty tomb.

"To seek." God is the one who seeks. In Luke 15 the shepherd goes after the sheep, the woman searches for the coin, and the father watches the road. Christianity is not a story of humans reaching up for God but of God reaching down. Even our seeking is a response to being sought.

"And to save." The seeking has a purpose, and the purpose is rescue. He came to give his life as a ransom, as he showed on the cross.

"The lost." That is who he seeks. Not the confident or the righteous in their own eyes, but those who know they are lost, like Zacchaeus in his tree, the thief on the cross, the prodigal in the pigsty, and you.

When you feel too far gone, say this verse. You are exactly who he came for.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

You have read the whole Gospel of Luke, and the thread running through it is that salvation is for everyone, including those the world overlooks. It opens with songs: Mary's Magnificat, in which God lifts up the lowly and sends the rich away empty, and Zechariah's Benedictus, which celebrates a God who keeps his covenant. The Savior is born in a manger, announced first to shepherds, and welcomed by Simeon and Anna as a light for the Gentiles. In Nazareth he reads Isaiah 61 and declares that the Scripture is fulfilled in him. He is filled with the Holy Spirit, and he prays at every turning point, before his baptism, before choosing the Twelve, on the mountain, and in the garden. He eats with sinners, honors a centurion's faith, and forgives a woman who loves much. On the road to Jerusalem he teaches the parables found only in Luke: the Good Samaritan, the rich fool, the lost sheep, the lost coin, the lost son, Lazarus, the Pharisee and the tax collector. He meets Zacchaeus and says that he came to seek and save the lost. In Jerusalem he institutes the new covenant in his blood, prays in Gethsemane, is betrayed and denied, declared innocent, and crucified. He forgives his killers, promises paradise to a thief, and commits his spirit to the Father. On the third day he rises and walks with two discouraged disciples, opening to them all the Scriptures concerning himself. The Gospel ends with the commission to preach repentance and forgiveness to all nations, and the promise of the Spirit. Along the way you also prayed Psalms 113, 116, 117, 27, 28, 31, 41, and 55, which gave words to the praise, trust, and betrayal in the story.

REFLECT

Review Questions

What does the Magnificat reveal about the kind of salvation God brings?

Reread Luke 1:46-55 and Psalm 113. Notice the reversal of the proud and the lowly, and the link to the promise made to Abraham. Write a few sentences about how this song sets the tone for the whole Gospel.

How does Luke emphasize the role of the Holy Spirit?

Think of the Spirit's presence at John's birth, Mary's conception, Jesus' baptism, the wilderness, Nazareth, and the promise of the Father in chapter 24. What difference does the Spirit make in Jesus' life, and what does he promise for his followers?

What does Luke's emphasis on prayer teach us about Jesus' own spiritual life?

Recall the times Jesus prayed: at his baptism, before choosing the Twelve, in desolate places, on the mountain, in Gethsemane, and on the cross. Pick one and describe what it shows about his dependence on the Father and what it means for your own prayer.

How does the road to Emmaus teach us how to read the whole Bible?

Reread Luke 24:25-27 and 24:44-47. Jesus says that Moses, the Prophets, and the Psalms are about him. Name one Old Testament passage from this plan that you now read differently because of this, and explain how it points to Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for sending his Son to seek and save the lost, and for finding you.

Tell him what you have seen in Jesus through Luke.

Ask him to keep the unit verse before you.

DAY 634 · WEEK 91

John 1:1-51

The Word made flesh; the first disciples, "come and see"

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 51 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 1:1-51. John begins before creation, with the Word, then moves to John the Baptist, the first disciples, and Nathanael. Read verses 1-18 slowly, as the prologue to the whole Gospel.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

John was one of the Twelve, the disciple whom Jesus loved, and he wrote this Gospel late in his life. He tells us his purpose near the end: that we may believe Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and have life in his name. His Gospel is different from Matthew, Mark, and Luke. It contains very little of the parables and much more of Jesus' long conversations, and it is built around seven signs and seven "I AM" statements. It begins with a hymn that takes us back to the beginning of everything.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (1:1).
2. "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it" (1:5).
3. "But to all who did receive him, who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God" (1:12).
4. "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we have seen his glory, glory as of the only Son from the Father, full of grace and truth" (1:14).
5. "No one has ever seen God; the only God, who is at the Father's side, he has made him known" (1:18).

6. “Behold, the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!” (1:29).
7. “Philip said to him, Come and see” (1:46).
8. “You will see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of Man” (1:51).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Gospel opens with the words of Genesis 1:1, “In the beginning.” But now the focus is not on creation but on the one through whom it came. The Word was with God (distinct from the Father) and the Word was God (fully divine). He was in the beginning, so he is eternal. “All things were made through him,” so he is Creator. In him was life, and that life was the light of men.

Then John says that the light shines in the darkness and the darkness has not overcome it. He introduces John the Baptist, a witness who points to the light. The true light came into the world, yet the world did not know him, and his own people did not receive him. But to those who did receive him, he gave the right to become children of God, born not of blood or the will of the flesh but of God. That promise is the core of the Gospel.

Verse 14 is the center of the prologue: “The Word became flesh and dwelt among us.” The word for dwelt means pitched his tent, an echo of the tabernacle in the wilderness. God has come to live with his people in a person. “We have seen his glory,” says John, “full of grace and truth,” which recalls the LORD’s self-revelation to Moses in Exodus 34. The law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. No one has seen God, but the Son has made him known.

The rest of the chapter is a parade of titles. John the Baptist points to Jesus: “Behold, the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!” Andrew finds Peter, saying, “We have found the Messiah.” Philip finds Nathanael, who doubts that anything good could come from Nazareth, and Philip answers with an invitation: “Come and see.” Jesus tells Nathanael that he saw him under the fig tree, and Nathanael confesses, “You are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!” Jesus promises he will see greater things: heaven opened and angels ascending and descending on the Son of Man, an echo of Jacob’s ladder at Bethel. Jesus himself is the meeting place between heaven and earth.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:1-3 is the beginning John echoes. Proverbs 8:22-31 speaks of wisdom beside God at creation. Exodus 25:8 and 33:18-23 are about God dwelling with his people and showing his glory. Exodus 34:6 is the source of “grace and truth.” Isaiah 53:7 is the Lamb. Genesis 28:12 is Jacob's ladder. Hebrews 1:1-3 states that the Son is the radiance of the glory of God. 1 John 1:1-4 is John's own testimony to what he saw and touched.

STEP 6

Application

Read John 1:1-18 aloud three times. Which phrase strikes you most? Write it down.

Take Philip's invitation, "Come and see," and ask yourself who you could invite to see Jesus.

Praise Jesus today as Creator, as the light in darkness, and as the Lamb who takes away sin.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for becoming flesh and making his dwelling among us.

Tell him, "I'll come and see," and ask him to show you more.

Ask him to give you the right to be his child.

The Person of Christ, Incarnation

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 1:1-18, Philippians 2:5-11, and Colossians 1:15-20. Today is a doctrinal pause on the person of Christ: who he is, and what it means that the Word became flesh. Notice what each passage says about his divinity and his humanity.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Three of the greatest passages about Christ in the New Testament come from two authors. John writes a prologue to his Gospel. Paul, writing from prison to the Philippians, quotes what is probably an early hymn. In Colossians, he answers a church troubled by false teaching and puts Christ above all. The church has summarized these teachings in the doctrine of the incarnation: that the eternal Son took on a true human nature without ceasing to be God.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God” (John 1:1).
2. “And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us” (John 1:14).
3. “Who, though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped” (Philippians 2:6).
4. “But emptied himself, by taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men” (Philippians 2:7).

5. “And being found in human form, he humbled himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross” (Philippians 2:8).
6. “And every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father” (Philippians 2:11).
7. “He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation” (Colossians 1:15).
8. “For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell” (Colossians 1:19).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The incarnation is the central miracle of the Christian faith: the eternal Son of God, the second person of the Trinity, took to himself a true human nature, with a body and a soul, and was born of the virgin Mary. He did not stop being God; he added humanity. The church confessed at Chalcedon in AD 451 that Christ is one person in two natures, fully God and fully man, “without confusion, without change, without division, without separation.” Christians have long held this because the Scriptures teach both halves. Jesus is called God, worshiped, and credited with creating all things. And he hungers, thirsts, weeps, grows weary, suffers, and dies. If he were not truly God, he could not save us. If he were not truly man, he could not stand in our place. “Emptied himself” in Philippians 2 does not mean he gave up his divine nature, but that he laid aside the privileges of glory and took the form of a servant. The incarnation is the beginning of his work of redemption: the one who became what we are, so that we might become what he is, children of God.

STEP 4

Interpretation

John tells us who the Word is. He was with God and was God, the agent of creation, the source of life and light. Then comes the most astonishing sentence of the Bible: “The Word became flesh.” The one who made the world entered it. Notice that John does not say the Word “appeared” to be flesh or “entered” a body. He became flesh. He took our nature and lived among us.

Paul gives the path of the incarnation in Philippians 2. Christ Jesus was in the form of God, and did not treat equality with God as something to hold on to. He emptied himself, taking the form of a servant. He humbled himself, became obedient, and went all the way to death on a cross. Therefore God has highly exalted him and given him the name above every name, “that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow.” The pattern is descent and ascent. Paul’s reason for telling the story is practical: “Have this mind among yourselves, which is yours in Christ Jesus.” The incarnation is also a model for humility.

In Colossians, Paul speaks of the cosmic Christ. He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation, which means supreme in rank and not first created, for "by him all things were created." He holds all things together. He is the head of the church, the firstborn from the dead. All the fullness of God dwells in him, and through him God reconciles all things to himself, making peace by the blood of his cross.

Put these three together. The one who made the stars became a baby. The one who holds the universe together was carried by his mother. The one who is Lord of all died on a cross. This is why the church has always been amazed. Our salvation depends on who he is.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 9:6 calls the child "Mighty God." Isaiah 45:23 is the verse Paul uses in Philippians 2:10-11. Hebrews 1:1-4 and 2:14-18 speak of the Son's deity and humanity. 1 Timothy 3:16 calls it a great mystery. 1 John 4:2 says every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God. Galatians 4:4 says God sent his Son, born of woman. Luke 1:35 says the child will be called holy, the Son of God.

STEP 6

Application

Say the Chalcedonian summary aloud: Jesus is fully God and fully man, one person. Thank him for each half.

Read Philippians 2:5 again. Where is Christ calling you to take the form of a servant?

When you feel that God is far away, remember that the Word became flesh and dwelt among us.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship Jesus, the Word who was with God and was God.
- Thank him for emptying himself and taking the form of a servant.
- Tell him what it means that he became one of us.

DAY 636 · WEEK 91

John 2:1-3:36

Cana; Temple cleansing; Nicodemus, born again

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 66 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 2:1-3:36. Jesus turns water into wine at Cana, cleanses the temple, and talks with Nicodemus at night. John the Baptist then speaks of Jesus' increase. Notice that John calls miracles "signs," pointing to something beyond themselves.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

John does not record Jesus' birth or temptation. After the prologue and the first disciples, he moves to a wedding in Cana of Galilee. Jesus' first sign is there. Then he goes to Jerusalem for Passover, clears the temple, and meets a ruler of the Jews, Nicodemus, who comes by night. John 3:16 comes from this conversation and has been called the gospel in a sentence. It is also the anchor verse of this unit.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Do whatever he tells you" (2:5).
2. "This, the first of his signs, Jesus did at Cana in Galilee, and manifested his glory. And his disciples believed in him" (2:11).
3. "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up" (2:19).
4. "Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born again he cannot see the kingdom of God" (3:3).
5. "The wind blows where it wishes, and you hear its sound, but you do not know where it comes from or where it goes. So it is with everyone who is born of the Spirit" (3:8).
6. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life" (3:16).

7. “He must increase, but I must decrease” (3:30).
8. “Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life; whoever does not obey the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God remains on him” (3:36).

STEP 4

Interpretation

At the wedding in Cana, the wine runs out, a serious embarrassment. Mary tells Jesus, and then tells the servants, “Do whatever he tells you.” Jesus has them fill six stone jars, used for Jewish purification, with water, and the water becomes wine, better than what was served before. John says this was the first of Jesus’ signs and “manifested his glory.” The abundance of wine, perhaps 120 to 180 gallons, points to the messianic age, which the prophets described as a feast of wine. The old purification is replaced by the new joy.

In Jerusalem, Jesus drives out the sellers from the temple. When asked for a sign, he says, “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.” John explains that he was speaking about the temple of his body. Jesus is the true place where God and man meet, and he will rise on the third day.

Nicodemus, a Pharisee and a member of the council, comes at night. He recognizes that Jesus is a teacher from God. Jesus replies abruptly: “Unless one is born again he cannot see the kingdom of God.” Nicodemus is puzzled. How can anyone enter the womb a second time? Jesus explains that one must be born of water and the Spirit. The Spirit, like the wind, is sovereign and invisible but his work can be seen. A teacher of Israel should have known this from Ezekiel 36. Jesus then says that as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so the Son of Man must be lifted up, that whoever believes in him may have eternal life.

Then comes verse 16. God’s love is the source. The world is the object, the whole sinful world. The gift is his only Son. The condition is belief, and the result is that we do not perish but have eternal life. The next verse says God did not send his Son to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through him.

The chapter closes with John the Baptist, who rejoices that Jesus is gaining followers. He is the friend of the bridegroom. “He must increase, but I must decrease.” The one who comes from above is above all. And verse 36 sets the choice before everyone: believe and live, or reject and remain under wrath.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 25:6 and Amos 9:13-14 promise abundant wine in the age to come. Psalm 69:9 is the zeal for the house that the disciples recall. Malachi 3:1 promises that the Lord will suddenly come to his temple. Ezekiel 36:25-27 describes the cleansing and the new heart. Numbers 21:4-9 is the bronze serpent. Romans 5:8 and 1 John 4:9-10 echo God's love in giving his Son. Ephesians 2:8-9 says we are saved by grace through faith.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize John 3:16 this week. It is the memory verse for the unit.

Say "He must increase, but I must decrease" as a prayer at the start of your day.

Think of a Nicodemus in your life, a thoughtful person with questions, and pray for them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for revealing his glory.
- Thank him for the new birth, and ask him to keep working in you.
- Tell him you believe, and ask him to deepen it.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we have seen his glory, glory as of the only Son from the Father, full of grace and truth."

JOHN 1:14

REST

Meditation

This single verse is the heart of the Christmas message, and of the whole Gospel of John.

"The Word." In Greek, logos. To Greek readers, it was the rational order behind the universe. To Jewish readers, it was God's creative and revealing speech. John says that this Word is a person, the eternal Son who was with God and was God.

"Became flesh." Flesh means our weak, mortal humanity. He did not hover above it. He took it on. The infinite entered the finite, and the Creator became a creature.

"And dwelt among us." The verb is "tabernacled." Just as God's glory filled the tent in the wilderness, so God's glory now lives in a human body. God has pitched his tent in our neighborhood.

"We have seen his glory." John is a witness. He saw the glory on the mountain, at Cana, and at the cross. It was a glory of weakness as well as power.

“Full of grace and truth.” Grace is God’s free favor. Truth is God’s faithfulness and reality. In Christ we get both.

When you wonder what God is like, say this verse. Look at Jesus.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the Gospel of Luke, with the cross, the thief’s prayer, the empty tomb, and the walk to Emmaus, where Jesus opened the Scriptures and showed that they are about him. Then you began the Gospel of John. The prologue told you that the Word who was with God and was God became flesh and dwelt among us. Your doctrinal pause on the incarnation set John’s words beside Philippians 2 and Colossians 1: the one who made all things emptied himself, became a servant, and died on a cross. In John 2 and 3 you saw Jesus turn water into wine, cleanse the temple, and tell Nicodemus that he must be born again. You met the verse that sums up the Gospel: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son.”

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

John says the Word became flesh and dwelt among us. What does it mean for you that God chose to live among us as a human being?

Jesus’ first sign was turning water into wine, a picture of the joy of the new covenant. How does Jesus bring joy where there was only emptiness?

Nicodemus came by night with questions. What is one honest question you would bring to Jesus right now?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for dwelling among us, full of grace and truth.

Thank him for new birth.

Rest in him.

Regeneration and the New Birth

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 3:1-21, Ezekiel 36:25-27, and Titus 3:3-7. Today is a doctrinal pause on regeneration, the new birth. Notice who does the work in each passage.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus told Nicodemus that a person must be born again. Nicodemus, a teacher of Israel, was confused, and Jesus replied that he should have understood. The promise of a new heart is found in the prophets, especially Ezekiel. In Titus, Paul speaks of the same event in the life of the believer: the washing of regeneration. The doctrine of regeneration is the teaching that God, by his Spirit, gives new spiritual life to those who were dead in sin.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born again he cannot see the kingdom of God” (John 3:3).
2. “Unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God” (John 3:5).
3. “That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit” (John 3:6).
4. “I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you shall be clean from all your uncleannesses” (Ezekiel 36:25).
5. “And I will give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will put within you” (Ezekiel 36:26).

6. “And I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh” (Ezekiel 36:26).

7. “And I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes” (Ezekiel 36:27).

8. “He saved us, not because of works done by us in righteousness, but according to his own mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit” (Titus 3:5).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Regeneration is the act of God by which he gives new spiritual life to a person who was dead in sin. It is the beginning of the Christian life. Jesus calls it being born again or born from above. The Bible teaches that we are born spiritually dead (Ephesians 2:1) and cannot save ourselves. God makes us alive. In the language of Ezekiel, he replaces a heart of stone with a heart of flesh and puts his Spirit within us. As in physical birth, the one being born does not bring about the birth: it is a work of God, “not of the will of man, but of God” (John 1:13). Reformed Christians have generally taught that regeneration comes first in order and produces the faith and repentance by which we respond to the gospel. Other evangelicals place regeneration and faith more closely together, but all agree that salvation is the Spirit’s gift and that those who are born again will show it in a new love for God, new obedience, and perseverance. It is not something we achieve. It is something we receive.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus’ words to Nicodemus show how radical the need is. A morally serious, religious man needs not improvement but new birth. “That which is born of the flesh is flesh.” Human nature cannot produce spiritual life. Only “that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.” Then Jesus compares the Spirit to the wind. You cannot control it, and you cannot predict it, but you can see its effects. The new birth is God’s sovereign work.

The Old Testament had promised it. Ezekiel 36 speaks of a day when God would gather his people, cleanse them with water, give them a new heart, and put his Spirit within them so that they would walk in his ways. This is the new covenant promise, along with Jeremiah 31. When Jesus mentions water and the Spirit, Nicodemus should have thought of this passage. The problem under the old covenant was a heart of stone, a will that would not obey. The solution is not better instruction but a new heart.

Paul says the same in Titus 3. He describes our past: foolish, disobedient, led astray, slaves to passions, hated and hating. Then “the goodness and loving kindness of God our Savior appeared.” He saved us not because of works but according to his own mercy, “by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit, whom he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior." Regeneration is purely a gift, and the result is that we become heirs with the hope of eternal life.

The doctrine comforts and humbles. It humbles because we contributed nothing to our new life. It comforts because the one who began it will finish it. And it presses us to look for the signs of life in ourselves, such as love for Christ, hatred of sin, and a desire to obey, and to pray for those who are dead in sin that God would make them alive.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 31:33 and Ezekiel 11:19-20 also promise a new heart. Deuteronomy 30:6 speaks of the circumcision of the heart. Ephesians 2:1-5 says we were dead in trespasses and God made us alive with Christ. 1 Peter 1:3 and 1:23 speak of being born again. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says anyone in Christ is a new creation. John 1:12-13 says we are born of God. 1 John 3:9 and 5:1 describe those who are born of God.

STEP 6

Application

Look for evidence of the Spirit's work in you: love for God, sorrow for sin, hunger for the Word. Thank God for each.

Pray by name for someone who seems far from God. Ask God to give them a new heart.

Read Ezekiel 36:25-27 as a prayer, in the first person: "Give me a new heart and put your Spirit in me."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for making you alive when you were dead in sin.

Thank him for the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Spirit.

Ask him to show you where new life is evident in you.

DAY 639 · WEEK 92

Psalm 36

Steadfast love extends to the heavens, the fountain of life

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 36. It sets the darkness of the wicked heart beside the vast steadfast love of God, and it ends with the fountain of life. Read verses 5 to 9 aloud.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 36 is a psalm of David, "the servant of the LORD." It begins with a picture of the wicked person, then turns sharply to the character of God. At the center is the fountain of life: "In your light do we see light." It sits well beside John, which says the true light has come into the world and that in him was life.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Transgression speaks to the wicked deep in his heart; there is no fear of God before his eyes" (v. 1).
2. "Your steadfast love, O LORD, extends to the heavens, your faithfulness to the clouds" (v. 5).
3. "Your righteousness is like the mountains of God; your judgments are like the great deep" (v. 6).
4. "How precious is your steadfast love, O God! The children of mankind take refuge in the shadow of your wings" (v. 7).
5. "They feast on the abundance of your house, and you give them drink from the river of your delights" (v. 8).
6. "For with you is the fountain of life; in your light do we see light" (v. 9).

7. “Oh, continue your steadfast love to those who know you, and your righteousness to the upright of heart!” (v. 10).

8. “There the evildoers lie fallen; they are thrust down, unable to rise” (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts in a dark place, the heart of the wicked. Sin whispers to him, and he has no fear of God. He flatters himself, so that he does not see his guilt. His words are trouble and deceit, he plots evil on his bed, and he does not reject what is wrong. The root of wickedness is forgetting God.

Then verse 5 begins with a sudden shift, like a sunrise: “Your steadfast love, O LORD, extends to the heavens.” The contrast could not be greater. The wicked heart is small and self-absorbed. God’s love reaches the sky. His faithfulness reaches the clouds. His righteousness is like the highest mountains, and his judgments are like the deepest sea. He cares for people and animals alike.

“How precious is your steadfast love, O God!” It is precious because it is a refuge: “The children of mankind take refuge in the shadow of your wings.” The image is of a bird sheltering its young. They feast on the abundance of God’s house, and he gives them drink from the river of his delights, an image drawn from Eden, whose river watered the garden.

Verse 9 is the heart: “For with you is the fountain of life; in your light do we see light.” Life is not something we have in ourselves. It flows from God. And we do not see truth by our own light but by his. Only in the light of God can we see anything rightly.

In John’s Gospel, Jesus is the fountain of life and the light. “In him was life, and the life was the light of men.” He told the woman at the well that he would give living water, and on the last day of the feast he cried, “If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink.” The psalmist’s longing is answered in Christ. The psalm ends with a prayer for continued love and protection, and with the wicked fallen, unable to rise.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 2:10 describes the river of Eden. Psalm 17:8 and 57:1 use the shadow of wings. Psalm 46:4 speaks of the river whose streams make glad the city of God. Jeremiah 2:13 says Israel forsook the fountain of living waters. John 1:4, 4:14, 7:37-38, and 8:12 apply this imagery to Jesus. Revelation 22:1-5 describes the river of life and the light of God himself.

STEP 6

Application

Say verse 9 aloud and ask, “Where am I looking for life apart from God?”

Meditate on the size of God’s love: the heavens, the clouds, the mountains, the deep.

Take refuge under his wings. Name one worry and bring it to him.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God for his steadfast love that reaches the heavens.
- Tell him what it means to take refuge in the shadow of his wings.
- Thank him for the fountain of life.

DAY 640 · WEEK 92

Psalm 139:1-18

O LORD, you have searched me and known me

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Psalm · 18 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 139:1-18. David marvels that God knows him completely. Notice how the psalm moves from knowing to presence to creation to wonder.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 139 is one of the most personal psalms. David reflects on the fact that God knows everything about him, is present everywhere, and made him in the womb. The last verses (19 to 24) turn to a prayer against the wicked and a prayer to be searched, but today's reading covers the first eighteen verses, the part that has comforted many. It follows the Psalm 36 theme of God's vast care.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "O LORD, you have searched me and known me!" (v. 1).
2. "You know when I sit down and when I rise up; you discern my thoughts from afar" (v. 2).
3. "Even before a word is on my tongue, behold, O LORD, you know it altogether" (v. 4).
4. "Where shall I go from your Spirit? Or where shall I flee from your presence?" (v. 7).
5. "For you formed my inward parts; you knitted me together in my mother's womb" (v. 13).
6. "I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made. Wonderful are your works; my soul knows it very well" (v. 14).
7. "Your eyes saw my unformed substance; in your book were written, every one of them, the days that were formed for me, when as yet there was none of them" (v. 16).

8 “How precious to me are your thoughts, O God! How vast is the sum of them!” (v. 17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with complete knowledge. God has searched David and known him. He knows when David sits and stands, knows his thoughts from far off, and knows his words before he speaks them. He hems David in, behind and before, and lays his hand on him. David’s response: “Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high; I cannot attain it.”

This could feel threatening, to be known so completely. But for David it is a comfort. The question in verses 7 to 12 shows that he has considered escape and found that there is none. “Where shall I go from your Spirit?” If he goes up to heaven, God is there. If he makes his bed in Sheol, God is there. If he takes the wings of the morning and dwells in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there God’s hand will lead him. Even darkness is not dark to God. The presence of God, which could be terrifying for a sinner, is a source of safety for a child.

Then the psalm goes back before birth. God formed his inward parts and knitted him together in his mother’s womb. “I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made.” This is a deep affirmation of the value of every human being. Each of us is a work of God, planned and watched over from the beginning. In his book were written all the days that were formed for us, before any of them existed. Our lives are known to God and held by him.

And David’s response is awe: “How precious to me are your thoughts, O God! How vast is the sum of them! If I would count them, they are more than the sand.” When I awake, he says, I am still with you.

In John, Jesus is shown to know people completely. He knows Nathanael under the fig tree and the Samaritan woman’s history. To be known by him is to be known by God, and to be loved.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 1:5 says God knew the prophet before he formed him in the womb. Job 10:8-12 and Psalm 119:73 also speak of God’s making. Proverbs 15:3 says the eyes of the LORD are in every place. John 1:47-49 and 4:16-19 show Jesus knowing people. Hebrews 4:13 says no creature is hidden from his sight. Matthew 10:29-31 says the very hairs of your head are numbered. Ephesians 2:10 says we are his workmanship.

STEP 6

Application

Read verses 1 to 6 slowly, and let yourself be fully known. Is that comforting or uncomfortable? Tell God.

Thank God for how he made you, including the parts you struggle to accept.

Share Psalm 139:13-14 with someone who feels worthless.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he has searched you and knows you.

Tell him what you want him to see in you today.

Praise him that you are fearfully and wonderfully made.

John 4:1-54

The Samaritan woman; living water; the official's son

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 54 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 4:1-54. Jesus meets a Samaritan woman at a well, offers her living water, and many in her town believe. He then heals an official's son from a distance. Notice who Jesus talks to and what he offers.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus leaves Judea and goes north to Galilee, taking the road through Samaria, which most Jews avoided because of centuries of hostility. At noon he sits by Jacob's well, tired, while his disciples go to buy food. A woman comes to draw water at a time when no one else would be there. Jews and Samaritans did not share dishes, and a rabbi did not usually speak with a woman in public. Jesus breaks every barrier.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Give me a drink" (4:7).
2. "If you knew the gift of God, and who it is that is saying to you, Give me a drink, you would have asked him, and he would have given you living water" (4:10).
3. "The water that I will give him will become in him a spring of water welling up to eternal life" (4:14).
4. "Come, see a man who told me all that I ever did. Can this be the Christ?" (4:29).
5. "I who speak to you am he" (4:26).
6. "My food is to do the will of him who sent me and to accomplish his work" (4:34).
7. "We have heard for ourselves, and we know that this is indeed the Savior of the world" (4:42).

8 “Go; your son will live” (4:50).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus asks a Samaritan woman for a drink. The request surprises her. Then he turns it around: if she knew who was asking, she would ask him for living water. She thinks he means running water, but he is speaking of the Spirit, a spring welling up in a person to eternal life. The woman asks for it, perhaps still half joking, and Jesus says, “Go, call your husband.” She has had five husbands, and the man she lives with now is not her husband. Jesus knows her whole story, and he does not shrink from it. His aim is not to shame her but to bring her to the truth.

She changes the subject to the old argument over where to worship. Jesus tells her that the hour is coming, and is now here, when true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth. We will return to this in the doctrinal pause. Then she says, “I know that Messiah is coming,” and Jesus says, “I who speak to you am he.” This is the first time in the Gospel that Jesus openly says he is the Messiah, and he says it to a Samaritan woman with a past.

She leaves her water jar and goes to the town, saying, “Come, see a man who told me all that I ever did. Can this be the Christ?” She is the first evangelist in John, and her witness is simple. Many Samaritans believe because of her word, and then they invite Jesus to stay two days. Then many more believe, and they say, “We know that this is indeed the Savior of the world.” The Gospel crosses the boundary of ethnicity.

Meanwhile the disciples are puzzled that Jesus has no need of food. He says, “My food is to do the will of him who sent me.” He points to the fields white for harvest.

Back in Cana, an official comes from Capernaum begging Jesus to heal his dying son. Jesus says, “Go; your son will live.” The man believes the word and goes, and finds that the fever left at the very hour. This is the second sign. Faith takes Jesus at his word.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 29:1-12, Exodus 2:15-21, and Genesis 24 are Old Testament wells where significant meetings happen. Isaiah 12:3 and 55:1 promise water for the thirsty. Jeremiah 2:13 speaks of the fountain of living water. Ezekiel 47:1-12 pictures a river flowing from the temple. John 7:37-39 explains that the living water is the Spirit. Acts 8:4-25 records the gospel’s spread to Samaria. Revelation 21:6 and 22:17 offer the water of life freely.

STEP 6

Application

Think about what you drink from to satisfy your thirst, such as approval, success, or comfort. Bring it to Jesus.

Like the woman, tell someone simply what Jesus has done in your life.

Who is the Samaritan in your life, a person it would be awkward to talk to about Jesus? Ask God for a chance.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell Jesus that he knows everything about you, and let that be good news.
- Ask him for living water.
- Ask him to teach you to tell others about him.

John 4:19-26; Psalm 95; Hebrews 12:18-29

Worship

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 4:19-26, Psalm 95, and Hebrews 12:18-29. Today is a doctrinal pause on worship. Notice who is worshiped, how, and why.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Samaritan woman asked Jesus where one should worship, on Mount Gerizim or in Jerusalem. Jesus answered with a statement about worship that changes everything. Psalm 95 is one of the great invitations to worship in the Psalter, and Hebrews 12 describes the nature of worship under the new covenant. Together they teach that worship is the purpose for which we were made, and that it is directed to the Father, through the Son, in the Spirit.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem will you worship the Father” (John 4:21).
2. “The hour is coming, and is now here, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth, for the Father is seeking such people to worship him” (John 4:23).
3. “God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth” (John 4:24).
4. “Oh come, let us sing to the LORD; let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation!” (Psalm 95:1).
5. “Oh come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the LORD, our Maker!” (Psalm 95:6).

6. “For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand” (Psalm 95:7).
7. “Therefore let us be grateful for receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, and thus let us offer to God acceptable worship, with reverence and awe” (Hebrews 12:28).
8. “For our God is a consuming fire” (Hebrews 12:29).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Worship is the response of the whole person to the worth of God. It is what we were made for. In the Bible, true worship has three marks. First, it is directed to the right object: the triune God alone, not any idol, whether carved or imagined. Second, it is offered “in spirit and truth.” Jesus does not abolish outward forms, but he insists that worship be from the heart, by the Spirit, and according to the truth that God has revealed in Christ and in his Word. Third, it is offered through Christ, our mediator. Under the old covenant, worship centered on the temple, the priests, and the sacrifices. Now Jesus is the temple, the priest, and the sacrifice, and we draw near through him. The Reformed tradition has taught that God is to be worshiped as he commands in Scripture, and so gathered worship centers on the reading and preaching of the Word, prayer, singing, and the sacraments. Worship is also all of life: Romans 12:1 calls us to present our bodies as a living sacrifice. It is joyful and reverent at once, for God is both our Father and a consuming fire.

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Samaritan woman raises a question of place. Jesus says the place no longer matters. A new era is beginning in which worship is not tied to a mountain or a building. The reason is that the Father is seeking worshipers, and God is spirit. He cannot be confined to a location. “In spirit” means by the Holy Spirit, who makes the heart alive. “In truth” means according to the reality revealed in Christ, who is the truth.

Psalm 95 gives a picture of what worship looks like. It begins with singing and a joyful noise, because the LORD is a great God and a great King above all gods, who holds the depths of the earth and the heights of the mountains, and made the sea and dry land. Then it moves from joy to reverence: “Let us worship and bow down; let us kneel.” We worship because he is our Maker, and our shepherd, and we are the sheep of his hand. Then the psalm ends with a warning not to harden our hearts as Israel did in the wilderness. Worship requires listening: “Today, if you hear his voice.”

Hebrews 12 contrasts Sinai and Zion. Israel came to a mountain of fire, darkness, and trembling, and begged that no further word be spoken. But believers have come to Mount Zion, to the heavenly Jerusalem, to innumerable angels, to the assembly of the firstborn, to God the judge, and "to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood." We receive a kingdom that cannot be shaken. Therefore we offer acceptable worship "with reverence and awe, for our God is a consuming fire."

True worship holds both together: the intimacy of a child with his Father and the awe of a creature before the Holy One.

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 12 and 1 Kings 8 deal with the place of worship under the old covenant. Isaiah 66:1-2 says heaven is God's throne, and he looks to the humble. Psalm 29:2 says to worship the LORD in the splendor of holiness. Romans 12:1-2 calls for living sacrifice. Philippians 3:3 describes those who worship by the Spirit of God. Revelation 4 and 5 show worship in heaven. Hebrews 10:19-22 invites us to draw near.

STEP 6

Application

Prepare for worship this Sunday: pray, rest well, and arrive ready to listen.

Take one thing you do this week, such as work, and offer it as worship.

Sing Psalm 95 or a hymn to God in private, even if you're not a singer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God you want to worship in spirit and truth.

Ask him to teach you to worship even when you do not feel like it.

Praise him as the great God and great King.

DAY 643 · WEEK 92

John 5:1-47

Healing at Bethesda; the Son's authority; witnesses to Jesus

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 5:1-47. Jesus heals a man at the pool of Bethesda on the Sabbath, and the leaders want to kill him. He then speaks at length about his relationship to the Father. Notice the claims he makes.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus returns to Jerusalem for a feast. At the pool of Bethesda, many sick people lie waiting for healing. One man has been ill for thirty-eight years. Jesus heals him, and since it is the Sabbath, the leaders object. What follows is one of the longest and most direct claims to deity in the Gospels. Jesus makes himself equal to the Father in work, honor, and authority, and then lists the witnesses to his claim.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Do you want to be healed?" (5:6).
2. "Get up, take up your bed, and walk" (5:8).
3. "My Father is working until now, and I am working" (5:17).
4. "Calling God his own Father, making himself equal with God" (5:18).
5. "Whoever hears my word and believes him who sent me has eternal life. He does not come into judgment, but has passed from death to life" (5:24).
6. "The hour is coming, and is now here, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear will live" (5:25).
7. "You search the Scriptures because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is they that bear witness about me" (5:39).

8 “For if you believed Moses, you would believe me; for he wrote of me” (5:46).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The man by the pool is helpless. He has no one to put him in the water. Jesus asks, “Do you want to be healed?” and instead of answering yes, the man gives an excuse. Jesus does not need his help. He says, “Get up, take up your bed, and walk,” and the man is healed at once. The man did nothing to earn it. This is grace.

The leaders do not rejoice. The healing was on the Sabbath, and the man is carrying his mat. When they persecute Jesus, he answers, “My Father is working until now, and I am working.” God does not stop working on the Sabbath, because he sustains the world and upholds the lives of his creatures. Jesus claims the same prerogative. The leaders understand perfectly: he is “making himself equal with God,” and they seek to kill him.

Jesus does not retreat. He doubles down. The Son does only what he sees the Father doing. The Father shows him everything. Like the Father, he raises the dead and gives life to whom he will. The Father has given all judgment to the Son, “that all may honor the Son, just as they honor the Father.” Whoever does not honor the Son does not honor the Father. And then, a promise: “Whoever hears my word and believes him who sent me has eternal life. He does not come into judgment, but has passed from death to life.” Eternal life is not only future. Believers have already passed from death to life.

Jesus then lists witnesses: John the Baptist, the works he does, the Father himself, and the Scriptures. The leaders search the Scriptures, thinking they give life, but they refuse to come to him. The Scriptures are not an end in themselves. They point to him. “Moses wrote of me.” It is possible to study the Bible diligently and still miss its center. The leaders are an example of how not to read, and Jesus teaches us to read the Scriptures to find Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 20:8-11 and Deuteronomy 5:12-15 give the Sabbath commandment. Isaiah 40:28 says God does not grow weary. Daniel 7:13-14 gives the Son of Man authority. Daniel 12:2 speaks of the resurrection of the dead. Deuteronomy 18:15-19 promises a prophet like Moses. Luke 24:27 and 24:44 say the Scriptures speak of Christ. Romans 5:1 and 8:1 say there is now no condemnation. Ephesians 2:4-5 says we are made alive.

STEP 6

Application

Answer Jesus’ question honestly: do you want to be healed? Where do you make excuses?

When you read the Bible, ask: where does this point to Jesus?

Thank God that you have passed from death to life. Say it aloud.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell Jesus you are helpless, and let him ask whether you want to be healed.

Thank him that he heals by his word alone.

Ask him to give you life.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read John 4:24 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth."

JOHN 4:24

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this to a Samaritan woman, in answer to her question about where worship should take place. It is among the most important sentences in the Bible on worship.

"God is spirit." God is not a physical being, limited to a place or an image. He is invisible, everywhere present, and alive. That is why Israel was forbidden to make images, and why he cannot be confined to a mountain or a building.

"And those who worship him." Worship is not optional or peripheral. It is the reason we exist. The Father is seeking worshipers. He is not indifferent to whether we come.

"Must worship in spirit." This means with the heart, through the Holy Spirit, who gives us new life. Worship that is only outward ritual is empty. Worship in spirit comes from the inside.

“And truth.” Worship must be shaped by what God has actually revealed. It is not whatever feels sincere. Jesus himself is the truth, and the Scriptures are the truth about him.

When you feel that your worship is dull, or you do not know how to come to God, say this verse. The Father is seeking you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you studied the new birth. In the doctrinal pause on regeneration, you saw that being born again is God’s work, promised in Ezekiel 36 and described in Titus 3 as the washing of regeneration and renewal by the Holy Spirit. Psalm 36 showed you the steadfast love that extends to the heavens, and the fountain of life. Psalm 139 reminded you that you are fully known and fearfully and wonderfully made. In John 4 you watched Jesus offer living water to a Samaritan woman, and saw a whole town believe. The doctrinal pause on worship taught you that the Father seeks those who worship in spirit and truth, through Christ. In John 5 you saw Jesus heal a man who could not help himself, and heard him claim equality with the Father and promise that whoever believes has passed from death to life.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Regeneration is God’s work, not ours. How does that change the way you think about your own faith, and about praying for those who do not believe?

Jesus offered the Samaritan woman living water, the gift of the Spirit. Where do you most need that water right now?

Jesus said the Scriptures bear witness about him. How does keeping that in mind change the way you read the Bible?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for giving you new birth.

Thank him for seeking you as a worshiper.

Ask him to teach you to worship in spirit and truth.

DAY 645 · WEEK 93

John 6:1-71

The bread of life, sovereign grace and discipleship

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 71 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 6:1-71. Jesus feeds the five thousand, walks on the sea, and then teaches in the synagogue at Capernaum that he is the bread of life. Many disciples leave. Notice the tension between God's drawing and the human response.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is near Passover, and a great crowd has followed Jesus because of his signs. The feeding of the five thousand is the only miracle, apart from the resurrection, that appears in all four Gospels. John uses it as a sign pointing to Jesus himself. The long discourse that follows is one of the most challenging in the Gospel, and it ends with a crisis of belief.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Jesus then took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, he distributed them to those who were seated" (6:11).
2. "It is I; do not be afraid" (6:20).
3. "This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he has sent" (6:29).
4. "I am the bread of life; whoever comes to me shall not hunger, and whoever believes in me shall never thirst" (6:35).
5. "All that the Father gives me will come to me, and whoever comes to me I will never cast out" (6:37).
6. "No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him. And I will raise him up on the last day" (6:44).

7. “Unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you” (6:53).

8. “Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life” (6:68).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus tests Philip with a question about where to buy bread for the crowd. Andrew finds a boy with five barley loaves and two fish. Jesus gives thanks, distributes the food, and everyone eats their fill, with twelve baskets left over. The crowd wants to make him king by force, and he withdraws. That night he walks on the sea to the disciples in the storm, saying, “It is I; do not be afraid.” The Greek is “I am,” the divine name.

The crowd finds him the next day, looking for more bread. He says, “You are seeking me, not because you saw signs, but because you ate your fill.” They ask what work they must do, and he says that the work of God is to believe in the one he sent. They ask for a sign like the manna that Moses gave. Jesus says the true bread from heaven is a person: “I am the bread of life.” The one who comes to him will never hunger, and the one who believes will never thirst.

Then he speaks of the Father’s work. “All that the Father gives me will come to me, and whoever comes to me I will never cast out.” Here is the double truth of salvation. The Father gives, and the Son receives. Everyone given will come, and no one who comes will be turned away. “No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him.” Salvation begins with God. And yet the invitation is real: “whoever comes.” Reformed Christians have found in this chapter a clear statement of God’s sovereign grace, and all Christians find in it a promise that Jesus will not reject anyone who comes.

The talk of eating his flesh and drinking his blood scandalizes the crowd. Jesus is speaking of feeding on him by faith, as the following verses make clear: “It is the Spirit who gives life; the flesh is no help.” Christians have also seen in these words a connection to the Lord’s Supper. Many disciples turn back and no longer walk with him. Jesus asks the Twelve, “Do you want to go away also?” Peter answers for them: “Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life, and we have believed, and have come to know, that you are the Holy One of God.” Peter does not understand everything, but he knows there is no one else.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 16 is the manna in the wilderness. Psalm 78:24-25 speaks of the bread of heaven. Isaiah 55:1-3 invites the hungry to come and eat. Deuteronomy 8:3 says man does not live by bread alone. Matthew 14:13-33 is the parallel to the feeding and the walk on water. 1

Corinthians 10:16-17 and 11:23-26 speak of the bread of the Lord's Supper. Ephesians 1:4-5 and Romans 8:29-30 speak of God's choosing.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what you are hungry for. Are you coming to Jesus for his gifts or for himself?

Rest in verse 37: if you have come to Jesus, he will never cast you out.

When doctrine is hard, say Peter's words: "Lord, to whom shall we go?"

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell Jesus what you hunger for, and thank him that he is the bread of life.
- Thank him that whoever comes to him he will never cast out.
- Ask him to keep you from turning away.

JOHN 8:12

DAY 646 · WEEK 93

John 7:1-8:11

At the Feast of Booths; the woman caught in adultery

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 7:1-8:11. Jesus teaches at the Feast of Booths amid confusion about who he is, and then a woman caught in adultery is brought to him. A note: the story in 7:53-8:11 is not found in the earliest manuscripts, and many translations set it apart. It is widely accepted as an authentic account of Jesus, though scholars differ on whether John wrote it.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Feast of Booths was a joyful autumn festival that remembered the wilderness wanderings. Each day a priest drew water from the pool of Siloam and poured it at the altar, and lamps lit up the temple courts. Against this background, Jesus stands on the last and greatest day and offers living water. The crowd is divided. The leaders are looking for a way to arrest him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “If anyone’s will is to do God’s will, he will know whether the teaching is from God or whether I am speaking on my own authority” (7:17).
2. “So they were seeking to arrest him, but no one laid a hand on him, because his hour had not yet come” (7:30).
3. “If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink” (7:37).
4. “Whoever believes in me, as the Scripture has said, Out of his heart will flow rivers of living water” (7:38).
5. “No one ever spoke like this man!” (7:46).

6. “Let him who is without sin among you be the first to throw a stone at her” (8:7).
7. “Woman, where are they? Has no one condemned you?” (8:10).
8. “Neither do I condemn you; go, and from now on sin no more” (8:11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus’ brothers urge him to go to Judea and show himself, but they do not believe in him. He says his time has not yet come, and goes up privately. At the feast, people debate. Some say he is a good man; others say he is leading the people astray. In the middle of the feast, he teaches in the temple. “My teaching is not mine, but his who sent me.” And he gives a principle for judging truth: if anyone is willing to do God’s will, he will know.

On the last day of the feast, when the water ceremony had ended, Jesus cries out, “If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink.” John explains that he spoke about the Spirit, whom believers would receive after Jesus was glorified. The temple guards come back empty-handed, saying, “No one ever spoke like this man!” Nicodemus, who first came by night, speaks up for fairness.

Then the scene changes. The scribes and Pharisees bring a woman caught in adultery and set her before Jesus, quoting the law of Moses that she should be stoned. It is a trap: if he says to release her, he disregards the law, and if he says to stone her, he loses his reputation for mercy and contradicts Roman law. Jesus stoops and writes on the ground. When they keep asking, he says, “Let him who is without sin among you be the first to throw a stone at her.” One by one, beginning with the oldest, they go away. Jesus is left alone with the woman. “Has no one condemned you?” “No one, Lord.” “Neither do I condemn you; go, and from now on sin no more.”

Notice the order. Jesus does not say, “Go and sin no more, and then I will not condemn you.” He says he does not condemn, and then calls her to a new life. Grace comes first and makes obedience possible. And Jesus can say this because he is the one who will bear her condemnation on the cross.

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 23:33-43 describes the Feast of Booths. Isaiah 12:3 and Zechariah 14:8, 16-19 connect living water and the feast to the age to come. Isaiah 44:3 promises the Spirit poured out on the thirsty. Deuteronomy 17:6-7 and Leviticus 20:10 relate to the case of adultery. Romans 8:1 says there is now no condemnation for those in Christ Jesus. Romans 3:23-24 says all have sinned and are justified by grace. Hebrews 4:15-16 speaks of our sympathetic high priest.

STEP 6

Application

If you are thirsty, go to Jesus and drink. Tell him what you are thirsting for.

Put down any stones you are holding against others. Remember your own sin.

Hear “Neither do I condemn you” as spoken to you, and then ask what “go and sin no more” looks like for you today.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Come to Jesus thirsty, and tell him what you thirst for.
- Ask him to pour out his Spirit like rivers of living water.
- Thank him for his compassion for the woman caught in sin.

JOHN 8:12

DAY 647 · WEEK 93

John 8:12-59

“I AM the light of the world”; before Abraham was, I AM

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 48 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 8:12-59. Jesus declares himself the light of the world and argues with the leaders about freedom, fatherhood, and Abraham. It ends with the strongest claim to deity in the Gospel. Notice the “I AM” in verse 58.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The conflict at the Feast of Booths continues. The lamps in the temple courts would have been burning, and Jesus calls himself the light of the world. The discussion that follows grows heated, with the Jews claiming to be Abraham’s children and free, and Jesus pointing out that they are slaves to sin. It ends with Jesus saying the divine name over himself, and the crowd picking up stones.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life” (8:12).
2. “And you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free” (8:32).
3. “Truly, truly, I say to you, everyone who practices sin is a slave to sin” (8:34).
4. “So if the Son sets you free, you will be free indeed” (8:36).
5. “You are of your father the devil, and your will is to do your father’s desires” (8:44).
6. “Your father Abraham rejoiced that he would see my day. He saw it and was glad” (8:56).
7. “Truly, truly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I am” (8:58).
8. “So they picked up stones to throw at him, but Jesus hid himself and went out of the temple” (8:59).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“I am the light of the world.” This is the second of John’s seven “I AM” statements (after the bread of life). The Old Testament pictures God as light, and as the one who led Israel with a pillar of fire. Whoever follows Jesus will not walk in darkness but will have the light of life. The Pharisees object that Jesus is bearing witness about himself, and he answers that his Father also bears witness.

Then he says, “You will die in your sins unless you believe that I am he.” This is the first of several uses of “I am” in the chapter. To the believers among them, he says, “If you abide in my word, you are truly my disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free.” The Jews bristle: we are Abraham’s offspring and have never been enslaved. Jesus replies that everyone who sins is a slave to sin, and that only the Son can set them free. Freedom comes only from him.

The argument escalates. They claim Abraham as their father, and Jesus tells them Abraham would not have acted as they do. They claim God as their father, and Jesus says that if God were their Father, they would love him. Instead they are acting like the devil, who was a murderer from the beginning and a liar. These are harsh words, spoken to those who were trying to kill him.

Finally, they ask, “Are you greater than our father Abraham?” Jesus replies, “Your father Abraham rejoiced that he would see my day.” They are incredulous: “You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?” Then comes the verse: “Truly, truly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I am.” He does not say “I was.” He uses the divine name from Exodus 3:14. The leaders understand exactly what he is claiming, and they pick up stones. It is blasphemy unless it is true.

The chapter shows that the issue is not just Jesus’ teaching but his identity. If he is the eternal I AM, then he is the light, the truth, and the one who can set us free.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 3:14 is God’s name, I AM. Isaiah 41:4 and 43:10-13 also use “I am he.” Psalm 27:1 says the LORD is my light. Isaiah 9:2 and 60:1-3 promise light to those in darkness. John 1:4-9 says the Word is the light. Romans 6:16-18 explains slavery to sin and freedom in Christ. Galatians 5:1 says for freedom Christ has set us free. Hebrews 11:13 says the patriarchs saw the promises from afar. 1 John 1:5-7 says God is light.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you still walk in darkness. Bring that area to Jesus, the light.

What are you enslaved to? Bring it to the Son, who makes you free indeed.

Pray, “Jesus, you are the I AM,” and let the weight of that rest on you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell Jesus you want to follow the light of the world.
- Ask him to set you free from sin by his truth.
- Worship him as the great I AM.

JOHN 8:12

DAY 648 · WEEK 93

Psalm 119:97-120

Oh how I love your law; your word is a lamp

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Psalm · 24 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 119:97-120. This section of the great psalm on God's word speaks of love for the law, sweetness, and light for the path. Read verse 105 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 119 is the longest chapter in the Bible, an acrostic of twenty-two stanzas, each beginning with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. In this plan, it is spread across several days. Today's reading covers three stanzas, Mem, Nun, and Samekh, and speaks of the power of God's word. Jesus said that his word would make us free, and this psalm shows the heart that treasures it.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh how I love your law! It is my meditation all the day" (v. 97).
2. "Your commandment makes me wiser than my enemies, for it is ever with me" (v. 98).
3. "How sweet are your words to my taste, sweeter than honey to my mouth!" (v. 103).
4. "Through your precepts I get understanding; therefore I hate every false way" (v. 104).
5. "Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path" (v. 105).
6. "You are my hiding place and my shield; I hope in your word" (v. 114).
7. "Hold me up, that I may be safe and have regard for your statutes continually!" (v. 117).
8. "My flesh trembles for fear of you, and I am afraid of your judgments" (v. 120).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The stanza called Mem begins with an exclamation of love: “Oh how I love your law!” The psalmist is not describing a duty but a delight. He meditates on God’s word all day, and it makes him wiser than his enemies, wiser than his teachers, and wiser than the aged. It gives him wisdom because it comes from God and it shapes his conduct. He keeps his feet from every evil way. Then comes the sweetness: “How sweet are your words to my taste, sweeter than honey to my mouth!”

The next stanza, Nun, begins with the best-known line: “Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path.” A lamp in the ancient world did not light up the whole road. It showed the next step. God’s word may not tell us everything about the future, but it shows us enough to take the next step. The psalmist has sworn to keep God’s righteous rules, and he is deeply afflicted, yet he says, “Give me life, O LORD, according to your word.” The word is both light and life. He asks that the LORD accept his freewill offerings of praise, and says that God’s testimonies are the joy of his heart.

In Samekh, the psalmist hates the double-minded and loves God’s law. “You are my hiding place and my shield; I hope in your word.” Here the word is not just a lamp but a shelter. He asks for help to keep the commandments and for God to uphold him: “Hold me up, that I may be safe.” He knows that on his own he cannot stand. The stanza ends with fear and trembling: “My flesh trembles for fear of you.” A right fear of God does not exclude love; it deepens it.

In John, Jesus is the Word, and he said, “If you abide in my word, you are truly my disciples.” To love God’s word is to love him. Jesus Christ fulfilled the law the psalmist loved, and the Spirit he sends writes it on our hearts.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 1:2 and 19:7-11 also praise the delight of the law. Joshua 1:8 commands meditation on the book of the law. Jeremiah 15:16 says your words became to me a joy. Matthew 4:4 quotes Deuteronomy 8:3, that man lives by every word from God’s mouth. John 8:31-32 and 17:17 speak of the truth of the word. 2 Timothy 3:16-17 says all Scripture is breathed out by God. Hebrews 4:12 says the word of God is living and active.

STEP 6

Application

Read verse 105 aloud and ask what the next step is for you. Where do you need light?

Choose a short passage and meditate on it throughout the day, as verse 97 describes.

Ask God to make his word sweeter to you than honey. Pray it honestly.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what you love about his law.
- Ask him to let it be your meditation all the day.
- Ask him to light your path with it.

JOHN 8:12

DAY 649 · WEEK 93

Psalm 43

Send out your light and your truth

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Psalm · 5 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 43. It is a short prayer from someone in darkness, asking for God's light and truth to lead him to worship. It pairs with Psalm 42, and it ends with a refrain of hope.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 43 has no title and was likely the last stanza of Psalm 42, since they share the same refrain: "Why are you cast down, O my soul?" The singer is far from the temple, mocked by enemies and deeply discouraged. His prayer is for God to send light and truth to bring him back to worship. It follows Psalm 119 and John 8 in the theme of light and truth.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Vindicate me, O God" (v. 1).
2. "You are the God in whom I take refuge" (v. 2).
3. "Why do I go mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?" (v. 2).
4. "Send out your light and your truth; let them lead me" (v. 3).
5. "Let them bring me to your holy hill and to your dwelling!" (v. 3).
6. "To God my exceeding joy" (v. 4).
7. "Why are you cast down, O my soul, and why are you in turmoil within me?" (v. 5).
8. "Hope in God; for I shall again praise him, my salvation and my God" (v. 5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a legal appeal. The singer asks God to vindicate him and defend his cause against a people who are deceitful and unjust. Then he turns to a question that many believers have asked: “For you are the God in whom I take refuge; why have you rejected me?” He is confused. God is his refuge, and yet he feels abandoned. “Why do I go mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?” The psalm lets us ask hard questions.

The center of the prayer is verse 3: “Send out your light and your truth; let them lead me.” He does not ask for an explanation of why he is suffering. He asks for light and truth, as if they were two guides sent from God. Light shows the path. Truth keeps him from deception. Together they will lead him to the holy hill and to God’s dwelling, where he can worship. John 1 and 14 tell us who God sent: Jesus is the light of the world, and he is the truth. He leads us to the Father.

The goal is worship: “Then I will go to the altar of God, to God my exceeding joy.” What he longs for is not just relief from his enemies but God himself. God is his exceeding joy. Then he will praise God with the lyre.

The psalm ends with a conversation with himself. “Why are you cast down, O my soul, and why are you in turmoil within me?” He does not deny his feelings. He questions them. And he answers: “Hope in God; for I shall again praise him, my salvation and my God.” Notice the word “again.” He is not praising now, but he knows he will. Depression and discouragement are real, and God’s people are not exempt, but they are not the last word. Our hope is in the God who will bring light.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 42 shares the refrain. Psalm 27:1 and 36:9 speak of the LORD as light. Psalm 119:105 calls the word a lamp. John 1:9, 8:12, and 14:6 apply light and truth to Jesus. Lamentations 3:21-26 teaches hope in the LORD in the midst of grief. Romans 15:13 prays that the God of hope would fill you with joy and peace. 2 Corinthians 4:8-9 says we are afflicted but not crushed.

STEP 6

Application

When you are cast down, speak to your soul as the psalmist did. Say, “Hope in God.”

Pray verse 3 as a prayer for guidance: “Send out your light and your truth.”

Tell a trusted friend honestly if you are struggling. You do not need to carry it alone.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God where you feel forgotten.
- Ask him to send out his light and truth.
- Tell your soul to hope in him.

JOHN 8:12

DAY 650 · WEEK 93

John 9:1-10:21

The man born blind; the Good Shepherd

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 62 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 9:1-10:21. Jesus heals a man born blind, the Pharisees interrogate him, and Jesus then speaks of himself as the door and the good shepherd. Follow the blind man's growth from not knowing, to knowing, to worship.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Still in Jerusalem, Jesus passes a man who has been blind from birth. The disciples ask whose sin caused it, a common assumption. Jesus gives another answer. What follows is a masterpiece of storytelling: the healing, a series of interrogations, and the man's confession. It leads into Jesus' words about the sheep and the shepherd, which echo Ezekiel 34, where God promises to shepherd his scattered flock.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "It was not that this man sinned, or his parents, but that the works of God might be displayed in him" (9:3).
2. "One thing I do know, that though I was blind, now I see" (9:25).
3. "For judgment I came into this world, that those who do not see may see, and those who see may become blind" (9:39).
4. "I am the door. If anyone enters by me, he will be saved and will go in and out and find pasture" (10:9).
5. "I came that they may have life and have it abundantly" (10:10).
6. "I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep" (10:11).
7. "So there will be one flock, one shepherd" (10:16).

8 “No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord” (10:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus rejects the idea that this man’s blindness was the direct result of someone’s sin. It was so that the works of God might be displayed in him. He spits on the ground, makes mud, anoints the man’s eyes, and tells him to wash in the pool of Siloam. The man goes, washes, and returns seeing.

The neighbors can hardly believe it, and the Pharisees investigate. It was the Sabbath again. The man’s answers grow bolder at each stage. First: “The man called Jesus made mud.” Then: “He is a prophet.” When the leaders press him, he says, “One thing I do know, that though I was blind, now I see.” He cannot explain everything, but he knows what happened. They mock him, and he says, with a touch of irony, “Do you also want to become his disciples?” They throw him out. Jesus finds him and asks, “Do you believe in the Son of Man?” “Lord, I believe,” he says, and worships. The blind man sees, and those who claim to see remain blind.

Jesus then turns to the image of the sheep. The thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy. Jesus has come that his sheep may have life and have it abundantly. He is the door: whoever enters through him will be saved. He is also the good shepherd, who knows his sheep by name, and whom the sheep know. The hired hand flees when the wolf comes, but the shepherd lays down his life for the sheep.

Notice the contrast. The false shepherds, the religious leaders who cast out the blind man, care for themselves. Jesus, the true shepherd, seeks the outcast. He says he has other sheep who are not of this fold, a reference to the Gentiles, and “there will be one flock, one shepherd.” And his death is no accident: “No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord. I have authority to lay it down, and authority to take it up again.”

The Father’s command and the Son’s authority are in harmony. The shepherd dies willingly, and rises. The people divide again over his words. This is the third and fourth of the “I AM” sayings, the door and the good shepherd.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 23 and Ezekiel 34 are the great shepherd passages. Isaiah 35:5 and 42:7 promise sight for the blind. Isaiah 42:16 says God will lead the blind in a way they do not know. Jeremiah 23:1-4 condemns false shepherds. Zechariah 11 pictures the rejected shepherd. 1 Peter 2:25 says we have returned to the Shepherd and Overseer of our souls. Hebrews 13:20 calls Jesus the great shepherd of the sheep. Revelation 7:17 says the Lamb will be their shepherd.

STEP 6

Application

Tell someone your own “I was blind, but now I see” in a sentence or two.

Listen for the shepherd’s voice in his word today. What is he saying to you?

Pray for someone who has been cast out or hurt by the church. Ask Jesus to find them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell Jesus, “I was blind, and now I see,” and name something he has shown you.
- Ask him to help you hear the Shepherd’s voice.
- Worship him.

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Sabbath

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read John 8:12 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life."

JOHN 8:12

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this in the temple courts during the Feast of Booths, when the great lamps were lit. It is one of the seven great "I AM" statements of John's Gospel.

"I am the light of the world." The claim is huge. Not a light, but the light. Not of Israel only, but of the world. In the Bible, light is the first thing God created, and it is a picture of his holiness, truth, and life. Jesus says he is that light in person.

"Whoever follows me." Light is for walking by. It is not enough to admire it. Following means putting one foot in front of the other behind him, trusting him with the path.

"Will not walk in darkness." Darkness means sin, ignorance, and death. The one who follows Jesus is not left to stumble. Even when the path is hard, he is not lost.

"But will have the light of life." He will not only see by the light, he will have it, as his own possession. The light is life itself. Jesus does not just show the way; he gives life.

When you feel confused or lost, say this verse. He is the light, and you do not have to find the way alone.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week Jesus fed five thousand and declared himself the bread of life, and you heard Peter say, “To whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life.” At the Feast of Booths he offered living water and said, “Neither do I condemn you” to a woman caught in sin. He declared himself the light of the world, promised that the Son sets us free indeed, and used the divine name of himself: “Before Abraham was, I am.” In the Psalms you read about delighting in God’s word as a lamp for your feet (Psalm 119), and you prayed for light and truth to lead you out of discouragement (Psalm 43). In John 9 and 10 you watched a blind man receive sight and worship, and heard Jesus say that he is the door and the good shepherd who lays down his life for the sheep.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said, “I am the bread of life.” What do you tend to hunger for in place of him, and what would it mean to feed on him this week?

The woman caught in adultery heard, “Neither do I condemn you; go, and from now on sin no more.” How does the order, grace first and then a call to change, shape how you deal with your own sin?

Jesus is the good shepherd who lays down his life for the sheep. What does it mean for you personally that he knows you by name?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for being the light, the bread, the door, and the good shepherd.

Tell him which of these you most need today.

Rest in him.

DAY 652 · WEEK 94

John 10:22-11:57

I and the Father are one; Lazarus raised

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 87 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 10:22-11:57. Jesus declares that he and the Father are one, and then raises Lazarus from the dead. Notice how the raising of Lazarus both displays his glory and sets his death in motion.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is winter, at the Feast of Dedication (Hanukkah), which celebrated the cleansing of the temple. The Jews press Jesus to say plainly whether he is the Christ. His answer leads to a second attempt to stone him. He withdraws across the Jordan, and then receives word that his friend Lazarus, in Bethany near Jerusalem, is sick. The seventh and greatest sign in John's Gospel follows.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me" (10:27).
2. "I give them eternal life, and they will never perish, and no one will snatch them out of my hand" (10:28).
3. "I and the Father are one" (10:30).
4. "I am the resurrection and the life. Whoever believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live" (11:25).
5. "Jesus wept" (11:35).
6. "Lazarus, come out" (11:43).
7. "Unbind him, and let him go" (11:44).

8 “It is better for you that one man should die for the people, not that the whole nation should perish” (11:50).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“If you are the Christ, tell us plainly,” they say. Jesus replies that he has told them, and his works testify, but they do not believe because they are not among his sheep. Then he gives some of the most comforting words in the Bible. His sheep hear his voice. He knows them, and they follow him. He gives them eternal life. They will never perish, and no one can snatch them out of his hand. Then he says the Father’s hand holds them too: “No one is able to snatch them out of the Father’s hand.” This is the security of every believer. Salvation is held by God, not by the strength of our grip. And then: “I and the Father are one.” The Jews pick up stones, for they understand he is claiming to be God.

When word comes that Lazarus is ill, Jesus waits two more days. This looks like neglect, but he explains that the illness is for the glory of God. When he arrives, Lazarus has been dead four days. Martha meets him and says, “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died.” Jesus says, “Your brother will rise again.” She believes in the resurrection at the last day. Then Jesus says, “I am the resurrection and the life. Whoever believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live, and everyone who lives and believes in me shall never die.” He asks, “Do you believe this?” Martha answers with one of the great confessions: “Yes, Lord; I believe that you are the Christ, the Son of God.”

When Mary comes weeping, Jesus is deeply moved in spirit and troubled. Then comes the shortest verse in the English Bible: “Jesus wept.” The Son of God, who knows he is about to raise Lazarus, weeps with those who weep. He is not distant from our grief. At the tomb he prays aloud for the sake of the crowd and cries, “Lazarus, come out!” The dead man comes out, bound in grave clothes. “Unbind him, and let him go.”

The sign brings belief to many, but the chief priests and Pharisees decide that Jesus must die. Caiaphas, the high priest, says unwittingly that it is better for one man to die for the people. John comments that he prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation, and to gather into one the children of God who are scattered abroad. The miracle that gave life to Lazarus will lead to the death of Jesus. The giver of life gives his own.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 23 and Ezekiel 34 are the background to the sheep imagery. Isaiah 25:8 promises that God will swallow up death forever. Daniel 12:2 speaks of those who sleep in the dust awakening. Hosea 13:14 says God will ransom them from the power of Sheol. 1 Corinthians 15:20-26 speaks of Christ's resurrection as the firstfruits. 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 comforts those grieving believers. Romans 8:35-39 speaks of the security of those loved by Christ. Hebrews 4:15 says we have a high priest who sympathizes with our weaknesses.

STEP 6

Application

Rest in verses 28 and 29. Your salvation is held in the hands of Christ and the Father.

Bring your grief to Jesus, who wept. Tell him what you have lost.

Ask Martha's question of yourself: "Do you believe this?" Answer it in your own words.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus that no one can snatch you from his hand.
- Ask him to help you hear his voice.
- Thank him that he and the Father are one.

JOHN 14:6

DAY 653 · WEEK 94

John 12:1-50

The anointing; the Entry; the grain of wheat must die

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 50 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 12:1-50. Mary anoints Jesus, the crowds welcome him into Jerusalem, Greeks seek him, and he speaks of the grain of wheat that must die. The first half of John's Gospel ends here. Read verses 23 to 33 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Six days before Passover, Jesus returns to Bethany for a supper in his honor. Lazarus is at the table. Large crowds come to see both Jesus and Lazarus, and many are believing. Meanwhile the chief priests plot to kill Lazarus as well. Jesus enters Jerusalem to the shouts of the crowd. Then the "hour" that has been mentioned throughout the Gospel finally arrives.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Mary therefore took a pound of expensive ointment made from pure nard, and anointed the feet of Jesus and wiped his feet with her hair. The house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume" (12:3).
2. "Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord, even the King of Israel!" (12:13).
3. "Unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains alone; but if it dies, it bears much fruit" (12:24).
4. "Whoever loves his life loses it, and whoever hates his life in this world will keep it for eternal life" (12:25).
5. "And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all people to myself" (12:32).

6. “They loved the glory that comes from man more than the glory that comes from God” (12:43).
7. “I have come into the world as light, so that whoever believes in me may not remain in darkness” (12:46).
8. “For I did not come to judge the world but to save the world” (12:47).

STEP 4

Interpretation

At the supper, Mary takes a pound of costly perfume, pours it on Jesus’ feet, and wipes them with her hair. The house fills with the fragrance. Judas objects, saying it should have been sold and given to the poor, though John says he was a thief. Jesus defends her: “Leave her alone, so that she may keep it for the day of my burial.” She gives extravagantly, and Jesus accepts it as worship.

The next day, a large crowd takes palm branches and goes out to meet him, shouting “Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord, even the King of Israel!” Jesus sits on a young donkey, as Zechariah foretold. The Pharisees say, “Look, the world has gone after him.”

Some Greeks, Gentiles who had come to worship at the feast, ask to see Jesus. When Philip and Andrew tell him, Jesus says, “The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified.” The hour he has been waiting for is here, and it is tied to the coming of the nations. Then he says, “Unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains alone; but if it dies, it bears much fruit.” His death will not end his work but multiply it. And the principle applies to his followers: “Whoever loves his life loses it.”

Jesus is troubled: “Now is my soul troubled. And what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour? But for this purpose I have come to this hour. Father, glorify your name.” A voice from heaven answers. Then he says, “And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all people to myself.” John explains that he said this to show by what kind of death he was going to die. The cross is the throne, and from it he draws people of every nation.

John closes the first half of the Gospel with a sad note. Despite so many signs, they did not believe, and John quotes Isaiah on hardness of heart. Some leaders believed but would not confess, “for they loved the glory that comes from man more than the glory that comes from God.” Jesus cries out once more: he has come as light, to save and not to judge.

STEP 5

Connection

Zechariah 9:9 is the donkey. Psalm 118:25-26 is the hosanna. Isaiah 53:1 and 6:10 are quoted at the end. Numbers 21:8-9 is the lifted bronze serpent. Genesis 12:3 promised the blessing to all nations. Galatians 2:20 says we have been crucified with Christ. Philippians 3:7-8 counts everything as loss for the sake of Christ. Mark 14:3-9 and Matthew 26:6-13 tell the story of the anointing.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what extravagant act of love you might offer Jesus, in time or money or service.

Consider what it means for you to "die" like the grain of wheat: what are you holding that needs to fall into the earth?

Pray for the nations: that the Greeks of our day would see Jesus.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you pour out your best on Jesus, as Mary did.

Ask him to teach you what it means to die like the grain of wheat.

Tell him what you want to lay down.

DAY 654 · WEEK 94

John 13:1-14:31

The foot washing; "I AM the way"; the Spirit promised

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 71 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 13:1-14:31. The Upper Room begins: Jesus washes his disciples' feet, gives a new commandment, predicts betrayal and denial, and then comforts them with promises of the Father's house, the Way, and the Holy Spirit. Take your time. These are among the most tender chapters in the Bible.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is the night before Jesus' death. He is in an upper room in Jerusalem with the Twelve. John spends five chapters (13 to 17) on this one evening, and he omits the Lord's Supper itself. The tone shifts: no more public debates, only a Teacher preparing his friends for his departure. Judas leaves early, and in the darkness Jesus says words of great love.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Having loved his own who were in the world, he loved them to the end" (13:1).
2. "If I then, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet" (13:14).
3. "A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another: just as I have loved you, you also are to love one another" (13:34).
4. "By this all people will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another" (13:35).
5. "Let not your hearts be troubled. Believe in God; believe also in me" (14:1).
6. "I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me" (14:6).

7. “And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Helper, to be with you forever” (14:16).

8. “Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. Not as the world gives do I give to you” (14:27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“Having loved his own… he loved them to the end.” Jesus rises from supper, takes off his outer garments, and wraps a towel around his waist. He pours water into a basin and begins to wash the disciples’ feet, a task for the lowest servant. Peter objects: “You shall never wash my feet.” Jesus replies, “If I do not wash you, you have no share with me.” The washing points to the cleansing that Jesus will accomplish on the cross. Then he explains the example: “If I then, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another’s feet.” The King serves.

He predicts that one of them will betray him. Judas leaves, and John says, “And it was night.” Jesus then says, “Now is the Son of Man glorified.” He gives the new commandment: love one another as I have loved you. Love is the badge of discipleship. Peter declares that he will lay down his life for Jesus, and Jesus answers that he will deny him three times.

Chapter 14 opens with comfort. “Let not your hearts be troubled.” He is going to prepare a place in his Father’s house, which has many rooms, and he will come again and take them to himself. Thomas objects, “We do not know where you are going. How can we know the way?” Jesus replies with the sixth “I AM”: “I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me.” This is the exclusive claim of the gospel and also a great invitation. The way is a person, and he is available to anyone who comes.

Philip asks, “Show us the Father.” Jesus says, “Whoever has seen me has seen the Father.” Then comes the promise of the Spirit. Jesus will ask the Father, and he will give another Helper, the Spirit of truth, who dwells with them and will be in them. “I will not leave you as orphans; I will come to you.” The Spirit will teach them and remind them of all that Jesus said. Finally: “Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you.” He leaves them not with an escape from trouble but with his peace.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 12 is the Passover context of the meal. Isaiah 52:13 and 53:11-12 describe the suffering servant. Psalm 41:9 predicts the betrayal. Leviticus 19:18 is the old love commandment. Isaiah 43:1-2 promises the presence of God in trouble. Ezekiel 36:27 promised the Spirit within. Acts 2 records the coming of the Spirit. Philippians 2:5-8 shows the same servant attitude. 1 John 3:16 and 4:7-12 build on the new commandment.

STEP 6

Application

Find a way to serve someone this week in a hidden, humble way, like washing feet.

Say verse 1 to yourself when you are anxious, and name what troubles your heart.

Thank the Father for Jesus, the way, the truth, and the life. Pray for someone who does not yet know him.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for loving you to the end and washing feet.
- Ask him to teach you to serve.
- Ask him to help you love others as he has loved you.

JOHN 14:6

DAY 655 · WEEK 94

Psalm 23

The LORD is my shepherd

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 23. This is the best known of all the psalms. Read it slowly, as though for the first time, and hear Jesus say, “I am the good shepherd.”

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 23 is a psalm of David, who had been a shepherd. He knew what it was to guard sheep from lions and bears, to lead them to water, to count them at night. Here he uses that experience to describe the LORD’s care for him. The psalm moves from the pasture to the valley to the banquet table to the house of the LORD. It follows the good shepherd of John 10.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “The LORD is my shepherd; I shall not want” (v. 1).
2. “He makes me lie down in green pastures” (v. 2).
3. “He leads me beside still waters” (v. 2).
4. “He restores my soul” (v. 3).
5. “He leads me in paths of righteousness for his name’s sake” (v. 3).
6. “Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for you are with me; your rod and your staff, they comfort me” (v. 4).
7. “You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies; you anoint my head with oil; my cup overflows” (v. 5).
8. “Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of the LORD forever” (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“The LORD is my shepherd.” This is the foundation. The covenant name of God, Yahweh, is joined with a word of personal care. He is not just the shepherd of Israel in general; he is mine. “I shall not want” means that under his care nothing essential will be lacking.

The first scene is the pasture. A sheep will not lie down unless it is free from fear, from hunger, from friction in the flock, and from pests. The shepherd must provide all of this. “He makes me lie down in green pastures. He leads me beside still waters.” He restores my soul, meaning he brings me back when I wander, and renews me. He leads me in paths of righteousness, not because I deserve it but “for his name’s sake.” His reputation is bound up with his flock.

The scene shifts to the valley. “Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death.” The path to the good pasture often goes through dark ravines. David does not say if, but “though.” And notice the change from “he” to “you” in the middle of the psalm. When the danger is greatest, David speaks directly to the shepherd: “for you are with me.” The rod fights off predators and the staff guides and rescues. They comfort him.

Then the picture changes to a banquet. The host prepares a table in the presence of enemies. They cannot touch him. He anoints his guest’s head with oil, and the cup overflows. The shepherd is also a host.

The psalm ends in hope: “Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.” The word translated “follow” is a strong word, like pursuing. God’s goodness and steadfast love chase after us. And the destination is secure: “I shall dwell in the house of the LORD forever.”

Jesus said, “I am the good shepherd.” He is the one who leads, protects, and dies for the sheep. The 23rd Psalm is fulfilled in him.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 48:15 and 49:24 call God the shepherd of his people. Ezekiel 34:11-16 promises that God himself will seek and shepherd his sheep. Isaiah 40:11 pictures God gathering lambs in his arms. John 10:11-16, Hebrews 13:20, and 1 Peter 5:4 identify Jesus as the shepherd. Revelation 7:15-17 says the Lamb will be their shepherd and wipe away every tear. Psalm 16:11 and 27:4 speak of dwelling in his presence.

STEP 6

Application

Read the psalm aloud, putting your own name in: “The LORD is my shepherd, and I shall not want.”

Identify your valley right now. Say verse 4 to the Shepherd.

Memorize the psalm if you have not already. It will be with you in dark times.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what you lack and what you want him to shepherd.
- Tell him about your valley, and that you are with him there.
- Thank him for goodness and mercy following you.

JOHN 14:6

DAY 656 · WEEK 94

Psalm 100

We are his people and the sheep of his pasture

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Psalm · 5 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 100. It is a short psalm of thanksgiving, a call to the whole earth to come to the LORD with gladness. Read it aloud, as if you were entering the temple gates.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 100 is titled "A Psalm for giving thanks." It was probably sung by pilgrims as they entered the temple courts. It has a simple structure: two calls to worship (vv. 1 to 2 and 4), each followed by a reason (vv. 3 and 5). It has been sung for centuries by the church. It follows Psalm 23 with the same image of the flock.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth!" (v. 1).
2. "Serve the LORD with gladness!" (v. 2).
3. "Come into his presence with singing!" (v. 2).
4. "Know that the LORD, he is God!" (v. 3).
5. "It is he who made us, and we are his; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture" (v. 3).
6. "Enter his gates with thanksgiving, and his courts with praise!" (v. 4).
7. "Give thanks to him; bless his name!" (v. 4).
8. "For the LORD is good; his steadfast love endures forever, and his faithfulness to all generations" (v. 5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a command to all the earth, not just Israel: make a joyful noise. Worship is not meant to be grim. “Serve the LORD with gladness! Come into his presence with singing!” Service and joy go together. The word for serve is the word for work or worship, and it is to be done gladly.

Then comes the foundation: “Know that the LORD, he is God!” All true worship begins with knowing who God is. He is the LORD, the covenant God. “It is he who made us, and we are his.” We did not make ourselves, and we belong to him. “We are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.” The shepherd image returns. We are not self-made or self-sufficient. We are creatures and sheep, cared for by the Maker.

The second call is to enter his gates with thanksgiving and his courts with praise. Gratitude is the doorway to worship. We come not because we have earned entry, but because we have been invited. “Give thanks to him; bless his name!”

And the second reason is a threefold description of God: “For the LORD is good; his steadfast love endures forever, and his faithfulness to all generations.” Good describes his nature. Steadfast love describes his covenant commitment. Faithfulness describes his reliability across generations. This does not change. The generations before us trusted this God, and the generations after us will be able to.

The psalm is the response of the redeemed. In Christ, the invitation to the nations is extended to the world, and the flock is gathered from all peoples. The sheep of his pasture are those who hear his voice. John 10 says there will be one flock and one shepherd.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 95 is a similar call to worship. Psalm 117 invites all nations. Psalm 136 repeats “for his steadfast love endures forever.” Ezekiel 34:30-31 says the sheep are God’s people. Colossians 3:15-17 calls for thankfulness and singing. Hebrews 13:15 speaks of a sacrifice of praise. Revelation 7:9-12 pictures the nations praising God.

STEP 6

Application

Begin today with gladness. Give thanks for three things before you do anything else.

Sing a song of praise, or play one, and sing along.

Thank God for his faithfulness to your family, in the past and now.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Make a joyful noise to God, in your own words.

Thank him that you are his people and the sheep of his pasture.

Serve him with gladness today.

DAY 657 · WEEK 94

Psalm 103

Bless the LORD, O my soul

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Psalm · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 103. It is one of the most beloved psalms of praise. David speaks to his own soul, and recounts the benefits of God: forgiveness, healing, redemption, and compassion. Read it slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 103 is a psalm of David. It opens with a self-address: "Bless the LORD, O my soul." Then it moves through a list of God's benefits, his character, his compassion for human weakness, and his everlasting throne. It ends with a call to the angels and all creation to bless him. Reading it after John 13 to 14 makes us see the love of the Father which Jesus came to show.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Bless the LORD, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless his holy name!" (v. 1).
2. "Who forgives all your iniquity, who heals all your diseases" (v. 3).
3. "The LORD is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love" (v. 8).
4. "He does not deal with us according to our sins, nor repay us according to our iniquities" (v. 10).
5. "As far as the east is from the west, so far does he remove our transgressions from us" (v. 12).
6. "As a father shows compassion to his children, so the LORD shows compassion to those who fear him" (v. 13).
7. "For he knows our frame; he remembers that we are dust" (v. 14).

8 “But the steadfast love of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting on those who fear him” (v. 17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David talks to himself. “Bless the LORD, O my soul, and all that is within me.” He gathers up his whole being, mind, heart, and will, to praise. And he reminds himself not to forget God’s benefits. We tend to forget. The list begins with the greatest: God forgives all our iniquity. He heals all our diseases. He redeems our life from the pit. He crowns us with steadfast love and mercy. He satisfies us with good, so that our youth is renewed like the eagle’s.

Verse 8 is a quotation of what God said to Moses on Sinai: “merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love.” It is the heart of the Old Testament’s picture of God. He does not always accuse or keep his anger forever. “He does not deal with us according to our sins.” If he did, none of us would survive. Instead, as high as the heavens are above the earth, so great is his steadfast love toward those who fear him. “As far as the east is from the west, so far does he remove our transgressions from us.” East and west never meet. Our sins are gone.

Then comes the tender image of a father: “As a father shows compassion to his children, so the LORD shows compassion to those who fear him.” Jesus came to reveal the Father in this way. “For he knows our frame; he remembers that we are dust.” God is not surprised by our weakness. He knows what we are made of. Human life is brief, like grass, but the steadfast love of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting.

The psalm ends with a widening circle of praise. God’s throne is established in the heavens, and his kingdom rules over all. Angels, mighty ones, hosts, and all his works in all places are called to bless the LORD. And the psalm ends where it began: “Bless the LORD, O my soul!”

How can God forgive sin so completely and still be just? The cross answers that question. The Father removed our transgressions as far as the east is from the west because the Son bore them.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 34:6-7 is the source of verse 8. Isaiah 40:6-8 contrasts the grass with the word of God. Micah 7:18-19 says God casts all our sins into the depths of the sea. Isaiah 38:17 says he has cast all my sins behind his back. Luke 15:20 is the father running to the prodigal. Romans 3:25-26 explains how God is just and the justifier. Ephesians 1:7 says in him we have redemption through his blood. Hebrews 8:12 promises that he will remember our sins no more.

STEP 6

Application

Write a list of God's benefits to you, as David did. Read it aloud and give thanks.

Take a sin you cannot forgive in yourself and place it as far as the east is from the west.

Speak to your own soul: "Bless the LORD, O my soul."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Bless the LORD with all that is within you.

Name a benefit of his that you do not want to forget.

Thank him that he removes your sin as far as the east is from the west.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read John 14:6 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

JOHN 14:6

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this to Thomas in the upper room, on the last night before the cross. Thomas had asked, "How can we know the way?" and Jesus' answer is not a set of directions but himself.

"I am the way." Jesus is not just a guide who points. He is the road itself. We come to God not by our efforts, rituals, or goodness, but by Jesus. His death opens the path to God.

"And the truth." He is the reality behind all the shadows of the Old Testament, and the truth about God. Everything he says is true because he is truth.

"And the life." He gives life that death cannot end. He is the source of it, the one who raised Lazarus and who rose himself.

"No one comes to the Father except through me." This is exclusive and it is gracious. It is exclusive because there is only one way. It is gracious because the way is open to anyone who comes. No one is turned away.

When you wonder if you are on the right path, or when someone asks how a person can know God, say this verse. The way is a person, and he is here.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week Jesus declared that his sheep will never perish and that no one can snatch them from his hand. You stood at Lazarus's tomb and heard him say, "I am the resurrection and the life." You saw Mary pour out costly perfume and Jesus speak of the grain of wheat that must fall into the earth and die. In the Upper Room, he washed his disciples' feet, gave a new commandment, and comforted them with the promise of the Father's house, the Way, and the Helper. The Psalms were a chorus of the shepherd: Psalm 23, the LORD is my shepherd; Psalm 100, we are the sheep of his pasture; and Psalm 103, bless the LORD, O my soul, who forgives all your iniquity.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said no one can snatch his sheep out of his hand. How does this security affect how you think about doubt and failure?

At the Last Supper, Jesus washed feet and gave a new commandment to love one another. Who is one person you could serve or love this week in a way that costs you something?

Jesus is the way, the truth, and the life. What does it mean to you that the way to the Father is a person and not a program?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that he is the way, truth, and life.

Thank him that his sheep are safe in his hand.

Rest in the Father's house.

DAY 659 · WEEK 95

John 15:1-16:33

"I AM the vine"; the Paraclete; sorrow turned to joy

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 58 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 15:1-16:33. Jesus continues his teaching in the Upper Room: the vine and the branches, the world's hatred, and the work of the Holy Spirit. It ends with sorrow turned to joy and a word of victory. Read 15:1-17 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The disciples have heard that Jesus is going away, and they are troubled. Jesus has told them to love one another and has promised the Spirit. Now, as they leave the upper room (14:31), he continues to teach, perhaps on the way to the garden. The image of the vine was familiar: Israel was often called God's vine in the Old Testament, and was often unfruitful. Jesus says that he is the true vine.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I am the true vine, and my Father is the vinedresser" (15:1).
2. "I am the vine; you are the branches. Whoever abides in me and I in him, he it is that bears much fruit, for apart from me you can do nothing" (15:5).
3. "Greater love has no one than this, that someone lay down his life for his friends" (15:13).
4. "You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you that you should go and bear fruit" (15:16).
5. "If the world hates you, know that it has hated me before it hated you" (15:18).
6. "It is to your advantage that I go away, for if I do not go away, the Helper will not come to you" (16:7).

7. “When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all the truth” (16:13).
8. “In the world you will have tribulation. But take heart; I have overcome the world” (16:33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“I am the true vine, and my Father is the vinedresser.” This is the seventh and last of John’s “I AM” statements with a picture. Israel had been the vine that failed to bear good fruit (Isaiah 5), and Jesus is the true Israel who does. The Father is the gardener. He removes the branches that bear no fruit and prunes those that do, so that they bear more. Pruning is painful, but its purpose is fruitfulness.

The key word is “abide.” It means to remain, to stay connected. “Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit by itself, unless it abides in the vine, neither can you, unless you abide in me.” A branch has no life of its own. It lives by being joined to the vine. Apart from Jesus we can do nothing. Abiding in him means trusting him, keeping his words in us, praying, and loving as he loves. The fruit is Christlike character, and also lasting work and joy: “that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full.”

The vine teaches about union with Christ, which is at the center of the New Testament. We are not merely following his example; we are joined to him. His life flows into ours. The result is love: “As the Father has loved me, so have I loved you. Abide in my love.” The command is to love one another, and the model is his own sacrifice: “Greater love has no one than this, that someone lay down his life for his friends.” He calls them friends, not servants, because he has made known to them all that he has heard from the Father. And in verse 16: “You did not choose me, but I chose you.” The initiative is his.

Then he warns that the world will hate them, as it hated him. Persecution will come. But the Spirit will come as Helper, testify about Jesus, convict the world of sin, righteousness, and judgment, and guide them into all the truth. The disciples are sad that Jesus is leaving, but he says it is to their advantage, because the Spirit will come. He uses the picture of a woman in labor: her pain turns to joy when the child is born. The disciples will weep, but their sorrow will become joy, and no one will take it from them.

The discourse ends with a promise: “In the world you will have tribulation. But take heart; I have overcome the world.” It is the victory he will win on the cross.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 5:1-7, Psalm 80:8-16, and Hosea 10:1 describe Israel as a vine. Jeremiah 2:21 says Israel became a degenerate wild vine. Ezekiel 15 and 19:10-14 speak of the vine's fruitlessness. Galatians 5:22-23 lists the fruit of the Spirit. Romans 6:5 and 11:17-24 speak of being united with Christ and grafted in. Colossians 1:27 speaks of Christ in you, the hope of glory. 1 John 2:6, 3:24, and 4:13 speak of abiding. Philippians 1:6 says God will complete his good work.

STEP 6

Application

Ask how you are abiding: in prayer, in the Word, in fellowship? Choose one practice to strengthen.

Think about a season of pruning in your life. Ask the vinedresser what fruit he is growing.

Say "I have overcome the world" to yourself the next time you are afraid.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to help you abide in the true vine.
- Confess where you try to produce fruit apart from him.
- Thank him for turning sorrow into joy.

DAY 660 · WEEK 95

John 17:1-26

The High Priestly Prayer, "that they may be one"

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 26 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 17:1-26. This is the longest prayer of Jesus in the Bible, often called the High Priestly Prayer. He prays for himself, for his disciples, and for all who will believe through their word. You are overhearing the Son pray for you. Read it slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus has finished teaching in the upper room. Before crossing the Kidron valley to the garden, he lifts his eyes to heaven and prays aloud, so that his disciples can hear. The prayer has three parts: for his own glorification (vv. 1 to 5), for the eleven disciples (vv. 6 to 19), and for all future believers (vv. 20 to 26). It is a rare glimpse into the intimate relationship between the Son and the Father, and into what Jesus wants for his people.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Father, the hour has come; glorify your Son that the Son may glorify you" (17:1).
2. "And this is eternal life, that they know you the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent" (17:3).
3. "I glorified you on earth, having accomplished the work that you gave me to do" (17:4).
4. "I do not ask that you take them out of the world, but that you keep them from the evil one" (17:15).
5. "Sanctify them in the truth; your word is truth" (17:17).
6. "That they may all be one, just as you, Father, are in me, and I in you, that they also may be in us" (17:21).

7. “Father, I desire that they also, whom you have given me, may be with me where I am, to see my glory” (17:24).

8. “That the love with which you have loved me may be in them, and I in them” (17:26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus begins by praying for himself, but his request is that the Son may glorify the Father. He has authority over all flesh so that he may give eternal life to all whom the Father has given him. Then he defines eternal life: “that they know you the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent.” Eternal life is not just endless time. It is a relationship, knowing God through Christ. He says he has finished the work he was given, and asks to be restored to the glory he had with the Father before the world existed. The Son who is about to die speaks as if it is finished, because it is certain.

Then he prays for the eleven. They are the Father’s gift to him, and he has given them the Father’s word. He prays, “I am not praying for the world but for those whom you have given me.” He asks that the Father keep them in his name, that they may be one. He does not ask that they be taken out of the world, but kept from the evil one. They are in the world but not of the world. And he asks, “Sanctify them in the truth; your word is truth.” To be sanctified is to be set apart and made holy, and it happens through the Word. Then, “As you sent me into the world, so I have sent them into the world.” The disciples are sent as he was sent.

The third part is for you, if you believe. “I do not ask for these only, but also for those who will believe in me through their word.” Jesus prayed for every future believer. He asks that they all may be one, “just as you, Father, are in me, and I in you.” The unity of believers reflects the unity of the Father and Son, and its purpose is mission: “so that the world may believe that you have sent me.” A divided church makes the gospel harder to believe. A united church is a witness.

He ends with the destination: “Father, I desire that they also, whom you have given me, may be with me where I am, to see my glory.” The goal of salvation is to be with Christ and to see him. And he says that the love of the Father for the Son will be in them. We are loved with the same love.

Notice how the prayer shows the security of the believer. The Son is praying for us, and the Father always hears him. As Romans 8:34 says, he is at the right hand of God, interceding for us.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 28 and Leviticus 16 describe the high priest's work. Hebrews 4:14-16 and 7:23-25 say Jesus is our great high priest who always lives to make intercession. Romans 8:34 says Christ intercedes for us. Isaiah 53:12 says he makes intercession for the transgressors. Ephesians 4:1-6 calls for the unity of the Spirit. Luke 22:32 records his prayer for Peter. 1 John 5:20 says to know the true God is eternal life. Revelation 21:3 promises that God will dwell with his people.

STEP 6

Application

Remember that Jesus has prayed for you by name. Write one sentence about what that means.

Pray this prayer back: for your own sanctification by the word, for your church's unity, and for the world to believe.

Reach out to a Christian from another tradition or community this week, as a sign of unity.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for praying for you before you were born.

Thank God that eternal life is knowing him.

Ask him to make you one with his people.

JOHN 20:31

DAY 661 · WEEK 95

John 18:1-19:16

Arrest; trials; Pilate

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 18:1-19:16. Jesus is arrested in a garden, questioned, denied by Peter, tried before Pilate, and sentenced to be crucified. Notice who is really in control, and the conversation about kingship and truth.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the prayer, Jesus crosses the Kidron valley to a garden, where Judas arrives with soldiers and officials. John tells the story of the trial from a different angle than the other Gospels. He leaves out Gethsemane's agony and the Jewish council's formal verdict, and emphasizes Jesus' sovereignty. The key scenes are the confrontation in the garden, the interview with Pilate, and the cry of the crowd.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Put your sword into its sheath; shall I not drink the cup that the Father has given me?" (18:11).
2. "Peter again denied it, and at once a rooster crowed" (18:27).
3. "My kingdom is not of this world" (18:36).
4. "Everyone who is of the truth listens to my voice" (18:37).
5. "What is truth?" (18:38).
6. "Behold the man!" (19:5).
7. "You would have no authority over me at all unless it had been given you from above" (19:11).
8. "We have no king but Caesar" (19:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

When the soldiers come, Jesus steps forward: “Whom do you seek?” “Jesus of Nazareth.” “I am he.” And they draw back and fall to the ground. Even in his arrest, his majesty shows. He asks them to let his disciples go, and they do. Peter strikes with a sword, and Jesus says, “Shall I not drink the cup that the Father has given me?” He is not a victim of events. He is going to the cross willingly.

Peter follows at a distance. In the courtyard, he is asked whether he is a disciple, and he denies it. Three times. Then a rooster crows. Meanwhile, inside, Jesus is questioned by Annas and then Caiaphas, and struck by an officer.

Before Pilate, the leaders do not enter the Gentile governor’s headquarters so they will not be defiled before Passover, a terrible irony as they seek the death of the innocent. Pilate asks, “Are you the King of the Jews?” Jesus answers, “My kingdom is not of this world.” It is a real kingdom, but it does not rely on swords. “For this purpose I was born… to bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth listens to my voice.” Pilate’s famous answer is a question, “What is truth?” He is standing in front of the Truth and does not know it. He tells the crowd three times that he finds no guilt in Jesus.

Pilate has Jesus flogged, and the soldiers put a crown of thorns on his head and a purple robe on him. Pilate brings him out: “Behold the man!” The King wears a crown of thorns, and he is exactly the man we need. When the leaders cry “Crucify him!”, Pilate says, “You take him and crucify him.” They say he has made himself the Son of God. Pilate becomes more afraid. “Do you not know that I have authority to release you and authority to crucify you?” Jesus answers, “You would have no authority over me at all unless it had been given you from above.” God is in control, and yet Pilate and the leaders are guilty.

Finally the chief priests say, “We have no king but Caesar.” The people who had longed for centuries for God to be their King now renounce him. Pilate hands Jesus over to be crucified. The innocent Lamb is handed over on the day of preparation for the Passover, at the very hour the Passover lambs were being slaughtered.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 3:14 is the “I am he” that made the soldiers fall back. Isaiah 53:7-8 describes the silent servant. Psalm 2:1-6 describes the nations raging against the LORD’s anointed. Daniel 7:14 gives the Son of Man a kingdom. Exodus 12 is the Passover lamb. 1 Timothy 6:13 says Christ Jesus made the good confession before Pilate. Romans 5:8 says Christ died for us while we were sinners. Acts 2:23 says he was delivered up according to the definite plan of God.

STEP 6

Application

Reflect on Peter's denial and Jesus' willingness to restore him. Bring any denial of your own to Jesus.

Ask what it would mean to let Christ be your King in an area you've kept for yourself.

Meditate on "Behold the man!" for a few minutes in silence.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for going willingly to the cross.

Confess where you have not listened to his kingdom's call.

Ask him to teach you to belong to his kingdom.

JOHN 20:31

DAY 662 · WEEK 95

John 19:17-42

The crucifixion, "It is finished"; the burial

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 26 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 19:17-42. Jesus is crucified, speaks his last words in John's Gospel, dies, and is buried. Read slowly. Notice how many Scriptures John says are fulfilled, and the cry "It is finished."

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus carries his cross to Golgotha, the place of a skull. John, who was there, tells the story with simplicity and attention to detail. He alone records the conversation with his mother, the cry "I thirst," the word "It is finished," and the water and blood from his side. John presents the crucifixion not as defeat but as the hour of glory, the completion of the work the Father gave him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews" (19:19).
2. "They divided my garments among them, and for my clothing they cast lots" (19:24).
3. "Woman, behold, your son!" (19:26).
4. "I thirst" (19:28).
5. "It is finished" (19:30).
6. "And he bowed his head and gave up his spirit" (19:30).
7. "But one of the soldiers pierced his side with a spear, and at once there came out blood and water" (19:34).
8. "Nicodemus, who earlier had come to Jesus by night, also came, bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about seventy-five pounds in weight" (19:39).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Pilate writes a sign for the cross: “Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews,” in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek. The chief priests object, but Pilate says, “What I have written I have written.” Without knowing it, Pilate proclaims the truth to the world in three languages.

The soldiers divide his clothes into four parts and cast lots for the seamless tunic, fulfilling Psalm 22:18. John notes that nothing happens by accident. Near the cross stand his mother, her sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. Jesus sees his mother and the disciple whom he loved, and says, “Woman, behold, your son!” and “Behold, your mother!” Even in agony, he provides for his mother.

Then, “knowing that all was now finished,” he says, “I thirst.” Psalm 69:21 is fulfilled. They put a sponge of sour wine on a hyssop branch. Hyssop was used at the Passover to put the blood on the doorposts. Then he says, “It is finished,” and bows his head and gives up his spirit. The word is tetelestai, a word used for a paid debt. Jesus did not die as a helpless victim but as someone who completed the work of redemption: the debt paid, the sacrifice offered, the law fulfilled, the Father’s will done. He gave up his spirit; it was not taken from him.

To make sure the bodies do not remain on the crosses on the Sabbath, the soldiers break the legs of the other two men. But when they come to Jesus, they find that he is already dead, and instead a soldier pierces his side with a spear. Blood and water flow out. John emphasizes that he saw it and testifies to it. Not a bone is broken, fulfilling the Passover regulations about the lamb, and they will look on the one they have pierced (Zechariah 12:10). Jesus is the Passover Lamb.

Joseph of Arimathea, a secret disciple, and Nicodemus, who first came by night, step forward in the open. Nicodemus brings a hundred pounds of spices, a royal burial. They wrap the body and lay it in a new tomb in a garden, where no one had yet been laid. Two men who had been afraid now publicly honor Jesus. Death has done its worst. The scene is set for Sunday.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 22 describes the crucifixion with striking accuracy, and verses 16 to 18 are quoted here. Psalm 69:21 is the vinegar. Exodus 12:22 and 12:46 relate to hyssop and the unbroken bones. Zechariah 12:10 is the pierced one. Isaiah 53:9 says he was with a rich man in his death. Leviticus 16 and Hebrews 9:11-14 explain the sacrifice of atonement. Romans 3:23-26 and Colossians 2:13-14 say the debt of our sin was nailed to the cross. 1 John 5:6-8 speaks of water and blood.

STEP 6

Application

Spend time in silence with “It is finished.” What debt do you still try to pay on your own?

Look at Joseph and Nicodemus: are you hiding your faith? Ask for courage to be open.

Thank Jesus for caring for his mother even in agony. Whom can you care for today?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for saying, “It is finished,” and paying your debt in full.

Tell him what it means to rest in that.

Thank him for his care even in his dying.

JOHN 20:31

DAY 663 · WEEK 95

John 20:1-21:25

The resurrection; Thomas; the reinstatement of Peter

Year 2 · Unit 17 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 20:1-21:25. The empty tomb, the appearance to Mary Magdalene, to the disciples, and to Thomas, the purpose statement of the Gospel, and a breakfast on the beach where Jesus restores Peter. Read 20:30-31 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is early on the first day of the week, while it is still dark. Mary Magdalene comes to the tomb and finds the stone taken away. John's account is intimate and personal. He tells of his own race with Peter to the tomb, of Mary's tears, of Thomas's doubt, and of a morning by the Sea of Tiberias. The Gospel was originally written to end at chapter 20; chapter 21 is an epilogue that answers Peter's denial.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Jesus said to her, Mary. She turned and said to him in Aramaic, Rabboni!" (20:16).
2. "As the Father has sent me, even so I am sending you" (20:21).
3. "My Lord and my God!" (20:28).
4. "Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed" (20:29).
5. "But these are written so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name" (20:31).
6. "Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?" (21:15).
7. "Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you" (21:17).
8. "Follow me" (21:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Mary finds the tomb empty and runs to tell Peter and John. They run to the tomb. John arrives first but Peter goes in first, and they see the linen cloths lying there. John "saw and believed." Mary stays outside, weeping. Two angels ask why she is weeping, and then she turns and sees Jesus, but does not recognize him, thinking he is the gardener. He says one word: "Mary." She knows his voice. "Rabboni!" The good shepherd calls his sheep by name. He sends her to the disciples: "I am ascending to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God."

That evening, the disciples are behind locked doors. Jesus stands among them: "Peace be with you." He shows them his hands and side. "As the Father has sent me, even so I am sending you." He breathes on them and says, "Receive the Holy Spirit." He gives them authority to proclaim the forgiveness of sins.

Thomas was not there. He says he will not believe unless he sees the nail marks and puts his hand in his side. A week later, Jesus appears again. "Put your finger here, and see my hands." Thomas does not need to touch. He says the greatest confession in the Gospel: "My Lord and my God!" Jesus says, "Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed." That includes every Christian since.

Then John states his purpose. Jesus did many other signs, but these are written "so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name." John selected his signs to produce faith. Everything in this Gospel is to bring us to belief, and life.

Chapter 21 shows Peter, who denied Jesus three times by a charcoal fire, restored by another charcoal fire. Seven disciples have gone fishing and caught nothing. A man on the shore tells them to cast on the right side, and the net is full. "It is the Lord!" Peter jumps in. On the beach Jesus has breakfast ready. Then he asks Peter three times, "Do you love me?" Peter is grieved, and says, "Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you." Each time Jesus gives him a charge: "Feed my lambs... Tend my sheep... Feed my sheep." The one who denied him is made a shepherd. Jesus also tells him how he will die and ends with "Follow me." The Gospel ends with John's note that the world could not contain the books if everything Jesus did were written.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 2 and 3 take place in a garden, as does the resurrection in John. Psalm 16:10 and Isaiah 53:10-12 speak of the Messiah's rising. Genesis 2:7 describes the breath of life, echoed in 20:22. Ezekiel 37:9-14 speaks of breath and the Spirit giving life. Luke 24:36-49 gives the parallel appearance. 1 Corinthians 15:3-8 lists the witnesses to the resurrection. 1 Peter 1:8 says that though you have not seen him, you love him. 1 Peter 5:1-4 is Peter's later call to shepherd the flock.

STEP 6

Application

Hear Jesus call your name as he called Mary's. Respond with "Rabboni."

Confess with Thomas, "My Lord and my God," and mean it.

If you have failed Jesus, hear him ask, "Do you love me?" and answer honestly.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Say to Jesus, "My Lord and my God," and mean it.
- Thank him for calling you by name.
- Hear him ask, "Do you love me?" and answer him.

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this to Nicodemus in the night, and it has become the best known verse in the Bible. Every word carries weight.

"For God." The subject of the sentence is God. Salvation begins with him, not us.

"So loved." The word "so" means "in this way." This is how God loved: by giving. His love is not a feeling alone. It acts, at great cost.

"The world." Not just Israel, not just the good. The whole sinful, rebellious world. If God loved the world, he loves you.

"That he gave his only Son." The Father gave the Son he loved from all eternity. This is the gift of the cross, the greatest gift in history.

"That whoever believes in him." The way to receive the gift is belief, trust in Jesus. "Whoever" means anyone, with no exceptions.

"Should not perish but have eternal life." Two destinies: perishing or life. Eternal life begins now, in knowing God, and lasts forever.

When you doubt whether God cares about you, say this verse. It is the gospel in a sentence.

Unit Recap

You have read the whole Gospel of John, which was written so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and by believing have life in his name. It began in eternity with the Word, who was with God and was God, and who became flesh and dwelt among us, full of grace and truth. Through seven signs and seven "I AM" statements, John showed who Jesus is: the bread of life, the light of the world, the door, the good shepherd, the resurrection and the life, the way, the truth, and the life, and the true vine. Jesus told Nicodemus that he must be born again, offered living water to a Samaritan woman, healed a blind man, and raised Lazarus. He said "Before Abraham was, I am," and "I and the Father are one." In the Upper Room he washed his disciples' feet, gave a new commandment, and promised the Holy Spirit, the Helper who would be with them forever. He taught them to abide in the vine and prayed for all who would believe through their word. He was arrested, tried, and crucified, saying "It is finished," and was raised on the third day. He called Mary by name, drew Thomas from doubt to worship, and restored Peter. Along the way you doctrinally paused on the incarnation, regeneration, and worship, and prayed through Psalms 36, 139, 119, 43, 23, 100, and 103, which gave voice to the light, the shepherd, and the steadfast love at the heart of this Gospel.

REFLECT

Review Questions

What does the Prologue teach about the identity of Jesus?

Reread John 1:1-18. Notice what it says about the Word's relationship to God, to creation, and to us. Write a few sentences about why it matters that Jesus is both fully God and fully human.

What do the seven "I AM" statements reveal about who Jesus is?

List them: the bread of life (6:35), the light of the world (8:12), the door (10:9), the good shepherd (10:11), the resurrection and the life (11:25), the way, the truth, and the life (14:6), and the true vine (15:1). Choose the one that speaks most to your need right now and say why.

What does the Upper Room Discourse teach about the Holy Spirit?

Look at John 14:16-26, 15:26-27, and 16:7-15. What does the Spirit do for believers and for the world? Why did Jesus say it was to their advantage that he go away?

What does "abiding in the vine" look like in everyday Christian life?

Reread John 15:1-17. Think about concrete practices of abiding, such as prayer, Scripture, obedience, and fellowship. Describe one change you could make this week to stay more connected to Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"But these are written so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name."

JOHN 20:31

REST

Meditation

John writes these words at the end of his Gospel, and they tell us why he wrote it. It is the key to reading everything else in the book.

"These are written." The Gospel is a written testimony, chosen from many things Jesus did. John, who saw and heard, put down what we need to know.

"So that you may believe." The purpose is faith. John does not write only to inform us. He writes to bring us to trust in Jesus.

"That Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God." Two titles sum up the content of faith: Christ, the promised king and Savior of Israel, and Son of God, the one who shares the nature of the Father. To believe both is to believe the gospel.

"And that by believing." Faith is the means, not the cause. We are not saved by our faith as a work, but through faith in a person.

“You may have life in his name.” The result is life: forgiveness, new birth, the Spirit, and eternal life, all in the name of Jesus. “In his name” means in the authority and character of his person.

When you wonder what the point of all this reading is, say this verse. It is for you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week Jesus taught you to abide in the true vine, because apart from him you can do nothing, and promised the Helper, the Spirit of truth. In the High Priestly Prayer you overheard the Son pray for you, that you would know the only true God, be kept from the evil one, be sanctified by the truth, and be one with his people. You followed Jesus through the garden, the trials before Annas, Caiaphas, and Pilate, and to the cross, where he said “It is finished.” You saw the burial by Joseph and Nicodemus, and the empty tomb. You heard him call Mary by name, watched Thomas confess “My Lord and my God,” and listened as Jesus restored Peter with three questions about love. You finished the Gospel of John and stated its purpose: that you may believe and have life in his name.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said, “Apart from me you can do nothing.” Where have you been trying to bear fruit on your own, and what would it look like to abide instead?

On the cross, Jesus said, “It is finished.” How does knowing that the work of salvation is complete change the way you live with your guilt and your efforts?

Jesus restored Peter after his denial and gave him a calling. What failure do you need to bring to Jesus, and what would it look like to hear him say “Follow me”?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for the vine, the prayer, the cross, and the empty tomb.

Thank him for writing these things so that you may believe.

DAY 666 · WEEK 96

Mark 1:1-45

"Immediately", the Kingdom arrives with authority

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 45 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 1:1-45. Mark begins with no birth story and no prologue. Notice how quickly the scenes move, and how often the word "immediately" appears. Read it in one sitting if you can, to feel the pace.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Mark is the shortest and probably the earliest of the four Gospels. Early Christians said it was written by John Mark, a companion of Peter, and that it reflects Peter's preaching in Rome. It was written for a church that was suffering, and it presents Jesus as the strong Son of God who is also the suffering servant. Mark uses the word "immediately" (or "at once") over forty times. Things happen quickly. There is almost no talk, and much action.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God" (1:1).
2. "And when he came up out of the water, immediately he saw the heavens being torn open and the Spirit descending on him like a dove" (1:10).
3. "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe in the gospel" (1:15).
4. "Follow me, and I will make you become fishers of men" (1:17).
5. "And they were astonished at his teaching, for he taught them as one who had authority, and not as the scribes" (1:22).
6. "And rising very early in the morning, while it was still dark, he departed and went out to a desolate place, and there he prayed" (1:35).

7. “Moved with pity, he stretched out his hand and touched him and said to him, I will; be clean” (1:41).

8. “See that you say nothing to anyone” (1:44).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Mark’s first sentence is his title: “The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.” Gospel means good news, the announcement of a victory. Mark tells us at once who Jesus is, though the people in the story will take most of the book to find out.

John the Baptist appears in the wilderness, as Isaiah promised, and says that one more powerful is coming. Jesus is baptized, and Mark says the heavens are “torn open,” a strong word, as the Spirit descends and the Father says, “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.” Immediately the Spirit drives him into the wilderness, where he is tempted by Satan for forty days. Mark gives the temptation in two verses. The battle between the Son of God and the powers of darkness has begun.

Then Jesus comes to Galilee: “The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe in the gospel.” This is the heart of his message. The long-awaited reign of God is arriving in his person. He calls Simon and Andrew, James and John, and they leave their nets at once.

In the synagogue in Capernaum, he teaches with authority, unlike the scribes, who quoted other rabbis. A man with an unclean spirit cries out, “I know who you are, the Holy One of God.” Jesus silences the demon and casts it out. The crowd is amazed. He heals Peter’s mother-in-law, and by evening the whole town is at the door. Yet early the next morning he withdraws to pray. His power flows from communion with the Father.

A leper kneels before him and says, “If you will, you can make me clean.” Moved with pity, Jesus stretches out his hand and touches him, something no one would do, and says, “I will; be clean.” The unclean person is made clean without making Jesus unclean. Then he commands the man to say nothing and to go to the priest. But the man tells everyone. This is the first appearance of a pattern in Mark that scholars call the Messianic secret: Jesus often silences demons and those he heals. We will return to why.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 40:3 and Malachi 3:1 are the prophecies Mark quotes at the start. Psalm 2:7 and Isaiah 42:1 stand behind the voice from heaven. Daniel 7 and Isaiah 52:7 are the background to the kingdom of God. Leviticus 13 and 14 give the laws of leprosy. 1 Peter 5:13 mentions Mark as Peter's son in the faith. Acts 12:12 and Colossians 4:10 mention John Mark. Romans 1:16 says the gospel is the power of God for salvation.

STEP 6

Application

Read the chapter aloud quickly. How does the pace affect you?

Hear "repent and believe in the gospel" as a daily call, not a once-only event.

Like Jesus, find a quiet place early in the day to pray before the day's demands begin.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Repent and believe in the good news, in your own words.
- Thank Jesus that the kingdom is at hand.
- Ask him to help you follow him immediately.

DAY 667 · WEEK 96

Mark 1:14-15; Luke 17:20-21; 1 Corinthians 15:20-28

Inaugurated eschatology

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Doctrine · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 1:14-15, Luke 17:20-21, and 1 Corinthians 15:20-28. Today is a doctrinal pause on the kingdom of God as already here and not yet complete. Notice the tenses: the kingdom has come, and the kingdom will come.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus began his ministry by announcing that the kingdom of God was at hand. The Jews expected the kingdom to arrive all at once, with the Messiah defeating Israel's enemies and raising the dead. Jesus said the kingdom had arrived, and yet he spoke of its future coming. Paul, in 1 Corinthians 15, describes the order of events. Theologians call this "inaugurated eschatology," or the "already and not yet."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Now after John was arrested, Jesus came into Galilee, proclaiming the gospel of God" (Mark 1:14).
2. "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand" (Mark 1:15).
3. "The kingdom of God is not coming in ways that can be observed" (Luke 17:20).
4. "For behold, the kingdom of God is in the midst of you" (Luke 17:21).
5. "But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep" (1 Corinthians 15:20).
6. "But each in his own order: Christ the firstfruits, then at his coming those who belong to Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:23).

7 “For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet” (1 Corinthians 15:25).

8 “The last enemy to be destroyed is death” (1 Corinthians 15:26).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The kingdom of God is God’s rule and reign over his creation, and in the New Testament it is both present and future. It is present because the King has come. In Jesus’ life, death, and resurrection, the decisive victory over sin, Satan, and death has been won, and the Spirit has been poured out. The powers of the age to come have broken into this age. It is future because the kingdom has not yet come in its fullness. Sin and death still operate, believers still suffer, and Christ’s enemies have not yet been finally put under his feet. The church lives between the first coming and the second, in the overlap of the ages. Biblical scholars call this the “already and not yet.” This framework fits the way the covenants unfold: the promises made to Abraham and David are fulfilled in Christ and have begun to be realized, and they will be completed when he returns. Christians have differed on the details of the end, such as the nature of the millennium in Revelation 20, but all agree that Christ will return, the dead will be raised, and God will be all in all. Until then, the church is not merely waiting. It lives as a sign of the kingdom, proclaiming the King and walking in his ways.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Mark records the opening announcement of Jesus’ public ministry. “The time is fulfilled” means that the long wait, the centuries of promises, is over. “The kingdom of God is at hand” means it has drawn near, in the person of the King. The response is to repent and believe.

Luke 17 shows another side. The Pharisees ask when the kingdom of God will come, and Jesus says it is not coming with signs to be observed. It cannot be pointed to on a map. “The kingdom of God is in the midst of you,” because the King is standing there. The kingdom is first of all a person. His healings and exorcisms are the kingdom’s invasion of the world, and when he casts out demons by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom has come upon them.

Yet the kingdom is not complete. In 1 Corinthians 15, Paul writes of the resurrection and says that Christ is the firstfruits. The firstfruits is the first part of the harvest, and it promises the rest. Christ has been raised, and those who belong to him will be raised at his coming. Then comes the end, when he delivers the kingdom to God the Father after destroying every rule and authority and power. “For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. The last enemy to be destroyed is death.” So there is a reign now, and a final victory yet to come. When all is subjected to him, the Son himself will be subject to the Father, “that God may be all in all.”

This has practical effects. Because the kingdom has come, we have forgiveness, the Spirit, and a new identity, and we can obey. Because it has not fully come, we still groan, suffer, and wait, and we do not expect heaven on earth in this age. We are neither triumphalists nor pessimists. We live with joyful patience, praying "Your kingdom come," and working in hope because we know how the story ends.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 2:44 and 7:13-14 promise an everlasting kingdom. Matthew 12:28 says that if Jesus casts out demons by the Spirit, the kingdom has come. Matthew 6:10 teaches us to pray for the kingdom to come. Romans 8:18-25 describes the groaning of creation as we wait. Hebrews 2:8 says we do not yet see everything in subjection to him. Ephesians 1:13-14 calls the Spirit a guarantee of our inheritance. Revelation 11:15 and 21:1-5 describe the final arrival.

STEP 6

Application

Pray "Your kingdom come" today, thinking of both the ways it has come and the ways it has not.

Where do you see signs of the kingdom in your church or neighborhood? Thank God for them.

When you are discouraged by the world, remember that Christ must reign until every enemy, including death, is under his feet.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that in Jesus the kingdom has come.

Thank him for the firstfruits of the resurrection.

Ask him to teach you to live between the already and the not yet.

MARK 1:15

DAY 668 · WEEK 96

Mark 2:1-3:35

Controversies; new wineskins; the true family of Jesus

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 63 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 2:1-3:35. A paralyzed man is lowered through a roof, Jesus eats with sinners, the Sabbath controversies begin, and opposition hardens. Notice who Jesus welcomes and who rejects him.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

These two chapters contain a series of five conflict stories in Galilee. In each, the religious leaders challenge Jesus' authority: to forgive sins, to eat with sinners, to set aside fasting, and to interpret the Sabbath. By the end of chapter 3, the Pharisees are plotting with the Herodians to destroy him. Mark places the opposition early to show that the road to the cross begins here.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Son, your sins are forgiven" (2:5).
2. "But that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins" (2:10).
3. "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners" (2:17).
4. "And no one puts new wine into old wineskins" (2:22).
5. "The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath" (2:27).
6. "And he looked around at them with anger, grieved at their hardness of heart" (3:5).
7. "Whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit never has forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin" (3:29).

8 “For whoever does the will of God, he is my brother and sister and mother” (3:35).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Four friends bring a paralyzed man to Jesus, and when they cannot get through the crowd, they dig through the roof. Jesus sees their faith and says to the man, “Son, your sins are forgiven.” The scribes think, “Who can forgive sins but God alone?” They are right about the principle, and that is the point. Jesus then heals the man to prove that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins. The man’s greatest need was forgiveness, and Jesus addressed that first.

He calls Levi, a tax collector, and eats with tax collectors and sinners. When the scribes complain, he says, “Those who are well have no need of a physician.” He has come for the sick. Anyone who thinks they are well will miss him.

When asked why his disciples do not fast, he says the bridegroom is with them. A wedding is no time for fasting. The old way and the new cannot be patched together: new wine requires new wineskins. The new covenant does not fit into the old forms. This is a key statement of the discontinuity in the covenants. What Jesus brings is new.

The Sabbath conflicts follow. His disciples pick grain on the Sabbath, and Jesus says, “The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath. So the Son of Man is lord even of the Sabbath.” In the synagogue he heals a man with a withered hand, and asks whether it is lawful to do good or harm on the Sabbath. They are silent. He looks at them with anger, “grieved at their hardness of heart.” Jesus is angry and sad at the same time. The Pharisees go out and plot with the Herodians how to destroy him.

In chapter 3, crowds follow him, and he appoints twelve to be with him and to be sent out. His family thinks he is out of his mind. The scribes from Jerusalem say he casts out demons by Beelzebul. Jesus responds that a house divided cannot stand, and warns that to attribute the Spirit’s work to Satan is an unforgivable blasphemy, a settled refusal to see God’s work as good. Finally, when his mother and brothers arrive, he looks at those sitting around him and says, “Here are my mother and my brothers! Whoever does the will of God, he is my brother and sister and mother.” The new family of God is defined by obedience to him.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 43:25 says God alone blots out transgressions. Psalm 103:3 says the LORD forgives all your iniquity. Hosea 6:6 is the mercy-over-sacrifice theme. 1 Samuel 21:1-6 is David and the bread. Exodus 20:8-11 and Deuteronomy 5:12-15 are the Sabbath commands. Jeremiah 31:31-

34 promised a new covenant. Hebrews 8:13 says the first covenant is becoming obsolete. Galatians 3:26-29 and Ephesians 2:19 describe the new family of God.

STEP 6

Application

Think of those who brought you to Jesus. Thank God for them, and ask whom you could carry to him.

Reflect on whether you are a patient who needs the physician. Admit your need.

Ask what "doing the will of God" looks like in your family and church this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for authority to forgive sins, and for forgiving yours.

Thank him for coming for sinners.

Ask him to make you new wine, ready for what he is doing.

MARK 1:15

DAY 669 · WEEK 96

Mark 4:1-5:43

Parables; the storm; the Gerasene; Jairus's daughter

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 84 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 4:1-5:43. Jesus teaches in parables, stills a storm, frees a demon-possessed man, and heals two women. It is a chapter of authority over the seed, the sea, the spirits, sickness, and death. Notice the repeated question of faith and fear.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus sits in a boat by the Sea of Galilee and teaches a large crowd on the shore. Mark records only a few parables, but they are key to the kingdom. Then comes a day of wonders. Jesus crosses the lake with his disciples, and in the span of two chapters demonstrates his authority over nature, demons, disease, and death.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Listen! Behold, a sower went out to sow" (4:3).
2. "He who has ears to hear, let him hear" (4:9).
3. "It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when sown on the ground, is the smallest of all the seeds on earth" (4:31).
4. "Peace! Be still!" (4:39).
5. "Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?" (4:41).
6. "Go home to your friends and tell them how much the Lord has done for you, and how he has had mercy on you" (5:19).
7. "Do not fear, only believe" (5:36).
8. "Little girl, I say to you, arise" (5:41).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The parable of the sower is the first of the parables and a key to the rest. A sower scatters seed on four kinds of ground: the path, rocky ground, thorny ground, and good soil. The seed is the word of God. The first three soils show failures: the word is snatched away, withers without roots, or is choked by worries and riches. The good soil hears, accepts, and bears fruit, thirty, sixty, and a hundredfold. Jesus says the parables are given so that those with ears hear, and those without do not understand. They sift. He then tells of the seed growing secretly and the mustard seed. The kingdom starts small, grows by God's power, and ends large.

That evening, Jesus says, "Let us go across to the other side." A great windstorm arises, and the boat is filling with water. Jesus is asleep on a cushion in the stern. The disciples wake him: "Teacher, do you not care that we are perishing?" He rebukes the wind and says to the sea, "Peace! Be still!" There is a great calm. He asks, "Why are you so afraid? Have you still no faith?" And they are filled with great fear and say, "Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?" Their fear of the storm has turned into awe at him.

On the far shore, in Gentile territory, a man lives among the tombs, so possessed that no one can bind him. He is called Legion. Jesus casts the demons into a herd of pigs, and the man is found clothed and in his right mind. The townspeople ask Jesus to leave. The man begs to go with Jesus, but Jesus tells him to go home and tell what the Lord has done. He proclaims it in the Decapolis, ten cities of Gentiles.

Back across the lake, Jairus, a synagogue ruler, begs Jesus to heal his dying daughter. On the way, a woman with a twelve-year flow of blood touches his garment and is healed. Jesus stops and says, "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace." Then news comes that Jairus's daughter is dead. Jesus says, "Do not fear, only believe." He takes her hand and says, "Talitha cumi," "Little girl, I say to you, arise." She gets up and walks. Jesus is the Lord of life.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 55:10-11 says the word will not return empty. Ezekiel 17:22-24 and Daniel 4:10-12 use the image of a great tree. Psalm 65:7, 89:9, and 107:29 show the LORD stilling the sea. Jonah 1 is another storm and sleeping man. Isaiah 65:4 mentions tombs and swine. Leviticus 15:25-30 describes the uncleanness of the woman's bleeding. 2 Kings 4 tells of Elisha raising a child. 1 Corinthians 15:26 says the last enemy to be destroyed is death.

STEP 6

Application

Ask which soil you are right now. What thorns might be choking the word in you?

Name a storm you face, and hear Jesus say “Peace! Be still!” to it.

Like the healed man, tell someone what the Lord has done for you this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to make your heart good soil.
- Tell Jesus about a storm you are in.
- Thank him that he is Lord of both.

MARK 1:15

DAY 670 · WEEK 96

Mark 6:1-56

Nazareth; the Twelve; John beheaded; the feeding; walking on water

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 6:1-56. Jesus is rejected in Nazareth, sends out the Twelve, John the Baptist is beheaded, five thousand are fed, and Jesus walks on the sea. Notice the contrast between those who reject Jesus and those who receive him.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus returns to his hometown of Nazareth, where he grew up, and meets disbelief. He sends the Twelve out on mission. While they are gone, Mark inserts the story of John's death, a dark foreshadowing of Jesus' own. When the Twelve return, Jesus feeds a crowd of five thousand, and that night walks on water. Mark often sandwiches one story within another to draw out meaning.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "A prophet is not without honor, except in his hometown and among his relatives and in his own household" (6:4).
2. "And he marveled because of their unbelief" (6:6).
3. "And he called the twelve and began to send them out two by two" (6:7).
4. "So they went out and proclaimed that people should repent" (6:12).
5. "When he went ashore he saw a great crowd, and he had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd" (6:34).
6. "And taking the five loaves and the two fish he looked up to heaven and said a blessing and broke the loaves" (6:41).
7. "Take heart; it is I. Do not be afraid" (6:50).

8 “For they did not understand about the loaves, but their hearts were hardened” (6:52).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Nazareth, the people who know Jesus best cannot see who he is. “Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary?” They take offense at him. Jesus says, “A prophet is not without honor, except in his hometown.” Mark says, “He could do no mighty work there,” except to heal a few. Familiarity and unbelief closed their eyes, and “he marveled because of their unbelief.” Even Jesus was astonished at the hardness of human hearts.

He sends out the Twelve two by two with authority over unclean spirits, with only a staff and sandals. They proclaim repentance, cast out demons, and anoint the sick with oil. The mission of Jesus is multiplied through his disciples.

Mark then tells of Herod’s birthday banquet. Herod had imprisoned John for condemning his marriage to his brother’s wife. Herodias holds a grudge, and when her daughter dances and pleases Herod, he rashly promises her anything. At her mother’s request she asks for John’s head on a platter. Herod is distressed but keeps his oath, and John is beheaded. The faithful prophet dies at the whim of a weak king. It is the shadow of the cross.

When the apostles return, Jesus takes them to a desolate place to rest, but a crowd runs ahead. Seeing them, he has compassion because they are like sheep without a shepherd. He teaches, and when evening comes, the disciples suggest sending them away. Jesus says, “You give them something to eat.” They have five loaves and two fish. He looks up to heaven, blesses and breaks, and gives to the disciples to distribute. All eat and are satisfied, with twelve baskets left. It echoes the LORD feeding Israel in the wilderness and Elisha’s miracle, but it is greater.

That night the disciples are straining at the oars against the wind. Jesus comes to them, walking on the sea. “He meant to pass by them.” This is the language of a theophany, like God passing by Moses. They think he is a ghost. He says, “Take heart; it is I. Do not be afraid,” and the wind ceases. Mark comments that they were astonished, for they had not understood about the loaves, “but their hearts were hardened.” They saw but did not see. Mark is preparing for the question in chapter 8: who is Jesus?

STEP 5

Connection

Numbers 27:17 and Ezekiel 34 speak of sheep without a shepherd. Psalm 23 shows the shepherd providing a table. Exodus 16 and 2 Kings 4:42-44 record bread in the wilderness. Job 9:8 says God alone treads on the waves of the sea. Exodus 33:19-23 and 34:6 are God passing by Moses. Isaiah 43:2 and Psalm 77:19 speak of God's path through the waters. Hebrews 11:36-38 mentions the faithful who suffered.

STEP 6

Application

Is there someone close to you who has trouble seeing Jesus because they know you too well? Pray for them.

Look at the little you have, your five loaves, and offer it to Jesus.

When you are rowing against the wind, listen for "Take heart; it is I."

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess where your heart has been hard like those who rejected him.

Ask him to teach you to trust him on the water.

Thank him for feeding you.

MARK 1:15

DAY 671 · WEEK 96

Psalm 107:23-43

God stills the storm

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Psalm · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 107:23-43. This is the middle of a great psalm of thanksgiving for God's rescue. Read the storm at sea (vv. 23 to 32) and notice how it echoes Mark 4. You first met Psalm 107 as a song of those brought back from exile; today you look at its sea-storm section alone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 107 describes four groups of people whom the LORD rescued: wanderers in the desert, prisoners, the sick, and sailors. Each cries to the LORD in trouble, he delivers them, and the refrain says they should give thanks. Today's reading covers the fourth group, the sailors in the storm, and then a closing section on how God reverses fortunes. It sits well with the stilling of the storm in Mark 4 and the walk on water in Mark 6.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "They saw the deeds of the LORD, his wondrous works in the deep" (v. 24).
2. "For he commanded and raised the stormy wind, which lifted up the waves of the sea" (v. 25).
3. "They reeled and staggered like drunken men and were at their wits" end' (v. 27).
4. "Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he delivered them from their distress" (v. 28).
5. "He made the storm be still, and the waves of the sea were hushed" (v. 29).
6. "Then they were glad that the waters were quiet, and he brought them to their desired haven" (v. 30).

7. “Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love, for his wondrous works to the children of men!” (v. 31).

8. “Whoever is wise, let him attend to these things; let them consider the steadfast love of the LORD” (v. 43).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The sailors go down to the sea in ships, doing business on the great waters. They see the wonders of the LORD in the deep. But the same God who made the sea can raise the storm. “For he commanded and raised the stormy wind.” The storm is not outside his control. The waves lift them to heaven and drop them to the depths, and “their courage melted away in their evil plight.” They reel like drunken men and are at their wits’ end. The Hebrew says their wisdom was swallowed up. There is nothing left that they can do.

“Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he delivered them from their distress.” It is the simplest and most powerful pattern of the psalm. When we reach the end of ourselves, we can cry to him. “He made the storm be still, and the waves of the sea were hushed.” The word for still is the word for a whisper. At his command the storm becomes a murmur. “Then they were glad that the waters were quiet, and he brought them to their desired haven.”

Compare Mark 4. The disciples, some of them seasoned fishermen, were at their wits’ end. They cried out. And Jesus stood and said, “Peace! Be still!” The disciples asked, “Who is this?” Psalm 107 supplies the answer: this is the LORD who commands the stormy wind and makes the storm be still. Only God does that, and Jesus does it.

The refrain returns: “Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love.” Thanksgiving is the right response to rescue. Let them extol him in the congregation of the people.

The last verses show a God who turns rivers into a desert and a desert into pools of water, who lifts the needy out of affliction and makes their families like flocks. The upright see it and are glad, and iniquity shuts its mouth. The final line asks us to be wise: consider the steadfast love of the LORD.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 65:7 and 89:9 speak of the LORD stilling the sea. Jonah 1:4-16 describes a storm that stops at God’s word. Job 38:8-11 shows God setting limits to the sea. Isaiah 43:2 promises to be with us through the waters. Mark 4:35-41 and Matthew 8:23-27 are the stilling of the storm. Acts 27 describes Paul’s storm at sea. Hebrews 6:19 calls hope an anchor for the soul.

STEP 6

Application

Where are you at your wits' end? Cry to the LORD in it, as the sailors did.

After a deliverance, remember to give thanks. Write down a recent rescue and thank him for it.

Read the Mark 4 story again beside this psalm, and ask who Jesus must be to do what only God can do.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Cry to God from your own storm.
- Thank him for stilling the storm to a whisper.
- Thank him for bringing you to your desired haven.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Mark 1:15 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe in the gospel."

MARK 1:15

REST

Meditation

These are the first recorded words of Jesus' public ministry in Mark, and they sum up his whole message.

"The time is fulfilled." The waiting is over. For centuries the prophets had promised a day when God would rescue his people and rule. That day has arrived. Everything in the Old Testament was moving toward this moment.

"And the kingdom of God is at hand." The kingdom is God's reign. It is near, not as an idea, but as a person. The King is standing in Galilee.

"Repent." To repent is to change direction, to turn from sin and self toward God. It is not just feeling sorry. It is a change of mind that leads to a change of life.

"And believe in the gospel." To believe is to trust. The gospel is the good news that the King has come to save. The proper response to good news is to receive it with trust.

Notice the two verbs go together. We repent and believe. They are two sides of one turning. This is how a Christian life begins, and it is how it continues.

When you wonder where to begin each day, say this verse. Turn to him again.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the Gospel of Mark, the fast-moving account of the servant King. In chapter 1 you saw Jesus baptized, tempted, and announcing that the kingdom of God is at hand. Your doctrinal pause on the kingdom taught you to see it as already here and not yet complete. In chapters 2 and 3 he forgave a paralyzed man, ate with sinners, and said new wine needs new wineskins. In chapters 4 to 6 you watched him teach about the seed, still a storm, free a demoniac, raise Jairus's daughter, be rejected in Nazareth, and feed five thousand. Psalm 107 helped you hear the stilling of the storm as the LORD's own work. Through it all, Mark kept asking who this is.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus began his ministry with the words "Repent and believe in the gospel." What does repenting and believing look like in the details of your life this week?

The kingdom is both already here and not yet complete. Where do you see signs of it now, and where are you still waiting?

The disciples asked "Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?" How would you answer that question after what you have read this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Repent and believe the gospel, in your own words.

Thank Jesus for his authority.

Rest in his kingdom.

DAY 673 · WEEK 97

Psalm 89:1-18

I will sing of the steadfast love of the LORD

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Psalm · 18 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 89:1-18. The psalmist sings of God's steadfast love and his covenant with David. Read it with Mark's question in mind: who is the Son of David?

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 89 is a maskil of Ethan the Ezrahite. It was probably written after the Davidic dynasty fell, since the second half (which we do not read today) laments that God seems to have rejected his anointed. But the first half sings of God's faithfulness and the covenant promise to David. Reading this part prepares us for Mark, where the question of David's son and the Christ is about to be asked directly.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I will sing of the steadfast love of the LORD, forever; with my mouth I will make known your faithfulness to all generations" (v. 1).
2. "You have said, I have made a covenant with my chosen one; I have sworn to David my servant" (v. 3).
3. "I will establish your offspring forever, and build your throne for all generations" (v. 4).
4. "For who in the skies can be compared to the LORD?" (v. 6).
5. "O LORD God of hosts, who is mighty as you are, O LORD, with your faithfulness all around you?" (v. 8).
6. "Righteousness and justice are the foundation of your throne; steadfast love and faithfulness go before you" (v. 14).

7. “Blessed are the people who know the festal shout, who walk, O LORD, in the light of your face” (v. 15).

8. “For our shield belongs to the LORD, our king to the Holy One of Israel” (v. 18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a vow to sing. “I will sing of the steadfast love of the LORD, forever.” Notice the two words that run through the whole psalm: steadfast love and faithfulness. They appear again and again. Ethan sings that God’s love is built up forever and his faithfulness is established in the heavens.

Then comes the covenant. God said, “I have made a covenant with my chosen one; I have sworn to David my servant: I will establish your offspring forever, and build your throne for all generations.” These words echo 2 Samuel 7, the promise of a son of David whose throne would last forever. The psalmist rests the whole praise on this promise.

The psalm then lifts our eyes to the greatness of the LORD. The heavens praise his wonders, and in the assembly of the holy ones he is feared. No one among the heavenly beings is like him. He rules the raging of the sea, and when its waves rise, he stills them. Rahab, the sea monster, he crushed. The heavens and the earth are his, the north and the south he created. His arm is mighty, his hand strong. Here again is the Psalm 107 theme: the LORD stills the sea, and in Mark, Jesus does the same.

Verse 14 gives the foundation of God’s throne: “Righteousness and justice are the foundation of your throne; steadfast love and faithfulness go before you.” God’s rule is not arbitrary. It is built on righteousness, and it is led by love. Blessed are the people who know the festal shout and walk in the light of his face. They rejoice in his name all day and are exalted in his righteousness. Their shield, their king, belongs to the LORD.

Read the psalm in light of Mark 8 to 12. Peter will say, “You are the Christ,” and Bartimaeus will cry, “Son of David, have mercy on me!” The promise of 2 Samuel 7 is held in the hands of the one the Gospel names as the Son of David. When the second half of the psalm asks, “Where is your steadfast love of old, which by your faithfulness you swore to David?”, the answer is Jesus. The throne of David is established forever, in the risen Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Samuel 7:8-16 and 1 Chronicles 17 give the Davidic covenant. Psalm 132:11-18 repeats the oath to David. Psalm 110 speaks of the Lord’s king at his right hand. Isaiah 9:6-7 promises an everlasting throne. Luke 1:32-33 echoes Psalm 89 in the angel’s words to Mary. Acts 2:29-36 says David's promised descendant is the risen Jesus. Romans 1:3-4 says Jesus was descended from David and declared Son of God by the resurrection. Revelation 22:16 calls Jesus the root and descendant of David.

STEP 6

Application

Sing or speak aloud the opening vow: "I will sing of the steadfast love of the LORD, forever." Tell someone of God's faithfulness this week.

Notice that the foundation of God's rule is righteousness and justice. How does that comfort you when the world feels unjust?

Pray for the people of God to walk in the light of his face.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Sing of God's steadfast love, in your own words.
- Thank him for his covenant with David.
- Ask him to help you make known his faithfulness to those who come after you.

MARK 9:23

DAY 674 · WEEK 97

Mark 7:1-8:38

Defilement; the Syrophoenician woman; Peter's confession

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 75 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 7:1-8:38. Jesus teaches about what defiles, heals a Gentile woman's daughter, feeds four thousand, and then asks his disciples, "Who do you say that I am?" This is the turning point of the Gospel. Read Peter's confession and what follows slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Pharisees and scribes come from Jerusalem to challenge Jesus about ceremonial washing. He turns the conversation to the heart. Then he travels north into Gentile territory, Tyre, Sidon, and the Decapolis, and heals Gentiles. Mark 8:27-30 is the center of the Gospel. The first half asks, who is this? The second half answers, the Christ who must suffer.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me" (7:6).
2. "There is nothing outside a person that by going into him can defile him, but the things that come out of a person are what defile him" (7:15).
3. "Yes, Lord; even the dogs under the table eat the children's crumbs" (7:28).
4. "He has done all things well. He even makes the deaf hear and the mute speak" (7:37).
5. "But who do you say that I am?" Peter answered him, "You are the Christ" (8:29).
6. "And he began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be rejected by the elders and the chief priests and the scribes and be killed, and after three days rise again" (8:31).
7. "If anyone would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me" (8:34).

8 “For what does it profit a man to gain the whole world and forfeit his soul?” (8:36).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Pharisees ask why Jesus’ disciples eat with unwashed hands. Jesus quotes Isaiah: “This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me.” They have set aside the commandment of God to hold to human tradition. Then he teaches the crowd that it is not what goes into a person that defiles him but what comes out of the heart: evil thoughts, sexual immorality, theft, murder, adultery, covetousness. The problem is not external but internal. Mark adds a parenthetical comment: “Thus he declared all foods clean.” The Old Testament dietary laws, which marked Israel off from the nations, have fulfilled their purpose.

Jesus goes to Tyre, where a Syrophoenician woman, a Gentile, begs him to cast a demon out of her daughter. He says, “Let the children be fed first,” meaning Israel has priority in the history of salvation. She answers with great faith and wit: “Yes, Lord; yet even the dogs under the table eat the children’s crumbs.” Jesus says, “For this statement you may go your way; the demon has left your daughter.” She would not be turned away. Then he heals a deaf man, and the crowd says, “He has done all things well.” He feeds four thousand, probably Gentiles, and warns the disciples about the leaven of the Pharisees.

Then comes the turning point. At Caesarea Philippi, Jesus asks, “Who do people say that I am?” They give the answers: John, Elijah, one of the prophets. Then, “But who do you say that I am?” Peter answers, “You are the Christ.” This is the first time any human in Mark names Jesus rightly. And Jesus immediately begins to teach what kind of Christ he is: one who must suffer, be rejected, be killed, and rise again.

Peter takes him aside and rebukes him. Jesus turns, looks at his disciples, and says to Peter, “Get behind me, Satan! For you are not setting your mind on the things of God, but on the things of man.” Peter wanted a Messiah without a cross. Jesus insists on the cross, and calls everyone who follows him to the same road: “Let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me.” For whoever loses his life for the sake of Jesus and the gospel will save it. “For what does it profit a man to gain the whole world and forfeit his soul?”

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 29:13 is the verse Jesus quotes. Leviticus 11 gives the dietary laws, and Acts 10:9-16 and Romans 14:14 show that they are no longer binding. Jeremiah 17:9 says the heart is deceitful. Isaiah 35:5-6 promises the deaf will hear. Psalm 118:22 and Isaiah 53 point to the rejected, suffering Messiah. Luke 9:23-25 and Matthew 16:24-26 are parallels to the call to take up the cross. Galatians 2:20 says we have been crucified with Christ.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether your heart is far from God even as your lips honor him. Confess it.

Take Peter's confession as your own: "You are the Christ." Then ask whether you are willing to follow the Christ who suffers.

Learn from the Syrophoenician woman's persistence in prayer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess who you believe Jesus is.
- Ask him to purify your heart.
- Thank him for hearing people like the Syrophoenician woman.

MARK 9:23

DAY 675 · WEEK 97

Mark 9:1-50

The Transfiguration; the demonized boy; greatness in the Kingdom

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 50 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 9:1-50. The Transfiguration, a father's honest cry, a second prediction of the passion, and teaching on greatness and sin. Read verses 14 to 29 slowly, the story of the father and his son.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Six days after Peter's confession, Jesus takes Peter, James, and John up a high mountain, and there they see his glory. They come down to find the other disciples in a dispute over a boy they could not heal. Throughout the chapter, the disciples do not understand. Jesus speaks again of his death, and they argue about who is the greatest.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "This is my beloved Son; listen to him" (9:7).
2. "And Jesus said to him, If you can! All things are possible for one who believes" (9:23).
3. "I believe; help my unbelief!" (9:24).
4. "This kind cannot be driven out by anything but prayer" (9:29).
5. "The Son of Man will be delivered into the hands of men, and they will kill him. And when he is killed, after three days he will rise" (9:31).
6. "If anyone would be first, he must be last of all and servant of all" (9:35).
7. "Whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it would be better for him if a great millstone were hung around his neck and he were cast into the sea" (9:42).
8. "Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another" (9:50).

STEP 4

Interpretation

On the mountain, Jesus is transfigured. His clothes become radiant, whiter than anyone could bleach them. Elijah and Moses appear and talk with him. Peter, terrified, suggests building three tents. A cloud overshadows them, and a voice from the cloud says, "This is my beloved Son; listen to him." Suddenly they see only Jesus. The Law (Moses) and the Prophets (Elijah) bear witness to Jesus, and then they fade. The Father's command is to listen to the Son. On the way down, Jesus tells them not to tell anyone until the Son of Man has risen from the dead. They do not understand what rising from the dead means.

At the foot of the mountain, a father has brought his son, who has a spirit that seizes him, throws him down, and makes him mute. The disciples could not cast it out. The father says to Jesus, "If you can do anything, have compassion on us and help us." Jesus says, "If you can! All things are possible for one who believes." And the father cries out one of the most honest prayers in the Bible: "I believe; help my unbelief!" He has faith, but it is mixed with doubt, and he brings both to Jesus. Jesus does not reject him. He rebukes the spirit, and the boy is freed. When the disciples ask why they could not, Jesus says, "This kind cannot be driven out by anything but prayer."

Jesus again speaks of his death and resurrection, and they do not understand and are afraid to ask. Instead, on the road they have argued about who is greatest. Jesus sits down, calls the Twelve, and says, "If anyone would be first, he must be last of all and servant of all." He takes a child in his arms and says that whoever receives such a child in his name receives him.

The chapter ends with stern warnings. John reports someone casting out demons in Jesus' name who was not following them, and Jesus says, "Whoever is not against us is for us." Then he warns against causing little ones to stumble, and calls his followers to take radical action against sin: if your hand or foot or eye causes you to sin, cut it off or pluck it out. The point is not self-mutilation but the seriousness of sin. "Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another."

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 24:15-18 and 34:29-35 describe Moses on the mountain in glory. Malachi 4:5 promises Elijah. Deuteronomy 18:15 says to listen to the prophet like Moses. 2 Peter 1:16-18 is Peter's reflection on the Transfiguration. Luke 9:31 says Moses and Elijah spoke of his departure. Psalm 73:23-26 is a prayer of the weak but trusting. Jude 22 calls us to have mercy on those who doubt. Philippians 2:3-8 shows the servant attitude.

STEP 6

Application

Pray the father's prayer from your heart: "I believe; help my unbelief!" Be honest about both.

Listen to Jesus today. Read one of his teachings in the Gospels slowly.

Ask where you have been arguing about greatness, and take the servant's place.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to help you listen to his beloved Son.
- Say, "I believe; help my unbelief."
- Ask him to teach you to pray.

MARK 9:23

DAY 676 · WEEK 97

Mark 10:1-52

Divorce; children; the rich man; Bartimaeus

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 52 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 10:1-52. Teaching on marriage and divorce, welcoming children, the rich man who walked away, the third prediction of the passion, a request for places of honor, and the healing of Bartimaeus. Verse 45 is the key verse of the Gospel and the memory verse of this unit.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is on the way to Jerusalem. In this chapter, he teaches on the foundations of life in the kingdom: marriage, children, wealth, and power. Each teaching reverses the world's values. And each is followed by a picture of the cross: "The Son of Man came to serve and to give his life." The chapter ends with a blind man who sees, just before the final approach to Jerusalem.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "What therefore God has joined together, let not man separate" (10:9).
2. "Let the children come to me; do not hinder them, for to such belongs the kingdom of God" (10:14).
3. "You lack one thing: go, sell all that you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me" (10:21).
4. "With man it is impossible, but not with God. For all things are possible with God" (10:27).
5. "Whoever would be great among you must be your servant" (10:43).

6. “For even the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many” (10:45).
7. “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!” (10:47).
8. “Go your way; your faith has made you well” (10:52).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Pharisees test Jesus on divorce. He points back to creation: from the beginning, God made them male and female, and the two become one flesh. “What therefore God has joined together, let not man separate.” Moses permitted divorce because of hardness of heart, but that was not God’s original design. In the house, he tells the disciples that divorce and remarriage amount to adultery. Christians have differed on how to apply this in painful situations, but the high view of marriage is clear.

Parents bring their children for Jesus to touch, and the disciples rebuke them. Jesus is indignant: “Let the children come to me; do not hinder them.” To receive the kingdom like a child, in dependence, is the only way to enter. He takes them in his arms and blesses them.

A rich man runs up and kneels: “Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?” Jesus tests him with the commandments, and the man says he has kept them all. “And Jesus, looking at him, loved him.” Then he says, “You lack one thing: go, sell all that you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me.” The man’s face falls and he goes away sorrowful, for he had great possessions. Jesus does not make this a rule for everyone, but he exposes the idol of this man. It is hard for the rich to enter the kingdom. The disciples are astonished, and ask, “Then who can be saved?” Jesus looks at them: “With man it is impossible, but not with God.” Salvation is God’s work.

For the third time, Jesus tells them plainly what will happen in Jerusalem. And again they miss it. James and John ask for the best seats in his glory. The others are indignant. Jesus gathers them and says that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, “But it shall not be so among you. Whoever would be great among you must be your servant.” Then comes the key verse: “For even the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many.” The word ransom is the price paid to free a slave or captive. Jesus gives his life as the price. The “many” is a Semitic expression for a vast number. This verse is the theological center of Mark, and a statement of substitution.

At Jericho, blind Bartimaeus calls out, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!” The crowd tries to silence him, and he cries louder. Jesus stops, calls him, and asks, “What do you want me to do for you?” “Rabbi, let me recover my sight.” “Go your way; your faith has made you well." Immediately he receives his sight and follows Jesus on the way. It is the last healing in Mark, and the first time anyone openly calls Jesus Son of David. The blind man sees what the disciples cannot.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:27 and 2:24 are the creation texts Jesus cites. Deuteronomy 24:1-4 is the Mosaic provision. Isaiah 53:10-12 says the servant makes many to be accounted righteous and bears the sin of many. Psalm 49:7-9 says no one can ransom another. 1 Timothy 2:5-6 says Christ gave himself as a ransom for all. Titus 2:14 and 1 Peter 1:18-19 speak of redemption. Philippians 2:5-8 shows his servant mind. Luke 18:35-43 parallels the story of the blind man.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Mark 10:45. It is the memory verse of the unit. Say it every morning this week.

Ask what you cling to that keeps you from following Jesus fully. Pray over it.

Like Bartimaeus, call out to Jesus when others tell you to be quiet.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for giving his life as a ransom for many.

Tell him what you are tempted to hold on to, like the rich man.

Ask him to open your eyes like Bartimaeus.

MARK 9:23

DAY 677 · WEEK 97

Mark 11:1-12:44

The Entry; the Temple; controversies; the widow's offering

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 90 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 11:1-12:44. The Entry into Jerusalem, the cursing of the fig tree, the cleansing of the temple, and a series of controversies in the temple courts, ending with the widow's offering. Notice how Jesus answers each question and then asks his own.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Mark has taken ten chapters to bring Jesus to Jerusalem, and now he slows down: more than a third of the Gospel is devoted to this last week. Jesus rides in on a colt, goes into the temple, and curses a fig tree, using it as a sign of judgment on a barren temple. Then he teaches in the temple courts, where various groups try to trap him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!" (11:9).
2. "Is it not written, My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations? But you have made it a den of robbers" (11:17).
3. "Have faith in God" (11:22).
4. "And whenever you stand praying, forgive, if you have anything against anyone, so that your Father also who is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses" (11:25).
5. "The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone" (12:10).
6. "And you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind and with all your strength" (12:30).
7. "You shall love your neighbor as yourself" (12:31).

8 “Truly, I say to you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing to the offering box” (12:43).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus sends two disciples for a colt, and he enters Jerusalem to the shouts of the crowd. Mark’s entry is quiet compared to the others. Jesus enters the temple, looks around at everything, and leaves, since it is already late. The next morning he curses a barren fig tree, and then he cleanses the temple, driving out the buyers and sellers. The fig tree is wrapped around the temple scene: Mark places the cursing before and the withering after, so that the barren tree interprets what happens in the temple. The temple was supposed to be a house of prayer for all nations. Instead, the outer court, the only place Gentiles could pray, was filled with commerce. The leaders hear and seek to destroy him.

In the temple courts, they challenge his authority. He answers with a question about John’s baptism, and they cannot answer. Then he tells the parable of the tenants: the owner of a vineyard sends servants, and the tenants beat and kill them, and finally he sends his beloved son, and they kill him. It is clear to the leaders that he is speaking about them. Jesus quotes Psalm 118: “The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone.”

The Pharisees and Herodians ask about paying taxes to Caesar, and the Sadducees ask about the resurrection. Jesus answers both: “Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to God the things that are God’s.” And the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob “is not God of the dead, but of the living.” A scribe asks which commandment is the most important. Jesus answers with the Shema and Leviticus 19: love God with all your heart, soul, mind, and strength, and love your neighbor as yourself. The scribe agrees, and Jesus says, “You are not far from the kingdom of God.”

Then Jesus asks his own question: how can the Christ be David’s son, when David himself, in Psalm 110, says, “The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand”? The answer is that the Christ is both David’s son and David’s Lord. He warns against the scribes who devour widows’ houses and make long prayers for show. And then, in the last scene, he watches people give to the temple treasury. Many rich put in large sums. A poor widow puts in two small copper coins. Jesus calls the disciples: “This poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing… she out of her poverty has put in everything she had, all she had to live on.” God sees the heart.

STEP 5

Connection

Zechariah 9:9 is the colt. Psalm 118:25-26 is the hosanna. Isaiah 56:7 and Jeremiah 7:11 are the temple verses. Isaiah 5:1-7 is the vineyard. Psalm 110:1 is the Lord at the right hand. Deuteronomy 6:4-5 and Leviticus 19:18 are the great commandments. Micah 7:1 and Hosea 9:10 use the fig tree as a picture of Israel. Exodus 3:6 is the God of Abraham. 2 Corinthians 8:1-5 praises generous giving in poverty.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what has crowded out prayer in your life, in your church. Clear a space.

Say the great commandment aloud: love God with your heart, soul, mind, and strength. Which part is hardest?

Give something sacrificial this week, however small, and know that God sees.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Welcome the King who comes in the name of the Lord.

Ask him to make his church a house of prayer for all nations.

Ask him to help you give your whole self.

MARK 9:23

DAY 678 · WEEK 97

Mark 13:1-37

The Olivet Discourse, be watchful

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 37 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 13:1-37. Jesus predicts the destruction of the temple, speaks of tribulation and false teachers, and describes the coming of the Son of Man. The call throughout is to stay awake. Read it for its pastoral purpose.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

As Jesus leaves the temple, a disciple marvels at the huge stones and buildings. Jesus says that not one stone will be left on another. Later, on the Mount of Olives, four disciples ask, "When will these things be, and what will be the sign?" His answer is the Olivet Discourse. It is one of the most debated passages in the Bible. It seems to speak both of the fall of Jerusalem in AD 70 and of the return of Christ at the end, and interpreters differ on how to divide the two.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Do you see these great buildings? There will not be left here one stone upon another that will not be thrown down" (13:2).
2. "And when you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed. This must take place, but the end is not yet" (13:7).
3. "And the gospel must first be proclaimed to all nations" (13:10).
4. "And you will be hated by all for my name's sake. But the one who endures to the end will be saved" (13:13).
5. "And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory" (13:26).

6. “Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away” (13:31).
7. “But concerning that day or that hour, no one knows, not even the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father” (13:32).
8. “And what I say to you I say to all: Stay awake” (13:37).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jesus tells the disciples not to be led astray. Many will come in his name, saying “I am he.” Wars and rumors of wars, earthquakes, and famines are “the beginning of the birth pains,” not the end. The disciples will be handed over to councils and beaten in synagogues, and will stand before governors and kings for Jesus’ sake, “to bear witness before them.” The gospel must be proclaimed to all nations. When they are arrested, they are not to worry about what to say, for the Holy Spirit will speak through them. Families will be divided, and they will be hated for his name’s sake. “But the one who endures to the end will be saved.”

Then he speaks of the “abomination of desolation” standing where it ought not to be, a phrase from Daniel. When it appears, those in Judea should flee to the mountains. There will be a tribulation such as has not been since the beginning of creation. This language fits the Roman siege of Jerusalem in AD 70, when the temple was destroyed, and many see a further fulfillment in a final tribulation. He warns again about false christs and false prophets who perform signs.

After that tribulation, the sun will be darkened, the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall. This is the language of cosmic upheaval, used in the prophets for the fall of nations and the day of the LORD. “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory.” This echoes Daniel 7:13. He will send out the angels and gather his elect from the four winds.

Jesus then gives a lesson from the fig tree: when you see its leaves, you know that summer is near. So when you see these things, know that he is near. “Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.” The time of the end is hidden: not even the Son knows it, only the Father. Jesus speaks here of his human knowledge.

The conclusion is not a timetable but a command: stay awake. A man going on a journey puts his servants in charge, and commands the doorkeeper to be on watch. The master may come in the evening, at midnight, at cockcrow, or in the morning. “Lest he come suddenly and find you asleep.” It is a call to faithful readiness, not speculation. And note that in the very next chapters, the disciples fall asleep in Gethsemane.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 7:13-14, 9:27, 11:31, and 12:11 are the background to the abomination of desolation and the Son of Man. Isaiah 13:10 and 34:4 use the language of cosmic signs. Joel 2:10 and 2:31 describe the sun and moon darkened. Matthew 24 and 25 and Luke 21 parallel this discourse. 1 Thessalonians 5:1-11 teaches readiness for the day of the Lord. 2 Peter 3:3-13 warns of scoffers and urges holy living. Revelation 1:7 echoes the coming with the clouds.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether you are awake or asleep, spiritually. What would it look like to be ready?

When news of wars and disasters comes, remember: “This must take place, but the end is not yet.” Do not be alarmed.

Hold the date-setters at arm’s length, as Jesus did. Focus on faithfulness in your assigned work.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask Jesus to keep you watchful.
- Thank him that his words will never pass away.
- Ask him to keep you from being deceived.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Mark 9:23 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And Jesus said to him, If you can! All things are possible for one who believes."

MARK 9:23

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this to a father whose son is tormented. The father had said, "If you can do anything, have compassion on us and help us." Jesus takes his word and turns it back.

"If you can!" Jesus is almost surprised at the doubt in the question. It is not a question of whether Jesus can. The question is whether the father will trust. The "if" belongs not to Jesus' power but to the father's faith.

"All things are possible." This is not a blank check to get whatever we want. It is a statement about the power of God available to those who trust him. All things that fit the will of God are possible, because he is God. The one who stills the storm and raises the dead is able.

"For one who believes." The power is not in our believing but in the one we believe. Faith is the open hand that receives what God gives. Even a small and trembling faith can reach out to a great Savior.

Notice what the father does next. He says, “I believe; help my unbelief!” He does not pretend to a perfect faith. He brings his mixture of faith and doubt to Jesus. And Jesus heals his son.

When you feel your faith is too small, say this verse and then pray the father’s prayer. The weakest faith in the strongest Savior is enough.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the Psalm 89 vow to sing of the steadfast love of the LORD and his covenant with David. In Mark 7 and 8 you saw Jesus teach that it is the heart that defiles, heal a Gentile woman’s daughter, and ask the turning-point question, “Who do you say that I am?” Peter’s answer, “You are the Christ,” was followed by Jesus’ first teaching that the Christ must suffer. You went up the mountain and heard the Father say, “Listen to him.” You heard a father cry, “I believe; help my unbelief!” In Mark 10 you read the key verse: the Son of Man came to serve and give his life as a ransom for many. You met Bartimaeus, then watched the King enter Jerusalem, cleanse the temple, and silence every question. Finally, in the Olivet Discourse, he told you to stay awake.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus said he came “to give his life as a ransom for many.” What does it mean that the price of your freedom was his life?

Peter confessed that Jesus is the Christ, and then resisted the idea of a suffering Messiah. Where do you want a Jesus without a cross?

The father prayed, “I believe; help my unbelief!” What belief and what unbelief do you bring to Jesus today?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for giving his life as a ransom for many.

Say, “I believe; help my unbelief.”

Ask him to keep you awake to him.

DAY 680 · WEEK 98

Psalm 118:19-29

The stone the builders rejected

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 118:19-29. This is the climax of the Hallel, the psalms sung at Passover. Jesus quoted verses 22 and 23 about himself in Mark 12, and the crowds shouted verse 26 on Palm Sunday. Read it as the song of the King entering the gate.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 118 is a song of thanksgiving for victory, probably sung in a procession to the temple. The singer has been surrounded by enemies and has been saved by the LORD. Now he comes to the gates of the temple to give thanks. The last stanza, our reading, is full of lines that the New Testament applies to Jesus: the gate, the rejected stone, the day the LORD has made, and the blessed one who comes in the LORD's name.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Open to me the gates of righteousness, that I may enter through them and give thanks to the LORD" (v. 19).
2. "I thank you that you have answered me and have become my salvation" (v. 21).
3. "The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone" (v. 22).
4. "This is the LORD's doing; it is marvelous in our eyes" (v. 23).
5. "This is the day that the LORD has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it" (v. 24).
6. "Save us, we pray, O LORD! O LORD, we pray, give us success!" (v. 25).
7. "Blessed is he who comes in the name of the LORD! We bless you from the house of the LORD" (v. 26).

8 “Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; for his steadfast love endures forever!” (v. 29).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The singer approaches the gates of the temple and asks them to open. “This is the gate of the LORD; the righteous shall enter through it.” Only the righteous may enter the presence of God, and the question of who is righteous is raised. The answer will come in Christ. He is the righteous one who enters, and through him we enter.

The singer thanks God for answering and becoming his salvation. The word for salvation is yeshuah, the root of the name Jesus. Then comes the famous line: “The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone.” The builders, perhaps the nations or the leaders, threw away a stone as unfit, and it was exactly the stone that held the building together. Israel, small and despised, was chosen by God. David, the youngest son, was passed over and made king. Above all, Jesus was rejected by the leaders of his people and made the cornerstone of the new temple, the church. He applied this verse to himself in the parable of the tenants (Mark 12:10-11), and Peter applied it in Acts 4:11. “This is the LORD’s doing; it is marvelous in our eyes.” The resurrection and exaltation of the rejected Christ is God’s doing.

“This is the day that the LORD has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it.” Christians have long sung this verse on Easter, the day the LORD made in a special way.

“Save us, we pray, O LORD!” In Hebrew, this is hoshia na, which became “Hosanna.” When the crowd shouted “Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!” on the road to Jerusalem, they were quoting this psalm and treating Jesus as the long-awaited one. Verse 26 declares a blessing on the one who comes, and also on the pilgrims. The psalm calls for a festal procession with branches up to the horns of the altar, the same image as the palms on the road.

The psalm closes where it began: “Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; for his steadfast love endures forever!” Jesus and his disciples most likely sang this psalm at the end of the Last Supper, shortly before he went to be rejected. The song he sang about the rejected stone was about himself.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 28:16 speaks of the tested cornerstone laid in Zion. Matthew 21:42, Mark 12:10-11, and Luke 20:17 record Jesus quoting verse 22. Acts 4:11, Ephesians 2:20-22, and 1 Peter 2:4-8 apply the stone to Christ. Matthew 21:9 and John 12:13 have the crowd quoting verse 26. Matthew 26:30 says they sang a hymn after the Supper. Romans 9:33 and 10:11 speak of the stone and those who believe in him. Revelation 21:22 says the Lamb is the temple.

STEP 6

Application

Pray “This is the day the LORD has made” as you start tomorrow. Choose to rejoice.

Think of a time when something rejected became a blessing in your life. Thank God for it.

Say “Hosanna” today, “Save us, we pray.” Name what needs saving.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to open the gates of righteousness for you.
- Thank Jesus, the stone the builders rejected.
- Thank him that this is the day the LORD has made.

MARK 10:45

DAY 681 · WEEK 98

Psalm 69:1-21

Reproach has broken my heart, the suffering servant

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Psalm · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 69:1-21. A suffering man drowns in trouble, hated without cause, and mocked in his thirst. Notice the lines the New Testament applies to Jesus. Read it with the cross ahead of you.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 69 is a psalm of David. It is one of the most quoted psalms in the New Testament, second only to Psalm 22 and Psalm 110 as a source of passages applied to Jesus. David pictures himself sinking in deep waters, hated by enemies, and abandoned by his family. He is a righteous sufferer. Yet he is also honest about his own sin. Jesus, who had no sin of his own, suffered all these things in a deeper way.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Save me, O God! For the waters have come up to my neck” (v. 1).
2. “More in number than the hairs of my head are those who hate me without cause” (v. 4).
3. “O God, you know my folly; the wrongs I have done are not hidden from you” (v. 5).
4. “For it is for your sake that I have borne reproach, that dishonor has covered my face” (v. 7).
5. “For zeal for your house has consumed me, and the reproaches of those who reproach you have fallen on me” (v. 9).
6. “But as for me, my prayer is to you, O LORD. At an acceptable time, O God, in the abundance of your steadfast love answer me in your saving faithfulness” (v. 13).

7. “Reproaches have broken my heart, so that I am in despair. I looked for pity, but there was none, and for comforters, but I found none” (v. 20).

8. “They gave me poison for food, and for my thirst they gave me sour wine to drink” (v. 21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a cry of desperation: “Save me, O God! For the waters have come up to my neck.” David is sinking in deep mud with no foothold. He is weary with crying out, and his eyes grow dim with waiting for God.

His enemies are many and hate him for no reason. “I must restore what I did not steal.” He is being blamed and made to pay for what he did not do. Then, honestly, he admits: “O God, you know my folly; the wrongs I have done are not hidden from you.” He is not claiming to be sinless, but he is claiming to be innocent of the charges against him. He prays that those who hope in God will not be put to shame because of him.

The reason for his suffering is devotion to God: “For it is for your sake that I have borne reproach.” His own family treat him as a stranger. “For zeal for your house has consumed me, and the reproaches of those who reproach you have fallen on me.” The disciples remembered the second half of this verse at the cleansing of the temple (John 2:17), and Paul applied the second half to Christ in Romans 15:3. Jesus bore the reproaches directed at God.

He prays at an acceptable time, in God’s abundant steadfast love, and asks to be rescued from the mire. “Let not the flood sweep over me, or the deep swallow me up.” He asks God to answer and draw near. “You know my reproach, and my shame and my dishonor; my foes are all known to you.”

Then verse 20: “Reproaches have broken my heart, so that I am in despair. I looked for pity, but there was none, and for comforters, but I found none.” The disciples fled in Gethsemane. No one comforted him. And verse 21: “They gave me poison for food, and for my thirst they gave me sour wine to drink.” At the cross, Jesus said, “I thirst,” and was given sour wine. Matthew 27:34 and 48, and John 19:28-30, point back to this psalm.

The rest of the psalm (vv. 22 to 36) includes a harsh call for judgment on the enemies, and it ends in praise and hope. The righteous sufferer will be vindicated. We read the first half today to see the suffering that Jesus took on himself.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 22 and Isaiah 53 are other great psalms and prophecies of the righteous sufferer. John 2:17, 15:25, and 19:28-30 quote or echo this psalm. Romans 15:3 quotes verse 9 and applies it to Christ. Acts 1:20 applies verse 25 to Judas. Matthew 27:34 and 27:48 note the sour wine. Lamentations 3:54 and Jonah 2:3-5 also speak of waters over the head. Hebrews 4:15 says we do not have a high priest who cannot sympathize.

STEP 6

Application

When you feel you are sinking, pray verse 1 and verse 13 as your own.

Consider what it cost Jesus to bear reproach for God's sake. Thank him in specific words.

Ask whether your zeal for God's house is real. Bring it to the Lord in prayer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Cry to God about what feels like drowning.
- Thank Jesus for taking the reproach of those who reproached God.
- Ask him to teach you to bear reproach for his sake.

MARK 10:45

DAY 682 · WEEK 98

Mark 14:1-52

The anointing; the Supper; Gethsemane; arrest

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 52 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 14:1-52. The plot, the anointing at Bethany, the Last Supper, Peter's predicted denial, Gethsemane, and the arrest. Notice the contrast between the woman's love and Judas's betrayal, and between Jesus' prayer and the disciples' sleep.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

It is two days before Passover. The chief priests are looking for a way to arrest and kill Jesus quietly. Mark again sandwiches stories: the plot frames the anointing, and Peter's predicted denial frames the Supper and Gethsemane. Mark's account is the most raw: the disciples all flee, and a young man runs off naked. This is probably Mark himself.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Leave her alone. Why do you trouble her? She has done a beautiful thing to me" (14:6).
2. "Take; this is my body" (14:22).
3. "This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many" (14:24).
4. "You will all fall away, for it is written, I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered" (14:27).
5. "Abba, Father, all things are possible for you. Remove this cup from me. Yet not what I will, but what you will" (14:36).
6. "Watch and pray that you may not enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak" (14:38).
7. "And he kissed him" (14:45).
8. "And they all left him and fled" (14:50).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Bethany, a woman breaks an alabaster flask of costly nard and pours it on Jesus' head. Some are indignant at the waste, saying it could have been sold for three hundred denarii, nearly a year's wages. Jesus says, "Leave her alone. She has done a beautiful thing to me." She has anointed his body beforehand for burial. "Wherever the gospel is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in memory of her." Right after this, Judas goes to the chief priests and offers to betray him.

At the Passover meal, Jesus says one of the twelve will betray him, one who is eating with him. They are sorrowful and ask, "Is it I?" He takes bread, blesses it, breaks it, and says, "Take; this is my body." He takes the cup, gives thanks, and says, "This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many." This is the covenant sacrifice, like Moses sprinkling the blood at Sinai (Exodus 24:8). He will not drink again of the fruit of the vine until the day he drinks it new in the kingdom of God. They sing a hymn and go to the Mount of Olives.

On the way he says that they will all fall away, quoting Zechariah 13:7. Peter insists, "Even though they all fall away, I will not," and Jesus tells him that before the rooster crows twice, he will deny him three times. Peter says even more vehemently that he will not deny him, and they all say the same.

In Gethsemane, Jesus is "greatly distressed and troubled" and says, "My soul is very sorrowful, even to death." He falls to the ground and prays, "Abba, Father, all things are possible for you. Remove this cup from me. Yet not what I will, but what you will." Abba is the intimate word for Father. The cup is the wrath of God against sin. Jesus does not want to drink it, and yet he submits. He returns three times to find the disciples sleeping. "The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." Then: "The hour has come. The Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners."

Judas arrives with a crowd armed with swords and clubs and gives a signal: "The one I will kiss is the man." He kisses him. They seize him. One of the bystanders draws a sword and cuts off the ear of the high priest's servant. Jesus says, "Have you come out as against a robber?" and that this is to fulfill the Scriptures. Then, in Mark's sad phrase, "they all left him and fled." Jesus is utterly alone.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 12 and 24:8 are the Passover and the covenant blood. Jeremiah 31:31-34 promised the new covenant. Zechariah 13:7 is the shepherd struck. Psalm 41:9 predicts the betrayal by a friend. Isaiah 53:5-12 describes the servant who is pierced and who pours out his soul to death. Psalm 42:5-6 and 116:3 are cries of a soul in distress. Romans 8:15 and Galatians 4:6 say we cry “Abba” by the Spirit. Hebrews 5:7-8 recalls his prayers with loud cries and tears.

STEP 6

Application

Pray “Abba, Father” today and let the word sink in. You are his child.

When you face a hard obedience, pray Jesus’ prayer: “Yet not what I will, but what you will.”

Remember that the Lord’s Supper proclaims his body broken and blood poured out. Receive it with thanks.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the cup Jesus drank for you.
- Thank him for the blood of the covenant poured out for many.
- Pray, “Abba, Father,” and tell him what you want to give him.

MARK 10:45

DAY 683 · WEEK 98

Mark 14:53-15:20

Trials; Peter's denial; before Pilate

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 40 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 14:53-15:20. Jesus before the council, Peter's denial, Jesus before Pilate, and the mockery by the soldiers. Notice how little Jesus says, and what he does say.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is taken to the high priest's house, where the whole council assembles at night. Peter follows at a distance and sits in the courtyard. At dawn Jesus is bound and led to Pilate, the Roman governor, since the Jews have no authority to carry out a death sentence. Mark intercuts Jesus' trial and Peter's denial, so that we see the faithful Jesus and the failing Peter at the same moment.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "But he remained silent and made no answer" (14:61).
2. "I am, and you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven" (14:62).
3. "And he broke down and wept" (14:72).
4. "Are you the King of the Jews?" And he answered him, "You have said so" (15:2).
5. "But Jesus made no further answer, so that Pilate was amazed" (15:5).
6. "For he perceived that it was out of envy that the chief priests had delivered him up" (15:10).
7. "So Pilate, wishing to satisfy the crowd, released for them Barabbas; and having scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified" (15:15).

8 “And they clothed him in a purple cloak, and twisting together a crown of thorns, they put it on him” (15:17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The council seeks testimony against Jesus to put him to death, but their witnesses disagree. Some say he threatened to destroy the temple made with hands and build another in three days. Jesus is silent, as Isaiah 53:7 foretold. Finally the high priest asks, “Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?” And Jesus says, “I am.” This is the clearest public statement in Mark. Then he adds that they will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of Power and coming with the clouds of heaven, combining Psalm 110 and Daniel 7. The high priest tears his clothes and cries blasphemy. They condemn him as deserving death, spit on him, blindfold him, and strike him.

In the courtyard, Peter warms himself by the fire. A servant girl says, “You also were with the Nazarene.” He denies it. Then again. Then bystanders say, “Certainly you are one of them, for you are a Galilean,” and he invokes a curse on himself and swears, “I do not know this man of whom you speak.” Immediately the rooster crows a second time. Peter remembers Jesus’ words, “and he broke down and wept.” The bold disciple has failed. But we know from John 21 that the story does not end here.

In the morning, Jesus is brought to Pilate, who asks, “Are you the King of the Jews?” Jesus says, “You have said so.” The chief priests make many accusations, but Jesus makes no answer, and Pilate is amazed. Pilate knows that the leaders have handed Jesus over out of envy. Each year at the feast, he releases a prisoner. The crowd is stirred up to ask for Barabbas, a rebel and murderer. “Then what shall I do with the man you call the King of the Jews?” “Crucify him!” “Why? What evil has he done?” But they shout more, “Crucify him!” So Pilate, wishing to satisfy the crowd, releases Barabbas, and after flogging Jesus, delivers him to be crucified.

The soldiers take Jesus inside and call the whole battalion. They clothe him in a purple cloak, press a crown of thorns on his head, and salute him mockingly: “Hail, King of the Jews!” They strike his head with a reed, spit on him, and kneel in mock homage. They are mocking the truth. He is the King, and one day every knee will bow. Barabbas goes free, and the innocent Son is condemned. One man was set free because Jesus took his place, as we are.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 53:7 and Psalm 38:13-14 describe the silent sufferer. Daniel 7:13-14 and Psalm 110:1 are the Son of Man and the right hand. Leviticus 24:16 is the penalty for blasphemy. Isaiah 50:6 describes the servant giving his back to those who strike. Psalm 2:1-6 shows the nations raging. Philippians 2:10-11 says every knee will bow. 1 Peter 2:22-24 says he bore our sins. Romans 5:8 says Christ died for us while we were still sinners.

STEP 6

Application

Reflect on Peter's tears. Have you denied Jesus by silence or in words? Let godly sorrow lead you back to him.

Consider the silence of Jesus. Are there times to be silent under accusation?

Thank Jesus that he took the place of Barabbas, and of you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being condemned, mocked, and silent for you.
- Confess where you have denied him.
- Ask him for courage to confess him when it costs.

MARK 10:45

DAY 684 · WEEK 98

Mark 15:21-47

The crucifixion, the centurion's confession

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 27 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 15:21-47. The march to Golgotha, the crucifixion, the cry of dereliction, the death, the tearing of the temple curtain, and the centurion's confession. This is the climax of Mark's Gospel. Read slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jesus is led out to Golgotha, the place of the skull. Mark's account is stark. There is no mention of the forgiveness of enemies or the promise to the thief, which Luke records. Instead, Mark gives us the one cry from the cross: "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" Everything in the Gospel has been moving to this point, and the first human to name Jesus rightly at the cross is a Roman soldier.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And they compelled a passerby, Simon of Cyrene, who was coming in from the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to carry his cross" (15:21).
2. "And the inscription of the charge against him read, The King of the Jews" (15:26).
3. "He saved others; he cannot save himself" (15:31).
4. "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" (15:34).
5. "And Jesus uttered a loud cry and breathed his last" (15:37).
6. "And the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom" (15:38).
7. "Truly this man was the Son of God!" (15:39).
8. "Joseph of Arimathea, taking courage, went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus" (15:43).

STEP 4

Interpretation

A passerby, Simon of Cyrene, is forced to carry the cross. Mark names his sons, Alexander and Rufus, probably because they were known in the church. Rufus may be the one Paul greets in Romans 16:13. They offer Jesus wine mixed with myrrh, and he refuses it. They crucify him at the third hour, nine in the morning, and divide his garments. Above him is written, "The King of the Jews." Two robbers are crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left.

Passersby mock him: "Aha! You who would destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days, save yourself!" The chief priests and scribes say, "He saved others; he cannot save himself." They speak more truth than they know. He cannot save himself and save us. Even the robbers revile him.

At the sixth hour, noon, darkness comes over the whole land until the ninth hour. Then Jesus cries with a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani?", "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" This is Psalm 22:1. In this moment, the Son bears the curse of sin and experiences the abandonment that sinners deserve. It is the deepest mystery of the cross. The Father did not abandon him because of anything he did, but because of what he bore. Some bystanders think he is calling Elijah. Someone fills a sponge with sour wine, and Jesus gives a loud cry and breathes his last.

The curtain of the temple is torn in two from top to bottom. This is the curtain between the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place. God himself tears it from the top. Access to God's presence is now open through the death of Jesus.

Then the centurion, standing in front of Jesus, sees how he died and says, "Truly this man was the Son of God!" The first to confess him as the Son of God at the cross is a Gentile soldier, one of those who had mocked him. This is the high point of Mark. The book began, "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God." The secrecy is over. It is at the cross that we see who he really is.

Women, including Mary Magdalene, are watching from afar, and Joseph of Arimathea, a respected member of the council who was looking for the kingdom of God, boldly asks for the body and lays it in a tomb cut out of rock. The women see where he is laid.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 22 is the psalm Jesus quotes, and it ends in praise and triumph. Isaiah 53:4-6 says he bore our griefs and was pierced for our transgressions. Amos 8:9 foretold darkness at noon. Exodus 26:31-35 and Hebrews 9:8 and 10:19-20 explain the curtain. Galatians 3:13 says Christ became a curse for us. 2 Corinthians 5:21 says God made him to be sin for us. Mark 1:1 and 1:11 echo with 15:39. Romans 16:13 mentions Rufus.

STEP 6

Application

Sit with the cry “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” Thank him that he was forsaken so that you never need to be.

Confess with the centurion, “Truly this man was the Son of God.” Say it aloud.

Consider the torn curtain and approach God today, boldly, because of what Jesus has done.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being forsaken so you never will be.
- Thank him for bearing the curse and the wrath.
- Say with the centurion who you believe Jesus is.

MARK 10:45

DAY 685 · WEEK 98

Mark 16:1-20

The resurrection, "He is risen; he is not here"

Year 2 · Unit 18 · Reading · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Mark 16:1-20. The women find the empty tomb. Note that the earliest manuscripts end at verse 8, and verses 9 to 20 are not found in them. Many Bible translations set those verses apart. Read verses 1 to 8 as Mark's own ending, and then the longer ending as an early summary of the resurrection appearances and the commission.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the Sabbath, early on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome bring spices to anoint Jesus' body. Their question on the way is practical: who will roll the stone away? What they find is an empty tomb and a young man in a white robe. The abrupt ending at verse 8 is deliberate: it leaves the reader to respond. The longer ending (vv. 9 to 20) was added early and summarizes appearances recorded elsewhere.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Who will roll away the stone for us from the entrance of the tomb?" (16:3).
2. "They saw that the stone had been rolled back" (16:4).
3. "Do not be alarmed. You seek Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He has risen; he is not here. See the place where they laid him" (16:6).
4. "But go, tell his disciples and Peter that he is going before you to Galilee" (16:7).
5. "And they went out and fled from the tomb, for trembling and astonishment had seized them, and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid" (16:8).
6. "Go into all the world and proclaim the gospel to the whole creation" (16:15).

7 “So then the Lord Jesus, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven and sat down at the right hand of God” (16:19).

8 “And they went out and preached everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the message by accompanying signs” (16:20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The women wonder how they will move the large stone, and when they look up, they see that it has already been rolled back. Inside the tomb, a young man sits on the right side, dressed in a white robe. The women are alarmed. He says, “Do not be alarmed. You seek Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He has risen; he is not here.” The One who was crucified is the One who is risen. He points to the place where they laid him, empty. Then he gives a message: “Go, tell his disciples and Peter that he is going before you to Galilee. There you will see him, just as he told you.” Notice “and Peter.” The disciple who denied him is not cast aside. He is specifically named.

Then, in the oldest manuscripts, the Gospel ends: “And they went out and fled from the tomb, for trembling and astonishment had seized them, and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid.” It is an abrupt ending, but it is powerful. After all that the disciples have done, the final faithful ones, the women, are also afraid. The reader is left with the announcement of the resurrection and the question: what will you do with this? We know the women did tell, because otherwise there would be no Gospel. The book ends where it began, with the good news, and invites us to carry it forward.

Verses 9 to 20, the longer ending, were probably added early. They summarize the appearance to Mary Magdalene, to two disciples on the road, and to the eleven, and give the commission: “Go into all the world and proclaim the gospel to the whole creation. Whoever believes and is baptized will be saved, but whoever does not believe will be condemned.” It ends with Jesus’ ascension and the disciples preaching everywhere with the Lord working with them. Because the status of these verses is uncertain, Christians are wise not to build doctrine or practice on them alone. In particular, the verses about handling serpents and drinking poison (vv. 17 to 18) are not taught elsewhere in the New Testament as normative. The commission itself is confirmed in Matthew 28 and Acts 1.

The resurrection is the proof of everything Jesus said. His claim to be the Christ, his death as a ransom, his promise to rise, all are vindicated. The strong Son of God who died as a servant is alive.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 16:10 and Isaiah 53:10-12 foreshadow the resurrection. Mark 8:31, 9:31, and 10:34 are the three predictions. Mark 14:28 promised he would go before them to Galilee. Matthew 28, Luke 24, and John 20 give the other resurrection accounts. 1 Corinthians 15:3-8 lists the appearances. Acts 1:8-11 records the commission and ascension. Romans 1:4 says he was declared to be the Son of God by his resurrection. 1 Peter 1:3 says we have a living hope through the resurrection.

STEP 6

Application

Say aloud, “He has risen; he is not here.” Let it settle.

Notice the words “and Peter.” Hear Jesus naming you in his forgiveness after your failures.

Don’t stay silent out of fear. Think of one person you can tell about the resurrection this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise Jesus that he is not in the tomb.
- Thank him that the empty tomb proves his work is finished.
- Ask him to send you to tell someone.

REST

Meditation

Jesus says this to James and John, who have just asked for the best seats in his coming glory, and to the ten who are indignant. It is the key to the whole Gospel of Mark.

"For even the Son of Man." The Son of Man is the figure of Daniel 7 who receives all authority and an everlasting kingdom. If anyone deserves to be served, it is he. The word "even" marks the surprise.

"Came not to be served." He had every right to be served. He is the Lord of angels. Yet he refused to use his rights for himself. The King does not act like the kings of the Gentiles.

"But to serve." The Servant King washes feet, feeds crowds, heals the sick, touches lepers, and welcomes children. His whole life was service.

"And to give his life." Service reaches its height at the cross. His death was not a defeat but the purpose of his coming. He gave his life. No one took it from him.

"As a ransom for many." A ransom is the price paid to free a prisoner. We were captive to sin, death, and the devil. The price was his life. The "many" means a multitude beyond number, all who trust him.

When you are tempted to seek your own greatness, say this verse. The greatest of all became the servant of all, and he did it for you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read Psalm 118:19-29, the song of the rejected stone that became the cornerstone, and Psalm 69:1-21, the cry of the righteous sufferer whose thirst was met with sour wine. In Mark 14 you saw the woman anoint Jesus for burial, the Supper with its words about the body and the blood of the covenant, and the prayer in Gethsemane: “Abba, Father, yet not what I will, but what you will.” You watched Judas kiss him and the disciples flee. In chapters 14 and 15 you stood by as he was tried, denied by Peter, and flogged. You stood at the cross and heard the cry, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” and saw the curtain torn in two. A Roman centurion confessed him as the Son of God. Finally, you came to the empty tomb and the announcement, “He has risen.”

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

You have read the Gospel of Mark, the fast-moving account of the servant King. It opened with the announcement that the kingdom of God is at hand, and showed Jesus acting with authority over demons, disease, nature, and death. Your doctrinal pause on the kingdom taught you to see it as already inaugurated and not yet complete. Along the way Jesus forgave sins, ate with sinners, taught in parables, and called his disciples to follow him. Again and again he silenced demons and those he healed, the so-called Messianic secret, because he would be known rightly only at the cross. At Caesarea Philippi, Peter finally confessed, “You are the Christ,” and Jesus began to teach that the Christ must suffer, be killed, and rise. The second half of the Gospel moves steadily toward Jerusalem: the Transfiguration, the passion predictions, the ransom saying of 10:45, Bartimaeus, the Entry, the temple controversies, and the Olivet Discourse. The passion narrative slows to a crawl: the anointing, the Supper, Gethsemane, the arrest, Peter’s denial, the silent King before Pilate, the cry of dereliction, and the torn curtain. A Roman centurion gave the Gospel’s climactic confession, “Truly this man was the Son of God!” And the Gospel ends at an empty tomb, with the message, “He has risen; he is not here.” Your Psalms carried the story: Psalm 107 on the stilling of the storm, Psalm 89 on David’s covenant, Psalm 118 on the rejected stone, and Psalm 69 on the righteous sufferer.

REFLECT

Review Questions

What is the “Messianic secret” in Mark?

Look at 1:25, 1:34, 1:44, 3:12, 5:43, 7:36, 8:30, and 9:9. Why do you think Jesus often commands silence? Consider how the cross changes what it means to call him the Christ, and write a few sentences.

Why does Mark's Gospel move so quickly?

Notice the repeated "immediately" and the short, vivid scenes. What kind of Savior does that pace portray? What would it have meant for a suffering church in Rome to read this Gospel?

How does Mark's Gospel build toward the cross as its climax?

Trace the three passion predictions (8:31, 9:31, 10:33-34), the ransom saying in 10:45, and the proportion of the Gospel given to the final week. How does the centurion's confession in 15:39 answer the question the Gospel has been asking?

What does Mark's Passion narrative add to the other Gospels?

Reread chapters 14 and 15. Notice the starkness: the desertion by all the disciples, the single cry of dereliction, and the absence of any comfort. What do these details teach about the cost of the cross and about following Jesus?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the Gospel of Mark and for the Servant who gave his life as a ransom.

DAY 687 · WEEK 99

Acts 1:1-26

The ascension; choosing Matthias, preparing for power

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 26 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 1:1-26. Luke picks up where his Gospel ended: Jesus appears alive for forty days, promises the Spirit, and ascends. The disciples wait and pray, and a twelfth apostle is chosen. Notice the commission in verse 8, which is also the outline of the whole book.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Acts is the second volume of Luke's work, addressed again to Theophilus. If the Gospel tells all that Jesus began to do and teach, Acts tells what he continued to do by his Spirit through his church. It covers about thirty years, from the ascension around AD 30 to Paul's imprisonment in Rome around AD 60. Its title, "Acts of the Apostles," is a little misleading. The main actor is the risen Lord, working by the Holy Spirit.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "He presented himself alive to them after his suffering by many proofs, appearing to them during forty days and speaking about the kingdom of God" (1:3).
2. "For John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now" (1:5).
3. "Lord, will you at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" (1:6).
4. "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth" (1:8).
5. "He was lifted up, and a cloud took him out of their sight" (1:9).

6. “This Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven” (1:11).
7. “All these with one accord were devoting themselves to prayer” (1:14).
8. “You, Lord, who know the hearts of all, show which one of these two you have chosen” (1:24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Luke says that Jesus showed himself alive by “many proofs.” The resurrection was not a vision or a feeling. It was a public fact, and the disciples were eyewitnesses. For forty days he taught them about the kingdom of God. Then he told them not to leave Jerusalem but to wait for the promise of the Father, the baptism with the Holy Spirit.

The disciples ask, “Lord, will you at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?” They are still thinking in terms of a political restoration. Jesus does not rebuke the question, but redirects it. The times are the Father’s business. Their business is to be witnesses, and the power to do it will come from the Spirit. Then comes the outline of Acts: Jerusalem (chapters 1 to 7), Judea and Samaria (8 to 12), and the end of the earth (13 to 28). The gospel will move outward in widening circles.

Then he is lifted up, and a cloud receives him. Two men in white say, “Why do you stand looking into heaven? This Jesus will come in the same way as you saw him go.” The ascension is not an absence. He is enthroned, and he will return. The disciples go back to Jerusalem filled with joy (Luke 24:52), and gather in the upper room with the women, Mary the mother of Jesus, and his brothers. They devote themselves to prayer. This is how a church waits: together, in prayer.

Peter then leads the group to replace Judas. The qualification is that the replacement must have been with them from the baptism of John to the ascension and must be a witness to the resurrection. They propose two men, pray, and cast lots, and the lot falls on Matthias. Christians have differed on whether this was the right choice, since Paul is later called an apostle. But the point is that the Twelve, representing the twelve tribes of renewed Israel, are restored to their number before Pentecost.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 24:47-53 is the end of Luke’s Gospel, with the same promise and ascension. Joel 2:28-29 promised the Spirit. Ezekiel 36:26-27 and Jeremiah 31:33 promised a new heart and the Spirit within. Psalm 110:1 and Daniel 7:13 are the background to the ascension and the cloud.

Isaiah 49:6 is the light to the ends of the earth. Psalm 69:25 and 109:8 are cited for Judas's replacement. Matthew 28:18-20 is the Great Commission.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Acts 1:8 this week. It is the memory verse of the unit.

Wait before you act. Spend time in prayer, with others if you can, before an important decision.

Think about your own Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and ends of the earth. Who is in each circle for you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for showing himself alive by many proofs.
- Thank him for the promise of the Spirit.
- Ask him to make you a witness where you are.

ACTS 2:42

DAY 688 · WEEK 99

Acts 1:1-11; Hebrews 4:14-16

Christ ascended and reigning

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Doctrine · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 1:1-11 slowly, then turn to Hebrews 4:14-16. Today is a doctrinal pause, so you are reading two passages together: Luke's account of Jesus rising into the clouds, and the author of Hebrews telling us what that ascension means for the weak and weary. Ask as you read: where did Jesus go, and what is he doing there now?

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

For forty days after his resurrection, Jesus appeared to his disciples, proving he was alive and teaching them about the kingdom of God. Yesterday's reading closed that season of appearances and opened the book of Acts, which is Luke's second volume. His first volume told what Jesus began to do and teach. Acts tells what he continues to do through his Spirit and his church. But first he must leave. Today we stand on the Mount of Olives with eleven confused men, watching their risen Lord lifted up and taken out of sight. Most Christians celebrate Christmas and Easter. Far fewer know what to do with the ascension. This day exists to correct that, because the ascension is where the story of the resurrection becomes the story of Christ's reign.

STEP 3

Observation

1. Luke calls his Gospel an account of "all that Jesus began to do and teach" (v. 1), which implies that Acts records what Jesus continues to do.
2. Jesus gave "many proofs" that he was alive during forty days (v. 3). The resurrection was physical and public.
3. The disciples ask whether Jesus will now restore the kingdom to Israel (v. 6). They are still thinking in small, national terms.

4. Jesus does not deny the kingdom. He redirects them to the Spirit's power and their witness "to the end of the earth" (vv. 7-8).
5. Jesus is "lifted up" while they are looking, and a cloud takes him from their sight (v. 9).
6. Two men in white tell them Jesus will return "in the same way" as they saw him go (v. 11).
7. Hebrews 4:14 says Jesus "has passed through the heavens." The ascension is described as a journey with a destination.
8. Hebrews 4:15-16 draws a pastoral conclusion: because Jesus sympathizes with weakness, we may draw near to the throne of grace with confidence.

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The ascension is the event in which the risen Lord Jesus Christ, in his glorified human body, departed from this earth and was received into heaven, where he now sits at the right hand of the Father. It is both a real event on a real day and the beginning of a real, ongoing ministry. The Apostles' Creed confesses it plainly: "He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of God the Father Almighty."

Scripture gives us several truths about the ascension. First, it was bodily. The same Jesus who ate fish with his disciples was taken up. He did not shed his humanity like a costume once the mission was finished. A man now reigns at the right hand of God, and he will remain a man forever. This is astonishing good news for human beings, because it means our nature has been carried into the presence of God and honored there.

Second, the ascension is enthronement. In the ancient world, to sit at the right hand of a king was to share his authority. Psalm 110:1 anticipates it: "The LORD says to my Lord: Sit at my right hand." Peter will preach in Acts 2 that this is exactly what happened to Jesus. Paul says in Ephesians 1:20-22 that God seated Christ above every rule, authority, power, and dominion, and put all things under his feet. The crucified carpenter is Lord of all. This is why the church can speak with confidence in a hostile world: the throne of heaven is not empty or contested. Christ reigns now, even though the full visible evidence of his reign awaits his return.

Third, the ascension inaugurates his priestly intercession. Hebrews insists that Jesus is our great high priest who has passed through the heavens. Under the old covenant, the high priest entered the Most Holy Place once a year with blood, and then he left. Christ has entered the true heavenly sanctuary with his own blood, and he does not need to leave again. Romans 8:34 says he is "at the right hand of God, who indeed is interceding for us." Your Savior is not distant or indifferent. He is your advocate before the Father right now.

Fourth, the ascension makes the gift of the Spirit possible. Jesus told his disciples it was to their advantage that he go away, because if he did not, the Helper would not come (John 16:7). Pentecost is the ascended Christ pouring out his Spirit on his people (Acts 2:33). The church's power in mission is the power of a reigning king.

Fifth, the ascension guarantees a future. The angels said he will come back in the same way. The ascended Christ is also the returning Christ. Between the ascension and the return, the church lives as a people who are sent. We are not left to guard a memory. We are sent to bear witness to a living king.

Some Christians treat the ascension as an awkward epilogue to Easter, as if Jesus got his body back and then needed to be gotten rid of. Scripture treats it as a coronation. The resurrection shows that death is defeated. The ascension shows that the one who defeated it now rules. If the cross is where Christ paid for sin and the resurrection is where he was vindicated, the ascension is where he took his seat, because the work is finished.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Luke opens Acts by looking back and looking forward. Looking back, he reminds Theophilus that his first book dealt with "all that Jesus began to do and teach until the day when he was taken up." The word "began" is important. If the Gospel was only the beginning, then Acts is not the story of what the apostles did but of what the risen Jesus keeps doing, now from heaven, by his Spirit, through his people.

The disciples' question in verse 6 reveals how slowly they understood. They had just spent forty days hearing about the kingdom from the risen Lord, and they still asked if he would restore Israel's national fortunes now. Jesus does not rebuke the hope. He reorders it. The kingdom will come, but the timeline belongs to the Father. In the meantime, they will receive power from the Holy Spirit and be witnesses in Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and to the end of the earth. This verse is the outline of the whole book of Acts. The kingdom advances not by political restoration but by the Spirit-empowered testimony of ordinary people.

Then Jesus rises. Luke writes it with restraint. There is no spectacle, no fireworks. He is lifted up, a cloud receives him, and the disciples keep staring at the sky. The cloud is not incidental. Throughout Scripture, a cloud is where God's glory dwells: the pillar in the wilderness, the cloud that filled the tabernacle, the cloud on the mount of transfiguration. Daniel 7:13 sees "one like a son of man" coming with the clouds of heaven to receive an everlasting dominion. The cloud tells the careful reader that Jesus is entering the glory of God, and that Daniel's vision has begun to come true.

The two men in white interrupt the staring. “Why do you stand looking into heaven?” It is a gentle rebuke, and it is also a promise. This same Jesus will come in the same way. The disciples do not need to scan the sky because they have a job to do and a future to expect.

Hebrews 4:14-16 tells us what Jesus is doing in the meantime. “We have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens.” The author is writing to weary believers who were tempted to drift back to the familiar comforts of the old covenant. His answer is to point them upward. The One who went up is a priest, which means he is on your behalf, now, before God. He is not a priest who stands aloof. Verse 15 says he can sympathize with our weaknesses, “one who in every respect has been tempted as we are, yet without sin.” He knows what it is to be tired, hungry, betrayed, and afraid. His ascended glory has not made him forget what it felt like.

Verse 16 is the invitation. “Let us then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace.” Notice the combination of words: throne and grace. A throne suggests authority and judgment. Grace suggests undeserved favor. In the ascension, the two meet. The King who sits on the throne is the one who died for you. When you come before him, you do not find a stern judge reviewing your record but a priest who has already settled it. So you can come with confidence, which does not mean arrogance but boldness, and you will receive mercy for your past and grace for your needs.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 110 is the Old Testament backbone of this day. David writes, “The LORD says to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool.” The New Testament quotes this verse more than any other Old Testament text, nearly always about the ascension. Daniel 7 provides the cloud and the Son of Man receiving dominion. Leviticus 16 provides the picture of the high priest entering the Most Holy Place with blood, which Hebrews says Christ has fulfilled. Looking forward, Acts 2 will show Peter explaining Pentecost as the work of the ascended Christ, and Revelation 5 will show the Lamb standing at the center of the throne.

STEP 6

Application

First, let the ascension settle where Jesus is. When life feels out of control, remember that someone is on the throne, and he is the one who loves you. Your circumstances do not outrank his authority.

Second, take your failures and weakness to him without delay. Hebrews says come with confidence. If you have been avoiding prayer because you feel unworthy, you have misunderstood the throne. It is a throne of grace. Tell him exactly what you are struggling with. He has been there.

Third, take comfort that Jesus is praying for you right now. Romans 8:34 says so. On days when you feel you cannot pray, the ascended Christ is already interceding.

Fourth, remember that you have been sent. The disciples were told to stop staring at the sky and start witnessing. Ask God this week to give you one specific opportunity to speak of Christ to someone, and then look for it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for ascending and sitting at the Father's right hand.

Thank him that he is your king and your high priest.

Ask him to give you confidence to come to his throne of grace.

DAY 689 · WEEK 99

John 14:15-31; John 16:5-15; Acts 2:1-21

The Person and Work of the Holy Spirit

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 14:15-31, John 16:5-15, and Acts 2:1-21. Today is a doctrinal pause on the Holy Spirit: who he is and what he does. Notice what Jesus promised, and what happened at Pentecost.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

On the night before his death, Jesus promised his disciples another Helper. Fifty days after the resurrection, on the Jewish feast of Pentecost, that promise came true. The Spirit had been at work in the Old Testament, hovering over creation, empowering prophets and craftsmen, and anointing kings. But Pentecost marks the beginning of a new stage: the Spirit poured out on all God's people, as the new covenant promised. The church has confessed the Holy Spirit as the third person of the Trinity, equal with the Father and the Son.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Helper, to be with you forever, even the Spirit of truth" (John 14:16-17).
2. "But the Helper, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things and bring to your remembrance all that I have said to you" (John 14:26).
3. "And when he comes, he will convict the world concerning sin and righteousness and judgment" (John 16:8).
4. "When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all the truth" (John 16:13).
5. "He will glorify me, for he will take what is mine and declare it to you" (John 16:14).

6. “And suddenly there came from heaven a sound like a mighty rushing wind, and it filled the entire house where they were sitting” (Acts 2:2).

7. “And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance” (Acts 2:4).

8. “And in the last days it shall be, God declares, that I will pour out my Spirit on all flesh” (Acts 2:17).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The Holy Spirit is the third person of the Trinity: fully God, one in being with the Father and the Son, yet distinct as a person. Jesus calls him “he” and “the Helper” (the Greek word, paraclete, means one called alongside to help, advocate, or comfort). The Bible gives the Spirit divine attributes (eternal, all-knowing, present everywhere) and divine works (creation, inspiration of Scripture, new birth). His work in salvation is to apply what Christ has accomplished. He convicts of sin, gives new birth, unites believers to Christ, dwells within them, seals them, sanctifies them, gives gifts for the building up of the church, and assures them that they are God’s children. His ministry is Christ-centered: Jesus said, “He will glorify me.” At Pentecost, the Spirit was poured out on all believers, not just prophets and kings, as Joel foretold. Every Christian has the Spirit (Romans 8:9), and every Christian is called to be filled with him continually (Ephesians 5:18). Christians differ on the nature of some gifts, such as tongues and healing, and on whether the experience called the baptism or filling of the Spirit is distinct from conversion. All agree that without the Spirit there is no new life, no understanding of Scripture, and no power for witness.

STEP 4

Interpretation

In the Upper Room, Jesus tells his troubled disciples that he is leaving, but they will not be left as orphans. He will ask the Father, and the Father will give “another Helper.” The word “another” means another of the same kind. The Spirit will be to them what Jesus has been. And he will be with them forever. He is called the Spirit of truth. He will dwell with them and in them. He will teach them and remind them of what Jesus said. This is the promise behind the New Testament: the Spirit would help the apostles to remember and understand what Jesus taught, and so give us the Scriptures.

In chapter 16, Jesus says it is to their advantage that he goes away, for the Helper will not come otherwise. The Spirit’s work in the world is to convict: of sin, because they do not believe in Jesus; of righteousness, because Jesus goes to the Father and the world no longer sees him; and of judgment, because the ruler of this world is judged. His work with believers is to guide them into all truth, and above all to glorify Christ. He does not speak on his own authority. A mark of the Spirit's presence is that Jesus is exalted.

Then on the day of Pentecost, the promise comes. A sound like a rushing wind fills the house. Tongues like flames rest on each of them. They are all filled with the Holy Spirit and speak in other languages, so that visitors from many nations each hear "the mighty works of God" in their own tongue. Some mock, saying they are drunk. Peter stands and quotes Joel: "In the last days, I will pour out my Spirit on all flesh, and your sons and daughters shall prophesy." The reversal of Babel has begun. At Babel languages were confused and people scattered. At Pentecost, languages are understood and people gathered. The Spirit comes on young and old, men and women, slave and free, so that the whole people of God can know him. This is the new covenant: not a few prophets but a kingdom of prophets.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:2 and Psalm 104:30 show the Spirit in creation. Numbers 11:29 has Moses wishing all the LORD's people were prophets. Ezekiel 36:26-27 and Jeremiah 31:33-34 promised the Spirit in the new covenant. Joel 2:28-32 is Peter's text. Genesis 11:1-9 is Babel. Romans 8:9-16 describes the Spirit in the believer. Ephesians 1:13-14 and 5:18 speak of the seal and the filling. Galatians 5:22-23 lists the fruit of the Spirit. 1 Corinthians 12 to 14 treat gifts.

STEP 6

Application

Thank the Father for the Spirit by name, and ask him to fill you today.

Notice where Jesus is being glorified in your life, a sign of the Spirit's work.

Ask the Spirit to open your Bible as you read, as Jesus promised.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank the Father for sending the Spirit to be with you forever.
- Ask the Spirit to teach you, convict you, and remind you of Jesus.
- Tell him where you need his help today.

ACTS 2:42

DAY 690 · WEEK 99

Acts 2:37-41; 2 Corinthians 7:8-11

Turning from sin to God

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Doctrine · 9 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 2:37-41 and 2 Corinthians 7:8-11. Today is a doctrinal pause on repentance, turning from sin to God. Notice what Peter says after his sermon, and how Paul distinguishes two kinds of grief.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Peter has just preached the first Christian sermon, and the crowd has been told that they crucified the Messiah. Their question is the most important question: what shall we do? Peter's answer begins with repentance. In 2 Corinthians, Paul writes to a church he had grieved with a stern letter, and he rejoices at the result, not because they were hurt, but because the hurt led to repentance.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Now when they heard this they were cut to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, Brothers, what shall we do?" (Acts 2:37).
2. "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit" (Acts 2:38).
3. "For the promise is for you and for your children and for all who are far off, everyone whom the Lord our God calls to himself" (Acts 2:39).
4. "So those who received his word were baptized, and there were added that day about three thousand souls" (Acts 2:41).
5. "As it is, I rejoice, not because you were grieved, but because you were grieved into repenting" (2 Corinthians 7:9).

6. “For godly grief produces a repentance that leads to salvation without regret” (2 Corinthians 7:10).
7. “Whereas worldly grief produces death” (2 Corinthians 7:10).
8. “For see what earnestness this godly grief has produced in you” (2 Corinthians 7:11).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Repentance is a change of mind and heart about sin and God that results in a change of direction. It includes three elements: recognizing sin for what it is, being sorry for it (not just for its consequences but because it offends God), and turning from it to God, with a purpose to obey. Repentance and faith are two sides of one turning: repentance turns from sin and faith turns to Christ. Jesus began his ministry by calling for both (Mark 1:15). Repentance is a gift of God (Acts 11:18, 2 Timothy 2:25), not a work that earns forgiveness, and it is a lifelong habit, not a one-time act. As Luther put it, the whole life of believers should be repentance. The Bible distinguishes godly grief from worldly grief. Worldly grief is sorrow over being caught or over the damage done to oneself. It can lead to bitterness or despair, as with Judas. Godly grief is sorrow over having sinned against God, and it moves us toward him. It leads to confession, change, and joy. Repentance does not bring forgiveness by its own merit. Forgiveness is on the basis of Christ’s death, received by faith. But there is no saving faith without repentance.

STEP 4

Interpretation

The crowd at Pentecost is “cut to the heart.” The Spirit has convicted them, as Jesus promised. They do not argue or defend themselves. They ask, “What shall we do?” Peter replies, “Repent and be baptized.” Repentance is first. It involves a change of mind about who Jesus is: the one they crucified is Lord and Christ. It involves a change of heart toward sin. Then comes baptism, the outward sign of entering the Christian community and being cleansed. The promise is the forgiveness of sins and the gift of the Holy Spirit. And the promise is for them, for their children, and for all who are far off, whom the Lord calls. Peter urges, “Save yourselves from this crooked generation.” About three thousand were added that day.

Paul’s letter to the Corinthians draws a vital distinction. Earlier he had sent a painful letter. He is glad, not because it hurt them, but because their pain led somewhere. “Godly grief produces a repentance that leads to salvation without regret, whereas worldly grief produces death.” Compare Peter, who wept bitterly and was restored, with Judas, who was remorseful but went away and hanged himself. Both felt sorrow. Peter’s sorrow brought him back to Christ. Judas’s sorrow turned inward and ended in despair.

Then Paul lists the fruit of true repentance: earnestness, eagerness to clear themselves, indignation, fear, longing, zeal, and a readiness to see justice done. Repentance is not just a feeling. It makes a difference in how we live. A genuinely repentant person wants to make things right.

For the new believer, repentance can feel frightening, as though God is looking for a reason to condemn. In fact, repentance is a gift. God leads us to it by his kindness (Romans 2:4). When you see your sin, it is the Spirit at work. And the way to the Father is always open: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9).

STEP 5

Connection

Mark 1:15 and Luke 24:47 call for repentance. Psalm 51 is David's great prayer of repentance. Joel 2:12-13 calls for returning to the LORD with the whole heart. Luke 15:17-24 is the prodigal's repentance. Matthew 26:75 and 27:3-5 contrast Peter and Judas. Romans 2:4 says God's kindness leads to repentance. 1 John 1:9 promises forgiveness. Revelation 2:5 calls churches to repent.

STEP 6

Application

Pray Psalm 51 slowly, and name any sin you need to turn from.

Ask yourself: is my grief over sin godly or worldly? Does it move me toward God or away?

Make a concrete change this week as the fruit of repentance, such as an apology, a restitution, or a broken habit.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the gift of repentance.
- Ask him to give you godly grief that leads to life.
- Confess a sin and turn from it, in your own words.

ACTS 2:42

DAY 691 · WEEK 99

Acts 2:42; Romans 10:14-17

The Means of Grace, Word, Sacrament, Prayer

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 2:42 and Romans 10:14-17. Today is a doctrinal pause on the means of grace: the ordinary ways God works in his people. Notice the four things the first church devoted itself to, and how Paul explains that faith comes by hearing.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After three thousand are added to the church at Pentecost, Luke gives a one-verse summary of what they did together. Paul, in Romans 10, explains why preaching is essential: no one can call on a Lord they have not heard about. The church has long called the means by which God gives and increases grace "the means of grace". The Reformers summarized them as the Word, the sacraments (baptism and the Lord's Supper), and prayer.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And they devoted themselves to the apostles" teaching and the fellowship' (Acts 2:42).
2. "To the breaking of bread and the prayers" (Acts 2:42).
3. "For everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved" (Romans 10:13).
4. "How then will they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how are they to believe in him of whom they have never heard?" (Romans 10:14).
5. "And how are they to hear without someone preaching?" (Romans 10:14).
6. "And how are they to preach unless they are sent?" (Romans 10:15).
7. "How beautiful are the feet of those who preach the good news!" (Romans 10:15).
8. "So faith comes from hearing, and hearing through the word of Christ" (Romans 10:17).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The means of grace are the ordinary channels through which God gives his people his blessing, strengthens their faith, and conforms them to Christ. They are not magic, and they do not work apart from faith and the Holy Spirit. But God has promised to use them. The Reformed tradition names three main means: the Word, the sacraments, and prayer. The Word, read and preached, is the primary means. “Faith comes from hearing” (Romans 10:17). The Spirit uses the Scriptures to convict, to convert, and to sanctify. The sacraments are the signs and seals of the gospel, instituted by Christ: baptism, which marks entrance into the covenant community, and the Lord’s Supper, in which believers feed on Christ by faith. Christians differ on how Christ is present in the Supper and on who should be baptized, but all agree that these are gifts to be received with faith. Prayer is the response to God’s Word and the believer’s way of seeking him. To these, Acts 2:42 adds fellowship, the life together in which believers encourage and build up one another. The means of grace are meant to be practiced in the context of a local church. They remind us that the Christian life is not a solo project. God gives grace through a people, a book, a meal, and a prayer.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Acts 2:42 is a short portrait of a healthy church. They “devoted themselves,” a word that means persistent, steadfast commitment. They did not drop in occasionally. First, “the apostles” teaching.’ The church was built on the teaching of those who had been with Jesus, now preserved in the New Testament. Second, “the fellowship,” the sharing of life, resources, and burdens that grows out of a shared faith. Third, “the breaking of bread,” which likely includes shared meals and the Lord’s Supper. Fourth, “the prayers,” both private and corporate.

Notice that these are ordinary things. There is no mention of a new program or a special technique. God works through ordinary means: teaching, fellowship, meals, and prayer. This is encouraging. You do not need extraordinary experiences to grow. You need to be steadily present in these four things.

Romans 10 makes the case for why the Word matters so much. Paul builds a chain of questions. People cannot call on the Lord unless they believe. They cannot believe unless they have heard. They cannot hear unless someone preaches. They cannot preach unless they are sent. So salvation depends on the proclamation of the gospel. “How beautiful are the feet of those who preach the good news!” Then the summary: “Faith comes from hearing, and hearing through the word of Christ.” The word is not a mere pointer to something else. The Spirit works through it.

This is why time in the Word matters. You are putting yourself under the Word. It is also the reason that gathering with a church matters. You hear the Word preached, you pray with others, and you receive the sacraments. These are not extras. They are how God has chosen to feed his people.

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 8:3 says man lives by every word from the mouth of God. Isaiah 55:10-11 says God's word accomplishes his purpose. Matthew 28:19-20 commands baptism and teaching. Luke 22:19 and 1 Corinthians 11:23-26 institute the Lord's Supper. Hebrews 10:24-25 calls us not to neglect meeting together. Colossians 3:16 says to let the word of Christ dwell richly. 1 Peter 2:2 says to long for the pure spiritual milk. Ephesians 4:11-16 describes the building up of the church.

STEP 6

Application

Evaluate your own pattern against the four: teaching, fellowship, bread, prayer. Which is weakest?

Commit to regular attendance at your church. Treat it as a means of grace, not an option.

Thank someone who first brought you the gospel. Their feet were beautiful.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the ordinary means of grace: his Word, the sacraments, and prayer.

Ask him to make you faithful in using them.

Ask him to meet you through them.

Acts 2:1-47

Pentecost, the Spirit poured on all flesh

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 2:1-47. The Spirit falls on Pentecost, Peter preaches the first Christian sermon, three thousand repent, and the new community forms. You have already studied the Spirit and repentance in doctrinal pauses. Today, read the narrative as a whole.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Pentecost, fifty days after Passover, was one of three pilgrim feasts. Jerusalem was crowded with Jews from across the Roman world. The disciples were gathered together when the Spirit came. Peter's sermon is a model of apostolic preaching: it explains the event from the Scriptures, proclaims the death and resurrection of Jesus, and calls for repentance.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "When the day of Pentecost arrived, they were all together in one place" (2:1).
2. "We hear them telling in our own tongues the mighty works of God" (2:11).
3. "And it shall come to pass that everyone who calls upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (2:21).
4. "This Jesus, delivered up according to the definite plan and foreknowledge of God, you crucified and killed by the hands of lawless men" (2:23).
5. "Being therefore exalted at the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he has poured out this that you yourselves are seeing and hearing" (2:33).
6. "Let all the house of Israel therefore know for certain that God has made him both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom you crucified" (2:36).

7. “And all who believed were together and had all things in common” (2:44).
8. “Praising God and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to their number day by day those who were being saved” (2:47).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Spirit comes on the disciples as promised. The visitors from many nations are amazed to hear the apostles speaking about the mighty works of God in their own languages. Some are perplexed, and others mock. Peter stands with the eleven and explains: this is what was spoken by the prophet Joel. In the last days, God will pour out his Spirit on all flesh. The day of the LORD has begun.

Peter then preaches Christ. Jesus of Nazareth was a man attested by God with mighty works, wonders, and signs. He was delivered up by the definite plan and foreknowledge of God, and killed by lawless men. Both are true: God’s plan and human guilt. But God raised him up, because it was not possible for death to hold him. Peter cites Psalm 16: David spoke of the resurrection of the Christ. David died and his tomb is here, but David was a prophet, and he spoke of one of his descendants. Peter then cites Psalm 110: “The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand.” Jesus is exalted, and from the right hand he has poured out the Spirit. “Let all the house of Israel therefore know for certain that God has made him both Lord and Christ.”

The result is conviction. Peter calls them to repent and be baptized, and about three thousand are added. Then Luke gives a picture of the new community. They devote themselves to the apostles’ teaching, fellowship, the breaking of bread, and prayer. Awe comes on every soul, and many wonders and signs are done by the apostles. They have all things in common, selling possessions to give to anyone in need. Day by day they attend the temple together and break bread in their homes with glad and generous hearts. They have favor with all the people, and the Lord adds to their number daily those who are being saved.

This is the birth of the church. It is not a human organization but a work of the Spirit, centered on the risen Christ. Its marks are Word, fellowship, sacrament, prayer, generosity, joy, and evangelism.

STEP 5

Connection

Joel 2:28-32 is the prophecy fulfilled. Psalm 16:8-11 and Psalm 110:1 are Peter’s texts. Leviticus 23:15-22 describes the Feast of Weeks. Exodus 19 and 20 recall the giving of the law at Sinai, as Pentecost came to be associated with it. Genesis 11 is Babel. Ezekiel 36:26-27 and Jeremiah 31:33 fit the new covenant. Romans 8:9 and Ephesians 2:19-22 describe the Spirit and the church. 1 John 3:17-18 teaches generosity.

STEP 6

Application

Read the sermon (2:14-41) aloud. Notice how Peter uses Scripture and then calls for a response.

Which of the marks of the early church would you like to see more in your own church? Pray for it.

Share something with someone in need this week, as the first believers did.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for pouring out the Spirit on his people.

Tell him what it means that he is both Lord and Christ.

Ask him to fill you with his Spirit.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Acts 2:42 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And they devoted themselves to the apostles' teaching and the fellowship, to the breaking of bread and the prayers."

ACTS 2:42

REST

Meditation

Luke gives this single verse as a portrait of the first church after Pentecost. It is a pattern for every church that follows.

"They devoted themselves." The verb means to persist, to be strongly committed. It was not casual. These believers made time for each other and for the means of grace.

"To the apostles" teaching.' Their life was built on the teaching handed down from Jesus through his apostles. Today we have that teaching in the New Testament. A healthy church listens to Scripture.

"And the fellowship." The Greek word is koinonia, sharing in common. The church is a family, bound by the same Lord and the same Spirit, sharing life and burdens.

"The breaking of bread." This includes common meals and the Lord's Supper, where believers remember Jesus' death and feed on him by faith.

“And the prayers.” They prayed together, often and earnestly. The church began with prayer and moved forward in prayer.

When you wonder what the Christian life should look like, say this verse. It is simple, and it is enough to start.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began Acts with the risen Jesus’ promise: “You will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you will be my witnesses.” Your first doctrinal pause was on Christ’s ascension, reigning and interceding. Then you studied the person of the Holy Spirit, and saw Jesus’ promise of a Helper fulfilled at Pentecost. A pause on repentance showed you the difference between godly grief and worldly grief. Another on the means of grace showed you the ordinary ways God feeds his people: Word, sacrament, prayer, and fellowship. In Acts 2 you read Peter’s first sermon, heard three thousand respond, and saw the birth of the church.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus ascended and now reigns at the Father’s right hand. How does knowing that he is on the throne and interceding for you change the way you face this week?

Peter’s hearers were cut to the heart and asked, “What shall we do?” When have you been cut to the heart by the Spirit? How did you respond?

Of the four things the first church devoted itself to (teaching, fellowship, breaking of bread, prayers), which do you most need to grow in?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for ascending and pouring out the Spirit.

Thank him for the church built at Pentecost.

Rest in him.

DAY 694 · WEEK 100

Acts 3:1-4:31

Healing at the gate; preaching; opposition begins

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 62 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 3:1-4:31. Peter and John heal a lame man at the temple gate, Peter preaches, and the apostles are arrested. They answer the council with bold words, and the church prays for boldness. Notice how Peter ties everything to Jesus' name.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Peter and John go up to the temple at the hour of prayer, three in the afternoon. At the Beautiful Gate, a man lame from birth is carried every day to beg. What follows is the first public miracle in Acts, and it leads to the first conflict with the authorities. The same leaders who condemned Jesus now face his disciples.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I have no silver and gold, but what I do have I give to you. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk!" (3:6).
2. "And you killed the Author of life, whom God raised from the dead" (3:15).
3. "Repent therefore, and turn back, that your sins may be blotted out" (3:19).
4. "You are the sons of the prophets and of the covenant that God made with your fathers, saying to Abraham, And in your offspring shall all the families of the earth be blessed" (3:25).
5. "And there is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved" (4:12).
6. "Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were uneducated, common men, they were astonished. And they recognized that they had been with Jesus" (4:13).

7. "For we cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard" (4:20).

8. "And when they had prayed, the place in which they were gathered together was shaken, and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and continued to speak the word of God with boldness" (4:31).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The lame man expects money. Peter says, "I have no silver and gold, but what I do have I give to you." What the church has is far greater: the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. The man leaps up and enters the temple walking and leaping and praising God. The crowd gathers in amazement, and Peter preaches.

His sermon makes three points. First, don't look at us; the power is Jesus'. God has glorified his servant Jesus, whom you denied and killed, the Author of life, whom God raised. Second, you acted in ignorance, but God used it to fulfill what the prophets said about the Christ's suffering. Third, repent and turn back, that your sins may be blotted out, that times of refreshing may come from the Lord. And he reminds them that they are heirs of the covenant with Abraham: in your offspring all the families of the earth shall be blessed. God raised up his servant and sent him to you first, to bless you by turning every one of you from your wickedness. The Abrahamic promise is the framework for the mission.

The priests and the captain of the temple guard arrest them. But many who heard believed, and the number of men grew to about five thousand. The next day, before the same council that condemned Jesus, Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, speaks of the rejected stone (Psalm 118): "There is salvation in no other name." This is a bold claim of Jesus' exclusivity. The council marvels at the confidence of "uneducated, common men" and recognizes that they had been with Jesus. With the healed man standing beside them, they have nothing to say. They warn them to stop speaking in this name. Peter and John answer: "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than to God, you must judge, for we cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard."

When released, they go to their friends, and the whole church prays. They do not ask for safety. They quote Psalm 2 (which you read in a few days) and pray for boldness. The place is shaken, and they are all filled with the Spirit and speak the word of God with boldness.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 52:13 and 53:11 speak of God's servant. Deuteronomy 18:15 is the prophet like Moses. Genesis 12:3 and 22:18 are the Abrahamic promise. Psalm 118:22 is the stone. Psalm 2:1-2 is quoted in Acts 4:25-26. Philippians 2:9-11 says God gave him the name above every name. John 14:6 says no one comes to the Father except through him. Hebrews 13:15 calls us to continually offer a sacrifice of praise.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what you have to give that is better than silver and gold. Give it to someone this week.

When you are afraid to speak about Jesus, pray the church's prayer: not for safety, but for boldness.

Let people take note that you have been with Jesus. How?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that there is no other name by which we must be saved.

Ask him to make you bold.

Tell him what you would say to someone about him today.

ACTS 4:12

DAY 695 · WEEK 100

Acts 4:32-6:7

Sharing; Ananias and Sapphira; the Seven appointed

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 49 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 4:32-6:7. The church shares everything, Barnabas gives, Ananias and Sapphira lie to the Spirit, the apostles are arrested again, and seven men are chosen to serve. Notice the contrast between the true generosity and the false.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The young church is growing rapidly under pressure from outside and now faces problems from inside. In these chapters, we see its generosity, the danger of hypocrisy, further persecution, and an organizational crisis over the care of widows. In each, the church responds in a way that preserves its witness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Now the full number of those who believed were of one heart and soul, and no one said that any of the things that belonged to him was his own, but they had everything in common” (4:32).
2. “There was not a needy person among them” (4:34).
3. “Ananias, why has Satan filled your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and to keep back for yourself part of the proceeds of the land?” (5:3).
4. “And great fear came upon the whole church and upon all who heard of these things” (5:11).
5. “We must obey God rather than men” (5:29).
6. “Then they left the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer dishonor for the name” (5:41).

7 “Therefore, brothers, pick out from among you seven men of good repute, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we will appoint to this duty” (6:3).

8 “And the word of God continued to increase, and the number of the disciples multiplied greatly in Jerusalem” (6:7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The church was of one heart and soul. The believers sold property and laid the proceeds at the apostles’ feet to be distributed to those in need. This was voluntary, not compulsory, and a spontaneous overflow of love. Barnabas, whose name means “son of encouragement,” sold a field and gave the money.

Ananias and Sapphira did the same, but they kept back part and pretended to give all. Peter says, “You have not lied to man but to God.” Both fall dead. The sin was not keeping part of the money. Peter says the land was theirs to keep. The sin was hypocrisy: pretending to be more generous than they were, to gain a reputation. Luke says great fear came on the whole church. God takes the purity of his church seriously.

The apostles continue to do signs, and the sick are brought into the streets. The high priest and the Sadducees are filled with jealousy and arrest them, but an angel opens the prison doors at night and tells them to go and preach. When they are brought before the council, they say: “We must obey God rather than men.” Peter again preaches Jesus, crucified and raised, to give repentance and forgiveness. The council wants to kill them, but Gamaliel, a respected teacher of the law, advises caution: if this is from men, it will fail; if it is from God, you cannot overthrow it. They flog the apostles and charge them not to speak in Jesus’ name. The apostles leave “rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer dishonor for the name.”

Then comes an internal problem. The Greek-speaking widows are being overlooked in the daily distribution. The apostles do not dismiss the complaint. They gather the disciples and propose that seven men be chosen to oversee this ministry, so that the apostles can devote themselves to prayer and the ministry of the word. The seven all have Greek names, suggesting they were from the complaining group. The church chooses them, the apostles pray and lay hands on them, “and the word of God continued to increase.” Stephen and Philip are among them. The church solves a problem by creating a ministry of service, a model for the later office of deacon.

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 15:4 said there should be no poor among you if you obey. Joshua 7 is the story of Achan's hidden sin, with a similar severity. Proverbs 21:3 says to do righteousness and justice. Matthew 6:1-4 warns against giving to be seen. Galatians 6:2 says to bear one another's burdens. 1 Timothy 3:8-13 describes deacons. James 1:27 speaks of caring for widows. 2 Corinthians 9:7 says God loves a cheerful giver.

STEP 6

Application

Examine your own giving. Is it done for God or for a reputation? Give something in secret.

Pray for your church's leaders, that they would devote themselves to prayer and the Word.

Where is someone being overlooked in your church? What could you do?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the generosity of the early church.
- Ask him to keep you from hypocrisy.
- Ask him to teach you to give from a sincere heart.

ACTS 4:12

DAY 696 · WEEK 100

Psalm 2

The nations rage, Peter's Pentecost proclamation

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 2. The nations plot against the LORD and his Anointed, but the LORD installs his King. You met this psalm earlier in the plan; today read it through Acts 4, where the church prays it after the first arrests.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 2 was a coronation psalm, sung when a king of David's line took the throne. In the New Testament it is quoted as speaking of Jesus, the ultimate Anointed One. In Acts 4:25-26, the believers quote verses 1 and 2 as they pray after the arrest of Peter and John. They see Herod, Pilate, the nations, and the peoples of Israel as the fulfillment of the rage. Their confidence is that the one enthroned in heaven laughs.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Why do the nations rage and the peoples plot in vain?" (v. 1).
2. "The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD and against his Anointed" (v. 2).
3. "He who sits in the heavens laughs; the Lord holds them in derision" (v. 4).
4. "As for me, I have set my King on Zion, my holy hill" (v. 6).
5. "I will tell of the decree: The LORD said to me, You are my Son; today I have begotten you" (v. 7).
6. "Ask of me, and I will make the nations your heritage, and the ends of the earth your possession" (v. 8).
7. "Now therefore, O kings, be wise; be warned, O rulers of the earth" (v. 10).

8 “Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and you perish in the way, for his wrath is quickly kindled. Blessed are all who take refuge in him” (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a question that has echoed through history: “Why do the nations rage?” Power rises against God. The kings of the earth take counsel together against the LORD and his Anointed, saying, “Let us burst their bonds apart and cast away their cords from us.” They want to be free of God’s rule.

The answer from heaven is surprising: “He who sits in the heavens laughs.” It is not a laugh of amusement but of contempt for the futility of the plan. The nations are not a threat to God. Then he speaks in his wrath: “As for me, I have set my King on Zion, my holy hill.” The decision is made. The King is installed.

Then the King himself speaks: “I will tell of the decree: The LORD said to me, You are my Son; today I have begotten you.” In the Davidic covenant, the king was adopted as God’s son (2 Samuel 7:14). The New Testament sees the full meaning in Jesus. The Father said this at his baptism and the Transfiguration, and Paul says that Jesus was declared to be the Son of God in power by his resurrection (Romans 1:4, Acts 13:33). The Son is promised the nations as his heritage and the ends of the earth as his possession. This is the Great Commission in the language of the Psalms. The nations belong to Christ, and the mission of Acts is the fulfillment. He will rule with an iron rod. The nations that do not submit will be broken.

The psalm ends with a call to the kings to be wise: “Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling. Kiss the Son.” To kiss the Son is to pay homage, to submit. “Lest he be angry, and you perish in the way.” And the final line is a gospel invitation: “Blessed are all who take refuge in him.” The Son who will judge is also the refuge. The first psalm opened with “Blessed is the man,” and the second ends with “Blessed are all who take refuge in him.”

In Acts, the church faces the rage of the rulers. They pray this psalm, and the place is shaken. The King is on the throne, and their courage comes from knowing it.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Samuel 7:12-16 is the Davidic covenant behind the psalm. Psalm 89:26-27 repeats the sonship. Acts 4:25-28 and 13:33 quote Psalm 2. Hebrews 1:5 and 5:5 apply it to Christ. Matthew 3:17 and 17:5 echo verse 7. Revelation 2:26-27, 12:5, and 19:15 use the iron rod. Romans 1:4 says he was declared the Son of God by the resurrection. Philippians 2:9-11 describes the whole earth bowing.

STEP 6

Application

When the news makes you anxious about rulers and nations, read verse 4 and remember who sits in the heavens.

Submit an area of your life that you have kept back from Christ's rule. Kiss the Son.

Take refuge in him today, by name, in prayer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what rage and plotting you see around you.

Thank him for the King he has set on Zion.

Take refuge in the Son.

ACTS 4:12

DAY 697 · WEEK 100

Psalm 16

You will not abandon my soul to Sheol

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 16. David's confidence in the LORD reaches past death. Both Peter in Acts 2 and Paul in Acts 13 quote verse 10 as a prophecy of the resurrection of Jesus.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 16 is a "miktam" of David, a poem of trust. David asks for protection and then declares that the LORD is his chosen portion. The mood is quiet and joyful confidence. The psalm ends with a hope that goes beyond what David himself experienced, which is why Peter says David "foresaw and spoke about the resurrection of the Christ."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Preserve me, O God, for in you I take refuge" (v. 1).
2. "I say to the LORD, You are my Lord; I have no good apart from you" (v. 2).
3. "The LORD is my chosen portion and my cup; you hold my lot" (v. 5).
4. "The lines have fallen for me in pleasant places; indeed, I have a beautiful inheritance" (v. 6).
5. "I bless the LORD who gives me counsel; in the night also my heart instructs me" (v. 7).
6. "I have set the LORD always before me; because he is at my right hand, I shall not be shaken" (v. 8).
7. "For you will not abandon my soul to Sheol, or let your holy one see corruption" (v. 10).
8. "You make known to me the path of life; in your presence there is fullness of joy; at your right hand are pleasures forevermore" (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David begins by taking refuge: “Preserve me, O God, for in you I take refuge.” He affirms that the LORD is his Lord and that he has no good apart from him. All his delight is in the saints in the land, the people of God. Those who run after other gods multiply their sorrows.

Then the heart of the psalm: “The LORD is my chosen portion and my cup; you hold my lot.” In Israel, each tribe received a portion of land, except Levi, whose portion was the LORD himself. David applies this to himself. The LORD is his inheritance. The boundary lines have fallen in pleasant places. Having God, he has everything.

He blesses the LORD for counsel, even at night, and sets the LORD always before him. Because God is at his right hand, he will not be shaken. “Therefore my heart is glad, and my whole being rejoices; my flesh also dwells secure.”

Then comes verse 10: “For you will not abandon my soul to Sheol, or let your holy one see corruption.” In David’s own situation, this is a confident hope of rescue from death. But Peter says on Pentecost that David died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. David was a prophet and knew God had sworn to set one of his descendants on his throne. “He foresaw and spoke about the resurrection of the Christ, that he was not abandoned to Hades, nor did his flesh see corruption.” The ultimate holy one is Jesus, whom God raised up. Paul argues in Acts 13:35-37 the same way.

The psalm ends with the path of life: “in your presence there is fullness of joy; at your right hand are pleasures forevermore.” This is the believer’s hope too. Because Christ rose, we too will be raised. The presence of God is not just a duty but a joy that never ends.

STEP 5

Connection

Numbers 18:20 and Deuteronomy 10:9 say the LORD is the Levites’ inheritance. Psalm 73:25-26 also says God is my portion. Psalm 17:15 expresses the hope of beholding God. Acts 2:25-32 and 13:35-37 quote and explain verse 10. 1 Corinthians 15:20-23 says Christ is the firstfruits of the resurrection. Hebrews 12:2 says Jesus endured the cross for the joy set before him. Matthew 5:8 promises that the pure in heart will see God.

STEP 6

Application

Say “You are my Lord; I have no good apart from you” as a prayer. What other goods compete for your heart?

Thank God for the beautiful inheritance of being his child.

Meditate on verse 11. What would it mean to live today in the path of life?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God that you have no good apart from him.

Thank him for the beautiful inheritance he has given you.

Thank him that he will not abandon your soul.

ACTS 4:12

DAY 698 · WEEK 100

Psalm 110:1-7

Sit at my right hand, the exalted Christ

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 7 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 110:1-7. This is the psalm quoted more than any other in the New Testament. Peter uses it on Pentecost to prove that Jesus is exalted at God's right hand. You first met it in the Old Testament. Read it now as the psalm of the ascension.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 110 is a psalm of David about a figure he calls "my Lord." The psalm describes a king-priest, seated at God's right hand, who will rule over his enemies. David himself was not a priest, and no king of Israel was both king and priest. Jesus asked the Pharisees how the Christ could be David's son when David called him Lord (Mark 12:35-37). The answer in Acts is that Jesus, risen and ascended, is the one to whom David spoke.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD says to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool" (v. 1).
2. "The LORD sends forth from Zion your mighty scepter. Rule in the midst of your enemies!" (v. 2).
3. "Your people will offer themselves freely on the day of your power" (v. 3).
4. "The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind" (v. 4).
5. "You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek" (v. 4).
6. "The Lord is at your right hand; he will shatter kings on the day of his wrath" (v. 5).
7. "He will execute judgment among the nations" (v. 6).
8. "He will drink from the brook by the way; therefore he will lift up his head" (v. 7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a conversation in heaven: “The LORD says to my Lord.” The first LORD is Yahweh, and the second is David’s Lord, the Messiah. The Messiah is invited to sit at God’s right hand, the place of honor and authority, until all his enemies are made his footstool. In Acts 2:34-35, Peter says that David did not ascend into the heavens, but he said, “The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand.” Jesus is the Lord to whom David referred. The ascension is the fulfillment of this verse.

The King’s rule extends from Zion. The mighty scepter is sent forth, and he rules in the midst of his enemies. This describes the current age: the King reigns now, though his enemies have not yet been put under his feet. His people willingly offer themselves, “in holy garments,” like an army of volunteers on the day of his power. This describes the church.

Then comes the astonishing oath in verse 4: “You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek.” Melchizedek in Genesis 14 was both king of Salem and priest of God Most High, who blessed Abraham. In Israel, kings came from Judah and priests from Levi. This verse promises a priest-king who is outside the Levitical order and whose priesthood is eternal. The book of Hebrews makes this central: Jesus is our great high priest, not by descent from Aaron, but by the oath of God, living forever to intercede for us (Hebrews 5 to 7). The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind. His priesthood is as secure as God’s word.

The last stanza describes the judgment: he will shatter kings on the day of his wrath, execute judgment among the nations, and shatter chiefs over the wide earth. He drinks from the brook by the way and lifts up his head, a picture of a victorious warrior refreshed in the pursuit. The psalm combines the two offices that Acts presents: Jesus as king ruling from heaven and as priest interceding for his people. And the victory is certain.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 14:18-20 is Melchizedek. Hebrews 1:13, 5:6, 7:1-28, 8:1, and 10:12-13 apply the psalm to Christ. Matthew 22:41-46 records Jesus asking about David’s Lord. Acts 2:34-36 uses verse 1. Ephesians 1:20-22 says God seated Christ at his right hand. 1 Corinthians 15:25 says he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. Romans 8:34 says Christ is at the right hand of God, interceding for us. Zechariah 6:12-13 describes a priest on his throne.

STEP 6

Application

Remember that Jesus is both king and priest. Bring a need to him as King, and a failure to him as Priest.

Thank him for living forever to intercede for you.

Pray “until I make your enemies your footstool” over a difficult area of the world, and wait for him to act.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship Jesus at the Father’s right hand.
- Thank him for being a priest forever.
- Ask him to rule over your enemies, inside and out.

“And there is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved.”

ACTS 4:12

DAY 699 · WEEK 100

Acts 6:8-8:3

Stephen's sermon and martyrdom; Saul appears

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 60 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 6:8-8:3. Stephen, one of the seven, is full of grace and power. He is arrested, gives a long speech to the council, and is stoned. A young man named Saul is introduced. Read Stephen's last words slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Stephen, who was chosen to serve tables, also does signs and speaks with wisdom. Members of a synagogue argue with him and cannot withstand the Spirit by whom he spoke. They bring false witnesses who say he spoke against the temple and the law. His speech summarizes Israel's history from Abraham to Solomon and ends with an accusation. His death begins a persecution that scatters the church and sets the stage for the gospel's spread.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And Stephen, full of grace and power, was doing great wonders and signs among the people" (6:8).
2. "And gazing at him, all who sat in the council saw that his face was like the face of an angel" (6:15).
3. "The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia" (7:2).
4. "You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you always resist the Holy Spirit" (7:51).
5. "But he, full of the Holy Spirit, gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God" (7:55).
6. "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit" (7:59).

7. “Lord, do not hold this sin against them” (7:60).
8. “And there arose on that day a great persecution against the church in Jerusalem” (8:1).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Stephen is accused of speaking blasphemous words against Moses and God. He is brought before the council, and his face looks like an angel’s. When the high priest asks if these things are so, Stephen gives a long speech. It is not a defense but a sermon, retelling the history of Israel. His point is that God has never been confined to one place. The God of glory appeared to Abraham in Mesopotamia, before there was a land or a temple. He was with Joseph in Egypt, with Moses in Midian and at Sinai. The tabernacle was a tent that moved, and Solomon built the temple, “yet the Most High does not dwell in houses made by hands.” At each stage, Israel resisted: Joseph’s brothers sold him, Israel rejected Moses, and they made a golden calf.

Then he turns the history on his hearers. “You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you always resist the Holy Spirit. As your fathers did, so do you. Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? They killed those who announced beforehand the coming of the Righteous One, whom you have now betrayed and murdered.” They are enraged.

Stephen, full of the Holy Spirit, looks into heaven and sees the glory of God and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. Everywhere else in the New Testament, Jesus is seated at the Father’s right hand. Here he stands, as if rising to receive his first martyr or to testify on his behalf. The crowd covers their ears, rushes him, drags him out of the city, and stones him. The witnesses lay their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul.

Stephen’s death echoes Jesus’ death. He prays, “Lord Jesus, receive my spirit,” and “Lord, do not hold this sin against them.” He kneels and dies, and Luke says he “fell asleep.” Saul approved of his execution. A great persecution arises, and the church is scattered throughout Judea and Samaria, except the apostles. Saul ravages the church, entering house after house. But as Jesus said in Acts 1:8, the gospel is about to move beyond Jerusalem. The scattering of the church is the way the word of God spreads.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 12 to 50, Exodus, and 1 Kings 6 and 8 are the history Stephen retells. Isaiah 66:1-2 is quoted in the speech. Jeremiah 7:1-15 warned about trusting in the temple. Deuteronomy 10:16 and Jeremiah 9:26 speak of uncircumcised hearts. Luke 23:34 and 23:46 are Jesus’ similar prayers. Matthew 5:10-12 blesses the persecuted. Philippians 1:29 says we are given the privilege of suffering for his sake. Acts 22:20 has Paul recalling Stephen's death.

STEP 6

Application

Notice how Stephen was able to forgive. Pray for someone who has harmed you.

Ask what "houses made by hands" you trust in: a building, a tradition, a routine? Remember that God goes with his people.

Pray for Christians who are persecuted today by name if you know them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to fill you with the Holy Spirit.
- Ask him for courage, like Stephen's, to look to heaven.
- Pray for those who oppose you, as Stephen did.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Acts 4:12 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And there is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved."

ACTS 4:12

REST

Meditation

Peter says this to the Jewish council that condemned Jesus. Hours earlier, he had been arrested, and now he stands before the same rulers, filled with the Holy Spirit.

"And there is salvation in no one else." This is a bold and exclusive claim. Peter does not say Jesus is one of many ways. He says salvation is found in him alone. This was not popular in the first century, and it is not popular now. But it is the heart of the gospel.

"For there is no other name under heaven." The name stands for the person, his authority and character. There is no other person anywhere who can do what Jesus does.

"Given among men." Salvation is a gift. God gave this name. We did not discover it by our efforts.

"By which we must be saved." The word "must" shows the necessity. We need saving. We cannot save ourselves. And there is a name by which we can be saved.

This verse is a comfort and a commission. It comforts because the way to God is open in Jesus. It commissions because if there is no other name, then people need to hear it.

When you are tempted to doubt that Jesus is enough, or when you are unsure about speaking of him, say this verse.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read Peter's healing at the Beautiful Gate, his bold preaching, and his words to the council: "There is salvation in no other name." You saw the early church share its possessions, and you saw the hypocrisy of Ananias and Sapphira. You watched seven men be chosen to serve. Three psalms about the exalted Christ framed Peter's sermons: Psalm 2, in which the LORD sets his King on Zion and the nations rage in vain; Psalm 16, in which God does not abandon his holy one to Sheol; and Psalm 110, in which the Lord sits at God's right hand as priest and king. Finally, you saw Stephen preach to the council, see Jesus standing in heaven, and forgive his murderers as he died. A young man named Saul stood by. A great persecution scattered the church.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Peter and John said, "We cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard." What have you seen and heard of Jesus that you cannot keep to yourself?

Stephen forgave those who killed him, as Jesus did. Who is one person you need to forgive, and what would it take to pray for them?

The psalms of the week show Christ reigning at God's right hand. How does knowing that he is on the throne give you courage in the thing you fear most?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that there is salvation in no other name, and that you have found it.

Ask him for the boldness of Peter.

Rest in him.

DAY 701 · WEEK 101

Acts 8:4-40

Philip; the Samaritans; Simon the magician; the Ethiopian

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 37 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 8:4-40. Persecution scatters the believers and Philip takes the gospel to Samaria and then to an Ethiopian official. Notice how the gospel crosses ethnic and social lines, and how Philip uses Isaiah 53.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The persecution that began with Stephen scatters the church, and wherever they go, they preach. Philip, one of the seven, goes to Samaria, a region of mixed descent despised by Jews. This fulfills the second step of Acts 1:8. Then an angel sends him on a desert road, where he meets an Ethiopian court official, the first African convert recorded in Acts.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Now those who were scattered went about preaching the word” (8:4).
2. “Philip went down to the city of Samaria and proclaimed to them the Christ” (8:5).
3. “Then they laid their hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit” (8:17).
4. “May your silver perish with you, because you thought you could obtain the gift of God with money!” (8:20).
5. “So Philip ran to him and heard him reading Isaiah the prophet and asked, Do you understand what you are reading?” (8:30).
6. “Then Philip opened his mouth, and beginning with this Scripture he told him the good news about Jesus” (8:35).
7. “And when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord carried Philip away, and the eunuch saw him no more, and went on his way rejoicing” (8:39).

8 “So there was much joy in that city” (8:8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Persecution scatters the church, but the believers go about preaching the word. What the enemy meant for harm, God used to spread the gospel. Philip goes to Samaria and proclaims Christ. The crowds pay attention as they see signs: unclean spirits come out, and the paralyzed and lame are healed. “So there was much joy in that city.” The long hostility between Jews and Samaritans begins to heal in Christ.

A man named Simon had amazed the Samaritans with magic, claiming to be someone great. He believes and is baptized, but later, when he sees the Spirit given through the laying on of hands by Peter and John, he offers money for the power. Peter replies sharply: “Your heart is not right before God. Repent.” Christians differ on whether Simon’s faith was genuine. The main lesson is that the gift of God cannot be bought, and the heart must be right.

The apostles Peter and John come from Jerusalem to the Samaritans, who had been baptized but had not yet received the Spirit. When they lay hands on them, the Spirit comes. This is an unusual sequence, and interpreters explain it as a special moment as the gospel crossed a boundary: the Samaritans received the Spirit in the presence of the apostles, so that the Jerusalem church would recognize them as full members. It is not the usual pattern, where the Spirit comes with faith (Romans 8:9).

An angel directs Philip to a desert road. He meets an Ethiopian court official, treasurer of the queen, who has been to Jerusalem to worship and is returning in his chariot, reading Isaiah 53. Philip asks, “Do you understand what you are reading?” “How can I, unless someone guides me?” The passage is the suffering servant, led like a sheep to the slaughter. “About whom does the prophet say this?” Philip begins with this Scripture and tells him the good news about Jesus. The man asks to be baptized in some water they pass. After the baptism, the Spirit takes Philip away, and the eunuch goes on his way rejoicing. Tradition holds that he carried the gospel to Africa.

The gospel is moving. It reached Samaritans, who were half-Jewish, and now an African who was excluded from the temple assembly under the law (Deuteronomy 23:1) but who is welcomed in Christ, as Isaiah 56:3-5 promised.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 53:7-8 is the passage the Ethiopian was reading. Isaiah 56:3-5 promises a place for eunuchs in God’s house. Psalm 68:31 says Cush will stretch out its hands to God. John 4:1-42 shows Jesus ministering in Samaria. Luke 9:51-56 shows earlier Samaritan hostility. 1 Peter 1:10-12 says the prophets searched for the sufferings of Christ. Luke 24:27 and 24:45 show Jesus opening the Scriptures. Romans 10:14-15 says how can they hear without someone preaching.

STEP 6

Application

Ask a friend about what they are reading, and be ready like Philip to explain from Scripture.

Notice whom your culture excludes. How could you bring the gospel to them?

Thank God that persecution cannot stop his word.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for using hard things to spread his word.
- Ask him to make you willing to go where he sends.
- Ask him to open your eyes to someone who is seeking.

ACTS 10:43

DAY 702 · WEEK 101

Acts 9:1-43

Saul's conversion; Peter's miracles

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 43 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 9:1-43. Saul meets the risen Christ on the Damascus road, is converted, and begins to preach. Peter heals Aeneas and raises Tabitha. Notice how Jesus identifies himself with his people.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Saul of Tarsus, a Pharisee trained under Gamaliel, was the leading persecutor of the church. He obtained letters from the high priest to arrest believers in Damascus. This is the pivotal conversion in Acts. Luke tells it here, and Paul tells it again in chapters 22 and 26. It changed the history of the church. The persecutor became the apostle to the Gentiles.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "But Saul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest" (9:1).
2. "Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?" (9:4).
3. "Who are you, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting" (9:5).
4. "Go, for he is a chosen instrument of mine to carry my name before the Gentiles and kings and the children of Israel" (9:15).
5. "For I will show him how much he must suffer for the sake of my name" (9:16).
6. "And immediately he proclaimed Jesus in the synagogues, saying, He is the Son of God" (9:20).
7. "So the church throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria had peace and was being built up" (9:31).

8 “Tabitha, arise” (9:40).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Saul is on the road to Damascus when a light from heaven flashes around him. He falls to the ground and hears a voice: “Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?” Notice that Jesus says “me.” To persecute the church is to persecute Christ. The church is united to him as a body to its head. “Who are you, Lord?” “I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting.” Saul has been convinced that Jesus was a blasphemer who died under God’s curse. Now he meets him, glorified.

Saul is blind and led by the hand into Damascus. For three days he neither eats nor drinks. A disciple named Ananias is told in a vision to go to him. Ananias protests: this man has done great harm to your saints. But the Lord says, “Go, for he is a chosen instrument of mine to carry my name before the Gentiles and kings and the children of Israel. For I will show him how much he must suffer for the sake of my name.” Ananias goes, lays hands on him, and calls him “Brother Saul.” Something like scales fall from his eyes, and he is baptized.

His conversion is the work of sovereign grace. He was not seeking Christ. He was breathing threats. Jesus found him. And his call was clear from the start: to carry Christ’s name to the Gentiles. Immediately he proclaims Jesus in the synagogues: “He is the Son of God.” The people are amazed. “Is this not the man who made havoc in Jerusalem?” He baffles the Jews by proving that Jesus is the Christ. The Jews plot to kill him, and the disciples let him down over the wall in a basket.

In Jerusalem, the disciples are afraid of him, but Barnabas takes him and brings him to the apostles. Barnabas, the encourager, is vital here. Luke notes that the church throughout Judea, Galilee, and Samaria had peace, was built up, and multiplied.

Peter heals Aeneas, a paralytic in Lydda, and raises Tabitha (Dorcas), a woman known for good works, in Joppa. Many believe. Peter stays in Joppa with Simon, a tanner, a detail that prepares for the next chapter, because tanners were ceremonially unclean.

STEP 5

Connection

Galatians 1:11-24 is Paul’s own account of his conversion. Philippians 3:4-11 tells how he counted all things as loss. 1 Timothy 1:12-16 says Christ came to save sinners, of whom Paul is the foremost. Ephesians 5:30 says we are members of his body. Matthew 25:40 and 25:45 speak of what is done to the least of these. 2 Corinthians 11:23-33 recounts his sufferings, including the basket. Romans 15:15-21 shows his Gentile mission.

STEP 6

Application

Remember your own conversion, however quiet. Write down how Christ found you.

Be an Ananias to someone who seems beyond reach. Is there someone you've written off?

Be a Barnabas: look for someone to encourage and bring into the fellowship.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for finding you, like Saul on the road.

Thank him for being one with his people.

Ask him to use you as he used Saul.

ACTS 10:43

DAY 703 · WEEK 101

Acts 10:1-11:30

Cornelius, the Gentiles receive the Spirit

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 78 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 10:1-11:30. God sends Peter to the household of Cornelius, a Roman centurion, and the Holy Spirit falls on Gentiles. Peter defends this in Jerusalem, and the church at Antioch is born. This is the hinge of Acts.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Cornelius, a centurion in Caesarea, is a God-fearer who prays and gives alms. Peter is in Joppa, hungry, praying on a rooftop. God arranges both visions to bring them together. For a Jew to enter a Gentile house was against custom, and it was a major step. The conversion of Cornelius opens the door for Gentiles to enter the church without becoming Jews first.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "A devout man who feared God with all his household, gave alms generously to the people, and prayed continually to God" (10:2).
2. "What God has made clean, do not call common" (10:15).
3. "Truly I understand that God shows no partiality, but in every nation anyone who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him" (10:34).
4. "To him all the prophets bear witness that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name" (10:43).
5. "While Peter was still saying these things, the Holy Spirit fell on all who heard the word" (10:44).
6. "Then to the Gentiles also God has granted repentance that leads to life" (11:18).

7. “When he came and saw the grace of God, he was glad, and he exhorted them all to remain faithful to the Lord with steadfast purpose” (11:23).

8. “And in Antioch the disciples were first called Christians” (11:26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Peter has a vision of a sheet lowered from heaven filled with animals, clean and unclean. A voice says, “Rise, Peter; kill and eat.” Peter objects: “I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean.” The voice replies, “What God has made clean, do not call common.” This happens three times. While Peter wonders about the vision, the men from Cornelius arrive. The Spirit tells Peter to go with them. He realizes that the vision was not just about food but about people. “God has shown me that I should not call any person common or unclean.”

At Cornelius’s house, a crowd has gathered. Peter says, “Truly I understand that God shows no partiality, but in every nation anyone who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him.” He then preaches the gospel: Jesus of Nazareth, anointed with the Holy Spirit and with power, went about doing good, was killed by hanging on a tree, and raised on the third day. “To him all the prophets bear witness that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name.” Notice: forgiveness is received through faith in him. While Peter is still speaking, the Holy Spirit falls on all who hear. The Jewish believers with Peter are amazed that the gift of the Holy Spirit has been poured out on Gentiles, for they hear them speaking in tongues and extolling God. Peter asks, “Can anyone withhold water for baptizing these people who have received the Holy Spirit just as we have?” They are baptized.

When Peter returns to Jerusalem, believers criticize him: “You went to uncircumcised men and ate with them.” Peter explains step by step. “If then God gave the same gift to them as he gave to us when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I that I could stand in God’s way?” They fall silent and glorify God: “Then to the Gentiles also God has granted repentance that leads to life.”

Meanwhile, those scattered after Stephen’s death have reached Antioch, where some preached to Greeks as well, and many believed. The Jerusalem church sends Barnabas, who sees the grace of God and rejoices, then fetches Saul. For a year they teach a great company, “and in Antioch the disciples were first called Christians.” The church in Antioch will become the base for the first missionary journey.

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 11 is the food laws. Genesis 12:3 promised blessing to all nations through Abraham. Isaiah 49:6 is the light to the Gentiles. Deuteronomy 10:17 says God is not partial. Ephesians 2:11-22 describes the Gentiles made near. Galatians 2:11-14 shows Peter struggling again with table fellowship. Romans 2:11 and 3:29-30 say God is the God of Gentiles as well. Mark 7:19 says Jesus declared all foods clean.

STEP 6

Application

Ask who you have been treating as “common or unclean,” and ask God to change your view.

Invite someone from a different background to share a meal with you this week.

Remember that you are among the Gentiles to whom God granted repentance that leads to life.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he shows no partiality.

Thank him for sending the gospel to you.

Ask him to forgive where you have shown partiality.

ACTS 10:43

DAY 704 · WEEK 101

Acts 12:1-13:52

Peter freed; the first missionary journey begins

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 77 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 12:1-13:52. James is killed, Peter is freed from prison, Herod dies, and the Holy Spirit sends out Barnabas and Saul on the first missionary journey. Paul preaches in Pisidian Antioch. Notice the role of prayer and the Spirit in every stage.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Persecution intensifies under King Herod Agrippa I. He kills James the brother of John and arrests Peter. Then the scene moves to Antioch, where the church worships and fasts. What follows is a new stage in Acts: the church deliberately sends missionaries to the Gentile world. From here on, the focus shifts from Peter to Paul, and the geography widens.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "So Peter was kept in prison, but earnest prayer for him was made to God by the church" (12:5).
2. "And the angel struck Peter on the side and woke him, saying, Get up quickly" (12:7).
3. "But the word of God increased and multiplied" (12:24).
4. "While they were worshiping the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them" (13:2).
5. "And by him everyone who believes is freed from everything from which you could not be freed by the law of Moses" (13:39).
6. "For so the Lord has commanded us, saying, I have made you a light for the Gentiles, that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth" (13:47).

7. “And when the Gentiles heard this, they began rejoicing and glorifying the word of the Lord, and as many as were appointed to eternal life believed” (13:48).

8. “And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit” (13:52).

STEP 4

Interpretation

James is executed with the sword, and Herod, seeing that it pleases the Jews, arrests Peter. He plans to bring him out after Passover. “So Peter was kept in prison, but earnest prayer for him was made to God by the church.” The night before the trial, Peter is sleeping between two soldiers, chained. An angel wakes him, the chains fall off, and the iron gate opens by itself. Peter thinks it is a vision until he is in the street. At the house of Mary, the mother of John Mark, the church is praying, and when Rhoda announces that Peter is at the door, they say, “You are out of your mind!” Their prayers were answered, and they could hardly believe it. Herod later gives a speech, the crowd cries, “The voice of a god, and not of a man!” and an angel strikes him down because he did not give God the glory. “But the word of God increased and multiplied.” Kings fall, and the word advances.

In Antioch, the church has prophets and teachers, including Barnabas and Saul. While they are worshiping and fasting, the Holy Spirit says, “Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them.” After fasting and prayer, they lay hands on them and send them. They sail to Cyprus, where Saul, who is now called Paul, confronts a magician and the proconsul Sergius Paulus believes. Then they go to Pisidian Antioch, where Paul preaches in the synagogue. His sermon moves from Israel’s history to David and then to Jesus, the Savior raised from the dead. “Let it be known to you therefore, brothers, that through this man forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you, and by him everyone who believes is freed from everything from which you could not be freed by the law of Moses.” This is justification by faith in Christ.

The next Sabbath, almost the whole city gathers. The Jews are jealous and contradict Paul. Paul and Barnabas say boldly, “It was necessary that the word of God be spoken first to you. Since you thrust it aside, behold, we are turning to the Gentiles.” They cite Isaiah 49:6, “I have made you a light for the Gentiles.” The Gentiles rejoice, and “as many as were appointed to eternal life believed.” God’s sovereign choice and the human response are held together. The word spreads throughout the region. The Jews stir up persecution and drive them out, but the disciples are “filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.”

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 49:6 is the commission quoted in 13:47. Psalm 2:7, Isaiah 55:3, and Psalm 16:10 are quoted in Paul's sermon in 13:33-35. Romans 3:21-28 and Galatians 2:16 develop justification by faith. Genesis 12:3 shows the Abrahamic promise at work. Romans 9 to 11 discusses God's election and Israel. Ephesians 1:4-5 speaks of being chosen. 2 Corinthians 12:10 says that when I am weak, then I am strong. Psalm 34:7 says the angel of the LORD encamps around those who fear him.

STEP 6

Application

Pray earnestly for someone in danger or need, and expect God to answer, even if your faith is small.

Ask what the Spirit might be setting you apart for. Fast and pray with your church.

Remember that forgiveness is received by faith, not by law.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for answering the church's prayers.
- Ask him to set apart workers for his harvest.
- Ask him to make you willing to go or to send.

ACTS 10:43

DAY 705 · WEEK 101

Psalm 67

May God be gracious, all the nations praise him

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 7 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 67. It is a short prayer that God would bless his people so that all nations would know and praise him. It reads like the first missionary journey of Acts 13 turned into song.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 67 begins with the priestly blessing of Numbers 6:24-26 ("the LORD bless you and keep you; the LORD make his face to shine upon you"), but turns it outward. The blessing is not an end in itself. Israel is blessed so that the nations may be blessed. That is the Abrahamic promise at work, which is the reason why Acts 13 quotes Isaiah 49:6. Reading it as Paul and Barnabas set out on their journey makes the missions theme clear.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "May God be gracious to us and bless us and make his face to shine upon us" (v. 1).
2. "That your way may be known on earth" (v. 2).
3. "Your saving power among all nations" (v. 2).
4. "Let the peoples praise you, O God; let all the peoples praise you!" (v. 3).
5. "Let the nations be glad and sing for joy" (v. 4).
6. "For you judge the peoples with equity and guide the nations upon earth" (v. 4).
7. "The earth has yielded its increase; God, our God, has blessed us" (v. 6).
8. "God shall bless us; let all the ends of the earth fear him!" (v. 7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts with a prayer for blessing: “May God be gracious to us and bless us and make his face to shine upon us.” This is borrowed from the benediction that Aaron and his sons spoke over Israel. But the next word is “that.” The blessing has a purpose: “that your way may be known on earth, your saving power among all nations.” Israel asks for God’s favor, not for its own sake, but so that the whole world may see and know the LORD.

The refrain follows: “Let the peoples praise you, O God; let all the peoples praise you!” It appears twice, in verses 3 and 5, as the center of the psalm. The goal of all God’s work is that the nations praise him. In between, the psalm says why the nations can be glad: God judges the peoples with equity and guides the nations upon earth. His rule is just and good. The nations are not simply objects of judgment but people whom God guides. This is a vision of a world finally under the good rule of the true God.

Then the psalm returns to blessing: “The earth has yielded its increase; God, our God, has blessed us. God shall bless us; let all the ends of the earth fear him!” The harvest is the sign of God’s blessing, and it becomes a motive for missions. The psalm ends with the whole world fearing the LORD.

This is the pattern of the Abrahamic covenant: “I will bless you… so that you will be a blessing… and in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed.” It is the pattern of Acts: the apostles are sent to the nations. And it is the church’s prayer today. We pray for God to bless us, not for comfort alone, but so that we can be used to bless others and bring praise to his name. The final picture, in Revelation 7:9, is of people from every nation, tribe, people, and language praising God. Psalm 67 is the prayer that leads there.

STEP 5

Connection

Numbers 6:22-27 is the priestly blessing. Genesis 12:1-3 is the Abrahamic promise. Isaiah 49:6 and 2:2-4 speak of the nations coming to the LORD. Psalm 117 and 96 also call the nations to praise. Matthew 28:19-20 gives the Great Commission. Acts 13:47 quotes Isaiah 49:6. Romans 15:9-12 collects Old Testament texts on the Gentiles praising God. Revelation 7:9-10 pictures the fulfillment.

STEP 6

Application

Pray this psalm for your church: “Bless us so that your way may be known on earth.”

Pray for one unreached people group by name. Look up a missionary or agency your church supports.

Ask how God's blessings to you can overflow to others.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to be gracious to you and make his face shine on you.
- Ask him to let his way be known on earth.
- Pray for a nation or people group to know him.

ACTS 10:43

DAY 706 · WEEK 101

Psalm 87

Zion as mother of all peoples

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 7 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 87. This short psalm imagines Zion as the mother city of all peoples, including Israel's historic enemies. Read slowly. It is a puzzling psalm that becomes clear in light of Acts.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 87 is a song of the sons of Korah, a hymn of Zion. It is brief and surprising. God registers people from Egypt (Rahab), Babylon, Philistia, Tyre, and Cush as born in Zion. These are Israel's old enemies, and now they are citizens of the city of God. This is the Old Testament's most vivid picture of the nations coming in.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "On the holy mount stands the city he founded" (v. 1).
2. "The LORD loves the gates of Zion more than all the dwelling places of Jacob" (v. 2).
3. "Glorious things of you are spoken, O city of God" (v. 3).
4. "Among those who know me I mention Rahab and Babylon" (v. 4).
5. "Behold, Philistia and Tyre, with Cush" (v. 4).
6. "And of Zion it shall be said, This one and that one were born in her; for the Most High himself will establish her" (v. 5).
7. "The LORD records, as he registers the peoples, This one was born there" (v. 6).
8. "Singers and dancers alike say, All my springs are in you" (v. 7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with the city God founded on the holy mount. The LORD loves the gates of Zion more than all the other dwelling places of Jacob. Glorious things are spoken of her. And then the surprising list begins. God says, “Among those who know me I mention Rahab and Babylon.” Rahab is a poetic name for Egypt. These were the oppressors in Israel’s story, the powers that enslaved and exiled. And Philistia, Tyre, and Cush (Ethiopia) are also named. They are mentioned among those who know the LORD.

Verse 4 ends: “This one was born there.” And verse 5 explains: “Of Zion it shall be said, This one and that one were born in her.” Foreigners are said to be born in Zion. The citizens of Zion include people from every nation. The LORD himself keeps the register: “The LORD records, as he registers the peoples, This one was born there.” When the census is read, the nations are on the list.

This is the idea of the new birth applied to peoples. The New Testament says that believers are born from above (John 3:3). Paul says in Galatians 4:26 that the Jerusalem above is free, and she is our mother. Hebrews 12:22 says we have come to Mount Zion, to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem. Ephesians 2:19 says Gentiles are no longer strangers and aliens but fellow citizens with the saints and members of the household of God.

This is what Acts is unfolding. An Ethiopian official from Cush believes through Philip. Cornelius, a Roman, receives the Spirit. Antioch becomes a church of Jews and Greeks. Psalm 87 pictures the endpoint, in which former enemies sing together and say, “All my springs are in you.” All the sources of joy and life are found in Zion, and Christ is the temple and the center. The gospel does not abolish the identity of nations but brings them into one family, where God registers each as born there.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 19:19-25 pictures Egypt and Assyria joined with Israel as a blessing. Isaiah 2:2-4 and 56:6-8 describe the nations coming to Zion. Galatians 4:26 speaks of the Jerusalem above as our mother. Hebrews 12:22-24 says we have come to Zion. Ephesians 2:11-22 says Gentiles are fellow citizens. Philippians 3:20 says our citizenship is in heaven. Revelation 21:24-26 pictures the nations bringing their glory into the city.

STEP 6

Application

Imagine a person from a nation or group you struggle with, and picture them registered as born in Zion with you.

Thank God for the family of the church, which includes people unlike you.

Pray that old enmities in your family or church would be healed in Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for registering people from every nation in his city.

Ask him to make you welcoming.

Thank him that you are born there.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"To him all the prophets bear witness that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name."

ACTS 10:43

REST

Meditation

Peter says this in the house of Cornelius, a Roman, in the first sermon to the Gentiles. In one verse, he sums up the gospel.

"To him all the prophets bear witness." The Old Testament is a witness to Jesus. Moses, David, Isaiah, and the others all point to him. This is why we read the whole Bible as one story.

"That everyone who believes in him." Notice the word "everyone." The offer is universal, to Jew and Gentile, to the devout and the sinner. The one condition is belief: trust in Jesus.

"Receives forgiveness of sins." Forgiveness is the great need and the great gift. It is received, not earned. The word "receives" means we hold out empty hands.

"Through his name." Forgiveness comes through his name, that is, through who he is and what he has done. We do not come in our own name or by our own merit.

When you wonder whether the gospel is really for you, or whether you are too far from God, say this verse. It was spoken to a Gentile soldier, and it is for everyone who believes.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week the gospel moved out from Jerusalem. After Stephen's death, the church was scattered, and Philip took the word to Samaria and met an Ethiopian official reading Isaiah 53. You saw the risen Jesus stop Saul on the road to Damascus and ask, "Why are you persecuting me?" You watched God show Peter in a vision that he should not call any person common or unclean, and then pour out the Holy Spirit on Cornelius's Gentile household. The Antioch church, full of Jews and Greeks, set apart Barnabas and Saul, and Paul preached to the Gentiles in Pisidian Antioch, citing Isaiah 49:6. Psalm 67 and Psalm 87 gave you songs for the nations: the blessing that spills over to the world and the city where former enemies are registered as born in Zion.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus asked Saul, "Why are you persecuting me?" What does it mean that Christ identifies so closely with his people?

God told Peter, "What God has made clean, do not call common." Who do you tend to see as outside the reach of the gospel, and how could God change that?

Psalm 67 prays for God's blessing so that all nations will praise him. How does that change how you think about your own blessings?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that everyone who believes in Jesus receives forgiveness.

Thank him for sending his word to the nations.

Rest in his forgiveness.

DAY 708 · WEEK 102

Psalm 117

Praise the LORD, all nations, the mission in two verses

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 2 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 117. It has only two verses. You met it earlier, in the unit on Luke. Read it now as the whole mission of Acts in miniature: the call to the nations and the reason.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 117 is the shortest psalm and the shortest chapter in the Bible. Paul quotes it in Romans 15:11 to show that the Gentiles were always meant to glorify God. Placed here, in the middle of the first missionary journey, it is a summary of what Paul and Barnabas are doing: calling all nations to praise the LORD because of his steadfast love and faithfulness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Praise the LORD, all nations!” (v. 1).
2. “Extol him, all peoples!” (v. 1).
3. “For great is his steadfast love” (v. 2).
4. “Toward us” (v. 2).
5. “The faithfulness of the LORD” (v. 2).
6. “Endures forever” (v. 2).
7. “Praise the LORD!” (v. 2).
8. “All peoples” (v. 1).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In two verses, the psalm gives the mission's command and its motive. The command is to praise: "Praise the LORD, all nations! Extol him, all peoples!" The scope is every nation and every people. The motive is in verse 2: "For great is his steadfast love toward us, and the faithfulness of the LORD endures forever."

Notice the logic. The nations are to praise because of God's love "toward us," toward Israel. The LORD's covenant faithfulness to one people is the reason for the whole world to worship. In Acts, this is the heart of the mission. The God who kept his promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to David, and to Israel in sending Jesus, is the God who is calling the nations. Paul preaches in Pisidian Antioch that God has fulfilled the promise made to the fathers. The Gentiles rejoice and glorify the word of the Lord. They are the "all peoples" called to praise.

Look at Paul's use in Romans 15: Christ became a servant to the circumcised to show God's truthfulness, in order to confirm the promises given to the patriarchs, and in order that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy. Then Paul quotes a chain of passages, including this psalm: "Praise the Lord, all nations, and let all the peoples extol him." The psalmist wrote this long before, and Paul says it is being fulfilled.

The psalm also gives the mission its fuel. Missionaries do not go out because of a program but because the LORD is worthy of praise from every people. Missions exists because worship doesn't yet. The great goal is that all nations praise him, and the great ground is his steadfast love and faithfulness.

The psalm ends as it began, with "Praise the LORD!" We can do the same, grateful that his love is great toward us, and his faithfulness endures forever.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 15:8-12 quotes this psalm. Psalm 67, 96, 98, and 100 are similar missionary psalms. Genesis 12:3 and 22:18 are the Abrahamic promise. Isaiah 49:6 and 56:7 point to the nations coming. Acts 13:47-48 shows Gentiles glorifying the word of the Lord. Revelation 7:9-10 pictures the fulfillment.

STEP 6

Application

Recite the psalm aloud each morning this week. It takes ten seconds.

Name a nation or people group and pray the psalm over them.

Thank God that you belong to "all nations" because of his steadfast love.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise the LORD with all the nations.

Thank him for his great steadfast love toward us.

Pray for his word to reach someone far away.

ACTS 16:31

DAY 709 · WEEK 102

Acts 14:1-28

The first journey concludes; Lystra and Derbe

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 28 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 14:1-28. Paul and Barnabas preach in Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe. They heal a man, are mistaken for gods, and Paul is stoned. They return, strengthening the churches and appointing elders. Read Paul's speech at Lystra (vv. 15 to 17) carefully.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The first missionary journey continues from Pisidian Antioch to Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe, cities in what is now central Turkey. The pattern is that Paul first speaks in the synagogue, the Gentiles respond, and the Jews stir up opposition. At Lystra there is no synagogue, and the population is pagan, so Paul's message begins with God as Creator, a template for preaching to those with no biblical background.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "So they remained for a long time, speaking boldly for the Lord, who bore witness to the word of his grace" (14:3).
2. "The gods have come down to us in the likeness of men!" (14:11).
3. "We also are men, of like nature with you, and we bring you good news, that you should turn from these vain things to a living God, who made the heaven and the earth and the sea and all that is in them" (14:15).
4. "Yet he did not leave himself without witness, for he did good by giving you rains from heaven and fruitful seasons, satisfying your hearts with food and gladness" (14:17).
5. "They stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city, supposing that he was dead" (14:19).
6. "Through many tribulations we must enter the kingdom of God" (14:22).

7. “And when they had appointed elders for them in every church, with prayer and fasting they committed them to the Lord in whom they had believed” (14:23).

8. “They declared all that God had done with them, and how he had opened a door of faith to the Gentiles” (14:27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Iconium, a great number of Jews and Greeks believe, but unbelieving Jews stir up the Gentiles. Paul and Barnabas stay a long time, speaking boldly, with signs and wonders, and then flee when a plot to stone them arises.

At Lystra, Paul sees a man crippled from birth who has faith to be made well, and says, “Stand upright on your feet.” The man leaps up and walks. The crowd shouts in their local language, “The gods have come down to us in the likeness of men!” They call Barnabas Zeus and Paul Hermes, and the priest of Zeus brings oxen and garlands to offer sacrifice. Paul and Barnabas tear their garments and rush into the crowd: “Men, why are you doing these things? We also are men, of like nature with you.” Their message is not about themselves but about the living God: “turn from these vain things to a living God, who made the heaven and the earth and the sea.” Though in past generations God allowed all the nations to walk in their own ways, he has not left himself without witness, giving rain and fruitful seasons, satisfying hearts with food and gladness. This is the first example in Acts of preaching to people with no Scriptural background. Paul starts with creation, God’s goodness, and the folly of idolatry, and only later comes to Christ. Even so, they can scarcely restrain the people from sacrificing.

Then Jews arrive from Antioch and Iconium, win over the crowds, and stone Paul and drag him out of the city, thinking him dead. The people who wanted to worship him now try to kill him. But as the disciples gather around him, he gets up and goes back into the city. The next day he leaves for Derbe.

They return the way they came, strengthening the disciples and encouraging them to continue in the faith: “Through many tribulations we must enter the kingdom of God.” They appoint elders in every church, with prayer and fasting. Back in Antioch, they report “all that God had done with them, and how he had opened a door of faith to the Gentiles.” It is God who opens the door and God who does the work.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1 and Psalm 146:6 describe God as the maker of heaven and earth. Psalm 145:15-16 says he satisfies the desire of every living thing. Romans 1:18-23 and 2:14-15 describe general revelation. Acts 17:22-31 is Paul's similar speech in Athens. 2 Corinthians 11:25 recalls the stoning. 2 Timothy 3:11 mentions his sufferings at Lystra. Titus 1:5 shows Titus appointing elders. John 16:33 says in the world you will have tribulation.

STEP 6

Application

Practice explaining the gospel to someone with no Christian background, starting with creation.

Remember that tribulation is not a sign you're off track. It is part of the road to the kingdom.

Thank God for the elders in your church, and pray for them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for his goodness in rain, seasons, food, and gladness.

Ask him to keep you from taking his glory.

Ask him to strengthen believers who face hardship.

ACTS 16:31

DAY 710 · WEEK 102

Acts 15:1-41

The Jerusalem Council; the second journey begins

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 41 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 15:1-41. Some teach that Gentiles must be circumcised to be saved. The apostles and elders meet in Jerusalem to decide. Notice how they reason, who speaks, and what they conclude. Then Paul and Barnabas part ways.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the central chapter of Acts and arguably the most important meeting in the early church. The question is whether Gentile believers must become Jews, keeping the law of Moses, to be saved. If the answer were yes, the gospel would become another form of Judaism. Around AD 49, the apostles and elders meet in Jerusalem. The decision shapes the whole Christian faith.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “But some men came down from Judea and were teaching the brothers, Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved” (15:1).
2. “And God, who knows the heart, bore witness to them, by giving them the Holy Spirit just as he did to us” (15:8).
3. “Now therefore why are you putting God to the test by placing a yoke on the neck of the disciples that neither our fathers nor we have been able to bear?” (15:10).
4. “But we believe that we will be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they will” (15:11).
5. “After this I will return, and I will rebuild the tent of David that has fallen” (15:16).

6. “Therefore my judgment is that we should not trouble those of the Gentiles who turn to God” (15:19).

7. “For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay on you no greater burden than these requirements” (15:28).

8. “And there arose a sharp disagreement, so that they separated from each other” (15:39).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The trouble starts in Antioch when men from Judea teach that circumcision is necessary for salvation. Paul and Barnabas dispute with them, and the church sends them to Jerusalem to settle the matter. There they report how God had opened a door to the Gentiles, but some believers who belonged to the party of the Pharisees insist that Gentiles must be circumcised and keep the law of Moses.

After much debate, Peter stands. He reminds them that God chose that Gentiles should hear the gospel from his mouth, and that God, who knows the heart, bore witness by giving the Gentiles the Holy Spirit as he did to the Jews, “having cleansed their hearts by faith.” To impose the law now would be to put God to the test with a yoke that neither they nor their fathers could bear. The conclusion is the heart of the gospel: “We believe that we will be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they will.” Jews are saved the same way as Gentiles, by grace, not by law.

Barnabas and Paul describe the signs and wonders God did among the Gentiles. Then James, the brother of Jesus, speaks. He quotes Amos 9:11-12: God will rebuild the fallen tent of David so that the rest of mankind may seek the Lord, and all the Gentiles who are called by his name. The inclusion of the Gentiles is not a departure from the Old Testament but its fulfillment. This is a key text for the progressive covenantalism you have been reading: the Davidic kingdom, restored in Christ, includes the nations. James gives his judgment: do not trouble the Gentiles who turn to God, but write to them to abstain from things polluted by idols, from sexual immorality, from what has been strangled, and from blood. These requests promoted fellowship between Jew and Gentile believers, who would share tables. The letter goes out, saying, “It has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us.” The Gentiles rejoice at its encouragement.

Chapter 15 ends with sadness. Paul proposes revisiting the churches, but Barnabas wants to take John Mark again, who had left them on the first journey. Paul refuses. There is a sharp disagreement, and they part. Barnabas takes Mark to Cyprus. Paul chooses Silas and goes through Syria and Cilicia. God uses even this to double the missionary effort. Later Paul writes that Mark is “very useful” to him (2 Timothy 4:11).

STEP 5

Connection

Amos 9:11-12 is James's text. Genesis 17 is the covenant of circumcision. Galatians 2:1-21 is Paul's account of the same events. Galatians 5:1-6 insists that circumcision no longer matters. Romans 3:28 and 4:1-12 teach justification by faith apart from works of the law. Ephesians 2:8-9 says we are saved by grace through faith. Colossians 2:11-17 shows circumcision and food laws fulfilled in Christ. 2 Timothy 4:11 mentions Mark.

STEP 6

Application

Where are you tempted to add something to grace, such as a rule, a ritual, or a performance?

Rejoice in verse 11 and say it aloud: saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus.

If you've had a sharp disagreement with a fellow believer, pray for reconciliation and for God to use it for good.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that you are saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus.

Confess where you try to add to grace.

Ask him to help you welcome others without adding burdens.

ACTS 16:31

DAY 711 · WEEK 102

Acts 16:1-40

Timothy; the Macedonian call; Lydia; the Philippian jailer

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 40 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 16:1-40. Timothy joins Paul, a vision calls them to Macedonia, Lydia believes in Philippi, and a jailer is converted after an earthquake. Notice how each conversion looks different and how each family is included.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The second missionary journey takes Paul and Silas through Asia Minor. In Lystra, they pick up Timothy, a young disciple of Jewish and Greek parentage. The Spirit forbids them to speak in Asia and Bithynia, and in a night vision, a man of Macedonia calls them to cross to Europe. The gospel reaches the continent for the first time at Philippi, a Roman colony.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Paul wanted Timothy to accompany him, and he took him and circumcised him because of the Jews who were in those places, for they all knew that his father was a Greek” (16:3).
2. “A man of Macedonia was standing there, urging him and saying, Come over to Macedonia and help us” (16:9).
3. “The Lord opened her heart to pay attention to what was said by Paul” (16:14).
4. “About midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them” (16:25).
5. “And suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken” (16:26).
6. “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?” (16:30).

7. “Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household” (16:31).

8. “He rejoiced along with his entire household that he had believed in God” (16:34).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Timothy, whose mother is a believing Jew and whose father is Greek, is well spoken of. Paul circumcises him, not because it is necessary for salvation, as Acts 15 has just settled, but to avoid hindering the gospel among Jews. This shows Paul’s flexibility on matters of culture. Titus, a Gentile, was not circumcised under pressure (Galatians 2:3). The difference is the reason: Timothy’s circumcision was a choice for mission, not a requirement for salvation.

The vision leads them to Philippi. On the Sabbath, outside the gate by the river, they find women gathered to pray. Lydia, a dealer in purple goods and a worshiper of God, listens. “The Lord opened her heart to pay attention to what was said by Paul.” Conversion is God’s work. She is baptized with her household and invites them to stay at her house.

Then a slave girl with a spirit of divination follows them, shouting. Paul commands the spirit to come out in the name of Jesus Christ. Her owners, who lost their profit, drag Paul and Silas before the magistrates. They are beaten with rods and thrown into the inner prison with their feet in stocks. At midnight they are praying and singing hymns, and the prisoners are listening. A great earthquake shakes the prison, the doors open, and everyone’s chains come loose. The jailer, thinking the prisoners have escaped, is about to kill himself. Paul cries, “Do not harm yourself, for we are all here.” The jailer trembles, falls before Paul and Silas, and asks, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?” They answer, “Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household.”

This is the clearest answer in the Bible to the question of how to be saved: believe in the Lord Jesus. Then they speak the word of the Lord to him and his household. That same night he washes their wounds and is baptized with all his family. He brings them into his house and sets food before them, “and rejoiced along with his entire household that he had believed in God.” In the morning, the magistrates send word to release them, and Paul insists on a public apology, because he is a Roman citizen. This protects the young church.

Three conversions: a wealthy businesswoman, a slave girl freed from a spirit, and a rough jailer. The gospel crosses class and gender lines.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Timothy 1:5 and 3:14-15 describe Timothy's heritage. Galatians 2:3-5 is Titus not circumcised. 1 Corinthians 9:19-23 explains Paul's flexibility for the gospel. Philippians 1:1-11 is Paul's letter to the same church. Romans 10:9-13 says if you confess with your mouth and believe in your heart, you will be saved. John 6:29 says to believe in him whom he has sent. 1 Peter 2:21-23 and 4:12-16 treat unjust suffering. Psalm 40:3 speaks of a new song.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Acts 16:31. It is the memory verse of this week.

Sing a hymn tonight even if things are hard, as Paul did in prison.

Pray for the "household" in your life, that the whole family would believe.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to open your heart and the hearts of those you love.
- Thank him for shaking prisons and setting captives free.
- Tell him what you need to be set free from.

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 17:1-18:28. Paul preaches in Thessalonica, is received nobly in Berea, speaks to the philosophers at Athens, and stays a year and a half in Corinth. Read the Areopagus speech (17:22-31) slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul and Silas travel southwest from Philippi through Amphipolis and Apollonia to Thessalonica. Opposition drives them to Berea, then Paul goes on to Athens, the intellectual capital of the Greek world. Finally, he reaches Corinth, a wealthy and immoral port city, where he stays eighteen months. Along the way he meets Priscilla and Aquila.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Explaining and proving that it was necessary for the Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead” (17:2-3).
2. “Now these Jews were more noble than those in Thessalonica; they received the word with all eagerness, examining the Scriptures daily to see if these things were so” (17:11).
3. “For as I passed along and observed the objects of your worship, I found also an altar with this inscription: To the unknown god. What therefore you worship as unknown, this I proclaim to you” (17:23).
4. “The God who made the world and everything in it, being Lord of heaven and earth, does not live in temples made by man” (17:24).
5. “In him we live and move and have our being” (17:28).

6. “Because he has fixed a day on which he will judge the world in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed; and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead” (17:31).
7. “Do not be afraid, but go on speaking and do not be silent, for I am with you” (18:9-10).
8. “They took him and explained to him the way of God more accurately” (18:26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Thessalonica, Paul reasons from the Scriptures for three Sabbaths, explaining and proving that the Christ had to suffer and rise from the dead, and that Jesus is the Christ. Some believe, including many God-fearing Greeks, but jealous Jews form a mob. The accusation is that they are “turning the world upside down” and saying there is another king, Jesus. In Berea, the Jews are more noble: they receive the word eagerly and examine the Scriptures daily to see if these things are so. This is the model for every Christian: test what you hear against the Bible.

At Athens, Paul is provoked by a city full of idols. He argues in the synagogue and the marketplace, and the philosophers bring him to the Areopagus. His speech is a model of cross-cultural preaching. He begins with their religiosity and the altar to an unknown god. Then he proclaims the God who made the world and everything in it, who does not live in temples made by man or need anything from human hands, and who gives to all mankind life and breath. He made from one man every nation, having determined their allotted periods and boundaries, that they should seek God. He quotes their own poets: “In him we live and move and have our being” and “We are his offspring.” Since we are God’s offspring, we ought not to think the divine being is like gold or silver or stone. The times of ignorance God overlooked, but now he commands all people everywhere to repent, because he has fixed a day to judge the world in righteousness by a man he has appointed, and has given assurance by raising him from the dead. Some mock at the resurrection, some want to hear more, and a few believe, including Dionysius and a woman named Damaris.

In Corinth, Paul meets Aquila and Priscilla, fellow tentmakers, and works with them. He preaches in the synagogue, and when the Jews oppose, he turns to the Gentiles. Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, believes. The Lord appears to Paul in a night vision: “Do not be afraid, but go on speaking and do not be silent, for I am with you, and no one will attack you to harm you, for I have many in this city who are my people.” He stays a year and a half. At the end of the chapter, Apollos, an eloquent man mighty in the Scriptures, comes to Ephesus, and Priscilla and Aquila, hearing him, take him aside and explain the way of God more accurately. A husband and wife team the gifted teacher.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 44:9-20 mocks idols. Psalm 115:3-8 also. Deuteronomy 32:8 speaks of God setting the boundaries of nations. Isaiah 42:5 says God gives breath to the people. Romans 1:18-25 discusses the suppression of the truth. Romans 2:14-16 describes the law written on hearts. 1 Corinthians 2:1-5 shows Paul's approach at Corinth. 1 Corinthians 16:19 mentions Aquila and Priscilla. 2 Timothy 3:16-17 says all Scripture is God-breathed. Acts 24:15 speaks of the resurrection of the just and unjust.

STEP 6

Application

Be a Berean: check what you hear, including from me, against Scripture.

Learn to listen to the culture and find a bridge, like the altar, to speak of Christ.

Be like Priscilla and Aquila: take aside a gifted person who needs help and teach them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God as the one in whom we live and move and have our being.

Ask him for the nobility of Berea, to examine Scripture daily.

Pray for the people you know who worship the unknown.

Acts 19:1-41

Ephesus, disciples receive the Spirit; the riot

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 41 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 19:1-41. Paul spends nearly three years in Ephesus. Disciples of John receive the Spirit, extraordinary miracles occur, magic books are burned, and a riot breaks out over the goddess Artemis. Notice the power of the word.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Ephesus was the leading city of Asia Minor, home of the great temple of Artemis (Diana), one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. It was a center of magic and trade. Paul based his ministry here for about three years (AD 52 to 55), and the Ephesian church became one of the most important in the early church. From here, all of Asia heard the word of the Lord.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?” (19:2).
2. “And when Paul had laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they spoke in tongues and prophesied” (19:6).
3. “He withdrew from them and took the disciples with him, reasoning daily in the hall of Tyrannus” (19:9).
4. “Jesus I know, and Paul I recognize, but who are you?” (19:15).
5. “And a number of those who had practiced magic arts brought their books together and burned them in the sight of all” (19:19).
6. “So the word of the Lord continued to increase and prevail mightily” (19:20).
7. “Saying that gods made with hands are not gods” (19:26).
8. “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!” (19:28).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul finds some disciples in Ephesus who knew only the baptism of John. When he asks, “Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?” they have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit. Paul explains that John’s baptism was a baptism of repentance, pointing to the one who would come after him, Jesus. They are baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, and when Paul lays his hands on them, the Spirit comes. These were Old Testament believers who were brought into the new covenant era, a unique transitional moment, and not a pattern for later believers, since every Christian receives the Spirit at conversion (Romans 8:9).

Paul speaks boldly in the synagogue for three months, then moves to the hall of Tyrannus, where he reasons daily for two years, “so that all the residents of Asia heard the word of the Lord.” God does extraordinary miracles by the hands of Paul. Some Jewish exorcists try to use the name of Jesus as a formula, and the evil spirit answers, “Jesus I know, and Paul I recognize, but who are you?” The man overpowers them. The name of Jesus is not a magic word. It is a person, and only those who know him have authority in his name. The event brings fear, and the name of Jesus is extolled.

Many believers come, confessing and divulging their practices. A number of those who had practiced magic burn their books, valued at fifty thousand pieces of silver. “So the word of the Lord continued to increase and prevail mightily.” This is the evidence of real conversion: they gave up what was dear and profitable.

Then comes a riot. Demetrius, a silversmith, whose shrine-making trade is threatened, stirs up the craftsmen: “Not only in Ephesus but in almost all of Asia this Paul has persuaded and turned away a great many people, saying that gods made with hands are not gods.” The whole city is filled with confusion, and for two hours they shout, “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!” The town clerk calms the crowd, pointing out that the Christians have neither robbed temples nor blasphemed their goddess, and that if Demetrius has a complaint, there are courts. He dismisses the assembly. Notice how Luke shows that the gospel is not a threat to public order, though it is a threat to idolatry and the economies that depend on it.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 3:11 records John’s promise of baptism with the Holy Spirit. Ephesians 1:13-14 says believers are sealed with the Spirit. The letter to the Ephesians and Revelation 2:1-7 address the same church. Deuteronomy 18:10-12 forbids sorcery. Psalm 115:4-8 mocks idols made by hands. 1 Corinthians 15:32 and 16:8-9 mention Paul’s time in Ephesus. 2 Timothy 1:15-18 mentions Onesiphorus. 1 John 5:21 says to keep yourselves from idols.

STEP 6

Application

Is there a “book” you need to burn, something from your old life that holds you?

Ask whether you know Jesus personally or just use his name.

Ask where the economics of idolatry affect your life, such as consumerism and entertainment.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you know Jesus rather than just use his name.

Thank him for the Holy Spirit.

Ask him to expose any idols in your life.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Acts 16:31 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household."

ACTS 16:31

REST

Meditation

A Philippian jailer, trembling after an earthquake, asks Paul and Silas the most important question: "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" This is their answer.

"Believe." To believe is more than agreeing with facts. It is to trust, to rely on, to put your weight on. The jailer is not told to do a task, but to trust a person.

"In the Lord Jesus." The object of faith is Jesus, the Lord who died and rose. He is the only Savior. "Lord" means the one who rules, and "Jesus" means the one who saves. To believe in him is to trust him as both.

"And you will be saved." The promise is certain. Not "might be" or "could be." Saved from sin, from judgment, and from death, and saved into life with God.

“You and your household.” The promise is for the jailer and extends to his family, who also heard the word and believed. It reminds us that God often works through families, and that faith in the head of a home opens the door to the gospel for the rest.

When you wonder what you must do to be saved or how to tell someone else, say this verse. It is the simplest summary of the gospel in the Bible.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you prayed Psalm 117, the shortest call to the nations. You followed the first journey to its end in Lystra and Derbe, where Paul was mistaken for a god and then stoned. At the Jerusalem Council, you saw the apostles decide that Gentiles are saved by grace, as Jews are, and you heard James cite Amos 9 about the rebuilding of David’s tent. You watched the second journey carry the gospel to Europe: Lydia’s heart was opened, and a jailer asked what he must do to be saved. You heard Paul preach to the Areopagus in Athens, you saw the Bereans search the Scriptures, and you spent three years in Ephesus, where the word prevailed mightily and magic books burned.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

The Jerusalem Council concluded that we are saved “through the grace of the Lord Jesus.” How do you tend to add to grace, and what would it mean to rest in it?

Lydia’s heart was opened by the Lord. Reflect on the moment God opened your heart. What did you notice then, and how has it changed you?

Paul preached differently to the Jews in Thessalonica and the philosophers in Athens. Who is your audience, and how might you meet them where they are while keeping the message of Christ the same?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Say with the jailer, “I believe in the Lord Jesus,” and mean it.

Pray for your household or those closest to you.

Rest in his grace.

DAY 715 · WEEK 103

Acts 20:1-38

Paul's farewell to the Ephesian elders

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 38 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 20:1-38. Paul travels through Macedonia and Greece, raises Eutychus in Troas, and gives a farewell speech to the Ephesian elders at Miletus. Read the farewell slowly. It is Paul's pastoral testament.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul's third missionary journey is drawing to a close. He is headed for Jerusalem with a collection for the poor saints there, knowing that chains and afflictions await. On the way he meets the elders of the Ephesian church on a beach at Miletus. This is the only speech in Acts that Paul gives to believers rather than to unbelievers, and it reveals his heart for the church.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "On the first day of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread, Paul talked with them" (20:7).
2. "Testifying both to Jews and to Greeks of repentance toward God and of faith in our Lord Jesus Christ" (20:21).
3. "But I do not account my life of any value nor as precious to myself, if only I may finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God" (20:24).
4. "For I did not shrink from declaring to you the whole counsel of God" (20:27).
5. "Pay careful attention to yourselves and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to care for the church of God, which he obtained with his own blood" (20:28).

6. “And now I commend you to God and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance among all those who are sanctified” (20:32).
7. “It is more blessed to give than to receive” (20:35).
8. “And there was much weeping on the part of all” (20:37).

STEP 4

Interpretation

At Troas, the church gathers on the first day of the week to break bread. Paul talks until midnight, and a young man, Eutychus, sitting in a window, falls asleep and falls three stories. He is taken up dead, and Paul embraces him and says, “Do not be alarmed, for his life is in him.” They go back upstairs, break bread, and talk until dawn. This verse is one of the clues that early Christians met on Sunday, the day of resurrection.

At Miletus, Paul summons the Ephesian elders and reminds them of how he lived among them. He served the Lord with all humility and with tears and trials. He did not shrink from declaring anything that was profitable, teaching in public and from house to house, testifying to both Jews and Greeks of repentance toward God and faith in the Lord Jesus. Now, he says, he is going to Jerusalem, bound in the Spirit, not knowing what will happen, except that the Holy Spirit testifies in every city that imprisonment and afflictions await him. “But I do not account my life of any value nor as precious to myself, if only I may finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God.” He says they will not see his face again.

Then comes his charge: “Pay careful attention to yourselves and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to care for the church of God, which he obtained with his own blood.” The verse is rich: the Holy Spirit appoints pastors, the church belongs to God, and God bought it with his own blood, which is a striking reference to the cross. Paul warns that fierce wolves will come in, and even from among their own number men will arise speaking twisted things to draw away disciples. They must be alert. Within a few decades, the church of Ephesus had indeed faced such threats.

He commends them to God and to the word of his grace, “which is able to build you up.” The sufficiency of God’s word is the foundation of pastoral ministry. He reminds them of his example of working with his hands and quotes a saying of Jesus not found in the Gospels: “It is more blessed to give than to receive.” Then he kneels and prays with them, and they all weep and kiss him, sorrowing most of all because they will not see his face again.

STEP 5

Connection

Ezekiel 34 is a charge to shepherds. 1 Peter 5:1-4 is Peter's charge to elders. 1 Timothy 3:1-7 and Titus 1:5-9 give qualifications for overseers. 2 Timothy 4:1-8 is Paul's last charge to Timothy. Philippians 3:12-14 speaks of pressing on to finish the race. Ephesians 5:25 says Christ loved the church and gave himself for her. Hebrews 13:17 asks the church to submit to leaders who keep watch over souls. Revelation 2:1-7 is Christ's later word to Ephesus.

STEP 6

Application

Ask how you can finish your course with joy. What is the ministry the Lord has given you?

Pray for your pastors and elders by name this week. Thank them.

Give something away, a gift of time or money, and experience the blessing Jesus spoke of.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the church he bought with his own blood.

Ask him to teach you to declare his whole counsel.

Ask him to help you care for those he has put in your life.

ACTS 20:24

DAY 716 · WEEK 103

Psalm 96

Sing to the LORD; declare his glory among the nations

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 96. You met it earlier as the song David sang when the ark came to Jerusalem. Read it now as a missionary hymn: it calls God's people to declare his glory among the nations.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 96 is almost identical to the song in 1 Chronicles 16 that David appointed when the ark entered Jerusalem. In the Psalter, it begins a group of psalms (96 to 99) that celebrate the kingship of the LORD over the nations. Following Paul's farewell to the Ephesians, this psalm turns our attention outward again: the mission is not finished, and the church is called to declare his glory to all peoples.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh sing to the LORD a new song; sing to the LORD, all the earth!" (v. 1).
2. "Sing to the LORD, bless his name; tell of his salvation from day to day" (v. 2).
3. "Declare his glory among the nations, his marvelous works among all the peoples!" (v. 3).
4. "For great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised; he is to be feared above all gods" (v. 4).
5. "For all the gods of the peoples are worthless idols, but the LORD made the heavens" (v. 5).
6. "Worship the LORD in the splendor of holiness; tremble before him, all the earth!" (v. 9).
7. "Say among the nations, The LORD reigns!" (v. 10).

8 “For he comes, for he comes to judge the earth. He will judge the world in righteousness, and the peoples in his faithfulness” (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a new song. The call is to the whole earth. The church has sung new songs in each generation, because each generation experiences God’s salvation afresh. “Tell of his salvation from day to day.” Day by day, the people of God are to speak of what he has done.

Then the center of the psalm: “Declare his glory among the nations, his marvelous works among all the peoples!” This is a missions command in the Psalms. Israel was a priestly kingdom, not only to keep the faith but to declare it to the world. Why? Because the LORD is great and greatly to be praised. The gods of the peoples are worthless idols, a word that sounds like “nothings,” but the LORD made the heavens. Idols cannot save. The nations need to know the living God.

Verses 7 to 9 call the families of the peoples to ascribe to the LORD glory and strength, to bring an offering and come into his courts. Worship is the right response of every nation. The splendor of holiness is the beauty of God’s character, before which all should tremble.

Verse 10 gives the message: “Say among the nations, The LORD reigns!” This is the gospel in the Old Testament. The reign of God is news. He has established the world; it shall never be moved. He will judge the peoples with equity. This is not a threat but good news to the oppressed. All creation joins in: the heavens are glad, the earth rejoices, the sea roars, the fields exult, and the trees of the forest sing for joy before the LORD, for he comes.

The psalm ends with the coming of the LORD to judge the earth in righteousness and in his faithfulness. For Christians, this coming is the return of Christ. We tell the nations of his salvation and his coming, and invite them to be reconciled to him before that day. The tone of the psalm is joy, because the coming judge is the same one who has saved.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Chronicles 16:23-33 gives the same song at the bringing of the ark. Psalm 67, 97, 98, and 99 are related psalms. Isaiah 42:10-12 also calls for a new song. Isaiah 52:7-10 proclaims the reign of God. Psalm 115:3-8 mocks idols. 1 Thessalonians 1:9 says they turned from idols to serve a living God. Revelation 5:9, 14:3, and 15:3-4 contain the new song. Matthew 28:18-20 is the Great Commission.

STEP 6

Application

Sing or read a hymn or song today that you have never used before. Make it a new song.

Tell someone of his salvation today. Say a sentence about what God has done for you.

Say verse 10 aloud, “The LORD reigns!” over a situation that troubles you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Sing to the LORD a new song, in your own words.

Tell someone of his salvation today, or ask him to help you.

Declare his glory among the nations.

ACTS 20:24

DAY 717 · WEEK 103

Psalm 98

The LORD has made known his salvation

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 9 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 98. It is a joyful song about God's victory and salvation, revealed to the nations. Isaac Watts's hymn "Joy to the World" is based on this psalm.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 98 is a psalm without a title, but it builds on Psalm 96 and 97 and continues the theme of the LORD's kingship. It is filled with music: new songs, harps, trumpets, and the sea clapping. It is read at Christmas by many churches. In the context of Acts, it stresses that God has made his salvation known "in the sight of the nations."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Oh sing to the LORD a new song, for he has done marvelous things!" (v. 1).
2. "His right hand and his holy arm have worked salvation for him" (v. 1).
3. "The LORD has made known his salvation; he has revealed his righteousness in the sight of the nations" (v. 2).
4. "He has remembered his steadfast love and faithfulness to the house of Israel" (v. 3).
5. "All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God" (v. 3).
6. "Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth; break forth into joyous song and sing praises!" (v. 4).
7. "Let the rivers clap their hands; let the hills sing for joy together" (v. 8).
8. "Before the LORD, for he comes to judge the earth. He will judge the world with righteousness, and the peoples with equity" (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with the same call as Psalm 96, a new song, but gives a different reason: "for he has done marvelous things." Chief among these is salvation. "His right hand and his holy arm have worked salvation for him." The arm of the LORD is a picture of his strength to deliver, as in the exodus. Notice the phrase "for him": God's victory is not borrowed from anyone. He won it himself.

Verse 2 gives the missionary side: "The LORD has made known his salvation; he has revealed his righteousness in the sight of the nations." God's salvation is public. It is not hidden in a corner. And verse 3 shows how the two sides fit together: God remembered his steadfast love and faithfulness to the house of Israel. And as a result, all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. His covenant faithfulness to Israel is the way he brings salvation to the world. This is the story of Acts: the promises made to Israel are fulfilled in Jesus, and through him, the nations see the salvation of God. Simeon sang this when he held the child in the temple: "My eyes have seen your salvation… a light for revelation to the Gentiles."

Verses 4 to 6 call all the earth to make a joyful noise with lyre, trumpets, and the horn, before the King. And verses 7 to 9 extend the chorus to creation: the sea roars, the rivers clap their hands, and the hills sing for joy together, because the LORD is coming to judge the earth. Creation itself longs for the coming of the King (Romans 8:19-22). When he comes, creation will be set right.

Reading this psalm with Acts reminds us that the church's mission is accompanied by joy. We are not announcing a threat. We are announcing a victory. The right hand and the holy arm have worked salvation in the cross and the empty tomb, and the whole world is invited to see it and sing.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 15:1-18 is the original victory song. Isaiah 52:10 says all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God. Isaiah 59:16 and 63:5 speak of his arm bringing salvation. Luke 2:30-32 is Simeon's song. Luke 1:68-75 is Zechariah's song. Romans 8:19-23 describes creation groaning and longing. Revelation 15:3-4 is the song of Moses and the Lamb. Isaac Watts's "Joy to the World" paraphrases this psalm.

STEP 6

Application

Sing "Joy to the World" aloud, even out of season.

Tell someone about a marvelous thing the LORD has done. Be specific.

Look at creation today, a tree or a hill or the sky, and imagine it singing to its Lord.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Sing to the LORD a new song for the marvelous things he has done.
- Thank him for making his salvation known.
- Ask him to help you break forth in joyous song.

ACTS 20:24

DAY 718 · WEEK 103

Psalm 100

Make a joyful noise, all the earth

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Psalm · 5 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 100. You read it earlier in the Gospel of John. Read it now as the closing call of the missionary psalms: all the earth is invited to enter his gates with thanksgiving.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 100 completes a cluster of psalms (93 to 100) that celebrate the kingship of the LORD. It is the last and most compact of the invitations to all the earth. Having read psalms about declaring his glory and salvation to the nations, we come to the response: what the nations do when they come. They come to worship with gladness and gratitude.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth!” (v. 1).
2. “Come into his presence with singing!” (v. 2).
3. “Know that the LORD, he is God!” (v. 3).
4. “It is he who made us, and we are his” (v. 3).
5. “We are his people, and the sheep of his pasture” (v. 3).
6. “Enter his gates with thanksgiving, and his courts with praise!” (v. 4).
7. “Give thanks to him; bless his name!” (v. 4).
8. “For the LORD is good; his steadfast love endures forever, and his faithfulness to all generations” (v. 5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with an invitation to “all the earth.” The audience is the same as in Psalm 96 and 98. Here the focus is on the response of those who have heard the news and believed. They come with a joyful noise.

Verse 3 gives the basis for a right relationship: “Know that the LORD, he is God!” Knowing who God is comes first. The nations who once worshiped idols are now taught to know the LORD. “It is he who made us, and we are his.” This is the confession of every convert. We belong to the one who made us. We are his people, the sheep of his pasture, the language of the shepherd. In Acts, the Gentiles who believe are included in this: “those who are far off” have been brought near (Ephesians 2:13), and they are now part of God’s flock.

The call to enter his gates with thanksgiving shows the approach. We come to God not because we deserve it but with gratitude. Thanksgiving is the doorway. In Psalm 100, there is no sacrifice for sin mentioned, no priest, only joy. Under the new covenant, this joy rests on the finished sacrifice of Christ. We can enter the courts with praise because the way is open.

The final verse gives the threefold reason: the LORD is good (his character), his steadfast love endures forever (his covenant commitment), and his faithfulness extends to all generations (his reliability). Paul and the apostles saw this in action: the generations of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and David, and now the church. God has been faithful across the centuries, and he is faithful now.

Notice how the invitation and the response connect Acts to the Psalms. The command to the nations is the mission of the church. The response of the nations is the church’s worship. In every city, from Antioch to Ephesus, new congregations were formed, singing, giving thanks, and calling on the name of the Lord. Psalm 100 is the picture of their gatherings.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 95 begins in a similar way. Psalm 117 is the shortest invitation to the nations. Ezekiel 34:30-31 calls Israel the flock of God. John 10:14-16 speaks of one flock, one shepherd. Ephesians 2:11-22 describes Gentiles brought near. Colossians 3:16-17 speaks of singing with thankfulness in your hearts. Hebrews 12:28 calls for acceptable worship with reverence and awe. Revelation 7:9-12 pictures the nations worshiping.

STEP 6

Application

Begin worship this week with thanksgiving. Enter his gates with a list of at least five things you are grateful for.

Read the psalm to someone who is new to the faith.

Thank God for the generations of faithful people who passed the gospel down to you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Make a joyful noise to the LORD, naming why.
- Thank him that he made you and you are his.
- Enter his presence with thanksgiving.

ACTS 20:24

DAY 719 · WEEK 103

Acts 21:1-22:30

Paul arrested; his defense in the Temple

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 70 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 21:1-22:30. Paul goes up to Jerusalem despite warnings, is seized in the temple, and gives his testimony from the steps of the barracks. Notice his courage, and how he retells his conversion.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has finished his third journey and reaches Jerusalem around AD 57, with gifts for the poor believers. Prophets warn him in city after city that chains await. He goes anyway. In Jerusalem, rumors have spread that he teaches Jews to abandon Moses. The leaders suggest that he demonstrate his faithfulness by joining a vow in the temple. It leads to his arrest and the long imprisonment that takes him to Rome.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “What are you doing, weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be imprisoned but even to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus” (21:13).
2. “And since he would not be persuaded, we ceased and said, Let the will of the Lord be done” (21:14).
3. “Men of Israel, help! This is the man who is teaching everyone everywhere against the people and the law and this place” (21:28).
4. “I am a Jew, from Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of no obscure city” (21:39).
5. “Brought up in this city, educated at the feet of Gamaliel according to the strict manner of the law of our fathers, being zealous for God as all of you are this day” (22:3).

6. “And I answered, Who are you, Lord? And he said to me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom you are persecuting” (22:8).
7. “And now why do you wait? Rise and be baptized and wash away your sins, calling on his name” (22:16).
8. “Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles” (22:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

On the way, Paul and his companions stop in Tyre, where disciples urge him through the Spirit not to go to Jerusalem. In Caesarea, the prophet Agabus takes Paul’s belt, binds his own hands and feet, and says that the Jews at Jerusalem will bind the man who owns this belt. His friends beg him not to go. Paul replies with a moving statement: “What are you doing, weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be imprisoned but even to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.” When he would not be dissuaded, they said, “Let the will of the Lord be done.” He is not reckless. He is obedient.

In Jerusalem, James and the elders rejoice at the reports of the Gentiles. But they tell Paul that thousands of Jewish believers are zealous for the law and have heard that he teaches Jews to forsake Moses. They suggest he pay the expenses of four men under a vow. Paul agrees, an example of his flexibility (1 Corinthians 9:20). But Jews from Asia see him in the temple, seize him, and cry out that he has brought Greeks into the temple and defiled it. The whole city is stirred up. They drag him out and beat him, and he is rescued by the Roman tribune and his soldiers, who bind him with two chains.

As he is carried up the steps, Paul asks the tribune, in Greek, for permission to speak. The tribune is surprised. Paul addresses the crowd in Aramaic. He tells his story: a Jew born in Tarsus, trained under Gamaliel, zealous for God, who persecuted the Way to the death. On the Damascus road, he met the risen Jesus. Ananias said: “The God of our fathers appointed you to know his will, to see the Righteous One and to hear a voice from his mouth; for you will be a witness for him to everyone of what you have seen and heard. And now why do you wait? Rise and be baptized and wash your sins away, calling on his name.” Then Paul tells of a vision in the temple, where Jesus said, “Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles.”

At the word “Gentiles,” the crowd erupts, shouting, “Away with such a fellow from the earth!” The tribune orders him brought into the barracks to be examined by flogging. Paul asks the centurion, “Is it lawful for you to flog a man who is a Roman citizen and uncondemned?” The tribune becomes afraid. The next day he brings Paul before the council. Once again, Paul’s Roman citizenship protects him.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 9:1-19 and 26:9-18 are the other accounts of his conversion. Galatians 1:13-16 gives his own testimony. Philippians 3:4-11 lists his Jewish credentials and counts them as loss. 1 Corinthians 9:19-23 describes his adaptability. Luke 9:51 shows Jesus setting his face toward Jerusalem. Romans 15:25-31 is Paul's request for prayer about the trip. 2 Corinthians 11:23-28 lists his sufferings. Matthew 26:39 is Jesus' prayer, "Not as I will, but as you will."

STEP 6

Application

Practice telling your own story of how you met Jesus in two minutes.

Ask whether there is a step of obedience you have avoided because of fear.

Pray "Let the will of the Lord be done" for a situation you cannot control.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to give you courage to obey even when it costs you.

Thank Jesus for setting his face toward Jerusalem.

Ask him to make you a witness in your setting.

ACTS 20:24

DAY 720 · WEEK 103

Acts 23:1-24:27

Before the Sanhedrin and Felix

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 62 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 23:1-24:27. Paul appears before the Sanhedrin, the Lord encourages him, a plot is foiled, and he is brought to Caesarea to stand before Governor Felix. Notice Paul's conscience and the center of his defense: the resurrection.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul is in Roman custody, and the tribune brings him before the Jewish council to find out what he is accused of. Here and in the following hearings, Paul consistently turns the discussion to the hope of the resurrection. A plot of more than forty men to kill him is uncovered by his nephew, and he is moved by night to Caesarea, the Roman capital, where he is held under Governor Felix for two years.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Brothers, I have lived my life before God in all good conscience up to this day" (23:1).
2. "Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees. It is with respect to the hope and the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial" (23:6).
3. "The following night the Lord stood by him and said, Take courage, for as you have testified to the facts about me in Jerusalem, so you must testify also in Rome" (23:11).
4. "According to the Way, which they call a sect, I worship the God of our fathers, believing everything that is laid down by the Law and written in the Prophets" (24:14).
5. "Having a hope in God, which these men themselves accept, that there will be a resurrection of both the just and the unjust" (24:15).
6. "So I always take pains to have a clear conscience toward both God and man" (24:16).

7. “And as he reasoned about righteousness and self-control and future judgment, Felix was alarmed and said, Go away for the present. When I get an opportunity I will summon you” (24:25).

8. “Felix left Paul in prison” (24:27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Before the council, Paul begins, “Brothers, I have lived my life before God in all good conscience up to this day.” The high priest Ananias orders him struck on the mouth. Paul says, “God is going to strike you, you whitewashed wall!” When told that he is speaking to the high priest, Paul apologizes, acknowledging the law: “You shall not speak evil of a ruler of your people.” Even apostles had sharp moments.

Then Paul realizes the council is divided between Sadducees and Pharisees. He cries out, “Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees. It is with respect to the hope and the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial.” The council erupts in dispute. Some argue that they find nothing wrong with the man. The tribune, fearing Paul will be torn to pieces, takes him back to the barracks. That night, “the Lord stood by him and said, Take courage, for as you have testified to the facts about me in Jerusalem, so you must testify also in Rome.” This is a vital promise. Whatever happens, Paul will reach Rome.

A plot is hatched: more than forty men take an oath neither to eat nor drink until they have killed Paul. Paul’s nephew hears of it and warns the tribune, who sends Paul under heavy guard (two hundred soldiers, seventy horsemen, two hundred spearmen) to Governor Felix in Caesarea. God uses the Roman army to protect his apostle.

Five days later, the high priest and a lawyer named Tertullus arrive and accuse Paul. Paul’s defense is calm and clear. He had not stirred up a crowd; he came to Jerusalem to bring alms. “According to the Way, which they call a sect, I worship the God of our fathers, believing everything that is laid down by the Law and written in the Prophets.” The Christian faith is not a new religion but the fulfillment of Israel’s hope. His hope is the resurrection of both the just and the unjust. “So I always take pains to have a clear conscience toward both God and man.”

Felix, who knows more about the Way than most, puts off a decision. Later, he and his wife Drusilla hear Paul speak about faith in Christ Jesus. As Paul reasons about righteousness, self-control, and future judgment, Felix becomes alarmed and sends him away. He hopes for a bribe and sends for Paul often, but nothing changes. After two years, Felix is succeeded by Festus, and desiring to do the Jews a favor, he leaves Paul in prison. Felix is a warning: he heard the truth, was alarmed, and put it off.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 22:28 is the law Paul cites about speaking evil of rulers. Daniel 12:2 speaks of the resurrection of the just and the unjust. Luke 20:27-38 records Jesus on the resurrection against the Sadducees. Acts 4:1-2 and 17:32 show the resurrection as a point of dispute. 1 Corinthians 15 is Paul's great chapter on the resurrection. 2 Corinthians 1:12 mentions a clear conscience. 1 Timothy 1:5 and 1:19 speak of a good conscience. Proverbs 27:1 warns against boasting about tomorrow. Hebrews 3:15 says today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whether your conscience is clear before God and man. If not, confess and make it right.

Do you put off a conviction because the timing is not convenient? Respond today.

Take courage from the Lord's word to Paul. He stands by you too.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for standing by Paul, and ask him to stand by you.
- Ask him for a clear conscience before him.
- Tell him what you fear.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Acts 20:24 slowly, several times, and say it from memory. Read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"But I do not account my life of any value nor as precious to myself, if only I may finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God."

ACTS 20:24

REST

Meditation

Paul says this to the Ephesian elders on the beach at Miletus, knowing that he is going to Jerusalem and that chains and afflictions await.

"I do not account my life of any value nor as precious to myself." Paul is not careless about his life. He knows its worth, but he does not hold it as the highest good. For him, life is a trust, to be spent for something greater.

"If only I may finish my course." He pictures his life as a race to finish. A course has a beginning and an end, and the goal is to complete it. In his last letter, Paul writes that he has fought the good fight, finished the race, and kept the faith.

"And the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus." The task is not Paul's invention. It is received, given by the Lord Jesus himself. Each of us also receives a calling.

“To testify to the gospel of the grace of God.” This is the center of Paul’s ministry. Not his own cleverness, but the good news of grace: that sinners are saved freely by God’s favor in Christ.

When you are afraid of the cost of faithfulness, say this verse. The goal is not to protect our lives but to finish the course and testify to the grace of God.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you saw Paul on the road: a full Jerusalem Council behind him and the ministry in Ephesus finished. You read his tender farewell to the Ephesian elders, with its charge to shepherd the church of God, which he obtained with his own blood. Three psalms sang the mission: Psalm 96, declare his glory among the nations; Psalm 98, all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God; and Psalm 100, enter his gates with thanksgiving. Then Paul went up to Jerusalem, knowing what awaited him. You watched him seized in the temple, retell his conversion on the steps, stand before the council and Felix, and speak of the hope of the resurrection. The Lord told him, “Take courage… you must testify also in Rome.”

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul said he did not count his life as precious if only he could finish his course. What is one thing in your life that you are holding too tightly, and what would it look like to hold it more loosely for the sake of Christ?

Paul told the elders to care for the church “which he obtained with his own blood.” How does that change the way you think about your own church and its people?

Felix heard the truth, was alarmed, and put it off. Is there a truth God is pressing on you that you’ve been postponing? What is one step you can take today?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for the church he bought with his blood.

Ask him to help you finish your course.

Rest in him.

DAY 722 · WEEK 104

Acts 25:1-26:32

Before Festus and Agrippa, "I stand on trial for hope"

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 50 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 25:1-26:32. Paul appeals to Caesar, and then makes his defense before King Agrippa. His third account of his conversion ends with an appeal. Read 26:12-29 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Felix is succeeded by Festus, who immediately faces the Jewish leaders' demand to bring Paul to Jerusalem, where they plan an ambush. Paul, as a Roman citizen, exercises his right to appeal to Caesar. Before sending him to Rome, Festus consults King Agrippa II, who is familiar with Jewish customs. The hearing is an opportunity for Paul to give a full account of the gospel before the political and military leaders of the region.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I appeal to Caesar" (25:11).
2. "And now I stand here on trial because of my hope in the promise made by God to our fathers" (26:6).
3. "Why is it thought incredible by any of you that God raises the dead?" (26:8).
4. "To open their eyes, so that they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a place among those who are sanctified by faith in me" (26:18).
5. "Therefore, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the vision from heaven" (26:19).
6. "To this day I have had the help that comes from God, and so I stand here testifying both to small and great, saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses said would come to pass" (26:22).

7. “In a short time would you persuade me to be a Christian?” (26:28).

8. “Whether short or long, I would to God that not only you but also all who hear me this day might become such as I am, except for these chains” (26:29).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Festus tells the Jews that Roman custom does not condemn a man before he has met his accusers face to face. At Caesarea, they bring many serious charges that they cannot prove. Festus, wishing to do the Jews a favor, asks Paul whether he is willing to go to Jerusalem for trial. Paul knows what would happen. “I appeal to Caesar.” This appeal, within a Roman citizen’s rights, takes the case to Rome and fulfills the Lord’s promise in 23:11.

When King Agrippa and his sister Bernice arrive, Festus explains his dilemma: he has no clear charge to write to the emperor. Agrippa asks to hear Paul. Paul says he considers himself fortunate to defend himself before one so familiar with Jewish customs. He tells his story: his strict Pharisaic upbringing, his persecution of the saints, and his encounter on the Damascus road. He now reports the commission with its fullest wording. Jesus said he was sending Paul “to open their eyes, so that they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a place among those who are sanctified by faith in me.” This is a summary of the gospel: darkness to light, Satan’s power to God, forgiveness and an inheritance, by faith in Christ.

Paul says, “I was not disobedient to the vision from heaven.” He declared to Jews and Gentiles that they should repent and turn to God, performing deeds in keeping with their repentance. For this, the Jews seized him. And yet he says, “I stand here testifying both to small and great, saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses said would come to pass: that the Christ must suffer and, by being the first to rise from the dead, would proclaim light both to our people and to the Gentiles.”

Festus interrupts: “Paul, you are out of your mind; your great learning is driving you out of your mind.” Paul replies, “I am not out of my mind, most excellent Festus, but I am speaking the sober truth.” Then he turns to Agrippa: “King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know that you believe.” Agrippa says, “In a short time would you persuade me to be a Christian?” Paul’s reply is full of grace: “Whether short or long, I would to God that not only you but also all who hear me this day might become such as I am, except for these chains.” Agrippa concludes that Paul could have been set free if he had not appealed to Caesar. But the appeal is God’s means of bringing him to Rome.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 9:1-19 and 22:1-21 are the other accounts of the conversion. Isaiah 42:6-7 and 49:6 speak of opening blind eyes and being a light to the Gentiles. Isaiah 53 and Psalm 22 speak of the Christ's suffering. 1 Corinthians 15:3-8 summarizes the gospel as Paul received it. Colossians 1:12-14 echoes the language of 26:18. 2 Timothy 4:16-18 mentions the Lord standing by him at his first defense. Philippians 1:12-14 says his imprisonment advanced the gospel. Romans 13:1-7 teaches about the state.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Acts 26:18 as a summary of what conversion means.

Ask yourself Paul's question to Agrippa: do you believe the prophets?

Think of someone who is "almost persuaded." Pray for them as Paul did.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for opening your eyes and turning you from darkness to light.
- Ask him to give you a clear testimony.
- Pray for someone who is hardened against him.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 104

ROMANS 1:16

DAY 723 · WEEK 104

Acts 27:1-28:31

The voyage; the shipwreck; Rome

Year 2 · Unit 19 · Reading · 60 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 27:1-28:31. Paul sails for Rome, endures a storm and a shipwreck, survives a snakebite on Malta, and arrives in the capital. The book ends with Paul under house arrest, preaching the kingdom of God. Notice how Acts ends: without a conclusion, because the story continues.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul is sent to Rome as a prisoner under the centurion Julius, along with Luke and Aristarchus. It is late in the sailing season and dangerous. Luke's account of the voyage is among the most detailed ancient descriptions of a sea journey. Beyond its drama, the voyage shows God's faithfulness in carrying out the promise made in 23:11: Paul will testify in Rome.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "When neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope of our being saved was at last abandoned" (27:20).
2. "Do not be afraid, Paul; you must stand before Caesar" (27:24).
3. "So take heart, men, for I have faith in God that it will be exactly as I have been told" (27:25).
4. "And so it was that all were brought safely to land" (27:44).
5. "And the brothers there, when they heard about us, came as far as the Forum of Appius and Three Taverns to meet us. On seeing them, Paul thanked God and took courage" (28:15).

6. “From morning till evening he expounded to them, testifying to the kingdom of God and trying to convince them about Jesus both from the Law of Moses and from the Prophets” (28:23).

7. “Therefore let it be known to you that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles; they will listen” (28:28).

8. “Proclaiming the kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness and without hindrance” (28:31).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The voyage begins in good weather but deteriorates. Paul warns that the journey will be dangerous, but the centurion trusts the pilot and the owner of the ship. A violent northeaster, the “Euraquilo,” seizes the ship. For days they are driven, throwing cargo and tackle overboard. “All hope of our being saved was at last abandoned.” Then Paul stands up: an angel of God had stood by him that night and said, “Do not be afraid, Paul; you must stand before Caesar. And behold, God has granted you all those who sail with you.” “So take heart, men, for I have faith in God that it will be exactly as I have been told.” The prisoner becomes the leader of the ship. When sailors try to escape in the lifeboat, Paul warns the centurion. On the fourteenth night, Paul urges them all to eat, takes bread, gives thanks to God in the presence of all, and breaks it. Two hundred seventy-six people are on board. The ship runs aground, and the soldiers plan to kill the prisoners, but the centurion, wishing to save Paul, stops them. All reach land safely, some swimming and some on pieces of the ship.

On Malta, the islanders show unusual kindness. A viper fastens on Paul’s hand, and the people expect him to die; when he shakes it off and suffers no harm, they say he is a god. This is a reversal of Lystra, where they first worshiped and then stoned him. Paul heals the father of the chief man of the island, and the rest of the sick come and are cured. After three months, they sail again for Rome.

Believers meet Paul at the Forum of Appius and Three Taverns, “and on seeing them, Paul thanked God and took courage.” In Rome, he is allowed to live by himself with a soldier guarding him. Three days later, he calls the local Jewish leaders and explains why he is in chains: “it is because of the hope of Israel.” They arrange a day, and many come to his lodging. “From morning till evening he expounded to them, testifying to the kingdom of God and trying to convince them about Jesus both from the Law of Moses and from the Prophets.” Some are convinced, others disbelieve. Paul quotes Isaiah 6 about hardened hearts and says, “This salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles; they will listen.”

The book ends abruptly: “He lived there two whole years at his own expense, and welcomed all who came to him, proclaiming the kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness and without hindrance.” Luke does not tell us what happened to Paul at the trial. The ending is deliberate: the word of God is not bound (2 Timothy 2:9). The story of the church continues in every generation, including yours. From Jerusalem to Rome, from the upper room to the center of the empire, the gospel has gone out.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 1:8 is the program that is fulfilled here. Psalm 107:23-30 describes sailors rescued from a storm. Jonah 1 is another storm at sea. Isaiah 6:9-10 is the quotation about hardened hearts. Romans 1:8-15 and 15:22-29 reveal Paul’s longing to see Rome. Philippians 1:12-14, Ephesians 6:19-20, Colossians 4:3, and Philemon are letters from this imprisonment. 2 Timothy 4:6-8 is his final testimony. Ephesians 2:19-22 describes the household of God.

STEP 6

Application

Review your own storms. Was God keeping a promise that you couldn’t see?

Read Acts 1:8 again and see how the book has fulfilled it. Where are you in the story?

Take the closing words as a charge: proclaim the kingdom and teach about Jesus with all boldness.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the book of Acts and the word spreading to the ends of the earth.
- Thank him for his faithfulness through storms.
- Ask him to keep you bold and unhindered.

MEMORY

Unit Verse

> "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth."
> ACTS 1:8

REST

Meditation

Jesus speaks these words to his disciples just before he ascends. They are his last words in Acts, and they set the agenda for the rest of the book and the church age.

"But you will receive power." Jesus does not ask the disciples to do the work in their own strength. They will receive power. The power is not for show, but for witness.

"When the Holy Spirit has come upon you." The source of the power is the Holy Spirit, poured out at Pentecost. Without him there is no true witness. With him, ordinary people become bold.

"And you will be my witnesses." A witness tells what he has seen and heard. The disciples had seen the risen Jesus. We have the testimony of Scripture and our own experience of grace. We too can tell what we know.

"In Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria." The witness begins at home, in your city, then reaches the surrounding region and the despised outsiders. Each of us has a Jerusalem, a Judea, and a Samaria.

"And to the end of the earth." There is no limit. The gospel is for every nation, and the church is called to carry it there.

When you feel inadequate to share the gospel, say this verse. The power is his, and the promise is for you.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

You have read the book of Acts, the story of the risen Christ continuing his work by the Holy Spirit through his church. It began with the ascension, when Jesus promised power to witness in Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and the ends of the earth. In four doctrinal pauses, you studied Christ's ascension and reign, the person and work of the Holy Spirit, repentance, and the means of grace. At Pentecost, the Spirit was poured out on all flesh, fulfilling Joel, Ezekiel, and Jeremiah, and Peter preached that God had made Jesus both Lord and Christ. The church devoted itself to the apostles' teaching, fellowship, the breaking of bread, and prayer. Despite arrests, the death of Stephen, and persecution, the word of God increased. It moved to Samaria, to an Ethiopian official, and to Cornelius, the first Gentile convert, when God showed Peter that no one is common or unclean. Saul, the persecutor, met the risen Christ and became Paul, the apostle to the Gentiles. The church at Antioch sent Barnabas and Paul on the first journey, the Jerusalem Council affirmed that Gentiles are saved by grace through faith, and the second and third journeys planted churches in Philippi, Thessalonica, Athens, Corinth, and Ephesus, in line with the Abrahamic promise that all families of the earth would be blessed. Paul's farewell to the Ephesian elders charged them to shepherd the church of God, and he went up to Jerusalem, was arrested, defended himself before Felix, Festus, and Agrippa, and was brought through storm and shipwreck to Rome, where he preached the kingdom of God with all boldness and without hindrance. The Psalms accompanied the story: Psalms 2, 16, and 110 for the exalted Christ, and Psalms 67, 87, 117, 96, 98, and 100 for the nations.

Review Questions

How does Pentecost fulfill the promises of Joel, Ezekiel, and Jeremiah?

Read Joel 2:28-32, Ezekiel 36:26-27, Jeremiah 31:33-34, and Acts 2:14-21. What did these prophets promise about the Spirit and the new covenant, and what do you see in Acts 2 that matches?

What does the Jerusalem Council decide?

Reread Acts 15:1-35. What was the question, how did Peter and James reason, and what was the result? Why does this matter for the gospel of grace?

How does Paul's missionary strategy reflect the Abrahamic promise?

Think about Genesis 12:3 and Acts 13:47. Notice where Paul went first, how the Gentiles responded, and how he planted churches with elders. How does this show that the promise to bless all nations was being fulfilled?

What does Acts teach us about the nature of the church?

Look at Acts 2:42-47 and 20:28. What are the marks of a healthy church? What does it mean that the church belongs to God, who obtained it with his own blood?

DAY 725 · WEEK 104

Romans 1:1-32

The gospel; the righteousness of God; the wrath of God

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 32 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 1:1-32. This is the opening of Paul's greatest letter. Read the greeting (1:1-7), then the theme statement (1:16-17), and then the dark diagnosis of the human race (1:18-32). Ask what makes the gospel good news, and why it must begin with bad news.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul writes to the church in Rome from Corinth, around AD 57, at the end of his third missionary journey. He has never been to Rome, but he hopes to visit on his way to Spain. The church is made up of Jewish and Gentile believers who have tensions between them. Paul writes the fullest explanation of the gospel found anywhere in Scripture: how sinners are made right with a holy God, how they are changed, and how God's promises to Israel and the nations fit together. Romans is the great explanation of the new covenant. The Reformation was lit by it, and countless believers have been converted while reading it.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Paul, a servant of Christ Jesus, called to be an apostle, set apart for the gospel of God" (1:1).
2. "And was declared to be the Son of God in power according to the Spirit of holiness by his resurrection from the dead, Jesus Christ our Lord" (1:4).
3. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek" (1:16).
4. "For in it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith for faith, as it is written, The righteous shall live by faith" (1:17).

5. “For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who by their unrighteousness suppress the truth” (1:18).

6. “For his invisible attributes, namely, his eternal power and divine nature, have been clearly perceived, ever since the creation of the world, in the things that have been made” (1:20).

7. “For although they knew God, they did not honor him as God or give thanks to him” (1:21).

8. “Because they exchanged the truth about God for a lie and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever! Amen” (1:25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul introduces himself as a servant, literally a slave, of Christ Jesus, an apostle, set apart for the gospel of God. He immediately says that this gospel was promised beforehand through the prophets in the holy Scriptures. The good news is not new. It is the fulfillment of the Old Testament. Its subject is God’s Son, descended from David according to the flesh and declared to be the Son of God in power by his resurrection from the dead. Through him, Paul has received grace and apostleship “to bring about the obedience of faith for the sake of his name among all the nations.” He writes to Romans who are “called to be saints.” Every Christian is a saint, a holy one set apart by God.

Paul longs to see them, to impart some spiritual gift, and to be mutually encouraged. Then he gives the thesis of the whole letter: “I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek.” The gospel is not advice; it is power. It saves. And it saves “everyone who believes,” on one condition. Verse 17 states the heart: “In it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith for faith, as it is written, The righteous shall live by faith.” This is a quotation of Habakkuk 2:4. The righteousness of God here is God’s saving action and the gift of righteous standing that he gives. Martin Luther said that when he understood this phrase he felt he had entered paradise through open gates.

But why do we need the gospel? Paul now tells the bad news. “The wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who by their unrighteousness suppress the truth.” People know God from creation: his eternal power and divine nature are clearly perceived in the things he has made. So no one has an excuse. The problem is not lack of information but suppression of it. They knew God, but they did not honor him as God or give thanks. Their thinking became futile, their hearts darkened. Claiming to be wise, they became fools, exchanging the glory of the immortal God for images. Three times, Paul says, “God gave them up”: to impurity, to dishonorable passions, to a debased mind. God's judgment here takes the form of letting sin run its course. The chapter ends with a long list of sins and the sober note that they not only do these things but give approval to those who practice them.

This is hard reading. But it prepares the way. A doctor who diagnoses cancer gently cannot be trusted. Paul tells the truth so that the good news may be heard as good.

STEP 5

Connection

Habakkuk 2:4 is the source of 1:17. Psalm 19:1-4 declares that the heavens proclaim God's glory. Genesis 1 to 3 is the background for the fall in 1:21-25. Acts 14:15-17 and 17:22-31 show Paul preaching the same truth about creation. Jeremiah 2:11-13 describes exchanging glory for what cannot profit. Ephesians 4:17-19 describes darkened understanding. 1 Corinthians 1:18-25 speaks of the power of the cross. Romans 3:21 to 5:21 will answer the problem posed here.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Romans 1:16 and ask whether you are ashamed of the gospel in any setting. Where are you tempted to stay silent?

Ask what you honor above God or give thanks for in a way that forgets the Giver.

Thank God that he does not leave us at the end of Romans 1.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the gospel, the power for salvation.

Ask him to keep you from shame in it.

Thank him that the righteous shall live by faith.

DAY 726 · WEEK 104

Romans 1:18-32; Nahum 1:2-8

Divine opposition to sin

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Doctrine · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 1:18-32 again, and then Nahum 1:2-8. Today is a doctrinal pause on the wrath of God. The question is simple and hard: how can a God of love be angry? Read slowly, and notice that Nahum holds wrath and goodness together in the same breath.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Many people are uneasy with the idea that God is angry. Some picture the God of the Old Testament as wrathful and the God of the New as gentle, but the New Testament speaks of wrath at least as often as the Old. Paul says it is the first thing "revealed" in the gospel's unfolding (Romans 1:18). The prophet Nahum, writing perhaps a century after Jonah, announces judgment on Nineveh, the same city that repented under Jonah and later returned to cruelty. Together the two passages give us a biblical view of divine opposition to sin.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men" (Romans 1:18).
2. "Therefore God gave them up in the lusts of their hearts to impurity" (Romans 1:24).
3. "For this reason God gave them up to dishonorable passions" (Romans 1:26).
4. "God gave them up to a debased mind to do what ought not to be done" (Romans 1:28).
5. "The LORD is a jealous and avenging God; the LORD is avenging and wrathful" (Nahum 1:2).

6. “The LORD is slow to anger and great in power, and the LORD will by no means clear the guilty” (Nahum 1:3).

7. “Who can stand before his indignation? Who can endure the heat of his anger?” (Nahum 1:6).

8. “The LORD is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; he knows those who take refuge in him” (Nahum 1:7).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The wrath of God is his settled, holy, and righteous opposition to all evil. It is not a loss of temper. Human anger is often selfish, sudden, and out of control. God’s wrath is none of these. It flows from his holiness and his love of what is good. A God who did not hate injustice, cruelty, and the destruction of his creatures would not be good. If we love victims, we should want a God who is angry at what harms them.

Scripture describes wrath in at least two ways. In Romans 1, wrath is revealed in the present, as God gives people over to the consequences of their own choices: sin becomes its own punishment. And elsewhere wrath is future: Paul speaks of a “day of wrath when God’s righteous judgment will be revealed” (Romans 2:5). Nahum shows God’s wrath as both patient and certain: “slow to anger,” yet he “will by no means clear the guilty.”

The wrath of God is the background that makes the gospel good news. At the cross, Jesus bore this wrath for his people. The word “propitiation” (Romans 3:25) means a sacrifice that turns away wrath. Christians have debated the word, but its main meaning is clear: God’s justice and God’s love meet at the cross, where the Son absorbs what sin deserves. Therefore, for the believer, “there is now no condemnation” (Romans 8:1). Nahum 1:7 is the comfort: “The LORD is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; he knows those who take refuge in him.” The same God who is a fire to his enemies is a refuge to those who run to him. Christians differ on how to describe the final punishment of the unrepentant, but all agree that God’s judgment is just.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul says wrath “is revealed from heaven.” It is not a mere theory; it is evident in the moral order of the world. Then he describes its form three times: “God gave them up.” Notice the pattern. People suppress the truth, and God gives them up to impurity (verse 24). They exchange the truth about God for a lie, and God gives them up to dishonorable passions (verse 26). They do not see fit to acknowledge God, and God gives them up to a debased mind (verse 28). The result is a downward spiral. Sin is not merely breaking rules; it is worship turned the wrong way. When we will not worship the Creator, we worship the creature, and the creature cannot bear the weight.

Nahum brings the other side of the picture. The prophet opens with a hymn to the character of God. “The LORD is a jealous and avenging God.” Jealous here means that he will not share his glory or his people with idols, as a husband is rightly jealous for his wife. “Slow to anger and great in power,” a phrase that echoes Exodus 34:6-7. Slow to anger means patience, not weakness. Nineveh had been given time and a prophet. But patience has an end. Mountains quake before him, and the earth heaves. “Who can stand before his indignation?”

Then, in the middle of the storm, the verse that changes the tone: “The LORD is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; he knows those who take refuge in him.” There are only two kinds of people before this God: those who stand against him and those who take refuge in him. The gospel is the invitation to refuge. Jesus is the place where the storm has already broken. Wrath fell on him at Calvary so that it would not fall on us.

When we say we are unsettled by the wrath of God, we do well to ask what it would mean for him not to be angry at evil. Paul teaches that the cure for our unease is not to quiet the doctrine but to run to the cross.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 34:6-7 describes the character of God with mercy and justice. Psalm 7:11 says God is angry with the wicked every day. John 3:36 speaks of the wrath of God remaining on those who do not believe. Romans 2:5, 5:9, and 1 Thessalonians 1:10 speak of wrath to come and our deliverance. Romans 3:25 and 1 John 4:10 speak of propitiation. Hebrews 12:28-29 says our God is a consuming fire. Jonah 3 to 4 is the earlier chapter of Nineveh’s story. Revelation 6:15-17 describes the wrath of the Lamb.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you have been tempted to soften what Scripture says about God’s wrath, and why.

If you are afraid of God’s judgment, take refuge in Christ today. Say the words of Nahum 1:7 as a prayer.

Pray for someone you love who does not yet see their need of a Savior.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you have wanted a God without wrath.
- Ask him to teach you to see his wrath and his mercy together.
- Thank Jesus for bearing wrath for you.

ROMANS 1:16

DAY 727 · WEEK 104

Romans 2:1-29

God's righteous judgment; circumcision of the heart

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 29 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 2:1-29. Paul turns from the obvious sinners to the religious and moral person. Notice the standard of God's judgment, and what Paul means by a Jew "inwardly."

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the dark picture in chapter 1, a Jewish reader might say, "Yes, those pagans deserve it!" Paul now closes the trap. In the style of a diatribe, a lively argument with an imaginary opponent, he shows that the moral person and the religious person are also under judgment. Having the Law, being circumcised, and belonging to the covenant people are not a shelter from God's verdict. Paul's point is that every mouth must be stopped (3:19).

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Therefore you have no excuse, O man, every one of you who judges. For in passing judgment on another you condemn yourself, because you, the judge, practice the very same things" (2:1).
2. "Or do you presume on the riches of his kindness and forbearance and patience, not knowing that God's kindness is meant to lead you to repentance?" (2:4).
3. "He will render to each one according to his works" (2:6).
4. "For God shows no partiality" (2:11).
5. "For it is not the hearers of the law who are righteous before God, but the doers of the law who will be justified" (2:13).

6. “They show that the work of the law is written on their hearts, while their conscience also bears witness” (2:15).

7. “On that day when, according to my gospel, God judges the secrets of men by Christ Jesus” (2:16).

8. “But a Jew is one inwardly, and circumcision is a matter of the heart, by the Spirit, not by the letter” (2:29).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with the person who judges others: “You have no excuse.” Those who condemn others for the same sins they commit prove that they know right from wrong and fail to keep it. God’s judgment is according to truth. Then comes a lovely question: “Do you presume on the riches of his kindness and forbearance and patience, not knowing that God’s kindness is meant to lead you to repentance?” God’s patience is not approval. It is a window of mercy. To ignore it is to store up wrath for the day of wrath.

God will “render to each one according to his works.” This sentence raises a question that students of Romans have asked for centuries: does Paul teach salvation by works? No. He is describing the standard of the final judgment. God will judge impartially, by works, because works reveal the heart. Eternal life goes to those who by patience in doing good seek glory and honor and immortality; wrath to those who are self-seeking and do not obey the truth. But Paul will go on to show that no one meets this standard (3:9-20), and the believer’s works are the fruit and evidence of faith, not its foundation. The judgment according to works does not contradict justification by faith. It shows that real faith produces a changed life.

Paul next addresses the Jew who relies on the Law and boasts in God. He asks four hard questions: you teach others, do you teach yourself? You say not to steal, do you steal? Do you commit adultery? Do you rob temples? “The name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you,” he writes, quoting Isaiah 52:5. Circumcision has value if you keep the law, but if you break it, your circumcision becomes uncircumcision. And an uncircumcised man who keeps the law’s requirements will be counted as circumcised.

The chapter closes with the center of the new covenant: “A Jew is one inwardly, and circumcision is a matter of the heart, by the Spirit, not by the letter.” This echoes Deuteronomy 30:6 and Jeremiah 31:33. The true people of God are those whose hearts the Spirit has changed. Outward signs without inward reality count for nothing. This is a key text for progressive covenantalism: the promises made to Israel find their fulfillment in a people marked by the Spirit, Jew and Gentile together in Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 10:16 and 30:6 call for circumcision of the heart. Jeremiah 9:25-26 and 31:31-34 speak of the heart and the new covenant. Ezekiel 36:26-27 promises the Spirit. Matthew 7:1-5 is Jesus on judging. Matthew 23 condemns hypocrisy. Ecclesiastes 12:14 says God will bring every deed into judgment. 2 Corinthians 5:10 says we must appear before the judgment seat of Christ. Philippians 3:3 says we are the circumcision, who worship by the Spirit of God. Galatians 6:15 says neither circumcision nor uncircumcision counts for anything, but a new creation.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you judge others for what you do yourself. Confess it.

Think of a time when God's kindness led you to repentance. Thank him for it.

Examine whether your faith is outward or has reached the heart.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you judge others and excuse yourself.
- Ask him to circumcise your heart.
- Thank him for his kindness that leads you to repentance.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek."

ROMANS 1:16

REST

Meditation

Paul writes this verse at the start of the greatest explanation of the gospel ever written.

"I am not ashamed of the gospel." Paul says this because the gospel is easy to be ashamed of. It speaks of a crucified Savior, which seemed foolish to Greeks and offensive to Jews. It tells us we are sinners who cannot save ourselves. The world's wisdom has not changed. And yet Paul is not ashamed. His boldness does not come from temperament but from conviction.

"For it is the power of God for salvation." The gospel is not only information or a good idea. It is the power of God, the means by which he saves. When it is preached, God works. Dead hearts are raised, and enemies become children.

"To everyone who believes." The gospel has a condition that is not a work: believing. It rests on Christ and not on us. It is open to all.

“To the Jew first and also to the Greek.” The gospel came to Israel first, and the promises were theirs. But it goes beyond to every nation. In Romans, Paul will show how Jew and Gentile are saved the same way.

When you are tempted to be quiet about your faith, say this verse. The power does not rest in your ability to explain, but in the gospel itself.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began Paul’s letter to the Romans, the great explanation of the new covenant. You read the opening greeting and the statement of the theme: the gospel is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, and in it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith for faith. Then Paul gave the bad news that makes the good news necessary. God’s wrath is revealed against all who suppress the truth, and he gives them up to the consequences of their sin. In a doctrinal pause, you thought about the wrath of God as his holy opposition to evil, and with Nahum you saw that the same God is a stronghold to those who take refuge in him. In chapter 2, Paul turned to the moral and religious person: God judges impartially, his kindness is meant to lead to repentance, and a true Jew is one inwardly, circumcised in heart by the Spirit.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says he is not ashamed of the gospel. In what setting, with which people, are you most tempted to be ashamed or silent about Christ? What would it look like to speak with quiet confidence there?

Romans 1 and 2 show that everyone, religious or not, is guilty before God. How does the cross of Jesus, where he bore the wrath we deserved, change the way you feel when you read these chapters?

Paul says God’s kindness is meant to lead you to repentance. Where is God’s kindness leading you to turn right now?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the gospel, the power for salvation.

Ask him to keep you from shame and make you bold.

Rest in his righteousness.

DAY 729 · WEEK 105

Romans 3:1-31

All have sinned; justification by faith

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 31 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 3:1-31. This chapter is the hinge of the letter. Read the verdict in 3:9-20 and then the great turn at 3:21, “But now.” Take your time with 3:21-26, one of the most important passages in the Bible.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has argued that Gentiles (chapter 1) and Jews (chapter 2) are all under God’s judgment. Chapter 3 begins with objections: if the Jews are guilty too, what advantage has the Jew? Does unbelief cancel God’s faithfulness? Paul answers briefly, then delivers the verdict on the whole human race. Then, like sunrise, the next section begins with “But now.” The righteousness of God has been manifested.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “To begin with, the Jews were entrusted with the oracles of God” (3:2).
2. “None is righteous, no, not one” (3:10).
3. “For by works of the law no human being will be justified in his sight, since through the law comes knowledge of sin” (3:20).
4. “But now the righteousness of God has been manifested apart from the law, although the Law and the Prophets bear witness to it” (3:21).
5. “For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God” (3:23).
6. “And are justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus” (3:24).
7. “Whom God put forward as a propitiation by his blood, to be received by faith” (3:25).

8 “For we hold that one is justified by faith apart from works of the law” (3:28).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The Jews have a real advantage: they were entrusted with the oracles of God, the Scriptures. But possessing the Bible is not the same as obeying it. Does Israel’s unfaithfulness nullify God’s faithfulness? “By no means! Let God be true though every one were a liar.” God’s character is not at stake in human failure. Paul answers a twisted objection, “Why not do evil that good may come?” with a short, firm rejection.

Then he gathers a series of Old Testament quotations, mostly from the Psalms and Isaiah, into a portrait of universal sin: “None is righteous, no, not one; no one understands; no one seeks for God. All have turned aside… no one does good, not even one.” Throats are open graves, feet are swift to shed blood, and “there is no fear of God before their eyes.” The point is stated at verse 19: “so that every mouth may be stopped, and the whole world may be held accountable to God.” The law cannot save because it was never given for that purpose. “Through the law comes knowledge of sin.” It is a mirror, not a rescue.

Then, “But now.” These two words mark the biggest turn in Romans. “The righteousness of God has been manifested apart from the law, although the Law and the Prophets bear witness to it.” This is the new covenant fulfillment of the old. The righteousness comes “through faith in Jesus Christ for all who believe. For there is no distinction: for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and are justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus.”

Three words carry the weight. Justified: declared righteous in God’s courtroom. Grace: a free gift, not earned. Redemption: a slave market word for being bought back with a price. And then “whom God put forward as a propitiation by his blood, to be received by faith.” Propitiation means a sacrifice that satisfies God’s wrath. God himself provides it. Paul explains why: “This was to show God’s righteousness, because in his divine forbearance he had passed over former sins.” In the Old Testament, God forgave sin and seemed to overlook it. Now it is clear how he could do so justly: the cross. “So that he might be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus.” God is both just and the one who justifies the ungodly. That is the miracle.

Boasting is excluded. If salvation were by works, we could boast. It is by faith, so all glory goes to God. And this faith does not cancel the law; it upholds it, since Christ fulfilled it.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 14:1-3 and 53:1-3 describe human sin. Psalm 5:9, 10:7, 36:1, 140:3, and Isaiah 59:7-8 are quoted in verses 13-18. Leviticus 16 describes the Day of Atonement and the mercy seat, the background of "propitiation." Isaiah 53:4-6, 10-12 gives the Servant bearing sin. Proverbs 17:15 says that justifying the wicked is an abomination to the LORD, which makes the cross necessary. 2 Corinthians 5:21 says he became sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God. Galatians 2:16 and Ephesians 2:8-9 repeat the point.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Romans 3:23-24. They hold the whole gospel in two verses.

Ask whether you are secretly trying to earn God's favor. Let boasting be excluded today.

Thank God for the cross, where he is both just and the justifier.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you have fallen short of his glory.
- Thank God for justifying you by grace as a gift.
- Thank Jesus for the redemption that is in him.

Justification by Faith Alone

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 3:21-31, Romans 4:1-8, and Galatians 2:15-21. Today is a doctrinal pause on justification by faith alone. Notice the legal language, the word “counted,” and what Paul says about works and grace.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Justification by faith alone was the central issue of the Protestant Reformation. Martin Luther called it “the article by which the church stands or falls.” It is also the point at which Paul argued against those who wanted Gentile believers to take on the Jewish law. In Galatians, Paul confronts Peter in Antioch because withdrawing from Gentile believers implied that faith in Christ was not enough. The three passages together show that being right with God has always been by grace through faith.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “But now the righteousness of God has been manifested apart from the law” (Romans 3:21).
2. “And are justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus” (Romans 3:24).
3. “So that he might be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus” (Romans 3:26).
4. “For we hold that one is justified by faith apart from works of the law” (Romans 3:28).

5. “For what does the Scripture say? Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness” (Romans 4:3).
6. “And to the one who does not work but believes in him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is counted as righteousness” (Romans 4:5).
7. “A person is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ” (Galatians 2:16).
8. “If righteousness were through the law, then Christ died for no purpose” (Galatians 2:21).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

To justify is to declare righteous. It is a courtroom word, not a hospital word. It describes a change of status, not of nature. In justification, God declares the sinner to be in the right, forgiven and accepted, on the basis of Christ’s work and not our own. The Reformers described this as imputation: our sin is counted as Christ’s, and his righteousness is counted as ours. Paul uses the word “counted” (or “reckoned”) eleven times in Romans 4. The great exchange happens at the cross. God does not pretend we are righteous. He treats us as righteous because Christ is righteous in our place.

Faith is the instrument, not the cause. We are justified by grace (the source), through Christ’s blood and obedience (the ground), and through faith (the means). Faith does not earn anything. It is the empty hand that receives. And “alone” means that nothing is added to faith as a condition for being right with God. But the faith that justifies is never alone; it produces works. James 2 makes this point: a claim to faith that produces no obedience is dead. Paul and James are not opposed. Paul speaks of how we are declared righteous; James speaks of how true faith is shown to be real.

Justification is once for all. The verdict of the last day is announced in advance to those who believe. “Therefore, since we have been justified by faith, we have peace with God” (Romans 5:1). Not “will have” but “have.” Christians have long differed here with Roman Catholic teaching, which holds that justification includes a lifelong process of being made righteous through grace-enabled works and sacraments. Evangelicals hold that sanctification follows justification and does not form part of it. Scholars today also debate the “new perspective” on Paul, which emphasizes the inclusion of Gentiles; most evangelicals receive its insight about covenant community while insisting that Paul is also teaching how sinners stand right before a holy God.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul says that righteousness from God has been manifested "apart from the law." This does not mean the Old Testament was wrong. It means the Law and the Prophets "bear witness to it." They pointed forward to this. The righteousness comes through faith in Jesus Christ for all who believe, without distinction.

Then Paul turns to Abraham, the father of the Jewish people, to prove that justification by faith is not a New Testament novelty. "What then shall we say was gained by Abraham, our forefather according to the flesh? For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God." He quotes Genesis 15:6: "Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness." Wages are earned and owed. A gift is received. "To the one who does not work but believes in him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is counted as righteousness." Notice how startling the phrase "justifies the ungodly" is. Under Old Testament law, a judge who acquits the guilty is condemned (Proverbs 17:15). Yet God does exactly this, because the penalty has been paid.

Paul then brings David as a second witness. In Psalm 32, David speaks of the blessing of the one "whose lawless deeds are forgiven, and whose sins are covered; blessed is the man against whom the Lord will not count his sin." Forgiveness of sins and counted righteousness are two sides of the same coin.

In Galatians 2, Paul states the truth in personal terms. "We know that a person is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ, so we also have believed in Christ Jesus, in order to be justified by faith in Christ and not by works of the law." And he draws the conclusion: "I do not nullify the grace of God, for if righteousness were through the law, then Christ died for no purpose." To add anything to faith as a requirement is to say that the cross was not enough. Those who try to be justified by the law are, in effect, setting aside Christ's death.

This doctrine is the believer's comfort and the church's boast. It does not make light of sin. It takes sin so seriously that it required the death of God's Son. And it gives certainty: our standing before God does not rise and fall with our performance, but rests on Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 15:6 is the verse behind Romans 4 and Galatians 3. Habakkuk 2:4 stands behind both letters. Psalm 32:1-2 is David's blessing of the forgiven. Isaiah 53:11 says the righteous one will make many to be accounted righteous. Jeremiah 23:6 calls the coming king "The LORD is our righteousness.” 2 Corinthians 5:21 describes the exchange. Philippians 3:8-9 speaks of having a righteousness not my own. Ephesians 2:8-9 and Titus 3:4-7 teach salvation by grace through faith. James 2:14-26 describes faith that works.

STEP 6

Application

Write in your own words the difference between being declared righteous and being made righteous. Say it to someone this week.

When you feel guilty after failing, remind yourself that your standing before God rests on Christ’s work, not on your record.

Thank God for “counted as righteousness.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that he justifies the ungodly.
- Tell him you bring nothing but faith, and even that is his gift.
- Ask him to keep you from trusting in your works.

ROMANS 3:23-24

DAY 731 · WEEK 105

Romans 4:1-25

Abraham's faith counted as righteousness

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 25 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 4:1-25. Paul uses Abraham as a case study. Notice the timing of Abraham's faith, and the kind of faith that Paul describes.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Abraham was the Jewish people's founding father. Rabbis often taught that Abraham was justified because of his obedience, including his willingness to offer Isaac. If Paul can show that Abraham was right with God by faith, the Jewish objections collapse and the Gentiles are brought in. Genesis 15:6 is the verse on which Paul builds, and he reads it with great care.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For what does the Scripture say? Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness" (4:3).
2. "And to the one who does not work but believes in him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is counted as righteousness" (4:5).
3. "Blessed are those whose lawless deeds are forgiven, and whose sins are covered" (4:7).
4. "It was not after, but before" (4:10).
5. "He received the sign of circumcision as a seal of the righteousness that he had by faith while he was still uncircumcised" (4:11).
6. "Who gives life to the dead and calls into existence the things that do not exist" (4:17).
7. "Fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised" (4:21).
8. "Who was delivered up for our trespasses and raised for our justification" (4:25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul starts with a question: what did Abraham find? If he was justified by works, he would have something to boast about, but not before God. The Scripture says that Abraham believed God and it was counted to him as righteousness. Notice the verb "counted." It is bookkeeping language. Righteousness was credited to his account, not earned.

Then Paul reasons from the timeline. When was Abraham counted righteous? Before or after circumcision? Genesis 15 comes before Genesis 17. Abraham was justified long before he was circumcised, and long before the law of Moses. Circumcision was a sign and seal of a righteousness he already had by faith. The consequence is wide: Abraham is the father of all who believe without being circumcised, so that righteousness may be counted to them as well, and the father of the circumcised who also walk in the footsteps of his faith. Jew and Gentile are in the same family on the same terms.

The promise to Abraham did not come through the law, since law brings wrath, but through the righteousness of faith. "That is why it depends on faith, in order that the promise may rest on grace and be guaranteed to all his offspring." This is a central point for understanding the covenants. The Abrahamic promise, that Abraham would be the father of many nations and heir of the world, is fulfilled in Christ, and all who share his faith are his children.

Abraham's faith is described with care. God had promised him a son, but he and Sarah were old; Abraham's body was as good as dead, and Sarah's womb was barren. Yet "no unbelief made him waver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave glory to God, fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised." He believed in a God "who gives life to the dead and calls into existence the things that do not exist." The faith that justifies is trust in the promise-keeping God, who raises the dead.

And the account was written for us. "It will be counted to us who believe in him who raised from the dead Jesus our Lord, who was delivered up for our trespasses and raised for our justification." The cross dealt with our sin; the resurrection is God's public declaration that the payment was accepted. Abraham looked ahead to the promise; we look back to the resurrection. The object of faith is the same God, the one who raises the dead.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 12:1-3, 15:1-6, and 17:1-14 are the Abrahamic narratives. Genesis 22 is the offering of Isaac. Galatians 3:6-9 and 3:26-29 make the same argument. Hebrews 11:8-19 describes Abraham's faith. James 2:21-24 views Abraham's works as evidence of his faith. Psalm 32 is the psalm David wrote. Isaiah 51:1-2 calls Israel to look to Abraham. Luke 1:73-75 speaks of the oath sworn to Abraham. Romans 1:4 and 8:11 connect the resurrection with justification and life.

STEP 6

Application

Compare Abraham's faith with your own. What promise of God are you called to trust, even when it seems impossible?

Give glory to God today out loud. Faith grows by giving glory.

Thank God that the resurrection of Jesus is proof the payment was accepted.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for counting faith as righteousness.
- Tell him what promise you are trusting him for.
- Ask him to strengthen your faith like Abraham's.

DAY 732 · WEEK 105

Psalm 32

Blessed is the one whose transgression is forgiven

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 32. Paul quotes the first two verses in Romans 4:7-8. Read it as David's testimony of what it feels like to be justified, and notice the difference between hiding sin and confessing it.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 32 is a psalm of David, called a "Maskil," which means a teaching psalm. It is traditionally linked to David's sin with Bathsheba and the long months of silence before Nathan confronted him (2 Samuel 11 to 12). It is one of the seven penitential psalms. Augustine loved it so much that he had it written on the wall beside his bed when he was dying. Paul read it in Romans 4 as proof that David knew the blessing of being counted righteous apart from works.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Blessed is the one whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered" (v. 1).
2. "Blessed is the man against whom the LORD counts no iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no deceit" (v. 2).
3. "For when I kept silence, my bones wasted away through my groaning all day long" (v. 3).
4. "For day and night your hand was heavy upon me; my strength was dried up as by the heat of summer" (v. 4).
5. "I acknowledged my sin to you, and I did not cover my iniquity" (v. 5).

6. “I said, I will confess my transgressions to the LORD, and you forgave the iniquity of my sin” (v. 5).
7. “I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go; I will counsel you with my eye upon you” (v. 8).
8. “Many are the sorrows of the wicked, but steadfast love surrounds the one who trusts in the LORD” (v. 10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a double beatitude: “Blessed is the one whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man against whom the LORD counts no iniquity.” Three words for sin appear: transgression (rebellion), sin (missing the mark), and iniquity (twistedness). Three words for forgiveness answer them: forgiven (lifted away), covered, and not counted. Paul will pick up this last phrase, “counts no iniquity,” as the very meaning of justification. Notice that the blessing is not for the one who has never sinned, but for the one whose sin is dealt with.

Then David tells his story. He kept silence, hiding his sin. The result was physical and spiritual misery: his bones wasted away, he groaned all day, and God’s hand was heavy on him day and night. His strength dried up like a field in summer. Unconfessed sin is a heavy load, and the conscience is God’s instrument to press us toward him. Many people have lived with the weight of what they will not admit.

Then the turn: “I acknowledged my sin to you, and I did not cover my iniquity; I said, I will confess my transgressions to the LORD, and you forgave the iniquity of my sin.” The sequence is short. David said he would confess, and God forgave. The speed of God’s forgiveness is striking. There is no penance or delay. The result is relief and safety: in a time of distress the rising waters will not reach him. The LORD becomes a hiding place.

God speaks in verse 8: “I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go; I will counsel you with my eye upon you.” Forgiveness leads to guidance. And then a warning not to be like a horse or mule that needs bit and bridle to stay near. God would rather lead by relationship than force.

The psalm ends with a call to joy: “Be glad in the LORD, and rejoice, you righteous, and shout for joy, all you upright in heart!” For Christians, the foundation of this joy is clearer than it was for David. Our sin was not simply passed over; it was covered by the blood of Christ. The one against whom the Lord counts no sin is the one who is in Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 4:6-8 quotes verses 1-2. 2 Samuel 12:13 records Nathan's word, "The LORD has put away your sin." Psalm 51 is David's longer prayer after the same sin. Proverbs 28:13 says whoever conceals his transgressions will not prosper. 1 John 1:5-10 teaches that if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive. James 5:16 tells us to confess to one another. Hebrews 4:16 invites us to the throne of grace. Psalm 103:10-12 says he removes our transgressions as far as the east is from the west.

STEP 6

Application

Spend a few minutes confessing specific sins to the LORD. Name them. Then thank him for forgiving.

If you are hiding something from God or from a trusted friend, bring it into the light.

Read the last verse aloud as a call to joy.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Acknowledge your sin to God without covering it.
- Thank him for the forgiveness that makes you blessed.
- Ask him to be your hiding place.

Psalm 130

With him is plentiful redemption

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Psalm · 8 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 130. It is a Song of Ascents and one of the penitential psalms. Notice how the psalm moves from the depths to hope, and what the psalmist waits for.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 130 was sung by pilgrims as they climbed to Jerusalem. Martin Luther loved it and called it one of the "Pauline psalms" because it teaches justification by grace as clearly as Paul does. It is only eight verses. John Wesley is said to have heard it sung at St. Paul's Cathedral on the afternoon of the day his heart was "strangely warmed" in 1738.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Out of the depths I cry to you, O LORD!" (v. 1).
2. "O Lord, hear my voice! Let your ears be attentive to the voice of my pleas for mercy!" (v. 2).
3. "If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities, O Lord, who could stand?" (v. 3).
4. "But with you there is forgiveness, that you may be feared" (v. 4).
5. "I wait for the LORD, my soul waits, and in his word I hope" (v. 5).
6. "My soul waits for the Lord more than watchmen for the morning" (v. 6).
7. "For with the LORD there is steadfast love, and with him is plentiful redemption" (v. 7).
8. "And he will redeem Israel from all his iniquities" (v. 8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins at the bottom: “Out of the depths I cry to you, O LORD!” The depths are deep waters, a place of overwhelming trouble. The psalm makes clear that the deepest trouble is sin. The psalmist cries for mercy, aware that he has no claim on God.

The question in verse 3 is among the most searching in the Bible: “If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities, O Lord, who could stand?” The answer is no one. If God kept a record of every sin, no one would survive. This is Romans 3: none is righteous, no, not one. But the psalm turns on one word, “But.” “But with you there is forgiveness, that you may be feared.” The forgiveness is not a contradiction of God’s holiness. It is the result of his character. And the effect of forgiveness is not carelessness but reverence. The more we understand the cost of forgiveness, the more we fear God in the right way, with awe and love.

Next the psalmist waits. “I wait for the LORD, my soul waits, and in his word I hope.” He has no other support. He waits “more than watchmen for the morning,” repeated for emphasis. A night watchman on a city wall knows that morning will come, and longs for it. So the believer waits with certain hope for the LORD. Notice that hope is rooted in his word. The promises of God are the ground of waiting.

Then the psalmist turns to the whole community. “O Israel, hope in the LORD! For with the LORD there is steadfast love, and with him is plentiful redemption.” The word “plentiful” means abundant, overflowing. There is more redemption in God than sin in us. “And he will redeem Israel from all his iniquities.” All of them. For us, this promise has been fulfilled at the cross. Jesus’ name means “he will save his people from their sins” (Matthew 1:21). The plentiful redemption has been paid.

The psalm moves from the depths to the dawn. Many Christians have prayed it in seasons of guilt, depression, and delay. It teaches us that the way out of the depths is to cry to the LORD, to cling to his forgiveness, and to wait for him with hope.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 51 and Psalm 32 are other penitential psalms. Exodus 34:6-7 tells of the LORD who forgives iniquity. Micah 7:18-19 asks who is a God like you, pardoning iniquity. Isaiah 40:31 speaks of those who wait on the LORD. Lamentations 3:25-26 says the LORD is good to those who wait for him. Matthew 1:21 gives the meaning of Jesus’ name. Titus 2:14 says Christ gave himself to redeem us from all lawlessness. Ephesians 1:7 says we have redemption through his blood. 1 Peter 1:18-19 speaks of the precious blood of Christ.

STEP 6

Application

Pray this psalm if you are in a low place. If you are not, pray it for someone who is.

Wait on the LORD in one area today without rushing. Let his word be your hope.

Count the gifts of redemption you have received in Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Cry to God out of the depths.
- Thank him that with him there is forgiveness and plentiful redemption.
- Wait for him and trust his word.

DAY 734 · WEEK 105

Psalm 143:1-12

Enter not into judgment with your servant

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 143. It is the last of the penitential psalms. Paul alludes to verse 2 in Romans 3:20 and Galatians 2:16. Notice the combination of confession, longing, and request for guidance.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 143 is a prayer of David, perhaps from the time when Absalom pursued him. The enemy is real, but the deeper problem is that David knows that he cannot stand on his own merit before God. Verse 2 is the key line, and Paul used it to prove that no one is justified by works. With Psalms 32 and 130, it completes a trio on the theme of coming to God as a sinner.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Hear my prayer, O LORD; give ear to my pleas for mercy! In your faithfulness answer me, in your righteousness!” (v. 1).
2. “Enter not into judgment with your servant, for no one living is righteous before you” (v. 2).
3. “Therefore my spirit faints within me; my heart within me is appalled” (v. 4).
4. “I remember the days of old; I meditate on all that you have done; I ponder the work of your hands” (v. 5).
5. “I stretch out my hands to you; my soul thirsts for you like a parched land” (v. 6).
6. “Let me hear in the morning of your steadfast love, for in you I trust” (v. 8).
7. “Teach me to do your will, for you are my God! Let your good Spirit lead me on level ground!” (v. 10).

8 “For your name’s sake, O LORD, preserve my life! In your righteousness bring my soul out of trouble!” (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David opens by appealing to God’s faithfulness and righteousness. This is unusual. Normally one might expect him to appeal to his own innocence. Instead he appeals to God’s character. He is asking God to act in keeping with his own promises. And then the line that Paul loves: “Enter not into judgment with your servant, for no one living is righteous before you.” David does not argue his case. He asks God not to bring him to court, because he would lose. This is the prayer of a man who understands that he is not righteous in himself. It is close to the cry of Romans 3.

The enemy has crushed David’s life to the ground, and he sits in darkness like those long dead. His spirit faints and his heart is appalled. This is an honest picture of despair, and the Bible does not hide it. What does David do? He remembers. “I remember the days of old; I meditate on all that you have done; I ponder the work of your hands.” When the present is dark, he looks at what God has done in the past. For Christians, the great work to remember is the cross and the resurrection.

He stretches out his hands, and his soul thirsts for God like parched land. Verses 7 to 10 are a series of brief requests: answer me quickly; let me hear of your steadfast love in the morning; make me know the way I should go; deliver me; teach me to do your will. Notice the order. First he asks to hear of God’s love, and then for guidance. We cannot follow God’s will without first resting in his love. And the prayer, “Let your good Spirit lead me on level ground,” anticipates the Spirit’s guidance for the believer.

The final plea rests on God’s name: “For your name’s sake, O LORD, preserve my life! In your righteousness bring my soul out of trouble.” David does not ask because he deserves it, but for the sake of God’s glory. In the end, he asks God to cut off his enemies, “for I am your servant.” The psalm ends with confidence in the relationship, not in himself.

How does this prepare us for Romans 5? We have just learned that no living person is righteous before God. The answer to David’s fear is the gospel: in Christ, God does enter into judgment, but he enters it on our behalf. The Judge himself has stood in the dock in our place.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 3:20 and Galatians 2:16 allude to verse 2. Psalm 51 and Psalm 130 are related. Job 9:2 and 25:4 also ask how a man can be righteous before God. Psalm 77:11-12 also speaks of remembering God's works. Psalm 63:1 is another thirst psalm. Romans 8:14 says all who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God. Nehemiah 9:20 says God gave his good Spirit to instruct. Hebrews 4:15-16 says we have a high priest who sympathizes with our weakness.

STEP 6

Application

Remember specific works of God in your life. Write down three.

Pray verse 8 tomorrow morning, before checking your phone: let me hear of your steadfast love.

Ask the Spirit to lead you on level ground, and listen for his answer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God not to enter into judgment with you, since no one living is righteous.
- Ask him to teach you to do his will.
- Ask him to lead you on level ground.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and are justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus."

ROMANS 3:23-24

REST

Meditation

These two verses hold the whole gospel in a few lines. They tell the problem and the solution.

"For all have sinned." The word "all" leaves no exceptions. The Jew with the law and the Gentile without it, the moral and the immoral, the religious and the irreligious. No one is left out.

"And fall short of the glory of God." Sin is not only breaking rules. It is falling short of the purpose for which we were made: to reflect God's glory. We were made to image him, and we have failed.

"And are justified." Here is the turn. The word is a legal one: declared righteous, acquitted, accepted. This is God's verdict over those who believe.

"By his grace as a gift." Not by merit or effort, but freely. A gift cannot be earned, only received. Grace means undeserved favor, and the word "gift" underlines it.

“Through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus.” Redemption means buying back, as a slave is ransomed. The price was the blood of Christ. All of this is “in Christ Jesus.” Outside of him there is no justification; in him there is no condemnation.

If you are tempted to think you are too bad to be forgiven, or good enough not to need it, say these verses. They fit both temptations.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you saw Paul’s verdict and the gospel that answers it. In Romans 3, every mouth was stopped: no one is righteous, and the law brings knowledge of sin. Then came the great “But now”: the righteousness of God has been manifested apart from the law, and we are justified by grace as a gift, through the redemption in Christ Jesus, whom God put forward as a propitiation by his blood. In a doctrinal pause, you studied justification by faith alone: God declares sinners righteous because Christ’s righteousness is counted as theirs. Romans 4 used Abraham, who believed God and was counted righteous before circumcision and long before the law. Three psalms of repentance gave the heart’s side: Psalm 32, the blessing of the one whose sin is not counted; Psalm 130, with the LORD there is plentiful redemption; and Psalm 143, enter not into judgment with your servant.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Which do you find harder to believe: that you are a sinner who cannot save yourself, or that you are fully forgiven and accepted in Christ? Why?

Paul says Jesus was put forward as a propitiation so that God could be both just and the justifier of the one who has faith. How does the cross show both God’s justice and God’s love at once?

David hid his sin and his bones wasted away, and then he confessed and was forgiven. Is there a sin you have been carrying in silence? What would it look like to confess it this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that you are justified by grace as a gift.

Rest in the work that Christ finished.

Tell him that you are not earning it.

Romans 5:1-21

Peace with God; Adam and Christ

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 5:1-21. The chapter moves from the benefits of justification to the way sin and grace work in history through two men, Adam and Christ. Read verses 1-11 for the experience of salvation, and 12-21 for the structure of salvation history.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapters 1 to 4 have shown that we are justified by faith. Chapter 5 begins with the word "Therefore." What follows from justification? First, peace, access, and hope. Then Paul steps back and places the whole human story in two heads: Adam, in whom all die, and Christ, in whom all who believe are made alive. This is a pivotal chapter for understanding how the covenants fit together.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Therefore, since we have been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" (5:1).
2. "And hope does not put us to shame, because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit who has been given to us" (5:5).
3. "But God shows his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (5:8).
4. "For if while we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, now that we are reconciled, shall we be saved by his life" (5:10).
5. "Therefore, just as sin came into the world through one man, and death through sin, and so death spread to all men because all sinned" (5:12).

6 “Adam, who was a type of the one who was to come” (5:14).

7 “For as by the one man’s disobedience the many were made sinners, so by the one man’s obedience the many will be made righteous” (5:19).

8 “But where sin increased, grace abounded all the more” (5:20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“Therefore, since we have been justified by faith, we have peace with God.” This is peace as a status, an end to hostility. We were enemies, and now we are at peace. We have access by faith into the grace in which we stand, and we rejoice in the hope of the glory of God. Paul even says we rejoice in our sufferings, because suffering produces endurance, endurance character, and character hope. And hope does not disappoint us because God’s love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit. Notice that all three persons of the Trinity are active: peace with God the Father through the Son, and the Spirit pouring love into our hearts.

The proof of God’s love is the cross. “While we were still sinners, Christ died for us.” We were weak, ungodly, sinners, and enemies. Few would die for a righteous man, though perhaps for a good man someone would dare. But Christ died for the ungodly. And Paul reasons from the greater to the lesser: if God did the hard thing while we were enemies, he will do the easy thing now that we are reconciled. We will be saved from the wrath through him. We rejoice in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

Then comes the great comparison, from verse 12. Sin entered the world through one man, Adam, and death through sin, so death spread to all because all sinned. This does not simply mean that Adam set a bad example. Adam acted as the head of the human race, and what he did had consequences for all who were in him. Christians have explained the details differently: some hold that Adam’s guilt is directly counted to us (the federal headship view), others that we inherit a corrupt nature and then sin ourselves. All agree that sin and death came through Adam and cannot be escaped by our own efforts. Paul calls Adam “a type of the one who was to come.”

Christ is the second Adam. The parallel is not exact: the free gift is not like the trespass. If many died through one man’s trespass, much more have the grace of God and the free gift by the grace of the one man Jesus Christ abounded for many. As one trespass led to condemnation for all, so one act of righteousness leads to justification and life. The point is stated plainly: “as by the one man’s disobedience the many were made sinners, so by the one man’s obedience the many will be made righteous.”

Where did the law fit in? It came in to increase the trespass, to show the true nature of sin, "but where sin increased, grace abounded all the more, so that, as sin reigned in death, grace also might reign through righteousness leading to eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Grace wins. Grace is stronger than sin.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 2 to 3 is the account of Adam and the fall. 1 Corinthians 15:21-22 and 15:45-49 contrast Adam and Christ. Luke 3:38 and Luke 4 show Jesus as the second Adam, tested in the wilderness. Hebrews 2:5-18 speaks of Christ as the true Man. Colossians 1:19-22 speaks of reconciliation. 2 Corinthians 5:18-21 is the ministry of reconciliation. Ephesians 2:1-10 describes our being made alive. Isaiah 53:11 says the righteous one will make many to be accounted righteous. 1 John 4:10 says love consists in that he loved us and sent his Son.

STEP 6

Application

Count your suffering as a means God uses to build hope. Is there an area where you can see this?

Meditate on Romans 5:8 today. Let it silence your doubts about God's love.

Thank Jesus for being the second Adam, who obeyed where Adam failed.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for peace with him through Jesus.
- Thank him for pouring his love into your heart by the Spirit.
- Thank him for loving you while you were a sinner.

Union with Christ

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 6:1-14, Galatians 2:20, and Ephesians 2:4-10. Today is a doctrinal pause on union with Christ. Notice the repeated phrase “with him” and “in Christ,” and how the believer’s past, present, and future are bound to his.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

If we are justified by grace and where sin increased grace abounded all the more, a person might ask: why not keep sinning so that grace may increase? Paul replies with horror, “By no means!” and gives his answer: a believer cannot go on living in sin, because he has been united to Christ in his death and resurrection. Union with Christ is the deepest category of the Christian life. John Calvin said that Christ and all his benefits come to us through union with him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?” (Romans 6:3).
2. “We were buried therefore with him by baptism into death, in order that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, we too might walk in newness of life” (Romans 6:4).
3. “For if we have been united with him in a death like his, we shall certainly be united with him in a resurrection like his” (Romans 6:5).
4. “We know that our old self was crucified with him in order that the body of sin might be brought to nothing, so that we would no longer be enslaved to sin” (Romans 6:6).

5. “So you also must consider yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus” (Romans 6:11).
6. “I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me” (Galatians 2:20).
7. “And raised us up with him and seated us with him in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus” (Ephesians 2:6).
8. “For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God” (Ephesians 2:8).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Union with Christ means that every believer is joined to Christ by the Spirit through faith, so that what is true of him becomes true of us. The New Testament expresses this in phrases such as “in Christ,” “with Christ,” and “Christ in you,” which appear well over a hundred times. This is not a mere figure of speech. It is a real, spiritual, and personal bond. Paul uses images: a body and its head, a vine and its branches, a husband and wife, a building and its cornerstone.

Union with Christ is the source of every saving benefit. Justification: we are counted righteous because we are in him. Sanctification: we are changed because we share his death and resurrection life. Adoption: we are sons because we are in the Son. Perseverance: nothing can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus. And glorification: we will be raised as he was raised. It also shows why the gospel is not only forgiveness but a new life. In Romans 6, the believer’s old self was crucified with Christ, and he now walks in newness of life. The old master, sin, has lost its dominion.

Notice the three tenses of union with Christ. We have died with him (past). We now live to God in him (present). We will be raised with him (future). In Ephesians 2, Paul speaks of the future as already done: God “raised us up with him and seated us with him in the heavenly places.” Our life is hidden with Christ in God (Colossians 3:3).

Christians differ on whether “baptized into Christ” in Romans 6:3 refers primarily to water baptism, or to the Spirit’s baptism that joins us to Christ, which water baptism pictures. Baptists and Presbyterians also differ about who should be baptized and how. All agree that baptism points to the union with Christ in his death and resurrection that is received by faith.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul's question, "Are we to continue in sin that grace may abound?" is answered, "By no means! How can we who died to sin still live in it?" The believer's relationship to sin has been broken, not because he has become sinless, but because he has died. He now belongs to another.

"Do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?" Paul assumes that every Christian knows this. Baptism pictures union: we go under with Christ in death and come up with him in resurrection. The purpose is clear: "that we too might walk in newness of life." The Christian life is not a self-improvement program. It is a resurrection life.

The logic is expressed in verses 5 to 7: "If we have been united with him in a death like his, we shall certainly be united with him in a resurrection like his." The "old self," the person we were in Adam, was crucified with Christ. The result is not perfection, but freedom: we are no longer slaves to sin. "For one who has died has been set free from sin." And then comes the command, in three steps. First "consider": "You also must consider yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus." Count it true. Then, "Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body." Finally, present yourselves to God. The commands are built on the indicatives. We obey because of who we are in Christ.

Galatians 2:20 is the personal confession: "I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me." Notice the final clause. Paul's identity is bound up with Christ's love and self-giving.

Ephesians 2 sets the same truth in a wider frame. We were dead in trespasses, but God, being rich in mercy, made us alive together with Christ, raised us up with him, and seated us with him in the heavenly places. Why? "So that in the coming ages he might show the immeasurable riches of his grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus." And it is all of grace: "For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God."

STEP 5

Connection

John 15:1-8 is the vine and the branches. Colossians 2:11-13 and 3:1-4 speak of being buried and raised with Christ. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. 1 Corinthians 12:12-13 describes the body of Christ. Ephesians 1:3-14 lists the blessings "in Christ." Ephesians 5:25-32 speaks of the mystery of Christ and the church. Galatians 3:26-29 says all are one in Christ Jesus. Romans 8:1 says there is no condemnation for those in Christ Jesus. 2 Peter 1:4 speaks of sharing in the divine nature.

STEP 6

Application

Say the word "consider" to yourself today when you are tempted: consider yourself dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus.

Read Galatians 2:20 aloud and make it your own confession.

Think about baptism, yours or someone else's, as a picture of union with Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that in Christ you have died to sin and been raised to new life.
- Ask him to help you live in that union.
- Tell him where you are tempted to live as if it were not true.

Romans 6:1-23

Dead to sin, alive to God; slaves of righteousness

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 23 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 6:1-23. You studied the first half of this chapter in the doctrinal pause on union with Christ. Today read the whole chapter, and focus on the language of slavery and freedom in verses 15-23.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has said that believers have died to sin. In the second half of chapter 6, he uses the picture of slavery to explain the change of masters. Everyone serves something. The question is not whether we will be slaves but whose. Paul's readers in Rome knew slavery well, and the image was both vivid and humbling.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "What shall we say then? Are we to continue in sin that grace may abound?" (6:1).
2. "By no means! How can we who died to sin still live in it?" (6:2).
3. "For one who has died has been set free from sin" (6:7).
4. "Present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life" (6:13).
5. "But thanks be to God, that you who were once slaves of sin have become obedient from the heart to the standard of teaching to which you were committed" (6:17).
6. "And, having been set free from sin, have become slaves of righteousness" (6:18).
7. "But now that you have been set free from sin and have become slaves of God, the fruit you get leads to sanctification and its end, eternal life" (6:22).
8. "For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (6:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The chapter opens with an objection that Paul takes very seriously. If grace is free, why not sin more? The answer in the first half is union with Christ. In the second half, Paul adds a second argument: the idea of two masters.

In verses 12 to 14, he gives practical commands. “Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, to make you obey its passions.” Sin is a king. It still tries to rule. Do not present your members, hands, eyes, tongue, to sin as instruments of unrighteousness, but present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life. And the promise: “Sin will have no dominion over you, since you are not under law but under grace.” Grace is not a license, but a power.

Then the second question: “Are we to sin because we are not under law but under grace? By no means!” Paul turns to slavery. “Do you not know that if you present yourselves to anyone as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness?” There is no neutral ground. We are slaves of sin or slaves of righteousness. But the change has happened: “Thanks be to God, that you who were once slaves of sin have become obedient from the heart to the standard of teaching to which you were committed.” The gospel has teaching, and obedience from the heart is the evidence of conversion.

The paradox is that serving God is freedom. Slavery to sin offers apparent liberty but delivers shame: “What fruit were you getting at that time from the things of which you are now ashamed? For the end of those things is death.” Slavery to God yields fruit that leads to sanctification and its end, eternal life. The believer’s obedience is not a way to earn salvation, but a growing holiness that expresses it.

The chapter ends with one of the best-known verses of Romans: “For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.” Wages are earned; a gift is not. Sin pays what it owes: death. God gives what we have not earned: eternal life. And it is found only “in Christ Jesus our Lord.” The verse sums up the whole letter so far.

STEP 5

Connection

John 8:34-36 says everyone who commits sin is a slave to sin, but the Son sets free. Galatians 5:1 says for freedom Christ has set us free. 1 Peter 2:16 calls us to live as people who are free, yet servants of God. Matthew 6:24 says no one can serve two masters. Ephesians 2:1-3 describes our former life. 2 Timothy 2:19 speaks of departing from iniquity. Titus 2:11-14 speaks of grace training us to renounce ungodliness. Genesis 2:17 and Ezekiel 18:20 speak of death as the wage of sin.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what has been mastering you. Name the idol, habit, or fear that most often rules your decisions.

Present yourself to God today. Give him your hands, your eyes, and your tongue for one task.

Memorize Romans 6:23 and share it with a friend.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for setting you free from sin.

Offer yourself to him as an instrument of righteousness, and name one way.

Ask him not to let sin reign in you.

Romans 7:1-25

The law's limits; the wretched man's cry

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 25 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 7:1-25. This is one of the most debated chapters in the Bible. Read verses 1-6 on being released from the law, verses 7-13 on the law and sin, and verses 14-25 on the struggle. Notice the cry in verse 24 and the answer in verse 25.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has said that believers are not under law but under grace (6:14). A listener might ask, "Is the law then sin?" Chapter 7 answers. The law is holy, righteous, and good, but it cannot save or sanctify, because it meets a heart already enslaved to sin. The chapter ends with the cry of a man who sees the war within himself. Christians have argued for centuries about who this "I" is.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Likewise, my brothers, you also have died to the law through the body of Christ, so that you may belong to another, to him who has been raised from the dead, in order that we may bear fruit for God" (7:4).
2. "What shall we say then? That the law is sin? By no means! Yet if it had not been for the law, I would not have known sin" (7:7).
3. "So then, the law is holy, and the commandment is holy and righteous and good" (7:12).
4. "For I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate" (7:15).
5. "For I know that nothing good dwells in me, that is, in my flesh" (7:18).
6. "For I delight in the law of God, in my inner being" (7:22).

7. “Wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from this body of death?” (7:24).

8. “Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord!” (7:25).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul opens with an illustration from marriage. A wife is bound to her husband as long as he lives; if he dies, she is free to marry another. In the same way, believers have “died to the law through the body of Christ, so that you may belong to another, to him who has been raised from the dead.” The goal is fruit for God. Before, “our sinful passions, aroused by the law, were at work in our members to bear fruit for death.” Now we serve “in the new way of the Spirit and not in the old way of the written code.” This is the contrast between the old covenant and the new, a key idea in the progressive covenantal reading: the Mosaic covenant has served its purpose and been fulfilled in Christ.

Is the law then to blame? “By no means!” The law shows what sin is. Paul uses the tenth commandment, “You shall not covet,” as an example. Sin took the opportunity in the commandment to produce all kinds of covetousness. “So the law is holy, and the commandment is holy and righteous and good.” The problem is not the law but sin, which uses the good law to show its evil.

Then, from verse 14, Paul shifts into the present tense and speaks of a deep inner conflict. “I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate.” “I have the desire to do what is right, but not the ability to carry it out.” “I delight in the law of God, in my inner being, but I see in my members another law waging war against the law of my mind.” He cries: “Wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from this body of death?” And the answer: “Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord!”

Who is this speaker? Faithful interpreters differ. Some (Augustine in his later writings, Luther, Calvin, and many Reformed writers) see the regenerate Christian, because the speaker delights in God’s law and hates sin, which an unbeliever would not. Others (Origen, and many modern scholars) see Paul describing the person under the law before Christ, or Israel under Sinai, speaking in the first person for dramatic effect. Both agree on the main point: the law cannot rescue, and only Christ can. Both also agree that the believer’s experience includes a real struggle with remaining sin (Galatians 5:17). The cry of verse 24 is not the last word. Chapter 8 begins, “There is therefore now no condemnation.”

If you have felt this conflict, you are not strange. It is evidence that something has changed, that you want what is good. The answer is not to try harder but to look to the deliverer.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 20:17 is the tenth commandment. Jeremiah 31:31-34 and Ezekiel 36:26-27 promise the new covenant. Galatians 5:16-24 describes the war between flesh and Spirit. Galatians 3:19-25 explains the purpose of the law as a guardian until Christ. 2 Corinthians 3:4-18 contrasts the old and new covenants. Hebrews 8:6-13 says the new covenant is better. Psalm 119 shows delight in the law. 1 John 1:8-2:2 deals with remaining sin and our advocate.

STEP 6

Application

Name an area where you do what you do not want. Bring it to Christ, not just to your willpower.

Say verse 25 aloud as an answer to your own wretchedness.

Thank God that the law is holy, and that Christ has done what the law could not.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you do what you hate and fail to do what you want.
- Cry, “Wretched man that I am,” and thank him for Jesus.
- Thank him that there is now no condemnation.

Sanctification

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 6:1-14, 1 Thessalonians 4:1-8, and Philippians 2:12-13. Today is a doctrinal pause on sanctification: how God makes believers holy. Notice who acts and what the believer is told to do.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After chapters on justification and a chapter on the war within, Romans moves toward the Spirit's work in chapter 8. Today we pause to ask: if we are justified by faith alone, how does a Christian grow? The New Testament uses the word sanctification to describe the process of being made holy, set apart for God and conformed to the image of Christ. Paul wrote to the Thessalonians, a young church in a pagan city, to urge them to live in holiness. And to the Philippians he gave the famous pairing of God's work and ours.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, to make you obey its passions" (Romans 6:12).
2. "But present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life" (Romans 6:13).
3. "For sin will have no dominion over you, since you are not under law but under grace" (Romans 6:14).
4. "That, as you received from us how you ought to walk and to please God, just as you are doing, you do so more and more" (1 Thessalonians 4:1).

5. “For this is the will of God, your sanctification” (1 Thessalonians 4:3).
6. “For God has not called us for impurity, but in holiness” (1 Thessalonians 4:7).
7. “Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling” (Philippians 2:12).
8. “For it is God who works in you, both to will and to work for his good pleasure” (Philippians 2:13).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Sanctification is the work of God by which he makes believers holy. The Bible speaks of it in three ways. First, definitive sanctification: at conversion, every believer is set apart for God. Paul calls the Corinthians “sanctified in Christ Jesus” even while he rebukes them (1 Corinthians 1:2). Second, progressive sanctification: throughout life, the Spirit conforms us to Christ, so that we put to death the old ways and grow in love, joy, peace, patience, and the rest of the fruit of the Spirit. Third, final sanctification: when Christ returns, we will be made perfectly like him (1 John 3:2).

The key to Philippians 2:12-13 is that both are true at once. “Work out your own salvation” does not mean earn it; it means carry it into every area of life. And the reason is: “for it is God who works in you, both to will and to work.” God’s work does not replace ours; it empowers it. We are active, but we are not alone. This is why Christians pray, read, fight sin, and serve, and then give God the credit.

Sanctification differs from justification. Justification is a legal declaration, once for all and complete, while sanctification is a lifelong process that is never completed in this life. Justification is wholly God’s act, while in sanctification we cooperate by the Spirit’s power. But they cannot be separated. Everyone whom God justifies, he sanctifies. Holiness is not a condition for being accepted; it is the fruit of being accepted.

The ordinary means of sanctification are the word of God, prayer, the fellowship of the church, the Lord’s Supper, and suffering. Christians differ about whether believers can reach a state of entire sanctification or sinless perfection in this life. Wesleyans hold that perfect love is possible; Reformed Christians hold that sin remains until death while the Spirit’s work grows. All agree that the call to holiness is real and urgent, and that no one can see the Lord without it (Hebrews 12:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Romans 6:12-14, Paul uses commands that rest on the facts of union with Christ. Do not let sin reign. Do not offer your members to sin. Offer yourselves to God. The ground of obedience is grace: "You are not under law but under grace." The law could command but not empower. Grace both forgives and strengthens. This is why the New Testament never treats holiness as a condition of salvation but always as its result.

In 1 Thessalonians 4, Paul writes to young believers who have turned from idols. "This is the will of God, your sanctification: that you abstain from sexual immorality; that each of you know how to control his own body in holiness and honor, not in the passion of lust like the Gentiles who do not know God." Sanctification is concrete. It touches our bodies, our habits, our relationships. And Paul adds that "God has not called us for impurity, but in holiness. Therefore whoever disregards this, disregards not man but God, who gives his Holy Spirit to you." The Spirit is the Holy Spirit, and he is the one who makes us holy. Notice that Paul urges them to do this "more and more." Growth is expected.

The pairing in Philippians 2 is the most balanced summary. "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." The phrase conveys reverence, not terror. And then the encouragement: God is the one at work in you, both to will and to work for his good pleasure. Even the desire to obey is his gift. This should keep us from pride when we obey and from despair when we fail.

So what do you do? Fight sin by the Spirit, using the means of grace. Remember who you are in Christ. Confess when you fall, and get up. And trust the one who began a good work in you to bring it to completion (Philippians 1:6).

STEP 5

Connection

1 Corinthians 1:2 and 6:11 speak of being sanctified. John 17:17 is Jesus' prayer, "Sanctify them in the truth; your word is truth." Romans 8:13 says by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body. Galatians 5:16-25 describes walking by the Spirit. 2 Corinthians 3:18 says we are being transformed into the same image. Hebrews 12:1-14 speaks of strife toward holiness. 1 Peter 1:13-16 calls us to be holy as he is holy. 1 John 3:2-3 gives the final hope. Ezekiel 36:27 promises the Spirit to cause us to walk in his statutes.

STEP 6

Application

Choose one specific area of obedience to work on this week. Ask the Spirit for help, and tell someone who will ask you about it.

When you obey, thank God. When you fail, confess and move on. Neither pride nor despair.

Read Philippians 1:6 as an encouragement that God will finish what he began.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for setting you apart in Christ.

Ask him to work in you both to will and to work for his good pleasure.

Tell him where you want to grow.

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 8:1-39. Many Christians call this the greatest chapter in the Bible. Read it slowly, perhaps in two sittings: verses 1-17 on life in the Spirit, and verses 18-39 on suffering, glory, and the love of God.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 7 ended with the cry "Wretched man that I am!" Chapter 8 begins with the answer: no condemnation. The Holy Spirit, mentioned only a few times in the first seven chapters, appears nearly twenty times here. The chapter moves from the Spirit's work within, to the groaning of creation, to the unbreakable love of God. It is a summit of the Bible, and many believers have memorized it.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus" (8:1).
2. "You, however, are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if in fact the Spirit of God dwells in you" (8:9).
3. "For you did not receive the spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, but you have received the Spirit of adoption as sons, by whom we cry, Abba! Father!" (8:15).
4. "For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed to us" (8:18).
5. "And we know that for those who love God all things work together for good, for those who are called according to his purpose" (8:28).
6. "If God is for us, who can be against us?" (8:31).

7. “He who did not spare his own Son but gave him up for us all, how will he not also with him graciously give us all things?” (8:32).

8. “Nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord” (8:39).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus.” The word “now” is emphatic: the verdict is already given. The reason: “the law of the Spirit of life has set you free in Christ Jesus from the law of sin and death.” What the law could not do, weakened by the flesh, God did: by sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and for sin, he condemned sin in the flesh. The condemnation fell on Christ so that none falls on us. And the result is that the righteous requirement of the law is fulfilled in us, who walk according to the Spirit.

Verses 5 to 11 contrast two ways of living: the mind set on the flesh is death, and the mind set on the Spirit is life and peace. Every Christian has the Spirit: “Anyone who does not have the Spirit of Christ does not belong to him.” And the Spirit who raised Jesus from the dead will give life to our mortal bodies. The resurrection is already at work in us.

Verses 12 to 17 speak of adoption. We are not debtors to the flesh. By the Spirit we put to death the deeds of the body. All who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God. The Spirit does not make us fearful slaves but sons who cry “Abba! Father!” (an Aramaic word of intimate address). The Spirit himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, then heirs, fellow heirs with Christ, provided we suffer with him so that we may also be glorified with him.

Verses 18 to 27 deal with suffering. The present sufferings are not worth comparing with the coming glory. Creation itself waits with eager longing, subjected to futility, groaning as in the pains of childbirth. We also groan, waiting for adoption, the redemption of our bodies. “In this hope we were saved.” And the Spirit helps us in our weakness: “We do not know what to pray for as we ought, but the Spirit himself intercedes for us with groanings too deep for words.”

Then the golden chain. “We know that for those who love God all things work together for good, for those who are called according to his purpose.” This is not that all things are good, but that God works all things for the good of his people, and the good is defined in verse 29: to be conformed to the image of his Son. “For those whom he foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son… and those whom he predestined he also called, and those whom he called he also justified, and those whom he justified he also glorified.” Notice that the chain has no broken links. Everyone who is justified will be glorified. Christians differ about the meaning of "foreknew": Reformed readers hold that it means God set his love on them beforehand, while others hold that it refers to God's foreknowledge of their faith. All agree that salvation is secured by God's purpose.

Paul ends with a series of questions that no one can answer against us. "If God is for us, who can be against us?" "He who did not spare his own Son but gave him up for us all, how will he not also with him graciously give us all things?" "Who shall bring any charge against God's elect? It is God who justifies." "Who is to condemn? Christ Jesus is the one who died, more than that, who was raised, who is at the right hand of God, who indeed is interceding for us." "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?" Not tribulation, distress, persecution, famine, nakedness, danger, or sword. "In all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us." And the closing: "neither death nor life, nor angels nor rulers, nor things present nor things to come, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord."

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 5:1-11 anticipates the confidence of this chapter. John 14:15-17 and 16:7-15 promise the Spirit. Galatians 4:4-7 also speaks of the Spirit of adoption. Genesis 3:17-19 explains why creation groans. Isaiah 65:17-25 and Revelation 21:1-5 promise a new creation. Ephesians 1:3-14 speaks of election and the Spirit as a seal. Philippians 1:6 and John 10:28-29 assure perseverance. Psalm 44:22 is quoted in verse 36. Hebrews 7:25 says Christ always lives to make intercession for us. 1 John 4:9-10 speaks of God's love in sending his Son.

STEP 6

Application

Read verse 1 aloud, and put your name in it: there is now no condemnation for me.

Name a present suffering. Compare it to the glory to come, as Paul does, without minimizing the pain.

Memorize verses 38 and 39. Say them when you wake in the night.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that there is now no condemnation for you in Christ.

Thank him for the Spirit of adoption who lets you cry, “Abba, Father.”

Tell him what you want to be sure cannot separate you from his love.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"But God shows his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us."

ROMANS 5:8

REST

Meditation

This verse is the center of the gospel in a single sentence.

"But God shows his love for us." The verse begins with a contrast. The previous verses spoke of how rare it is for anyone to die for another. "But God." His love is a different kind of love. The word "shows" means to demonstrate or prove. The cross is God's own demonstration of his love.

"In that while we were still sinners." Notice the timing. Not after we cleaned up, or when we decided to follow him. We were still sinners, still enemies, still without strength. God's love does not wait for us to be lovable.

"Christ died for us." Here is the proof. God did not simply declare love; he acted at great cost. Christ died, and he died "for us," in our place and for our benefit.

This verse is not just history; it is the foundation for security. If God loved us when we were sinners, how much more will he keep us now that we are his children (5:9-10)? Our assurance does not rest on our record but on his demonstration.

When you doubt that God loves you, say this verse. The cross is the answer.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you saw what flows from justification. Romans 5 began with peace with God, access to grace, and hope that does not put us to shame, and then traced our story in two heads: Adam, through whom sin and death came, and Christ, through whom the free gift of righteousness and life comes. A doctrinal pause on union with Christ showed that believers have died and risen with him. Romans 6 answered the charge that grace encourages sin: we were slaves of sin and have become slaves of righteousness, and the wages of sin is death but the free gift of God is eternal life. Romans 7 gave the struggle with the law and the cry of the wretched man, answered by Jesus Christ our Lord. A second doctrinal pause considered sanctification, in which God works in us both to will and to work. Then Romans 8 opened with no condemnation and closed with the unbreakable love of God.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says God showed his love for us while we were still sinners. How does it change you to know that God's love did not wait for you to improve?

Romans 5 says that in Adam all died and in Christ all who believe are made righteous. Where do you still try to live as if you were under Adam's headship, relying on yourself?

Romans 8:1 says there is now no condemnation. Which voice do you hear most often, the voice of condemnation or the voice of the Spirit? What would it take to listen to the second?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for dying for you while you were still a sinner.

Ask him to silence the voice of condemnation.

Rest in his love.

DAY 743 · WEEK 107

Romans 9:1-33

God's sovereign election; Israel and the promise

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 33 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 9:1-33. This chapter begins three chapters (9 to 11) on God's purposes for Israel. Read it prayerfully, noting Paul's sorrow, his focus on God's mercy, and the question of who belongs to Israel.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Romans 8 ended with the certainty that nothing can separate believers from God's love. A Jewish reader might object: if God's promises to Israel have failed, how can we trust his promises to us? Paul takes up this question in chapters 9 to 11. Chapter 9 explains that God's word has not failed, because the promise always worked by election, not by physical descent. This chapter has been argued over for centuries, and it deserves careful and humble reading.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I have great sorrow and unceasing anguish in my heart" (9:2).
2. "To them belong the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the worship, and the promises" (9:4).
3. "But it is not as though the word of God has failed. For not all who are descended from Israel belong to Israel" (9:6).
4. "For he says to Moses, I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion" (9:15).
5. "So then it depends not on human will or exertion, but on God, who has mercy" (9:16).
6. "But who are you, O man, to answer back to God?" (9:20).

7. “Those who were not my people I will call my people, and her who was not beloved I will call beloved” (9:25).

8. “Behold, I am laying in Zion a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offense; and whoever believes in him will not be put to shame” (9:33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with grief. “I am speaking the truth in Christ… I have great sorrow and unceasing anguish in my heart. For I could wish that I myself were accursed and cut off from Christ for the sake of my brothers.” Like Moses, who asked to be blotted out for the sake of the people (Exodus 32:32), Paul loves his people so much that he would give up his own salvation if it could save them. This is the heart of a missionary. Any teaching of election that does not produce this kind of love has missed the point.

He lists Israel’s privileges: adoption, glory, covenants, the law, worship, promises, patriarchs, and “from their race, according to the flesh, is the Christ, who is God over all, blessed forever.” This is one of the clearest statements of Christ’s deity.

Then the key claim: “It is not as though the word of God has failed. For not all who are descended from Israel belong to Israel.” The true Israel was always defined by God’s promise, not by physical descent. Isaac, not Ishmael. Jacob, not Esau, chosen “though they were not yet born and had done nothing either good or bad, in order that God’s purpose of election might continue, not because of works but because of him who calls.” “Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated,” a Hebrew idiom of preference, citing Malachi 1:2-3.

Paul anticipates the objection: “Is there injustice on God’s part? By no means!” He cites Moses: “I will have mercy on whom I have mercy.” Salvation “depends not on human will or exertion, but on God, who has mercy.” Pharaoh is the example of one who was hardened, so that God’s power might be shown. The potter and the clay: “Who are you, O man, to answer back to God?” God has the right to show wrath and make known his power, and to make known the riches of his glory for vessels of mercy, “whom he has prepared beforehand for glory, even us whom he has called, not from the Jews only but also from the Gentiles.”

Christians differ on how to read this chapter. Reformed interpreters see individual election to salvation: God sovereignly chooses those he will save. Others (Arminian and many other evangelicals) read the chapter as corporate election, focused on groups and on God’s purposes in history, or hold that God elects in view of foreseen faith. Everyone agrees on what Paul emphasizes: salvation is wholly by God’s mercy, and no one has a claim on him.

And the chapter closes by returning to faith. Gentiles who did not pursue righteousness attained it by faith; Israel pursued it by works and stumbled over the stone. Whoever believes in him will not be put to shame.

Do not use this chapter as a place to argue. Use it as a place to worship. If you are saved, it is because God had mercy on you.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 21:12 and 25:23 are the stories of Isaac and Jacob. Exodus 9:16, 33:19 and 4 to 14 tell of Pharaoh and Moses. Malachi 1:2-3 is quoted in verse 13. Isaiah 29:16 and Jeremiah 18:1-6 are the potter and the clay. Hosea 1:10 and 2:23 are quoted in verses 25 to 26. Isaiah 8:14 and 28:16 speak of the stone. Ephesians 1:4-5 and 2:8-9 speak of choice and grace. 1 Peter 2:4-10 says Christ is the cornerstone. John 6:37-44 teaches that the Father draws people. 2 Peter 3:9 says God is patient, not wishing that any should perish.

STEP 6

Application

Let this chapter humble you rather than divide you. Thank God for his mercy to you, which you did not earn.

Pray for people of Jewish background, and for your friends who do not believe, with the kind of anguish Paul had.

Ask whether you question God's right to rule. Where do you answer back?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that you were not beloved and he called you beloved.

Tell him what you cannot understand about his choosing, and trust him.

Ask him to make you humble.

Romans 10:1-11:36

Faith from hearing; the mystery of Israel; doxology

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 56 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 10:1-11:36. This is a long reading, so take it in two parts: chapter 10 on faith that comes from hearing, and chapter 11 on God's plan for Israel and the Gentiles. End with the doxology in 11:33-36.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapter 9 stressed God's sovereign choice. Chapter 10 emphasizes human responsibility: Israel's problem is that they did not submit to God's righteousness, and the message is open to all who call. Chapter 11 asks the question that remains: has God rejected his people? Paul's answer reveals a mystery of God's plan across history, and it ends with one of the great praise passages in Scripture.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes" (10:4).
2. "Because, if you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved" (10:9).
3. "So faith comes from hearing, and hearing through the word of Christ" (10:17).
4. "I ask, then, has God rejected his people? By no means!" (11:1).
5. "So too at the present time there is a remnant, chosen by grace" (11:5).
6. "And in this way all Israel will be saved" (11:26).
7. "Oh, the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments and how inscrutable his ways!" (11:33).

8 “For from him and through him and to him are all things. To him be glory forever. Amen” (11:36).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with prayer: “Brothers, my heart’s desire and prayer to God for them is that they may be saved.” He admits they have zeal for God, but not according to knowledge. Being ignorant of the righteousness of God, and seeking to establish their own, they did not submit. “For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes.” The word “end” can mean goal or termination. Probably both: Christ is the goal toward which the law pointed, and its termination as a way of righteousness.

The message of faith is near: “The word is near you, in your mouth and in your heart.” And the heart of it: “If you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. For with the heart one believes and is justified, and with the mouth one confesses and is saved.” The confession is “Jesus is Lord,” the earliest creed, and it is joined with belief in the resurrection. It is for everyone: “There is no distinction between Jew and Greek; for the same Lord is Lord of all, bestowing his riches on all who call on him. For everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.”

Then the chain of missions: “How then will they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how are they to believe in him of whom they have never heard? And how are they to hear without someone preaching? And how are they to preach unless they are sent? As it is written, How beautiful are the feet of those who preach the good news!” This passage has sent generations of missionaries. “So faith comes from hearing, and hearing through the word of Christ.” Israel has heard but not obeyed. God has held out his hands to a disobedient and contrary people.

In chapter 11, Paul asks: has God rejected his people? “By no means! For I myself am an Israelite.” God has not rejected the people whom he foreknew. There is a remnant, chosen by grace: like the seven thousand in Elijah’s day. Others were hardened, but their stumbling has meant salvation for the Gentiles, to make Israel jealous.

Paul warns the Gentile believers with the picture of the olive tree. Branches were broken off because of unbelief, and wild olive branches (Gentiles) were grafted in. “Remember it is not you who support the root, but the root that supports you.” Do not be arrogant. And the broken-off branches can be grafted in again if they do not continue in unbelief.

Then the mystery: “A partial hardening has come upon Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles has come in. And in this way all Israel will be saved.” Christians disagree about what “all Israel” means. Some think it refers to the whole elect people of God, Jew and Gentile together. Others think it means the ethnic nation of Israel, who will turn to Christ in large numbers before or at the end. Others hold that it means the elect of Israel throughout history. All agree that God's gifts and calling are irrevocable, that he will be faithful to his promises, and that salvation for both Jew and Gentile comes only through faith in Christ.

The long argument ends not with a conclusion but with praise. "Oh, the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments and how inscrutable his ways! For who has known the mind of the Lord, or who has been his counselor? Or who has given a gift to him that he might be repaid? For from him and through him and to him are all things. To him be glory forever. Amen." When theology reaches its limit, it turns to worship.

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 30:11-14 is quoted in 10:6-8. Joel 2:32 is quoted in verse 13. Isaiah 52:7 is quoted in verse 15. Isaiah 53:1 is quoted in verse 16. Deuteronomy 32:21 and Isaiah 65:1-2 are quoted in 10:19-21. 1 Kings 19:10-18 is the story of the seven thousand. Jeremiah 11:16-17 and Hosea 14:6 use the olive tree. Ephesians 2:11-22 speaks of Jew and Gentile made one. Galatians 6:16 mentions the Israel of God. Isaiah 40:13 is quoted in 11:34. Job 41:11 is quoted in verse 35. Revelation 7:9-10 pictures the worshiping multitude.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Romans 10:9 and share it with someone this week.

Pray for someone to be sent to those who have not heard. Consider how you can support missions.

Let the doxology in 11:33-36 be your prayer after a difficult question.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess Jesus as Lord with your mouth and tell him you believe God raised him.
- Pray for someone to hear and believe.
- Praise God for the depth of his wisdom.

DAY 745 · WEEK 107

Psalm 19:1-6

The heavens declare, creation's speech

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 19:1-6. Paul quotes verse 4 in Romans 10:18. Read these six verses as a picture of creation's wordless sermon, and think about why Paul says it is not enough.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 19 is a psalm of David in two parts. Verses 1 to 6 celebrate God's revelation in creation, and verses 7 to 14 celebrate his revelation in the law. C. S. Lewis called it among the greatest poems in the Psalter. In Romans 10, Paul has just asked, "Have they not heard?" and answers with verse 4 of this psalm: their voice has gone out to all the earth. Today we read the creation half in light of Romans.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the sky above proclaims his handiwork" (v. 1).
2. "Day to day pours out speech, and night to night reveals knowledge" (v. 2).
3. "There is no speech, nor are there words, whose voice is not heard" (v. 3).
4. "Their voice goes out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world" (v. 4).
5. "In them he has set a tent for the sun" (v. 4).
6. "Which comes out like a bridegroom leaving his chamber" (v. 5).
7. "And, like a strong man, runs its course with joy" (v. 5).
8. "And there is nothing hidden from its heat" (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a grand claim: “The heavens declare the glory of God, and the sky above proclaims his handiwork.” Creation is a witness. The verbs, declare, proclaim, pour out speech, reveal knowledge, are all verbs of speaking. Day after day, night after night, creation preaches. The sky is God’s billboard, and its message is his glory.

Yet verse 3 adds a paradox: “There is no speech, nor are there words, whose voice is not heard.” The sermon has no words, and yet its voice goes out through all the earth. The message is universal. This is why Paul says in Romans 1:20 that no one has an excuse: God’s eternal power and divine nature have been clearly perceived in the things that have been made. Look up at the stars and you see something of the majesty of the one who made them.

The second half of this section uses the sun as an example. God has set a tent for the sun, and it comes out “like a bridegroom leaving his chamber, and, like a strong man, runs its course with joy.” Its circuit goes from one end of the heavens to the other, and nothing is hidden from its heat. The sun is a great picture of a creature that obeys its Maker: radiant, joyful, regular. It is also a picture of the reach of God’s revelation.

Paul quotes verse 4 in Romans 10:18, but notice how. He has argued that faith comes from hearing the word of Christ. He asks, “Have they not heard?” and answers, “Indeed they have, for their voice has gone out to all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.” Some interpreters think Paul is using the language of Psalm 19 to describe the reach of the gospel preached by the apostles, as the sun’s light reaches everywhere. Others think he is saying that the witness of creation alone leaves everyone accountable. Either way, the point is that general revelation cannot save. Creation shows God’s glory, but only the gospel shows how sinners can be made right with him. That is why the psalm turns, in verse 7, to the law of the LORD, which is perfect, reviving the soul.

Next time you look at the sky, let it point to its maker. Then open your Bible and learn the rest of the story.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 8 and Psalm 104 also celebrate creation. Job 38 to 41 is God’s speech from the whirlwind. Isaiah 40:26 invites us to lift up our eyes and see who created these. Romans 1:19-20 and 10:18 draw from this psalm. Acts 14:17 and 17:24-28 speak of God’s witness in nature. Colossians 1:23 speaks of the gospel proclaimed in all creation. John 1:1-5 speaks of the Word through whom all things were made. Revelation 21:23 says the city has no need of sun or moon, for the Lamb is its light.

STEP 6

Application

Go outside today and look at the sky, day or night. Let it declare the glory of God to you.

Thank God for the sun, which rises each day on his command.

Pray for someone who has only creation's witness and has never heard the gospel.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the speech of the heavens.

Ask him to open your ears to hear it.

Tell him where you have been deaf.

DAY 746 · WEEK 107

Psalm 116

I will call on the name of the LORD

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Psalm · 19 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 116. Romans 10:13 says that everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved. This psalm is a testimony of someone who did exactly that. Notice the movement from near-death to thanksgiving.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 116 is a song of thanksgiving by someone who has been rescued from death. It is part of the Hallel (Psalms 113 to 118) that Jews sang at Passover. On the night before he was crucified, Jesus and his disciples would have sung these psalms after the supper (Matthew 26:30). So these words were in the air in the upper room. The phrase "call on the name of the LORD" appears four times and links to Romans 10.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I love the LORD, because he has heard my voice and my pleas for mercy" (v. 1).
2. "The snares of death encompassed me; the pangs of Sheol laid hold on me; I suffered distress and anguish" (v. 3).
3. "Then I called on the name of the LORD: O LORD, I pray, deliver my soul!" (v. 4).
4. "Gracious is the LORD, and righteous; our God is merciful" (v. 5).
5. "For you have delivered my soul from death, my eyes from tears, my feet from stumbling" (v. 8).
6. "What shall I render to the LORD for all his benefits to me?" (v. 12).
7. "I will lift up the cup of salvation and call on the name of the LORD" (v. 13).
8. "Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints" (v. 15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts with love: “I love the LORD, because he has heard my voice.” Gratitude for answered prayer produces love. Because God inclined his ear, the psalmist says, “I will call on him as long as I live.” It is a lifelong promise.

Then he tells the story. The snares of death surrounded him, the pangs of Sheol laid hold of him. We do not know the illness or danger, but it was severe. “Then I called on the name of the LORD: O LORD, I pray, deliver my soul!” It is a short prayer, the prayer of someone with no time for long speeches. And God answered. Notice what the psalmist says about God’s character: gracious, righteous, merciful, one who preserves the simple. “When I was brought low, he saved me.” The simple are not fools but those who depend on God rather than on their own cleverness.

The psalmist addresses his own soul: “Return, O my soul, to your rest, for the LORD has dealt bountifully with you.” Rest follows rescue. He has been delivered from death, tears, and stumbling, and he resolves to walk before the LORD in the land of the living.

Then the question that fits all Christians: “What shall I render to the LORD for all his benefits to me?” How can we repay God? We can’t. The answer is surprising: “I will lift up the cup of salvation and call on the name of the LORD.” The way to respond to a gift is to receive it again, gladly. The cup of salvation recalls the cup of the Passover. For Christians, it recalls the cup that Jesus gave his disciples, the new covenant in his blood. We do not repay God; we take the cup and thank him.

Verse 15 says, “Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints.” For the believer, death is not meaningless. God notices and values the death of each one who belongs to him. The psalmist is also a servant, the son of God’s maidservant, whose chains the LORD has loosed. He promises to pay his vows in the presence of all the people, in the courts of the house of the LORD. Thanksgiving is public.

This is a good psalm to pray after a hard season. And when we read it as Jesus’ hymn, we see that on the night he was betrayed he sang of the cup of salvation, then went out to drink the cup of suffering. The LORD would deliver his soul from death, not by sparing him but by raising him.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 10:13 and Joel 2:32 speak of calling on the name of the LORD. Psalm 113 to 118 are the Hallel. Matthew 26:27-30 and Luke 22:17-20 describe the cup and the hymn. 1 Corinthians 10:16 and 11:25 speak of the cup of blessing. Psalm 56:12-13 also gives thanks for deliverance.

Psalm 91 speaks of refuge and rescue. Philippians 1:21-23 speaks of death as gain. Hebrews 5:7 says Jesus offered up prayers with loud cries to him who was able to save him from death. Revelation 14:13 says blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.

STEP 6

Application

Pray the short prayer of verse 4 for a situation today: O LORD, I pray, deliver my soul.

Ask what you will render to the LORD for his benefits. Take the cup of salvation by thanking him aloud for specific gifts.

Next time you take the Lord's Supper, remember that Jesus sang this psalm.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God you love him because he hears.
- Thank him for saving you from death.
- Ask him what you can render for all his benefits.

DAY 747 · WEEK 107

Psalm 117

Praise the LORD, all nations

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Psalm · 2 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 117, the shortest chapter in the Bible. Paul quotes it in Romans 15:11 at the climax of his argument that the gospel unites Jew and Gentile. You have read this psalm before. Read it today as part of Paul's closing argument in Romans.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 117 sits at the center of the Bible in the Hebrew-English Bible's order of chapters, at the end of the Hallel's first half. In just two verses it calls all nations to praise the LORD. Paul will use it in Romans 15 as the proof text that the Gentiles were always meant to glorify God for his mercy. Reading it in the middle of Romans, as we approach the practical chapters, we see the goal of the letter: a united people of Jew and Gentile worshiping one God.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD, all nations!" (v. 1).
2. "Extol him, all peoples!" (v. 1).
3. "For great is his steadfast love" (v. 2).
4. "Toward us" (v. 2).
5. "The faithfulness of the LORD" (v. 2).
6. "Endures forever" (v. 2).
7. "Praise the LORD!" (v. 2).
8. "All peoples" (v. 1).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm contains one command and one reason. The command: “Praise the LORD, all nations! Extol him, all peoples!” The reason: “For great is his steadfast love toward us, and the faithfulness of the LORD endures forever.” Notice again that the reason for the nations to praise is God’s love “toward us,” toward Israel. This is the logic of Romans 9 to 11. God’s faithfulness to Israel is the means by which the nations learn to praise.

In Romans 15:8-9, Paul explains: “Christ became a servant to the circumcised to show God’s truthfulness, in order to confirm the promises given to the patriarchs, and in order that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy.” Two parts of one plan: Christ confirms the promises to Israel (God’s truthfulness), and the Gentiles glorify God for his mercy. Then Paul gathers four Old Testament quotations, from the Psalms, Deuteronomy, the Psalms again, and Isaiah, to prove that the Gentiles’ praise was always intended. Psalm 117:1 is the third of these: “Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles, and let all the peoples extol him.”

Notice how Psalm 117 brings together the two terms that have occupied us in Romans. “Steadfast love” is the word hesed, covenant mercy. “Faithfulness” is truth, reliability. These are God’s grace and truth, the two gifts that came through Jesus Christ (John 1:17). On the cross, steadfast love and faithfulness met. The nations are invited to praise because they, too, can now rest on God’s mercy.

The psalm is brief because the message is simple: the God of Israel is the God of all, and all should praise him. Short as it is, it carries the entire hope of the Bible. The scattered peoples of Babel will be brought together before the throne. Revelation 7:9 pictures “a great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages” praising God. This psalm is a first sketch of that scene.

Make it your own. When you praise the LORD in church, remember that you are joining a chorus drawn from every tribe, and the psalm is calling more to join.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 15:8-12 quotes this psalm with Psalm 18:49, Deuteronomy 32:43, and Isaiah 11:10. Genesis 12:3 promised blessing to all families of the earth. Psalm 67 and Psalm 96 also call the nations to praise. Isaiah 49:6 speaks of salvation to the end of the earth. John 1:17 says grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. Ephesians 2:11-22 says Jew and Gentile are one new man. Revelation 5:9 and 7:9-10 picture the nations in worship.

STEP 6

Application

Say the psalm aloud as a prayer. It takes about ten seconds.

Pray for the nations by name. Pick three countries and pray that they would praise the LORD.

Thank God that you are part of the people he has gathered from all the nations.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise the LORD with all the nations.

Thank him that Christ confirmed his promise to include them.

Pray for the nations to know him.

DAY 748 · WEEK 107

Romans 12:1-13:14

Living sacrifice; love; governing authorities

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 12:1-13:14. Paul turns from doctrine to its practical results. Notice the word “therefore” that begins chapter 12, the call to a living sacrifice, the community ethics, and the instructions on government and love.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The first eleven chapters of Romans explain what God has done. Chapter 12 begins, “I appeal to you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God.” The mercies of God, everything described in chapters 1 to 11, are the basis for all Christian living. Doctrine leads to doxology (11:33-36) and then to duty. What follows is a practical guide for the believer’s life in the church, in the world, and under the government.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “I appeal to you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship” (12:1).
2. “Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind” (12:2).
3. “So we, though many, are one body in Christ, and individually members one of another” (12:5).
4. “Let love be genuine. Abhor what is evil; hold fast to what is good” (12:9).
5. “Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good” (12:21).
6. “Let every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and those that exist have been instituted by God” (13:1).

7. “Owe no one anything, except to love each other, for the one who loves another has fulfilled the law” (13:8).

8. “But put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to gratify its desires” (13:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“By the mercies of God.” The appeal is not based on threats or fear, but on mercy. Because God has saved us, we offer ourselves. “Present your bodies as a living sacrifice.” In the Old Testament, sacrifices were killed. Now we are living sacrifices, daily offering everything to God: hands, feet, time, money, vocation. This is “your spiritual worship” (or “reasonable service”). Worship is not only singing on Sunday; it is the whole of life offered to God.

“Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind.” The world presses us into its mold, and the Spirit transforms us from within. As the mind is renewed by the word of God, we are able to discern God’s will, “what is good and acceptable and perfect.”

Paul next calls for humility and sober judgment. We are one body with many members, and each has gifts: prophecy, serving, teaching, exhorting, giving, leading, mercy. Each is to be used with the right attitude: generosity, zeal, cheerfulness. Then follows a series of short commands on love in action, verses 9 to 21: genuine love, brotherly affection, outdoing one another in showing honor, not slothful in zeal, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation, constant in prayer, contributing to saints’ needs, practicing hospitality. “Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse them. Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. Live in harmony with one another.” “Never avenge yourselves, but leave it to the wrath of God.” And the climax: “If your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink… Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.”

Chapter 13 opens with a subject that has caused much discussion: governing authorities. “Let every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God.” Government is a gift of God for restraining evil and promoting good. Christians should pay taxes and give respect where it is due. Paul was writing under Nero. Most interpreters note that this does not mean unlimited obedience: Peter and John said, “We must obey God rather than men” (Acts 5:29). When governments command what God forbids, believers must obey God. But the default is respect and cooperation.

Then Paul returns to love. “Owe no one anything, except to love each other, for the one who loves another has fulfilled the law.” Love sums up the commandments. He closes with urgency: “The night is far gone; the day is at hand.” The return of Christ is nearer than when we first believed. So “cast off the works of darkness and put on the armor of light.” The last command is perhaps the best summary of sanctification: “Put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to gratify its desires.” This was the verse that Augustine read in the garden, and which led to his conversion.

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 1 and Hebrews 13:15-16 speak of sacrifice. Ephesians 4:1-16 and 1 Corinthians 12 speak of the body and gifts. Proverbs 25:21-22 is quoted in verse 20. Deuteronomy 32:35 is cited in verse 19. 1 Peter 2:13-17 and Titus 3:1-2 speak of government. Mark 12:17 says to render to Caesar. Acts 5:29 and Daniel 3 and 6 show the limits of obedience. Revelation 13 is another view of the state. Matthew 22:37-40 and Galatians 5:14 say love fulfills the law. Ephesians 6:10-18 speaks of armor.

STEP 6

Application

Offer your body as a living sacrifice today. Choose one specific thing: your schedule, a talent, a habit.

Renew your mind by reading Scripture first, before the news.

Look for an enemy or difficult person to bless, and do something kind.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Present your body to God as a living sacrifice, and say what that means today.
- Ask him to renew your mind.
- Ask him to help you love without pretense.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Because, if you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved."

ROMANS 10:9

REST

Meditation

This verse is among the clearest statements in the New Testament of what it means to be saved.

"If you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord." The earliest Christian creed is three words: Jesus is Lord. In the Greek Old Testament, "Lord" (kyrios) was the word for the name of God. To say "Jesus is Lord" is to say that Jesus shares the identity of the LORD. It is also a statement of allegiance: he is my master. In a world where Caesar was called lord, it was a dangerous confession.

"And believe in your heart." The faith that saves is not just agreement; it comes from the heart, the center of the person. It is trust, not just knowledge.

“That God raised him from the dead.” The resurrection is the center of the faith. It proves that Jesus is who he said he was, that his death was accepted, and that death has been defeated.

“You will be saved.” The promise is sure. Saved from the wrath, from sin’s power, and ultimately from death.

Notice that the verse joins heart and mouth. True faith naturally speaks. And verse 13 adds that it is open to all: everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.

When you doubt whether you are really saved, return to this verse and ask: do I confess that Jesus is Lord, and do I believe that God raised him from the dead? If so, you have the promise of God.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you saw the final stretch of Paul’s argument and the beginning of its application. In Romans 9, Paul grieved over Israel and taught that God’s word has not failed, because God’s purposes work by mercy and election, not by physical descent. Chapter 10 gave the message of faith: confess that Jesus is Lord, believe that God raised him from the dead, and call on his name, and faith comes from hearing the word of Christ. Chapter 11 asked whether God has rejected Israel and answered with the remnant, the olive tree, and the mystery of “all Israel,” ending in the doxology: from him and through him and to him are all things. Three psalms accompanied the reading: Psalm 19 on creation’s voice that goes out to all the earth, Psalm 116 on calling on the name of the LORD, and Psalm 117 on the nations praising. Romans 12 and 13 began the practical section, calling believers to offer themselves as a living sacrifice and to overcome evil with good.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul had great sorrow and unceasing anguish for those who did not believe. Who in your life do you carry that kind of burden for? What is one concrete thing you will do to pray for or reach out to them?

Romans 10:9 says to confess Jesus is Lord and believe that God raised him from the dead. What does it mean in daily life for Jesus to be your Lord, and not only your Savior?

Romans 12:1 says to present your whole self as a living sacrifice because of God's mercies. What part of your life is hardest to hand over? What mercy of God can you remember as you do so?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess Jesus as Lord, and thank him for raising him from the dead.

Thank him for the promise of salvation.

Rest in him.

DAY 750 · WEEK 108

Romans 14:1-15:13

The strong and the weak; welcome one another

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 36 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 14:1-15:13. Paul addresses a practical problem in the Roman church: believers who disagree about food and holy days. Notice how Paul handles disagreements on secondary matters, and how he grounds the call to welcome in the example of Christ.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Roman church included Jews and Gentiles. Some Jewish believers continued to observe food laws and holy days; some Gentile believers did not. Each group tended to look down on the other. Paul does not tell them to ignore the issue. He gives guidance for how to live together when Christians disagree on matters that Scripture does not settle. This section is very relevant to the church today.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "As for the one who is weak in faith, welcome him, but not to quarrel over opinions" (14:1).
2. "Each one should be fully convinced in his own mind" (14:5).
3. "For if we live, we live to the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord. So then, whether we live or whether we die, we are the Lord's" (14:8).
4. "For the kingdom of God is not a matter of eating and drinking but of righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit" (14:17).
5. "So then let us pursue what makes for peace and for mutual upbuilding" (14:19).

6. “We who are strong have an obligation to bear with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves” (15:1).

7. “For whatever was written in former days was written for our instruction, that through endurance and through the encouragement of the Scriptures we might have hope” (15:4).

8. “Therefore welcome one another as Christ has welcomed you, for the glory of God” (15:7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul identifies two groups. The “weak in faith” are those whose consciences are bound on matters like eating only vegetables or keeping special days. The “strong” are those who understand that all foods are clean and every day belongs to the Lord. The surprise is that Paul sides with the strong in belief (14:14, “I am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean in itself”) but demands that the strong treat the weak with love.

The first rule: “Welcome him.” Do not despise or pass judgment. The one who eats must not despise the one who abstains, and the one who abstains must not pass judgment on the one who eats, for God has welcomed him. “Who are you to pass judgment on the servant of another? It is before his own master that he stands or falls.” Each should be fully convinced in his own mind, acting from faith: “Whatever does not proceed from faith is sin.”

The ground for this tolerance is Christ’s lordship: “None of us lives to himself, and none of us dies to himself. For if we live, we live to the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord. So then, whether we live or whether we die, we are the Lord’s. For to this end Christ died and lived again, that he might be Lord both of the dead and of the living.” We will all stand before God’s judgment seat, and each will give an account of himself. That should end our habit of judging others.

The second rule: do not cause others to stumble. “It is good not to eat meat or drink wine or do anything that causes your brother to stumble.” Freedom must be used with love. “The kingdom of God is not a matter of eating and drinking but of righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.” We should pursue peace and upbuilding. “Do not, for the sake of food, destroy the work of God.”

Chapter 15 gives the pattern: Christ himself. “We who are strong have an obligation to bear with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves… For Christ did not please himself.” The example of Christ leads Paul to speak of the Scriptures: written for our instruction, that through endurance and encouragement we might have hope. And he prays for a church with one voice: “May the God of endurance and encouragement grant you to live in such harmony with one another, in accord with Christ Jesus, that together you may with one voice glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ." The command is then repeated and grounded: "Welcome one another as Christ has welcomed you, for the glory of God." Christ became a servant to the circumcised to confirm the promises, and so that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy.

This does not mean that everything is a matter of opinion. Paul is clear on the gospel, on sin, and on Christ's resurrection. The category of disputable matters includes issues the Bible does not settle. Wise Christians distinguish essentials, convictions, and preferences. On essentials, unity; on disputable matters, liberty; and in all things, love.

Paul closes with a blessing: "May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that by the power of the Holy Spirit you may abound in hope."

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 11 gives the food laws. Mark 7:14-23 shows Jesus declaring all foods clean. Acts 10 shows Peter's vision. Colossians 2:16-23 deals with food and festival. 1 Corinthians 8 and 10:23-33 deal with food offered to idols. Galatians 5:13-15 speaks of freedom and love. Philippians 2:1-11 calls for the mind of Christ. Psalm 69:9 is quoted in 15:3. Ephesians 4:1-6 speaks of the unity of the Spirit. Psalm 18:49, Deuteronomy 32:43, Psalm 117:1, and Isaiah 11:10 are quoted in 15:9-12. John 17:20-23 is Jesus' prayer for unity.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a fellow Christian you disagree with on a disputable matter. Welcome them in a concrete way this week.

Ask what freedoms you might lay aside for the sake of someone else's conscience.

Memorize Romans 15:7 and pray it for your church.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for welcoming you when you were far off.

Ask him to help you welcome someone he has welcomed.

Ask him to give you the mind of Christ toward those who differ.

DAY 751 · WEEK 108

Romans 15:14-16:27

Paul's plans; greetings; the doxology

Year 2 · Unit 20 · Reading · 60 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 15:14-16:27. Paul explains his ministry and plans, then sends a long list of greetings. Notice the names, especially the women and the many co-workers, and the closing doxology.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul closes his letter by looking ahead. He has preached the gospel from Jerusalem to Illyricum, and now he plans to go to Spain, stopping in Rome on the way. First he must take the collection to Jerusalem. Chapter 16 reads like a list of names, but it is a window into the early church: women and men, slaves and free, Jews and Gentiles, house churches all over Rome. Every name stands for a real life changed by the gospel.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "To be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles in the priestly service of the gospel of God" (15:16).
2. "And thus I make it my ambition to preach the gospel, not where Christ has already been named" (15:20).
3. "I hope to see you in passing as I go to Spain" (15:24).
4. "I commend to you our sister Phoebe, a servant of the church at Cenchreae" (16:1).
5. "Greet Prisca and Aquila, my fellow workers in Christ Jesus" (16:3).
6. "I appeal to you, brothers, to watch out for those who cause divisions and create obstacles contrary to the doctrine that you have been taught" (16:17).
7. "The God of peace will soon crush Satan under your feet" (16:20).

8 “To the only wise God be glory forevermore through Jesus Christ! Amen” (16:27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with a compliment. He is satisfied that the Romans are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, and able to instruct one another. Yet he has written boldly, as a reminder. He describes his ministry in priestly terms: he is “a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles in the priestly service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the Gentiles may be acceptable, sanctified by the Holy Spirit.” The Gentiles, brought to faith, are his offering to God.

His ambition is to preach where Christ has not been named. Now that this work in the eastern Mediterranean is complete, he looks west to Spain. He asks the Romans to help him on his journey. Before he goes, he must take the collection from Macedonia and Achaia to the poor saints in Jerusalem, a sign of unity between Gentile and Jewish believers. “I appeal to you, brothers… to strive together with me in your prayers to God on my behalf, that I may be delivered from the unbelievers in Judea.” Paul would indeed be arrested in Jerusalem, as we read in Acts, and reach Rome as a prisoner.

Chapter 16 begins with Phoebe, a servant (or deacon) of the church at Cenchreae, who very likely carried the letter to Rome. Paul calls her a “patron of many.” Next are Prisca and Aquila, who risked their necks for Paul and host a church in their house. Epaenetus, Mary, Andronicus and Junia, Ampliatus, Urbanus, Stachys, Apelles, and many others follow. Paul names about thirty people, with warm words: “beloved,” “fellow worker,” “approved in Christ,” “workers in the Lord.” Women feature prominently. The letter reminds us that the gospel is carried by ordinary people with extraordinary faithfulness. Christians differ about roles of women in church leadership, but all should honor the labor of these women.

Right in the middle comes a warning: “I appeal to you, brothers, to watch out for those who cause divisions and create obstacles contrary to the doctrine that you have been taught; avoid them. For such persons do not serve our Lord Christ, but their own appetites.” Doctrine matters, and unity is not unity at any price. But the promise comes: “The God of peace will soon crush Satan under your feet.” This echoes Genesis 3:15.

Tertius, who wrote down the letter, adds his own greeting: “I Tertius, who wrote this letter, greet you in the Lord.” It is a delightful reminder that this great letter was dictated and written by a human scribe.

Then the final doxology. “Now to him who is able to strengthen you according to my gospel and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery that was kept secret for long ages but has now been disclosed and through the prophetic writings has been made known to all nations, according to the command of the eternal God, to bring about the obedience of faith, to the only wise God be glory forevermore through Jesus Christ! Amen." The letter ends where it began: with the gospel, the Scriptures, the obedience of faith, and all nations. The mystery of the ages is revealed in Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 18:1-3, 18-26 tell of Prisca and Aquila. Acts 20:1-3 shows Paul at Corinth when he wrote. Acts 21 to 28 tell what happened after the collection. 2 Corinthians 8 to 9 describe the collection. Genesis 3:15 promises the crushing of the serpent. Colossians 1:25-27 and Ephesians 3:1-13 speak of the mystery now revealed. 1 Corinthians 15:58 says our labor is not in vain. Philippians 2:25-30 speaks of Epaphroditus. 3 John and Titus 3:9-11 also warn about division.

STEP 6

Application

Write down the names of five people who have served you in the faith. Thank at least one of them this week.

Ask what your ambition is. Is there a place where Christ has not been named that God is calling you to?

Pray the last doxology as your own.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for those who have carried the gospel to you.
- Ask him to make you a faithful servant of his church.
- Praise him as the only wise God.

REST

Meditation

Paul wrote this verse after the cry of Romans 7:24, "Wretched man that I am!" It is the hinge of the letter, where the argument of chapters 1 to 7 reaches its destination.

"There is therefore." This word connects to everything before it. Because of the justification in chapters 3 to 5 and the union with Christ in chapter 6, there is no condemnation. It is a conclusion, not a hope.

"Now." Not "someday" or "maybe." The verdict is already given. It is a present reality, not something to be earned.

"No condemnation." Not "less condemnation" or "reduced." None. Condemnation means the sentence of a judge. For those who believe, the sentence has been carried out on Christ.

"For those who are in Christ Jesus." This is the condition, and it is not a work. It is a place: in Christ. Those who are united to him by faith share his standing.

When your conscience accuses you, when Satan points to your sin, when you remember what you have done, say this verse. The charge against you has been answered. The sentence has been served. You are in Christ.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

You have read Paul's letter to the Romans, the fullest explanation of the gospel in the Bible. It began with the theme, that the gospel is the power of God for salvation, and the righteousness of God is revealed from faith for faith. Paul showed that the whole world is guilty: Gentiles who suppress the truth, and Jews and moralists who judge others and do the same. In a doctrinal pause you thought about the wrath of God as his holy opposition to evil. Then came the great turn: the righteousness of God has been manifested apart from the law, and sinners are justified by grace through faith in Jesus, whom God put forward as a propitiation. You studied justification by faith alone and Abraham as the model of faith. Three psalms of repentance, 32, 130, and 143, gave the heart's response. Romans 5 traced peace with God and the two heads, Adam and Christ. A doctrinal pause on union with Christ showed that believers died and rose with him. Chapters 6 and 7 dealt with slavery to sin, the holiness of the law, and the struggle within, and a pause on sanctification showed that God works in us both to will and to work. Romans 8 gave the summit: no condemnation, the Spirit of adoption, the groaning of creation, and the love of God from which nothing can separate us. Chapters 9 to 11 treated God's faithfulness to Israel, his sovereign mercy, the call to confess Jesus as Lord, and the doxology of the depth of the riches and wisdom of God. The Psalms 19, 116, and 117 sang the reach of the gospel to all nations. Chapters 12 to 16 turned doctrine into life: the living sacrifice, the renewed mind, love, government, welcome across differences, and a list of names that shows the gospel carried by ordinary people.

REFLECT

Review Questions

What does Paul mean by "the righteousness of God" in Romans 1:17?

Read Romans 1:16-17 and 3:21-26. Is the righteousness of God a quality he has, a gift he gives, or both? How does it connect to Habakkuk 2:4, "The righteous shall live by faith"?

What is justification by faith alone, and why does it matter?

Look at Romans 3:23-28 and 4:1-8. What does "counted as righteousness" mean? How is faith related to works, and what changes in the Christian life if you get this wrong?

What is the role of the Holy Spirit in the Christian life according to Romans 8?

Reread Romans 8:1-17 and 26-27. What does the Spirit do for the believer: freedom, life, adoption, assurance, help in prayer? How is he connected to the hope of resurrection?

How does Romans 9-11 address the question of God's faithfulness to Israel?

Consider Romans 9:6, 11:1-5, 11:17-26, and 11:29. How has God's word not failed? What do the remnant, the olive tree, and the mystery teach about Jew and Gentile in God's plan?

DAY 753 · WEEK 108

Galatians 1:1-2:21

No other gospel; Paul's apostleship; justification by faith

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 45 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Galatians 1:1-2:21. This is Paul's most urgent letter. Notice that he skips the usual thanksgiving and goes straight to alarm. Read his defense of the gospel and of his apostleship, and end with 2:15-21, the heart of the matter.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Galatians is probably Paul's earliest letter, written around AD 48 to 49 to churches he founded in the region of Galatia (in modern Turkey). After he left, teachers came who insisted that Gentile believers must be circumcised and keep the law of Moses to be truly part of God's people. Paul sees that this is not a minor disagreement but a different gospel. The letter is his passionate defense of salvation by grace through faith in Christ alone. It was Martin Luther's favorite letter, and he called it his "Katie von Bora."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Who gave himself for our sins to deliver us from the present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father" (1:4).
2. "I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting him who called you in the grace of Christ and are turning to a different gospel" (1:6).
3. "But even if we or an angel from heaven should preach to you a gospel contrary to the one we preached to you, let him be accursed" (1:8).
4. "For I did not receive it from any man, nor was I taught it, but I received it through a revelation of Jesus Christ" (1:12).
5. "I opposed him to his face, because he stood condemned" (2:11).

6. “Yet we know that a person is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ” (2:16).
7. “I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me” (2:20).
8. “I do not nullify the grace of God, for if righteousness were through the law, then Christ died for no purpose” (2:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul opens by stressing that he is an apostle “not from men nor through man, but through Jesus Christ and God the Father, who raised him from the dead.” His authority and message come from Christ. Even his greeting contains the gospel: Christ “gave himself for our sins to deliver us from the present evil age.” Then, instead of a thanksgiving, he says, “I am astonished.” The Galatians are deserting the one who called them in grace. There is no other gospel, only some who trouble you and want to distort the gospel of Christ. He pronounces a curse on anyone, even an angel, who preaches a different gospel. This is strong language because the gospel is not negotiable.

He defends his own gospel by telling his story. He once persecuted the church violently and was advancing in Judaism beyond many of his peers. But God, who had set him apart from his mother’s womb, was pleased to reveal his Son to him. He did not consult with flesh and blood, but went to Arabia and returned to Damascus. Three years later he visited Peter in Jerusalem for fifteen days; he met James, the Lord’s brother. The churches of Judea glorified God because of him.

After fourteen years, he went again to Jerusalem with Barnabas and Titus, and laid before the leaders the gospel he preached among the Gentiles. The leaders added nothing to him. Titus, though a Greek, was not compelled to be circumcised. James, Cephas, and John gave Paul and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, agreeing that Paul was to go to the Gentiles and they to the circumcised, asking only that they remember the poor.

Then the confrontation at Antioch. Peter had eaten with Gentile believers, but when certain men came from James, he drew back and separated himself, fearing the circumcision party. Even Barnabas was led astray. Paul opposed Peter to his face, because his conduct was not in step with the truth of the gospel. This is the principle: the gospel governs how we live together, and it applies even to apostles.

The center of the chapter is 2:15 to 21. “A person is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ.” Paul says this three times in a single verse. Then the personal confession: “I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me." This is the verse of the unit. Christ's death is my death; his life is my life. And Paul concludes: to go back to the law is to say that Christ died for no purpose. The cross either is enough or it is nothing.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 1:16-17 and 3:21-31 explain the same gospel at greater length. Acts 9:1-30, 15:1-35, and 11:27-30 are the background. Genesis 12:3 and 15:6 stand behind chapter 3. Philippians 3:2-9 repeats the warning against confidence in the flesh. 2 Corinthians 11:4 speaks of a different gospel. 1 Timothy 1:15 shows the heart of the gospel. 1 Corinthians 15:1-11 gives its content. Ephesians 2:8-10 sums up salvation by grace.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Galatians 2:20. Say it each morning this week.

Ask whether you are adding anything to Christ as a requirement for acceptance with God or with his people.

Pray for courage to speak up as Paul did when the gospel is at stake.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the gospel of grace.

Ask him to keep you from any other gospel.

Thank Jesus for giving himself for your sins.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 108

"But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons."

GALATIANS 4:4-5

DAY 754 · WEEK 108

Romans 8:14-17; Galatians 4:1-7; 1 John 3:1-3

Adoption

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Romans 8:14-17, Galatians 4:1-7, and 1 John 3:1-3. Today is a doctrinal pause on adoption. Notice who does the adopting, what the Spirit cries, and what the adopted child receives.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Adoption was a familiar practice in the Roman world. A wealthy family without a suitable heir could adopt a son, who then gained the full rights of the family name and inheritance. Paul uses this to explain what God has done for believers. We were not born children of God in the full covenant sense; we were slaves, and God brought us into his family at great cost. John, the apostle of love, marvels at the same fact.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “For all who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God” (Romans 8:14).
2. “You have received the Spirit of adoption as sons, by whom we cry, Abba! Father!” (Romans 8:15).
3. “And if children, then heirs, heirs of God and fellow heirs with Christ” (Romans 8:17).
4. “But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons” (Galatians 4:4-5).
5. “And because you are sons, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, Abba! Father!” (Galatians 4:6).

6. “So you are no longer a slave, but a son, and if a son, then an heir through God” (Galatians 4:7).
7. “See what kind of love the Father has given to us, that we should be called children of God; and so we are” (1 John 3:1).
8. “Beloved, we are God’s children now” (1 John 3:2).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Adoption is the act of God by which he receives believers into his family as his sons and daughters, with all the rights and privileges that belong to children. It is one of the richest images of salvation. Justification answers the question, “How can I be declared right before the Judge?” Adoption answers the question, “How can I be welcomed by the Father?” The two go together. Justification gives us a legal standing; adoption gives us a family and a Father.

Notice the Trinity at work. The Father sends the Son “in the fullness of time” to redeem those under the law. The Son becomes man, born of woman, born under the law, so that he can redeem. The Spirit is sent into our hearts, and he teaches us to cry “Abba! Father!” The word Abba is the Aramaic word of a child to his father, an intimate word that Jesus himself used in Gethsemane (Mark 14:36). Through Christ we share his relationship with the Father.

Adoption has present and future dimensions. Now we are God’s children, and we have the Spirit, access to the Father, his discipline, his care, and his promises. But Paul also says we “wait eagerly for adoption as sons, the redemption of our bodies” (Romans 8:23). Our full inheritance, the resurrection and the new creation, is still to come. John says, “What we will be has not yet appeared; but we know that when he appears we will be like him.”

Adoption is the answer to many fears. The fear of rejection: God has chosen you. The fear of earning: a child does not earn his place. The fear of being alone: the Father is near. And the fear of failing: a child may fail, but remains a child. It also shapes our life together: if we have one Father, we are brothers and sisters. Christians who struggle with the idea of God as Father, because of a human father who failed them, can find that God is the Father they always needed.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Galatians 4 begins with an illustration. An heir, as long as he is a child, is no different from a slave, though he is the owner of everything. He is under guardians until the date set by his father. So we, when we were children, were enslaved to the elementary principles of the world. “But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son.” The timing was

God's. He sent his Son "born of woman, born under the law." The Son took on humanity and submitted to the law. The purpose: "to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons."

Then the Spirit: "And because you are sons, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, Abba! Father!" The Spirit is the Spirit of the Son; when he lives in us, he leads us to pray as the Son prays. Prayer is the family voice. "So you are no longer a slave, but a son, and if a son, then an heir through God."

Romans 8 gives the same truth in the setting of suffering. The Spirit does not make us slaves again to fall back into fear, but sons. "The Spirit himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, then heirs, heirs of God and fellow heirs with Christ, provided we suffer with him in order that we may also be glorified with him." We share his sufferings now and his glory later.

1 John 3:1 sounds like a gasp of wonder: "See what kind of love the Father has given to us, that we should be called children of God; and so we are." The love is not just a feeling; it is something given, an action. And the "so we are" is a guarantee. The world does not recognize us, because it did not know him. But the hope is certain: when he appears, we shall be like him, because we shall see him as he is. And "everyone who thus hopes in him purifies himself as he is pure." The hope of the family inheritance motivates holy living.

STEP 5

Connection

Mark 14:36 records Jesus praying "Abba, Father." Matthew 6:9 begins the Lord's Prayer with "Our Father." John 1:12-13 says to all who believed he gave the right to become children of God. Ephesians 1:5 speaks of predestination to adoption. Hebrews 12:5-11 speaks of the Father's discipline. Romans 8:23 and 9:4 speak of adoption. 2 Corinthians 6:18 quotes the promise "I will be a father to you." Luke 15:11-32 shows the Father's welcome. Revelation 21:7 says the one who conquers will have this heritage.

STEP 6

Application

Pray "Abba, Father" today and let yourself feel what it means.

If you struggle with the word "Father," tell God honestly. Ask him to show you what a true Father is.

Treat a fellow believer today as a brother or sister, not an acquaintance.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for sending his Son to redeem you so that you could be adopted.

Pray, “Abba, Father,” and tell him what it means.

Thank him that you are an heir.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 108

“But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons.”

GALATIANS 4:4-5

DAY 755 · WEEK 108

Galatians 3:1-4:31

The law as guardian; sons not slaves; Hagar and Sarah

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 62 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Galatians 3:1-4:31. This long reading is Paul's theological argument. Notice his use of Abraham and the promise, the purpose of the law, and the allegory of Hagar and Sarah. Pay special attention to 3:23-29.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has shown in chapters 1 and 2 that the gospel does not come from men, and that justification is not by works of the law. Now he turns to argue from Scripture and experience. He appeals first to the Galatians' own experience of receiving the Spirit, then to Abraham, then to the purpose of the law. He answers a question the false teachers raised: if the law doesn't justify, why was it given?

STEP 3

Observation

1. "O foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you?" (3:1).
2. "Now it is evident that no one is justified before God by the law, for The righteous shall live by faith" (3:11).
3. "Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us" (3:13).
4. "So then, the law was our guardian until Christ came, in order that we might be justified by faith" (3:24).
5. "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is no male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus" (3:28).
6. "And if you are Christ's, then you are Abraham's offspring, heirs according to promise" (3:29).

7. “My little children, for whom I am again in the anguish of childbirth until Christ is formed in you” (4:19).

8. “Now you, brothers, like Isaac, are children of promise” (4:28).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with a rebuke and a question: “O foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you? It was before your eyes that Jesus Christ was publicly portrayed as crucified.” Then he asks: “Did you receive the Spirit by works of the law or by hearing with faith?” They received the Spirit when they first believed, by faith, not by works. Why think they will be perfected by the flesh?

Next Abraham: “Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness.” So the sons of Abraham are those of faith. Scripture foresaw that God would justify the Gentiles by faith and preached the gospel beforehand to Abraham: “In you shall all the nations be blessed.” Those who rely on works of the law are under a curse, for it is written, “Cursed be everyone who does not abide by all things written in the Book of the Law, and do them.” No one does. But “Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us.” The cross is where the curse fell. This was so that the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles, and we might receive the promised Spirit through faith.

The law came 430 years after the promise and cannot annul it. If the inheritance comes by law, it no longer comes by promise, but God gave it to Abraham by promise. “Why then the law?” It was added because of transgressions, until the offspring should come. It was a temporary measure. It does not contradict the promises, but it could not give life. “So then, the law was our guardian until Christ came, in order that we might be justified by faith. But now that faith has come, we are no longer under a guardian.” The guardian (Greek paidagogos) was a slave who supervised a child, not a teacher. His job ended when the child grew up. This is a key text for understanding the relationship between the covenants: the Mosaic covenant had a temporary role in God’s plan, and Christ has brought its fulfillment. Christians differ over how much of the law continues to apply as moral guidance; all agree that it is not a means of justification, and that Christ fulfills it.

Then comes one of the greatest statements about the church: “For in Christ Jesus you are all sons of God, through faith. For as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is no male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. And if you are Christ’s, then you are Abraham’s offspring, heirs according to promise.” All the divisions that separated people are overcome. Every believer has the same standing and the same inheritance. This does not erase all distinctions, but it removes them as grounds for status before God.

Chapter 4 continues with adoption (see yesterday's pause) and Paul's pastoral heart: "My little children, for whom I am again in the anguish of childbirth until Christ is formed in you." Then the allegory of Hagar and Sarah. Hagar represents the covenant from Mount Sinai, bearing children for slavery, corresponding to the present Jerusalem. Sarah represents the free woman, the Jerusalem above. "Now you, brothers, like Isaac, are children of promise." The one born according to the flesh persecuted the one born by the Spirit, and so it is now. But "what does the Scripture say? Cast out the slave woman and her son." We are not children of the slave but of the free woman.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 12:1-3, 15:1-6, and 17 are the Abrahamic covenant. Exodus 19 to 20 is Sinai. Deuteronomy 27:26 and 21:23 are cited in 3:10 and 3:13. Habakkuk 2:4 is cited in 3:11. Genesis 16 and 21 tell of Hagar and Sarah. Isaiah 54:1 is cited in 4:27. Jeremiah 31:31-34 promises the new covenant. Romans 4 gives a parallel argument. Hebrews 8 to 10 explain the old and new covenants. Colossians 2:16-17 says the old is a shadow and the substance belongs to Christ. Revelation 21:2 speaks of the new Jerusalem.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you are trying to be perfected by the flesh after beginning in the Spirit.

Thank Christ for becoming a curse for you. Say it slowly.

Seek out someone different from you, in age, background, or status, and show them the unity we have in Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Christ for becoming a curse for you.
- Thank him that you are a son or daughter and not a slave.
- Ask him to teach you to live in that freedom.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Galatians 4:4-5 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons."

GALATIANS 4:4-5

REST

Meditation

Four phrases carry the verse.

"When the fullness of time had come." History is not random. God had been preparing for centuries, through Abraham, Moses, David, and the prophets, until the moment he chose. The coming of Christ was right on schedule.

"God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law." The Son existed before he was sent. He was born of a woman, fully human, and born under the law, placing himself under the obligations of God's covenant with Israel. He lived the life we should have lived.

"To redeem those who were under the law." Redemption means buying back, the price paid to free a slave. He kept the law that we broke and bore the curse that we deserved.

“So that we might receive adoption as sons.” The goal is not just freedom, but family. We are not simply released; we are welcomed home.

Whenever you feel like a stranger or an orphan, say this verse. You were bought at a price in order to be brought home.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the unit on law, gospel, and the church by reading Galatians, Paul’s urgent defense of the gospel. In Galatians 1 and 2 you saw that there is no other gospel, that Paul’s message came by revelation, and that he opposed Peter at Antioch because the gospel is at stake in how we live together. In a doctrinal pause on adoption, you saw how the Father sent the Son and the Spirit so that sinners could become sons and daughters and cry “Abba! Father!” In Galatians 3 and 4, you read the case from Scripture: Abraham was justified by faith, Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law, the law was a temporary guardian, and in Christ all are sons and heirs. You also saw Paul’s allegory of Hagar and Sarah, with the contrast between slavery and freedom.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says the gospel cannot be added to. Is there anything you tend to add to faith in Christ as a requirement for being accepted by God, such as performance, a feeling, or a ritual? How does the cross answer that?

Galatians 3:13 says Christ became a curse for us. How does it affect you to know that Jesus took the curse that belonged to you? What does this make you want to say to him?

Which is harder for you to believe: that you are forgiven, or that you are a beloved son or daughter of the Father? What might help you rest in your adoption this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for sending his Son to redeem and adopt you.

Rest as his child.

Ask him to quiet any fear of not belonging.

DAY 757 · WEEK 109

Galatians 5:1-6:18

Christian freedom; the fruit of the Spirit; the new creation

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 41 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Galatians 5:1-6:18. Paul moves from the doctrine of freedom to its practice. Notice the contrast between flesh and Spirit, the fruit of the Spirit, and the closing summary about the cross and new creation.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has argued that we are justified by faith, not law. But does this freedom lead to a life of license? The opposite error was also a danger. In chapters 5 and 6, Paul shows how freedom works: we are called to freedom, but we use it to serve others in love, and we live by the Spirit who produces holiness. This is one of the best summaries of the Christian life in the New Testament.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For freedom Christ has set us free; stand firm therefore, and do not submit again to a yoke of slavery" (5:1).
2. "For you were called to freedom, brothers. Only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love serve one another" (5:13).
3. "But I say, walk by the Spirit, and you will not gratify the desires of the flesh" (5:16).
4. "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control; against such things there is no law" (5:22-23).
5. "Bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ" (6:2).
6. "And let us not grow weary of doing good, for in due season we will reap, if we do not give up" (6:9).

7. “Far be it from me to boast except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world” (6:14).

8. “For neither circumcision counts for anything, nor uncircumcision, but a new creation” (6:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“For freedom Christ has set us free; stand firm therefore, and do not submit again to a yoke of slavery.” Paul warns that if the Galatians accept circumcision as a means of righteousness, Christ will be of no advantage to them, and they are obligated to keep the whole law. “You are severed from Christ, you who would be justified by the law; you have fallen away from grace.” In Christ Jesus, what counts is “faith working through love.”

Then the other danger: “You were called to freedom, brothers. Only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love serve one another. For the whole law is fulfilled in one word: You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” Freedom from the law is not freedom from love. It is freedom to love. “But if you bite and devour one another, watch out that you are not consumed by one another.”

The solution is the Spirit. “Walk by the Spirit, and you will not gratify the desires of the flesh. For the desires of the flesh are against the Spirit, and the desires of the Spirit are against the flesh, for these are opposed to each other, to keep you from doing the things you want to do.” This is the war within every believer. The “works of the flesh” are obvious: sexual immorality, impurity, sensuality, idolatry, sorcery, enmity, strife, jealousy, fits of anger, rivalries, dissensions, divisions, envy, drunkenness, orgies. Those who do such things will not inherit the kingdom of God. Notice how many involve relationships.

In contrast, “the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control.” The singular “fruit” suggests one character with nine facets. It is the character of Christ. It grows; it is not manufactured. We cannot produce fruit by effort alone, but by abiding. And “those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh with its passions and desires. If we live by the Spirit, let us also keep in step with the Spirit.”

Chapter 6 gives practical instructions: restore gently someone caught in a transgression, watching yourself lest you too be tempted. “Bear one another’s burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ.” Each must also bear his own load (the daily responsibility). Share good things with those who teach. “Do not be deceived: God is not mocked, for whatever one sows, that will he also reap.” Sowing to the Spirit leads to eternal life. “Let us not grow weary of doing good.”

Paul takes the pen in his own hand to write the closing in large letters. His boast is not in circumcision or any achievement. “Far be it from me to boast except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world. For neither circumcision counts for anything, nor uncircumcision, but a new creation.” The cross is the center, and the new creation is the goal. “Peace and mercy be upon all who walk by this rule, upon the Israel of God.” Interpreters differ about whether “the Israel of God” means the church, composed of Jews and Gentiles, or believing Jews within the church. In a progressive covenantal reading, it points to the one people of God, united in Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 6 to 8 expands the same themes of freedom and the Spirit. Leviticus 19:18 is quoted in 5:14. John 15:1-17 shows fruit through abiding. Ephesians 4:1-6:20 and Colossians 3:1-17 give related moral teaching. Matthew 7:15-20 says a tree is known by its fruit. 2 Corinthians 5:17 speaks of new creation. Isaiah 65:17 and Revelation 21:5 promise all things new. Hebrews 12:1 calls us to lay aside weights. 1 Corinthians 2:2 shows Paul’s focus on the cross.

STEP 6

Application

Choose one fruit of the Spirit that you most need this week. Ask for it, and look for a place to practice it.

Ask whom you can help carry a burden. Do it quietly.

Put your name in 6:14. What do you boast in besides the cross?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for setting you free, and ask him to keep you from returning to slavery.
- Ask the Spirit to produce his fruit in you.
- Tell him which fruit you most need.

DAY 758 · WEEK 109

1 Corinthians 1:1-2:16

The foolishness of the cross; wisdom from above

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 1:1-2:16. Paul begins his letter to a gifted but divided church. Notice how he answers pride and division with the cross. Pay particular attention to 1:18-31 and 2:1-5.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Corinth was a wealthy, cosmopolitan port city in Greece, known for commerce, sensuality, and a love of rhetoric. Paul planted the church around AD 50 during an eighteen-month stay (Acts 18). By AD 55 he writes from Ephesus in response to reports and a letter from the church. They had problems: factions around favorite leaders, moral scandal, lawsuits, confusion about marriage, abuse of the Lord's Supper, disorder in worship, and doubts about the resurrection. First Corinthians is a letter for a messy church, and so it is very relevant. Paul's answer to every problem is Christ and him crucified.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The word of the cross is folly to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God" (1:18).
2. "We preach Christ crucified, a stumbling block to Jews and folly to Gentiles" (1:23).
3. "For the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men" (1:25).
4. "He is the source of your life in Christ Jesus, who became to us wisdom from God, righteousness and sanctification and redemption" (1:30).
5. "Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord" (1:31).

6. “For I decided to know nothing among you except Jesus Christ and him crucified” (2:2).
7. “These things God has revealed to us through the Spirit” (2:10).
8. “But we have the mind of Christ” (2:16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul greets the church as “sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints.” Despite their failings, they belong to God. He thanks God for the grace given them: they are enriched in speech and knowledge, lacking in no gift, waiting for the revealing of Christ. Then he turns to the first problem: quarrels. “I appeal to you, brothers… that all of you agree, and that there be no divisions among you.” Some said, “I follow Paul,” others, “I follow Apollos,” others Cephas, others Christ. “Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you?”

His answer is the cross. “The word of the cross is folly to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God.” The world seeks signs and wisdom, but “we preach Christ crucified, a stumbling block to Jews and folly to Gentiles, but to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God.” The message that seems weak and foolish is God’s chosen method. “The foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.”

Look at who you are, he says. Not many were wise, powerful, or of noble birth. “God chose what is foolish in the world to shame the wise; God chose what is weak in the world to shame the strong.” So that no one might boast in the presence of God. “He is the source of your life in Christ Jesus, who became to us wisdom from God, righteousness and sanctification and redemption.” Christ is everything. “Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord.”

In chapter 2, Paul describes his own ministry. He did not come with lofty speech or wisdom. “I decided to know nothing among you except Jesus Christ and him crucified.” He came in weakness and much trembling, and his message was not in plausible words of wisdom but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power, “that your faith might not rest in the wisdom of men but in the power of God.”

Yet there is a wisdom to be spoken among the mature: not the wisdom of this age, but God’s secret and hidden wisdom, decreed before the ages for our glory. None of the rulers of this age understood it, for if they had, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. It is revealed through the Spirit, who searches everything, even the depths of God. “No one comprehends the thoughts of God except the Spirit of God.” We have received the Spirit, so that we might understand the gifts freely given to us.

“The natural person does not accept the things of the Spirit of God, for they are folly to him, and he is not able to understand them because they are spiritually discerned.” This explains why people without the Spirit find the gospel foolish. And the chapter ends with a wonderful statement: “But we have the mind of Christ.” By the Spirit, believers can think God’s thoughts after him through his word.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 29:14 and Jeremiah 9:23-24 are quoted in chapter 1. Acts 18:1-18 tells of the founding of the church. Isaiah 64:4 and 40:13 are quoted in chapter 2. Galatians 6:14 is a parallel boast in the cross. Philippians 2:1-11 speaks of the mind of Christ. John 16:13-15 promises the Spirit who guides into truth. Romans 1:16 and Colossians 2:2-3 speak of Christ as the center. 1 Peter 2:4-8 says Christ is a stone of stumbling. Ephesians 1:17-18 prays for the Spirit of wisdom.

STEP 6

Application

Ask if you are boasting in a leader, a ministry, or a tradition more than in Christ. Replace the boast.

Pray for the Spirit to illumine a passage as you read Scripture this week.

If you feel weak or foolish in the world’s eyes, remember that God chose the weak.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the foolishness of the cross that saves you.
- Ask him to keep your eyes on Christ crucified.
- Tell him where you are tempted to rely on human wisdom.

DAY 759 · WEEK 109

1 Corinthians 3:1-4:21

The church as God's field; apostolic ministry

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 44 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 3:1-4:21. Paul continues to deal with divisions by showing how God sees ministers and the church. Notice the pictures: a field, a building, a temple. Notice also what Paul says about being a steward.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has said that the cross confounds human wisdom. Now he applies this to the church's attitude to its leaders. The Corinthians were comparing teachers like sports fans choosing favorite athletes. Paul wants them to see that ministers are servants and that the church is God's own possession.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the growth" (3:6).
2. "For no one can lay a foundation other than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (3:11).
3. "Do you not know that you are God's temple and that God's Spirit dwells in you?" (3:16).
4. "And you are Christ's, and Christ is God's" (3:23).
5. "This is how one should regard us, as servants of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God" (4:1).
6. "Moreover, it is required of stewards that they be found faithful" (4:2).
7. "What do you have that you did not receive?" (4:7).
8. "For the kingdom of God does not consist in talk but in power" (4:20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul says he could not address them as spiritual people but as people of the flesh, infants in Christ. They were still being fed milk. Their jealousy and strife showed it. “For when one says, I follow Paul, and another, I follow Apollos, are you not being merely human?” Then he gives the right view of ministry: “What then is Apollos? What is Paul? Servants through whom you believed, as the Lord assigned to each. I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the growth. So neither he who plants nor he who waters is anything, but only God who gives the growth.” Ministers are workers; God is the source of life.

The church is “God’s field, God’s building.” Paul laid a foundation as a wise master builder, and others build on it. “No one can lay a foundation other than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ.” Each builder must take care how he builds. The quality of each person’s work will be revealed on the day of judgment, tested by fire. Gold, silver, and precious stones endure; wood, hay, and straw burn. If the work survives, the builder receives a reward; if it is burned up, he suffers loss, though he himself will be saved, as through fire. This passage encourages teachers and builders to serve with care, building with the truth.

Then: “Do you not know that you are God’s temple and that God’s Spirit dwells in you? If anyone destroys God’s temple, God will destroy him. For God’s temple is holy, and you are that temple.” Notice that “you” is plural. The church is the dwelling of God’s Spirit. Dividing the church is a serious sin because it damages God’s temple.

Paul urges them to be wise by becoming fools in the world’s eyes, “for the wisdom of this world is folly with God.” And do not boast in men. “For all things are yours, whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas or the world or life or death or the present or the future, all are yours, and you are Christ’s, and Christ is God’s.” The church does not belong to its leaders; the leaders belong to the church, and the church belongs to Christ.

In chapter 4, Paul describes true ministers as “servants of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God.” A steward manages what belongs to another, and he must be faithful. Paul does not worry about human judgment, or even his own self-assessment: “It is the Lord who judges me.” He gives a sharp contrast between the proud Corinthians, who think themselves kings, and the apostles, who are “a spectacle to the world,” “fools for Christ’s sake,” hungry and homeless, reviled and slandered. “What do you have that you did not receive? If then you received it, why do you boast as if you had not received it?” He closes as a father: “I became your father in Christ Jesus through the gospel.” And he warns that he will come, if the Lord wills, to see not the talk but the power.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 28:16 speaks of the cornerstone. Ephesians 2:19-22 says the church is a holy temple in the Lord. 1 Peter 2:4-10 describes living stones. Matthew 7:24-27 shows building on the rock. 2 Corinthians 6:16 repeats that we are the temple of the living God. 1 Timothy 3:15 calls the church the pillar and buttress of the truth. Luke 12:42-48 describes the faithful steward. Romans 11:36 speaks of all things from him. 1 Peter 5:1-4 is a charge to elders.

STEP 6

Application

Thank a person who planted or watered in your life. Remember that God gave the growth.

Ask what you are building with: gold, silver, or straw. How could your ministry or your work last?

Look at your gifts and abilities and ask, What do I have that I did not receive?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he alone gives growth.

Thank him for those who planted and watered in your life.

Ask him to make Christ your only foundation.

DAY 760 · WEEK 109

Psalm 33

God's word stands; rest in God alone

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Psalm · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 33. It is a song of praise that begins in joy and ends in waiting. Notice how the psalm moves from God's creating word to his counsel to the waiting soul, and how it connects to Paul's argument that God's wisdom is greater than the world's.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 33 has no title, but it follows Psalm 32 as a joyful response to forgiveness. It is a hymn of praise that celebrates God's word, his creation, and his rule over the nations. In Corinthians, Paul has just been arguing that God's ways overturn the wisdom of the world and its strength. This psalm sings the same truth: kings and armies cannot save, but the LORD can.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For the word of the LORD is upright, and all his work is done in faithfulness" (v. 4).
2. "By the word of the LORD the heavens were made, and by the breath of his mouth all their host" (v. 6).
3. "For he spoke, and it came to be; he commanded, and it stood firm" (v. 9).
4. "The counsel of the LORD stands forever, the plans of his heart to all generations" (v. 11).
5. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD, the people whom he has chosen as his heritage!" (v. 12).
6. "Behold, the eye of the LORD is on those who fear him, on those who hope in his steadfast love" (v. 18).

7. “Our soul waits for the LORD; he is our help and our shield” (v. 20).

8. “Let your steadfast love, O LORD, be upon us, even as we hope in you” (v. 22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a summons: “Shout for joy in the LORD, O you righteous! Praise befits the upright.” It calls for a new song with skill and loud shouts, and with the harp and the lyre. The reason for praise is the word of the LORD. His word is upright, and all his work is done in faithfulness. He loves righteousness and justice, and the earth is full of his steadfast love.

Then the psalm turns to creation. “By the word of the LORD the heavens were made, and by the breath of his mouth all their host.” This echoes Genesis 1, where God speaks and things come to be. “For he spoke, and it came to be; he commanded, and it stood firm.” The word of God is powerful and effective. In the New Testament, the Word through whom all things were made is Christ (John 1:1-3). And the “breath of his mouth” can also be heard as the Spirit. The whole Trinity is at work in creation.

The word of the LORD is also the plan of history. “The LORD brings the counsel of the nations to nothing; he frustrates the plans of the peoples. The counsel of the LORD stands forever, the plans of his heart to all generations.” Human schemes rise and fall, but God’s purpose stands. This is the same idea as in 1 Corinthians 1: the wisdom of the world will be undone, but God’s wisdom remains. Notice the blessing for the people he has chosen as his heritage: “Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD.”

God sees everything. From heaven he looks down on all the children of man; he fashions the hearts of all and observes all their deeds. The conclusion: “The king is not saved by his great army; a warrior is not delivered by his great strength. The war horse is a false hope for salvation, and by its great might it cannot rescue.” Military power, wealth, and human strength cannot save. The true safety is in the LORD.

“Behold, the eye of the LORD is on those who fear him, on those who hope in his steadfast love, that he may deliver their soul from death and keep them alive in famine.” The psalm ends in humility and trust. “Our soul waits for the LORD; he is our help and our shield. For our heart is glad in him, because we trust in his holy name.” And the final prayer: “Let your steadfast love, O LORD, be upon us, even as we hope in you.” Waiting is the posture of faith.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1 shows creation by God's word. John 1:1-3 and Colossians 1:16 say all things were made through Christ. Hebrews 11:3 says the universe was created by the word of God. Psalm 20:7 and 147:10-11 also contrast chariots and horses with God. Isaiah 40:8 says the word of our God will stand forever. Isaiah 46:10 says my counsel shall stand. Proverbs 19:21 contrasts human plans with the LORD's purpose. 1 Corinthians 1:18-31 is the parallel argument.

STEP 6

Application

Sing or read this psalm aloud. Give thanks for something the LORD has made.

Name a plan or worry that depends on human strength. Entrust it to God.

Practice waiting on the LORD without rushing to fix things. Say verse 20 as a prayer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that his word is upright and his counsel stands forever.

Tell him what plans of yours you want to place under his.

Ask him to let his steadfast love be upon you as you hope in him.

DAY 761 · WEEK 109

Psalm 62

For God alone my soul waits in silence

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 62. It is a psalm of quiet trust by David. Notice the repeated word “alone” and how it deals with the temptation to trust in people, power, or wealth.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 62 is a psalm of David, probably from a time when enemies were plotting against him. It is a calm psalm in the middle of threat. The key word is “alone”: God alone is my rock. In Corinth, believers were tempted to trust in human leaders and human wisdom. This psalm calls us back to rest in God alone.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “For God alone my soul waits in silence; from him comes my salvation” (v. 1).
2. “He alone is my rock and my salvation, my fortress; I shall not be greatly shaken” (v. 2).
3. “For God alone, O my soul, wait in silence, for my hope is from him” (v. 5).
4. “On God rests my salvation and my glory; my mighty rock, my refuge is God” (v. 7).
5. “Trust in him at all times, O people; pour out your heart before him; God is a refuge for us” (v. 8).
6. “Those of low estate are but a breath; those of high estate are a delusion” (v. 9).
7. “If riches increase, set not your heart on them” (v. 10).
8. “Once God has spoken; twice have I heard this: that power belongs to God” (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David opens, “For God alone my soul waits in silence; from him comes my salvation.” The Hebrew has a sense of silence and stillness: the soul is quiet before God. He is not silent because he has no words, but because he is resting. “He alone is my rock and my salvation, my fortress; I shall not be greatly shaken.” The word “alone” appears six times in the psalm. It narrows trust to one object.

Then he addresses his enemies: “How long will all of you attack a man to batter him, like a leaning wall, a tottering fence?” They plan to thrust him down from his high position. They take pleasure in falsehood; they bless with their mouths, but inwardly they curse. In the face of this, David speaks to his own soul: “For God alone, O my soul, wait in silence, for my hope is from him.” He repeats verses 1 and 2 almost word for word, with a slight change. In the first, “I shall not be greatly shaken.” In the second, “I shall not be shaken.” His confidence grows as he preaches to himself.

Verse 8 turns outward to the people: “Trust in him at all times, O people; pour out your heart before him; God is a refuge for us.” Prayer is pouring out the heart. Then David exposes the false refuges: “Those of low estate are but a breath; those of high estate are a delusion; in the balances they go up; they are together lighter than a breath.” People of any rank, high or low, cannot hold up your weight. Neither can wealth: “Put no trust in extortion; set no vain hopes on robbery. If riches increase, set not your heart on them.” Money is not evil, but it is a poor god.

The psalm ends with God’s word: “Once God has spoken; twice have I heard this: that power belongs to God, and that to you, O Lord, belongs steadfast love. For you will render to a man according to his work.” God is both strong and kind. Power without love would be terrifying; love without power would be useless. God has both.

The cross shows both. The power of God is displayed in weakness; the love of God is shown in sacrifice. This is the paradox that Paul preached in Corinth. Rest in God alone, and pour out your heart to him.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 37:7 says be still before the LORD and wait patiently for him. Psalm 46:10 says be still and know that I am God. Isaiah 30:15 says in returning and rest you shall be saved. Lamentations 3:25-26 says it is good to wait quietly. Matthew 6:19-24 warns about treasures and serving two masters. 1 Timothy 6:17-19 addresses the rich. Jeremiah 17:5-8 contrasts trust in man with trust in the LORD. Romans 2:6 echoes verse 12. Philippians 4:6-7 speaks of prayer and peace.

STEP 6

Application

Sit in silence for five minutes today. Practice waiting on God alone.

Ask where you are trusting in people, position, or money. Name one and entrust it to God.

Pour out your heart to God in prayer today, without editing.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Wait on God in silence for a moment, and then tell him what you hope for.
- Thank him that he is your rock and fortress.
- Pour out your heart to him.

DAY 762 · WEEK 109

1 Corinthians 5:1-7:40

Church discipline; lawsuits; marriage and sexuality

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 101 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 5:1-7:40. This is a long reading on hard topics: sexual sin in the church, lawsuits, sexuality, and marriage. Read it carefully and with humility. Notice that Paul grounds his commands in the gospel: you were washed, you were bought with a price.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul now deals with specific problems reported to him. Chapter 5 concerns a man living in sexual immorality of a kind that even pagans would not tolerate, and the church's proud tolerance of it. Chapter 6 addresses believers suing each other in pagan courts, and sexual sin. Chapter 7 begins his response to the church's letter, "Now concerning the matters about which you wrote," with a long discussion of marriage, singleness, and divorce. Corinth had a reputation for sexual license, and some believers swung to the opposite extreme of asceticism.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For Christ, our Passover lamb, has been sacrificed" (5:7).
2. "For what have I to do with judging outsiders? Is it not those inside the church whom you are to judge?" (5:12).
3. "And such were some of you. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God" (6:11).
4. "Flee from sexual immorality" (6:18).
5. "You are not your own, for you were bought with a price. So glorify God in your body" (6:19-20).

6. “Each has his own gift from God, one of one kind and one of another” (7:7).
7. “Only let each person lead the life that the Lord has assigned to him, and to which God has called him” (7:17).
8. “You were bought with a price; do not become slaves of men” (7:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

A man is living with his father’s wife, and the church is arrogant instead of grieving. Paul tells them to remove him from their fellowship, “to deliver this man to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord.” Church discipline has a redemptive goal. He uses the picture of leaven: “a little leaven leavens the whole lump.” And the gospel is the basis: “Cleanse out the old leaven that you may be a new lump, as you really are unleavened. For Christ, our Passover lamb, has been sacrificed.” The church is to be what it already is in Christ. Paul distinguishes judgment of those inside the church from those outside; God judges outsiders.

In chapter 6, Paul rebukes believers who take each other to court before unbelievers. “Do you not know that the saints will judge the world?” Surely they can settle ordinary matters. It is better to be wronged. Then he lists the unrighteous who will not inherit the kingdom of God: the sexually immoral, idolaters, adulterers, men who practice homosexuality, thieves, the greedy, drunkards, revilers, swindlers. “And such were some of you. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God.” The words “such were some of you” are among the most hopeful in the Bible. No one is beyond the reach of the gospel, and no one is allowed to stay as they were.

Paul rejects the slogan “All things are lawful for me.” Not all things are helpful. The body is not for sexual immorality but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. God raised the Lord and will raise us. Our bodies are members of Christ. “Flee from sexual immorality. Every other sin a person commits is outside the body, but the sexually immoral person sins against his own body.” Then: “Or do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, whom you have from God? You are not your own, for you were bought with a price. So glorify God in your body.” This is the basis for Christian ethics: we belong to Christ, body and soul.

In chapter 7, Paul addresses marriage and singleness. Marriage is good, and sexual relations within marriage are a duty and a gift, to be mutual. He speaks of his own singleness as a gift: “Each has his own gift from God, one of one kind and one of another.” To the married he gives the Lord’s command that a wife should not separate from her husband, nor a husband divorce his wife. If a believer has an unbelieving spouse who is willing to stay, they should stay. “But if the unbelieving partner separates, let it be so. In such cases the brother or sister is not enslaved." Christians differ on what this means for divorce and remarriage: some hold that 7:15 allows remarriage after desertion, and others hold stricter or looser positions. Pastoral care and prayer are essential.

The chapter has a repeated principle: "Let each person lead the life that the Lord has assigned to him." Whether married, single, circumcised, or slave, we serve the Lord where he has placed us. Paul urges single believers to consider the advantage of undivided devotion, but this is a counsel, not a command. And "the appointed time has grown very short." The form of this world is passing away. Hold earthly relationships with an eye on eternity.

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 18:8 and Deuteronomy 22:30 forbid the sin in chapter 5. Exodus 12 describes the Passover. Matthew 18:15-20 gives the process of discipline. 2 Corinthians 2:5-11 may describe the repentance of this man. Genesis 2:24 is quoted in 6:16. Ephesians 5:22-33 speaks of marriage as Christ and the church. Matthew 19:1-12 is Jesus' teaching on divorce and singleness. Hebrews 13:4 honors marriage. Romans 6:1-14 and 1 Thessalonians 4:1-8 teach holiness. Daniel 7:22 says the saints will judge.

STEP 6

Application

Say 6:11 aloud and put your name in it. You were washed, sanctified, and justified.

Ask where you belong to yourself instead of Christ. Offer your body to him.

If you are single or married, ask God to show you how to serve him fully where you are. Pray for someone in a hard marriage.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being your Passover lamb.
- Thank him that you were washed, sanctified, and justified.
- Ask him to help you flee what harms you.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 109

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 1 Corinthians 1:18 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For the word of the cross is folly to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God."

1 CORINTHIANS 1:18

REST

Meditation

Paul writes this verse to a church that was dazzled by wisdom and rhetoric.

"The word of the cross." The gospel is a message about a crucifixion. In the ancient world, crucifixion was the most shameful death, reserved for slaves and rebels. To say that God's salvation came through a crucified man sounded insane.

"Is folly to those who are perishing." To those who are on the way to destruction, the message looks like nonsense. This is not because the message is irrational, but because sin has darkened understanding. Without the Spirit, no one sees its glory.

"But to us who are being saved." The present tense describes an ongoing process: we are being saved, as the Spirit applies the gospel to our lives. The verse divides humanity into two groups, and the dividing line is the cross.

“It is the power of God.” What looks like weakness is strength. The cross is not just the means of forgiveness but the power that changes lives, raises the dead, and breaks the grip of sin.

If you are ever embarrassed by the gospel, say this verse. The message you carry is the power of God.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished Galatians and began 1 Corinthians. Galatians 5 and 6 showed how freedom in Christ works: through love, by walking in the Spirit, producing the fruit of the Spirit, bearing one another’s burdens, and boasting in nothing but the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. First Corinthians opened with a divided, gifted church, and Paul answered every division with the word of the cross, the power and wisdom of God. You studied the church as God’s field, building, and temple, with ministers as servants and stewards. Two psalms taught trust: Psalm 33, the counsel of the LORD stands forever, and Psalm 62, for God alone my soul waits in silence. In chapters 5 to 7, Paul dealt with sexual sin, lawsuits, and marriage, always grounding his commands in the gospel: you were washed, sanctified, and justified, and you were bought with a price.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says the message of the cross seems foolish to the world. Where do you feel pressure to make the gospel more impressive or more respectable? What would it look like to trust the cross itself?

First Corinthians 6:11 says “such were some of you” but you were washed, sanctified, and justified. How does this verse change the way you see your past, and the way you see those who are far from God?

Psalm 62 says “For God alone my soul waits in silence.” What is one thing you tend to rely on besides God alone? What would it look like to wait on him this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that the word of the cross is the power of God.

Thank him that you are being saved.

Rest in what he has done.

DAY 764 · WEEK 110

1 Corinthians 8:1-10:33

Christian freedom; idolatry; love limits liberty

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 95 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 8:1-10:33. These three chapters answer a question about food offered to idols. Read for the principle: how do Christians use their freedom? Notice Paul's own example in chapter 9, the warning from Israel in chapter 10, and the closing command in 10:31.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Much of the meat sold in Corinth had first been offered to idols in pagan temples. Some believers said that since idols are nothing, eating that meat was fine. Others, who had been idol worshipers, felt that eating it was a return to idolatry. Paul does not simply side with the strong. He offers principles of knowledge, love, freedom, and warning that apply well beyond food. Typical situations today include entertainment, drinking, holidays, and cultural practices.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "This knowledge puffs up, but love builds up" (8:1).
2. "Yet for us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things and for whom we exist, and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things and through whom we exist" (8:6).
3. "For though I am free from all, I have made myself a servant to all, that I might win more of them" (9:19).
4. "I have become all things to all people, that by all means I might save some" (9:22).
5. "And all drank the same spiritual drink. For they were drinking from the spiritual Rock that followed them, and the Rock was Christ" (10:4).

6. “Now these things happened to them as an example, but they were written down for our instruction, on whom the end of the ages has come” (10:11).
7. “God is faithful, and he will not let you be tempted beyond your ability” (10:13).
8. “So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God” (10:31).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul starts with a general principle: “Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up.” It is possible to be right and unloving. He agrees with the strong in doctrine: “An idol has no real existence, and there is no God but one.” The great confession of 8:6 echoes the Shema: “For us there is one God, the Father… and one Lord, Jesus Christ.” Paul places Jesus within the identity of the one God. Yet not everyone has this knowledge, and a weaker conscience may be defiled. “Take care that this right of yours does not somehow become a stumbling block to the weak.” Love limits liberty: “If food is a cause of my brother’s stumbling, I will never eat meat, lest I cause my brother to stumble.”

In chapter 9, Paul uses himself as an example. He is an apostle with rights: to eat and drink, to be married, to be supported by the churches, as the Lord commanded that those who proclaim the gospel get their living by the gospel. “But I have made no use of any of these rights.” He renounces them to avoid putting an obstacle in the way of the gospel. “For though I am free from all, I have made myself a servant to all, that I might win more of them.” To the Jews he became as a Jew; to those under the law as under the law; to those outside the law as outside the law, though not outside the law of God; to the weak, weak. “I have become all things to all people, that by all means I might save some. I do it all for the sake of the gospel.” Paul adapts his behavior, not his message. Then he compares the Christian life to a race and to boxing, with self-discipline and an imperishable crown.

Chapter 10 warns from Israel’s history. All were baptized into Moses in the cloud and the sea, all ate the same spiritual food and drank the same spiritual drink, “for they were drinking from the spiritual Rock that followed them, and the Rock was Christ.” Yet with most of them God was not pleased, and they were overthrown in the wilderness. Idolatry, immorality, testing the Lord, and grumbling brought judgment. “These things happened to them as an example, but they were written down for our instruction, on whom the end of the ages has come. Therefore let anyone who thinks that he stands take heed lest he fall.” This is a key text for reading the Old Testament as Christian Scripture: Christ was present in Israel’s story, and its lessons are for us.

And then comfort: “No temptation has overtaken you that is not common to man. God is faithful, and he will not let you be tempted beyond your ability, but with the temptation he will also provide the way of escape, that you may be able to endure it.” The instruction is to flee idolatry. The Lord's Supper is a participation in the blood and body of Christ, and one cannot partake of the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

The closing principles in 10:23 to 11:1: not everything is helpful, seek the good of your neighbor, give thanks, and avoid causing offense. "So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God." Give no offense to Jews, Greeks, or the church of God. "Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ."

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 6:4 is the Shema, which Paul reworks in 8:6. Numbers 11, 14, 16, 21, and 25 describe the wilderness failures. Exodus 14 and 17 describe the sea and the rock. Romans 14 to 15 treats a similar question. Acts 15:28-29 and Revelation 2:14, 20 address meat offered to idols. Philippians 3:12-14 and 2 Timothy 4:7 speak of the race. Hebrews 3 to 4 also draw lessons from Israel's wilderness. John 4:34 and Colossians 3:17 speak of doing all for God.

STEP 6

Application

Name a freedom you have that might hinder a friend or new believer. Be willing to give it up for love.

Ask yourself: Does my knowledge puff me up or build up others?

Do one ordinary thing today, eating or working, "to the glory of God" and say so in your heart.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the one God and one Lord.

Ask him to keep your knowledge from puffing you up and make you loving.

Ask him to help you give up a liberty if it would help a brother or sister.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 110

1 Corinthians 11:17-34; Luke 22:14-20; Matthew 26:26-29

The Sacraments, The Lord's Supper

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 11:17-34, Luke 22:14-20, and Matthew 26:26-29. Today is a doctrinal pause on the Lord's Supper. Notice what Jesus said and did, and how Paul corrects the Corinthians' abuse of the meal.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

On the night he was betrayed, Jesus celebrated the Passover with his disciples and gave them a new meal. From the beginning the church repeated this meal. By the time Paul wrote, it was a regular part of church gatherings. In Corinth, the meal had been corrupted: the rich ate and drank to excess while the poor went hungry, so the meal became a mark of division, not unity. Paul's correction tells us what the Supper is meant to be.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I have earnestly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (Luke 22:15).
2. "This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me" (Luke 22:19).
3. "This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood" (Luke 22:20).
4. "For this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins" (Matthew 26:28).
5. "I tell you I will not drink again of this fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom" (Matthew 26:29).
6. "For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes" (1 Corinthians 11:26).

7. “Let a person examine himself, then, and so eat of the bread and drink of the cup” (1 Corinthians 11:28).

8. “For anyone who eats and drinks without discerning the body eats and drinks judgment on himself” (1 Corinthians 11:29).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The Lord’s Supper (also called Communion, the Eucharist, or the Lord’s Table) is the meal in which Christ’s people eat bread and drink the cup in remembrance of his death. Jesus instituted it at the Last Supper, and the church has observed it since the first century. It has several meanings. It looks back: “Do this in remembrance of me.” It proclaims: “You proclaim the Lord’s death.” It looks forward: “until he comes,” and Jesus pointed to the feast in the kingdom. It signifies and seals the new covenant in his blood, the forgiveness of sins. And it signifies our unity: “Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all partake of the one bread” (1 Corinthians 10:17).

Christians have disagreed about how Christ is present in the Supper, and this is one of the major differences between traditions. Roman Catholics hold that the bread and wine become the body and blood of Christ (transubstantiation). Lutherans hold that Christ’s body and blood are truly present “in, with, and under” the elements. Reformed Christians (following Calvin) hold that Christ is truly present by the Spirit, and the believer feeds on him by faith, though not physically in the elements. Many Baptists and others hold that the Supper is primarily a memorial and proclamation, an ordinance in which Christ is remembered. Traditions also differ on who may partake, how often, and who may administer. These matters deserve serious study and respect for one another.

What all agree on is that the Supper is a gift of grace for believers and a means of strengthening faith. It is to be approached with self-examination, not to earn forgiveness but to repent, trust, and be reconciled. It is to be shared in a way that honors the unity of the body. And it points beyond itself: the table is a foretaste of the wedding supper of the Lamb.

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Luke 22, Jesus says, “I have earnestly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer.” He knew what lay ahead and still longed for fellowship with his friends. The Passover meal remembered God’s rescue of Israel from Egypt, with the blood of a lamb protecting the firstborn. Jesus takes the bread, gives thanks, breaks it, and says, “This is my body, which is given for you.” After supper he takes the cup: “This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood." Matthew adds, "for the forgiveness of sins." He is the Lamb, and his blood establishes the new covenant that Jeremiah promised (31:31-34). And he looks ahead: he will not drink again until he drinks it new in the kingdom.

In 1 Corinthians 11, Paul first rebukes the divisions at the meal: "When you come together, it is not the Lord's supper that you eat. For in eating, each one goes ahead with his own meal. One goes hungry, another gets drunk." They were humiliating the poor. Then he recalls what he received from the Lord: Jesus on the night he was betrayed took bread, gave thanks, broke it, and said, "This is my body which is for you. Do this in remembrance of me." Likewise the cup. The Supper is a proclamation of the Lord's death.

Paul warns: "Whoever, therefore, eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be guilty concerning the body and blood of the Lord." The "unworthy manner" refers to how they ate, with contempt for the poor, not that the person is unworthy, since no one is worthy in himself. "Let a person examine himself, then." We examine our hearts and our relationships. Some had become weak, ill, or had died, as a disciplinary judgment from the Lord, "that we may not be condemned along with the world." It is a sober reminder. The right response is not to avoid the table but to come repentant and in unity: "When you come together to eat, wait for one another."

Taking the Supper is one of the plainest ways the gospel is displayed. We do not make the meal; we receive it. We do not offer a sacrifice; we receive the benefits of the one sacrifice. And we eat together, which shows that we are one family.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 12 describes the Passover. Exodus 24:8 speaks of the blood of the covenant. Jeremiah 31:31-34 promises the new covenant. John 6:22-59 is Jesus' bread of life discourse. 1 Corinthians 10:14-22 speaks of participation. Isaiah 25:6-8 pictures the feast on the mountain. Revelation 19:6-9 describes the marriage supper of the Lamb. Acts 2:42 and 20:7 show the early church breaking bread. Hebrews 9:11-10:18 explains the once-for-all sacrifice. Matthew 5:23-24 speaks of reconciliation before worship.

STEP 6

Application

Before your next Communion, spend time examining your heart. Ask whether you are at peace with others.

Read the words of institution slowly and picture the upper room.

Pray for unity in your church and for those in your church who are poor or left out.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for the bread and the cup.

Ask him to teach you to come to his table with reverence and joy.

Ask him to remind you of his death until he comes.

DAY 766 · WEEK 110

1 Corinthians 11:1-34

Head coverings; the Lord's Supper

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 34 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 11:1-34. The chapter has two parts: guidance on worship conduct (verses 2-16) and the Lord's Supper (verses 17-34). You read about the Supper yesterday. Today give attention to verses 2-16, which are some of the hardest in the letter to interpret, and read them with humility.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul begins a new section on public worship. He first praises them for remembering him and holding to the traditions as he delivered them. Then he addresses a problem in worship that involved how men and women dressed or wore their hair when praying or prophesying. The details of the first-century practice are not entirely clear to us, which is why interpreters have differed for centuries. What is clear is that both men and women prayed and prophesied in the gathered church, and that Paul cared about order and about honoring Christ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ" (11:1).
2. "Nevertheless, in the Lord woman is not independent of man nor man of woman" (11:11).
3. "If anyone is inclined to be contentious, we have no such practice, nor do the churches of God" (11:16).
4. "When you come together as a church, I hear that there are divisions among you" (11:18).
5. "Each one goes ahead with his own meal. One goes hungry, another gets drunk" (11:21).

6. “For I received from the Lord what I also delivered to you” (11:23).
7. “This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me” (11:25).
8. “When you come together to eat, wait for one another” (11:33).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The chapter opens with a command that belongs to the previous section: “Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ.” Then Paul commends them for keeping the traditions. “But I want you to understand that the head of every man is Christ, the head of a wife is her husband, and the head of Christ is God.” The word translated “head” (kephale) is debated. Some understand it as authority, leading to a view that men have a leading role in the home and church. Others understand it as source or origin, since the passage speaks of woman coming from man in creation. Christians who love the Bible land in different places, so we should be gracious.

Paul then gives instructions about heads being covered or uncovered when praying or prophesying. It is likely that the issue was cultural markers of honor and shame in Corinth, and that Paul wanted men and women to present themselves in a way that did not bring disgrace or confusion about the gender distinctions God made. Some churches have taken this passage as requiring head coverings for women today; others see the principle as honoring order and distinction while the specific custom was cultural. Paul himself says, “We have no such practice, nor do the churches of God,” for those who are contentious. What is beyond dispute is verse 11: “In the Lord woman is not independent of man nor man of woman; for as woman was made from man, so man is now born of woman. And all things are from God.” Men and women need one another, and both are from God. And Paul assumes that women pray and prophesy in the assembly.

Verses 17 to 34 return to the Lord’s Supper, which you studied yesterday. Paul says the divisions among them are in a sense necessary “in order that those who are genuine among you may be recognized.” Their meal was becoming a display of status. “Do you despise the church of God and humiliate those who have nothing?” This is a rebuke of the rich who eat first. Paul then recalls the Lord’s own words. The Supper is a proclamation of the cross and a call to unity.

Self-examination and discerning the body (the church) are both required. The weak and sick among them show the seriousness of misusing the meal. Paul’s practical conclusion is simple: “So then, my brothers, when you come together to eat, wait for one another. If anyone is hungry, let him eat at home, so that when you come together it will not be for judgment.”

The big idea of the chapter is that worship is ordered by the gospel. Whatever our practice, it must honor Christ, build up the church, and care for the weak.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:26-27 and 2:18-23 are the creation background. Ephesians 5:21-33 speaks of headship and love. Galatians 3:28 says there is no male and female in Christ. Acts 2:17-18 and 21:9 mention women prophesying. 1 Timothy 2:8-15 also addresses worship. Luke 22:19-20 is the institution of the Supper. 1 Corinthians 10:16-17 speaks of participation. James 2:1-9 warns against partiality toward the rich. Hebrews 13:7 says to imitate the faith of leaders. Philippians 2:3-4 urges us to look to the interests of others.

STEP 6

Application

Ask whom in your church gets overlooked. Wait for them, honor them, and include them.

Pray that your church's worship would reflect the gospel in both order and love.

On a point where Christians disagree, ask how you can listen first.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to help you imitate those who imitate Christ.
- Ask him to order your worship.
- Thank him for making men and women for one another.

DAY 767 · WEEK 110

1 Corinthians 12:1-14:40

Spiritual gifts; one body; love supreme

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 88 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 12:1-14:40. These three chapters form one argument about spiritual gifts. Read chapter 13 in its place, not in isolation: it sits between two chapters on gifts and explains how they are to be used. Notice the body in chapter 12, love in chapter 13, and order in chapter 14.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The Corinthians were eager for spiritual gifts, especially the dramatic ones like tongues. But their use of gifts had become a source of pride, rivalry, and disorder in worship. Paul takes the opportunity to teach about the nature and purpose of the Spirit's gifts. Chapter 13 is not a stand-alone poem on love for weddings, although it is often read there. It is a rebuke and a remedy for a church that valued display over love.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "No one can say Jesus is Lord except in the Holy Spirit" (12:3).
2. "To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good" (12:7).
3. "For just as the body is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, though many, are one body, so it is with Christ" (12:12).
4. "If one member suffers, all suffer together; if one member is honored, all rejoice together" (12:26).
5. "If I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal" (13:1).
6. "Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant or rude" (13:4).

7. “So now faith, hope, and love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love” (13:13).

8. “But all things should be done decently and in order” (14:40).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with a test. Pagans were led astray to mute idols. By contrast, “no one speaking in the Spirit of God ever says Jesus is accursed, and no one can say Jesus is Lord except in the Holy Spirit.” Every believer has the Spirit, shown by confessing Christ as Lord. Then comes the Trinity: “There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of service, but the same Lord; and there are varieties of activities, but it is the same God who empowers them all in everyone.” The gifts are for “the common good,” not for private status. Paul lists wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, distinguishing of spirits, tongues, and interpretation, all empowered by one and the same Spirit, “who apportions to each one individually as he wills.”

He then pictures the church as a body. “Just as the body is one and has many members… so it is with Christ. For in one Spirit we were all baptized into one body, Jews or Greeks, slaves or free.” The foot cannot say it is not part of the body because it is not a hand. The eye cannot say to the hand, “I have no need of you.” God has so composed the body, giving greater honor to the part that lacked it, that there may be no division. “If one member suffers, all suffer together; if one member is honored, all rejoice together. Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it.” He lists the offices again: apostles, prophets, teachers, miracle workers, healers, helpers, administrators, tongues. “And I will show you a still more excellent way.”

That way is love. Without it, the most impressive gifts are noise. Tongues, prophecy, knowledge, faith that moves mountains, giving all I have, even martyrdom: “if I have not love, I gain nothing.” Then the description: love is patient and kind; does not envy or boast; is not arrogant or rude; does not insist on its own way; is not irritable or resentful; does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth. It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Read these as a portrait of Christ, and a mirror for ourselves. “Love never ends.” Prophecies will pass away, tongues will cease, knowledge will vanish. Now we see in a mirror dimly, but then face to face. “So now faith, hope, and love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love.”

Chapter 14 applies the principle. Pursue love, and desire the spiritual gifts, especially prophecy, because it builds up the church. Tongues, unless interpreted, edify only the speaker. “In church I would rather speak five words with my mind in order to instruct others, than ten thousand words in a tongue.” The aim is building up. Women and men should keep order: “God is not a God of confusion but of peace.” Verses 34 to 35 on women being silent have been understood in different ways: as a local issue of disruptive questions, as a restriction on weighing prophecy, or as a quotation of a Corinthian slogan. “But all things should be done decently and in order.”

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 2 describes the Spirit at Pentecost. Romans 12:3-8 and Ephesians 4:1-16 also treat gifts and the body. John 13:34-35 gives the new commandment of love. Colossians 3:14 says above all put on love. 1 John 4:7-21 says God is love. Galatians 5:22-23 lists the fruit of the Spirit. Matthew 22:37-40 sums up the law as love. 1 Peter 4:10-11 speaks of using gifts to serve others. Philippians 2:1-4 teaches humility. 2 Corinthians 3:18 and 5:7 speak of seeing now and then.

STEP 6

Application

Read chapter 13 and replace the word “love” with your own name. Where does it not fit? Ask Christ, who does fit, to make it true of you.

Ask what gift God gave you for the common good. Offer it this week.

Honor a member of your church who is less visible, like the weaker parts of the body.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank the Holy Spirit for giving each believer gifts for the common good.
- Ask him to make you content as part of the body.
- Ask him to make love supreme in your gifts.

Spiritual Gifts and the Body of Christ

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 12:1-31, Romans 12:3-8, and Ephesians 4:11-16. Today is a doctrinal pause on spiritual gifts and the body of Christ. Notice who gives the gifts, what they are for, and how they work together.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Three letters, three lists, one body. Paul wrote to Corinth, to Rome, and to Ephesus, each time teaching that every believer has a place in the body of Christ. Today we step back from the details of Corinth to see the overall teaching on gifts. This is also an area where evangelical Christians hold different views, especially about miraculous gifts, so it is important to learn the basics and to treat each other kindly.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Now there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit” (1 Corinthians 12:4).
2. “To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good” (1 Corinthians 12:7).
3. “All these are empowered by one and the same Spirit, who apportions to each one individually as he wills” (1 Corinthians 12:11).
4. “The eye cannot say to the hand, I have no need of you” (1 Corinthians 12:21).
5. “Not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think” (Romans 12:3).
6. “Having gifts that differ according to the grace given to us, let us use them” (Romans 12:6).

7. “To equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ” (Ephesians 4:12).

8. “Makes the body grow so that it builds itself up in love” (Ephesians 4:16).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

A spiritual gift is a capacity given by the Holy Spirit to a believer for serving others and building up the church. The Greek word is charisma, from charis (grace): a gift of grace. Three truths hold throughout the New Testament. First, gifts are given by the Spirit, not earned. “He apportions to each one individually as he wills.” Second, every believer has at least one gift: “To each is given.” No one is without a role. Third, gifts are for the common good, not personal status. They are tools for service, not trophies.

The lists in the New Testament are not exhaustive. 1 Corinthians 12 includes wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, and interpretation. Romans 12 adds serving, teaching, exhorting, giving, leading, and mercy. Ephesians 4 names gifted people given to the church: apostles, prophets, evangelists, shepherds, and teachers. 1 Peter 4 divides them into speaking and serving gifts. We see that gifts are as varied as the needs of the body.

Christians disagree about some gifts. Continuationists hold that all gifts, including prophecy, healing, and tongues, continue today. Cessationists hold that the miraculous sign gifts and the foundational office of apostle ceased when the New Testament was completed. Others take a position between them, expecting God to work miraculously while being cautious about claims. All agree that the Spirit is active today, that Scripture is the final authority and is complete, that gifts must be tested by the word, and that love is greater than any gift.

The body image is the center of the doctrine. A body has many parts, each necessary, none self-sufficient. The weaker parts are indispensable. The purpose is edification: “to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ,” until we all attain to the unity of the faith and the knowledge of the Son of God, to mature manhood. Pastors and teachers are not to do all the ministry; they equip the saints to do it. The result is a church that grows “in love.”

STEP 4

Interpretation

In 1 Corinthians 12, the foundation is the Trinity: the same Spirit, the same Lord, the same God. Diversity springs from unity. Next, purpose: “for the common good.” A gift that is not shared has missed its purpose. Third, Paul addresses two opposite attitudes. Pride says, “I do not need you." Inferiority says, "I do not belong." Both are corrected by the body image. If the whole body were an eye, where would be the hearing? God arranged the members as he chose.

Romans 12:3 brings humility: "By the grace given to me I say to everyone among you not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but to think with sober judgment, each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned." We have received our gifts; we do not deserve them. Then the diversity: prophecy "in proportion to our faith," service, teaching, exhortation, giving "with generosity," leading "with zeal," mercy "with cheerfulness." Each gift is paired with a way of using it well.

Ephesians 4 shows how Christ is the source: "When he ascended on high he led a host of captives, and he gave gifts to men." Christ gave to the church leaders who equip. "Until we all attain to the unity of the faith… so that we may no longer be children, tossed to and fro by the waves and carried about by every wind of doctrine." Instead, "speaking the truth in love, we are to grow up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ, from whom the whole body, joined and held together by every joint with which it is equipped, when each part is working properly, makes the body grow so that it builds itself up in love."

If you are a believer, you have a gift. Find it by serving in your local church, asking others where they see God's work through you, and trying things. Do not wait for a certainty. You cannot fully know your gift until you use it. And remember the chapter that follows 1 Corinthians 12: without love, even the best gift is nothing.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 6:1-7 shows the church appointing servants. Exodus 31:1-6 speaks of Bezalel being filled with the Spirit for craftsmanship. 1 Peter 4:10-11 speaks of being good stewards of God's varied grace. Psalm 68:18 is quoted in Ephesians 4:8. Colossians 2:19 speaks of the whole body knit together. 1 Thessalonians 5:19-22 says to test everything. 1 Corinthians 14:1-5 compares tongues and prophecy. Hebrews 2:4 mentions gifts of the Holy Spirit distributed according to his will. Matthew 25:14-30 is the parable of the talents.

STEP 6

Application

Write down the ways you serve your local church now. If you have none, pick one place to start.

Ask two people who know you what they see as your strength in serving others.

Thank someone whose gifts are different from yours.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank the Holy Spirit for gifts given to every believer.

Ask him to show you what you have been given and how to use it.

Ask him to help you honor others' gifts.

DAY 769 · WEEK 110

Psalm 111

Great are the works of the LORD

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Psalm · 10 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 111. It is one of the alphabetic acrostic psalms, with each line beginning with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Read it as a hymn of remembering God's works, and notice its link to the Lord's Supper and the church's gathering.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 111 and 112 are a pair. Both begin with "Praise the LORD" and are acrostics, each with twenty-two short lines. Psalm 111 describes God and his works; Psalm 112 describes the person who fears him and reflects his character. Psalm 111 is sung in the congregation: "in the company of the upright, in the congregation." It fits our study of the church's worship and the meal of remembrance.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! I will give thanks to the LORD with my whole heart, in the company of the upright, in the congregation" (v. 1).
2. "Great are the works of the LORD, studied by all who delight in them" (v. 2).
3. "Full of splendor and majesty is his work, and his righteousness endures forever" (v. 3).
4. "He has caused his wondrous works to be remembered; the LORD is gracious and merciful" (v. 4).
5. "He provides food for those who fear him; he remembers his covenant forever" (v. 5).
6. "He sent redemption to his people; he has commanded his covenant forever" (v. 9).
7. "Holy and awesome is his name!" (v. 9).

8 “The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom; all those who practice it have a good understanding” (v. 10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with whole-hearted thanksgiving, offered in the congregation. Worship is personal and corporate. Verse 2 says the works of the LORD are great and “studied by all who delight in them.” We are invited not only to admire God’s works but to study them. The more we look, the more we see his splendor and majesty. “His righteousness endures forever.”

Verse 4 is the heart: “He has caused his wondrous works to be remembered; the LORD is gracious and merciful.” God designs memorials. He gave Israel the Passover, the feasts, and the stones of remembrance, and he has given the church the Lord’s Supper. We tend to forget, so God gives us ways to remember. The psalm’s God is “gracious and merciful,” echoing Exodus 34:6. Verse 5: “He provides food for those who fear him; he remembers his covenant forever.” This recalls manna in the wilderness, and our daily bread. Notice that God remembers his covenant, even as he asks us to remember his works.

The next verses speak of power and justice. “He has shown his people the power of his works, in giving them the inheritance of the nations.” “The works of his hands are faithful and just; all his precepts are trustworthy; they are established forever and ever, to be performed with faithfulness and uprightness.” His commands are as reliable as his deeds.

Then the great verse: “He sent redemption to his people; he has commanded his covenant forever. Holy and awesome is his name!” Redemption is the exodus in the original context. For Christians it is also the cross, where the Lord Jesus redeemed us by his blood, establishing the new covenant. The Supper is the memorial of that redemption. And the name of the LORD is holy and awesome (the word is “fearful,” to be revered).

The psalm ends with a proverb that is also the key to the whole Bible’s wisdom literature: “The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom; all those who practice it have a good understanding. His praise endures forever!” Wisdom begins with reverent awe before the God who has acted. This connects with the opening chapters of 1 Corinthians, where the wisdom of God is found in the cross.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 34:6-7 describes God as gracious and merciful. Exodus 12:14 and Deuteronomy 8:2 speak of remembering. Psalm 105 retells God’s works. Luke 22:19 says “Do this in remembrance of me.” Proverbs 1:7 and 9:10 say the fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom. Luke 1:68 and 1:49 speak of redemption and the holy name. Revelation 15:3-4 sings "Great and amazing are your deeds." Psalm 112 is the companion psalm. Hebrews 9:15 speaks of redemption under the new covenant.

STEP 6

Application

Write down three of the LORD's works in your life and give thanks in the congregation of your family or friends.

At your next Communion, pray verse 4: he has caused his wondrous works to be remembered.

Study one of God's works this week, in creation or in Scripture, and delight in it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks to God with your whole heart.
- Tell him about works of his that you want to remember.
- Ask him to give you the fear of the LORD that is the beginning of wisdom.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 1 Corinthians 13:13 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"So now faith, hope, and love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

1 CORINTHIANS 13:13

REST

Meditation

This verse is the last line of the love chapter, and it summarizes a chapter about what lasts.

"So now." Paul has described gifts that will pass away: prophecies, tongues, knowledge. They are temporary scaffolding. "Now" marks the present time between Christ's first and second comings.

"Faith, hope, and love abide." These three remain. Faith trusts God's promises. Hope looks forward to what he has promised. Love gives itself to God and others. Each is a gift of the Spirit, and each is fixed on Christ.

"These three." They go together. Faith without love is dead; hope without faith is wishful; love without hope grows weary. The Christian life is a life of all three.

“But the greatest of these is love.” Why is love greatest? Because faith will become sight, and hope will be fulfilled, but love will last forever. God himself is love. In heaven, we won’t need to believe what we see or hope for what we have, but we will love for all eternity.

When you wonder what matters most in the church or in your life, say this verse. Love is the measure of all.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read more of 1 Corinthians and saw how Paul answered a church’s questions with the gospel. In chapters 8 to 10, you learned how to use freedom: knowledge puffs up but love builds up, and whatever we do we should do for the glory of God. A doctrinal pause on the Lord’s Supper taught that Jesus gave his church a meal of remembrance, proclamation, and hope, and that we come in repentance and unity. In chapter 11, you read about order in worship and the sin of dividing the body at the Lord’s table. Chapters 12 to 14 gave the great teaching on spiritual gifts: one Spirit, many gifts, one body, and the more excellent way of love. A second doctrinal pause considered the gifts and the body of Christ. Psalm 111 called us to remember and give thanks for the works of the LORD, who sent redemption to his people.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says love is greater than faith and hope. What does it look like to treat love as the most important measure of your spiritual life, and not gifts, knowledge, or activity?

The Lord’s Supper proclaims Christ’s death until he comes. How might you prepare differently the next time you take Communion?

What gift has God given you for the common good of your church? Who in your church needs what you can offer?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for the meal of remembrance.

Thank him for gifts he gives his church.

Ask him to teach you to love as he loves.

DAY 771 · WEEK 111

Psalm 112

Blessed is the man who fears the LORD

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Psalm · 10 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 112. It is the companion to Psalm 111. Where Psalm 111 described the LORD, this psalm describes the person who fears the LORD, and the person turns out to be like him. Paul quotes verse 9 in 2 Corinthians 9:9.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 112 is also an acrostic, with twenty-two short lines. It describes the blessed person who fears the LORD and delights in his commandments. The pairing with Psalm 111 is intentional: many phrases are repeated, like "his righteousness endures forever." What is said of God is also said of the godly person. This is the Bible's picture of becoming like the one we worship. It also anticipates Paul's teaching about generosity at the end of the unit.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! Blessed is the man who fears the LORD, who greatly delights in his commandments!" (v. 1).
2. "Light dawns in the darkness for the upright; he is gracious, merciful, and righteous" (v. 4).
3. "It is well with the man who deals generously and lends; who conducts his affairs with justice" (v. 5).
4. "For the righteous will never be moved; he will be remembered forever" (v. 6).
5. "He is not afraid of bad news; his heart is firm, trusting in the LORD" (v. 7).
6. "His heart is steady; he will not be afraid" (v. 8).
7. "He has distributed freely; he has given to the poor" (v. 9).

8 “His righteousness endures forever; his horn is exalted in honor” (v. 9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a beatitude: “Blessed is the man who fears the LORD, who greatly delights in his commandments!” Fear and delight go together. The fear of the LORD is not terror but reverence, and obedience is a joy, not a burden. The blessing extends to the next generation: “His offspring will be mighty in the land.” Wealth and righteousness are mentioned, but the focus is on the character that lasts: “his righteousness endures forever.” This is the same phrase used of God in Psalm 111:3. The godly person reflects the character of God.

Verse 4 gives the surprising line: “Light dawns in the darkness for the upright; he is gracious, merciful, and righteous.” Again, the words “gracious and merciful” are used of God in Psalm 111:4. The person who fears the LORD is a light for others in dark times, and he receives light himself. Then comes generosity: “It is well with the man who deals generously and lends; who conducts his affairs with justice.” Faith expresses itself in the use of money and in fairness.

Verse 6 says “The righteous will never be moved; he will be remembered forever.” This echoes the stability of the one who trusts in the LORD. Verse 7: “He is not afraid of bad news; his heart is firm, trusting in the LORD.” How many of us live in fear of bad news? The believer’s security rests on a faithful God, not on good circumstances. This does not mean no bad news will come, but that it cannot shake us. “His heart is steady; he will not be afraid, until he looks in triumph on his adversaries.”

Verse 9 is the center: “He has distributed freely; he has given to the poor; his righteousness endures forever; his horn is exalted in honor.” Paul quotes this verse in 2 Corinthians 9:9 to encourage the Corinthians to give to the poor believers in Jerusalem. Generosity is a sign of righteousness. And God, who supplies seed to the sower, will multiply your seed for sowing and increase the harvest of your righteousness.

The psalm ends with a contrast: “The wicked man sees it and is angry; he gnashes his teeth and melts away; the desire of the wicked will perish!” Those who reject God’s ways cannot stand the light of the righteous. But the one who fears the LORD will not be shaken.

In the end, the one who perfectly fits this psalm is Christ, who feared the LORD, delighted in his commands, gave freely to the poor, and has been exalted in honor. We are being made like him.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Corinthians 9:6-15 quotes verse 9 in the context of giving. Psalm 111 is the companion. Psalm 1 also describes the blessed man. Proverbs 19:17 says whoever is generous to the poor lends to the LORD. Matthew 5:14-16 calls us the light of the world. Luke 6:35-36 says be merciful as your Father is merciful. Ephesians 5:1 says be imitators of God. 1 Timothy 6:17-19 commands the rich to be generous. Isaiah 26:3 speaks of perfect peace for those whose mind is stayed on the LORD.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where bad news makes you afraid. Pray verse 7 and give that worry to God.

Give something to someone in need this week, quietly. Do it with the attitude of verse 9.

Notice where your character looks like the character of God. Thank him. Notice where it doesn't. Ask him to change it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to make you gracious, merciful, and righteous.

Tell him you want to fear him and delight in his commandments.

Ask him to give you generosity.

DAY 772 · WEEK 111

Psalm 133

How good and pleasant when brothers dwell in unity

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Psalm · 3 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 133. It is three verses long. It is a Song of Ascents, sung by pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem. Read it slowly twice and picture the two images: oil and dew.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 133 is a psalm of David and belongs to the pilgrim songs. When Israelite families came together from all over the land for the festivals in Jerusalem, they experienced the unity of the people of God. In the context of 1 Corinthians, a church torn by factions, this psalm is a picture of what Paul longed to see. Unity is not an optional extra but a gift and a command.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Behold, how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity!” (v. 1).
2. “When brothers dwell in unity” (v. 1).
3. “It is like the precious oil on the head” (v. 2).
4. “Running down on the beard, on the beard of Aaron” (v. 2).
5. “Running down on the collar of his robes!” (v. 2).
6. “It is like the dew of Hermon” (v. 3).
7. “Which falls on the mountains of Zion” (v. 3).
8. “For there the LORD has commanded the blessing, life forevermore” (v. 3).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with an exclamation: “Behold, how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity!” The words “good” and “pleasant” mean something that is both right and delightful. We often think of unity as duty. The psalm says it is a delight. The word translated “brothers” includes the whole family of God. The unity described is among those who “dwell together,” sharing life.

Then two pictures. First, precious oil poured on the head of Aaron the high priest at his consecration (Exodus 29:7, Leviticus 8:12). It ran down on the beard and the collar of his robes. Oil was abundant, fragrant, and set apart for holy use. Unity is like holy oil that flows down from the head over the whole body. It is a lavish, overflowing gift. For Christians, the Head is Christ, and the Spirit he sends is poured out on the whole body. The oil of anointing reaches to the collar and beyond: to every member.

The second picture is dew from Mount Hermon, the tallest mountain in the region, covered in snow and heavy with moisture. In the dry summers, dew was life for the crops. The dew of Hermon falls on the mountains of Zion, which are much farther south and drier. The picture is of refreshment coming down from above to fertilize a dry land. Unity is life-giving.

“For there the LORD has commanded the blessing, life forevermore.” Notice that the blessing is “commanded.” God designates unity as the place where he gives life. In Christ’s prayer in John 17, he asked that his followers be one, so that the world may believe. And Paul calls the Corinthians to the same unity: “that all of you agree, and that there be no divisions among you.”

We should not romanticize unity. It requires forgiveness, patience, and humility. It does not mean agreeing on everything, but sharing the same Lord, the same gospel, and the same Spirit. Ephesians 4:3 says to be “eager to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.” The unity is already ours in Christ; our job is to guard and display it.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 29:7 and Leviticus 8:12 describe the anointing of Aaron. Deuteronomy 33:28 mentions dew. John 17:20-23 is Jesus’ prayer for unity. Ephesians 4:1-6 urges us to maintain unity. Colossians 3:12-15 describes the bond of perfect harmony. Philippians 2:1-4 calls for being of one mind. Acts 2:42-47 and 4:32 describe the early church’s unity. 1 Corinthians 1:10 and 12:12-26 treat unity in Corinth. Romans 15:5-6 prays for harmony. Hebrews 13:1 says let brotherly love continue.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a fellow believer you are at odds with. Take a step to be reconciled.

Pray for the unity of your church by name: elders, volunteers, and members.

Thank God for a time when you tasted unity with others, and ask for more.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the unity of his people.

Ask him to pour out his Spirit like precious oil on your church.

Pray for peace in a specific relationship.

DAY 773 · WEEK 111

1 Corinthians 15:1-58

The resurrection, the gospel's foundation

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 58 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 15:1-58. This is the great resurrection chapter. Read in four parts: the gospel and the witnesses (1-11), the necessity of the resurrection (12-34), the nature of the resurrection body (35-49), and the victory (50-58). The next two days are doctrinal pauses on this chapter, so today read for the shape of the argument.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Some in Corinth were saying "there is no resurrection of the dead." They may have accepted that the soul lives on but not that the body will be raised, a common Greek view. Paul responds with the greatest defense of the resurrection in the Bible. If there is no resurrection, there is no gospel. This chapter is the climax of the letter, and the teaching affects how Christians face death, suffering, and daily work.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "That Christ died for our sins in accordance with the Scriptures" (15:3).
2. "But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace toward me was not in vain" (15:10).
3. "And if Christ has not been raised, then our preaching is in vain and your faith is in vain" (15:14).
4. "But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep" (15:20).
5. "For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive" (15:22).
6. "The last enemy to be destroyed is death" (15:26).

7. “O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?” (15:55).
8. “Therefore, my beloved brothers, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labor is not in vain” (15:58).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with the gospel: “I would remind you, brothers, of the gospel I preached to you, which you received, in which you stand, and by which you are being saved.” Then he gives what is likely one of the earliest creeds of the church: “For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received: that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the Scriptures, that he was buried, that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures, and that he appeared to Cephas, then to the twelve. Then he appeared to more than five hundred brothers at one time, most of whom are still alive, though some have fallen asleep. Then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles. Last of all, as to one untimely born, he appeared also to me.” The resurrection is rooted in history and eyewitness testimony. Paul invites the Corinthians to check with the living witnesses. Notice “in accordance with the Scriptures” twice. The gospel is the fulfillment of the Old Testament.

Then the logic of chapters 12 to 34. If there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised; if Christ has not been raised, our preaching is in vain, your faith is in vain, we are misrepresenting God, you are still in your sins, and those who have died in Christ have perished. “If in Christ we have hope in this life only, we are of all people most to be pitied.” But the truth is “Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep.” The firstfruits is the first part of the harvest, guaranteeing the rest. His resurrection is the start of the general resurrection. The contrast with Adam: “as in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive.” Then the order: Christ the firstfruits, then at his coming those who belong to him, then the end, when he delivers the kingdom to God the Father after destroying every rule, authority, and power. “The last enemy to be destroyed is death.”

Paul answers the question about the kind of body: “How are the dead raised? With what kind of body do they come?” He uses a seed: what you sow is not the body that is to be, but a bare kernel. God gives it a body as he has chosen. There are different kinds of bodies, glories of sun, moon, and stars. “So it is with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown is perishable; what is raised is imperishable. It is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness; it is raised in power. It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body.” Just as we have borne the image of the man of dust (Adam), we shall bear the image of the man of heaven (Christ).

The climax: “Behold! I tell you a mystery. We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet.” The dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. “Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?” The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law, “but thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.”

And the practical conclusion: “Therefore, my beloved brothers, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labor is not in vain.” Because of the resurrection, everything we do for the Lord matters forever.

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 24:13-49 and John 20 to 21 describe the resurrection appearances. Acts 2:24-36 and 17:30-32 preach the resurrection. Genesis 3 and Romans 5:12-21 contrast Adam and Christ. Psalm 110:1 and 8:6 are quoted in verses 25 to 27. Isaiah 25:8 and Hosea 13:14 are quoted in verses 54 to 55. Philippians 3:20-21 describes the transformation of our bodies. 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 describes the coming of the Lord and the resurrection. Daniel 12:2 predicts the resurrection. Revelation 20:11-21:5 describes the final victory.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize 1 Corinthians 15:3-4 as a summary of the gospel.

Think of someone grieving a loved one who died in Christ. Share with them verse 58 or verse 20.

Ask what “work of the Lord” you could do this week knowing it is not in vain.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the gospel of first importance: Christ died, was buried, and was raised.
- Tell him what the resurrection means to you.
- Ask him to make you steadfast and abounding in his work.

1 Corinthians 15:1-28; Matthew 28:1-10

The Resurrection of Christ

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 15:1-28 and Matthew 28:1-10. Today is a doctrinal pause on the resurrection of Christ. Notice the evidence, the meaning, and the consequences of the empty tomb.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The resurrection of Jesus is the central claim of Christianity. Without it, as Paul says, the faith collapses. The four Gospels each tell of the empty tomb, and Paul lists the appearances. Matthew's account is brief and vivid: an earthquake, an angel, and two women who meet the risen Lord. Today we think about what the resurrection of Christ is, why it matters, and how we know.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "He is not here, for he has risen, as he said" (Matthew 28:6).
2. "And they came up and took hold of his feet and worshiped him" (Matthew 28:9).
3. "That he was raised on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures" (1 Corinthians 15:4).
4. "Then he appeared to more than five hundred brothers at one time, most of whom are still alive" (1 Corinthians 15:6).
5. "And if Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile and you are still in your sins" (1 Corinthians 15:17).

6. “But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep” (1 Corinthians 15:20).
7. “For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet” (1 Corinthians 15:25).
8. “That God may be all in all” (1 Corinthians 15:28).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The resurrection of Jesus is the historical event in which God raised the crucified Jesus from the dead on the third day, in a real, physical, glorified body, never to die again. It was not a resuscitation, like Lazarus, who died again. Jesus was raised to a new kind of life: the tomb was empty, and yet his body had new powers. He could pass through closed doors, but he ate fish and invited Thomas to touch his wounds.

The evidence is strong. The tomb was empty, and Jesus’ enemies never produced a body. The women, whose testimony was not prized in that culture, were the first witnesses. He appeared to individuals, to groups, to the Twelve, and to more than five hundred at once. The disciples were transformed from frightened deserters to bold witnesses, willing to die for what they had seen. Even Paul, the persecutor, and James, the skeptical brother of Jesus, were changed. The earliest church worshiped on Sunday, the day of the resurrection.

The meaning is vast. First, the resurrection vindicates Jesus: he is the Son of God (Romans 1:4). Second, it confirms that his death was accepted as payment for sin: “raised for our justification” (Romans 4:25). Third, it defeats death: he is the firstfruits, guaranteeing our resurrection. Fourth, it inaugurates the new creation: the age to come has begun, even though it is not yet complete. Fifth, it establishes his reign: he is seated at the right hand of the Father, and he must reign until all enemies are subdued.

Christians affirm the bodily resurrection, and it is non-negotiable. Some modern theologians have spoken of a “spiritual” resurrection or a change in the disciples’ faith, but the New Testament insists on an empty tomb and a real, physical body. Paul says without the resurrection our faith is futile. But “in fact Christ has been raised.”

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Matthew 28, two women come to the tomb at dawn. There is a great earthquake as an angel rolls back the stone and sits on it. His appearance is like lightning. The guards shake and become like dead men. The angel says, “Do not be afraid, for I know that you seek Jesus who was crucified. He is not here, for he has risen, as he said. Come, see the place where he lay.” Then, “go quickly and tell his disciples that he has risen from the dead.” The women leave with fear and great joy. Jesus meets them: “Greetings!” They take hold of his feet and worship him. They touch him, which shows he is not a ghost. And he says: “Do not be afraid; go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee, and there they will see me.” Notice that he calls his frightened disciples “my brothers,” even after they deserted him.

Paul in 1 Corinthians 15 argues from the evidence and then from the implications. Verses 12 to 19 form a chain: if the dead are not raised, Christ is not raised; if Christ is not raised, preaching is empty and faith is futile; we are still in our sins; those who died in Christ are lost; we are the most pitiable of people. But the next verse breaks the chain: “But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep.”

In verses 20 to 28, Paul shows the cosmic scope. Death came through a man, and the resurrection of the dead also comes through a man. In Adam all die; in Christ all will be made alive. Each in his own order: Christ the firstfruits, then those who belong to Christ at his coming. Then comes the end, when he delivers the kingdom to God the Father after destroying every rule and every authority and power. “For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. The last enemy to be destroyed is death.” Christ’s present reign is the fulfillment of Psalm 110. He reigns now, and the victory over death is certain. At the end, the Son is subjected to the Father, in a loving order within the Trinity, so that God may be all in all.

The resurrection is not simply a doctrine to affirm but a reality to live in. Because Christ is risen, we have forgiveness, hope, and purpose. We can face death without despair.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 16:8-11 predicts the Holy One not seeing corruption (see Acts 2:25-32). Isaiah 53:10-12 foresees the servant’s vindication. Hosea 6:2 mentions the third day. Matthew 12:38-40 is the sign of Jonah. Luke 24 and John 20 to 21 record other appearances. Acts 1:3, 2:32, and 10:40-41 speak of witnesses. Romans 1:4, 4:25, and 6:4-5 give the meaning. Philippians 3:10 speaks of knowing the power of his resurrection. 1 Peter 1:3-5 speaks of a living hope. Revelation 1:17-18 shows the risen Christ holding the keys of death.

STEP 6

Application

Read the account of the resurrection in one Gospel (Matthew 28, Mark 16, Luke 24, or John 20) and notice the details.

Share the hope of the resurrection with someone who is grieving or afraid of death.

On Sunday, remember that you gather on the day of the resurrection.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise Jesus that he has risen as he said.

Thank him for the hope the resurrection gives.

Tell him what you want to say to someone about it.

1 Corinthians 15:35-58; Daniel 12:1-3; John 5:28-29

The Resurrection of the Dead

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 15:35-58, Daniel 12:1-3, and John 5:28-29. Today is a doctrinal pause on the resurrection of the dead. Notice the nature of the resurrection body and the two destinies.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Yesterday we studied the resurrection of Christ. Today we look at his promise that his people will be raised. The Christian hope is not an immortal soul floating in a spiritual realm, though believers who die are with Christ (see Day 779). The final hope is bodily resurrection and a new creation. The Old Testament hints at it, and Jesus taught it. Paul's answer to the question "With what kind of body do they come?" is one of the most important passages for the Christian view of the future.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt" (Daniel 12:2).
2. "And those who are wise shall shine like the brightness of the sky above" (Daniel 12:3).
3. "An hour is coming when all who are in the tombs will hear his voice and come out" (John 5:28-29).
4. "What is sown is perishable; what is raised is imperishable" (1 Corinthians 15:42).
5. "It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body" (1 Corinthians 15:44).

6. “Just as we have borne the image of the man of dust, we shall also bear the image of the man of heaven” (1 Corinthians 15:49).
7. “We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet” (1 Corinthians 15:51-52).
8. “Death is swallowed up in victory” (1 Corinthians 15:54).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The Bible teaches that all the dead will be raised bodily, the righteous to eternal life and the unrighteous to judgment. This is the general resurrection. Daniel 12:2 is the clearest Old Testament statement: “Many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.” Jesus affirms it in John 5:28-29: all who are in the tombs will hear his voice and come out, “those who have done good to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil to the resurrection of judgment.” Paul told Felix he had a hope in “a resurrection of both the just and the unjust” (Acts 24:15).

For believers, the resurrection body will be like Christ’s. Paul uses the seed analogy: there is continuity, because the same person is raised, and transformation, because the new body is much greater. It will be imperishable, glorious, powerful, and “spiritual” (that is, animated by the Spirit, not immaterial). Philippians 3:21 says Christ “will transform our lowly body to be like his glorious body.” We will recognize one another and be recognizable. The final state is not a disembodied existence, but a new heaven and new earth, where the redeemed live in resurrected bodies in the presence of God.

Christians have different views about the timing and sequence of the end, including whether there is a literal thousand-year reign of Christ (the millennium), whether the resurrection of the righteous and the unrighteous happen at the same time, and how Israel fits in. Premillennialists, amillennialists, and postmillennialists all affirm Christ’s personal, visible return, the bodily resurrection, the final judgment, and the new creation. The difference lies in how to read Revelation 20 and related passages. We should hold our views on timing with humility.

The practical effect of the doctrine is profound. We do not fear the grave. We treat our bodies with dignity. We care for the physical world and for the suffering. We grieve with hope. And we work with confidence, because the final word belongs to God.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul anticipates two questions: “How are the dead raised? With what kind of body do they come?” He answers with an analogy: “What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. And what you sow is not the body that is to be, but a bare kernel.” The seed dies and rises as a plant. God gives it a body as he has chosen. There is continuity and difference. The glories of earthly and heavenly bodies differ, as the sun, moon, and stars differ in glory.

Then the four contrasts: “What is sown is perishable; what is raised is imperishable. It is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness; it is raised in power. It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body.” Burial is sowing. The body goes into the ground like a seed. The resurrection body is not less physical than the present body, but more: it is fitted for life in the new creation, under the Spirit’s power.

Paul continues, “Thus it is written, The first man Adam became a living being; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit.” Christ is the model and source of our resurrection. “Just as we have borne the image of the man of dust, we shall also bear the image of the man of heaven.” Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, nor does the perishable inherit the imperishable. A change is needed.

Then the mystery: not all will die, but all will be changed “in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet.” The perishable body must put on the imperishable, and the mortal body immortality. When this happens, the Scripture will be fulfilled: “Death is swallowed up in victory.” Paul quotes Isaiah 25:8 and Hosea 13:14 and taunts death: “O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?” The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. But Christ has dealt with sin, and so the sting is removed.

Daniel 12:3 adds a note of glory: “Those who are wise shall shine like the brightness of the sky above, and those who turn many to righteousness, like the stars forever and ever.” The people of God will shine. Whatever we do now in faithfulness will not be forgotten.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 25:6-9 and 26:19 anticipate the resurrection. Job 19:25-27 declares “I know that my Redeemer lives.” Ezekiel 37:1-14 is the vision of dry bones. Luke 20:27-40 records Jesus on the resurrection. John 11:21-27 records Jesus saying “I am the resurrection and the life.” Romans 8:11, 8:18-25 and 2 Corinthians 4:14 speak of future resurrection. Philippians 3:20-21 describes the transformation. 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 comforts the grieving. Revelation 20 to 22 describes the final judgment and new creation.

STEP 6

Application

Treat your body today as something God will raise: care for it, honor it, use it for his service.

If you have lost someone in Christ, read verses 42 to 44 and imagine them in glory.

Thank God that death is swallowed up in victory.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that he will raise the dead.

Tell him what you want to say about death in light of this.

Ask him to keep you steadfast in the meantime.

DAY 776 · WEEK 111

1 Corinthians 16:1-24

The collection; final greetings

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 24 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 16:1-24. Paul closes with practical matters: the collection, travel plans, coworkers, and greetings. Notice the way he combines practical details with spiritual urgency.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the soaring heights of chapter 15, Paul returns to earth. Chapter 16 reminds us that ordinary church life, such as money, schedules, hospitality, and greetings, is part of the work of the gospel. The collection is for the poor believers in Jerusalem, a project that Paul was organizing among the Gentile churches. It was a sign of the unity between Jew and Gentile.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “On the first day of every week, each of you is to put something aside and store it up, as he may prosper” (16:2).
2. “For a wide door for effective work has opened to me, and there are many adversaries” (16:9).
3. “Be watchful, stand firm in the faith, act like men, be strong” (16:13).
4. “Let all that you do be done in love” (16:14).
5. “They have devoted themselves to the service of the saints” (16:15).
6. “Aquila and Prisca, together with the church in their house, send you hearty greetings in the Lord” (16:19).
7. “Our Lord, come!” (16:22).
8. “The grace of the Lord Jesus be with you” (16:23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with the collection for the saints in Jerusalem. He gave the same instructions to the churches of Galatia. “On the first day of every week, each of you is to put something aside and store it up, as he may prosper, so that there will be no collecting when I come.” The pattern: regular, personal, proportionate, and planned. The first day of the week is the day of resurrection and of gathering. Giving belongs with worship. Paul plans to send the gift with approved messengers, ensuring accountability.

His travel plans are flexible and subject to God’s will. He will stay in Ephesus until Pentecost, “for a wide door for effective work has opened to me, and there are many adversaries.” Opportunity and opposition often come together. He asks the Corinthians to receive Timothy without fear, and to send him on in peace. Apollos, who he strongly urged to visit, will come when he has opportunity. Notice that Paul does not control his coworkers; he treats them as partners.

Then a series of short commands, like a sergeant’s orders: “Be watchful, stand firm in the faith, act like men, be strong. Let all that you do be done in love.” This last sentence sums up the whole letter. In a church full of pride, division, and misuse of gifts, love is the controlling principle. Paul commends the household of Stephanas, the first converts in Achaia, who have devoted themselves to the service of the saints. Submit to such people, he says, and to every fellow worker. He is glad of the arrival of Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus, for they refreshed his spirit.

The greetings are warm. The churches of Asia send greetings. “Aquila and Prisca, together with the church in their house, send you hearty greetings in the Lord.” The early church met in homes. “Greet one another with a holy kiss.” Paul takes the pen in his own hand to sign: “If anyone has no love for the Lord, let him be accursed. Our Lord, come!” The Aramaic word is “Maranatha,” a prayer of the early church for the return of Christ. It reveals the hope behind chapter 15. The letter ends with grace and love: “The grace of the Lord Jesus be with you. My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.” Despite all the rebukes, Paul ends with love for the church.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 11:27-30, Romans 15:25-29, and 2 Corinthians 8 to 9 speak of the collection. Acts 20:7 shows the church gathering on the first day. Acts 18:1-3, 24-28, and 19:1-10 mention Aquila, Priscilla, Apollos, and Ephesus. 1 Thessalonians 5:12-13 asks to respect those who labor.

Hebrews 13:17 asks to submit to leaders. 1 Peter 5:14 mentions the kiss of love. Revelation 22:20 is “Come, Lord Jesus.” 2 Corinthians 9:6-8 teaches cheerful giving. Philippians 4:15-19 shows the Philippians’ gift.

STEP 6

Application

Decide on a regular, planned amount to give to your church or to the poor, and give it joyfully.

Thank someone in your church who serves quietly, like the household of Stephanas.

Pray “Our Lord, come!” at the end of the day.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the saints who give and serve.

Ask him to help you do all in love.

Pray for someone in your church by name.

Memory Verse for the Week

1 CORINTHIANS 15:3-4

REST

Meditation

This is a summary of the gospel, and it was handed down from the earliest days.

"As of first importance." Paul places this message at the top of the list. Many things in the Christian life matter, but some matter most. The death and resurrection of Christ are the foundation.

"What I also received." Paul did not invent the gospel. He received it, probably from the first apostles within a few years of the event, and he delivered it. We too receive and pass on.

"That Christ died for our sins." Notice the three parts: the person (Christ), the event (died), and the purpose (for our sins). His death was not an accident but a substitution, dealing with our guilt.

“In accordance with the Scriptures.” The cross is the fulfillment of what the Old Testament promised, in Isaiah 53, Psalm 22, and the sacrifices.

“That he was buried.” The burial proves he truly died.

“That he was raised on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures.” The tomb was empty because Christ was alive. This too was foretold.

When the world offers other messages, say this verse. These two verses are the heart of what we believe.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the end of 1 Corinthians. Chapters 12 to 14 gave Paul’s teaching on spiritual gifts, the body of Christ, and the more excellent way of love, and a doctrinal pause considered the gifts and the unity of the body. Psalms 111 and 112 sang about remembering the works of the LORD and becoming like him, and Psalm 133 pictured the beauty of unity. Chapter 15 gave the resurrection: the gospel of first importance, Christ the firstfruits, the nature of the resurrection body, and the victory over death. Two doctrinal pauses studied the resurrection of Christ and the resurrection of the dead. Chapter 16 closed the letter with the collection, greetings, and the cry “Our Lord, come!”

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul calls the death and resurrection of Christ “of first importance.” What other things in your spiritual life have crowded into that first place? How can you put the gospel back at the center?

The resurrection of Jesus is the firstfruits of the resurrection of believers. How does knowing your body will be raised change how you see aging, illness, or death?

Paul ends his long letter with “Let all that you do be done in love.” Where in your life this week will it be hardest to do everything in love? What will you ask Christ for help with?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that he died for your sins and was raised on the third day.

Tell him what you want to hold on to this week.

Rest in him.

DAY 778 · WEEK 112

2 Corinthians 1:1-3:18

Comfort in suffering; the new covenant ministry

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 64 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Corinthians 1:1-3:18. Paul writes his most personal letter. Notice the comfort in suffering in chapter 1, the aroma of Christ in chapter 2, and the new covenant ministry in chapter 3.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After writing 1 Corinthians, Paul's relationship with the church became strained. He made a painful visit, wrote a severe letter (now lost), and waited anxiously for news from Titus. When Titus brought good news in Macedonia, Paul wrote 2 Corinthians, a letter full of emotion. It defends his ministry against critics who called him weak and unimpressive, and it reveals the heart of a pastor who suffers for his people. Chapters 1 to 3 introduce the main themes: comfort through affliction and the glory of the new covenant.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The Father of mercies and God of all comfort" (1:3).
2. "Indeed, we felt that we had received the sentence of death. But that was to make us rely not on ourselves but on God who raises the dead" (1:9).
3. "For all the promises of God find their Yes in him" (1:20).
4. "Who has also put his seal on us and given us his Spirit in our hearts as a guarantee" (1:22).
5. "You show that you are a letter from Christ delivered by us, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets of human hearts" (3:3).

6. “Who has made us competent to be ministers of a new covenant, not of the letter but of the Spirit. For the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life” (3:6).
7. “Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom” (3:17).
8. “Beholding the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another” (3:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul opens with a blessing: “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of all comfort, who comforts us in all our affliction, so that we may be able to comfort those who are in any affliction, with the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted by God.” Comfort is not a private possession. We receive in order to give. Suffering abounds for Christ, but through Christ comfort abounds too. He describes a recent affliction in Asia that was so severe that they despaired of life. “Indeed, we felt that we had received the sentence of death. But that was to make us rely not on ourselves but on God who raises the dead.” Suffering teaches dependence.

He explains why he did not come to Corinth as planned: he was sparing them. His “Yes” is not “Yes and No.” Then a beautiful statement on the faithfulness of God: “For all the promises of God find their Yes in him. That is why it is through him that we utter our Amen to God for his glory.” Christ is the fulfillment of every promise. It is God who establishes us with you in Christ, anointed us, “put his seal on us and given us his Spirit in our hearts as a guarantee.” The Spirit is the down payment on our inheritance.

Chapter 2 refers to the painful letter written “out of much affliction and anguish of heart and with many tears.” When someone had caused grief, the church disciplined him. Now Paul says it is time to forgive and comfort him, “so that he may not be overwhelmed by excessive sorrow.” Forgiveness protects against Satan’s schemes. Then a picture of triumph: “But thanks be to God, who in Christ always leads us in triumphal procession, and through him spreads the fragrance of the knowledge of him everywhere.” The image is of a Roman victory parade, with incense burning. For some it is the aroma of life; for others, death. “Who is sufficient for these things?” Not Paul, but God.

In chapter 3, Paul defends his credentials. “You yourselves are our letter of recommendation, written on our hearts… a letter from Christ delivered by us, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets of human hearts.” This echoes Ezekiel 36 and Jeremiah 31. Our competence is from God, “who has made us competent to be ministers of a new covenant, not of the letter but of the Spirit. For the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life.” The old covenant, engraved in letters on stone, came with glory, but it was a ministry of death and condemnation, fading. The new covenant ministry of the Spirit and of righteousness has far greater glory, and it remains. This is a key text for progressive covenantalism: the old covenant was glorious, but it was temporary, and the new covenant exceeds it in glory. Moses put a veil over his face so the Israelites would not gaze at the fading glory. A veil lies over hearts when the old covenant is read, "because only through Christ is it taken away."

The chapter ends with freedom and transformation. "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. And we all, with unveiled face, beholding the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another. For this comes from the Lord who is the Spirit." We become what we behold. By looking at Christ in Scripture, we are changed.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 34:29-35 tells of Moses' veil. Jeremiah 31:31-34 and Ezekiel 36:26-27 promise the new covenant. Romans 8:1-4 and 15:4 are related. Ephesians 1:13-14 speaks of the seal and guarantee. Isaiah 51:12 speaks of comfort. Philippians 3:3-11 compares old and new. Hebrews 8 to 10 explain the superiority of the new covenant. Colossians 1:15 calls Christ the image of God. Romans 12:2 speaks of transformation.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a suffering you have been through. Whom can you now comfort with the comfort you received?

Spend ten minutes looking at Christ in a Gospel passage and ask the Spirit to transform you.

Thank God that all his promises are Yes in Christ. Say "Amen" to a specific promise.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank the Father of mercies for comforting you.
- Ask him to help you comfort someone else with the comfort you received.
- Thank him for the ministry of the new covenant.

Death and the Intermediate State

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Corinthians 5:1-10, Philippians 1:21-24, and Luke 23:39-43. Today is a doctrinal pause on death and the intermediate state, the time between a believer's death and the resurrection. Notice what Paul expects and what Jesus promises.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Yesterday and the day before, we studied the resurrection of the dead at the end of the age. But what happens to believers who die before Christ returns? Paul was facing possible death in Asia, and in Philippians he wrote from prison, aware that he might be executed. Their words, along with Jesus' promise to the thief on the cross, tell us what the New Testament says about the time between death and resurrection.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For we know that if the tent that is our earthly home is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens" (2 Corinthians 5:1).
2. "For we walk by faith, not by sight" (2 Corinthians 5:7).
3. "We would rather be away from the body and at home with the Lord" (2 Corinthians 5:8).
4. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:10).
5. "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain" (Philippians 1:21).
6. "My desire is to depart and be with Christ, for that is far better" (Philippians 1:23).

7. “Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom” (Luke 23:42).
8. “Truly, I say to you, today you will be with me in Paradise” (Luke 23:43).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The intermediate state is the condition of a person between death and the resurrection of the body. Scripture teaches that when a believer dies, the person is immediately with Christ, in conscious fellowship and joy, although without a resurrection body. Paul says to be “away from the body” is to be “at home with the Lord.” He says that departing is “far better” than staying. Jesus told the penitent thief, “Today you will be with me in Paradise.” This is the common evangelical understanding, and it is a great comfort.

This state is not the final one. Paul pictures it as being “unclothed” (2 Corinthians 5:3-4), awaiting the “clothing” of the resurrection body. The final hope remains the resurrection and the new creation. The intermediate state is a waiting period, but it is a good one, in the presence of Christ.

Several other views exist. Some Christians hold to “soul sleep,” the idea that the dead are unconscious until the resurrection. The language of “sleep” in the New Testament describes how death looks from our side, but passages like Philippians 1 and Luke 23 point to conscious fellowship. The Roman Catholic Church teaches purgatory, a place of purification after death for those who die in grace but not fully cleansed. Protestants reject this because Christ’s work on the cross is sufficient, and Scripture speaks of immediate presence with Christ. Other traditions emphasize that God’s people await the resurrection, stressing the whole person.

For unbelievers, the New Testament speaks of a state of waiting for judgment, with the final judgment to come (Luke 16:19-31; Hebrews 9:27). All will appear before the judgment seat of Christ. For believers, this is not a judgment about our standing, which is secure in Christ, but about our works, for reward. The thought of that day motivates faithful service.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins 2 Corinthians 5 with a contrast between the earthly tent and the eternal building. A tent is temporary; our bodies are like tents, vulnerable and short-lived. If the tent is destroyed, we have a building from God, “a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.” In the meantime, “we groan, longing to put on our heavenly dwelling.” He does not want to be unclothed but further clothed, “so that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life.” God has prepared us for this and given us the Spirit as a guarantee.

“So we are always of good courage. We know that while we are at home in the body we are away from the Lord, for we walk by faith, not by sight. Yes, we are of good courage, and we would rather be away from the body and at home with the Lord.” To be “at home with the Lord” is the heart of the intermediate state. Whether at home or away, our aim is to please him, “for we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one may receive what is due for what he has done in the body, whether good or evil.” For the believer, this is a day for evaluation and reward, not condemnation (Romans 8:1).

In Philippians 1, Paul is in prison, uncertain whether he will live or die. He writes, “For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.” He is hard-pressed between the two: “My desire is to depart and be with Christ, for that is far better. But to remain in the flesh is more necessary on your account.” Notice his confidence: death does not end fellowship with Christ; it increases it. The word “depart” was used of a ship loosing its moorings or a tent being taken down.

In Luke 23, one of the criminals crucified with Jesus rebukes the other, acknowledges his own guilt, and says, “Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom.” He had no time for baptism, good works, or a long spiritual track record. Jesus answers with a promise: “Truly, I say to you, today you will be with me in Paradise.” Salvation by grace through faith, and immediate presence with Christ, in one scene. “Today.” The thief received what Paul described.

Death is still an enemy, and Christians grieve. But it has lost its sting, and it is the doorway to being with Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 23:4 speaks of walking through the valley of the shadow of death. Psalm 116:15 says the death of his saints is precious. Ecclesiastes 12:7 speaks of the spirit returning to God. Luke 16:19-31 tells of the rich man and Lazarus. John 14:1-3 promises a place with him. Acts 7:59 records Stephen’s prayer, “Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.” Hebrews 12:22-24 mentions the spirits of the righteous made perfect. Revelation 6:9-11 shows souls under the altar. 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 comforts the grieving. Romans 14:7-9 says whether we live or die, we are the Lord’s.

STEP 6

Application

Write down what you believe about what happens when a Christian dies. Compare it to these passages.

Pray for someone who is facing death or grief. Share Philippians 1:21 with them.

Ask what it would mean to say, “To me to live is Christ,” in your daily work.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what you think about death today.
- Thank Jesus that to live is Christ and to die is gain.
- Thank him that to be away from the body is to be at home with him.

DAY 780 · WEEK 112

2 Corinthians 4:1-5:21

Treasure in jars of clay; ambassadors for Christ

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 39 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Corinthians 4:1-5:21. This is among Paul's most moving writing. Notice the treasure in jars of clay, the contrast between the outer and inner self, the new creation, and the ministry of reconciliation.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has been defending his ministry against critics who find him weak. In these chapters he explains that weakness is how the power of God is shown. He is not discouraged by suffering because he sees the unseen and eternal. And he describes his message as the word of reconciliation, the center of the gospel.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For what we proclaim is not ourselves, but Jesus Christ as Lord, with ourselves as your servants for Jesus" sake' (4:5).
2. "For God, who said, Let light shine out of darkness, has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" (4:6).
3. "But we have this treasure in jars of clay, to show that the surpassing power belongs to God and not to us" (4:7).
4. "So we do not lose heart. Though our outer self is wasting away, our inner self is being renewed day by day" (4:16).
5. "For this light momentary affliction is preparing for us an eternal weight of glory beyond all comparison" (4:17).

6. “Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. The old has passed away; behold, the new has come” (5:17).
7. “Therefore, we are ambassadors for Christ, God making his appeal through us” (5:20).
8. “For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God” (5:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul says that because they have received mercy, they do not lose heart. They have renounced disgraceful, underhanded ways; they do not use cunning or tamper with God’s word. They commend themselves by the open statement of the truth. If the gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing, “in their case the god of this world has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, to keep them from seeing the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God.” Preachers do not proclaim themselves but “Jesus Christ as Lord, with ourselves as your servants for Jesus” sake.’ And the great reason for hope: “For God, who said, Let light shine out of darkness, has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.” Conversion is a new creation, like the first day of creation.

Then the paradox: “But we have this treasure in jars of clay, to show that the surpassing power belongs to God and not to us.” The treasure is the gospel; the jars of clay are cheap, fragile, ordinary containers. We are weak so that God’s power is clear. He lists the pressures: “afflicted in every way, but not crushed; perplexed, but not driven to despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; struck down, but not destroyed.” We always carry in the body the death of Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may also be manifested in our bodies. “So death is at work in us, but life in you.”

Because of faith in the God who raises the dead, “we do not lose heart.” The outer self wastes away; the inner self is renewed day by day. “For this light momentary affliction is preparing for us an eternal weight of glory beyond all comparison, as we look not to the things that are seen but to the things that are unseen. For the things that are seen are transient, but the things that are unseen are eternal.” Paul does not minimize suffering; elsewhere he lists beatings, shipwrecks, and sleeplessness. He weighs it against eternal glory.

Chapter 5 continues with the longing for the resurrection body (see the previous pause) and then turns to Christ’s love. “For the love of Christ controls us, because we have concluded this: that one has died for all, therefore all have died; and he died for all, that those who live might no longer live for themselves but for him who for their sake died and was raised.” This changes how we see everyone: “From now on, therefore, we regard no one according to the flesh.” And then: “Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. The old has passed away; behold, the new has come." All this is from God, who through Christ reconciled us to himself and gave us the ministry of reconciliation. "In Christ God was reconciling the world to himself, not counting their trespasses against them, and entrusting to us the message of reconciliation." So we are ambassadors for Christ. "We implore you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God." The chapter ends with the heart of the gospel: "For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God." The great exchange: our sin was counted to Christ, and his righteousness is counted to us.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:3 is the creation of light. Isaiah 9:2 and 60:1-3 speak of light shining in darkness. Colossians 1:15-20 describes Christ as the image of God and the reconciler. Romans 5:10-11 speaks of reconciliation. Ephesians 2:11-22 speaks of reconciliation between Jew and Gentile and with God. Isaiah 53:4-6, 10-12 and Galatians 3:13 teach substitution. Isaiah 43:19 speaks of a new thing. Revelation 21:5 says "Behold, I am making all things new." Isaiah 49:8 is quoted in 2 Corinthians 6:2. Matthew 5:11-12 and Romans 8:18 speak of suffering and glory.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you feel like a cracked jar of clay. Offer that weakness to God as a display of his power.

Practice looking at the unseen. Spend time today remembering what is eternal.

Be an ambassador: speak to someone about being reconciled to God.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for shining in your heart the light of the knowledge of his glory.
- Tell him what makes you feel like a jar of clay.
- Ask him to make you a faithful ambassador.

DAY 781 · WEEK 112

2 Corinthians 6:1-9:15

Holiness; Paul's hardships; generous giving

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 89 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Corinthians 6:1-9:15. These four chapters hold several themes: the day of salvation, holiness and separation, godly grief and repentance, and generous giving. Read the appeal for the collection in chapters 8 and 9 slowly, noticing its motive.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul continues his defense of the ministry and moves to appeals. He urges the Corinthians not to receive God's grace in vain, to pursue holiness, and to complete their promised gift for the poor believers in Jerusalem. Titus has brought news that the church repented after Paul's painful letter, and Paul rejoices. The collection in chapters 8 and 9 is the longest discussion of Christian giving in the New Testament.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, now is the favorable time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (6:2).
2. "As sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing everything" (6:10).
3. "For godly grief produces a repentance that leads to salvation without regret, whereas worldly grief produces death" (7:10).
4. "For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, so that you by his poverty might become rich" (8:9).
5. "For if the readiness is there, it is acceptable according to what a person has, not according to what he does not have" (8:12).

6. “Whoever sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and whoever sows bountifully will also reap bountifully” (9:6).

7. “Each one must give as he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver” (9:7).

8. “Thanks be to God for his inexpressible gift!” (9:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul urges the Corinthians, as God’s fellow workers, not to receive the grace of God in vain. Quoting Isaiah 49:8, he says, “Behold, now is the favorable time; behold, now is the day of salvation.” He then describes his own ministry through a list of hardships and virtues: afflictions, hardships, calamities, beatings, imprisonments, riots, labors, sleepless nights, hunger; by purity, knowledge, patience, kindness, the Holy Spirit, genuine love, truthful speech, and the power of God. “As sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing everything.” The Christian life is full of paradox.

Then comes a call to holiness: “Do not be unequally yoked with unbelievers. For what partnership has righteousness with lawlessness? Or what fellowship has light with darkness?” This is not a call to withdraw from the world but to avoid being joined to what contradicts our devotion to Christ. The reason: “For we are the temple of the living God.” God promises, “I will make my dwelling among them and walk among them… I will be a father to you, and you shall be sons and daughters to me.” The chapter ends with the call to cleanse ourselves from every defilement of body and spirit, bringing holiness to completion in the fear of God.

In chapter 7, Paul rejoices that the church responded to his painful letter. “For godly grief produces a repentance that leads to salvation without regret, whereas worldly grief produces death.” Worldly grief is sorrow at being caught; godly grief is sorrow at sinning against God. Titus was refreshed by their response, and Paul’s joy is complete.

Chapters 8 and 9 speak of the collection. The Macedonian churches, in a severe test of affliction, with abundance of joy and extreme poverty, overflowed in a wealth of generosity. They gave beyond their means, begging earnestly for the favor of taking part. Notice the order: “They gave themselves first to the Lord and then by the will of God to us.” Giving flows from devotion. Then the ground of all giving: “For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, so that you by his poverty might become rich.” The incarnation is the model of generosity. Paul does not command but tests the sincerity of their love. Principles: give willingly, according to what you have, so that there may be fairness. Transparency and accountability are important: Titus and others will handle the funds so that no one can criticize.

Chapter 9 gives encouragement. “Whoever sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and whoever sows bountifully will also reap bountifully.” “Each one must give as he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver.” This does not promise material wealth in return; the harvest is righteousness and thanksgiving. “God is able to make all grace abound to you, so that having all sufficiency in all things at all times, you may abound in every good work.” Quoting Psalm 112:9, “He has distributed freely, he has given to the poor; his righteousness endures forever.” The result of generosity is thanksgiving to God. The chapter ends with praise: “Thanks be to God for his inexpressible gift!” The ultimate gift is Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 49:8 is quoted in 6:2. Leviticus 26:11-12 and Ezekiel 37:27 stand behind 6:16. Psalm 112:9 is quoted in 9:9. Acts 11:27-30 and Romans 15:25-27 describe the collection. Philippians 2:5-8 shows Christ’s self-emptying. Philippians 4:10-20 speaks of the Philippians’ gift. Luke 21:1-4 records the widow’s offering. Proverbs 11:24-25 and 22:9 speak of generosity. Matthew 6:19-21 says where your treasure is, there your heart will be. Psalm 51:17 and Luke 18:13 show true repentance.

STEP 6

Application

Choose an amount to give that stretches you. Do it cheerfully, not by compulsion.

Distinguish worldly grief from godly grief in your own heart. Are you sorry for the sin, or for the consequences?

Meditate on 8:9 and remember the cost of Christ’s generosity to you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for becoming poor so that you might become rich.
- Ask him to make you cheerful in giving.
- Tell him how you want to give this week.

DAY 782 · WEEK 112

2 Corinthians 10:1-13:14

Paul's authority; boasting in weakness

Year 2 · Unit 21 · Reading · 85 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Corinthians 10:1-13:14. Paul's tone shifts here, as he defends his apostleship against false teachers. Read with an ear for his irony and his pain. Pay special attention to the thorn in the flesh and the answer he received in 12:7-10.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Some in Corinth, influenced by self-styled "super-apostles," dismissed Paul as unimpressive in person and contemptible in speech. They boasted of credentials, visions, and eloquence. Paul is reluctant to boast, but to defend the gospel he does a kind of "fool's boasting" in which he boasts of his weaknesses. This section reverses worldly values and gives one of the Bible's most important teachings on God's strength in weakness.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For the weapons of our warfare are not of the flesh but have divine power to destroy strongholds" (10:4).
2. "Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord" (10:17).
3. "But I am afraid that as the serpent deceived Eve by his cunning, your thoughts will be led astray from a sincere and pure devotion to Christ" (11:3).
4. "If I must boast, I will boast of the things that show my weakness" (11:30).
5. "My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness" (12:9).
6. "For the sake of Christ, then, I am content with weaknesses, insults, hardships, persecutions, and calamities. For when I am weak, then I am strong" (12:10).
7. "Examine yourselves, to see whether you are in the faith. Test yourselves" (13:5).

8 “The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all” (13:14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins by appealing “by the meekness and gentleness of Christ.” He is accused of being bold when away and timid when present. He warns that when he comes, he may have to be bold. “For though we walk in the flesh, we are not waging war according to the flesh. For the weapons of our warfare are not of the flesh but have divine power to destroy strongholds. We destroy arguments and every lofty opinion raised against the knowledge of God, and take every thought captive to obey Christ.” The spiritual battle is fought with truth, prayer, and the word, not with manipulation or force. He refuses to compare himself with those who commend themselves. “Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord. For it is not the one who commends himself who is approved, but the one whom the Lord commends.”

In chapter 11, Paul’s jealousy for the church leads him to a painful comparison. He has betrothed them to one husband, to present them as a pure virgin to Christ. “But I am afraid that as the serpent deceived Eve by his cunning, your thoughts will be led astray from a sincere and pure devotion to Christ.” The false teachers preach another Jesus, a different spirit, a different gospel. Paul calls them “false apostles, deceitful workmen, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. And no wonder, for even Satan disguises himself as an angel of light.” Their credentials are impressive, but Paul tallies his own: far more labors, far more imprisonments, with countless beatings, often near death. Five times he received thirty-nine lashes; three times beaten with rods; once stoned; three times shipwrecked; a night and a day adrift at sea; in danger from rivers, robbers, his own people, Gentiles, the city, the wilderness, false brothers; in toil and hardship, sleepless nights, hunger, cold. “And, apart from other things, there is the daily pressure on me of my anxiety for all the churches.” Then: “If I must boast, I will boast of the things that show my weakness,” and he tells of being lowered in a basket through a window in the wall at Damascus.

In chapter 12, he speaks of a vision, “a man in Christ” caught up to the third heaven, hearing things that cannot be told. He refrains from boasting of this. “So to keep me from becoming conceited because of the surpassing greatness of the revelations, a thorn was given me in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to harass me.” We do not know what the thorn was: an illness, a person, a temptation. Three times he pleaded with the Lord to remove it. “But he said to me, My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness. Therefore I will boast all the more gladly of my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may rest upon me. For the sake of Christ, then, I am content with weaknesses, insults, hardships, persecutions, and calamities. For when I am weak, then I am strong.” God’s answer was not removal but sufficiency. This verse has comforted countless suffering believers.

Paul closes with warnings and tenderness. He fears he will find quarreling, jealousy, and unrepentance. “Examine yourselves, to see whether you are in the faith. Test yourselves. Or do you not realize this about yourselves, that Jesus Christ is in you?” The aim is restoration, not demolition. “Aim for restoration, comfort one another, agree with one another, live in peace; and the God of love and peace will be with you.” The letter ends with the benediction: “The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all.” It is one of the clearest Trinitarian blessings in the New Testament.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 9:23-24 is the source of 10:17. Genesis 3 describes the serpent’s deceit. Galatians 1:6-9 also warns of false gospels. Ephesians 6:10-18 describes spiritual warfare. Acts 9:23-25 and 14:19 tell of the basket and the stoning. Job 1 to 2 shows Satan allowed to afflict. Isaiah 40:28-31 promises strength to the weary. Philippians 4:13 says I can do all things through him who strengthens me. Hebrews 4:15-16 offers grace to help in time of need. Romans 8:35-39 and 1 Peter 5:10 speak of suffering and grace.

STEP 6

Application

Name your “thorn.” Bring it to the Lord as Paul did. Listen for his answer.

Read 12:9 aloud and apply it to a current weakness.

Examine yourself as 13:5 says. Is Christ in you? Do you have the marks of faith?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Bring God your “thorn,” and tell him what it is.
- Thank him that his grace is sufficient and his power is perfected in weakness.
- Ask him to teach you to boast in weakness.

MEMORY

Unit Verse

> "I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me."
> GALATIANS 2:20

REST

Meditation

Paul wrote these words in the middle of an argument about justification, but they are as personal as anything in his letters. They are the unit's key.

"I have been crucified with Christ." Paul speaks of a past event with present effect. When Christ died, those who are in him died with him. The old self, the power of sin, and the curse of the law all came to an end at the cross.

"It is no longer I who live." The self-centered life, the one that lives for its own glory, has been put to death. This is not the loss of personality but of the old master.

"But Christ who lives in me." The risen Christ now lives in the believer by his Spirit. He is not just a teacher to be imitated or a debt-payer to be thanked, but the life within us.

The rest of the verse, which you should read, says: "And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me." We live by trusting him, and the basis is his love and his sacrifice.

This verse answers legalism, which says do more. It answers license, which says do what you want. The answer is union: Christ's death is mine and Christ's life is mine.

When you feel the pull of self-reliance or of sin, say this verse. You are not alone, and you are not what you were.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

You have read Galatians, 1 Corinthians, and 2 Corinthians, three letters that show the gospel at work in churches. In Galatians, Paul defended the gospel against those who added the law to faith: there is no other gospel, a person is justified by faith in Christ and not by works of the law, Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us, and in Christ we are adopted as sons and heirs. We walk by the Spirit, bear his fruit, and boast only in the cross. In 1 Corinthians, you saw a messy, gifted church corrected by the cross: the word of the cross is the power of God, ministers are servants and stewards, the church is God's temple, and Christians use their freedom in love. You studied the Lord's Supper as the meal that proclaims the Lord's death until he comes, spiritual gifts as given by one Spirit for the common good of one body, and love as the more excellent way. Chapter 15 gave the gospel of first importance and the hope of the resurrection of Christ and of the dead. In 2 Corinthians, you saw comfort in affliction, the new covenant ministry of the Spirit, the treasure in jars of clay, the new creation, the ministry of reconciliation, the grace of giving, and the sufficiency of grace in weakness. Doctrinal pauses covered adoption, the Lord's Supper, spiritual gifts, the resurrection of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, and death and the intermediate state. Psalms 33, 62, 111, 112, and 133 sang of God's word, rest in God alone, remembering his works, generosity, and unity.

REFLECT

Review Questions

What is the "different gospel" Paul is writing against in Galatians?

Read Galatians 1:6-9 and 2:15-21. What was added to faith in Christ, and why does Paul say that adding anything destroys the gospel? Where might a version of this temptation appear today?

What does "justification by faith" mean practically?

Consider Galatians 2:16, 3:1-14, and 5:1-6. How does it change your view of yourself, your failures, your obedience, and other people when you rest on Christ's finished work instead of your own performance?

Why does Paul say "I decided to know nothing among you except Jesus Christ and him crucified"?

Look at 1 Corinthians 1:18-2:5. What was wrong with the Corinthians' approach to wisdom and leaders? Why is the cross both foolish to the world and the power of God?

What does the resurrection of 1 Corinthians 15 have to do with everyday Christian living?

Read 1 Corinthians 15:12-20 and 15:50-58. If Christ is raised, what follows for how we face death, suffering, our bodies, and our work for the Lord?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness."

2 CORINTHIANS 12:9

REST

Meditation

These are the words of the Lord Jesus to Paul, spoken after he pleaded three times for relief from his thorn.

"My grace is sufficient for you." The Lord does not say, "I will remove it," but "My grace is enough." Grace here means God's favor and strength given to us in Christ. There is no situation in which it runs out. Paul needed daily grace, and so do we.

"For my power is made perfect in weakness." Weakness is not an obstacle to God's work but an opportunity for it. When we are strong in ourselves, we credit ourselves; when we are weak, the power of Christ is clearly seen. Paul went on to say, "I will boast all the more gladly of my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may rest upon me."

This verse reverses the world's logic. The world says to hide weakness and project strength. The gospel says to bring weakness to Christ. The cross itself is the great display of power in weakness.

When you are tired, limited, struggling with a thorn, or aware of your inadequacy, say this verse. Christ is not disappointed by your weakness; he is glorified in it. His grace is enough for today.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the unit with 2 Corinthians. In chapters 1 to 3, Paul blessed God as the Father of mercies and God of all comfort, taught that all the promises of God find their Yes in Christ, and described the new covenant ministry of the Spirit that transforms us from one degree of glory to another. A doctrinal pause on death and the intermediate state showed that to be absent from the body is to be at home with the Lord. Chapters 4 and 5 spoke of the treasure in jars of clay, the inner self renewed day by day, the new creation, the ministry of reconciliation, and the great exchange in which Christ was made sin so that we might become the righteousness of God. Chapters 6 to 9 called us to holiness, godly grief, and cheerful generosity, grounded in Christ who became poor for our sake. Chapters 10 to 13 closed with Paul's boasting in weakness, the thorn in the flesh, and the promise that Christ's grace is sufficient. The unit review on Day 783 drew the three letters together around Galatians 2:20.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul's thorn was not removed, but he received grace. What weakness, limitation, or hardship in your life might God be using to display his power? How might you boast in it?

Second Corinthians 5:21 says Christ was made sin for us so that we might become the righteousness of God. What does it mean to you that your sin was counted to him and his righteousness to you?

Paul says we are ambassadors for Christ, entrusted with the message of reconciliation. Who in your life needs to hear it from you? What is one step you can take this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that his grace is sufficient.

Thank him that his power is made perfect in weakness.

Rest in him.

DAY 785 · WEEK 113

Ephesians 1:1-23

Every spiritual blessing in Christ

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 23 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ephesians 1:1-23. The first fourteen verses are one long sentence in Greek, a single burst of praise. Read it aloud if you can, and notice how many times Paul says “in Christ” or “in him.” Then read the prayer in verses 15-23.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul wrote Ephesians from prison in Rome, around AD 60 to 62, probably as a circular letter for the churches around Ephesus. Together with Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon, it is one of the Prison Epistles. Ephesians has no urgent problem to correct. It is a sustained celebration of what God has done in Christ and what the church is. The first three chapters tell what God has done; the last three tell how to live in light of it.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places” (1:3).
2. “Even as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before him” (1:4).
3. “He predestined us for adoption as sons through Jesus Christ” (1:5).
4. “In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of his grace” (1:7).
5. “A plan for the fullness of time, to unite all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth” (1:10).

6. “In him you also, when you heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, and believed in him, were sealed with the promised Holy Spirit” (1:13).

7. “Having the eyes of your hearts enlightened, that you may know what is the hope to which he has called you” (1:18).

8. “He put all things under his feet and gave him as head over all things to the church, which is his body” (1:22-23).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The opening is a hymn of praise, not an argument. Paul blesses God because God has blessed us “with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places.” Every blessing is “in Christ.” The rest of the sentence unfolds the blessings in Trinitarian order. The Father chose us “before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless,” and predestined us for adoption “to the praise of his glorious grace.” The Son redeemed us: “In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses.” The Spirit sealed us: when we believed, we “were sealed with the promised Holy Spirit, who is the guarantee of our inheritance until we acquire possession of it.” Three times the refrain returns: to the praise of his glory.

Notice the scope. God’s plan reaches back before creation and forward to “the fullness of time, to unite all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth.” The mystery of his will is that all of history is heading toward one goal: the summing up of everything under Christ. Believers are given an inheritance, obtained “in him,” having been predestined according to the purpose of the God who works all things according to the counsel of his will. We were not an afterthought. We are part of a plan.

Paul then prays for the readers. He gives thanks for their faith and love, and asks that God give them “the Spirit of wisdom and of revelation in the knowledge of him,” so that the eyes of their hearts may be enlightened. He prays for three things: that they know the hope of his calling, the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, and the immeasurable greatness of his power toward us who believe. The measure of that power is the resurrection and exaltation of Christ: God raised him from the dead and seated him at his right hand in the heavenly places, far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and above every name that is named. “And he put all things under his feet and gave him as head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fullness of him who fills all in all.”

The church is not an afterthought either. Christ rules the universe for the sake of the church. The same power that raised Jesus is at work in believers. When we feel weak, we are to remember that this is the power on our side.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 8:28-39 and 2 Timothy 1:9 speak of God's purpose before the ages. Colossians 1:15-20 and Philippians 2:9-11 speak of Christ's supremacy. 1 Peter 1:3-5 praises God for a living hope and an inheritance. Psalm 110:1 and Psalm 8:6 stand behind 1:20-22. John 17:24 speaks of the Father's love before the foundation of the world. 2 Corinthians 1:21-22 speaks of the seal and guarantee. Revelation 5:9-14 shows the Lamb worshiped. Romans 11:33-36 is a similar doxology.

STEP 6

Application

Read verses 3 to 14 aloud as a prayer, slowly. Underline each blessing.

Pray for yourself the prayer of verses 17 to 19: that the eyes of your heart would be enlightened.

When you feel weak, remember that the power that raised Christ is at work in you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Bless God for blessing you in Christ with every spiritual blessing.
- Thank him for choosing you, adopting you, and sealing you.
- Ask him to open the eyes of your heart.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 113

"For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God, not a result of works, so that no one may boast."

EPHESIANS 2:8-9

DAY 786 · WEEK 113

Ephesians 1:3-14; Romans 9:1-24

Election and Predestination

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ephesians 1:3-14 and Romans 9:1-24. Today is a doctrinal pause on election and predestination. Read slowly and with humility. Notice the repeated phrase “in him” in Ephesians and the emphasis on God’s mercy in Romans.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Few doctrines have been as debated as election, and few are as comforting when understood. The word means choosing. Ephesians 1 speaks of God choosing us in Christ before the foundation of the world. Romans 9 stresses that God’s purpose of election works by his mercy, not by human merit or descent. The doctrine is not meant to start arguments but to produce worship, humility, and security. Notice that Ephesians 1 is written in a hymn of praise.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Even as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before him” (Ephesians 1:4).
2. “He predestined us for adoption as sons through Jesus Christ, according to the purpose of his will” (Ephesians 1:5).
3. “To the praise of his glorious grace, with which he has blessed us in the Beloved” (Ephesians 1:6).
4. “In him we have obtained an inheritance, having been predestined according to the purpose of him who works all things according to the counsel of his will” (Ephesians 1:11).

5. “In order that God’s purpose of election might continue, not because of works but because of him who calls” (Romans 9:11).
6. “For he says to Moses, I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion” (Romans 9:15).
7. “So then it depends not on human will or exertion, but on God, who has mercy” (Romans 9:16).
8. “In order to make known the riches of his glory for vessels of mercy, which he has prepared beforehand for glory” (Romans 9:23).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Election is God’s choice, before creation and from his own mercy, of a people to be saved in Christ. Predestination is closely related and speaks of God determining beforehand the destiny of those he has chosen: adoption, holiness, and glory. The Bible uses these words, so Christians must take them seriously. They are not ideas of a particular school but of Scripture.

The central point is clear in every tradition: salvation is God’s gift, not human achievement. The Father chose us “in him,” in Christ. We are not chosen because of foreseen goodness. We were chosen “that we should be holy and blameless,” not because we were. The purpose is the praise of his glorious grace. The result is humility and security: God began the work, and he will finish it (Philippians 1:6; Romans 8:29-30).

Christians have understood the details differently. In the Reformed (Calvinist) tradition, God unconditionally chose particular individuals for salvation before the foundation of the world, and he effectually calls them so that they certainly believe. In the Arminian tradition, God elects on the basis of his foreknowledge of who would respond in faith, or elects the church as a corporate body in Christ and individuals as they join it by faith. Other views stress corporate election: Christ is the Chosen One, and those who are in him share his election. Roman Catholic and Orthodox traditions have their own formulations. These debates have been serious and will not be settled here.

Some guidelines help us read faithfully. Hold the mystery: God is sovereign, and human beings are genuinely responsible. Scripture teaches both, and we are not asked to fully reconcile them. Remember the purpose: Paul teaches election to comfort and to elicit praise, not to discourage evangelism. The same Paul who wrote Romans 9 wrote Romans 10 about the necessity of preaching. And never use election as an excuse for pride or fatalism. The right response is worship.

STEP 4

Interpretation

In Ephesians 1, election is first of all about Christ. We were chosen "in him." Jesus is the chosen one, and we share in his election by union with him. The purpose of election is holiness and adoption. It is not a doctrine of exclusion but of grace: "In love he predestined us for adoption." Everything is done "according to the purpose of his will," "to the praise of his glorious grace."

Romans 9 focuses on the question of Israel: why have so many of God's people not believed? Paul's answer begins with a reminder: "Not all who are descended from Israel belong to Israel." The promise always went through God's choice: Isaac, not Ishmael; Jacob, not Esau. "Though they were not yet born and had done nothing either good or bad, in order that God's purpose of election might continue, not because of works but because of him who calls." Paul anticipates the objection: is God unjust? "By no means! For he says to Moses, I will have mercy on whom I have mercy." Salvation "depends not on human will or exertion, but on God, who has mercy." No one deserves mercy; if God gives it to some, no one is wronged. The potter has the right over the clay. And Paul adds that God endures with much patience vessels of wrath prepared for destruction, in order to make known the riches of his glory for vessels of mercy, "whom he has prepared beforehand for glory, even us whom he has called, not from the Jews only but also from the Gentiles."

If you are a Christian, the doctrine means that your salvation does not ultimately rest on your grip on God but on his grip on you. If you are not sure whether you are chosen, the answer is found in the gospel call: come to Christ. "Whoever believes in him will not be put to shame." No one who comes to him is cast out (John 6:37).

STEP 5

Connection

John 6:37-44 and 15:16 speak of the Father giving and drawing. Acts 13:48 says as many as were appointed to eternal life believed. Romans 8:28-30 gives the golden chain. 2 Thessalonians 2:13 speaks of being chosen as firstfruits. 1 Peter 1:1-2 and 2 Peter 1:10 speak of election. Deuteronomy 7:6-8 gives God's choice of Israel from love. 2 Peter 3:9 and 1 Timothy 2:4 speak of God's desire that all be saved. Revelation 13:8 and 17:8 mention the book of life. Philippians 2:12-13 pairs God's work and ours.

STEP 6

Application

Thank God for choosing you, if you are in Christ. Let it humble you and make you secure.

Pray for someone who does not believe. The doctrine of election should drive us to pray and to share the gospel, not away from it.

When you disagree with another Christian on this doctrine, respond with love, remembering that both of you are seeking to honor God's word.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for choosing you in Christ before the foundation of the world.
- Tell him what you cannot fully understand, and rest in him.
- Ask him to make you humble and holy.

DAY 787 · WEEK 113

Matthew 16:13-20; Ephesians 2:11-22; 1 Peter 2:4-10

The Nature of the Church

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Matthew 16:13-20, Ephesians 2:11-22, and 1 Peter 2:4-10. Today is a doctrinal pause on the nature of the church. Notice the images used: a rock, a household, a temple, a priesthood, and a people.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The word “church” translates the Greek ekklesia, which means an assembly or gathering. In the Old Testament, it was used for the assembly of Israel. Jesus used the word only twice in the Gospels (Matthew 16:18 and 18:17), but in the rest of the New Testament it appears over a hundred times. The church is central to God’s plan. It is not a human invention but the people whom God has gathered to himself through Christ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God” (Matthew 16:16).
2. “On this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it” (Matthew 16:18).
3. “But now in Christ Jesus you who once were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ” (Ephesians 2:13).
4. “For he himself is our peace, who has made us both one” (Ephesians 2:14).
5. “You are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are fellow citizens with the saints and members of the household of God” (Ephesians 2:19).
6. “Christ Jesus himself being the cornerstone” (Ephesians 2:20).

7 “You yourselves like living stones are being built up as a spiritual house, to be a holy priesthood” (1 Peter 2:5).

8 “But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for his own possession” (1 Peter 2:9).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The church is the people of God, called out of the world by the gospel and united to Christ by the Spirit. It is described in many ways: the body of Christ, the bride of Christ, the household and family of God, the temple of the Spirit, the flock of the Good Shepherd, the pillar and buttress of truth, and the people of God. Each image teaches something. The body speaks of union and mutual dependence; the bride, of love and purity; the family, of belonging; the temple, of God’s presence; the flock, of care.

We can distinguish the universal church and the local church. The universal church is all those united to Christ by faith in every time and place. The local church is a particular gathering of believers who meet regularly under the word, practice the ordinances, and are accountable to each other. Many theologians distinguish the visible church, which includes everyone who professes faith, from the invisible church, which includes only those who are truly regenerate. The marks of a true church, according to the Reformers, are the faithful preaching of the word and the right administration of the sacraments or ordinances. Many add discipline.

The church is what Israel was called to be, now expanded to include Gentiles. In Ephesians 2, Paul says that Gentiles who were “alienated from the commonwealth of Israel” are now fellow citizens. In 1 Peter 2:9, the titles once given to Israel in Exodus 19:5-6 are given to the church: a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation. This is part of the progressive covenantal reading of Scripture: Christ is the true Israel, and the church, united to him, is the people of God, in continuity with the Old Testament people and yet new.

Christians differ on the meaning of “on this rock” in Matthew 16:18. Roman Catholics hold that the rock is Peter, as the first pope. Many Protestants hold that the rock is Peter’s confession (that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God), or Christ himself, or Peter as representative of the apostles. Christians also differ on church government, which we study on Day 811. All agree that Christ builds his church and that it will not fail.

STEP 4

Interpretation

At Caesarea Philippi, Jesus asks, “Who do you say that I am?” Peter answers, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.” Jesus blesses him: flesh and blood did not reveal this, but the Father. “And I tell you, you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.” The church is built on the apostolic confession of who Jesus is. Whether the “rock” is Peter, his confession, or both, the point is clear: Christ is the builder, and the gates of death will not stop him. Jesus also gives the keys of the kingdom, the authority to declare, through the gospel, who enters.

Ephesians 2:11-22 describes the church as a new humanity. Gentiles were “separated from Christ, alienated from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world.” But now they have been brought near. Christ “has broken down in his flesh the dividing wall of hostility” between Jew and Gentile, by abolishing the law of commandments expressed in ordinances, “that he might create in himself one new man in place of the two.” Together they have access in one Spirit to the Father. “So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are fellow citizens with the saints and members of the household of God, built on the foundation of the apostles and the prophets, Christ Jesus himself being the cornerstone, in whom the whole structure, being joined together, grows into a holy temple in the Lord.” The church is a building with Christ at its center and a living organism that is growing.

Peter adds that believers are “living stones” built into a spiritual house, a holy priesthood to offer spiritual sacrifices. Christ is the living stone, rejected by men but chosen and precious. For those who believe, he is precious; for those who do not, he is a stone of stumbling. Believers have a purpose: “that you may proclaim the excellencies of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light.” “Once you were not a people, but now you are God’s people; once you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy.”

The church is the community of the redeemed. It is not optional for the Christian. We were saved into a people.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 19:5-6 is the source of 1 Peter 2:9. Psalm 118:22 and Isaiah 28:16 are quoted in 1 Peter 2:6-8. Hosea 1:9 to 2:23 is echoed in 1 Peter 2:10. Matthew 18:15-20 gives Jesus’ words on the church. Acts 2:42-47 shows the first church. 1 Corinthians 12:12-27 describes the body. Hebrews 10:24-25 urges us not to neglect meeting together. Revelation 21:9-14 pictures the bride and the city. Ephesians 5:25-27 says Christ loved the church and gave himself for her.

STEP 6

Application

If you are not part of a local church, prayerfully find one this week. If you are, thank God for it.

Ask what it would mean to see your fellow members as brothers and sisters, not as an audience.

Think of the church's mission: to proclaim the excellencies of him who called us.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for building his church.

Ask him to show you your place in it.

Pray for your own church.

EPHESIANS 2:8-9

DAY 788 · WEEK 113

Ephesians 2:1-3:21

By grace through faith; the new humanity; the mystery

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 43 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ephesians 2:1-3:21. Chapter 2 is the gospel in miniature: dead, made alive, saved by grace, made one. Chapter 3 is about the mystery of the Gentiles' inclusion and ends with a prayer and a doxology. Take time with 2:8-10 and 3:14-21.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In chapter 1, Paul described what God has done in eternity and in Christ. In chapter 2, he describes what happened to us: we were dead, and God made us alive. Then he describes what happened between Jew and Gentile: the wall came down. Chapter 3 explains that this was the long-hidden mystery, and Paul's calling is to proclaim it. The chapter closes with one of Paul's greatest prayers.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And you were dead in the trespasses and sins" (2:1).
2. "But God, being rich in mercy, because of the great love with which he loved us, even when we were dead in our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ" (2:4-5).
3. "For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God, not a result of works, so that no one may boast" (2:8-9).
4. "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand, that we should walk in them" (2:10).
5. "That he might create in himself one new man in place of the two, so making peace" (2:15).

6. “This mystery is that the Gentiles are fellow heirs, members of the same body, and partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel” (3:6).

7. “That you, being rooted and grounded in love, may have strength to comprehend with all the saints what is the breadth and length and height and depth” (3:17-18).

8. “Now to him who is able to do far more abundantly than all that we ask or think, according to the power at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, forever and ever” (3:20-21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The chapter begins with the worst news: “You were dead in the trespasses and sins in which you once walked, following the course of this world, following the prince of the power of the air.” Dead is dead. Not sick, not weak, but dead. We were by nature children of wrath, carrying out the desires of the body and the mind. This is a bleak but accurate picture of humanity without Christ.

Then the two most beautiful words in the Bible: “But God.” “But God, being rich in mercy, because of the great love with which he loved us, even when we were dead in our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ.” The sequence is raising with Christ, seating with Christ. All of it is grace. “For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God, not a result of works, so that no one may boast.” Faith itself is a gift. Salvation excludes boasting. Yet it is not for idleness: “For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand, that we should walk in them.” We are not saved by works, but we are saved for works. The word “workmanship” is poiema, from which we get “poem.” We are God’s work of art.

Verses 11 to 22 turn to the Gentiles, who were far off. “But now in Christ Jesus you who once were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ. For he himself is our peace.” The “dividing wall of hostility” may allude to the barrier in the temple that kept Gentiles out of the inner courts. Christ abolished the hostility and made one new humanity. This is a key text for understanding the relationship between Israel and the church: not replacement, but a new creation in which Jew and Gentile are united in one body under one Head.

In chapter 3, Paul speaks of the mystery: “that the Gentiles are fellow heirs, members of the same body, and partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.” It was not made known in other generations as it has now been revealed. Paul has been given the grace to preach to the Gentiles “the unsearchable riches of Christ” and to make known to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places the manifold wisdom of God through the church. Even angels learn about God by watching the church.

He bows his knees and prays: that God would strengthen them with power through his Spirit in the inner being, that Christ may dwell in their hearts through faith, that they being rooted and grounded in love may comprehend the breadth and length and height and depth, and know the love of Christ that surpasses knowledge, "that you may be filled with all the fullness of God." It is a prayer for knowing what cannot be fully known. And then the doxology, to the God who can do more than we ask or think.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 3 and Romans 5:12-21 explain our deadness in Adam. Romans 3:21-28 and Titus 3:3-7 teach salvation by grace. Isaiah 57:19 is cited in 2:17. Colossians 1:26-27 also speaks of the mystery. Romans 16:25-27 is a related doxology. Galatians 3:26-29 speaks of union of Jew and Gentile. John 15:5 and Colossians 3:3-4 speak of Christ in us. 1 Peter 1:10-12 says angels long to look into these things. Jude 24-25 is another doxology.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize Ephesians 2:8-10. Write it where you will see it.

Ask what "good works" God has prepared for you today, and look for one.

Pray Paul's prayer of 3:16-19 for a friend or for your church.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for making you alive when you were dead in sin.

Thank him that you are saved by grace through faith, a gift.

Ask him to help you walk in the good works he prepared.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 113

DAY 789 · WEEK 113

Ephesians 4:1-32

Unity; spiritual gifts; the new self

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 32 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ephesians 4:1-32. The letter turns from “what God has done” to “how we then should live.” Read the first sixteen verses on unity and gifts, and the last verses on putting off the old self and putting on the new.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Chapters 1 to 3 are doctrine; chapters 4 to 6 are practice. The word “therefore” at the start of chapter 4 connects them. The Christian life is a response to what God has done. Paul begins with the church’s unity, then moves to individuals: how to live as a new person. This chapter links with Psalm 68 and Psalm 110, which we read in the coming days.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “I therefore, a prisoner for the Lord, urge you to walk in a manner worthy of the calling to which you have been called” (4:1).
2. “Eager to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace” (4:3).
3. “One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all” (4:5-6).
4. “Rather, speaking the truth in love, we are to grow up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ” (4:15).
5. “To put on the new self, created after the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness” (4:24).
6. “Let no corrupting talk come out of your mouths, but only such as is good for building up” (4:29).

7. “And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption” (4:30).

8. “Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you” (4:32).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul, “a prisoner for the Lord,” urges the church to walk worthy of their calling: “with all humility and gentleness, with patience, bearing with one another in love, eager to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.” Notice that unity is something we maintain, not create. The Spirit has already made us one. The basis is the seven “ones”: one body, one Spirit, one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all. The Trinity is the foundation of church unity.

Unity is not uniformity. “But grace was given to each one of us according to the measure of Christ’s gift.” Paul quotes Psalm 68:18: “When he ascended on high he led a host of captives, and he gave gifts to men.” The ascended Christ gives gifts to his church: apostles, prophets, evangelists, shepherds, and teachers, “to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ, until we all attain to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to mature manhood, to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.” The goal is Christlikeness, and the means is the ministry of every member. Immaturity is marked by being “tossed to and fro by the waves and carried about by every wind of doctrine.” Maturity is marked by “speaking the truth in love” and growing into Christ.

Verses 17 to 24 describe the change. The Gentiles walk “in the futility of their minds,” darkened in understanding, hardened in heart, callous, given over to sensuality. “But that is not the way you learned Christ.” The imagery is clothing: put off the old self, which is corrupt through deceitful desires, be renewed in the spirit of your minds, and put on the new self, “created after the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness.” Holiness starts with a change of identity and shows up in daily choices.

Then practical commands, each with a reason. Put away falsehood and speak the truth, for we are members one of another. Be angry and do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger. Let the thief no longer steal, but work, so that he may have something to share with the needy. Let no corrupting talk come out of your mouths, only what is good for building up. “And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption.” The Spirit is a person who can be grieved by sin, especially by bitterness and malice. Instead: “Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you.” The standard of forgiveness is the cross.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 68:18 is quoted in 4:8. Colossians 3:5-17 is a parallel on putting off and putting on. 1 Corinthians 12 and Romans 12 treat the gifts. John 17:20-23 is Jesus' prayer for unity. Zechariah 8:16 stands behind 4:25. Psalm 4:4 is quoted in 4:26. Matthew 6:14-15 and 18:21-35 teach forgiveness. Hebrews 12:15 warns against a root of bitterness. 2 Corinthians 5:17 speaks of the new creation. 1 Thessalonians 5:19 says not to quench the Spirit.

STEP 6

Application

Identify one place where you could maintain unity: a strained relationship at church or home. Take a step.

Examine your words this week. Ask, is this good for building up?

Forgive someone as God in Christ forgave you, if you need to.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you walk worthy of your calling.

Ask him to make you humble, gentle, and patient.

Ask him to help you put off the old self and put on the new.

DAY 790 · WEEK 113

Ephesians 5:1-6:24

Walk in love; household codes; the armor of God

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 57 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Ephesians 5:1-6:24. This long reading continues the practical section: walking in love and light, being filled with the Spirit, relationships in the household, and the armor of God. Read with care, as Paul's teaching on marriage is both beautiful and debated. Read the armor of God as an invitation to stand.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul continues his instructions for the Christian life. He starts with imitating God and walking in love, then describes life in the Spirit, then addresses relationships in the household: wives and husbands, children and parents, slaves and masters. Finally he turns to spiritual warfare. The household instructions were countercultural. Husbands are told to love like Christ; children, wives, and slaves are addressed as moral agents; masters are warned that they have a Master in heaven.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And walk in love, as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us, a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God" (5:2).
2. "And do not get drunk with wine, for that is debauchery, but be filled with the Spirit" (5:18).
3. "Submitting to one another out of reverence for Christ" (5:21).
4. "Husbands, love your wives, as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her" (5:25).
5. "Finally, be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his might" (6:10).

6. “For we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the cosmic powers over this present darkness” (6:12).
7. “And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God” (6:17).
8. “Praying at all times in the Spirit, with all prayer and supplication” (6:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

“Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children. And walk in love, as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us.” The pattern for the Christian life is God’s own love in Christ. Paul warns against sexual immorality, impurity, covetousness, and obscene talk, which are not fitting among saints. “For at one time you were darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Walk as children of light.” Light exposes darkness and shows what pleases the Lord.

“Be filled with the Spirit.” This is a command in the present tense, meaning to keep being filled. It is contrasted with drunkenness: instead of being controlled by wine, be controlled by the Spirit. The results are described in participles: speaking to one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody to the Lord, giving thanks, and submitting to one another. A Spirit-filled life is marked by worship, gratitude, and mutual submission.

Then the household. “Submitting to one another out of reverence for Christ” introduces the passage. “Wives, submit to your own husbands, as to the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife even as Christ is the head of the church.” The key is the pattern of Christ. Husbands are told, “Love your wives, as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her, that he might sanctify her.” Headship is defined by sacrificial love. Marriage is a picture of Christ and the church: “This mystery is profound, and I am saying that it refers to Christ and the church.” Christians differ on the application: complementarians understand the passage to describe distinct roles in which husbands lead and wives submit, while egalitarians stress mutual submission in verse 21 and understand headship as source or servant leadership. Both agree that husbands must love sacrificially and that abuse of any kind violates this text.

Children are to obey their parents in the Lord, for it is right, and honor them, the first commandment with a promise. Fathers are not to provoke their children to anger, but to bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord. Slaves are to obey with sincerity, as serving Christ, and masters are to do the same to them, knowing that both have a Master in heaven who shows no partiality. Paul’s teaching undermines the slave system from within.

The letter ends with a call to battle. “Be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the schemes of the devil.” The enemy is not human but spiritual. The armor: the belt of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, shoes of the readiness given by the gospel of peace, the shield of faith, the helmet of salvation, the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God. Almost all of it is defensive; the aim is to stand. And all of it is surrounded by prayer: “praying at all times in the Spirit.” Paul asks for prayer for himself, that he would declare the gospel boldly. The letter ends with peace, love, and grace.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 2:24 is quoted in 5:31. Exodus 20:12 is quoted in 6:2-3. Isaiah 11:4-5, 52:7, and 59:17 stand behind the armor. 1 Peter 3:1-7 gives parallel household teaching. Colossians 3:18 to 4:1 is a close parallel. Philemon applies the teaching on masters and slaves. Psalm 119 praises the word. 2 Corinthians 10:3-5 describes spiritual warfare. 1 Peter 5:8-9 warns of the devil. Matthew 4:1-11 shows Jesus using the sword of the Spirit. James 4:7 says resist the devil.

STEP 6

Application

Pray through each piece of the armor this week. Name each as you put it on.

If you are married, ask your spouse how you could love them more like Christ. If you are a parent, look for an area where you can bring up your children in the Lord.

Pray for a missionary or pastor who is boldly declaring the gospel.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to help you walk in love as Christ loved you.
- Ask him to fill you with his Spirit.
- Ask him to help you put on the whole armor of God.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Ephesians 2:8-9 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God, not a result of works, so that no one may boast."

EPHESIANS 2:8-9

REST

Meditation

These two verses may be the most quoted summary of the gospel of grace.

"For by grace." Grace is God's favor given freely to those who do not deserve it. It is the source of everything.

"You have been saved." The verb is in the perfect tense: it was done in the past with results that continue. You are not hoping to be saved by your effort; you have been saved.

"Through faith." Faith is the means by which we receive what grace offers. It is not a work but an empty hand. It looks to Christ.

"And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God." Everything, including the faith itself, is God's gift. We did not contribute.

“Not a result of works, so that no one may boast.” If salvation depended on us even a little, we could take some credit. As it is, all the glory goes to God.

And verse 10 adds what follows: we are his workmanship, created for good works. We are saved by grace, not by works, but for works.

When pride or despair threatens, say these verses. Both are answered by grace.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the Prison Epistles with Ephesians. In chapter 1, Paul praised God for blessing us in Christ with every spiritual blessing: chosen, adopted, redeemed, and sealed with the Spirit, to the praise of his glorious grace. Two doctrinal pauses considered election and predestination, and the nature of the church as the people of God built on Christ the cornerstone. Ephesians 2 and 3 showed us dead in sin and made alive by grace through faith, Jew and Gentile made one new humanity, and the mystery of Christ revealed. Chapters 4 to 6 turned to life in Christ: unity of the Spirit, gifts for equipping the saints, putting off the old self and putting on the new, walking in love, the household, and the armor of God.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says every spiritual blessing is ours in Christ. Which of the blessings in Ephesians 1:3-14 is hardest for you to believe is true of you? How might you remind yourself of it this week?

Ephesians 2:8-10 says we are saved by grace through faith, for good works. Which is your greater temptation: to rely on your works or to neglect them? How does grace answer both?

Ephesians 4 tells us to maintain the unity of the Spirit. Is there a relationship in your church or family where you need to take the first step? What is it?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that you are saved by grace through faith, a gift.

Rest in what Christ has done.

Ask him to keep you standing.

DAY 792 · WEEK 114

Psalm 68:1-20

God gives gifts to men, the psalm behind Ephesians 4

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Psalm · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 68:1-20. This is one of the most majestic psalms in the Psalter. Paul quotes verse 18 in Ephesians 4:8. Read it as a victory procession of God, and notice what God does for the lonely and the needy.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 68 is a psalm of David, probably composed for the procession of the ark into Jerusalem. It begins with the words Moses spoke when the ark set out in the wilderness (Numbers 10:35). It recalls the exodus, Sinai, the conquest, and God's reign from Zion. In Ephesians 4, Paul takes verse 18, about God ascending on high leading captives, and applies it to Christ's ascension and the gifts he gives his church.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "God shall arise, his enemies shall be scattered; and those who hate him shall flee before him!" (v. 1).
2. "But the righteous shall be glad; they shall exult before God; they shall be jubilant with joy!" (v. 3).
3. "Father of the fatherless and protector of widows is God in his holy habitation" (v. 5).
4. "God settles the solitary in a home" (v. 6).
5. "You ascended on high, leading a host of captives in your train" (v. 18).
6. "And receiving gifts among men, even among the rebellious, that the LORD God may dwell there" (v. 18).
7. "Blessed be the Lord, who daily bears us up; God is our salvation" (v. 19).

8 “Our God is a God of salvation, and to GOD, the Lord, belong deliverances from death” (v. 20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts with a battle cry: “God shall arise, his enemies shall be scattered.” As smoke is driven away, so he drives them away; as wax melts before fire, so the wicked perish before God. Meanwhile, “the righteous shall be glad; they shall exult before God; they shall be jubilant with joy.” The same God who is terrifying to his enemies is the joy of his people.

Then comes one of the most tender descriptions of God in the Bible: “Father of the fatherless and protector of widows is God in his holy habitation. God settles the solitary in a home; he leads out the prisoners to prosperity.” The mighty God who rides on the clouds is also the God of orphans and widows. His kingship is shown in his care for the vulnerable. The “solitary” are the lonely, and God places them in families. This is a theme of adoption, and the church is the household where it happens.

Verses 7 to 10 recall the exodus and Sinai, when the earth shook and the heavens poured down rain. God provided for his weary inheritance. Verses 11 to 14 refer to the conquest. Verses 15 to 17 describe Mount Zion, “the mount that God desired for his abode,” contrasted with the mountains of Bashan. And then the ascent: “The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, thousands upon thousands; the Lord is among them; Sinai is now in the sanctuary. You ascended on high, leading a host of captives in your train and receiving gifts among men, even among the rebellious, that the LORD God may dwell there.”

In the psalm, the picture is of a conquering king returning in triumph, with captives and tribute. Paul in Ephesians 4:8 quotes the verse with a small change: “he gave gifts to men.” Many interpreters explain that the conqueror receives tribute from the defeated and then distributes it to his people. Christ, having conquered sin, death, and Satan in the cross and resurrection, ascended and gave gifts to his church. The psalm foretold the ascension. Interestingly, the psalm adds that the gifts are received “even among the rebellious.” Even rebels are made into those who carry gifts, as Paul himself was a rebel turned apostle.

The psalm closes this section with a blessing: “Blessed be the Lord, who daily bears us up; God is our salvation.” Daily he carries his people. And “to GOD, the Lord, belong deliverances from death.” The final victory is his.

STEP 5

Connection

Numbers 10:35 is the opening line of the psalm. Ephesians 4:7-16 applies verse 18. Colossians 2:15 says Christ disarmed the rulers and authorities, triumphing over them in the cross. Acts 1:9-11 and 2:33 describe the ascension and the gift of the Spirit. Psalm 146:9 and Deuteronomy 10:18 also describe God's care for the fatherless. Hebrews 4:14 and 9:24 speak of Christ entering heaven. James 1:27 says pure religion is to care for orphans and widows. Judges 5 is another victory song.

STEP 6

Application

Look for a fatherless, widowed, or lonely person in your church or community. Make a place for them.

Thank Christ for the gifts he has given you. Name one and put it to use.

Pray verse 19: bless the Lord who daily bears us up.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to rise up and scatter his enemies.
- Thank him for being father of the fatherless and defender of widows.
- Thank him for giving gifts to his people.

PHILIPPIANS 4:6-7

DAY 793 · WEEK 114

Psalm 110:1-7

The priest-king who ascended on high

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Psalm · 7 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 110. You have read this psalm before, with Peter's sermons and Acts. Read it now with Ephesians in mind: it is the psalm of the ascended king, seated at God's right hand, who is also a priest forever.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 110 is the Old Testament verse most quoted in the New Testament. Jesus used it to stump the Pharisees (Matthew 22:41-46). Peter used it at Pentecost (Acts 2:34-35). The writer of Hebrews builds an entire argument on verse 4. In Ephesians 1:20-22, Paul draws on verse 1 when he says God seated Christ at his right hand, far above all rule and authority. Paired with Psalm 68, which describes the ascent, this psalm shows the seat and office of the ascended Christ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD says to my Lord: Sit at my right hand" (v. 1).
2. "Until I make your enemies your footstool" (v. 1).
3. "The LORD sends forth from Zion your mighty scepter" (v. 2).
4. "Your people will offer themselves freely on the day of your power" (v. 3).
5. "The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind" (v. 4).
6. "You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek" (v. 4).
7. "He will shatter kings on the day of his wrath" (v. 5).
8. "Therefore he will lift up his head" (v. 7).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm is a conversation within God. “The LORD says to my Lord.” David speaks of two: the LORD (Yahweh) and “my Lord” (Adonai), someone David himself calls Lord. Jesus pointed this out: “If David thus calls him Lord, how is he his son?” The answer is that the Messiah is both David’s descendant and David’s Lord, human and divine. The invitation: “Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool.” To sit at the right hand is to share the throne. Paul says this is where Christ now is (Ephesians 1:20; Colossians 3:1).

Verse 2 says the king rules from Zion in the midst of his enemies. His reign is real now, though not yet fully visible. Verse 3 describes his people: “Your people will offer themselves freely on the day of your power.” The king’s people are volunteers, willing servants. “In holy garments” (or splendor of holiness), they come like the dew of the morning. They are a new generation, drawn by the king’s power, not forced.

Verse 4 is the astonishing center: “The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind, You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek.” In Israel, kings came from Judah and priests from Levi. But here the king is also a priest, not of the Levitical order but of Melchizedek, the mysterious priest-king of Salem who blessed Abraham (Genesis 14:18-20). The writer of Hebrews explains that Christ is a high priest of a better order, with an oath, who lives forever and therefore has a permanent priesthood. Because he is a priest-king, he can intercede for us and rule us.

Verses 5 to 7 return to the king’s victories. The Lord at your right hand “will shatter kings on the day of his wrath. He will execute judgment among the nations.” This is the final judgment. The psalm ends, “He will drink from the brook by the way; therefore he will lift up his head.” The victorious king pauses to drink and goes on; his head is lifted in triumph. For Christians, the picture ties together the cross (the brook by the way, the suffering) and the exaltation.

Reading this psalm with Ephesians, we see that Christ’s ascension was not an absence but an enthronement. He now rules, intercedes, and gives gifts. We live between his ascension and his return, with confidence that he reigns.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 14:17-20 introduces Melchizedek. Matthew 22:41-46, Acts 2:29-36, and Hebrews 1:13, 5:6, 7:1-28 quote or use the psalm. Ephesians 1:20-23 and Colossians 3:1 speak of being seated at God’s right hand. 1 Corinthians 15:25 says he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. Zechariah 6:12-13 speaks of a priest on the throne. Revelation 19:11-16 shows the victorious king. Romans 8:34 says Christ is at the right hand of God, interceding for us. Psalm 2 is a companion royal psalm.

STEP 6

Application

Remember when anxious that Christ is seated at God's right hand, ruling all things.

Give thanks that your high priest lives forever to intercede for you.

Offer yourself freely to him today, as one of the willing people of verse 3.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for sitting at the Father's right hand.

Thank him that he is a priest forever.

Ask him to make his enemies his footstool in your life.

DAY 794 · WEEK 114

Philippians 1:1-2:30

Joy in prison; the Christ hymn; Timothy and Epaphroditus

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 60 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Philippians 1:1-2:30. Paul writes from prison, yet the letter is full of joy. Notice how he handles his imprisonment, the prayer he offers, the call to unity and humility, and the great Christ hymn in 2:5-11.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Philippi was a Roman colony in Macedonia where Paul planted the first church in Europe (Acts 16). The church had supported him generously. Now in prison, perhaps in Rome, he writes to thank them, to report on his situation, and to encourage them. Philippians has a repeated theme of joy; the words "joy" and "rejoice" appear about sixteen times. Its message is that joy does not depend on circumstances but on Christ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And I am sure of this, that he who began a good work in you will bring it to completion at the day of Jesus Christ" (1:6).
2. "I want you to know, brothers, that what has happened to me has really served to advance the gospel" (1:12).
3. "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain" (1:21).
4. "Only let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ" (1:27).
5. "Do nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility count others more significant than yourselves" (2:3).
6. "Have this mind among yourselves, which is yours in Christ Jesus" (2:5).

7. “And every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father” (2:11).

8. “For it is God who works in you, both to will and to work for his good pleasure” (2:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul’s greeting includes “overseers and deacons.” He thanks God every time he remembers them, because of their partnership in the gospel from the first day. Then the great assurance of verse 6: “He who began a good work in you will bring it to completion at the day of Jesus Christ.” The Christian’s confidence rests on God’s faithfulness. He prays that their love may abound with knowledge and discernment, so that they may approve what is excellent and be filled with the fruit of righteousness.

Paul reports on his imprisonment. It has “really served to advance the gospel.” The whole imperial guard knows that his chains are for Christ, and most of the brothers have become more bold to speak the word without fear. Some preach Christ from envy and rivalry, others from good will. Paul’s response is remarkable: “What does it matter? Only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is proclaimed, and in that I rejoice.” The gospel is bigger than his reputation. Then he faces death honestly: “For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.” He is torn between wanting to depart and be with Christ, which is far better, and remaining for their sake. He is convinced he will remain.

He calls them to unity and courage: “Only let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ… standing firm in one spirit, with one mind striving side by side for the faith of the gospel, and not frightened in anything by your opponents.” Suffering is a gift: “It has been granted to you that for the sake of Christ you should not only believe in him but also suffer for his sake.”

Then Paul calls for humility, with Christ as the model. “Do nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility count others more significant than yourselves. Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others. Have this mind among yourselves, which is yours in Christ Jesus.” The hymn follows, which we will study in the next doctrinal pause: Christ, in the form of God, emptied himself, took the form of a servant, humbled himself to death on a cross; therefore God exalted him, and every knee will bow.

The practical conclusion: “Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, for it is God who works in you, both to will and to work for his good pleasure. Do all things without grumbling or disputing, that you may be blameless and innocent, children of God without blemish… among whom you shine as lights in the world, holding fast to the word of life." Paul also commends Timothy, who genuinely cares for their welfare, and Epaphroditus, who nearly died for the work of Christ. These are models of Christ's mind in action.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 16:11-40 tells of the founding of the Philippian church. Isaiah 45:22-23 is the source of 2:10-11. Romans 8:28 and 2 Corinthians 4:7-12 speak of God working in suffering. Philippians 4:10-20 speaks of their gift. John 13:1-17 shows Jesus' servant act. 1 Peter 2:21-25 calls us to follow his example. 2 Corinthians 8:9 speaks of his becoming poor. Matthew 5:14-16 calls us the light of the world. Hebrews 12:1-3 points to Jesus as pioneer and perfecter.

STEP 6

Application

Read the letter with an eye for the word "joy." Count how many times it appears.

Look for a way to count someone else more significant this week.

Entrust to God a work that you worry about. He who began it will complete it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for beginning a good work in you and bringing it to completion.

Tell him what it means that to live is Christ and to die is gain.

Ask him to give you Christ's humility.

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Philippians 2:5-11 and Hebrews 2:14-18. Today is a doctrinal pause on Christ as fully God and fully man. Read the Christ hymn slowly, perhaps several times. Notice what Christ was, what he did, and what God did in response.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Philippians 2:5-11 is often called the Christ hymn, and many scholars think it is an early Christian hymn or creed that Paul quotes. Hebrews 2 makes a similar point about Christ's humanity. The church fought for centuries to express this truth precisely. At the Council of Chalcedon in AD 451, it confessed that Christ is one person in two natures, truly God and truly man, without confusion, change, division, or separation.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped" (Philippians 2:6).
2. "But emptied himself, by taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men" (Philippians 2:7).
3. "And being found in human form, he humbled himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross" (Philippians 2:8).
4. "Therefore God has highly exalted him and bestowed on him the name that is above every name" (Philippians 2:9).
5. "And every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Philippians 2:11).

6. “He himself likewise partook of the same things” (Hebrews 2:14).
7. “Therefore he had to be made like his brothers in every respect” (Hebrews 2:17).
8. “For because he himself has suffered when tempted, he is able to help those who are being tempted” (Hebrews 2:18).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The church confesses that Jesus Christ is fully God and fully man in one person. This is sometimes called the hypostatic union, or the doctrine of the two natures. It is the climax of the New Testament’s teaching about who Jesus is, and every other doctrine about him depends on it.

Fully God: The New Testament calls Jesus God (John 1:1; 20:28; Titus 2:13), gives him divine names, attributes, and works, and calls for worship of him. In Philippians 2:6, he existed “in the form of God” and had “equality with God.” Fully man: He was born of a woman, grew, hungered, thirsted, wept, was tempted, suffered, and died. He had a human body and a human soul. Hebrews insists he was made like us in every respect, except without sin (4:15). He is one person, not two. The same “I” who is God is the “I” who hungers.

Why does this matter? Because only a man could die for sinners, and only God could bear the infinite weight of sin and conquer death. A mediator between God and man must be both (1 Timothy 2:5). He represents us as one of us and reveals the Father as God. If Jesus is not fully God, he cannot save; if he is not fully man, he cannot save us as one of us. As Gregory of Nazianzus said, “What has not been assumed has not been healed.”

The phrase “emptied himself” (kenosis) has been debated. Orthodox interpretation holds that Christ did not cease to be God or lay aside any divine attribute, but emptied himself by taking on the form of a servant, veiling his glory, and voluntarily limiting the use of his divine prerogatives. He remained fully God while living as a real man. The main sense is not subtraction but addition: he added humanity to his deity. Some modern views claim that he gave up divine attributes; the church has rejected that as inconsistent with the biblical testimony.

The pattern of the hymn is humiliation and exaltation. He descended: from the form of God to the form of a servant, to death, to death on a cross. Then God exalted him with the name above every name, “Lord,” the name of God in the Greek Old Testament. Every knee will bow. This quotes Isaiah 45:23, where it is spoken of Yahweh. Paul applies it to Jesus.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul introduces the hymn to teach humility: “Have this mind among yourselves, which is yours in Christ Jesus.” The model of selfless love is Christ himself. “Though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped.” Christ did not hold onto the privileges of deity as something to exploit. “But emptied himself, by taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men.” The Eternal Son took a human nature. “And being found in human form, he humbled himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross.” Crucifixion was the most shameful death. The Son of God went all the way down.

“Therefore God has highly exalted him.” The cross was not the end. The one who humbled himself is exalted. “The name that is above every name” is likely “Lord” (verse 11). “So that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.” Notice that the exaltation of Jesus brings glory to the Father, not rivalry. The whole creation, willingly or not, will acknowledge him.

Hebrews 2 covers the same ground from a different angle. “Since therefore the children share in flesh and blood, he himself likewise partook of the same things, that through death he might destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, and deliver all those who through fear of death were subject to lifelong slavery.” Christ became human in order to die, and he died in order to defeat death and free us from its fear. “Therefore he had to be made like his brothers in every respect, so that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest in the service of God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people. For because he himself has suffered when tempted, he is able to help those who are being tempted.” Jesus knows our weakness from the inside. We have a sympathetic high priest.

This is the gospel in its fullest form. God did not remain at a distance. He came near, became one of us, and gave himself for us. And now the one who suffered is reigning.

STEP 5

Connection

John 1:1-18 and Colossians 1:15-20 speak of the eternal Word becoming flesh. Isaiah 45:22-25 is the source of Philippians 2:10-11. Isaiah 52:13 to 53:12 foretells the servant’s humiliation and exaltation. Hebrews 4:14-16 speaks of the sympathetic high priest. 1 Timothy 2:5 speaks of one mediator. Romans 1:3-4 mentions both natures. 2 Corinthians 8:9 speaks of his becoming poor. Luke 2:52 says Jesus increased in wisdom and stature. Mark 13:32 shows the limits of his human knowledge. Acts 2:32-36 speaks of God making him Lord and Christ.

STEP 6

Application

Read the Christ hymn aloud each morning this week. Let it shape your attitude toward others.

When you are tempted or suffering, remember that Jesus knows what it is like. Go to him.

Bow the knee. Confess aloud, “Jesus Christ is Lord.”

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Worship Jesus, who was in the form of God and became a servant.

Thank him for becoming fully human to save you.

Ask him to give you his mindset.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 114

“Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.”

PHILIPPIANS 4:6-7

DAY 796 · WEEK 114

Philippians 3:1-4:23

Pressing on; contentment; the peace of God

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 44 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Philippians 3:1-4:23. Paul gives his own testimony, speaks of pressing on, and ends with practical commands about joy, prayer, peace, and contentment. Read 3:7-14 and 4:4-13 slowly.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In chapter 3, Paul warns the Philippians against those who trust in the flesh, including Judaizers who insisted on circumcision. He offers his own credentials and shows why he counts them as rubbish. Chapter 4 begins with a plea for two women in the church to be reconciled, followed by the best-known statements on joy, anxiety, and contentment. Paul wrote this in prison, which gives the commands special force.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Indeed, I count everything as loss because of the surpassing worth of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord” (3:8).
2. “That I may know him and the power of his resurrection, and may share his sufferings, becoming like him in his death” (3:10).
3. “I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus” (3:14).
4. “Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice” (4:4).
5. “Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God” (4:6).
6. “Whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just” (4:8).
7. “I have learned in whatever situation I am to be content” (4:11).

8 “I can do all things through him who strengthens me” (4:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with a warning: “Look out for the dogs, look out for the evildoers, look out for those who mutilate the flesh. For we are the circumcision, who worship by the Spirit of God and glory in Christ Jesus and put no confidence in the flesh.” He then lists his own credentials: circumcised on the eighth day, of the people of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews, a Pharisee, a persecutor of the church, as to righteousness under the law blameless. “But whatever gain I had, I counted as loss for the sake of Christ. Indeed, I count everything as loss because of the surpassing worth of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord. For his sake I have suffered the loss of all things and count them as rubbish, in order that I may gain Christ and be found in him, not having a righteousness of my own that comes from the law, but that which comes through faith in Christ, the righteousness from God that depends on faith.” This is the gospel from his own heart.

The goal is to know Christ: “that I may know him and the power of his resurrection, and may share his sufferings, becoming like him in his death, that by any means possible I may attain the resurrection from the dead.” Paul has not yet arrived. “Brothers, I do not consider that I have made it my own. But one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus.” Like a runner, he keeps his eyes on the finish. He calls the mature to share this mindset and to imitate him. “But our citizenship is in heaven, and from it we await a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who will transform our lowly body to be like his glorious body.”

Chapter 4 opens with a plea. Euodia and Syntyche, two women who labored beside Paul in the gospel, should agree in the Lord. Then the famous passage: “Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice. Let your reasonableness be known to everyone. The Lord is at hand; do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.” Anxiety is replaced by prayer, and the result is peace that stands guard. Paul then directs the mind: “Whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things.”

He thanks them for their gift and reveals the secret of contentment: “I have learned in whatever situation I am to be content. I know how to be brought low, and I know how to abound. In any and every circumstance, I have learned the secret of facing plenty and hunger, abundance and need.” The secret: “I can do all things through him who strengthens me." This verse is often misused as a promise of success in every endeavor. In context, it means Christ gives strength to endure any circumstance, whether abundance or need. He closes with a promise: "My God will supply every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus."

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 3:21-26 and Galatians 2:15-21 expand on a righteousness from God by faith. 1 Corinthians 9:24-27 and 2 Timothy 4:7 also use the race image. Colossians 3:1-4 speaks of citizenship and the heavenly life. Matthew 6:25-34 teaches not to be anxious. 1 Peter 5:7 says to cast all your anxieties on him. 1 Timothy 6:6-10 speaks of godliness with contentment. Hebrews 13:5 says be content with what you have. 2 Corinthians 12:9-10 gives Christ's strength in weakness. Isaiah 26:3 promises perfect peace.

STEP 6

Application

When anxiety comes, turn each worry into a specific prayer with thanksgiving.

Think on the list of verse 8 for ten minutes. Write down things that fit each description.

Ask what you need to count as loss for the sake of knowing Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell Jesus that you count everything as loss compared to knowing him.

Ask him to help you press on toward the goal.

Give him your anxieties with thanksgiving.

DAY 797 · WEEK 114

Colossians 1:1-2:5

Christ above all; the cosmic Christ; the mystery

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 28 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Colossians 1:1-2:5. This is the great passage on the supremacy of Christ. Read verses 15-20 slowly and several times. Then notice how Paul describes his own ministry of suffering and labor.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul wrote Colossians from prison to a church he had not founded, in a town in the Lycus Valley near Laodicea and Hierapolis. Epaphras had planted the church and brought news of a developing heresy. The false teaching mixed Jewish regulations, mystical visions, angel worship, and ascetic practices with a diminished view of Christ. Paul's answer is not a list of rules but a magnificent portrait of Christ as supreme over everything.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "He has delivered us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son" (1:13).
2. "He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation" (1:15).
3. "For by him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible" (1:16).
4. "And he is before all things, and in him all things hold together" (1:17).
5. "And he is the head of the body, the church. He is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, that in everything he might be preeminent" (1:18).
6. "Making peace by the blood of his cross" (1:20).
7. "Christ in you, the hope of glory" (1:27).

8 “In whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge” (2:3).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul greets the church, thanks God for their faith, love, and hope, and prays that they would be filled with the knowledge of God’s will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding, to walk in a manner worthy of the Lord, fully pleasing to him, bearing fruit, increasing in the knowledge of God, strengthened with all power, joyfully giving thanks to the Father. And he states what God has done: “He has delivered us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son, in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins.”

Then the hymn to Christ in verses 15 to 20. In the first stanza, Christ is supreme over creation. “He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation. For by him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities, all things were created through him and for him. And he is before all things, and in him all things hold together.” “Image” means that he perfectly shows God. “Firstborn” is a title of rank and inheritance, not of being created: he is the heir and sovereign over creation, as the creator of it. Everything was made by him, through him, and for him. He holds the universe together. No angel, spirit, or power rivals him.

In the second stanza, Christ is supreme over the new creation. “He is the head of the body, the church. He is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, that in everything he might be preeminent. For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, making peace by the blood of his cross.” The creator is the redeemer. The same Christ who made all things is reconciling all things. The cross is the means of cosmic peace. Notice that “all the fullness of God” dwells in him.

Then Paul applies it to the Colossians: once alienated and hostile in mind, doing evil deeds, they have been reconciled in his body of flesh by his death, “in order to present you holy and blameless and above reproach before him, if indeed you continue in the faith.” Perseverance is the evidence of reality.

Paul describes his own ministry. He rejoices in his sufferings for their sake, “and in my flesh I am filling up what is lacking in Christ’s afflictions for the sake of his body, that is, the church.” This does not mean Christ’s atonement is incomplete; rather, Paul’s sufferings as an apostle extend Christ’s afflictions into the world as the gospel is spread. The mystery now revealed is “Christ in you, the hope of glory.” He proclaims Christ, warning everyone and teaching everyone in all wisdom, that he may present everyone mature in Christ. Chapter 2 begins with his struggle for them, that their hearts may be encouraged, knit together in love, to reach all the riches of full assurance of understanding and of knowing the mystery of God, "in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge."

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1 and Proverbs 8:22-31 stand behind the creation language. John 1:1-3 and Hebrews 1:1-4 are parallel statements. Isaiah 45:18 and Psalm 33:6 speak of God as creator. Revelation 1:5 calls Jesus the firstborn of the dead. Romans 8:19-23 speaks of creation's renewal. Ephesians 1:10 and 2:11-22 speak of uniting all things. 2 Corinthians 5:18-21 speaks of reconciliation. Philippians 2:5-11 is a related hymn. Galatians 2:20 speaks of Christ living in us.

STEP 6

Application

Read Colossians 1:15-20 aloud once a day this week. Let it enlarge your view of Christ.

Where do you feel small in the face of problems? Remember that he holds all things together.

Ask what it means for you that Christ is "preeminent in everything." What area of your life does he not yet lead?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship Jesus as the image of the invisible God.
- Thank him that in him all things hold together.
- Tell him what you want to give him preeminence over.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus."

PHILIPPIANS 4:6-7

REST

Meditation

These verses are Paul's prescription for anxiety. They are written by a man in prison.

"Do not be anxious about anything." The command is wide: about anything. Paul does not say that we will never feel worry, but that we should not live in it. Anxiety divides the mind and assumes that everything depends on us.

"But in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving." The alternative to worry is prayer. Prayer is the general word; supplication is the specific asking for needs. Thanksgiving is included, because it reminds us of God's faithfulness in the past and shifts our focus from what we lack.

“Let your requests be made known to God.” Be specific. God knows already, but he invites us to say it. Bring the actual worries by name.

“And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.” Notice the promise: it is not that the circumstances will necessarily change but that peace will stand guard like a soldier at the gate. It is a peace that does not make sense from the outside. It is found “in Christ Jesus.”

When anxiety rises, pray this verse, and turn each worry into a request with thanks.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you moved from Ephesians into Philippians and Colossians. Psalms 68 and 110 showed the ascended Christ, who leads captives, gives gifts, and sits at God’s right hand as priest-king. Philippians showed joy in prison: the gospel advances through chains, Christ is the model of humility, and God works in us both to will and to work. A doctrinal pause on the Christ hymn considered that Jesus is fully God and fully man in one person, who emptied himself, took the form of a servant, and was exalted to the name above every name. Philippians 3 and 4 showed the surpassing worth of knowing Christ, pressing on toward the goal, praying instead of worrying, and the secret of contentment in Christ who strengthens us. Colossians 1 and 2 presented the supremacy of Christ: image of the invisible God, creator and sustainer of all things, head of the church, reconciler by the blood of his cross, and Christ in us, the hope of glory.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says to be anxious about nothing and to pray about everything. What is one worry you need to turn into a specific prayer right now? Take a few minutes and do it.

Colossians 1:15-20 says Christ is supreme over creation and over the church. Where in your life do you treat Christ as less than preeminent? What would it look like to give him first place?

Philippians 3 says Paul counted all his credentials as loss for the sake of knowing Christ. What do you trust in besides Christ for your standing, identity, or security? What would it look like to let it go?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for being supreme and for being your peace.

Thank him for the peace of God that guards your heart and mind.

Rest in him.

DAY 799 · WEEK 115

Colossians 2:6-3:17

Don't be taken captive; the new self; let Christ's word dwell

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 41 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Colossians 2:6-3:17. Paul warns against being taken captive by empty philosophy and then gives the positive vision: you have died and been raised with Christ, so put off the old and put on the new. Read 3:1-17 slowly, as a portrait of the Christian life.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After exalting Christ in chapter 1, Paul addresses the false teaching in Colosse. It seems to have included regulations about food, drink, festivals, and Sabbaths; visions and worship of angels; and severe treatment of the body. Paul's answer is that all of this is only a shadow, and the substance is Christ. Then he turns to the new life, which is based on union with Christ in his death and resurrection.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "See to it that no one takes you captive by philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition" (2:8).
2. "For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily" (2:9).
3. "By canceling the record of debt that stood against us with its legal demands" (2:14).
4. "These are a shadow of the things to come, but the substance belongs to Christ" (2:17).
5. "If then you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God" (3:1).
6. "For you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God" (3:3).
7. "And above all these put on love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony" (3:14).

8 “Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly, teaching and admonishing one another in all wisdom” (3:16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with the basic instruction: “As you received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in him, rooted and built up in him and established in the faith, just as you were taught, abounding in thanksgiving.” The Christian life continues as it began: with Christ. Then the warning: “See to it that no one takes you captive by philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits of the world, and not according to Christ.” Not all philosophy is wrong, but any teaching that adds to or displaces Christ is empty. The reason: “For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily, and you have been filled in him, who is the head of all rule and authority.” If you have Christ, you have everything.

Next, what Christ has done. In him you were circumcised with a circumcision made without hands, buried with him in baptism and raised with him through faith in the powerful working of God. “And you, who were dead in your trespasses… God made alive together with him, having forgiven us all our trespasses, by canceling the record of debt that stood against us with its legal demands. This he set aside, nailing it to the cross.” The debt-record that condemned us was nailed to the cross. “He disarmed the rulers and authorities and put them to open shame, by triumphing over them in him.” The powers have been defeated.

So Paul says: “Let no one pass judgment on you in questions of food and drink, or with regard to a festival or a new moon or a Sabbath. These are a shadow of the things to come, but the substance belongs to Christ.” The old covenant regulations pointed forward to Christ, and now that the reality has come, we are not bound to the shadow. This is a significant text in understanding the relationship between the covenants. Christians differ on how it bears on the Sabbath, but all agree it clarifies that no ritual observance contributes to our standing before God. Rules that appear wise, like “Do not handle, Do not taste, Do not touch,” have no value in stopping the indulgence of the flesh.

Chapter 3 begins with “If then you have been raised with Christ.” The resurrection has practical consequences. “Seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth. For you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. When Christ who is your life appears, then you also will appear with him in glory.” Our true life is secured in heaven.

Then the practical: “Put to death therefore what is earthly in you: sexual immorality, impurity, passion, evil desire, and covetousness, which is idolatry.” Put away anger, wrath, malice, slander, obscene talk, and lying. These belong to the old self. “Put on then, as God’s chosen ones, holy and beloved, compassionate hearts, kindness, humility, meekness, and patience, bearing with one another and, if one has a complaint against another, forgiving each other; as the Lord has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. And above all these put on love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. And let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts." Finally, "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly, teaching and admonishing one another in all wisdom, singing psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, with thankfulness in your hearts to God. And whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him."

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 6:1-14 speaks of union with Christ in death and resurrection. Ephesians 4:17-32 and Galatians 5:16-26 are parallels on putting off and putting on. Isaiah 61:10 speaks of being clothed in righteousness. Hebrews 8:5, 10:1 describe the law as a shadow. Mark 7:14-23 shows Jesus on clean and unclean. Matthew 6:19-21 says set your treasure in heaven. 1 Peter 2:9 speaks of God's chosen ones. Philippians 3:20-21 speaks of heavenly citizenship. Psalm 119:11 speaks of treasuring the word.

STEP 6

Application

Read Colossians 3:12-17 aloud as a list of clothes. Put on one piece today.

Set your mind on things above for a few minutes at the start of the day.

Ask what "rules" you have made that are not from Christ. Where do you trust a shadow?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that in him the whole fullness of deity dwells, and that you have been filled in him.

Ask him to help you set your mind on things above.

Ask him to let his word dwell in you richly.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 115

COLOSSIANS 3:17

DAY 800 · WEEK 115

Colossians 3:18-4:18

Household codes; final greetings

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 26 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Colossians 3:18-4:18. Paul gives instructions for households and for the church's witness, then ends with a long list of greetings. Notice the Christ-centered grounds of each command and the picture of the church as a network of friends and coworkers.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul has described the new life in Christ in general terms. Now he applies it to the most ordinary relationships of daily life: marriage, parents and children, work. He addresses each party in the relationship, treating all as accountable to the Lord. This is a significant feature: the instructions about households, which echo Ephesians 5 and 6, give moral responsibility to all, including children and slaves, and warn masters. The letter ends with a list of names that shows the early church as a living community.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Husbands, love your wives, and do not be harsh with them" (3:19).
2. "Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men" (3:23).
3. "Masters, treat your bondservants justly and fairly, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven" (4:1).
4. "Continue steadfastly in prayer, being watchful in it with thanksgiving" (4:2).
5. "At the same time pray also for us, that God may open to us a door for the word, to declare the mystery of Christ" (4:3).
6. "Let your speech always be gracious, seasoned with salt, so that you may know how you ought to answer each person" (4:6).

7. “Luke the beloved physician greets you” (4:14).

8. “Remember my chains. Grace be with you” (4:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The household code in Colossians is shorter than in Ephesians but follows the same pattern. “Wives, submit to your husbands, as is fitting in the Lord. Husbands, love your wives, and do not be harsh with them.” The word for “harsh” means bitter or embittered. The husband’s role is love, not domination. “Children, obey your parents in everything, for this pleases the Lord. Fathers, do not provoke your children, lest they become discouraged.” Discouragement is a real danger in children, and fathers are responsible not to cause it.

To slaves, Paul gives the longest instruction. “Bondservants, obey in everything those who are your earthly masters, not with eye-service, as people-pleasers, but with sincerity of heart, fearing the Lord. Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men, knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward. You are serving the Lord Christ.” This is a transformative vision of work, which we will explore on the doctrinal pause. “For the wrongdoer will be paid back for the wrong he has done, and there is no partiality.” Then to masters: “treat your bondservants justly and fairly, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven.” Paul does not endorse slavery. He addresses people within a social system and weakens it from within, as Philemon will show.

Paul then calls the church to prayer and witness. “Continue steadfastly in prayer, being watchful in it with thanksgiving.” He asks for prayer for himself and his coworkers: “that God may open to us a door for the word, to declare the mystery of Christ, on account of which I am in prison, that I may make it clear, which is how I ought to speak.” Imprisoned, he does not pray for release but for opportunities to preach. And the church’s own witness: “Walk in wisdom toward outsiders, making the best use of the time. Let your speech always be gracious, seasoned with salt, so that you may know how you ought to answer each person.” Gracious, not flat; seasoned, not bland.

The closing section is a roll call. Tychicus, “a beloved brother and faithful minister and fellow servant in the Lord,” will tell them everything about Paul, with Onesimus, “who is one of you.” Aristarchus, Mark (the cousin of Barnabas, now restored to Paul’s favor), Jesus called Justus. Epaphras, who is “always struggling on your behalf in his prayers.” Luke the beloved physician, and Demas, who will later desert him (2 Timothy 4:10). Nympha and the church in her house. And a message for Archippus: “See that you fulfill the ministry that you have received in the Lord.” The letter ends: “I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. Remember my chains. Grace be with you.” Behind the doctrine are people with names and stories.

STEP 5

Connection

Ephesians 5:22 to 6:9 is the parallel. 1 Peter 2:18 to 3:7 also addresses households. Philemon applies the teaching to a specific case. Acts 12:12 and 15:36-41 tell of Mark. Acts 20:4 mentions Tychicus. 2 Timothy 4:10-11 mentions Demas and Luke. Philemon 23-24 repeats several of these names. Revelation 3:14-22 addresses Laodicea. Proverbs 15:1 and 25:11 speak of wise speech. Luke 12:35-48 speaks of service to the master.

STEP 6

Application

Name the people in your life whom you serve in a relationship of authority or dependence. Treat each as someone who answers to the Lord.

Pray for a door for the gospel with someone this week. Pray also for your speech to be gracious and salty.

Write a note of thanks to a faithful fellow worker, like Tychicus.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to help you do whatever you do heartily, as for him.
- Ask him to bless your household and your workplace.
- Ask him to give you wisdom and gracious words.

1 Corinthians 7:17-24; Colossians 3:22-4:1

Ordinary work as service to God

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Doctrine · 15 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Corinthians 7:17-24 and Colossians 3:22-4:1. Today is a doctrinal pause on ordinary work as service to God, also called vocation or calling. Notice that Paul speaks to people whose jobs were not their choice, and he still says that they serve the Lord Christ.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Most Christians spend most of their waking hours at work, in the home, or in the community, not in church. What does the gospel say about that? In the first century, a large portion of believers were slaves or workers in humble occupations. Paul does not tell them that real service to God is elsewhere. He tells them that their ordinary labor, done for Christ, is service to God.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Only let each person lead the life that the Lord has assigned to him, and to which God has called him” (1 Corinthians 7:17).
2. “For he who was called in the Lord as a bondservant is a freedman of the Lord” (1 Corinthians 7:22).
3. “You were bought with a price; do not become slaves of men” (1 Corinthians 7:23).
4. “So, brothers, in whatever condition each was called, there let him remain with God” (1 Corinthians 7:24).

5. “Not with eye-service, as people-pleasers, but with sincerity of heart, fearing the Lord” (Colossians 3:22).
6. “Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men” (Colossians 3:23).
7. “You are serving the Lord Christ” (Colossians 3:24).
8. “Masters, treat your bondservants justly and fairly, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven” (Colossians 4:1).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The doctrine of vocation says that God calls his people not only to salvation but also to places of service in the world, and that ordinary work is a way of loving God and neighbor. The word “calling” in the New Testament primarily refers to God’s call to salvation in Christ, as in 1 Corinthians 7:17-24, where Paul speaks of the condition in which each was called. By extension, Christians have understood that God also places us in occupations, families, churches, and communities where we serve him.

During the Reformation, Martin Luther emphasized that the farmer, the mother, the magistrate, and the cobbler serve God as much as the monk or priest. Before, many believed that spiritual work was reserved for clergy. Luther said that God milks cows through the hands of milkmaids. The Reformers taught that all legitimate work is a calling, and that we serve God by serving others in it. In the Reformed tradition, this became a doctrine of the cultural mandate: from Genesis 1:28 and 2:15, human beings were made to work, tend, and cultivate the creation. Work was part of paradise; the fall made it toilsome (Genesis 3:17-19), but redemption restores its dignity.

Three truths follow. First, the Lord is the real boss. “You are serving the Lord Christ.” This gives dignity to menial jobs and removes the excuse of poor management, since our ultimate employer sees and rewards. Second, work is for others. Ephesians 4:28 says the thief should work with his hands “so that he may have something to share with anyone in need.” Work serves the neighbor and the common good. Third, our identity is not in our work. We are first called to Christ. This frees us from both pride in achievement and despair in failure.

The passage on slavery requires care. Paul is not endorsing slavery as an institution. The New Testament never commands it and regards the slave trade as sin (1 Timothy 1:10). He gives instructions to people living within it. At the same time, he undermines it: slaves are addressed as moral agents with an inheritance from the Lord, masters are told they have a Master in heaven, and in 1 Corinthians 7:21 he adds, “if you can gain your freedom, avail yourself of the opportunity." Philemon, which you will read soon, calls a master to receive a slave as a beloved brother. The Christian gospel, taken to its conclusion, led believers to oppose slavery.

Christians also differ on how much to emphasize staying in one's condition (1 Corinthians 7:20, 24) versus pursuing change. Paul's point is that your condition does not determine your standing with God, not that you can never change it.

STEP 4

Interpretation

In 1 Corinthians 7, Paul has been addressing marriage and singleness. He gives a general rule: "Only let each person lead the life that the Lord has assigned to him, and to which God has called him. This is my rule in all the churches." Circumcised or uncircumcised, it does not matter; keeping God's commandments is what matters. "Each one should remain in the condition in which he was called." Were you a slave when called? "Do not be concerned about it. (But if you can gain your freedom, avail yourself of the opportunity.) For he who was called in the Lord as a bondservant is a freedman of the Lord. Likewise he who was free when called is a bondservant of Christ. You were bought with a price; do not become slaves of men." The gospel gives a new status that cannot be taken away. A slave is the Lord's freedman; a free person is Christ's slave. The social ranking is secondary.

In Colossians 3, Paul turns to practical conduct. "Bondservants, obey in everything those who are your earthly masters, not with eye-service, as people-pleasers, but with sincerity of heart, fearing the Lord." Eye-service is working only when the boss is watching. "Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men, knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward. You are serving the Lord Christ." The slave had no legal rights, but Paul tells him that he has an inheritance, which the free would normally receive. The reward is not wages but the inheritance of the sons of God. In a world where slaves were considered tools, this was radical.

The principle applies to every honest job. Whatever you do, do it heartily. The Christian employee, student, parent, teacher, cleaner, or executive works for a higher Lord. This changes how we work (with diligence), why we work (for his glory and others' good), and how we rest (in his provision). Mundane tasks are holy when done to the Lord.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:28 and 2:15 give the work mandate. Genesis 3:17-19 describes the toil after the fall. Exodus 31:1-6 describes the Spirit-filled craftsmen. Proverbs 6:6-11 and 22:29 praise diligent work. Ephesians 4:28 and 6:5-9 speak of work and slaves. 2 Thessalonians 3:6-12 warns against idleness. 1 Corinthians 10:31 says do all to the glory of God. Philemon is the test case. Psalm 90:17 prays for the work of our hands to be established. Matthew 25:14-30 teaches faithfulness in what we have been given.

STEP 6

Application

Do your next task today as if Christ were your employer. Notice what changes.

Thank God for the occupation he has given you, even if it's imperfect.

Think about someone whose work is invisible, like a janitor or a caregiver. Honor them this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the work he has given you, and tell him what it is.
- Ask him to help you work heartily, as for the Lord.
- Ask him to show you how your ordinary work can serve him and others.

DAY 802 · WEEK 115

1 Thessalonians 1:1-3:13

A model church; Paul's care; the apostle's heart

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 41 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Thessalonians 1:1-3:13. This is probably Paul's earliest letter. Read it as a warm letter from a spiritual father to young believers. Notice the model they set, the way Paul describes his ministry, and the way he longs to see them.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul planted the church in Thessalonica, the capital of Macedonia, on his second journey (Acts 17:1-9). He stayed only a few weeks before being driven out by a mob. Anxious about the young believers, he sent Timothy back; when Timothy returned with good news, Paul wrote this letter from Corinth around AD 50. It is full of encouragement, with gratitude, defense of his ministry against slander, and comfort. The Thessalonians were facing persecution and questions about those who had died.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ" (1:3).
2. "Because our gospel came to you not only in word, but also in power and in the Holy Spirit and with full conviction" (1:5).
3. "How you turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven" (1:9-10).
4. "But we were gentle among you, like a nursing mother taking care of her own children" (2:7).
5. "We were ready to share with you not only the gospel of God but also our own selves" (2:8).

6. “You accepted it not as the word of men but as what it really is, the word of God, which is at work in you believers” (2:13).
7. “For now we live, if you are standing fast in the Lord” (3:8).
8. “And may the Lord make you increase and abound in love for one another and for all” (3:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The letter opens with thanksgiving. Paul remembers their “work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope,” the great triad of faith, love, and hope. He knows God chose them because the gospel came “not only in word, but also in power and in the Holy Spirit and with full conviction.” They became imitators of Paul and the Lord, receiving the word in much affliction with the joy of the Holy Spirit, and became an example to all the believers in Macedonia and Achaia. The word of the Lord sounded forth from them. Everyone reports how they “turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, Jesus who delivers us from the wrath to come.” A model church: converted, serving, and waiting.

In chapter 2, Paul describes his ministry. The accusations probably were that he was a charlatan who preached for money or praise. He replies with the facts: they were bold to speak the gospel in spite of suffering at Philippi. They did not speak with error or impure motives or deceit. They were not trying to please men but God who tests the heart. They did not use flattery or greed or seek glory. “But we were gentle among you, like a nursing mother taking care of her own children.” Then, as a father, “exhorting each one of you and encouraging you and charging you to walk in a manner worthy of God, who calls you into his own kingdom and glory.” Paul’s ministry combines maternal tenderness and paternal firmness. They worked night and day so as not to burden anyone.

“And we also thank God constantly for this, that when you received the word of God, which you heard from us, you accepted it not as the word of men but as what it really is, the word of God, which is at work in you believers.” This is a key statement about preaching: faithful preaching of Scripture is the word of God. The Thessalonians suffered from their own countrymen, as the churches in Judea did from the Jews. Paul longed to see them and was hindered by Satan. “For what is our hope or joy or crown of boasting before our Lord Jesus at his coming? Is it not you?”

In chapter 3, Paul explains that he sent Timothy to strengthen them in their faith, lest they be shaken by afflictions. When Timothy returned with news of their faith and love, Paul was comforted. “For now we live, if you are standing fast in the Lord.” The prayer: “Now may our God and Father himself, and our Lord Jesus, direct our way to you, and may the Lord make you increase and abound in love for one another and for all, as we do for you, so that he may establish your hearts blameless in holiness before our God and Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his saints." Ministry is love expressed in prayer and labor.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 17:1-15 tells of the Thessalonian mission. Philippians 4:15-16 mentions their gifts. 2 Corinthians 11:9 records provision from Macedonia. 1 Corinthians 13:13 pairs faith, hope, and love. Hebrews 4:12 speaks of the word of God living and active. 2 Timothy 3:16-17 teaches that all Scripture is God-breathed. Matthew 24:13 and John 15:18-20 speak of enduring persecution. Romans 8:35-39 assures of Christ's love in suffering. Colossians 1:3-8 reflects similar thanksgiving.

STEP 6

Application

Thank someone who led you to Christ or taught you in the faith. Tell them.

Ask whether you are a model for others, in how you turned to God, serve, and wait.

Receive Scripture today as the word of God, which is at work in you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for people who work in faith, labor in love, and endure in hope.

Ask him to help you be that kind of person.

Thank him for those who showed you how.

1 Thessalonians 4:13-18; Matthew 24:30-31; Revelation 1:7

The Return of Christ

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18, Matthew 24:30-31, and Revelation 1:7. Today is a doctrinal pause on the return of Christ. Notice how Paul comforts grieving believers, and how Jesus and John describe his coming.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The first Christians lived in expectation of Christ's return. The Thessalonians, new believers, were distressed because some of their number had died before he returned. Would they miss out? Paul writes to correct their ignorance and to comfort them. The second coming of Christ is one of the most frequently repeated promises of the New Testament, and it shapes how Christians live, pray, grieve, and hope.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "But we do not want you to be uninformed, brothers, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope" (1 Thessalonians 4:13).
2. "For since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep" (1 Thessalonians 4:14).
3. "For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a cry of command, with the voice of an archangel, and with the trumpet of God" (1 Thessalonians 4:16).
4. "Then we who are alive, who are left, will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so we will always be with the Lord" (1 Thessalonians 4:17).

5. “Therefore encourage one another with these words” (1 Thessalonians 4:18).
6. “Then will appear in heaven the sign of the Son of Man” (Matthew 24:30).
7. “And he will send out his angels with a loud trumpet call, and they will gather his elect from the four winds” (Matthew 24:31).
8. “Behold, he is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see him” (Revelation 1:7).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The return of Christ, often called the second coming, is the promise that Jesus will come again, personally, visibly, bodily, and gloriously, at the end of the age, to raise the dead, judge the world, and establish his kingdom in its fullness. The angels said at the ascension, “This Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven” (Acts 1:11). It is the “blessed hope” of the church (Titus 2:13).

Several features are clear. It will be personal: “the Lord himself will descend.” It will be visible and public: “every eye will see him.” It will be glorious, with a cry of command, the voice of an archangel, and the trumpet of God. It will be sudden: “like a thief in the night.” The timing is unknown: not even the angels or the Son know the day or hour (Matthew 24:36). Therefore we are to be ready and watchful. It will bring the resurrection of believers and the transformation of those still alive. It will bring judgment on the living and the dead, and it will complete salvation: the new creation, the end of death, and God dwelling with his people.

Christians have held different views about the details, especially regarding the “rapture” (being caught up in the air) and the millennium. Some hold that Christ will return before a thousand-year reign (premillennialism), with differing views on whether the church goes through the great tribulation. Others hold that the millennium is the present reign of Christ in heaven and with his church (amillennialism). Others hold that the church will bring about a golden age before his return (postmillennialism). These differences matter less than the shared hope: Christ is coming, visibly, to raise the dead, judge, and make all things new. We should hold such details with humility and avoid date-setting.

The doctrine has practical effects. It comforts the grieving: we will see our loved ones in Christ again. It motivates holiness: “everyone who thus hopes in him purifies himself as he is pure” (1 John 3:3). It encourages mission, because the gospel must be preached to all nations before the end. It also sobers us because judgment is coming. And it makes us watchful and active.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul writes, “We do not want you to be uninformed, brothers, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope.” Christians do grieve, but not as those without hope. “For since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep.” The resurrection of Jesus is the guarantee of ours.

Then he explains by “a word from the Lord”: “We who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, will not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a cry of command, with the voice of an archangel, and with the trumpet of God. And the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive, who are left, will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so we will always be with the Lord.” The picture is of a welcoming party: when a king visited a city, citizens went out to meet him and escort him back in. We rise to meet the Lord and come with him. “Therefore encourage one another with these words.” The doctrine of Christ’s return is meant for comfort.

Jesus himself speaks in Matthew 24 of the sign of the Son of Man appearing in heaven, and all the tribes of the earth mourning as they see the Son of Man coming on the clouds with power and great glory. He will send out his angels with a loud trumpet call, and they will gather his elect from the four winds. This echoes Daniel 7:13-14. For those who have rejected him, his coming means mourning; for his people, it means gathering.

John, in Revelation 1:7, combines Daniel 7:13 and Zechariah 12:10: “Behold, he is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see him, even those who pierced him, and all tribes of the earth will wail on account of him. Even so. Amen.” The same Jesus who was pierced will return. The right response is to say “Amen” and “Come, Lord Jesus.”

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 7:13-14 and Zechariah 12:10 stand behind the language. Acts 1:9-11 gives the promise at the ascension. Matthew 24:36 to 25:46 includes Jesus’ teaching on being ready. John 14:1-3 promises, “I will come again and take you to myself.” 1 Corinthians 15:51-58 describes the change. Philippians 3:20-21 speaks of our heavenly citizenship. Titus 2:11-14 speaks of the blessed hope. 2 Peter 3:3-13 answers scoffers. Revelation 19:11-16 and 22:20 describe his coming and the church’s cry.

STEP 6

Application

Share verse 18 with someone who is grieving: “Encourage one another with these words.”

Ask whether you live as if Christ may come today. What would you change?

Pray, “Come, Lord Jesus,” as part of your prayers this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that he will return with a shout.

Tell him how you feel about his coming, and ask him to make you ready.

Ask him to give you hope and comfort for those who have died in him.

DAY 804 · WEEK 115

1 Thessalonians 4:1-5:28

Holy living; the coming of the Lord; final exhortations

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 46 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Thessalonians 4:1-5:28. Paul gives instruction on holy living, brotherly love, the day of the Lord, and a series of brief final exhortations. Notice how many of the commands are short and practical.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Having celebrated the church and defended his ministry, Paul turns to instruction. He urges the Thessalonians to live in holiness, to love one another, and to work quietly. Then, after the comfort of 4:13-18, he adds a warning and encouragement about the day of the Lord: how to live in the meantime. The letter ends with a rapid-fire list of commands that summarize the Christian life.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “And to aspire to live quietly, and to mind your own affairs, and to work with your hands” (4:11).
2. “For you yourselves are fully aware that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night” (5:2).
3. “But since we belong to the day, let us be sober, having put on the breastplate of faith and love, and for a helmet the hope of salvation” (5:8).
4. “For God has not destined us for wrath, but to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ” (5:9).
5. “Therefore encourage one another and build one another up, just as you are doing” (5:11).

6. “Rejoice always, pray without ceasing, give thanks in all circumstances” (5:16-18).
7. “Test everything; hold fast what is good” (5:21).
8. “He who calls you is faithful; he will surely do it” (5:24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 4 opens with a call to please God more and more. “For this is the will of God, your sanctification: that you abstain from sexual immorality; that each of you know how to control his own body in holiness and honor.” God has called us in holiness, and he gives his Holy Spirit. Regarding brotherly love, Paul says they have been taught by God and are doing it, but to do so more and more. He adds a practical word: “aspire to live quietly, and to mind your own affairs, and to work with your hands, as we instructed you, so that you may walk properly before outsiders and be dependent on no one.” Some had apparently stopped working in expectation of Christ’s return. Hope does not cancel responsibility.

After the passage on the return of Christ (see the doctrinal pause), chapter 5 addresses “the times and the seasons.” Believers do not need instruction about dates, “for you yourselves are fully aware that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night. While people are saying, There is peace and security, then sudden destruction will come upon them.” But believers are not in darkness. “For you are all children of light, children of the day.” So the response: “Let us not sleep, as others do, but let us keep awake and be sober.” The armor is faith and love as a breastplate and the hope of salvation as a helmet. “For God has not destined us for wrath, but to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us so that whether we are awake or asleep we might live with him. Therefore encourage one another and build one another up.”

Then a rapid series of commands. Respect those who labor among you and are over you in the Lord; esteem them highly in love because of their work. Be at peace among yourselves. Admonish the idle, encourage the fainthearted, help the weak, be patient with all. “See that no one repays anyone evil for evil, but always seek to do good to one another and to everyone.” And the famous three: “Rejoice always, pray without ceasing, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you.” These are not a requirement to feel happy always but a settled posture toward God. “Do not quench the Spirit. Do not despise prophecies, but test everything; hold fast what is good. Abstain from every form of evil.”

The prayer: “Now may the God of peace himself sanctify you completely, and may your whole spirit and soul and body be kept blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. He who calls you is faithful; he will surely do it.” Holiness is ultimately God’s work. The letter ends: “Pray for us. Greet all the brothers with a holy kiss. I put you under oath before the Lord to have this letter read to all the brothers. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.”

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 19:2 and 1 Peter 1:15-16 call for holiness. John 13:34-35 gives the new commandment. 2 Thessalonians 3:6-13 deals with idleness. Matthew 24:42-44 compares the coming to a thief. Ephesians 6:13-17 describes the armor. Philippians 4:4-7 is a parallel on joy and prayer. Luke 18:1 and Colossians 4:2 speak of constant prayer. 1 John 4:1 says to test the spirits. Hebrews 13:7, 17 speak of leaders. Philippians 1:6 and Jude 24 assure of God’s keeping.

STEP 6

Application

Pick one of the short commands in 5:14-22 and practice it today.

Practice thanks in all circumstances: list three things for which to give thanks right now, even in hard times.

Ask what “quiet” work you can do faithfully, and do it as for the Lord.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to sanctify you completely and keep you blameless.
- Ask him to help you encourage someone with the hope of his coming.
- Tell him what you want to hold on to as you wait.

REST

Meditation

This verse is a summary of a whole way of life.

"And whatever you do." The scope is total. Not just the religious parts of life, but everything. Eating, working, speaking, parenting, driving, resting.

"In word or deed." Our speech and our actions both. Together they make up the whole of what we show the world.

"Do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus." To act in someone's name is to act on his authority and on his behalf. A Christian is an ambassador. We represent Christ in every place. We ask: Would he put his name on this? Does this honor him?

"Giving thanks to God the Father through him." The attitude is gratitude. Everything we have comes from the Father through the Son. Thanksgiving turns ordinary tasks into worship.

This verse removes the divide between sacred and secular. A meal can be a prayer, a job can be worship, a conversation can be ministry.

When your day feels ordinary or scattered, say this verse. Offer it all in his name, with thanks.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished Colossians and read 1 Thessalonians. Colossians 2 and 3 warned against empty philosophy and human tradition and taught that the old covenant regulations were a shadow whose substance is Christ. Because we have been raised with Christ, we seek the things above, put off the old self, put on compassion, kindness, humility, and love, and let the word of Christ dwell in us richly. Chapter 3 and 4 applied this to households, work, prayer, and speech. A doctrinal pause considered ordinary work as service to the Lord Christ. First Thessalonians presented a model church that turned from idols to serve the living God and wait for his Son, a pastor's tender heart, comfort for those who grieve, and a series of final commands: rejoice always, pray without ceasing, give thanks in all circumstances. A doctrinal pause on the return of Christ affirmed that he will come again to raise the dead and gather his people.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Colossians 3:23 says to work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men. What task in your week do you do half-heartedly? How might you do it differently if you remembered who your real Master is?

Paul told the Thessalonians not to grieve as those who have no hope. Who is someone you could comfort with the hope of Christ's return and the resurrection? What will you say or do?

First Thessalonians 5:16-18 gives three short commands: rejoice, pray, give thanks. Which is hardest for you right now? What might help you practice it?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Offer what you do this week to God, giving thanks to the Father through Jesus.

Thank him that Christ is coming.

Rest in his faithfulness.

DAY 806 · WEEK 116

Psalm 27

I believe I shall look upon the goodness of the LORD

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Psalm · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 27. It is a psalm of David that begins with confidence and moves into a plea. Notice the one thing David asks for, and how the psalm ends with an exhortation to wait.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 27 is a psalm of David, probably from a time of danger from enemies. It has two parts: verses 1 to 6 are a song of trust, and verses 7 to 14 are a prayer for help. It fits our reading in 1 Thessalonians, where believers faced persecution, and in the Prison Epistles, where Paul writes from chains. The psalm teaches us that confidence in God and honest prayer belong together.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear?” (v. 1).
2. “Though an army encamp against me, my heart shall not fear” (v. 3).
3. “One thing have I asked of the LORD, that will I seek after: that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life” (v. 4).
4. “To gaze upon the beauty of the LORD and to inquire in his temple” (v. 4).
5. “For he will hide me in his shelter in the day of trouble” (v. 5).
6. “You have said, Seek my face. My heart says to you, Your face, LORD, do I seek” (v. 8).
7. “For my father and my mother have forsaken me, but the LORD will take me in” (v. 10).
8. “I believe that I shall look upon the goodness of the LORD in the land of the living!” (v. 13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David begins with three titles for God: light, salvation, and stronghold. “The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The LORD is the stronghold of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?” Light dispels darkness, salvation rescues, stronghold protects. When evildoers assail him to eat up his flesh, they stumble and fall. “Though an army encamp against me, my heart shall not fear; though war arise against me, yet I will be confident.” The confidence is not in himself but in the LORD.

Then the heart of the psalm: “One thing have I asked of the LORD, that will I seek after: that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to gaze upon the beauty of the LORD and to inquire in his temple.” Of all that he could ask, David asks for one thing: God’s presence. This is the great desire of the believer. In the temple, he gazes on the beauty of the LORD. The dwelling place of God is the source of safety: “For he will hide me in his shelter in the day of trouble; he will conceal me under the cover of his tent; he will lift me high upon a rock.” The result is joy: “I will offer in his tent sacrifices with shouts of joy; I will sing and make melody to the LORD.”

The second half is a prayer. “Hear, O LORD, when I cry aloud; be gracious to me and answer me!” David recalls God’s call: “You have said, Seek my face. My heart says to you, Your face, LORD, do I seek. Hide not your face from me.” The invitation to seek God’s face is God’s own. We pray because he invited us. Even if his parents forsake him, which is a deep fear, “the LORD will take me in.” God is a better father than any earthly one. He asks to be taught God’s way and led on a level path, because of his enemies, who breathe violence.

The psalm ends with a statement of faith and an exhortation. “I believe that I shall look upon the goodness of the LORD in the land of the living!” The believer expects to see the goodness of God now, not only in the age to come. And then David turns to us: “Wait for the LORD; be strong, and let your heart take courage; wait for the LORD!” Waiting is the posture of trust. In Christ, our greatest desire is met. He is the true temple, where God dwells with us. He is the light of the world. The beauty of the LORD is seen “in the face of Jesus Christ” (2 Corinthians 4:6).

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 84:1-4 also speaks of longing for God’s dwelling. Psalm 63:1-3 and 42:1-2 speak of thirst for God. John 1:14 and 8:12 present Christ as the dwelling and the light. 2 Corinthians 4:6 speaks of seeing God’s glory in Christ’s face. Isaiah 49:15 speaks of God’s care exceeding a mother's. Isaiah 40:31 promises renewal to those who wait. Romans 8:31-39 assures us that nothing can separate us from God's love. Hebrews 10:19-22 invites us into God's presence. Revelation 21:22-23 pictures God as the temple and Lamb as the light.

STEP 6

Application

Ask the question: if I could ask for one thing from God, what would it be? Let it be to know him.

Take five minutes to gaze on the beauty of the LORD: read a passage about Christ and meditate on his character.

Wait for the LORD today in a specific matter, and ask him to strengthen your heart.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what you fear, and say, "The LORD is my light and salvation."

Ask him for the one thing: to dwell with him and see his beauty.

Wait for him and take courage.

DAY 807 · WEEK 116

Psalm 138

I give you thanks with my whole heart

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Psalm · 8 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 138. David gives thanks with his whole heart. Notice that his praise is directed to the LORD before other gods, and that it is based on God's steadfast love, his faithfulness, and his answer to prayer.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 138 begins a final group of psalms by David (138 to 145). It is a thanksgiving psalm, offered in response to an answered prayer. David praises God "before the gods," that is, in the presence of the pagan powers and idols, and expects that all the kings of the earth will join. It echoes the Prison Epistles' theme that Christ is exalted above all powers.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I give you thanks, O LORD, with my whole heart; before the gods I sing your praise" (v. 1).
2. "For you have exalted above all things your name and your word" (v. 2).
3. "On the day I called, you answered me; my strength of soul you increased" (v. 3).
4. "All the kings of the earth shall give you thanks, O LORD" (v. 4).
5. "For though the LORD is high, he regards the lowly" (v. 6).
6. "Though I walk in the midst of trouble, you preserve my life" (v. 7).
7. "The LORD will fulfill his purpose for me; your steadfast love, O LORD, endures forever" (v. 8).
8. "Do not forsake the work of your hands" (v. 8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with wholehearted praise. David refuses to give thanks halfway. He sings "before the gods," which probably refers to the gods of the nations or the heavenly powers. Even in the presence of rivals, he praises the LORD. He bows toward the holy temple and gives thanks to God's name "for your steadfast love and your faithfulness, for you have exalted above all things your name and your word." God's name is his revealed character, and his word is his promise. Both are supremely reliable.

Verse 3 is a testimony: "On the day I called, you answered me; my strength of soul you increased." The answer was not necessarily the removal of trouble but strength within it. The effect of God's answer extends outward: "All the kings of the earth shall give you thanks, O LORD, for they have heard the words of your mouth, and they shall sing of the ways of the LORD, for great is the glory of the LORD." David's experience of God's faithfulness is a testimony to the nations. This is a missionary note. One day, kings will sing the praises of the LORD.

Verse 6 holds a great truth: "For though the LORD is high, he regards the lowly, but the haughty he knows from afar." God is exalted, and yet he looks on the humble. The proud cannot approach him. This is the theme of the Christ hymn in Philippians 2. The one who humbled himself is now exalted, and God looks on those who humble themselves.

David then expresses trust in future danger: "Though I walk in the midst of trouble, you preserve my life; you stretch out your hand against the wrath of my enemies, and your right hand delivers me." The key promise is verse 8: "The LORD will fulfill his purpose for me." This echoes Philippians 1:6: he who began a good work will bring it to completion. God's purposes for us cannot be thwarted. Based on God's steadfast love that endures forever, David prays, "Do not forsake the work of your hands." It is a prayer of confidence, not doubt: because God has made us and begun a work in us, we ask him to finish it.

STEP 5

Connection

Philippians 1:6 and Psalm 57:2 speak of God fulfilling his purpose. Psalm 100 and 136 emphasize steadfast love. Psalm 72:11 and 102:15 speak of kings worshiping. Isaiah 57:15 says God dwells with the contrite and lowly. James 4:6 and 1 Peter 5:5 say God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble. Luke 1:48-52 is Mary's song of the lowly lifted. Jeremiah 29:11 speaks of God's plans. Revelation 21:24-26 pictures kings bringing glory into the city. Ephesians 2:10 speaks of us as God's workmanship.

STEP 6

Application

Give thanks to God today with your whole heart, with no reservations.

Recall a day you called and he answered. Tell it to someone.

Pray verse 8 over a project or relationship: LORD, fulfill your purpose here.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Give God thanks with your whole heart, naming something.

Thank him that he exalted his word above his name.

Ask him to complete what he has begun in you.

DAY 808 · WEEK 116

Psalm 139:13-24

You formed my inward parts

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 139:13-24. You may have read the first half before. Read this section on God's formation of us in the womb and the prayer to be searched and led. Notice how awe and honest self-examination fit together.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 139 is one of the most intimate psalms, celebrating God's knowledge, presence, and creative care. The first twelve verses describe how God knows us completely and is present everywhere. Verses 13 to 18 describe how God made us. Verses 19 to 22 are an outburst against the wicked. Verses 23 and 24 are a closing prayer for God to search the speaker's own heart. It connects with the Prison Epistles' emphasis that we are God's workmanship, known and led by him.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For you formed my inward parts; you knitted me together in my mother's womb" (v. 13).
2. "I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made" (v. 14).
3. "My frame was not hidden from you, when I was being made in secret" (v. 15).
4. "In your book were written, every one of them, the days that were formed for me, when as yet there was none of them" (v. 16).
5. "How precious to me are your thoughts, O God! How vast is the sum of them!" (v. 17).
6. "If I would count them, they are more than the sand" (v. 18).
7. "Search me, O God, and know my heart! Try me and know my thoughts!" (v. 23).

8 “And lead me in the way everlasting!” (v. 24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David marvels at his own creation. “For you formed my inward parts; you knitted me together in my mother’s womb.” God is a weaver and an artist. “I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made. Wonderful are your works; my soul knows it very well.” The human being is a marvel of design, and knowing this produces praise. This psalm is often cited for the dignity of life before birth. The Bible regards the unborn as persons known and formed by God. Every human life is intentionally made.

“My frame was not hidden from you, when I was being made in secret, intricately woven in the depths of the earth.” The “depths of the earth” is a poetic image for the womb, an echo of Adam’s formation from the earth. “Your eyes saw my unformed substance; in your book were written, every one of them, the days that were formed for me, when as yet there was none of them.” God’s knowledge extends to our days before we have lived them. This is not a statement of fatalism but of providence. Every day belongs to God.

The reaction: “How precious to me are your thoughts, O God! How vast is the sum of them! If I would count them, they are more than the sand. I awake, and I am still with you.” Dazed by God’s greatness, David finds himself still in God’s presence. Verses 19 to 22 give a strong expression of hatred of God’s enemies: “Do you not hate those who hate you, O LORD?” This sounds jarring, but David’s motive is zeal for God, not private spite. Christians read this in light of Jesus’ command to love our enemies. We hate sin and pray for sinners.

Then the psalm turns from the enemies to himself. “Search me, O God, and know my heart! Try me and know my thoughts! And see if there be any grievous way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting!” After praising God’s knowledge of him, David invites that knowledge to examine him. He does not fear being exposed because he trusts the one who exposes. He wants to be corrected. “The way everlasting” is the way that leads to life, the path of faithfulness. This is a good prayer for each morning.

In Christ, this prayer is safe. Christ knows our sins and yet bore them. He is the way everlasting (John 14:6). The one who searches us is the one who loves us.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 1:5 says God knew the prophet before forming him in the womb. Job 10:8-12 and Psalm 119:73 also speak of God’s making. Ecclesiastes 11:5 compares the mystery of the womb to God’s works. Luke 1:39-45 mentions John leaping in the womb. Psalm 51:6 and Hebrews 4:12-13 speak of God's searching knowledge. Psalm 19:12-14 prays for cleansing from hidden faults. Romans 8:29 and Ephesians 1:4 speak of God's knowledge before creation. John 14:6 says Jesus is the way. Matthew 5:43-48 teaches love of enemies.

STEP 6

Application

Thank God today for how you were made. Name something about yourself you've struggled to accept.

Pray verses 23 and 24 at the start of the day, and be ready for the answer.

Treat every person you meet as someone fearfully and wonderfully made, including the unborn and the elderly.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that you are fearfully and wonderfully made.
- Ask him to search your heart and lead you in the everlasting way.
- Tell him what anxious thoughts you want him to know.

DAY 809 · WEEK 116

2 Thessalonians 1:1-3:18

The man of lawlessness; stand firm; work while you wait

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Thessalonians 1:1-3:18. This short letter was written soon after the first. Read it for its three movements: encouragement in persecution (chapter 1), correction about the day of the Lord (chapter 2), and instruction about idleness (chapter 3).

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

A few months after the first letter, Paul learned that the Thessalonians were still suffering and had become confused about the day of the Lord. Someone had claimed, perhaps in a letter allegedly from Paul, that the day of the Lord had already come. Some stopped working, expecting Christ at any moment. Paul writes to comfort the persecuted, correct the misunderstanding, and tell the idle to work.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “To grant relief to you who are afflicted as well as to us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with his mighty angels” (1:7).
2. “Let no one deceive you in any way. For that day will not come, unless the rebellion comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed” (2:3).
3. “And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will kill with the breath of his mouth” (2:8).
4. “Because God chose you as the firstfruits to be saved, through sanctification by the Spirit and belief in the truth” (2:13).
5. “So then, brothers, stand firm and hold to the traditions that you were taught by us” (2:15).

6. “But the Lord is faithful. He will establish you and guard you against the evil one” (3:3).
7. “If anyone is not willing to work, let him not eat” (3:10).
8. “As for you, brothers, do not grow weary in doing good” (3:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

In chapter 1, Paul thanks God for their growing faith and love and boasts of their steadfastness in persecution. Their suffering is “evidence of the righteous judgment of God, that you may be considered worthy of the kingdom of God.” God will repay with affliction those who afflict them and grant relief to the afflicted “when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with his mighty angels in flaming fire.” Justice will be done. Paul prays that God would make them worthy of his calling, that the name of Jesus may be glorified in them.

Chapter 2 is among the most debated passages in the New Testament. Paul urges them not to be shaken by claims that the day of the Lord has come. “Let no one deceive you in any way. For that day will not come, unless the rebellion comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself against every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, proclaiming himself to be God.” Something restrains him, and when the restrainer is removed, the lawless one will be revealed. The Lord Jesus will kill him “with the breath of his mouth and bring to nothing by the appearance of his coming.” His coming will be by the activity of Satan with false signs and wonders, deceiving those who are perishing because they refused to love the truth. Interpreters differ on who the man of lawlessness is: a future individual Antichrist, an institution, a series of persecuting powers (such as Rome or later empires), or a spirit of rebellion embodied in many figures. The restrainer is also variously identified as the Roman Empire, government, the Holy Spirit, or the preaching of the gospel. The key point is clear: Christ will triumph, and believers should not be frightened.

Paul then returns to thanksgiving: “God chose you as the firstfruits to be saved, through sanctification by the Spirit and belief in the truth.” He urges them to stand firm and hold to the traditions they were taught. A prayer: “May our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our Father, who loved us and gave us eternal comfort and good hope through grace, comfort your hearts and establish them in every good work and word.”

Chapter 3 asks for prayer that the word of the Lord may speed ahead and be honored, and that they may be delivered from wicked and evil people. “But the Lord is faithful. He will establish you and guard you against the evil one.” Then the discipline of idleness. Some were living in idleness, mere busybodies. Paul reminds them of his own example: they worked night and day so as not to burden anyone. “If anyone is not willing to work, let him not eat.” This does not apply to those unable to work, but to those unwilling. He commands them to work quietly and earn their own living. “As for you, brothers, do not grow weary in doing good.” The letter ends with a benediction of peace and grace, and Paul’s signature as a mark of authenticity.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 7:25, 9:27, 11:36-37 stand behind the man of lawlessness. Matthew 24:15-28 and 1 John 2:18-22 speak of antichrists. Revelation 13 and 19:19-21 describe the beast and Christ’s victory. Isaiah 11:4 speaks of slaying the wicked with the breath of his lips. 1 Thessalonians 4:11 and 5:14 also address idleness. Ephesians 4:28 and Proverbs 6:6-11 speak of work. Galatians 6:9 repeats the encouragement not to grow weary. John 17:15 prays that God would keep us from the evil one.

STEP 6

Application

If you are suffering for your faith or for doing right, take comfort in 1:5-7. God sees.

Ask if you are tempted to idleness or to being a busybody. What is one productive thing you can do today?

Memorize 3:3 as a promise: the Lord is faithful; he will establish and guard you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus that he will be revealed from heaven and bring justice.
- Ask him to help you stand firm and not be shaken.
- Ask him to give you strength to keep working while you wait.

1 Timothy 1:1-3:16

Sound doctrine; prayer; overseers and deacons

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 49 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Timothy 1:1-3:16. Paul writes to his younger coworker Timothy, who is leading the church in Ephesus. Notice the concern for sound doctrine, the priority of prayer, and the qualifications for overseers and deacons. Read slowly through 3:1-13 and 3:14-16.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

1 Timothy, 2 Timothy, and Titus are called the Pastoral Epistles because they were written to pastors, Timothy and Titus, for the care of churches. Paul probably wrote 1 Timothy around AD 62 to 64, after his first Roman imprisonment, to Timothy in Ephesus. False teachers were spreading myths and speculations. Paul instructs Timothy on doctrine, worship, leadership, and conduct in "the household of God, which is the church of the living God."

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The aim of our charge is love that issues from a pure heart and a good conscience and a sincere faith" (1:5).
2. "The saying is trustworthy and deserving of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am the foremost" (1:15).
3. "Who desires all people to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth" (2:4).
4. "For there is one God, and there is one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (2:5).
5. "The saying is trustworthy: If anyone aspires to the office of overseer, he desires a noble task" (3:1).

6. “Therefore an overseer must be above reproach” (3:2).
7. “The household of God, which is the church of the living God, a pillar and buttress of the truth” (3:15).
8. “Great indeed, we confess, is the mystery of godliness” (3:16).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul tells Timothy to charge certain persons not to teach different doctrine, nor to devote themselves to myths and endless genealogies, which promote speculations rather than the stewardship from God that is by faith. “The aim of our charge is love that issues from a pure heart and a good conscience and a sincere faith.” Some have wandered away into vain discussion, desiring to be teachers of the law without understanding. The law is good if one uses it lawfully, as pointing out sin. Then Paul gives his testimony: formerly a blasphemer, persecutor, and insolent opponent, he received mercy because he had acted ignorantly in unbelief. “The saying is trustworthy and deserving of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am the foremost.” “Foremost” (or chief) is present tense: Paul still sees himself as the chief of sinners. And he received mercy so that Christ might display his perfect patience as an example. A doxology follows: “To the King of the ages, immortal, invisible, the only God, be honor and glory forever and ever.”

In chapter 2, Paul gives priority to prayer: “First of all, then, I urge that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for all people, for kings and all who are in high positions, that we may lead a peaceful and quiet life, godly and dignified in every way.” This is pleasing to God our Savior, “who desires all people to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth. For there is one God, and there is one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus, who gave himself as a ransom for all.” The gospel is for all kinds of people, and there is only one way. The rest of chapter 2 includes instructions for men and women in worship, including verses 11 to 15 on women teaching, which have been interpreted in different ways. Some hold that Paul restricts the office of elder/teacher to men; others hold that the instruction was shaped by the Ephesian situation, with false teaching among some women; many hold that the passage should be read with attention to the creation reference in verses 13 and 14. Christians who honor Scripture land in different places, so a charitable spirit is called for.

Chapter 3 gives the qualifications for overseers (also called elders or pastors) and deacons. “If anyone aspires to the office of overseer, he desires a noble task.” The list is mostly about character: above reproach, the husband of one wife, sober-minded, self-controlled, respectable, hospitable, able to teach, not a drunkard, not violent but gentle, not quarrelsome, not a lover of money, managing his household well, not a recent convert, well thought of by outsiders. Only “able to teach” is a skill. Deacons likewise must be dignified, hold the mystery of the faith with a clear conscience, be tested, and be faithful. We examine this more on Day 811.

The section ends with the purpose: “I am writing these things to you so that, if I delay, you may know how one ought to behave in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, a pillar and buttress of the truth.” And a hymn: “Great indeed, we confess, is the mystery of godliness: He was manifested in the flesh, vindicated by the Spirit, seen by angels, proclaimed among the nations, believed on in the world, taken up in glory.” The center of church life is Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 20:17-38 records Paul’s farewell to the Ephesian elders. Romans 3:19-20 and 7:12 speak of the use of the law. Acts 9:1-19 tells of Paul’s conversion. Ephesians 2:19-22 describes the household of God. Titus 1:5-9 gives parallel qualifications. Acts 6:1-6 describes the first servants. Philippians 1:1 mentions overseers and deacons. 1 Peter 5:1-4 is Peter’s charge to elders. Hebrews 8:6 and 9:15 speak of the mediator. Philippians 2:5-11 is another early hymn.

STEP 6

Application

Pray for the leaders of the world and of your community by name, as verse 2:1-2 commands.

Pray for the pastors and elders of your church as you read 3:1-7. Which quality do you see in them?

Memorize 1:15 and say it to yourself when you are tempted to think you are too far gone or too good to need grace.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for coming to save sinners and for his mercy to you.

Ask him to help you fight the good fight with a good conscience.

Pray for those in authority and the people around you.

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Timothy 3:1-13, Titus 1:5-9, and Acts 6:1-6. Today is a doctrinal pause on church government and officers. Notice the qualifications for elders and deacons and how the first servants were appointed.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

How should a church be organized and led? The New Testament does not give a detailed blueprint, but it does describe the roles of elders (also called overseers or pastors) and deacons, and it describes how the early churches appointed them. Christians have drawn different conclusions about the best form of church government, but there is wide agreement about the character and function of the leaders.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “If anyone aspires to the office of overseer, he desires a noble task” (1 Timothy 3:1).
2. “Able to teach” (1 Timothy 3:2).
3. “Deacons likewise must be dignified, not double-tongued, not addicted to much wine, not greedy for dishonest gain” (1 Timothy 3:8).
4. “For those who serve well as deacons gain a good standing for themselves and also great confidence in the faith that is in Christ Jesus” (1 Timothy 3:13).
5. “This is why I left you in Crete, so that you might put what remained into order, and appoint elders in every town as I directed you” (Titus 1:5).

6 “He must hold firm to the trustworthy word as taught, so that he may be able to give instruction in sound doctrine and also to rebuke those who contradict it” (Titus 1:9).

7 “Therefore, brothers, pick out from among you seven men of good repute, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we will appoint to this duty” (Acts 6:3).

8 “But we will devote ourselves to prayer and to the ministry of the word” (Acts 6:4).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The New Testament speaks of two ongoing offices in the local church: elders (presbyteroi), also called overseers (episkopoi) and shepherds or pastors (poimenes), and deacons (diakonoi). Elders lead, teach, and shepherd the flock. Deacons serve, particularly in practical and material needs. The apostles were a unique foundational office, which has not continued.

Elders and overseers appear to be the same office, since Paul uses the terms interchangeably in Titus 1:5-7 and Acts 20:17, 28. Their qualifications emphasize character: above reproach, faithful to their spouse, self-controlled, hospitable, gentle, not greedy, managing their household well. Their tasks are to teach, shepherd, guard the flock from false teaching, and lead. The only ability required is to teach. In Acts 20:28, Paul tells the Ephesian elders to “care for the church of God, which he obtained with his own blood.”

Deacons came from the appointment of the seven in Acts 6, so that the apostles could devote themselves to prayer and the ministry of the word, while others cared for widows’ food. The seven were “men of good repute, full of the Spirit and of wisdom.” Deacons serve the church’s practical needs and free the elders to lead and teach. Romans 16:1 calls Phoebe a deacon (or servant) of the church at Cenchreae. Christians differ on whether women may serve as deacons: some read 1 Timothy 3:11 as referring to women deacons, others to the wives of deacons.

Churches organize themselves in different ways. The episcopal model (Roman Catholic, Orthodox, Anglican, Methodist) has bishops who oversee multiple congregations. The presbyterian model has elders who govern the church and regional bodies of elders (presbyteries and assemblies). The congregational model (Baptist and many independent churches) holds that the local congregation is the final earthly authority, led by elders and deacons. Disagreements remain over the role of the congregation, the relationship between local churches, and who may hold office, including whether women may be elders. These are important matters, and we should study them in humility.

Agreed principles: leaders are servants, not lords (1 Peter 5:3; Mark 10:42-45). Their authority comes from Scripture. They are accountable to Christ, the chief shepherd, and to the church. The congregation should respect and follow godly leaders (Hebrews 13:17), while testing everything by the word.

STEP 4

Interpretation

1 Timothy 3:1 says that aspiring to the office of overseer is a noble desire. But the emphasis is on character. “Above reproach” means no charge can be brought against his life. “The husband of one wife” is generally understood as faithful to his wife, though Christians differ on whether it excludes divorced and remarried men, singles, or women. “Sober-minded, self-controlled, respectable, hospitable, able to teach, not a drunkard, not violent but gentle, not quarrelsome, not a lover of money. He must manage his own household well, with all dignity keeping his children submissive, for if someone does not know how to manage his own household, how will he care for God’s church? He must not be a recent convert, or he may become puffed up with conceit. Moreover, he must be well thought of by outsiders.” The home is the proving ground.

Deacons likewise must be dignified. They must hold the mystery of the faith with a clear conscience. They are to be tested first, and then let them serve if they prove themselves blameless. “For those who serve well as deacons gain a good standing for themselves and also great confidence in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.”

In Titus 1, Paul left Titus in Crete to appoint elders in every town. The qualifications are similar. The elder, as God’s steward, must be above reproach, not arrogant or quick-tempered, a lover of good, self-controlled, upright, holy. “He must hold firm to the trustworthy word as taught, so that he may be able to give instruction in sound doctrine and also to rebuke those who contradict it.” The elder both builds up and guards.

Acts 6 shows how the first church solved a problem. The Hellenist widows were being neglected in the daily distribution. The Twelve said, “It is not right that we should give up preaching the word of God to serve tables.” They asked the church to pick out seven men of good repute, full of the Spirit and wisdom. The church chose, the apostles prayed and laid hands on them, “and the word of God continued to increase.” Notice the shape: leaders delegate; the congregation participates; the priority is the word and prayer; the result is growth.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 14:23 and 20:17-38 describe the appointment of elders. 1 Peter 5:1-5 gives Peter's charge to elders. Hebrews 13:7, 17 speak of respecting leaders. Philippians 1:1 greets overseers and deacons. Romans 16:1-2 mentions Phoebe. Ephesians 4:11-12 speaks of shepherds and teachers equipping the saints. 3 John 9-10 warns of a domineering leader. Mark 10:42-45 contrasts Jesus' model of leadership with the world's. 1 Corinthians 12:28 lists gifts of administration and helping. Matthew 20:25-28 echoes the servant principle.

STEP 6

Application

Pray for your elders and deacons by name. Thank at least one for something specific.

If God is leading you to aspire to serve as a leader, ask a pastor to help you test it by these qualifications.

Find a practical need in your church and meet it, as the seven did.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus, the Chief Shepherd, for the leaders he has given his church.

Pray for your own church leaders by name.

Ask him to help you follow and support them.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Rejoice always, pray without ceasing, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you."

1 THESSALONIANS 5:16-18

REST

Meditation

These three short commands are among the simplest and most challenging in the Bible.

"Rejoice always." Joy that does not depend on circumstances is possible because its source is the Lord. Paul is not asking us to feel happy about suffering but to rejoice in God's presence, promises, and salvation. Even tears and joy can coexist.

"Pray without ceasing." This does not mean we stay on our knees all day, but that we live in constant awareness of God, turning to him in short prayers throughout the day and setting aside times for deeper prayer. It is a posture of dependence.

"Give thanks in all circumstances." Not for all circumstances, but in them. We can thank God in the midst of loss because he is with us and working. Gratitude changes our outlook.

“For this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you.” Many people wonder about God’s will. Here is a clear answer: joy, prayer, and thanksgiving. And it is “in Christ Jesus”: the power to do it comes from him.

When your day becomes anxious, say this verse and take one of these three steps right then.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the end of 1 Thessalonians, with its call to holy living, the day of the Lord, and short commands to rejoice, pray, and give thanks. Three psalms taught confidence and wonder: Psalm 27, one thing I ask, to dwell in the house of the LORD and gaze upon his beauty; Psalm 138, I give you thanks with my whole heart, and the LORD will fulfill his purpose for me; and Psalm 139, I am fearfully and wonderfully made, search me and lead me in the way everlasting. Second Thessalonians comforted the persecuted, warned against being shaken by claims about the day of the Lord, and called the idle to work. First Timothy began the Pastoral Epistles with sound doctrine, prayer for all people, the one mediator, and the qualifications of overseers and deacons. A doctrinal pause considered church government and officers: elders who shepherd and teach, deacons who serve, and a congregation that follows godly leaders.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Psalm 27 says the one thing David asked for was to dwell in the house of the LORD and gaze on his beauty. What would you say is the one thing you most seek? How could you ask God to make knowing him your deepest desire?

Second Thessalonians says, “The Lord is faithful. He will establish you and guard you against the evil one.” What threat or fear in your life do you need to entrust to God’s faithfulness?

Paul gives Timothy a list of character qualities for church leaders, mostly about integrity and home life. Which of these do you most want to grow in, whether or not you’re a leader? What is one step?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the call to rejoice, pray, and give thanks.

Tell him what you have to give thanks for in your circumstances.

Rest in him.

DAY 813 · WEEK 117

1 Timothy 4:1-6:21

Godliness; widows and elders; the good fight

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 69 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Timothy 4:1-6:21. Paul gives Timothy instruction on guarding against false teaching, on his own example and ministry, on caring for various groups in the church, and on the dangers of money. Notice how often Paul turns from doctrine to daily conduct.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul continues his letter to Timothy in Ephesus. False teachers were forbidding marriage and certain foods, and others were using religion for profit. Timothy was young and perhaps timid. Paul encourages him to be an example, to devote himself to public reading of Scripture, and to fight the good fight of faith. The letter also gives guidance for widows, elders, slaves and masters, and the rich.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving” (4:4).
2. “For while bodily training is of some value, godliness is of value in every way” (4:8).
3. “Let no one despise you for your youth, but set the believers an example in speech, in conduct, in love, in faith, in purity” (4:12).
4. “Devote yourself to the public reading of Scripture, to exhortation, to teaching” (4:13).
5. “Keep a close watch on yourself and on the teaching. Persist in this, for by so doing you will save both yourself and your hearers” (4:16).
6. “But godliness with contentment is great gain” (6:6).

7. “For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evils” (6:10).
8. “Fight the good fight of the faith. Take hold of the eternal life to which you were called” (6:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Chapter 4 opens with a warning that in later times some will depart from the faith, devoting themselves to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons. They forbid marriage and require abstinence from foods. Paul answers with creation: “For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving, for it is made holy by the word of God and prayer.” Marriage and food are gifts. Christians are free to enjoy them with gratitude, though not to worship them.

Timothy is to be a good servant of Christ Jesus, nourished on the words of the faith. He is to have nothing to do with irreverent myths and to train himself for godliness. “For while bodily training is of some value, godliness is of value in every way, as it holds promise for the present life and also for the life to come.” Exercise is good, but spiritual discipline matters more and lasts. “Let no one despise you for your youth, but set the believers an example in speech, in conduct, in love, in faith, in purity.” Authority comes from example. Until Paul arrives, Timothy is to give attention to Scripture reading, exhortation, and teaching, and not to neglect the gift given to him when the elders laid their hands on him. “Keep a close watch on yourself and on the teaching.” A pastor must watch both his life and his doctrine.

Chapter 5 gives practical guidance. Treat older men as fathers, younger men as brothers, older women as mothers, younger women as sisters, in all purity. Care for widows who are truly in need, and let families care for their own: “If anyone does not provide for his relatives, and especially for members of his household, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.” Elders who rule well are worthy of double honor, especially those who labor in preaching and teaching, and the worker deserves his wages. Accusations against an elder require two or three witnesses, and those who persist in sin are to be rebuked publicly. Timothy is to keep these rules without prejudice or partiality, to be careful about laying on hands hastily, and to keep himself pure. Paul adds a small word about his health: “No longer drink only water, but use a little wine for the sake of your stomach and your frequent ailments.”

Chapter 6 speaks to slaves and masters, and to false teachers who suppose that godliness is a means of gain. “But godliness with contentment is great gain, for we brought nothing into the world, and we cannot take anything out of the world.” Those who desire to be rich fall into temptation. “For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evils. It is through this craving that some have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pangs.”

Note that it is the love of money, not money itself. Timothy is to flee these things and pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, steadfastness, gentleness. “Fight the good fight of the faith. Take hold of the eternal life to which you were called.” The rich are to be generous and rich in good works, storing up treasure as a good foundation for the future. The letter ends with a plea: “O Timothy, guard the deposit entrusted to you.”

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:31 and Mark 7:19 affirm the goodness of creation and food. Hebrews 13:4 honors marriage. Acts 16:1-3 introduces Timothy. 2 Timothy 1:6 mentions his gift. Deuteronomy 25:4 and Luke 10:7 are behind the wage principle. Philippians 4:11-13 speaks of contentment. Matthew 6:19-24 teaches that we cannot serve God and money. Hebrews 13:5 says to be content with what you have. Ecclesiastes 5:10 warns about loving money. Jude 3 speaks of contending for the faith.

STEP 6

Application

Receive your next meal and a gift in your life with thanksgiving, and say the prayer aloud.

Ask which area of your life (speech, conduct, love, faith, purity) most needs to be an example, and take one step.

Examine your relationship with money. Ask: what do I love? Plan one generous gift this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Receive God’s gifts with thanksgiving, and name some.
- Ask him to train you for godliness.
- Ask him to help you fight the good fight of faith.

DAY 814 · WEEK 117

2 Timothy 1:1-2:26

Guard the deposit; rightly handling the word

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 43 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Timothy 1:1-2:26. This is Paul's last letter, written from prison with death near. Notice the tenderness toward Timothy, the call to guard the gospel, and the pictures of the faithful servant: soldier, athlete, farmer, worker.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Second Timothy was written around AD 66 to 67, during Paul's second imprisonment in Rome, probably shortly before his execution. Unlike his first imprisonment, this one is harsh, and Paul is alone except for Luke. He writes to Timothy, his beloved child in the faith, to strengthen him to carry on, to guard the gospel, and to be willing to suffer. It is a farewell letter and a passing of the torch.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For God gave us a spirit not of fear but of power and love and self-control" (1:7).
2. "Who saved us and called us to a holy calling, not because of our works but because of his own purpose and grace" (1:9).
3. "For I know whom I have believed, and I am convinced that he is able to guard until that day what has been entrusted to me" (1:12).
4. "By the Holy Spirit who dwells within us, guard the good deposit entrusted to you" (1:14).
5. "And what you have heard from me in the presence of many witnesses entrust to faithful men, who will be able to teach others also" (2:2).
6. "Share in suffering as a good soldier of Christ Jesus" (2:3).

7. “Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved, a worker who has no need to be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth” (2:15).

8. “The Lord’s servant must not be quarrelsome but kind to everyone, able to teach, patiently enduring evil” (2:24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul begins with thanks and longing. He remembers Timothy’s tears, recalls the sincere faith that lived in his grandmother Lois and mother Eunice, and reminds him to fan into flame the gift of God that is in him. “For God gave us a spirit not of fear but of power and love and self-control.” Timothy seems to have been timid. Fear is not from God, and the Spirit gives courage, love, and discipline. “Therefore do not be ashamed of the testimony about our Lord, nor of me his prisoner, but share in suffering for the gospel by the power of God.”

Then a summary of the gospel: God “saved us and called us to a holy calling, not because of our works but because of his own purpose and grace, which he gave us in Christ Jesus before the ages began, and which now has been manifested through the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, who abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel.” Paul is not ashamed, even in a dungeon: “For I know whom I have believed, and I am convinced that he is able to guard until that day what has been entrusted to me.” Faith is knowing a person. Paul urges Timothy to follow the pattern of sound words and to guard the good deposit by the Holy Spirit. Some, like Phygelus and Hermogenes, have turned away. Onesiphorus, however, was not ashamed of Paul’s chains and refreshed him often, and Paul prays mercy on his household.

Chapter 2 builds on the picture of ministry as hard work. Timothy is to be strengthened by the grace in Christ Jesus and to pass on the gospel: “What you have heard from me in the presence of many witnesses entrust to faithful men, who will be able to teach others also.” Four generations appear here: Paul, Timothy, faithful men, and others. Discipleship is multiplication. Then three images: the soldier, who avoids civilian entanglements to please his commander; the athlete, who competes by the rules; the farmer, who works hard before sharing the crops. Each requires single-mindedness, discipline, and patience. “Remember Jesus Christ, risen from the dead, the offspring of David, as preached in my gospel, for which I am suffering, bound with chains. But the word of God is not bound!”

Paul quotes a trustworthy saying: “If we have died with him, we will also live with him; if we endure, we will also reign with him; if we deny him, he also will deny us; if we are faithless, he remains faithful, for he cannot deny himself.” Timothy is to avoid quarrels about words and irreverent babble. “Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved, a worker who has no need to be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth.” Some have swerved from the truth, like Hymenaeus and Philetus, who say the resurrection has already happened. But “God’s firm foundation stands, bearing this seal: The Lord knows those who are his.” The household of God contains vessels for honor and for dishonor; Timothy is to cleanse himself, flee youthful passions, and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace. The Lord’s servant must be kind, patient, and gentle in correcting opponents, in the hope that God may grant them repentance.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 16:1-3 introduces Timothy and his mother. 1 Timothy 1:18 and 4:14 refer to his gift. Romans 1:16 says Paul is not ashamed of the gospel. Titus 3:5-7 echoes salvation by mercy and not works. Ephesians 1:4 speaks of grace given before the ages. 1 Corinthians 9:24-27 uses the athlete image. Philippians 2:25 and Philemon 2 use soldier language. Numbers 16:5 is quoted in 2:19. Matthew 28:19-20 gives the mission of making disciples. Romans 6:8 and 8:17 parallel the faithful saying.

STEP 6

Application

Name a fear that holds you back and ask God for his spirit of power, love, and self-control.

Think of the people who passed the faith to you. Write to one to thank them. Then think of who you might pass it to.

Which picture fits you today: soldier, athlete, farmer, or worker? Take one step in that direction.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for giving you a spirit of power, love, and self-control.
- Ask him to help you guard the good deposit.
- Ask him to help you handle his word rightly.

DAY 815 · WEEK 117

2 Timothy 3:1-4:22

Difficult times; preach the word; finish the race

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 39 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Timothy 3:1-4:22. These are Paul's last recorded words. Notice the warning about hard times, the great statement about Scripture, the solemn charge to preach, and Paul's own testimony as he faces death.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Paul writes his final instructions to Timothy. He knows his time is short. The church will face difficult days, and false teachers will multiply. His solution is not new methods but the faithful preaching of the word. These verses contain the most important statement in the Bible about the nature of Scripture, and they also give a deeply moving portrait of a servant at the end of his race.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "But understand this, that in the last days there will come times of difficulty" (3:1).
2. "Indeed, all who desire to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted" (3:12).
3. "And how from childhood you have been acquainted with the sacred writings, which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus" (3:15).
4. "All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness" (3:16).
5. "Preach the word; be ready in season and out of season; reprove, rebuke, and exhort, with complete patience and teaching" (4:2).
6. "For the time is coming when people will not endure sound teaching, but having itching ears they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own passions" (4:3).

7. “I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith” (4:7).
8. “But the Lord stood by me and strengthened me, so that through me the message might be fully proclaimed” (4:17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul says that “in the last days there will come times of difficulty.” The last days began with Christ’s first coming, so this is a description of the whole era. People will be lovers of self, lovers of money, proud, abusive, disobedient, ungrateful, unholy, heartless, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, haters of good, treacherous, reckless, swollen with conceit, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, “having the appearance of godliness, but denying its power.” Timothy is to avoid such people. Paul contrasts them with Timothy: “You, however, have followed my teaching, my conduct, my aim in life, my faith, my patience, my love, my steadfastness, my persecutions and sufferings.” Then a sober truth: “Indeed, all who desire to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted, while evil people and impostors will go on from bad to worse, deceiving and being deceived.”

Timothy must continue in what he has learned. He knows from whom he learned it and has known “the sacred writings” from childhood, “which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus.” Then the great statement: “All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, equipped for every good work.” The word “breathed out” (theopneustos) means that Scripture originates in God. It is his word, just as a human’s breath carries his words. It is profitable in four ways: it teaches what is true, reproves what is wrong, corrects the path, and trains in righteousness. And its goal is that we be complete, equipped for every good work. Scripture is sufficient for the life of faith.

Chapter 4 begins with a solemn charge, “in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead.” The command is simple: “Preach the word; be ready in season and out of season; reprove, rebuke, and exhort, with complete patience and teaching.” The reason is that people will turn away. “They will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own passions, and will turn away from listening to the truth and wander off into myths.” Timothy is to be sober-minded, endure suffering, do the work of an evangelist, and fulfill his ministry.

Then Paul looks at his own end: “For I am already being poured out as a drink offering, and the time of my departure has come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will award to me on that day, and not only to me but also to all who have loved his appearing.” The letter closes with personal notes: Demas has deserted him, only Luke is with him, and he asks for Mark, his cloak, and his books and parchments. At his first defense, no one came to stand by him, "but the Lord stood by me and strengthened me." "The Lord will rescue me from every evil deed and bring me safely into his heavenly kingdom. To him be the glory forever and ever. Amen."

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 24:9-13 and 2 Peter 3:3 also warn of hard times. John 15:20 promises persecution. 2 Peter 1:20-21 explains the origin of Scripture. Psalm 19:7-11 and 119:105 praise Scripture's value. Luke 24:44-47 shows Scripture pointing to Christ. Acts 20:24 is Paul's earlier statement about finishing his course. Philippians 2:17 and 1:21-23 also use the drink offering image. 1 Peter 5:4 promises a crown to faithful shepherds. Acts 23:11 and 27:23-24 recall times Christ stood by Paul. Hebrews 4:12 speaks of the living word.

STEP 6

Application

Choose a time and place for reading the Bible every day, and commit to it. Ask God to use Scripture to teach, reprove, correct, and train you.

Let 3:16-17 stay with you.

Ask whether you are finishing well. What is one thing you need to do to keep the faith?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that all Scripture is breathed out by him.
- Ask him to use it to teach, reprove, correct, and train you.
- Ask him to help you finish well.

2 TIMOTHY 3:16-17

DAY 816 · WEEK 117

Titus 1:1-3:15

Elders; sound doctrine; good works

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 46 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Titus 1:1-3:15. This short letter to Titus in Crete shows how sound doctrine and good works belong together. Notice the repeated phrases “sound doctrine” and “good works,” and the gospel summaries in 2:11-14 and 3:4-7.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Titus was one of Paul’s trusted coworkers, a Gentile convert. Paul left him on the island of Crete to put the churches in order and appoint elders in every town. The Cretans had a reputation for dishonesty and laziness (even one of their own poets said so), and false teachers were upsetting households. Paul writes to give Titus authority and instructions, and in doing so gives some of the clearest summaries of the gospel in the New Testament.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “They profess to know God, but they deny him by their works” (1:16).
2. “But as for you, teach what accords with sound doctrine” (2:1).
3. “For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation for all people” (2:11).
4. “Waiting for our blessed hope, the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ” (2:13).
5. “Who gave himself for us to redeem us from all lawlessness and to purify for himself a people for his own possession who are zealous for good works” (2:14).
6. “He saved us, not because of works done by us in righteousness, but according to his own mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit” (3:5).

7. “The saying is trustworthy, and I want you to insist on these things, so that those who have believed in God may be careful to devote themselves to good works” (3:8).

8. “But avoid foolish controversies, genealogies, dissensions, and quarrels about the law, for they are unprofitable and worthless” (3:9).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul opens with a long greeting that sets the gospel in eternity: he is a servant of God and apostle of Jesus Christ for the sake of the faith of God’s elect and their knowledge of the truth, “in hope of eternal life, which God, who never lies, promised before the ages began.” Then the task: appoint elders (covered on Day 811) and silence the empty talkers who upset whole families. The Cretans, as one of their own prophets said, were “always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons.” Titus is to rebuke them sharply that they may be sound in the faith. “To the pure, all things are pure, but to the defiled and unbelieving, nothing is pure; their very minds and consciences are defiled. They profess to know God, but they deny him by their works.”

Chapter 2 gives instruction for each group in the church: older men, older women, younger women, younger men, and slaves. The goal in all cases is to “adorn the doctrine of God our Savior” and keep the word of God from being reviled. Doctrine and life belong together. Then the gospel as the basis for this life: “For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation for all people, training us to renounce ungodliness and worldly passions, and to live self-controlled, upright, and godly lives in the present age, waiting for our blessed hope, the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us to redeem us from all lawlessness and to purify for himself a people for his own possession who are zealous for good works.” Grace does not excuse sin but trains us out of it. Christ is called “our great God and Savior,” one of the plain statements of his deity. He gave himself to redeem and to purify.

In chapter 3, Paul tells Titus to remind believers to be submissive to rulers, to be ready for every good work, to speak evil of no one, and to show perfect courtesy toward all people. Why? Because “we ourselves were once foolish, disobedient, led astray, slaves to various passions and pleasures.” Then the second great summary: “But when the goodness and loving kindness of God our Savior appeared, he saved us, not because of works done by us in righteousness, but according to his own mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit, whom he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior, so that being justified by his grace we might become heirs according to the hope of eternal life.” Here the Father, Son, and Spirit all work for our salvation. It is entirely mercy; it is new birth; it makes us heirs.

Paul concludes: insist on these things, so that believers will devote themselves to good works. Avoid foolish controversies. Warn a divisive person once, then twice, and then have nothing to do with him. The letter ends with practical greetings and the blessing, “Grace be with you all.”

STEP 5

Connection

Ephesians 2:8-10 also joins salvation by grace with good works. Romans 6:1-4 answers whether grace excuses sin. John 3:3-8 and 1 Peter 1:3 speak of new birth. Romans 5:1-2 and 8:17 speak of justification and heirs. Deuteronomy 7:6 and 1 Peter 2:9 speak of a people for God’s own possession. 2 Peter 1:1 and John 20:28 also call Christ God. Matthew 28:19 names Father, Son, and Spirit. Romans 13:1-7 speaks of rulers. James 2:14-26 joins faith and works. Matthew 5:16 speaks of good works glorifying the Father.

STEP 6

Application

Read 2:11-14 slowly. Underline each work of grace: it appears, saves, trains, redeems, purifies.

Pick one “good work” you can do for someone this week as a fruit of grace, and do it.

Remember the person you were before Christ (3:3) the next time you are tempted to be harsh with someone.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for redeeming you and purifying a people for himself.
- Ask him to make you zealous for good works.
- Ask him to keep you from foolish arguments.

DAY 817 · WEEK 117

Philemon 1:1-25

Onesimus, grace transforms every relationship

Year 2 · Unit 22 · Reading · 25 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Philemon, a one-chapter letter. It is Paul's most personal letter, a short appeal on behalf of a runaway slave named Onesimus. Read it slowly, imagining Philemon opening it before the whole church that meets in his house.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Philemon was a wealthy Christian in Colossae, with a church in his house. His slave Onesimus ran away, perhaps after stealing, and somehow met Paul in prison, where he became a Christian. Paul is sending Onesimus back, with this letter, asking Philemon to receive him not as a slave but as a beloved brother. It was sent with the Colossian letter, carried by Tychicus and Onesimus (Colossians 4:7-9).

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I thank my God always when I remember you in my prayers, because I hear of your love and of the faith that you have toward the Lord Jesus and for all the saints" (vv. 4-5).
2. "For this reason, though I am bold enough in Christ to command you to do what is required, yet for love's sake I prefer to appeal to you" (vv. 8-9).
3. "I appeal to you for my child, Onesimus, whom I have begotten in my imprisonment" (v. 10).
4. "Formerly he was useless to you, but now he is indeed useful to you and to me" (v. 11).
5. "No longer as a bondservant but more than a bondservant, as a beloved brother" (v. 16).
6. "So if you consider me your partner, receive him as you would receive me" (v. 17).
7. "If he has wronged you at all, or owes you anything, charge that to my account" (v. 18).

8 “Confident of your obedience, I write to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say” (v. 21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Paul writes as a prisoner of Christ Jesus, with Timothy, to Philemon, Apphia, Archippus, and the church in the house. He begins with thanks for Philemon’s love and faith, and prays that the sharing of his faith may become effective for the full knowledge of every good thing in Christ. Paul has “derived much joy and comfort from your love, because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed through you, my brother.” This builds up goodwill before the request.

Then the appeal. Paul could command, but “for love’s sake I prefer to appeal to you.” The appeal is for Onesimus, whose name means “useful.” Paul puns on it: “Formerly he was useless to you, but now he is indeed useful to you and to me.” Paul calls Onesimus his child and says, “I am sending him back to you, sending my very heart.” He would have liked to keep him, but would do nothing without Philemon’s consent, “in order that your goodness might not be by compulsion but of your own accord.”

Paul offers a perspective on the situation: “For this perhaps is why he was parted from you for a while, that you might have him back forever, no longer as a bondservant but more than a bondservant, as a beloved brother.” Providence may have been at work. Onesimus is a brother both in the flesh and in the Lord. Then Paul puts himself in the middle: “So if you consider me your partner, receive him as you would receive me. If he has wronged you at all, or owes you anything, charge that to my account. I, Paul, write this with my own hand: I will repay it.” He adds, gently, that Philemon owes Paul his very self.

This is a picture of the gospel. Onesimus, the guilty one, owes a debt. Paul, the innocent, steps in and says, charge it to me. Receive him as you would receive me. This is imputation: the debt of the guilty is put on the account of another, and the standing of the innocent is given to the guilty. Christ does this for us before the Father. We are welcomed because we come in his name.

The letter does not directly attack slavery as an institution, though it undermines its foundations by declaring a slave a brother and by asking that he be received as Paul himself. Elsewhere Paul lists slave traders among the lawless (1 Timothy 1:10), and the principle that in Christ there is neither slave nor free (Galatians 3:28) worked itself out over time. Paul closes by expressing confidence that Philemon will do even more than he asks, and asks for a guest room, hoping to be released. He sends greetings from Epaphras, Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke.

STEP 5

Connection

Colossians 4:7-9 mentions Onesimus. Galatians 3:28 and Colossians 3:11 declare that in Christ there is neither slave nor free. 1 Corinthians 7:21-24 speaks to slaves. Ephesians 6:5-9 gives instruction to slaves and masters. 1 Timothy 6:1-2 mentions believing masters. Isaiah 53:4-6 and 2 Corinthians 5:21 speak of Christ taking our debt. Romans 8:1 assures there is no condemnation. Matthew 18:21-35 teaches forgiveness. Luke 15:20-24 pictures the welcome of the returning son.

STEP 6

Application

Is there someone you need to forgive or receive back? Take a step this week, in the spirit of Paul's appeal.

Read the letter again, putting yourself in Onesimus's place, and thank Christ for standing in for you.

Think about whom you may stand beside in an appeal for mercy or justice.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for taking your debt on himself.
- Ask him to show you a relationship that needs the grace you have received.
- Ask him to help you receive others as brothers and sisters.

REST

Meditation

Paul lifts our eyes to Christ. He is "the image of the invisible God." No one has seen God, but we see him in Jesus. He is "the firstborn of all creation," which means he has the rank and inheritance of the firstborn, not that he was created. "For by him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities." The powers that the Colossians feared are creatures, made by him and for him.

This verse is the foundation of the whole Prison and Pastoral section. If Christ is this great, we are secure in him, the church is his body, our work is for him, and our hope is his appearing. Say it slowly. Each phrase is a reason to worship.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

This unit took us through the Prison and Pastoral Epistles. Ephesians showed us God's plan from eternity: chosen in Christ, saved by grace through faith, made one new people, and equipped to walk in love, light, and the whole armor of God. Psalms 68 and 110 celebrated the ascended Christ as priest-king. Philippians showed joy in chains, the humility and exaltation of Christ in the great hymn, and the surpassing worth of knowing him. Colossians declared the supremacy of Christ over all things and taught us to live in him, setting our minds on things above and doing everything in the name of the Lord Jesus. We paused to consider election, the church, the person of Christ as fully God and fully man, and ordinary work as a calling. In 1 and 2 Thessalonians, we learned to wait for the Lord's return with hope and with work, and to stand firm in persecution. Psalms 27, 138, and 139 taught us to seek the LORD's face, give thanks with the whole heart, and be searched and led by the one who made us. In 1 Timothy we learned how the household of God should live, with sound doctrine, prayer, and godly leaders. In 2 Timothy we heard Paul's last words: guard the gospel, rightly handle the word, and trust that all Scripture is breathed out by God. Titus showed how grace trains us for good works, and Philemon showed the gospel at work in one friendship, with Paul standing in for the guilty.

REFLECT

Review Questions

Ephesians 2:8-10 and Titus 3:4-7 both say we are saved by grace, not works, and yet for good works. How do these fit together?

Write in your own words how salvation by grace leads to a life of good works, and give an example from your own life.

Philippians 2:5-11 and Colossians 1:15-20 both describe Christ. What do they teach about who he is and what he has done?

List three truths about Christ from these passages and say how each strengthens your trust or worship.

Paul writes many of these letters from prison. What do Philippians and 2 Timothy show about how a believer can face hardship?

Choose a hardship you or someone you know is facing and apply one truth from these letters.

2 Timothy 3:16-17 says all Scripture is breathed out by God. What difference does this make to how you read the Bible?

Describe one change you will make to your reading habits, based on what Scripture is and what it does.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the letters of Paul and what they have taught you.

Thank him for Christ in whom all things hold together.

Ask him to keep the unit verse before you.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 2 Timothy 3:16-17 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, equipped for every good work."

2 TIMOTHY 3:16-17

REST

Meditation

This is the Bible's own testimony about itself. "All Scripture" means every part, not just our favorite passages. "Breathed out by God" means it comes from him, carrying his authority and truthfulness. It is not merely helpful human wisdom.

Then the four purposes: teaching (what to believe), reproof (where we are wrong), correction (how to get back on the path), and training in righteousness (how to grow). Notice that Scripture does not only inform us; it forms us. It confronts and repairs us.

The goal is "that the man of God may be complete, equipped for every good work." This verse applies to every believer, not only to pastors. God's word is enough to equip us for what he calls us to do. The next time you open the Bible, pray this verse first, and ask the Spirit to do each of the four things.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you finished the Pastoral Epistles. First Timothy 4 to 6 taught that everything God created is good, that godliness is of value in every way, and that the love of money is a root of all kinds of evils. Second Timothy 1 and 2 gave Paul's farewell charge: a spirit of power, love, and self-control; guard the deposit; entrust the gospel to faithful people; and rightly handle the word of truth. Second Timothy 3 and 4 gave the great statement of Scripture's inspiration and Paul's last testimony: I have fought the good fight, finished the race, kept the faith. Titus joined sound doctrine with good works and gave two summaries of the gospel. Philemon pictured the gospel in a personal appeal, with Paul saying, charge it to my account. On Day 818 we reviewed the whole Prison and Pastoral unit.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Paul says Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, reproof, correction, and training in righteousness. Which of these four do you most need from the Bible right now, and what passage might you read for it?

In Philemon, Paul offers to take on Onesimus's debt. How does this help you understand what Christ has done for you, and how might it shape your relationship with someone who has wronged you?

Paul ends his life saying, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith." What would you want to be able to say at the end of your life? What is one step toward it this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for his breathed-out word, able to make you wise for salvation.

Ask him to equip you for every good work.

Rest in him.

DAY 820 · WEEK 118

Hebrews 1:1-2:18

The Son above angels; the founder of salvation

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 32 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 1:1-2:18 in one sitting if you can. Hebrews does not begin like a letter. It begins like a sermon, and it starts by announcing who Jesus is. As you read, count the ways the author describes the Son and notice how often he quotes the Old Testament to prove it. Don't worry about catching every reference. Let the weight of the opening sentence settle on you.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

We are about to begin a book unlike any other in the New Testament. Hebrews has no greeting, no named author, and no named recipients. It opens with a single, majestic sentence in Greek and moves quickly into a sustained argument. The original readers were Jewish Christians who were under pressure. They were tempted to retreat from Christ and return to the safer, more familiar patterns of Moses and the temple. The author's response is not to scold them first but to show them Jesus. Everything depends on seeing that the Son is better than anything they might be tempted to go back to. For us, the book is a gift because it explains, from the inside, how the entire Old Testament points to Christ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. God spoke "long ago" by the prophets in many portions and ways, but "in these last days" by his Son (1:1-2).
2. The Son is heir of all things and the agent through whom the world was made (1:2).
3. He is "the radiance of the glory of God and the exact imprint of his nature," and he upholds the universe by his word (1:3).

4. After making purification for sins, he “sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high” (1:3).
5. Hebrews 1:5-13 strings together seven Old Testament quotations to show that the Son is superior to angels.
6. Hebrews 1:8 applies the word “God” to the Son: “Your throne, O God, is forever and ever.”
7. Hebrews 2:1-4 is the first of several warnings: “we must pay much closer attention to what we have heard.”
8. Hebrews 2:14-18 explains that the Son shared in flesh and blood so that through death he might destroy the devil and free those who feared death.

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first four verses of Hebrews are one of the most compressed statements of Christology in the Bible. The author begins with a contrast that organizes the whole book: God spoke before, and God has now spoken in a final way. The prophets were real messengers with real messages, delivered in pieces and fragments. But the Son is not another fragment. He is the full and final word. Everything the prophets pointed toward has now arrived in a person.

Then come the seven descriptions of the Son. He is heir, which means everything belongs to him. He is the agent of creation, which echoes John 1 and Colossians 1. He is the radiance of God’s glory, like light that streams from the sun and shares its nature. He is the exact imprint of God’s being, like the impression stamped by a seal. He sustains all things by his powerful word. He made purification for sins. And he sat down. That last detail matters: a priest in the old covenant never sat, because the work was never finished. Christ sat because his work was done.

Having established who the Son is, the author turns to prove it from Scripture, and he starts with angels. This may seem odd to us, but in Jewish thought angels were awesome mediators of God’s law (see Acts 7:53 and Galatians 3:19). To say the Son is greater than angels is to say he is greater than the mediation that came through them. The seven quotations in chapter 1 are drawn from the Psalms and the prophets, and they are all applied to Jesus. The most striking is verse 8, where the Father himself says to the Son, “Your throne, O God, is forever and ever.” The Father addresses the Son as God.

Chapter 2 opens with a warning that the author will repeat in different forms. If the message delivered through angels was binding and every transgression received a just penalty, how can we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? Notice the verb. The danger is not primarily active rebellion but drifting. The slow, quiet neglect of Christ is how many people leave him.

The rest of chapter 2 turns from the Son's glory to his humiliation, and it is a beautiful turn. How can the one who is greater than angels be made "for a little while lower than the angels"? Because he came to taste death for everyone. The one who made the world entered it, took on flesh and blood, and died. Verses 14-15 tell us why: to destroy the one who has the power of death, the devil, and to deliver those who all their lives were enslaved by fear. Fear of death is a master, and Christ has broken its power.

Verse 17 introduces a theme that will dominate the book: he had to be made like his brothers in every respect, so that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest. The Son who is God became truly human so he could represent us before God. He is not simply above us. He is with us, and he is for us.

STEP 5

Connection

The seven descriptions in 1:1-4 echo Proverbs 8 and Wisdom language, Genesis 1 (creation by word), and Psalm 110:1 (the session at God's right hand). The quotations in chapter 1 draw from Psalm 2, 2 Samuel 7, Deuteronomy 32, Psalm 45, Psalm 102, and Psalm 110, which is a sweep of the Old Testament's royal and creation theology. Chapter 2 draws on Psalm 8, where humanity is crowned with glory and honor, and Hebrews shows that Jesus is the true Man who fulfills that calling. Later in the book, 2:17 prepares us for Hebrews 4:14-5:10 and 7:1-28.

STEP 6

Application

First, take the opening verse as a personal challenge: God has spoken. Do you treat his word as final? Resolve to read Scripture this week as the voice of the Son, not as a collection of tips.

Second, notice the warning about drifting. Few believers wake up one day and decide to abandon Christ. They stop praying, then stop reading, then stop gathering. Ask yourself which small habits are keeping you attentive to him, and which neglected habits are pulling you off course.

Third, if you fear death, in any of its forms, remember what verse 15 says. Christ has freed those who were enslaved. You can begin to say honestly that you are afraid and ask him to deal with it. He understands, and he has already won.

Fourth, take comfort that the Son is not embarrassed by you. Hebrews 2:11 says he is not ashamed to call you brother.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for speaking to you by his Son.

Ask him to keep you from drifting.

Ask him to open your ears to hear him.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 118

HEBREWS 1:3

DAY 821 · WEEK 118

Hebrews 3:1-4:13

Greater than Moses; the Sabbath rest remains

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 32 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 3:1-4:13. This is a long reading with a single theme: the danger of an unbelieving heart and the promise of God's rest. Keep your finger on the repeated phrase from Psalm 95, "Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts." It appears three times, and each time it presses on the reader.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Having shown that the Son is greater than angels, the author now compares him with Moses. For a Jewish audience, this was the more sensitive comparison. Moses was the lawgiver, the faithful servant, the man who spoke with God face to face. To suggest anyone is greater than Moses was bold. But the point is not to diminish Moses. It is to show that Moses himself pointed forward. Then the author turns to the wilderness generation, those who were delivered from Egypt but failed to enter the promised land because of unbelief. The warning is plain: do not follow their example. The promise of rest is still open.

STEP 3

Observation

1. Jesus is called the "apostle and high priest of our confession" (3:1). He is both sent from God and sent to God on our behalf.
2. Moses was faithful "as a servant in all God's house," but Christ is faithful "as a son over God's house" (3:5-6).
3. The house is built by God, and "we are his house if indeed we hold fast our confidence" (3:6).
4. Psalm 95:7-11 is quoted at length and applied to the readers: "Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts" (3:7-8).

5. The wilderness generation died because of unbelief and disobedience (3:16-19).
6. "A promise remains" of entering God's rest (4:1), and the readers are told to strive to enter it (4:11).
7. The gospel was preached to the wilderness generation, but it did not benefit them because they were not united by faith with those who listened (4:2).
8. The word of God is described as living, active, and sharper than a two-edged sword, discerning the thoughts and intentions of the heart (4:12-13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The comparison with Moses is one of respect and fulfillment. Both Moses and Jesus were faithful to God's house, but they hold different positions. Moses was a servant in the house, and he served well. Jesus is the Son over the house, and in fact the builder of it. A house is always inferior to its builder, and a servant is always inferior to the son. This is not a criticism of Moses but a recognition that Moses' faithful service was itself a testimony pointing forward to someone greater. Numbers 12:7 calls Moses faithful in all God's house. Hebrews says: yes, and now the Son has come.

The conditional phrase in 3:6 deserves attention: "we are his house if indeed we hold fast our confidence." This is the first appearance of a theme that runs through Hebrews. The author is not suggesting that believers earn their place in God's house by perseverance. Rather, perseverance is how true faith shows itself. Those who belong to Christ will hold fast to him, and the warnings are God's means of keeping them holding on.

Next the author reaches into Psalm 95 and applies it to his readers. The wilderness generation saw God's mighty works. They were rescued from Egypt, fed with manna, and guided by the cloud. And yet they rebelled and tested God. The author's diagnosis is clear: "an evil, unbelieving heart" that leads to falling away from the living God. The remedy is just as clear: exhort one another every day, as long as it is called "today," so that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. Notice that the remedy is communal. Faith is not a private possession but something we guard together.

Chapter 4 develops the idea of rest. In Genesis 2, God rested on the seventh day. In Joshua, Israel entered the land. But Psalm 95, written centuries after Joshua, still speaks of a rest to enter "today." The author's reasoning is that if Joshua had given them the final rest, David would not have spoken of another day. Therefore "there remains a Sabbath rest for the people of God." The rest is the fullness of salvation, communion with God, and relief from striving to earn his favor. It is entered by faith, and it is fully enjoyed when Christ returns. We enter it now in part by trusting his finished work, and we will enter it fully in the new creation.

The urgency of verse 11, "Let us strive to enter that rest," sounds paradoxical. How do you strive to rest? The answer is that you strive against unbelief. The effort is to keep trusting, to keep coming back to Christ, and to refuse to harden your heart.

The section ends with a vivid picture of the word of God. It is living, active, and piercing. It exposes our hearts. Nothing is hidden from the one with whom we have to do. This is frightening if we are hiding, but it is also the basis for confidence, because the God who sees everything is the one who has provided a high priest.

STEP 5

Connection

The Moses comparison draws on Numbers 12 and Exodus 33:11, where Moses speaks with God face to face. The warning from Psalm 95 looks back to the rebellions at Massah and Meribah (Exodus 17, Numbers 14), which you read earlier in this plan. The theme of rest links Genesis 2:2, Exodus 20:8-11, Deuteronomy 12:9-10, and Joshua 21:44. Jesus himself offers this rest in Matthew 11:28-30. The living word of 4:12 echoes Isaiah 55:10-11 and prepares for the high priest passage that immediately follows.

STEP 6

Application

First, take the word "today" seriously. If you have been delaying obedience or repentance, today is the day to hear his voice. Choose one thing you know the Lord is asking of you, and do it.

Second, ask whether you are keeping up the daily exhortation Hebrews commands. Who is encouraging you in the faith? Who are you encouraging? If no one, take a first step this week toward someone in your church.

Third, think about rest. Many believers live as if salvation depends on constant effort. The Sabbath rest that remains is in part the rest of knowing that Christ has finished the work. Let your weekly rest day be a regular practice of trusting that.

Fourth, let Hebrews 4:12 shape how you read Scripture. Bring your heart to the word, expecting it to read you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God that today you hear his voice, and ask him to soften your heart.

Confess where you have hardened your heart.

Thank him for the rest that remains.

DAY 822 · WEEK 118

Hebrews 4:14-6:20

The great high priest; warning and assurance

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 38 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 4:14-6:20. The reading has three movements: the invitation to draw near to a sympathetic high priest, the qualifications of a priest, and a sober warning followed by a promise. Slow down at 6:4-8 and 6:9-12. The warning is real, and so is the author's confidence that his readers will persevere.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The author has spoken of Jesus as a great high priest. Now he stops to explain what that means. A priest stands between God and humanity, offering gifts and sacrifices on behalf of the people. In Israel the priests came from the tribe of Levi and the high priest from the line of Aaron. How could Jesus be a priest when he came from Judah? The author's answer introduces a mysterious figure from Genesis 14 and Psalm 110: Melchizedek. But before he can fully explain, he pauses to rebuke his readers for being slow to understand and to warn them against falling away. Then he ends the chapter with one of the most encouraging passages in the New Testament, on the certainty of God's promise.

STEP 3

Observation

1. 4:14-16 repeats the call to hold fast and gives the invitation to draw near to the throne of grace.
2. A high priest is chosen from among men to act on their behalf, and he can deal gently with the ignorant because he is beset by weakness himself (5:1-3).
3. Christ did not exalt himself to be a high priest. The Father called him with the words of Psalm 2 and Psalm 110 (5:5-6).

4. “In the days of his flesh,” Jesus offered up prayers with loud cries and tears, and “he learned obedience through what he suffered” (5:7-8).
5. The readers are called “dull of hearing” and still needing milk when they should be teachers (5:11-14).
6. 6:1-2 lists elementary teachings: repentance, faith, baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection, and judgment.
7. 6:4-6 describes those who have been enlightened and tasted the heavenly gift, and then fallen away.
8. God swore by himself so that by two unchangeable things we might have strong encouragement, an anchor of the soul (6:13-20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The passage opens by repeating the invitation. The repetition is deliberate. Having just warned his readers, the author immediately offers hope. We have a high priest. Come to the throne of grace. Between the warning and the hope, he wants them to see that the answer to weakness is not retreat but nearness.

Chapter 5 sets out what a priest is and shows that Jesus qualifies. The two qualifications are sympathy and appointment. A high priest must be able to deal gently with those who stray because he knows his own weakness. Jesus meets this qualification not through sin but through suffering. “In the days of his flesh” refers to his earthly life, and verse 7 almost certainly points to Gethsemane. The Son offered prayers with loud cries and tears. This is the picture of a Savior who knows what it is to pray in agony. He “learned obedience through what he suffered.” This does not mean he was ever disobedient, but that he experienced obedience at its hardest cost. Having been “made perfect,” he became the source of eternal salvation to all who obey him. The second qualification is appointment: Jesus did not claim the office for himself. The Father called him, and Psalm 110:4 identifies his priesthood as “after the order of Melchizedek.”

At this point, the author’s thought stalls. He has much to say about Melchizedek, but his readers are sluggish. They should be teachers, yet they need to be taught the basics again. The rebuke is pastoral rather than cruel, and it is a challenge to every Christian: are you growing? Solid food belongs to the mature, those who have trained themselves by practice to distinguish good from evil.

Then comes the warning in 6:4-8. It is one of the most debated passages in the Bible, and honest interpreters disagree. The best reading, in line with the whole letter, is that the author describes those who have shared in the visible blessings of the church community, heard the word, and tasted its power, but who then deliberately and finally reject Christ. For such a person, there is no second sacrifice. If Christ's sacrifice is rejected, nothing else remains. The author illustrates with farmland: the same rain falls on the field that bears fruit and the field that bears thorns. The question is what the field produces.

But the author does not leave his readers terrified. "Though we speak in this way, yet in your case, beloved, we feel sure of better things." The evidence of genuine faith is love shown through service to the saints, and the author wants them to keep it up to the end. Warnings and assurance are not enemies. The warnings are the means God uses to keep his people.

The chapter ends with a stunning image. God made a promise to Abraham and, because he had no one greater to swear by, swore by himself. A promise and an oath are two unchangeable things in which it is impossible for God to lie. This is the foundation of our confidence. Our hope is an anchor for the soul, firm and secure, and it enters "into the inner place behind the curtain" where Jesus has gone as a forerunner on our behalf. The anchor does not hold from the ship's side but from the harbor. Our hope is anchored in heaven, in the person of Christ.

STEP 5

Connection

The call of Jesus as priest from Psalm 110:4 links to your reading of Psalm 110 in this unit and to Genesis 14, where Abram met Melchizedek. The oath to Abraham comes from Genesis 22:16-17 and ties to the Abrahamic covenant you read in Unit 3. The picture of the field with thorns recalls Genesis 3:17-18 and Isaiah 5. Gethsemane in 5:7 anticipates Matthew 26, Mark 14, and Luke 22. The inner place behind the curtain points forward to the temple imagery of Hebrews 9-10.

STEP 6

Application

First, check your growth. Hebrews calls the readers to move beyond milk. What is one area of your faith, such as prayer, Scripture, or serving, in which you have stayed at the beginner level? Choose one concrete step to deepen it.

Second, treat the warning as a gift. If you feel a pull to drift or give up, do not hide it. Bring it to the Lord and to a trusted believer. The warnings exist to keep you close.

Third, rest in the oath of God. When you feel that your hold on God is slipping, remember that your hope does not rest in your grip but in his promise. The anchor holds you.

Fourth, draw near this week. Pray as someone who knows that Jesus has been where you are.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that he is a high priest who knows what it is to weep and pray.

Ask him to keep you from sluggishness and give you hope as an anchor.

Draw near to his throne of grace and tell him what you need.

HEBREWS 1:3

DAY 823 · WEEK 118

Psalm 95

Today, if you hear his voice, Hebrews' warning psalm

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 95 aloud, slowly. Notice that it has two halves with very different moods. The first calls us to joyful worship, and the second turns suddenly to warning. Hebrews quoted the second half in the last two days of readings. Today you read the whole psalm in its original setting.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 95 was likely sung as a call to worship as pilgrims approached the temple. It begins with exuberant singing and ends with an alarm. The author of Hebrews took the final verses and made them the center of his warning in chapters 3 and 4. Reading the whole psalm helps us hear what he heard: worship and obedience are inseparable. To sing to the LORD with joy and then to harden your heart against his voice is a contradiction. The psalm asks us to come in, bow down, and listen.

STEP 3

Observation

1. The psalm opens with a call to sing and shout joyfully to "the rock of our salvation" (v. 1).
2. The LORD is called a great God and a great King above all gods (v. 3).
3. His is the depths of the earth, the heights of the mountains, the sea, and the dry land (vv. 4-5).
4. The invitation changes from singing to kneeling: "let us worship and bow down" (v. 6).
5. "He is our God, and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand" (v. 7).
6. Verse 7 pivots mid-sentence: "Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts."

7. The warning cites Meribah and Massah, where Israel tested God in the wilderness (vv. 8-9).

8. The psalm ends with God's oath that the rebellious generation "shall not enter my rest" (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The structure of Psalm 95 is a lesson in itself. It moves from praising God as Creator (vv. 1-5) to worshiping him as Shepherd (vv. 6-7a) to hearing him as Judge (vv. 7b-11). Each stage deepens the relationship. The God who made everything is also the God who made us his flock, and the God who speaks to us. Genuine worship always includes listening.

The first section calls for noise. Come into his presence with thanksgiving, make a joyful noise with songs of praise. The reason is given immediately: he is a great God, and the whole created order is in his hands. The depths of the earth and the peaks of the mountains both belong to him. The sea is his because he made it. Nothing is outside his reach.

Then the psalm calls for a different posture. The singing gives way to bowing. "Come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the LORD, our Maker." The Creator is also our Maker, which means he has authority over us and care for us. Verse 7 puts it tenderly: "we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand." A good shepherd leads, and sheep follow. The psalmist is about to say what following requires.

The turn comes in the middle of verse 7: "Today, if you hear his voice." The relationship is not one of passive admiration. God speaks. The test of worship is the response to what he says. The warning that follows reaches back to the wilderness. At Meribah and Massah, the people grumbled for water even though they had seen the plagues and the sea divided. They tested God, demanding he prove himself again. For forty years God was grieved with that generation. The result was that they did not enter the rest he had promised.

The author of Hebrews uses this as a sober example for the church. Those who are the sheep of God's hand must listen to the shepherd. The call to today means that obedience cannot wait. Whenever the word of God comes, that is the day to respond.

Read as a whole, the psalm is not a contradiction between joy and fear. It shows that the deepest joy is found in submission to a God who is both great and good. The people who sing the loudest are the ones who also listen.

STEP 5

Connection

This psalm is quoted in Hebrews 3:7-11, 3:15, and 4:3-7. Its background is Exodus 17:1-7 and Numbers 20:1-13, where the people quarreled at Meribah and Massah. The shepherd imagery connects to Psalm 23 and Ezekiel 34, and finds its fulfillment in Jesus' words in John 10: "I am the good shepherd." The "rest" that Israel failed to enter looks back to Deuteronomy 12:9 and forward to the Sabbath rest of Hebrews 4.

STEP 6

Application

Use Psalm 95 as a Sunday morning pattern. Sing, kneel, and listen. If you are tempted to treat worship as entertainment, notice that the psalm calls for attention to God's voice. Before your next church service, ask the Lord to speak to you through the sermon, and be ready to obey.

Think about Meribah. Where are you demanding that God prove himself again? Are there areas where you have seen him provide and still grumble? Name one, and thank him instead.

Finally, remember that your shepherd has a name. The Lord who calls you his sheep is Jesus, who laid down his life for you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship God as rock of your salvation and shepherd of your soul.
- Tell him you want to hear his voice and not harden your heart.
- Thank him that he is your Maker.

HEBREWS 1:3

DAY 824 · WEEK 118

Psalm 40:1-10

I delight to do your will, the Son's voice

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Psalm · 10 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 40:1-10 and then glance at Hebrews 10:5-10 where this psalm is quoted. The psalm is David's, but Hebrews hears it as the voice of the Son speaking to the Father. Read it twice, once as David's testimony and once as Christ's.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In Hebrews 2 and 10, the author puts Old Testament psalms into the mouth of Jesus, treating them as the speech of the Son to the Father. Psalm 40 is one of these. In its original setting, David gives thanks for rescue from a pit and declares his joy in doing the will of God rather than offering mere sacrifices. Hebrews will take verses 6-8 and show that they find their fullest meaning in Christ, who came into the world to do the Father's will by offering his own body. Today we read the psalm ahead of that application, so we are ready to hear it when we get there.

STEP 3

Observation

1. David waited patiently for the LORD, and the LORD "inclined to me and heard my cry" (v. 1).
2. God lifted him from a "pit of destruction" and "the miry bog" and set his feet on a rock (v. 2).
3. God put "a new song in my mouth, a song of praise to our God" (v. 3).
4. Many will see and fear and put their trust in the LORD (v. 3).
5. "Sacrifice and offering you have not desired, but you have given me an open ear" (v. 6).
6. "Then I said, 'Behold, I have come; in the scroll of the book it is written of me'" (v. 7).

7. “I delight to do your will, O my God; your law is within my heart” (v. 8).
8. David has told the glad news of deliverance “in the great congregation” and has not restrained his lips (vv. 9-10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a testimony. David was in a pit, a place of helplessness, and he waited. The word suggests a long wait, and he does not complain but credits the LORD for hearing. The rescue is complete: the pit is replaced with a rock, and the mud with firm ground. And a new song fills his mouth. Rescue always produces praise.

Notice what happens next. David does not pretend that he can repay God. In verse 6, he says something surprising: “Sacrifice and offering you have not desired.” This was not a rejection of the sacrificial system, which God himself instituted, but a reminder that the sacrifices were never the point. What God wanted was an obedient heart. “You have given me an open ear.” The phrase may refer to a servant who willingly listens to his master. God wants those who hear him and respond.

Then David says, “Behold, I have come; in the scroll of the book it is written of me.” In David’s setting, this likely refers to the king’s duty described in the law (Deuteronomy 17:18-20). But Hebrews 10 reads it as the voice of Christ. When the Son came into the world, he said, “a body have you prepared for me” (the Greek translation of verse 6 that Hebrews quotes). The animal sacrifices could not take away sins. So Christ came, and he said: “I have come to do your will, O God.” By that will, we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

This is how the New Testament reads the Old. David’s experience is real, but it is also a shadow. His delight in doing God’s will is a faint picture of the perfect delight of the Son. His rescue from the pit is a hint of the great rescue from the grave. His proclamation in the great congregation looks ahead to the gospel going to the nations.

The last verses make an important point about testimony. David does not hide his deliverance. He proclaims God’s faithfulness and salvation and does not conceal his steadfast love. We are rescued so that others will see and trust.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 40:6-8 is quoted in Hebrews 10:5-7 and is the voice of Christ as he comes into the world. The “open ear” recalls Isaiah 50:4-5, the Servant who listens and does not turn back. The rescue from the pit resonates with Joseph in Genesis 37, Jonah 2, and Psalm 30. The priority of obedience over sacrifice appears in 1 Samuel 15:22, Psalm 51:16-17, and Micah 6:6-8. “I delight to do your will” is the heart of Jesus’ own words in John 4:34 and Matthew 26:39.

STEP 6

Application

Think about the pit you have been rescued from. It may be sin, shame, fear, or something else. Write a short testimony of what God did, even just a few sentences. David did not hide his story, and your story may be what someone else needs to hear.

Examine your sense of delight. Do you obey God out of duty only, or is there any joy in it? Ask the Lord for the heart of the psalm: “your law is within my heart.” It is a gift, and Christ has given you his Spirit to produce it.

Finally, thank Jesus for saying what you could not say. He came to do the Father’s will. Because he did, you are free to approach.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for drawing you out of the pit and putting a new song in your mouth.

Thank him for the Son who came to do his will.

Ask him to give you delight in doing it.

HEBREWS 1:3

DAY 825 · WEEK 118

Psalm 110

Priest forever after the order of Melchizedek

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Psalm · 7 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 110. It is only seven verses long, but it is the most quoted psalm in the New Testament. Read it slowly and mark the two oaths: God's promise to make the king sit at his right hand, and his oath that the king is also a priest forever. Note how the Lord speaks to "my Lord."

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

David wrote this psalm, and Jesus himself used it to stump the religious leaders. In Mark 12:35-37, Jesus asked how David could call the Messiah "my Lord" if the Messiah was merely David's son. The psalm contains a puzzle that is solved only in the person of Jesus. It pictures a king who is also a priest, which was forbidden in Israel, and who reigns at God's right hand over his enemies. Hebrews returns to this psalm repeatedly. In the unit you are reading now, Psalm 110 is the foundation of the argument that Christ is a high priest after the order of Melchizedek.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD says to my Lord" (v. 1). David, the king, speaks of another who is his Lord.
2. The Lord is told to sit at the right hand of God until his enemies are made his footstool (v. 1).
3. The scepter of the king will extend from Zion, and he will rule in the midst of his enemies (v. 2).
4. His people offer themselves freely on the day of his power, "in holy garments" (v. 3).
5. "The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind: You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek" (v. 4).

6. The Lord at God's right hand will shatter kings on the day of his wrath and execute judgment among the nations (vv. 5-6).
7. The last verse is surprising: "He will drink from the brook by the way; therefore he will lift up his head" (v. 7).
8. The psalm combines two offices that never met in Israel, king and priest.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Psalm 110 is a royal psalm with an astonishing claim. The first verse is a conversation within God. "The LORD" (Yahweh) speaks to "my Lord" (Adonai), and invites him to sit at his right hand. David was the king of Israel, and no one was above him except God. So who is this Lord whom David calls his own? Jesus raised exactly this question, and the New Testament gives the answer: the Messiah is David's son and David's Lord. He is the descendant who is also the divine Son.

Verses 1-3 describe his reign. He sits at God's right hand, the place of authority, until his enemies are subdued. The conquest does not depend on his strength alone, because the LORD himself puts the enemies under his feet. Yet verse 2 adds that he rules from Zion in the midst of his enemies. He is already reigning, even though his enemies are not yet fully defeated. This is the "already and not yet" of the kingdom. And verse 3 says his people will volunteer on the day of his power. They are not conscripted but willing, clothed in holiness.

Verse 4 is the center of the psalm. "The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind: You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek." Two things stand out. First, God takes an oath. The Levitical priests were not appointed with an oath, but this priest is. Second, he is a priest forever, which means his priesthood has no end. The order of Melchizedek is not the Levitical order. It is the order of the priest-king who met Abraham in Genesis 14 and blessed him. This verse is the hinge of Hebrews 5-7. Hebrews argues that if there is a new priest of a different order, then the Levitical priesthood was never intended to be final.

The rest of the psalm describes judgment. The Lord at God's right hand will shatter kings and fill the places with corpses. This language is graphic, and it is meant to be. The reign of Christ includes the defeat of every evil power. Yet the final image is not one of bloodshed but of weariness: he drinks from a brook along the way and lifts up his head. The conquering king pauses to drink. He is human, and his victory is won in a body that gets thirsty.

The psalm gathers the two great themes of the book of Hebrews: Christ is a king who reigns, and a priest who intercedes. He sits because his work is finished, and he reigns because his enemies will be subdued.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 110:1 is quoted in Matthew 22:44, Acts 2:34-35, and Hebrews 1:13. Verse 4 is quoted in Hebrews 5:6, 7:17, and 7:21. The priest-king Melchizedek appears in Genesis 14:18-20, which you read in Unit 3. The Davidic promise of 2 Samuel 7 supports the royal side, and Zechariah 6:12-13 anticipates a priest who will sit and rule on his throne. The footstool imagery recalls Joshua 10:24 and 1 Corinthians 15:25.

STEP 6

Application

Pause to consider that the one who sits at God's right hand is also the one who prays for you. The reigning king and the sympathetic priest are the same person. Whatever you are afraid of, he rules over it, and whatever you are ashamed of, he has covered it.

Think about being one of his willing people. Verse 3 says they offer themselves freely. What is one thing you could offer him freely this week, such as time, money, or an act of service?

And take courage in the final image. Your Lord is not a distant figure who never grew tired. He knows weariness, and he lifts his head in victory.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Bow to Jesus as your king and priest forever.
- Thank him for the oath that cannot change.
- Ask him to rule over what resists him in your life.

THE READING

Today's reading

Today there is no new reading. This week you opened the book of Hebrews and read three Psalms that Hebrews draws on. Take a few moments today to be still before the Son you have been reading about. If you have time, reread Hebrews 1:1-4 slowly.

Memory Verse for the Week

HEBREWS 1:3

REST

Meditation

Hebrews 1:3 is the center of the week. In a single sentence, it tells you who Jesus is and what he did.

"The radiance of the glory of God." Light streams from the sun and shares its nature. You cannot have the sun without the light. In the same way, the Son is not a created messenger who tells us about God. He is God's glory shining out. If you want to know what God is like, you look at Jesus.

"The exact imprint of his nature." A seal presses a mark into wax, and the mark reproduces every detail. The Son is the exact expression of the Father's being.

“He upholds the universe by the word of his power.” Everything that exists depends on him right now. The same Jesus who held a child and wept at a tomb is holding the galaxies together.

“After making purification for sins, he sat down.” This is the part most likely to change your week. He sat down. Priests in the old covenant stood daily, offering sacrifices that could never fully remove sin. Christ finished the work. There is nothing left for you to add to it. When you doubt that you are forgiven, remember that the one who made purification is seated, and the work is done.

Say the verse aloud. Carry it with you this week, especially into moments of anxiety. The Son who upholds the universe is the Son who has already dealt with your sin.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began Hebrews, the book that shows how the whole Old Testament points to Christ. You read the opening declaration that God has spoken finally in his Son, and you saw the Son’s superiority over angels. You heard the first warning against drifting, and you watched the Son become human to free us from the fear of death. You read the comparison of Jesus with Moses and the call to enter God’s rest while it is still called today. You saw that Jesus is a great high priest who can sympathize with our weakness, and you read the sober warning in chapter 6 alongside the anchor of God’s oath. In the Psalms, you sang Psalm 95, heard the voice of the Son in Psalm 40, and saw the priest-king of Psalm 110.

Behind it all stands a single truth: the Son is greater than everything that came before him, and he is for you.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

What does it mean to you that God has spoken finally and fully in his Son? Think about how you approach Scripture. Do you read the Old Testament as incomplete or as a story that moves toward Christ? What would change if you read every page as pointing to him?

How does Jesus’ priesthood change the way you approach God in prayer? Hebrews 4:14-16 says he understands your weakness, has passed through the heavens, and invites you to draw near. Think of a specific struggle or failure you have been reluctant to bring to God. What would it look like to bring it to him today, in the name of the priest who knows what it is like to be tempted?

Where are you most tempted to drift, harden your heart, or neglect your salvation? The warnings of Hebrews are meant to keep you close to Christ, not to frighten you away. Name one practice that could help you stay attentive this coming week, and one person who could encourage you in it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the finished work of his Son.

Worship Jesus as the radiance of God's glory.

Rest in all he has done.

DAY 827 · WEEK 119

Hebrews 7:1-28

Melchizedek, the better priest

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 28 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 7:1-28, and if you can, reread Genesis 14:17-20 first. The argument here is dense, so read it twice if needed. The core claim is simple: if perfection had been possible through the Levitical priesthood, there would have been no need for another priest to arise.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Last week the author mentioned Melchizedek and then paused to rebuke his readers. Now he returns to the subject and gives it a full chapter. Why does this obscure figure from Genesis matter so much? Because he is the key to understanding how Jesus, who descended from the tribe of Judah and not Levi, can serve as a priest at all. The readers were Jewish Christians who revered the Levitical priesthood as God's own institution. The author does not belittle it. He shows that Scripture itself, in Genesis 14 and Psalm 110, pointed beyond it. This chapter argues that the old priesthood was a temporary shadow, and that the permanent reality has come in Christ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. Melchizedek is "king of righteousness" and "king of peace," king of Salem and priest of God Most High (vv. 1-2).
2. He is described as "without father or mother or genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but resembling the Son of God" (v. 3).
3. Abraham gave him a tenth of the spoils, and Melchizedek blessed Abraham. "It is beyond dispute that the inferior is blessed by the superior" (v. 7).
4. Levi, still in the loins of Abraham, paid tithes through him (vv. 9-10).

5. If perfection had come through the Levitical priesthood, why would another priest arise "after the order of Melchizedek" (v. 11)?
6. A change of priesthood requires a change of law (v. 12), and Jesus descended from Judah, a tribe with no priestly role (v. 14).
7. Jesus became a priest "by the power of an indestructible life" and not by ancestry (v. 16).
8. "He always lives to make intercession for them" (v. 25), and he is "holy, innocent, unstained, separated from sinners" (v. 26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

This chapter is an exercise in careful Bible reading. The author takes a few verses of Genesis and a single line of Psalm 110 and draws out their full implications. His argument has three steps.

First, Melchizedek is greater than Abraham. Abraham gave him a tenth and received his blessing. In ancient culture, the one who blesses is superior, and the one who tithes is inferior. Since Levi descended from Abraham, the whole Levitical priesthood, in a sense, tithed to Melchizedek in Abraham. So Melchizedek's priesthood has a greater standing than Aaron's.

Second, the very existence of the Melchizedek priest in Psalm 110, centuries after Moses, shows that the Levitical system was incomplete. If the old priesthood could bring perfection, meaning a full and lasting cleansing of conscience and access to God, then no one would have needed to speak of a different priest. But God did speak of one. A new priesthood implies a new law, because the priesthood and the law are tied together. And that is exactly what the new covenant is. The author is not saying the law was bad, but that it was provisional, preparing for something better.

Third, Jesus is that priest. His qualification is not ancestry but "the power of an indestructible life." The Levitical priests died and were replaced, one after another. Jesus lives forever, and therefore his priesthood does not pass to anyone else. Verse 24 says "he holds his priesthood permanently." The practical result is verse 25: "he is able to save to the uttermost those who draw near to God through him, since he always lives to make intercession for them." This is one of the most comforting verses in the New Testament. Uttermost means completely, to the end. The saving power of Christ does not run out, and his intercession does not stop.

What about the description of Melchizedek as having no father, mother, or genealogy? The author is not saying that Melchizedek was a mysterious immortal. He is reading the silence of Genesis. The narrative gives no parentage and records no death. Therefore, as presented in Scripture, he resembles the eternal Son of God. He is a type, a living picture drawn by the Holy Spirit, and the original is Christ.

Verses 26-28 sum it up. We needed a high priest who is holy, innocent, and unstained, who has no need to offer sacrifices for his own sins first, and who offered one sacrifice once for all when he offered up himself. The old priests had to offer for themselves and then for the people, day after day. Jesus did it once, and it was enough.

STEP 5

Connection

The backbone of this chapter is Genesis 14:17-20 and Psalm 110:4. The tithe and blessing look back to Genesis 12:2-3 and forward to the new covenant in Hebrews 8. The Levitical priesthood was established in Exodus 28-29 and Leviticus 8-9. Isaiah 53:12 pictures the Servant who makes intercession for transgressors, and Romans 8:34 gives the same truth about Christ's present ministry.

STEP 6

Application

First, take comfort in "to the uttermost." If you suspect that your sin or weakness is too much for Christ, this verse says otherwise. He saves completely and perpetually.

Second, let the phrase "he always lives to make intercession" shape your prayers. When you do not know what to say, remember that someone is already speaking for you.

Third, notice that Hebrews treats the Old Testament as a book about Christ. Next time you come across a puzzling Old Testament passage, ask: how might this point forward to Jesus? You may not always find the answer, but the question will make you a better reader.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus that he is your priest forever and always lives to pray for you.
- Tell him what you need him to intercede for.
- Thank him that he saves you to the uttermost.

HEBREWS 12:1-2

DAY 828 · WEEK 119

Hebrews 8:1-9:28

The better covenant; the better sacrifice

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 50 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 8:1-9:28. This is the theological heart of the letter. Look for the contrast between the earthly tent and the heavenly one, and between the blood of animals and the blood of Christ. Read the quotation of Jeremiah 31:31-34 in 8:8-12 carefully. You encountered it earlier in this plan on the covenant day.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The author has argued that Christ is a priest of a better order. Now he states the main point: we have such a high priest, who is seated in heaven, and he serves in a better sanctuary under a better covenant. This section is where the language of Hebrews becomes most temple-centered, and it can feel unfamiliar. But the author is working with the elements his readers knew well: the tabernacle, the Day of Atonement, and the blood of sacrifices. He shows that these were copies and shadows, and that Christ has entered the reality. This is the heart of how the old covenant fits with the new.

STEP 3

Observation

1. The main point: we have a high priest who is seated at the right hand of the throne in heaven (8:1).
2. The earthly priests serve “a copy and shadow of the heavenly things” (8:5).
3. Christ has obtained a ministry “as much more excellent” as the covenant he mediates is better, “enacted on better promises” (8:6).
4. Jeremiah 31:31-34 is quoted in full, with its promise of a new covenant, laws on hearts, and sins remembered no more (8:8-12).
5. “In speaking of a new covenant, he makes the first one obsolete” (8:13).

6. The first tent had its furnishings, and only the high priest entered the Most Holy Place, once a year, with blood (9:1-7).
7. The Holy Spirit signified that the way into the holy places was not yet opened (9:8).
8. "Without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness of sins" (9:22). Christ appeared "once for all at the end of the ages to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself" (9:26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The language of copy and shadow is crucial. The author does not say the tabernacle was a mistake. It was designed by God, built according to the pattern shown to Moses. But a pattern is not the thing itself. A shadow tells you something real about the object that casts it, but you cannot embrace a shadow. The tabernacle taught Israel that God is holy, that sin is serious, that blood is needed, and that a mediator must stand between God and humanity. All of that was true. But it could not permanently deal with sin.

Chapter 8 then quotes Jeremiah's promise, the longest Old Testament quotation in the New Testament. God says the days are coming when he will make a new covenant. Its features are striking. The law will be written on hearts. Everyone will know the LORD, from the least to the greatest. And God will remember sins no more. The author's comment is quietly devastating: by speaking of a "new" covenant, God has marked the old one as obsolete and ready to vanish. The old covenant did not fail because God failed. Jeremiah 31:32 says Israel broke it. The new covenant is better because it deals with the heart problem that the old one could only expose.

Chapter 9 describes the day of atonement in detail. Once a year, the high priest entered the Most Holy Place carrying blood for himself and the people. The Holy Spirit was teaching something by this arrangement: the way into God's presence was not yet open. The curtain remained. The sacrifices could cleanse the outside, providing ceremonial purity, but they could not clear the conscience.

Then the contrast arrives in verse 11: "But when Christ appeared as a high priest of the good things that have come..." He entered not an earthly tent but the heavenly sanctuary, not with the blood of goats and calves but with his own blood. And he did so once for all, securing an eternal redemption. If the blood of animals could sanctify for the purification of the flesh, how much more will the blood of Christ cleanse our conscience from dead works to serve the living God. The cleansing is deeper because the sacrifice is greater.

The author uses a legal image in verses 16-17. A covenant is like a will. It takes effect when the one who made it dies. Christ's death put the new covenant into effect, and he mediates its promised inheritance to those who are called.

The chapter ends with a striking picture. Humans die once and then face judgment, so Christ was offered once to bear the sins of many, and he will appear a second time, not to deal with sin but to save those who are eagerly waiting for him. The first coming dealt with sin. The second will bring salvation in its fullness.

STEP 5

Connection

This chapter draws on Exodus 25-40, Leviticus 16 (the Day of Atonement), and Jeremiah 31:31-34, which you studied on the covenant day earlier. The blood of the covenant echoes Exodus 24:8, and Jesus used the same language at the Last Supper in Luke 22:20. The "second appearing" links to Acts 1:11, the ascension passage, and to Titus 2:13.

STEP 6

Application

First, let verse 14 reach your conscience. If you still carry guilt over sins God has forgiven, remember that Christ's blood does not just cover the past. It cleanses the conscience. Confess what is true, and then rest in what is done.

Second, notice the promise that God's law is written on hearts. If you have felt that obedience is a burden, ask the Holy Spirit to make God's commands your delight, as he promised.

Third, take comfort in the phrase "once for all." There is no sacrifice left for you to make to earn forgiveness. Serve God because you are cleansed, not to become clean.

Fourth, live in expectation. Christ will appear a second time. Ask yourself how your week would change if you were eagerly waiting for him.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the new covenant sealed with the blood of his Son.
- Ask him to cleanse your conscience from dead works.
- Ask him to write his law on your heart.

DAY 829 · WEEK 119

Hebrews 10:1-39

The shadow vs. the reality; the new and living way

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 39 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 10:1-39. Notice the shift from argument to exhortation around verse 19. The first half completes the case that Christ's sacrifice is final. The second half draws three "let us" conclusions for how to live. Pay attention to verses 26-31, which are sobering, and verses 32-39, which are full of encouragement.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The author has spent several chapters building his case for the better priest, better covenant, and better sacrifice. Chapter 10 brings the argument to its climax and then turns on a hinge into the application. The first section returns to the idea of shadow and reality, and the second part invites readers to enter by the new and living way. Throughout, there is a pastoral concern. These Christians had faced hostility and lost property. They were tempted to withdraw. The author wants them to see that the cost of leaving Christ is far greater than the cost of staying.

STEP 3

Observation

1. The law has "a shadow of the good things to come," not the true form of these realities (10:1).
2. If animal sacrifices could cleanse, they would have stopped. Instead they are "a reminder of sins every year" (10:2-3).
3. "It is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins" (10:4).
4. Psalm 40:6-8 is quoted as the words of Christ: "a body have you prepared for me… Behold, I have come to do your will, O God" (10:5-7).

5. “By a single offering he has perfected for all time those who are being sanctified” (10:14).
6. We have confidence to enter the holy places by the blood of Jesus, “by the new and living way that he opened for us through the curtain, that is, through his flesh” (10:19-20).
7. Three exhortations follow: “let us draw near,” “let us hold fast,” and “let us consider how to stir up one another to love and good works” (10:22-24).
8. “We are not of those who shrink back and are destroyed, but of those who have faith and preserve their souls” (10:39).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The opening of chapter 10 distills the argument. The law offered a shadow, not the image itself. If the sacrifices of the Day of Atonement could have perfected the worshipers, they would have been offered no more. But the very repetition showed their limitation. Each year the people were reminded of their sins, because the blood of bulls and goats could not take sin away.

Then comes the voice of Christ in Psalm 40. The Son speaks to the Father at the moment of the incarnation: sacrifices and offerings you did not desire, but a body you prepared for me. “Behold, I have come to do your will.” The will of God is that we be sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. This is the center of the chapter. A body was prepared so that a sacrifice could be made that actually works.

The contrast between the standing priests and the seated Christ is the author’s recurring image. Every priest stands daily, offering the same sacrifices that can never take away sins. But Christ, having offered a single sacrifice for sins for all time, sat down. And because of that single offering, he has perfected for all time those who are being sanctified. Notice the tenses. The perfection is complete, and the sanctification is ongoing. Believers are already fully cleansed in their standing and are still being made holy in their experience. The new covenant promise is repeated: “I will remember their sins and their lawless deeds no more.” And where there is forgiveness, there is no longer any offering for sin.

Now the hinge. Verses 19-25 begin with “therefore” and turn argument into invitation. The curtain that separated humanity from God’s presence has been opened through Christ’s flesh. In the temple, the curtain was torn from top to bottom at the crucifixion (Matthew 27:51), and the author uses this image: the curtain is his flesh. We can enter with confidence, with hearts sprinkled clean and bodies washed with pure water. The three exhortations follow: draw near in faith, hold fast the confession of hope without wavering, and stir one another up to love and good works, "not neglecting to meet together."

Verses 26-31 are among the most sobering in the New Testament. If we deliberately go on sinning after receiving the knowledge of the truth, no sacrifice remains. The author is describing those who persistently reject Christ and treat his blood as common. To spurn the Son is a more serious offense than breaking the law of Moses. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." The point is not to undermine assurance but to underline how much is at stake.

But he ends with encouragement. He reminds them of their former courage: they endured a hard struggle, were publicly exposed to reproach, and joyfully accepted the plundering of their property, since they knew they had a better and abiding possession. He tells them not to throw away their confidence. "For you have need of endurance." The one who is coming will come and will not delay. "The righteous shall live by faith." And then comes the closing assurance: "We are not of those who shrink back and are destroyed, but of those who have faith and preserve their souls."

STEP 5

Connection

This chapter quotes Psalm 40 (Day 824), Jeremiah 31 (Day 828), Deuteronomy 32:35-36, and Habakkuk 2:3-4. The "new and living way" through the curtain links to Exodus 26:31-33, where the veil separated the holy place from the most holy place, and to the tearing of the veil in Matthew 27:51. Paul quotes Habakkuk 2:4 in Romans 1:17 and Galatians 3:11. The call to meet together prepares for the next day's doctrinal reading.

STEP 6

Application

First, accept the invitation. You have confidence to enter God's presence by the blood of Jesus. If you have been treating prayer as a duty or a risk, remember that the way is open.

Second, examine your commitment to gathering with the church. Verse 25 does not treat attendance as optional. Ask who in your church needs your encouragement, and make a plan to talk to them this week.

Third, think about endurance. The original readers had lost property for Christ. What have you been willing to lose? What have you been unwilling to risk? Ask the Lord for courage.

Fourth, take verse 38 as a daily motto: the righteous shall live by faith.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for opening the way through the curtain by his body.

Draw near with a true heart in full assurance, and tell him so.

Ask him to help you hold fast and encourage others.

DAY 830 · WEEK 119

Acts 2:42-47; Hebrews 10:24-25

Covenanted community

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Doctrine · 8 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Acts 2:42-47 and Hebrews 10:24-25. These two short passages describe the same reality from different angles: the first shows what a gathered church looked like in the days after Pentecost, and the second urges believers to keep meeting. Read them together and ask: what does it mean to belong to a church, not just to attend one?

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Yesterday's reading ended with an exhortation that tends to be passed over quickly: "not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some." Today we pause to think about what that means. Many new believers assume Christianity is primarily a private relationship with God, and that church is a helpful extra. The Bible does not present it that way. From the first day of the church's life, those who believed were devoted to a community. The people of the new covenant are a family, a body, and a household. This pause examines the biblical basis for committed membership in a local church.

STEP 3

Observation

1. The first Christians "devoted themselves to the apostles" teaching and the fellowship, to the breaking of bread and the prayers' (Acts 2:42).
2. They had "all things in common" and sold possessions to give to anyone in need (2:44-45).
3. They met "day by day," both in the temple and in homes (2:46).
4. The Lord added to their number "day by day those who were being saved" (2:47). Salvation and community are joined.

5. Hebrews 10:24 says to "consider how to stir up one another to love and good works." The verb is intentional and active.
6. Verse 25 warns against "neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some." Even in the first century, some were drifting away.
7. The motivation is eschatological: "as you see the Day drawing near."
8. Both passages assume a visible, identifiable community. Someone could be "added" to it and someone could "neglect" it.

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

A local church is a gathered community of baptized believers who have covenanted together to worship God, hear his word, observe the ordinances, encourage one another, and carry out the mission of Christ in a particular place. Membership in such a church is how a Christian visibly and formally commits to the body of Christ.

The New Testament does not use the exact phrase "church membership," but it describes the reality. In the book of Acts, believers are "added" to the church (2:41, 47). Some in Jerusalem "joined" the disciples, and others "dared not join them" (5:13). In 1 Corinthians 5, Paul tells the church to remove an unrepentant man from their fellowship, which presupposes a recognizable body with a boundary. In 2 Corinthians 2:6, Paul speaks of a punishment "by the majority." In Hebrews 13:17, believers are told to obey and submit to their leaders, "for they are keeping watch over your souls." You cannot be accountable to leaders you do not know or follow leaders you have not identified. Peter says the elders are to shepherd "the flock of God that is among you" (1 Peter 5:2). A flock has a defined membership.

Why does it matter? First, because Christ loves the church. Ephesians 5:25 says he "gave himself up for her." To neglect the church is to neglect the bride of Christ. Second, because the Christian life is lived in community. The New Testament is full of "one another" commands: love one another, bear one another's burdens, forgive one another, teach and admonish one another, confess your sins to one another, and encourage one another. These commands cannot be obeyed alone. Third, because God gave us spiritual gifts for the common good (1 Corinthians 12:7). If you are not part of a body, your gifts go unused and others miss what God intended for them. Fourth, because the church exercises discipline and gives assurance. Jesus gave the church authority in Matthew 16 and 18 to affirm credible professions of faith and to correct those who stray. Baptism and the Lord's Supper are practiced within the church. Finally, because a committed church is a witness to the world. Jesus said in John 13:35, "By this all people will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

What should membership look like? A member commits to regular attendance and participation, to supporting the church with time, gifts, and money, to submitting to the leadership and the discipline of the church, to pursuing peace and unity, and to serving others. The church, in turn, commits to teach, pray for, care for, and shepherd its members. This is a covenant, and it echoes the covenants that have run throughout the Bible.

A few cautions are in order. No church is perfect, and joining one means joining a community of imperfect people. Some have been wounded by churches, and that grief is real. But the answer is to find a healthy church, one that preaches the gospel faithfully, practices the ordinances rightly, and cares for its members. Membership is not a requirement for salvation. It is the fruit of salvation and the normal setting of Christian growth.

A final word to those who feel they can follow Jesus privately. Scripture knows no solitary Christians. When God saves a person, he adds them to a body. The hand cannot say to the foot, "I have no need of you" (1 Corinthians 12:21). And the Christian who drifts from the gathering is at risk, because we are not designed to persevere alone.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Acts 2 gives us a picture of the church in its earliest and freshest form. After Pentecost, three thousand people were baptized and added. The text immediately describes what they did: they devoted themselves. The verb implies persistence and commitment, not a casual drop-in. Four things marked them: teaching, fellowship, the breaking of bread, and prayer. These are the basic activities of a church in every age.

The fellowship described in the passage was practical. They shared what they had. They saw a need, and they met it. This was not a forced system but a spontaneous generosity that grew from the gospel. They met both in the temple courts and from house to house. The large gatherings and the small gatherings were both necessary. They ate with glad and generous hearts, praising God. And the result was that outsiders were drawn in, and "the Lord added to their number day by day those who were being saved."

Hebrews 10:24-25 addresses the same church a generation later, when the early enthusiasm was fading. Some were neglecting to meet. Perhaps because of persecution, or fatigue, or doubt. The author's response is not a rebuke of those individuals but a call to the community. "Consider how to stir up one another." The word "stir up" is literally "provoke," and it is used elsewhere for sharp irritation. Here it is used positively: we are to provoke one another to love and good works. That requires being close enough to know what the other person needs.

The author gives the reason: “as you see the Day drawing near.” The more the return of Christ approaches, the more believers should gather, not less. The temptation in hard times is to withdraw. The biblical answer is to draw closer.

It is worth noticing that these two passages answer two different objections. Acts 2 answers the person who says, “I can worship God just as well on my own.” The earliest believers did not think of discipleship as a solo project. Everything they were devoted to, the teaching, the meals, the prayers, and the sharing of possessions, required other people. Hebrews 10 answers a different objection: “I’ve been hurt, tired, or disappointed, so I’ll step back for a while.” The author does not deny that the Christian life is hard. He says that the answer to hardship is more community, because a believer who is isolated is vulnerable to the “deceitfulness of sin” (3:13) in a way that a believer surrounded by brothers and sisters is not.

Notice also what the gathering is for. It is not first about the programs or the building. Acts 2 centers on the apostles’ teaching, so the word of God sits at the heart. It includes the Lord’s Supper (“the breaking of bread”), where Christ’s sacrifice is proclaimed. It includes prayer. In other words, the church gathers around Christ and his gospel. Hebrews 10 puts the gathering inside a larger argument about Christ’s priesthood. We meet because we have a great high priest, because the curtain is open, and because we need each other to keep holding fast. The church is where the new covenant becomes visible. Membership is not an add-on to the gospel. It is the shape of life together under the gospel.

STEP 5

Connection

The church as a covenant community extends the covenant structure studied earlier in this plan. Israel was the assembly (qahal) of the LORD, and the church is the assembly of the new covenant (Hebrews 12:22-24). The body language of 1 Corinthians 12 and Romans 12, the household language of Ephesians 2:19 and 1 Timothy 3:15, and the shepherding language of 1 Peter 5 all assume a defined community. Matthew 18:15-20 describes the church’s authority, and Acts 20:28 charges elders to care for the flock.

STEP 6

Application

If you are not yet a member of a local church, consider this week how to take the next step. Talk to the pastor or a leader about what membership involves. If you are a member, ask whether you are living out your commitment. Do you attend regularly? Do you serve? Do you know others well enough to encourage them?

Choose one person in your church to stir up this week. Send a message, offer to meet, or invite them to a meal. Ask how you can pray for them. This is how the "one another" commands get lived out.

If you have been hurt by a church, bring that pain honestly to the Lord. He loves his church, and he can heal what has been broken. Pray for a community where you can be known and loved.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for loving his church and giving himself for her.

Ask him to make you a faithful member who meets with his people.

Ask him to show you how to encourage someone this week.

HEBREWS 12:1-2

DAY 831 · WEEK 119

Hebrews 11:1-40

Faith's hall of fame

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 40 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 11:1-40. This chapter is often called the "hall of faith," and it is worth reading it as a story rather than a list. Notice how each person acts on a promise they cannot yet see. As you read, pay attention to how the chapter begins with a definition and ends with a surprise: none of them received what was promised.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The last chapter ended with a call to endurance: "the righteous shall live by faith." Chapter 11 is the author's answer to the question, what does that look like? He walks through the Old Testament, and the people you have been reading about in this plan appear one after another: Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Sarah, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses, Rahab, and many more. Their stories are different, but their faith has the same shape. They believed God's word about what he would do, and they lived accordingly. For readers who were tired and tempted to quit, this was a gallery of encouragement. For us, it is a review of much of the Old Testament through the lens of faith.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen" (11:1).
2. "By faith we understand that the universe was created by the word of God" (11:3).
3. Abel, Enoch, and Noah are praised for worship, walking with God, and obedience on the basis of a warning about what was not yet seen (11:4-7).
4. Abraham went out "not knowing where he was going" and lived as a sojourner in tents (11:8-10).

5. These all "died in faith, not having received the things promised, but having seen them and greeted them from afar" (11:13).
6. They desired "a better country, that is, a heavenly one," and God "has prepared for them a city" (11:16).
7. Verses 32-38 list others whose faith led to victory and others whose faith led to suffering, torture, and exile.
8. "God had provided something better for us, that apart from us they should not be made perfect" (11:40).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The chapter begins with a definition. Faith is the assurance of things hoped for and the conviction of things not seen. It is not a leap in the dark or wishful thinking. It is confidence in what God has said, which stands on his character and promise. Faith gives substance to what is hoped for and evidence for what cannot yet be seen.

The author illustrates this with an extended survey. Some things stand out. First, faith always responds to a word. Noah heard a warning. Abraham heard a call. Moses heard a promise. Faith is not generated from within. It is a response to God speaking. Second, faith acts. Abel offered. Noah built. Abraham went. Sarah considered him faithful who had promised. Faith is not merely inward conviction. It is obedience.

Third, faith endures. Notice verses 13-16. These people lived as strangers and exiles on the earth. They could have returned to the land they left, but they desired a better country. Because of that, "God is not ashamed to be called their God." Faith is not fully satisfied by this world. It looks for a city with foundations, whose designer and builder is God.

The most remarkable examples come in verses 17-19. Abraham, when tested, offered up Isaac, "considering that God was able even to raise him from the dead." You read this in Genesis 22. The author reveals what was going on in Abraham's mind: he believed in resurrection before it happened. That is the kind of faith that makes sense of an impossible command.

Verses 32-38 are striking. The author, running short of time, summarizes: some by faith conquered kingdoms, shut the mouths of lions, and escaped the edge of the sword. Others by faith were tortured, mocked, imprisoned, and killed. "Of whom the world was not worthy." Both groups are commended for faith. Faith is not a guarantee of success or comfort. Sometimes it leads to victory in this life, and sometimes to suffering. In either case, God honors it.

Then comes the surprise. “And all these, though commended through their faith, did not receive what was promised, since God had provided something better for us.” The Old Testament saints waited, and we are living in the fulfillment of what they longed for. Christ has come. And they will not be made perfect without us. The family of faith is one, and its completion awaits all of God’s people together.

This is the proper way to read the chapter. It does not tell you to be like the heroes. It tells you that God was faithful to them, and that he will be faithful to you. The “cloud of witnesses” in the next chapter will be exactly these people, and they are cheering for you to run the race that they have finished.

STEP 5

Connection

Nearly every person in this chapter appears in the Old Testament stories you have read in this plan: Genesis 4 (Abel), Genesis 5 (Enoch), Genesis 6-9 (Noah), Genesis 12-22 (Abraham and Sarah), Genesis 27-50 (Isaac, Jacob, Joseph), and Exodus (Moses). The definition of faith recalls Genesis 15:6. The better country anticipates Revelation 21-22. The unnamed sufferers of verses 35-38 recall the prophets and the Maccabean martyrs, and the idea of God’s people waiting for the whole body to be completed anticipates Revelation 6:9-11.

STEP 6

Application

First, think about how you define faith. If you think of it as a feeling or a general positive attitude, let this chapter correct you. Faith is trusting what God has said and acting on it.

Second, identify one area where God has given you a clear word, in Scripture, but you have not yet acted. It might be forgiving someone, giving generously, or sharing the gospel. Take one concrete step.

Third, be encouraged that faith does not always bring ease. If you are suffering and wondering whether you are doing something wrong, notice the second half of the list. Faithful people suffered too. God was not ashamed of them.

Fourth, look at the “better” in verse 40. We have received what they longed for. Thank God that you live on this side of the cross.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God for faith that trusts his word when you cannot see the outcome.

Name a person from the chapter whose faith you want to follow.

Thank him that they all point to Jesus.

DAY 832 · WEEK 119

Hebrews 12:1-29

Run the race; Mount Zion; the discipline of God

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 29 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 12:1-29. Chapter 12 begins with the image of a race and ends with a vision of the heavenly Jerusalem. Pay attention to the word "therefore" in verse 1 and to the contrast between Mount Sinai and Mount Zion in verses 18-24. Notice also how the discipline of the Father is presented as love and not rejection.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The great chapter on faith led to a great crowd of witnesses, and now the author brings the argument home with a series of commands. These Christians are tired and discouraged, and they have faced hardship. The author does not offer a quick fix. Instead, he gives them three things: a model to follow in Jesus, a perspective on suffering as the discipline of a loving Father, and a vision of where they are going. The chapter ends with a sober reminder that the God who spoke at Sinai still speaks, and that he is a consuming fire.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us also lay aside every weight, and sin which clings so closely" (12:1).
2. "Let us run with endurance the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus, the founder and perfecter of our faith" (12:1-2).
3. Jesus endured the cross "for the joy that was set before him," despising the shame, and is seated at God's right hand (12:2).
4. Readers are told to "consider him who endured from sinners such hostility against himself, so that you may not grow weary or fainthearted" (12:3).
5. Proverbs 3:11-12 is quoted: "the Lord disciplines the one he loves" (12:5-6).

6. God disciplines us “for our good, that we may share his holiness” (12:10).
7. Mount Sinai (fear, fire, trembling) is contrasted with Mount Zion (the heavenly Jerusalem, angels, the church of the firstborn, Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant) (12:18-24).
8. “Our God is a consuming fire,” and we are receiving “a kingdom that cannot be shaken” (12:28-29).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The race image is familiar, but the details matter. The race is not a sprint but a long endurance run. Runners strip off whatever slows them. Hebrews names two things: weights and sin. A weight is not necessarily sinful. It may be a good thing that hinders you. Sin is the thing that clings so closely, and it is to be put off entirely. Both must go if the race is to be run well.

The center of the passage is verse 2. We run “looking to Jesus.” The Greek verb means to fix your eyes, to look away from everything else. He is the founder (the pioneer, the one who blazed the trail) and the perfecter (the one who brings it to completion) of our faith. He is not only an example of faith but the source and goal of it. And what did he do? He endured the cross for the joy set before him. Joy and cross are not contradictory. The cross was the path to the joy of redeeming his people and sitting at the Father’s right hand. He despised the shame, meaning he counted it as nothing compared to the joy. This is why we can endure: the one who ran first has finished and is waiting.

Then the author addresses the problem of suffering. The readers had suffered, but not unto blood. He reaches for Proverbs 3 and reminds them that they are sons. Discipline is a sign of a father’s love. This word “discipline” is not just punishment but training, the whole process of upbringing. A father who does not discipline his children shows indifference. God disciplines us “for our good, that we may share his holiness.” It is painful at the moment, but it yields “the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it.” Notice that this does not say all suffering is punishment for specific sins. It says that God uses hardship for our growth.

The final half of the chapter contrasts two mountains. At Sinai, the people trembled. There was darkness, gloom, and a voice so terrifying that they begged not to hear it. Even Moses said, “I tremble with fear.” But the Christian has not come to Sinai. We have come to Mount Zion, the city of the living God, with innumerable angels in festal gathering, the assembly of the firstborn, God the judge of all, the spirits of the righteous made perfect, and Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and the sprinkled blood that speaks a better word than the blood of Abel. Abel's blood cried out for vengeance, and Christ's blood cries out for forgiveness.

Yet the author does not let the contrast lull anyone into complacency. "See that you do not refuse him who is speaking." If Israel did not escape when they refused the one who warned on earth, how much less will we escape if we reject the one who warns from heaven? The shaking of heaven and earth will remove everything temporary, and only what is unshakable will remain. We are receiving that kingdom. Therefore, let us offer worship with reverence and awe, "for our God is a consuming fire."

STEP 5

Connection

Abel appears in Genesis 4 and again in 11:4. Sinai's terrors are described in Exodus 19-20 and Deuteronomy 4-5. The shaking of the heavens and earth is from Haggai 2:6. Proverbs 3:11-12 supplies the discipline text. The "heavenly Jerusalem" anticipates Revelation 21, and the "consuming fire" comes from Deuteronomy 4:24. You read Psalm 95 earlier this week, and its warning against refusing God's voice stands behind verse 25.

STEP 6

Application

First, ask what weights and sins are slowing your race. A weight might be a habit, a relationship, or a pursuit that is not wrong in itself but is dulling your devotion. Name one thing to lay aside this week.

Second, when you grow weary, fix your eyes on Jesus. Read one of the Gospel accounts of the cross and consider what he endured for you.

Third, reread a current hardship through the lens of verse 6. If you are in a season of difficulty, ask what God might be teaching you. You may not know. But trust that he does not waste suffering.

Fourth, worship with reverence. The God who welcomes you is also the God who is a consuming fire. Let that shape how you come into church this Sunday.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to help you run the race with endurance, eyes on Jesus.

Tell him what weight or sin you need to lay aside.

Thank him for his discipline as a Father.

THE READING

Today's reading

Today there is no new reading. This week you read the heart of Hebrews, the better priest, the better covenant, and the better sacrifice, followed by the call to faith and endurance. If you have time, reread Hebrews 12:1-3 slowly. Let it be a rest for your eyes, and let them settle on Jesus.

HEBREWS 12:1-2

REST

Meditation

Hebrews 12:1-2 gathers the week into one picture. After chapters of argument about priests and sacrifices, the author puts you on the track and tells you where to look.

"Let us run with endurance the race that is set before us." The race is set before you. God has not asked you to run someone else's course. He has placed you where you are. And the race requires endurance, because it is long.

"Looking to Jesus." The whole letter has been building to this. After describing his deity, his humanity, his priesthood, his covenant, and his sacrifice, the author says: look at him. When you are tired, look at him. When you are tempted, look at him. When you have failed, look at him.

“The founder and perfecter of our faith.” He started your faith, and he will finish it. You are not trusting in the strength of your own commitment. The one who began a good work in you will bring it to completion.

“For the joy that was set before him endured the cross.” He knew what lay ahead. The cross was real agony, and the joy was real too, because the joy was you. He saw the family he was gaining and he endured.

“And is seated at the right hand.” Again he sits. The race has been run, and the victory has been won. Say the verse aloud a few times today. When fatigue comes this week, let it send you to Jesus.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week brought you to the center of the book of Hebrews. You read about Melchizedek, the priest-king, and saw why the order of Aaron could never be final. You read about the better covenant that Jeremiah promised and the better sacrifice that Christ offered once for all. You saw the shadow and the reality side by side, and you heard the invitation to enter by the new and living way. You paused to consider the local church and what it means to be covenanted with a body of believers. You walked through the great chapter on faith, from Abel to the unnamed martyrs, and saw that all of them were waiting for something better. And you ended with a call to run with endurance, looking to Jesus, who is the founder and perfecter of faith.

The week’s message is simple. Everything the Old Testament pointed toward, Christ has done. You can come with confidence, you can endure with hope, and you can look to him.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

What does “once for all” mean for you personally? Hebrews says Christ’s sacrifice is complete and cannot be repeated or improved. Where do you still try to earn God’s approval, through performance, guilt, or striving? What would it look like to rest in a finished work?

How does Hebrews 12:2 change the way you think about suffering? Jesus endured the cross for the joy set before him. He knew what was on the other side. Think of a current difficulty. How might it look different if you saw it through the lens of the Savior who endured and is now seated in victory? What does it mean for you to look to him?

Who are the people in your life who stir you up to love and good works? Think of one person who encourages your faith, and one person you could encourage. Consider writing a note or sending a message today to say thank you or to offer prayer.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for offering a single sacrifice for sins and sitting down.

Rest in his finished work.

Tell him what you are trying to earn that he has already finished.

DAY 834 · WEEK 120

Hebrews 13:1-25

Love, hospitality, and Jesus, the same yesterday and today

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Reading · 25 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Hebrews 13:1-25. After twelve chapters of argument and exhortation, the letter ends with a series of practical commands and a closing benediction. Read it as a picture of what the Christian life looks like when it flows from the finished work of Christ. Pay special attention to verse 8 and verses 20-21.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The author has been building toward a conclusion for twelve chapters. Now, in the closing chapter, the theology becomes concrete. If Christ is greater than angels, Moses, and the priests, if his sacrifice is finished, and if we have a kingdom that cannot be shaken, how should we live? The answer is surprisingly down to earth: love one another, show hospitality, honor marriage, be content with what you have, remember your leaders, and offer praise and good works as sacrifices. The letter ends with one of the most beautiful benedictions in the Bible. The shape of the chapter teaches us that doctrine is meant to produce love.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Let brotherly love continue. Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares” (13:1-2).
2. Believers are to remember those in prison and those who are mistreated, “since you also are in the body” (13:3).
3. “Let marriage be held in honor among all, and let the marriage bed be undefiled” (13:4).
4. “Keep your life free from love of money, and be content with what you have, for he has said, ‘I will never leave you nor forsake you’” (13:5).
5. “Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever” (13:8).

6. “Let us go to him outside the camp and bear the reproach he endured” (13:13). Christ suffered outside the gate.

7. “Through him then let us continually offer up a sacrifice of praise to God” and do not neglect to do good and share (13:15-16).

8. The closing prayer asks the “God of peace” who brought again from the dead “our Lord Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep” to equip you with everything good to do his will (13:20-21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The commands of chapter 13 are brief, and each one is rooted in the gospel. Brotherly love is the first. The word is philadelphia, the love of siblings. If Christ has made us family, we are to treat each other as family. Hospitality follows. The example of entertaining angels unawares recalls Abraham in Genesis 18 and Lot in Genesis 19. We never know who is at the door.

The call to remember prisoners is a call to empathy. Many in the original audience had experienced imprisonment, and the author asks them to identify with others who suffer. Marriage is honored. Contentment is the answer to the love of money, and the reason is not “because you have enough” but because “he has said, I will never leave you nor forsake you.” This is a quotation from Deuteronomy 31:6 and Joshua 1:5. The presence of God is the deepest provision. So we can say with confidence, “The Lord is my helper; I will not fear; what can man do to me?”

Verse 8 stands out like a single stone in a wall: “Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever.” The context is a warning against “diverse and strange teachings” (v. 9). Fads come and go, but Christ does not change. He is the same one that Abraham and Moses looked toward, and he is the same one who intercedes for us now, and he will be the same when he returns. His character is as reliable as his promise.

The next section (vv. 10-16) returns to the language of sacrifice. Jesus suffered outside the gate, like the bodies of the sin offerings burned outside the camp. The author calls the readers to join him there. This means bearing reproach, being willing to leave the comfort of what is socially acceptable and the old religious structures. “For here we have no lasting city, but we seek the city that is to come.” We are pilgrims. Yet there are still sacrifices we offer. Not for atonement, since that is finished, but sacrifices of praise, doing good, and sharing. “With such sacrifices God is pleased.”

The leaders of the church are to be remembered and obeyed. They keep watch over souls and will give an account. The author asks for prayer, and then he pronounces the benediction. “Now may the God of peace who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep, by the blood of the eternal covenant, equip you with everything good that you may do his will." This single sentence contains the whole letter in miniature: God, peace, resurrection, shepherd, blood, covenant, and equipping. The one who has done the work for us will also work in us. He equips us to do his will, working in us "that which is pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ." The glory belongs to him forever.

STEP 5

Connection

Hebrews 13:2 recalls Genesis 18-19. The promise of presence quotes Deuteronomy 31:6 and Joshua 1:5, and the confession of verse 6 quotes Psalm 118:6. The sin offering burned outside the camp comes from Leviticus 16:27. The "great shepherd" echoes Isaiah 63:11, Ezekiel 34, Psalm 23, and John 10, and "the blood of the eternal covenant" recalls Zechariah 9:11 and Jeremiah 32:40. The benediction ties the letter to the Old Testament hope of peace and the shepherd-king.

STEP 6

Application

First, choose one practical command from this chapter to act on this week. Welcome a stranger, visit or write to someone who is suffering, honor your marriage or encourage someone in theirs, or practice contentment by giving something away.

Second, memorize verse 5. When you are anxious about money or the future, replace the worry with God's promise: "I will never leave you nor forsake you."

Third, pray for your pastors and church leaders by name. Ask how you could make their work a joy and not a burden.

Fourth, rest in verse 8. Whatever is changing in your life, the Savior is the same. Consider writing the verse where you will see it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that Jesus is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

Ask him to equip you with everything good to do his will.

Ask him to help you love and show hospitality.

DAY 835 · WEEK 120

Psalm 22

My God, my God, the psalm Hebrews draws from

Year 2 · Unit 23 · Psalm · 31 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 22 slowly, in two sittings if needed. The first twenty-one verses are a cry of anguish, and the last ten are a shout of praise. The psalm is quoted or alluded to by Hebrews, Matthew, Mark, John, and Paul. As you read, think of Jesus on the cross, because his own words from the cross are the opening line.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 22 is one of the most important psalms in the Bible and one of the most poignant. David wrote it, but he writes with details that go beyond anything that happened to him. As you read, you will find a description of crucifixion centuries before it was invented. Jesus quoted the first line while hanging on the cross, and the Gospel writers echo it in the details they record. The author of Hebrews also draws from this psalm. In Hebrews 2:12, the Son says to the Father, "I will tell of your name to my brothers; in the midst of the congregation I will sing your praise," quoting Psalm 22:22. We close the unit with this psalm because it shows the cost of the salvation Hebrews has described and the triumph that follows.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" (v. 1). Jesus quoted this on the cross (Matthew 27:46).
2. David trusts that God is holy and was faithful to the fathers who cried out and were delivered (vv. 3-5).
3. "But I am a worm and not a man, scorned by mankind and despised by the people" (v. 6).

4. Mockers say, “He trusts in the LORD; let him deliver him” (v. 8), the same words the leaders used at the cross (Matthew 27:43).
5. “They have pierced my hands and feet” (v. 16). The bones are out of joint, the tongue sticks to the jaws, and they divide his garments by lot (vv. 14-18).
6. At verse 22, the psalm turns: “I will tell of your name to my brothers; in the midst of the congregation I will praise you.”
7. God “has not despised or abhorred the affliction of the afflicted” (v. 24).
8. The psalm ends with the whole earth turning to the LORD and a people yet unborn hearing “that he has done it” (vv. 27-31).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with the cry of a person who feels abandoned by God. “Why have you forsaken me?” The question is honest, and the psalm does not rush to resolve it. David describes the experience of suffering with God’s apparent silence. He cries day and night, and there is no answer.

Yet even in the dark, David does not let go of God. “Yet you are holy” (v. 3). The word “yet” is the hinge of the first section. His present experience says God has left, but his history says God does not abandon those who trust him. The fathers cried and were delivered. So he continues to cry.

Verses 6-21 are a vivid, almost cinematic description of suffering. David describes himself as a worm, scorned and mocked. People gather like bulls and lions and dogs. His strength is poured out like water, his heart melts like wax, and his tongue sticks to his jaws. They have pierced his hands and feet. They divide his garments. No known event in David’s life matches these details. They fit the crucifixion exactly. Christ on the cross experienced what David described: the mockery, the thirst, the pierced hands, and the soldiers casting lots for his clothing. The psalm is a Spirit-given portrait of the Messiah’s sufferings, and it was written about a thousand years before they happened.

When Jesus cried “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?”, he was not only expressing pain. He was identifying with the entire psalm. He took on himself the experience of being forsaken so that we never will be. The wrath that should have fallen on us fell on him, and in that moment he experienced the separation from the Father that sin deserves. This is the mystery of the atonement, and it is the reason the author of Hebrews can say that Christ’s sacrifice is enough.

Then the psalm turns in verse 22, and the tone changes entirely. The sufferer is rescued. “You have answered me.” And now he promises to declare God’s name to his brothers and praise him in the congregation. This is the resurrection, which is the Father’s answer to the cry. Hebrews 2:12 puts these words in the mouth of the risen Christ, who stands among his people and leads their worship. And the effect reaches to the ends of the earth. “All the ends of the earth shall remember and turn to the LORD.” A people yet unborn, including us, will be told of what he has done. The final word of the psalm is that “he has done it.” This is the Hebrew equivalent of “It is finished.”

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 22 is quoted or echoed throughout the crucifixion narratives: Matthew 27:35-46, Mark 15:24-34, Luke 23:34, and John 19:23-24. Hebrews 2:12 quotes verse 22. The suffering servant of Isaiah 53 parallels this psalm. The final verses link to the Abrahamic promise of blessing for all nations (Genesis 12:3) and to the Great Commission in Matthew 28.

STEP 6

Application

First, let this psalm give you language for your own darkest moments. If you have ever felt abandoned by God, you are not the first. The psalm models honest crying out and a refusal to let go of God’s character.

Second, consider what Jesus did for you. He was forsaken so that you will never be. When you feel alone, remember that your Savior has been there and has made a way for you to be accepted.

Third, take the praise section seriously. David vows to tell others of God’s deliverance. Who could you tell this week about what Christ has done?

Fourth, spend some time in silent gratitude. The one who suffered this was your substitute.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being forsaken in your place.
- Thank God that he did not hide his face.
- Praise him for the great congregation.

> HEBREWS 4:15-16

REST

Meditation

Today there is no new reading. Today is for review and reflection on what you have learned in Unit 23.

Begin by memorizing the verse above if you have not already. Hebrews 4:15-16 is the gospel for the weary believer. It tells you three things about Jesus and one thing about you.

First, Jesus sympathizes. He is not a high priest who looks down at weakness with disdain. He has felt hunger, grief, exhaustion, betrayal, and temptation. When you come to him, you are coming to someone who understands.

Second, Jesus is without sin. He was tempted in every respect, yet he did not fall. This is why his sympathy is not that of someone who gave in. He felt the full force of temptation, more than any of us, because he never gave way. And because he is sinless, his sacrifice is acceptable and his priesthood is effective.

Third, Jesus sits on a throne of grace. The throne is the seat of a king and of a judge. But for those who are in Christ, it is a throne of grace. The one who sits there has already paid for our sins.

And the verse gives you your part: draw near with confidence. Not with arrogance, not with a sense of deserving, but with boldness that rests entirely on him. You will receive mercy for what you have done and find grace to help in time of need. Say it aloud. Carry it with you into every need this week.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

In Unit 23 you have traveled through the whole book of Hebrews, the sermon that shows how Christ fulfills everything the Old Testament promised. It began with a majestic sentence: God has spoken finally and fully through his Son, the radiance of God's glory and the exact imprint of his nature. You saw that the Son is greater than the angels, who mediated the law, and that he became human to free us from the fear of death. You read the comparison with Moses, the warning from Psalm 95 against hardening our hearts, and the promise of a Sabbath rest that remains for God's people.

You came to the center of the book: Jesus is the great high priest who sympathizes with our weaknesses, who passed through the heavens, and who invites us to draw near to the throne of grace. You read the warning in chapter 6 and the anchor of God's oath. You saw Melchizedek, the priest-king of Genesis 14, as the pattern for a priesthood that never ends. You read the better covenant promised in Jeremiah 31, the better sanctuary, and the better sacrifice. The blood of bulls and goats could not remove sin, but the blood of Christ has cleansed the conscience once for all, and the curtain has been opened by his flesh.

Along the way you paused to consider the Ascension, where Christ was enthroned at God's right hand and began his priestly ministry of intercession, and the doctrine of church membership, where Hebrews 10:24-25 calls us to gather and stir one another up. You studied Psalms 95, 40, 110, and 22, each of which Hebrews draws on to show the voice of the Son. You walked through the hall of faith in chapter 11, where all of God's people lived by promises they only saw from afar, and you heard the call in chapter 12 to run the race, looking to Jesus, the founder and perfecter of our faith. Finally, you read the practical commands of chapter 13 and the benediction that sums up the book: the God of peace, who raised the great shepherd by the blood of the eternal covenant, equips us for his will.

The message of Hebrews can be stated in one sentence: Jesus is better, so hold fast to him.

REFLECT

Review Questions

How does Hebrews demonstrate that Jesus is better than angels, Moses, and the Levitical priesthood?

Look back over chapters 1 to 7. Choose one comparison (Christ and the angels, Moses, or the Levitical priests) and explain in your own words why he is better. How does this help you trust him more fully?

What is the relationship between the Old Covenant and the New Covenant?

Reread Hebrews 8:1-13 and 10:1-18. List two things the old covenant could not do and two things the new covenant does. Which of these matters most to you today?

What does it mean that Christ is our high priest after the order of Melchizedek?

Consider Genesis 14, Psalm 110, and Hebrews 5 to 7. Why does it matter that Jesus is both king and priest, and that his priesthood never ends? Write a few sentences on what this means for your prayers.

What does Hebrews 11 teach us about the nature of faith, and how does it point us to Christ?

Reread Hebrews 11:1-3, 11:39-40, and 12:1-2. In your own words, what is faith, according to this chapter? Name one person from the chapter whose faith you want to follow, and say how each of them points to Jesus.

DAY 837 · WEEK 120

James 1:1-27

Trials; temptation; hearing and doing

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 27 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read James 1:1-27. James writes to Jewish Christians scattered abroad, and the letter reads like a collection of wisdom sayings. Notice how trials, temptation, and the word of God are tied together, and how often James moves from hearing to doing.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The author is James, the brother of Jesus, who became the leader of the church in Jerusalem (Acts 15; Galatians 1:19). He did not believe in Jesus during the earthly ministry (John 7:5), but the risen Lord appeared to him (1 Corinthians 15:7). This may be the earliest New Testament letter, written to Jewish believers scattered by persecution. It reads like the Sermon on the Mount applied to daily life. James begins by calling himself a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, a humble title for the Lord's own brother.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Count it all joy, my brothers, when you meet trials of various kinds" (v. 2).
2. "For you know that the testing of your faith produces steadfastness" (v. 3).
3. "If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask God, who gives generously to all without reproach, and it will be given him" (v. 5).
4. "Blessed is the man who remains steadfast under trial, for when he has stood the test he will receive the crown of life" (v. 12).
5. "But each person is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desire" (v. 14).
6. "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights" (v. 17).

7. “But be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves” (v. 22).

8. “Religion that is pure and undefiled before God the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unstained from the world” (v. 27).

STEP 4

Interpretation

James opens with a surprising command: “Count it all joy, my brothers, when you meet trials of various kinds.” He does not say to enjoy suffering but to consider it joy, because “the testing of your faith produces steadfastness. And let steadfastness have its full effect, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing.” Trials are the gym where faith grows strong. And when we lack wisdom to understand them, we are to ask God, who “gives generously to all without reproach.” God does not scold us for asking. But we must ask in faith, with no doubting, for the double-minded person is “like a wave of the sea that is driven and tossed by the wind.” He is unstable in all his ways.

The poor brother is told to boast in his exaltation, and the rich in his humiliation, because the rich will pass away like a flower in the grass. The verdict is given in verse 12: “Blessed is the man who remains steadfast under trial, for when he has stood the test he will receive the crown of life, which God has promised to those who love him.” The reward is life itself.

Then James separates trials from temptation. A trial tests us, and God uses it for good. But temptation is something else, and God never tempts anyone. “But each person is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desire. Then desire when it has conceived gives birth to sin, and sin when it is fully grown brings forth death.” James traces the path with vivid pictures: desire is the bait, sin is the offspring, and death is the end. We cannot blame God or circumstances. On the contrary, “every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights with whom there is no variation or shadow due to change.” The Father gives only good, and he does not change. Of his own will he brought us forth by the word of truth, that we should be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures.

The rest of the chapter is about the word. “Let every person be quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger; for the anger of man does not produce the righteousness of God.” We are to put away filthiness and “receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls.” But the word must be obeyed: “Be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves.” The one who hears and does not do is like a man who looks at his face in a mirror and goes away, immediately forgetting what he was like. But the one who looks into “the perfect law, the law of liberty,” and perseveres, “being no hearer who forgets but a doer who acts, he will be blessed in his doing.” The chapter ends with three tests of real religion: a controlled tongue, care for orphans and widows, and keeping oneself unstained from the world.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 5:10-12 and Romans 5:3-5 also connect suffering to joy and hope. 1 Peter 1:6-7 speaks of faith tested by fire. 1 Kings 3:5-14 shows Solomon asking God for wisdom. Proverbs 2:1-6 says the LORD gives wisdom. Matthew 7:7-11 teaches us to ask a generous Father. Matthew 7:24-27 speaks of hearing and doing. Revelation 2:10 promises the crown of life. Deuteronomy 10:18 and Isaiah 1:17 command care for orphans and widows. Luke 8:21 says Jesus' family are those who hear and do the word.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a trial you are in now. Say out loud: God is using this to produce steadfastness. Ask him for wisdom for it, and believe he gives generously.

Look at the path in verses 14 and 15. What desire is luring you? Name it, and flee it before it grows.

Pick one thing you read in the Bible this week and do it today.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for every good gift from him.
- Ask him to teach you to count trials as joy, and ask for wisdom.
- Ask him to make you a doer of the word.

JAMES 1:22

DAY 838 · WEEK 120

James 2:1-26

Partiality; faith without works is dead

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 26 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read James 2:1-26. This chapter has two parts: a warning against favoring the rich, and a famous argument that faith without works is dead. As you read, ask what kind of faith James is rejecting, and keep the whole chapter in view.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In the first-century world, wealth bought honor, and the poor were treated as nobodies. James knew congregations where a rich man in fine clothing would be given a seat of honor while a poor man was told to stand or sit on the floor. This betrayed the gospel. The second half of the chapter takes on a different danger, a faith that is claimed but never lived. The question is not whether faith or works saves, but what kind of faith is real.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “My brothers, show no partiality as you hold the faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory” (v. 1).
2. “Has not God chosen those who are poor in the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom?” (v. 5).
3. “You shall love your neighbor as yourself” (v. 8).
4. “Mercy triumphs over judgment” (v. 13).
5. “What good is it, my brothers, if someone says he has faith but does not have works? Can that faith save him?” (v. 14).
6. “So also faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead” (v. 17).
7. “Even the demons believe” (v. 19).

8 “For as the body apart from the spirit is dead, so also faith apart from works is dead” (v. 26).

STEP 4

Interpretation

James begins with a clear principle: “show no partiality as you hold the faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory.” The church is where the world’s rankings are overturned. If you honor the rich man and dishonor the poor, you have “become judges with evil thoughts.” God has chosen the poor to be “rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom,” and yet they were the ones being insulted, while the rich were the ones oppressing the church and blaspheming the name. The “royal law” is to love your neighbor as yourself. To show partiality is to be “convicted by the law as transgressors,” for whoever keeps the whole law but fails in one point has become accountable for all of it. We will be judged by “the law of liberty,” so speak and act accordingly. “For judgment is without mercy to one who has shown no mercy. Mercy triumphs over judgment.”

The second half asks a pointed question: “What good is it, my brothers, if someone says he has faith but does not have works? Can that faith save him?” The Greek makes clear that the answer is no: that kind of faith cannot save. James gives an example. If a brother or sister is poorly clothed and lacking daily food, and you say, “Go in peace, be warmed and filled,” without giving what is needed, what good is that? “So also faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead.” It is not merely weak; it is dead. Next James imagines an objector who says that one has faith and another has works. James replies, “Show me your faith apart from your works, and I will show you my faith by my works.” Then he points out that even the demons believe that God is one, and shudder. Mere agreement with a fact is not saving faith.

Two examples follow. Abraham was “justified by works when he offered up his son Isaac on the altar.” James says that “faith was active along with his works, and faith was completed by his works; and the Scripture was fulfilled that says, Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness.” Rahab the prostitute was also “justified by works when she received the messengers and sent them out by another way.” James concludes: “You see that a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. For as the body apart from the spirit is dead, so also faith apart from works is dead.”

How does this fit with Paul, who says in Romans 4 that Abraham was justified by faith apart from works? Most Reformed and evangelical interpreters answer that Paul and James are fighting different enemies. Paul argues against those who say works earn salvation. James argues against those who say that a profession without obedience is enough. Paul uses “justify” to mean being declared righteous before God, while James uses it to mean being shown to be righteous, vindicated by what one does. Paul says we are saved by faith alone; James says the faith that saves is never alone. Both agree that real faith produces obedience. We explore this on Day 839.

STEP 5

Connection

Leviticus 19:18 is the source of the royal law, and Jesus affirmed it in Matthew 22:39. Deuteronomy 1:17 forbids partiality in judgment. 1 Corinthians 1:26-29 says God chose the weak and low. Matthew 25:31-46 ties judgment to mercy shown to the needy. 1 John 3:17-18 echoes James on love in deed. Genesis 15:6 and Romans 4:1-5 are the texts about Abraham's faith. Genesis 22 is the offering of Isaac. Joshua 2 and Hebrews 11:31 are about Rahab. Ephesians 2:8-10 joins grace and good works.

STEP 6

Application

Ask yourself whom you tend to favor and whom you tend to overlook, whether at church, at work, or among your neighbors. Treat one overlooked person with real honor this week.

Meet a concrete need today, for someone near you, with more than good wishes.

Memorize verse 13 as a reminder: mercy triumphs over judgment.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Confess where you have favored the wealthy or the powerful.
- Ask God to show you the faith that works through love.
- Thank him that he chose the poor to be rich in faith.

JAMES 1:22

DAY 839 · WEEK 120

James 2:14-26; Hebrews 11:1-6

What distinguishes saving faith

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Doctrine · 19 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read James 2:14-26 and Hebrews 11:1-6. Today is a doctrinal pause on saving faith. Notice what James says dead faith lacks and what Hebrews says living faith does.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

What is saving faith? The question matters for every Christian. Paul says we are justified by faith alone, apart from works of the law. James says a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. Hebrews gives a portrait of faith in action. Taken together, the New Testament teaches that faith is the only way we receive Christ, and that the faith which receives him always leads to a changed life.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “I will show you my faith by my works” (James 2:18).
2. “Even the demons believe” (James 2:19).
3. “You see that faith was active along with his works, and faith was completed by his works” (James 2:22).
4. “Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him as righteousness” (James 2:23).
5. “Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen” (Hebrews 11:1).
6. “By faith Abel offered to God a more acceptable sacrifice than Cain” (Hebrews 11:4).
7. “By faith Enoch was taken up so that he should not see death” (Hebrews 11:5).
8. “And without faith it is impossible to please him, for whoever would draw near to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him” (Hebrews 11:6).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Saving faith is the God-given trust by which a sinner rests on Christ alone for salvation. It is a gift of God (Ephesians 2:8-9) and the instrument, not the ground, by which we are justified. Our faith does not earn anything; it receives what Christ has earned.

The older theologians distinguished three elements. Knowledge (notitia): we must know the facts of the gospel, who Jesus is and what he has done. Assent (assensus): we must agree that these facts are true. Trust (fiducia): we must personally rest on Christ and entrust ourselves to him. The demons have the first two, and even tremble, but they do not have the third. Saving faith is not just believing that, but believing in: relying on a person.

Faith alone, but never alone. This phrase summarizes the Reformation teaching. We are justified by faith alone, not by faith plus works. But the faith that justifies is never by itself; it always produces works, because the Spirit who gives faith also gives new life. Works are the fruit and evidence of faith, not the root of salvation. That is why Paul can say that a person is counted righteous apart from works of the law (Romans 3:28; 4:5), and also that the only thing that counts is "faith working through love" (Galatians 5:6).

How do Paul and James fit together? Several observations help. First, they address different opponents: Paul faces legalists who rely on works of the law, and James faces people who claim faith but live in disobedience. Second, they use the word "justify" somewhat differently: for Paul, it is God's declaration that a sinner is righteous; for James, in this context, it is the vindication of a claim to faith by the evidence of works (compare Matthew 11:19). Third, they mean different things by "faith": for Paul, it is trusting in Christ; for James, the faith in view is a bare profession. Both use Abraham to make their point, and both quote Genesis 15:6.

Other traditions explain the relationship differently. The Roman Catholic Church teaches that justification includes an inward renewal and is advanced by cooperation with grace through works of love. Some Arminian traditions emphasize that faith must continue for salvation to continue. Evangelicals who hold to progressive covenantalism and Reformed convictions teach that justification is a once-for-all declaration received by faith alone, which is inseparable from sanctification. We should read James as correcting a dead orthodoxy, not as overturning Paul.

Hebrews 11 shows what living faith looks like. It is "the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen." Abel, Enoch, and Noah all acted on what God said, even when they could not see the result. "Without faith it is impossible to please him." Faith is not wishful thinking; it is confident trust in the God who speaks and promises.

STEP 4

Interpretation

James presents a test: can you show your faith? “I will show you my faith by my works.” He is not saying works replace faith. He is saying that invisible faith becomes visible by what it does. Think of a tree: you know what kind it is by its fruit. Faith in a good God leads to love for neighbor, in the way that trust in a doctor leads to following his prescription.

His example is Abraham, who offered Isaac. Abraham had been counted righteous in Genesis 15, many years earlier, when he simply believed God. In Genesis 22, his obedience demonstrated that his faith was real. “Faith was active along with his works, and faith was completed by his works.” Completed here means brought to its intended end, its full expression, not that something was lacking in the faith. The “fulfilled” Scripture is Genesis 15:6: what God declared about Abraham was shown to be true.

Hebrews 11 gives the same picture from another angle. Faith believes that God exists and that he rewards those who seek him. Abel offered a better sacrifice because he trusted God; Enoch walked with God and was taken; Noah built an ark. Each acted on a word from God. In every case, faith moves people to act. So the question for us is not only “Do I believe?” but “Whom do I trust, and what does my life show?”

The comfort here is that faith is not a work we produce to earn God’s favor. A small faith in a great Savior saves. The Lord can work with a mustard seed. But the faith that saves does not stay inactive.

STEP 5

Connection

Ephesians 2:8-10 joins grace, faith, and works. Romans 3:28, 4:1-5, and Galatians 2:16 give Paul’s statements on justification by faith. Galatians 5:6 speaks of faith working through love. Genesis 15:6 and 22:1-19 are the two scenes from Abraham’s life. Matthew 7:16-20 says we know a tree by its fruit. Matthew 17:20 says faith like a mustard seed is enough. John 6:28-29 says the work of God is to believe in the one he sent. Titus 2:11-14 and 3:8 tie grace to good works. Mark 9:24 is the prayer, “I believe; help my unbelief!”

STEP 6

Application

Ask yourself the three questions: Do I know the gospel? Do I agree it is true? Have I put my whole trust in Christ to save me?

If you doubt your faith, look not for a perfect record but for a direction: are you growing in love for God and neighbor?

Choose one act of obedience that expresses your trust in God today.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the gift of faith.
- Tell him that you trust in Christ alone, not in your works.
- Ask him to let that faith show in what you do.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"But be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves."

JAMES 1:22

REST

Meditation

This verse is simple and uncomfortable. It is possible to hear the word every week, to read the Bible daily, to take notes at a sermon, and still be deceived about ourselves. The danger James describes is not ignorance but self-deception: thinking that because we have heard, we have obeyed.

Doing the word does not mean earning salvation. It means that the word we receive changes the way we live. The man who looks in the mirror and walks away forgetting what he saw has missed the point of the mirror. Scripture shows us who we are and who we are becoming in Christ, and then it calls us to act.

Ask the Spirit today: what have I heard that I have not yet done? Then take the first small step.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the General Epistles with James. In chapter 1, trials were called joy because they produce steadfastness, we were told to ask God for wisdom, we saw how desire gives birth to sin, and we were charged to be doers of the word and not hearers only. In chapter 2, James called the church to show no partiality, to love the neighbor as the royal law requires, and to prove faith by works. On Day 839 we paused to consider saving faith: knowing, agreeing, and trusting, faith alone but never alone, and how Paul and James fit together alongside the portrait of faith in Hebrews 11.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

James says to count trials as joy because they produce steadfastness. What trial are you in or near right now, and how might God be using it to grow your faith?

James calls us to be doers of the word. What is one thing you have heard from Scripture or a sermon recently that you have not yet put into practice? What is a first step?

Our works do not earn our salvation, because Christ has already done everything needed. How does it change your obedience to know that you are already accepted because of him?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for rest and for his word.

Ask him to make you a doer and not only a hearer.

Ask him to keep you from deceiving yourself.

DAY 841 · WEEK 121

James 3:1-4:17

The tongue; worldliness; humility before God

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 35 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read James 3:1-4:17. Two themes run through these chapters: the power of the tongue and the war between friendship with the world and humility before God. Notice the contrast between wisdom from below and wisdom from above.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

James is writing to churches where speech was causing division. Teachers were quick to claim authority, and quarrels were breaking out among believers. James traces conflict to its source in the heart and calls the church to humble repentance. In Jewish wisdom writing, the tongue and the heart were closely tied, and James follows this tradition, with echoes of Proverbs and the teaching of Jesus.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “How great a forest is set ablaze by such a small fire!” (3:5).
2. “No human being can tame the tongue” (3:8).
3. “But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, open to reason, full of mercy and good fruits, impartial and sincere” (3:17).
4. “What causes quarrels and what causes fights among you?” (4:1).
5. “God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble” (4:6).
6. “Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you” (4:8).
7. “For you are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes” (4:14).
8. “So whoever knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, for him it is sin” (4:17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

James begins with a warning for teachers: “Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers, for you know that we who teach will be judged with greater strictness. For we all stumble in many ways.” Anyone who does not stumble in what he says is a perfect man. Then come the pictures: a bit in a horse’s mouth, a rudder on a ship, a spark in a forest. The tongue is small but steers the whole body. “So also the tongue is a small member, yet it boasts of great things. How great a forest is set ablaze by such a small fire!” It is “a world of unrighteousness” and “set on fire by hell.” Every kind of creature has been tamed by mankind, “but no human being can tame the tongue. It is a restless evil, full of deadly poison.” Our greatest inconsistency is that “with it we bless our Lord and Father, and with it we curse people who are made in the likeness of God.” A spring does not pour out fresh and salt water. Only the Spirit can change the heart so that the mouth follows.

James then contrasts two kinds of wisdom. Bitter jealousy and selfish ambition are “earthly, unspiritual, demonic,” and where they are found, there is disorder and every vile practice. “But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, open to reason, full of mercy and good fruits, impartial and sincere. And a harvest of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace.” This is a checklist for every conflict.

In chapter 4, James asks where conflict comes from: “What causes quarrels and what causes fights among you? Is it not this, that your passions are at war within you?” We desire and do not have, so we murder (in heart); we covet and cannot obtain, so we fight. We do not have because we do not ask, or we ask wrongly, to spend it on our passions. He calls his readers “adulterous people,” echoing the prophets’ language of God’s people unfaithful to their covenant husband: “Whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God.” But God gives more grace: “God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble.”

The remedy is a series of commands: “Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded.” Grieve over sin, and “humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will exalt you.” Do not speak evil of one another, since it makes you a judge of the law instead of a doer. The chapter closes with a warning to the self-assured planner: “You do not know what tomorrow will bring. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes.” Instead, say, “If the Lord wills, we will live and do this or that.” And one summary sin: “Whoever knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, for him it is sin.” Sins of omission count.

STEP 5

Connection

Proverbs 18:21 says death and life are in the power of the tongue. Matthew 12:34-37 teaches that the mouth speaks from the heart's abundance. Ephesians 4:29 and Colossians 4:6 direct our speech. Genesis 1:26-27 is behind the "likeness of God." Hosea 2 and Jeremiah 3 use adultery as an image of unfaithfulness. Proverbs 3:34 is quoted in 4:6, and 1 Peter 5:5-9 echoes it. Matthew 5:9 blesses peacemakers. Proverbs 27:1 and Luke 12:16-21 warn about boasting about tomorrow. Psalm 39:5 and 90:5-6 describe life as a breath.

STEP 6

Application

Before you speak in a hard conversation today, run it through verse 3:17: is it pure, peaceable, gentle, open to reason, and merciful?

Name a quarrel and ask what desire is behind it (4:1-2). Confess it to God, and make the first move toward peace.

Practice saying "If the Lord wills" as you plan the week, and mean it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what your tongue has done.
- Ask him to change your heart because you cannot tame your tongue.
- Ask him to give you wisdom from above.

DAY 842 · WEEK 121

James 5:1-20

The rich; patience; prayer; restoring the wanderer

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read James 5:1-20. James closes with a warning to the rich, a call to patience, and instruction on prayer and care for one another. Notice how often James points to the coming of the Lord.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Many of the first Christians were poor, and landowners sometimes withheld wages from day laborers. James speaks like an Old Testament prophet against such injustice. He then turns to the suffering believers and calls them to wait for the Lord's return with patience, like a farmer waiting for rain. The letter ends with a practical section on prayer, anointing the sick, and restoring those who wander.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Come now, you rich, weep and howl for the miseries that are coming upon you" (v. 1).
2. "Be patient, therefore, brothers, until the coming of the Lord" (v. 7).
3. "Behold, we consider those blessed who remained steadfast" (v. 11).
4. "Is anyone among you suffering? Let him pray" (v. 13).
5. "Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord" (v. 14).
6. "The prayer of a righteous person has great power as it is working" (v. 16).
7. "Elijah was a man with a nature like ours, and he prayed fervently that it might not rain" (v. 17).

8 “Whoever brings back a sinner from his wandering will save his soul from death and will cover a multitude of sins” (v. 20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

James speaks to the wealthy who trust in riches: “Come now, you rich, weep and howl for the miseries that are coming upon you. Your riches have rotted and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver have corroded, and their corrosion will be evidence against you.” Their sin is hoarding in the last days, and especially withholding the wages of the laborers who mowed their fields. Those cries have “reached the ears of the Lord of hosts.” They have lived in luxury and self-indulgence, fattening their hearts “in a day of slaughter,” and have condemned and murdered the righteous person, who does not resist. James is not condemning wealth in itself but its misuse and the injustice by which it was gained.

Then he turns to the suffering: “Be patient, therefore, brothers, until the coming of the Lord.” The farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, being patient until it receives the early and the late rains. “You also, be patient. Establish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is at hand.” Do not grumble against one another. The Judge is standing at the door. For examples, he points to the prophets and to Job: “You have heard of the steadfastness of Job, and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is compassionate and merciful.” Our suffering has a purpose, and the Lord’s character is compassion. He also warns against oaths: “Let your yes be yes and your no be no.” Be people whose word is reliable.

The final section is about prayer. “Is anyone among you suffering? Let him pray. Is anyone cheerful? Let him sing praise.” The church should pray in every circumstance. “Is anyone among you sick? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord. And the prayer of faith will save the one who is sick, and the Lord will raise him up. And if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven.” Christians differ on the meaning of the anointing: some take it as medicinal (oil was used as medicine), some as symbolic of setting apart for God, and some as a sacramental act. In every reading, the healing comes from the Lord, not the oil, and the emphasis is on prayer by the elders. Not every sick person is healed in this life, as Paul’s thorn and Timothy’s ailments show, but the Lord hears and may raise up.

“Therefore, confess your sins to one another and pray for one another, that you may be healed. The prayer of a righteous person has great power as it is working.” Elijah is the example. He “was a man with a nature like ours,” yet when he prayed, the rain stopped for three and a half years, and when he prayed again, the heavens gave rain. We are as weak as Elijah, but we pray to the same God. The letter ends without a benediction, with a charge: if anyone wanders from the truth and someone brings him back, “let him know that whoever brings back a sinner from his wandering will save his soul from death and will cover a multitude of sins." Caring for a wandering brother is among the most loving things a Christian can do.

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 24:14-15 and Leviticus 19:13 forbid withholding wages. Isaiah 5:8-10 and Amos 5:11-12 are prophetic warnings against the rich. Matthew 6:19-21 and Luke 12:16-21 speak of treasure. Deuteronomy 11:14 mentions early and late rains. Job 42:10-17 shows the end of Job's story. Matthew 5:33-37 is Jesus' teaching on oaths. Mark 6:13 mentions anointing the sick. 1 Kings 17-18 is the Elijah account. Galatians 6:1 and Matthew 18:15 speak of restoring a brother. Proverbs 10:12 and 1 Peter 4:8 say love covers a multitude of sins.

STEP 6

Application

Be honest about how you use money. Ask whether you are being generous or hoarding, and whether you pay what you owe.

Pray for someone who is sick, and ask your pastor how your church cares for the sick.

Think of someone who has wandered from the faith. Pray for them, and reach out this week with love.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask God to keep you from trusting in riches or using them unjustly.
- Ask him to give you patience.
- Pray for someone who has wandered, and ask what you might do.

DAY 843 · WEEK 121

Psalm 12

Save, O LORD, the tongue and its lying words

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Psalm · 8 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 12. It is a short prayer of David about a world full of lies. Notice the contrast between the words of the wicked and the words of the LORD.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 12 is a psalm of David, "according to The Sheminith," possibly a musical direction. David prays in a time when truth seems to have vanished, when flattery and boasting fill the land and the poor are trampled. It fits our reading in James, where the tongue can be a fire or a source of blessing, and teaches what to do when the words around us cannot be trusted.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Save, O LORD, for the godly one is gone; for the faithful have vanished from among the children of man" (v. 1).
2. "Everyone utters lies to his neighbor; with flattering lips and a double heart they speak" (v. 2).
3. "May the LORD cut off all flattering lips" (v. 3).
4. "With our tongue we will prevail" (v. 4).
5. "Because the poor are plundered, because the needy groan, I will now arise" (v. 5).
6. "The words of the LORD are pure words, like silver refined in a furnace on the ground, purified seven times" (v. 6).
7. "You, O LORD, will keep them; you will guard us from this generation forever" (v. 7).
8. "On every side the wicked prowl, as vileness is exalted among the children of man" (v. 8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a cry of alarm: “Save, O LORD, for the godly one is gone; for the faithful have vanished from among the children of man!” David feels that no honest person remains. The problem is speech: “Everyone utters lies to his neighbor; with flattering lips and a double heart they speak.” The phrase “a double heart” is literally “a heart and a heart”: saying one thing and meaning another. This is the same double-mindedness James warns about. David asks God to cut off flattering lips and the boastful tongue, those who say, “With our tongue we will prevail, our lips are with us; who is master over us?” They believe their words are their own and answer to no one.

Then the LORD speaks, and the psalm turns: “Because the poor are plundered, because the needy groan, I will now arise,” says the LORD; “I will place him in the safety for which he longs.” God hears the groaning of the needy and responds with a promise. Where human words are lies, his words can be trusted: “The words of the LORD are pure words, like silver refined in a furnace on the ground, purified seven times.” Silver purified seven times has no impurity. We can rest our whole weight on what God says.

The psalm ends with confidence mixed with realism. “You, O LORD, will keep them; you will guard us from this generation forever.” The promise is of protection, not of an easy time: “On every side the wicked prowl, as vileness is exalted among the children of man.” The wicked still prowl, and shame is honored. But the word of the LORD stands. This is the experience of the church in every age. Evil seems to be flourishing, yet God’s words are pure, and God keeps his own. In Christ, the Word who is the truth (John 14:6), we find the final answer. The one who “committed no sin, neither was deceit found in his mouth” (1 Peter 2:22) is the faithful one in a world of liars.

STEP 5

Connection

James 3:1-12 speaks of the tongue. Psalm 5:9 and 55:21 describe flattering and deceitful speech. Psalm 119:140 and Proverbs 30:5 describe the purity of God’s word. Isaiah 3:14-15 speaks of the plundered poor. Exodus 3:7-8 shows God hearing the groaning of the oppressed. Isaiah 33:10 has a similar “now I will arise.” John 14:6 and 17:17 present Jesus and the word as truth. 1 Peter 2:22 speaks of Christ’s speech. Ephesians 4:25 commands truth-telling. Revelation 21:8 and 22:15 speak of the end of liars.

STEP 6

Application

Make yourself a person of single-hearted speech today: say what you mean, and refuse flattery.

When you feel that truth has vanished around you, turn to Scripture as pure silver and read a passage slowly.

Pray for the poor and needy in your community, and ask what the LORD may want you to do.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what lies and flattery you see.

Thank him that his words are pure.

Ask him to keep you from boasting and double speech.

DAY 844 · WEEK 121

Psalm 15

Who shall sojourn on your holy hill?

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Psalm · 5 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 15. This short psalm asks who may dwell with God and gives the answer in a list of ten character marks. Read it slowly, and notice that the list is about everyday integrity.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 15 is a psalm of David, probably used as an entrance liturgy when worshipers approached the sanctuary. A question is asked: who may be a guest in God's tent? The answer is a description of a person whose life matches their worship. James would call this a doer of the word. The psalm raises a question that only the gospel can answer: who is so blameless?

STEP 3

Observation

1. "O LORD, who shall sojourn in your tent? Who shall dwell on your holy hill?" (v. 1).
2. "He who walks blamelessly and does what is right" (v. 2).
3. "And speaks truth in his heart" (v. 2).
4. "Who does not slander with his tongue and does no evil to his friend" (v. 3).
5. "In whose eyes a vile person is despised, but who honors those who fear the LORD" (v. 4).
6. "Who swears to his own hurt and does not change" (v. 4).
7. "Who does not put out his money at interest" (v. 5).
8. "He who does these things shall never be moved" (v. 5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a question about access: “O LORD, who shall sojourn in your tent? Who shall dwell on your holy hill?” To sojourn means to stay as a guest, and the tent is the sanctuary where God meets his people. The question is not about earning a place but about the kind of person who belongs there. In the Old Testament, to be close to God’s holy presence is a great privilege and requires holiness.

The answer has three layers. First, general character: “He who walks blamelessly and does what is right and speaks truth in his heart.” Blamelessness means integrity, a life that is whole. Truth is spoken not only with the lips but in the heart; no gap exists between inner conviction and outer speech. Second, how he treats his neighbor: he “does not slander with his tongue and does no evil to his friend, nor takes up a reproach against his friend.” Gossip and slander are named along with outright harm. Third, how he deals with the world: he despises a vile person (does not admire the corrupt) and honors those who fear the LORD. He keeps his promise even when it costs him: “who swears to his own hurt and does not change.” His word is his bond. He does not exploit the needy by charging them interest (Exodus 22:25) and does not take bribes against the innocent.

“He who does these things shall never be moved.” This is the life the whole of Scripture calls for. But who can say that he fits this description? None of us. Here we see our need for Christ. He is the one who walked blamelessly, who spoke truth from the heart, who kept his word even to his own hurt, going to the cross. He alone ascended the hill of the LORD with clean hands. Those who are in him are welcomed into God’s presence, not because they match this psalm but because he does, and his righteousness is counted as theirs. And then, by the Spirit, he begins to form this character in us. The list in Psalm 15 is both a mirror and a goal.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 24:3-6 asks a similar question. Isaiah 33:14-16 and Micah 6:6-8 also describe who may dwell with God. Exodus 22:25 and Deuteronomy 23:19-20 forbid interest on loans to the poor. Exodus 23:8 forbids bribes. Matthew 5:33-37 teaches on oaths. Ephesians 4:25-32 tells believers to put away falsehood and slander. 1 Peter 2:22 says no deceit was found in Christ’s mouth. Hebrews 4:14-16 invites us to draw near through our high priest. 2 Corinthians 5:21 says we become the righteousness of God in him. James 1:26-27 and 3:1-12 also test religion by speech and conduct.

STEP 6

Application

Read the ten marks slowly and mark the two where you most need growth. Ask the Spirit for help.

Ask whether you have broken a promise that cost you. If you can still keep it, do so.

Thank Christ that you are welcomed into God's tent because of his righteousness.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask who may dwell on God's hill, and tell him you cannot by your own righteousness.

Thank Jesus for walking blamelessly and speaking truth.

Ask him to make you truthful and faithful.

DAY 845 · WEEK 121

Psalm 24

Pure heart, clean hands

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Psalm · 10 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 24. This psalm moves from the creation to the clean-handed worshiper to the King of glory entering the gates. Read the second half as a call and response, with different voices asking and answering.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 24 is a psalm of David, likely sung when the ark of the covenant was brought up to Jerusalem (2 Samuel 6). It is a processional psalm with three parts: the LORD's ownership of the earth (vv. 1-2), the character of those who may approach him (vv. 3-6), and the entry of the King (vv. 7-10). It pairs naturally with Psalm 15 and with James's call to purity of heart. Christians have long read it as a picture of Christ's ascension.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The earth is the LORD's and the fullness thereof, the world and those who dwell therein" (v. 1).
2. "Who shall ascend the hill of the LORD? And who shall stand in his holy place?" (v. 3).
3. "He who has clean hands and a pure heart" (v. 4).
4. "He will receive blessing from the LORD and righteousness from the God of his salvation" (v. 5).
5. "Lift up your heads, O gates! And be lifted up, O ancient doors, that the King of glory may come in" (v. 7).
6. "Who is this King of glory? The LORD, strong and mighty, the LORD, mighty in battle!" (v. 8).

7. “Who is this King of glory? The LORD of hosts, he is the King of glory!” (v. 10).

8. “For he has founded it upon the seas and established it upon the rivers” (v. 2).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts with the biggest claim possible: “The earth is the LORD’s and the fullness thereof, the world and those who dwell therein, for he has founded it upon the seas and established it upon the rivers.” Everything belongs to God, including us. Nothing in the world is outside his claim. So the question is: how can anyone come to the One who owns all things?

“Who shall ascend the hill of the LORD? And who shall stand in his holy place? He who has clean hands and a pure heart, who does not lift up his soul to what is false and does not swear deceitfully.” Clean hands refer to actions, and a pure heart refers to motives. This is the same standard as Psalm 15, and James echoes it when he calls for cleansing hands and purifying hearts (James 4:8). Such a person “will receive blessing from the LORD and righteousness from the God of his salvation.” Even this righteousness is a gift from the God of his salvation. Such is “the generation of those who seek him, who seek the face of the God of Jacob.”

Then the procession arrives at the gates. A voice cries: “Lift up your heads, O gates! And be lifted up, O ancient doors, that the King of glory may come in!” A watchman replies: “Who is this King of glory?” And the answer comes: “The LORD, strong and mighty, the LORD, mighty in battle!” The call is repeated, and the answer enlarges: “The LORD of hosts, he is the King of glory!” The psalm leaves us at the threshold with the King entering.

Christians have long seen in this the ascension of Christ. The only one with truly clean hands and a pure heart is Jesus. He ascended the hill, was received into the Father’s presence, and entered the gates in victory after conquering sin and death. And because he has entered as our forerunner, we can follow him. The King of glory is also the one who welcomes the humble to his side. The gates open for him, and through him they open for us.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 15 is the companion psalm. 1 Corinthians 10:26 quotes verse 1. 2 Samuel 6:12-15 describes the ark entering Jerusalem. Isaiah 6:1-5 shows a holy King and an unclean people. Matthew 5:8 blesses the pure in heart. James 4:8 calls for cleansing of hands and hearts. Ephesians 4:8-10 and Acts 1:9-11 describe the ascension. Hebrews 4:14, 6:19-20, and 9:24 speak of Christ entering heaven as forerunner. 1 Corinthians 15:57 gives thanks for victory. Revelation 5:11-13 shows the worship of the King.

STEP 6

Application

Say verse 1 over your day: the earth is the LORD's and everything in it, including my money, time, and work.

Ask the Lord to give you clean hands and a pure heart, and confess anything he shows you.

Open the gates of your heart to the King of glory, and welcome him in as Lord over one area where you have held back.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God you cannot ascend by your own clean hands.

Thank Jesus who ascended for you.

Open the gates of your life to the King of glory.

1 Peter 1:1-2:12

Living hope; the church as new Israel; holy living

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 37 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Peter 1:1-2:12. Peter writes to scattered Christians who suffer for their faith. Notice how he moves from the great things God has done (a living hope, a precious inheritance) to a call to holiness, and then to a new identity as God's people.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The apostle Peter wrote this letter around AD 62 to 64, probably from Rome (called "Babylon" in 5:13), to believers in the northern provinces of Asia Minor. Most were Gentiles, though Peter speaks to them in language drawn from Israel. They were "elect exiles," strangers in a hostile culture, and they faced slander and growing persecution. Peter, who once denied his Lord, writes with the gentleness of a restored man to encourage them to hope.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "He has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead" (1:3).
2. "The tested genuineness of your faith" (1:7).
3. "You also be holy in all your conduct" (1:15).
4. "With the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without blemish or spot" (1:19).
5. "Since you have been born again, not of perishable seed but of imperishable, through the living and abiding word of God" (1:23).
6. "You yourselves like living stones are being built up as a spiritual house, to be a holy priesthood" (2:5).

7. “But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for his own possession” (2:9).

8. “Keep your conduct among the Gentiles honorable, so that when they speak against you as evildoers, they may see your good deeds and glorify God on the day of visitation” (2:12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Peter greets his readers as “elect exiles of the Dispersion,” chosen according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, in the sanctification of the Spirit, for obedience to Jesus Christ and for sprinkling with his blood. The Trinity is present from the first verse. Then he bursts into praise: “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! According to his great mercy, he has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you, who by God’s power are being guarded through faith for a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.” Our hope is alive because Christ is alive, our inheritance is kept safe, and we are kept safe for it.

In this they rejoice, though they now suffer various trials, “so that the tested genuineness of your faith, more precious than gold that perishes though it is tested by fire, may be found to result in praise and glory and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ.” Though they have not seen Christ, they love him, and they rejoice with joy that is inexpressible and filled with glory. The prophets searched and inquired about this salvation; angels long to look into these things.

From this foundation, Peter calls for holiness. “Therefore, preparing your minds for action, and being sober-minded, set your hope fully on the grace that will be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ.” Do not conform to the passions of your former ignorance, “but as he who called you is holy, you also be holy in all your conduct, since it is written, You shall be holy, for I am holy.” They were ransomed “not with perishable things such as silver or gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without blemish or spot.” He was foreknown before the foundation of the world but made manifest in the last times for their sake. The new birth is by “the living and abiding word of God.” Love one another earnestly from a pure heart. “The grass withers, and the flower falls, but the word of the Lord remains forever.” That word is the good news that was preached.

Chapter 2 begins with putting away malice, deceit, hypocrisy, envy, and slander, and craving “pure spiritual milk, that by it you may grow up into salvation.” Christ is the living stone, rejected by men but chosen and precious in God’s sight. Believers, too, are “living stones” being built up as a spiritual house, “to be a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ.” Peter applies Old Testament texts about the stone: to those who believe, he is precious; to those who do not, he is a stone of stumbling.

Then the great statement of identity: “But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for his own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light. Once you were not a people, but now you are God’s people; once you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy.” These phrases were used of Israel at Sinai (Exodus 19:5-6) and now belong to the church, made up of Jew and Gentile. This fits the progressive covenantal view that the church is the new covenant people of God, not a replacement but the fulfillment of Israel’s calling in Christ. The purpose is mission: to proclaim his excellencies. As “sojourners and exiles,” they are to abstain from the passions of the flesh and keep their conduct honorable, so that their good deeds may lead even their accusers to glorify God.

STEP 5

Connection

Ephesians 1:3-14 is a similar burst of praise. John 3:3-8 and Titus 3:5 speak of new birth. Isaiah 40:6-8 is quoted in 1:24-25. Leviticus 11:44-45 and 19:2 are the source for “be holy.” Isaiah 53 stands behind the lamb. Exodus 19:5-6 is the origin of “kingdom of priests, a holy nation.” Hosea 1:6-10 and 2:23 are behind 2:10. Psalm 118:22 and Isaiah 28:16 are the stone texts. Revelation 1:6 and 5:10 speak of a kingdom and priests. Matthew 5:16 also speaks of good works that glorify the Father. Hebrews 11:13 calls believers strangers and exiles.

STEP 6

Application

Praise God for your living hope before you do anything else today. Read 1:3-5 aloud.

Think about the phrase “chosen race, royal priesthood, holy nation, people for his own possession.” How does it change how you see yourself?

Choose one way to live honorably before a neighbor or coworker who is critical of your faith.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Bless God for causing you to be born again to a living hope.

Thank him for keeping an inheritance for you.

Ask him to help you live as a stranger and exile who is holy.

Memory Verse for the Week

"Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! According to his great mercy, he has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you."

1 PETER 1:3-4

REST

Meditation

Peter begins with praise, not with instruction. Before he tells his readers what to do, he reminds them what God has done. Everything flows from mercy: "According to his great mercy, he has caused us to be born again." We did not earn it, and we did not start it.

The hope is "living" because it is tied to the resurrection of Jesus Christ. A dead Savior would give a dead hope. Because he lives, our hope is not wishful thinking but a confident expectation.

The inheritance has three descriptions: imperishable (it cannot decay), undefiled (it cannot be corrupted), unfading (it cannot lose its beauty). And it is kept in heaven for you. Nothing here is stored where thieves or time can reach it.

When your week was hard, which phrase did you need most? Say it back to God as a prayer of thanks.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read James 3 to 5 and the opening of 1 Peter. James showed us the tongue that no human can tame, the two kinds of wisdom, the source of quarrels in our desires, humility before God, the brevity of life, the warning to the rich, patience until the Lord comes, and prayer for the sick and for the wanderer. Three psalms offered further wisdom: Psalm 12 on lying lips and the pure words of the LORD, Psalm 15 on who may dwell in God's tent, and Psalm 24 on the clean hands that ascend the hill and the King of glory who enters the gates. In 1 Peter 1:1 to 2:12, we heard of a living hope, tested faith, a call to holiness, redemption by the precious blood of Christ, and our identity as a chosen race, royal priesthood, holy nation, and people for God's own possession.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

James says no human being can tame the tongue. Where has your speech been most difficult to control, and how can you ask God to change your heart so that your words follow?

Psalms 15 and 24 describe someone with clean hands and a pure heart. Since none of us fits this description, how does Christ's perfect righteousness change the way you approach God?

Peter calls believers "a people for his own possession" who were "once not a people." How does belonging to God's people shape the way you live as an exile in this world?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for rest and for the living hope in Jesus.

Ask him to guard your faith.

Rest in his keeping.

DAY 848 · WEEK 122

1 Peter 2:13-3:22

Submission; suffering for righteousness; Christ's example

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 47 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Peter 2:13-3:22. Peter applies the gospel to life under authority: citizens, servants, wives, husbands, and the whole church. Notice that Christ is the pattern in every relationship and that suffering for doing good is a calling.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Christians in Asia Minor were slandered as lawless, antisocial, and subversive. Peter does not tell them to withdraw from society. He tells them to live so well that the accusations fall flat. The "household codes" in this section (similar to those in Ephesians 5-6 and Colossians 3) were not new in the ancient world, but Peter grounds them in Christ's example. Many of the servants and wives he addresses were in difficult situations, and he points them to the Suffering Servant.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Be subject for the Lord's sake to every human institution" (2:13).
2. "Honor everyone. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the emperor" (2:17).
3. "For to this you have been called, because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example, so that you might follow in his steps" (2:21).
4. "He himself bore our sins in his body on the tree, that we might die to sin and live to righteousness" (2:24).
5. "Do not repay evil for evil or reviling for reviling, but on the contrary, bless" (3:9).
6. "But in your hearts honor Christ the Lord as holy, always being prepared to make a defense to anyone who asks you for a reason for the hope that is in you" (3:15).

7. “For it is better to suffer for doing good, if that should be God’s will, than for doing evil” (3:17).

8. “Christ also suffered once for sins, the righteous for the unrighteous, that he might bring us to God” (3:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Peter first addresses believers as citizens: “Be subject for the Lord’s sake to every human institution, whether it be to the emperor as supreme, or to governors.” Government exists to punish wrongdoing and praise those who do good. “Live as people who are free, not using your freedom as a cover-up for evil, but living as servants of God.” Then four short commands: “Honor everyone. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the emperor.” Honor goes to all, but fear belongs to God alone. This does not mean unlimited submission; when the state demands what God forbids, we must obey God (Acts 5:29).

Next he speaks to household servants: be subject to your masters with all respect, even to the unjust. Why? “For to this you have been called, because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example, so that you might follow in his steps.” Then Peter describes the Suffering Servant in the words of Isaiah 53. “He committed no sin, neither was deceit found in his mouth. When he was reviled, he did not revile in return; when he suffered, he did not threaten, but continued entrusting himself to him who judges justly. He himself bore our sins in his body on the tree, that we might die to sin and live to righteousness. By his wounds you have been healed. For you were straying like sheep, but have now returned to the Shepherd and Overseer of your souls.” The cross is both an example and an atonement: first Christ is our substitute, and only then our model. We cannot imitate what we have not received.

Chapter 3 turns to marriage. Wives are to be subject to their own husbands, so that even if some do not obey the word, “they may be won without a word by the conduct of their wives.” Their beauty is to be that of “the hidden person of the heart with the imperishable beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit, which in God’s sight is very precious.” Husbands are to live with their wives “in an understanding way, showing honor to the woman as the weaker vessel, since they are heirs with you of the grace of life, so that your prayers may not be hindered.” Husbands and wives are equal heirs. Christians differ on how to apply the language of submission: complementarians see a distinct role of loving headship and willing submission rooted in creation, while egalitarians stress mutual submission and see the instruction as addressing a cultural setting. All agree that Peter calls both to humble, honoring love, and that abuse is never permissible.

Then the whole church: “have unity of mind, sympathy, brotherly love, a tender heart, and a humble mind.” Return blessing for insult. Do not fear what they fear, “but in your hearts honor Christ the Lord as holy, always being prepared to make a defense to anyone who asks you for a reason for the hope that is in you; yet do it with gentleness and respect.” Notice that the world asks about our hope when it sees us respond well to suffering. Keep a good conscience, “for it is better to suffer for doing good, if that should be God’s will, than for doing evil.”

The ground of it is Christ: “For Christ also suffered once for sins, the righteous for the unrighteous, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh but made alive in the spirit.” The next verses (3:19-22) are among the hardest in the New Testament. Who are the “spirits in prison” to whom Christ proclaimed? Some think the fallen angels of Genesis 6 (as in 1 Enoch), to whom the risen Christ announced his victory; some think the people of Noah’s day, to whom Christ preached through Noah by his Spirit; and some think Christ descended to the dead. Likewise, “Baptism, which corresponds to this, now saves you” has been taken in different ways: as the outward sign that points to the inward reality, as an appeal to God for a good conscience, or as a means of grace. All agree that it is Christ’s resurrection that saves, and that he is now at God’s right hand, with angels, authorities, and powers subject to him.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 13:1-7 speaks of governing authorities, and Acts 4:19 and 5:29 show the limit. Isaiah 53:4-12 is behind 2:22-25. Ephesians 5:22-33 and Colossians 3:18-4:1 are the parallel household codes. Genesis 6:1-4 and Jude 6 touch on the spirits in prison. Genesis 6-8 is the account of Noah. 1 Peter 4:6 mentions the gospel preached to the dead. Romans 6:3-4 and Colossians 2:11-12 speak of baptism. Matthew 5:38-48 teaches blessing enemies. Psalm 34:12-16 is quoted in 3:10-12. Hebrews 1:3 and Ephesians 1:20-22 say Christ is at the right hand.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a person in authority over you whom you find hard to respect. Ask how you can honor them as unto the Lord, and how you can pray for them.

Rehearse 3:15 so you are ready to explain your hope to someone who asks. Write out a two-minute answer.

If you are married, ask your spouse how you can show them honor this week.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for not reviling in return when he was reviled.

Thank him for bearing your sins.

Ask him to help you suffer well when you suffer for doing right.

DAY 849 · WEEK 122

1 Peter 4:1-5:14

Suffering; elders; the roaring lion; grace is sufficient

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 45 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 Peter 4:1-5:14. Peter concludes by speaking of how to live in the face of suffering, how to use your gifts, how elders should lead, and how to resist the devil. Notice the repeated mention of grace and glory.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Persecution against Christians was growing. Peter reminds his readers not to be surprised, since suffering is the normal path for those who follow the crucified Lord. He then gives instruction for the community: serve one another, elders shepherd the flock, the young submit, and all clothe themselves with humility. Peter, who was called to feed Christ's sheep (John 21:15-17), writes now as a fellow elder.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Above all, keep loving one another earnestly, since love covers a multitude of sins" (4:8).
2. "As each has received a gift, use it to serve one another, as good stewards of God's varied grace" (4:10).
3. "Beloved, do not be surprised at the fiery trial when it comes upon you to test you, as though something strange were happening to you" (4:12).
4. "But rejoice insofar as you share Christ's sufferings, that you may also rejoice and be glad when his glory is revealed" (4:13).
5. "Shepherd the flock of God that is among you, exercising oversight, not under compulsion, but willingly, as God would have you" (5:2).

6. “Casting all your anxieties on him, because he cares for you” (5:7).

7. “Be sober-minded; be watchful. Your adversary the devil prowls around like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour” (5:8).

8. “And after you have suffered a little while, the God of all grace, who has called you to his eternal glory in Christ, will himself restore, confirm, strengthen, and establish you” (5:10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Peter begins with a call to arm ourselves with the same way of thinking as Christ. “Since therefore Christ suffered in the flesh, arm yourselves with the same way of thinking, for whoever has suffered in the flesh has ceased from sin.” Suffering weans us from the old life. The time is past for doing what the Gentiles want, in sensuality and drunkenness; their surprise that you do not join them leads them to malign you. But they will give account to him who is ready to judge the living and the dead. “The end of all things is at hand; therefore be self-controlled and sober-minded for the sake of your prayers.”

Then the life of the church. “Above all, keep loving one another earnestly, since love covers a multitude of sins.” Show hospitality without grumbling. Every believer has a gift: “As each has received a gift, use it to serve one another, as good stewards of God’s varied grace: whoever speaks, as one who speaks oracles of God; whoever serves, as one who serves by the strength that God supplies, in order that in everything God may be glorified through Jesus Christ.” The gifts are for serving, and the aim is God’s glory.

Next, how to think about suffering: “Beloved, do not be surprised at the fiery trial when it comes upon you to test you, as though something strange were happening to you. But rejoice insofar as you share Christ’s sufferings, that you may also rejoice and be glad when his glory is revealed.” Suffering is not a sign that God has abandoned you; it is a share in Christ’s. “Blessed are you” if you are insulted for the name of Christ, for the Spirit of glory rests upon you. Only make sure you suffer for being a Christian and not for being a wrongdoer. “Yet if anyone suffers as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God in that name.” The statement that judgment begins at the household of God (4:17) reminds us that God refines his own people first. Those who suffer according to God’s will should entrust their souls to a faithful Creator while doing good.

In chapter 5, Peter, “a fellow elder and a witness of the sufferings of Christ,” speaks to elders: “Shepherd the flock of God that is among you, exercising oversight, not under compulsion, but willingly, as God would have you; not for shameful gain, but eagerly; not domineering over those in your charge, but being examples to the flock. And when the chief Shepherd appears, you will receive the unfading crown of glory.” The younger are to be subject to the elders. All are to clothe themselves with humility, “for God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble.” “Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God so that at the proper time he may exalt you, casting all your anxieties on him, because he cares for you.”

The final warning: “Be sober-minded; be watchful. Your adversary the devil prowls around like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour. Resist him, firm in your faith, knowing that the same kinds of suffering are being experienced by your brotherhood throughout the world.” The devil is real and fierce, but he is a lion on a leash. Then comes the promise: “And after you have suffered a little while, the God of all grace, who has called you to his eternal glory in Christ, will himself restore, confirm, strengthen, and establish you. To him be the dominion forever and ever. Amen.” Peter signs off with greetings from Silvanus, from “she who is at Babylon” (the church in Rome), and from Mark, his son in the faith, with a final blessing: “Peace to all of you who are in Christ.”

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 12:6-8 and 1 Corinthians 12 discuss spiritual gifts. Proverbs 10:12 is behind 4:8. Matthew 5:10-12 blesses those persecuted. Acts 5:41 shows the apostles rejoicing in suffering. Philippians 3:10 speaks of sharing Christ’s sufferings. Ezekiel 9:6 and Malachi 3:1-6 relate to judgment beginning at God’s house. John 21:15-17 records Peter’s commission to feed the sheep. Ezekiel 34 and John 10 speak of shepherds. Psalm 55:22 is the source of 5:7. Job 1-2 shows Satan with limits. James 4:6-10 has a similar sequence of humility and resisting the devil.

STEP 6

Application

Identify a gift God has given you, and put it to use in your church this week.

If you are in a hard season, repeat 5:7 and name the specific worry that you are handing to God.

Ask whether you are “watchful” or complacent. What habit would help you stay alert and resist the devil?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Cast your anxieties on God, and name them.

Ask him to help you resist the devil and stand firm.

Thank him for the grace that called you to eternal glory.

2 PETER 3:18

DAY 850 · WEEK 122

2 Peter 1:1-21

The divine nature; the prophetic word confirmed

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Peter 1:1-21. This letter is Peter's last testimony, written as his death approaches. Notice the great promises, the call to grow, and the confidence he gives in the apostolic witness and the prophetic word.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Peter writes his second letter shortly before his martyrdom, probably in the mid-60s AD. He knows that "the putting off of my body will be soon" (1:14), just as the Lord Jesus told him. His readers are in danger of false teachers who would draw them from the truth, so Peter wants to remind them of what they know. He calls himself Simeon Peter, a servant and apostle, and begins with the foundation of the whole Christian life: what God has already given us in Christ.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "To those who have obtained a faith of equal standing with ours" (1:1).
2. "His divine power has granted to us all things that pertain to life and godliness" (1:3).
3. "That through them you may become partakers of the divine nature" (1:4).
4. "Make every effort to supplement your faith with virtue" (1:5).
5. "Be all the more diligent to make your calling and election sure" (1:10).
6. "For we did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty" (1:16).
7. "And we have something more sure, the prophetic word, to which you will do well to pay attention as to a lamp shining in a dark place" (1:19).

8 “Men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit” (1:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Peter greets those who have received “a faith of equal standing with ours,” which is to say the same faith that the apostles have, through the righteousness of “our God and Savior Jesus Christ.” Peter again calls Jesus God. Then he lays the foundation: “His divine power has granted to us all things that pertain to life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who called us to his own glory and excellence, by which he has granted to us his precious and very great promises, so that through them you may become partakers of the divine nature, having escaped from the corruption that is in the world because of sinful desire.” Everything we need has already been given. To be a “partaker of the divine nature” does not mean we become God. The best reading is that, by union with Christ, we share in his moral likeness and the life he gives, escaping the corruption of sin. We are reborn into a new life and will be made like him.

Since God has given everything, Peter urges effort: “For this very reason, make every effort to supplement your faith with virtue, and virtue with knowledge, and knowledge with self-control, and self-control with steadfastness, and steadfastness with godliness, and godliness with brotherly affection, and brotherly affection with love.” It is a ladder of growth with faith at the base and love at the top. “For if these qualities are yours and are increasing, they keep you from being ineffective or unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.” The one who lacks them is nearsighted and has forgotten that he was cleansed from his former sins. “Therefore, brothers, be all the more diligent to make your calling and election sure, for if you practice these qualities you will never fall.” We do not make God’s election sure; we make it sure to us, confirming it by a transformed life. Then an entrance into the eternal kingdom will be supplied.

Peter then explains why he is writing. Soon he will die, and he wants them to remember these things. He does not rely on cleverly devised myths: “we were eyewitnesses of his majesty.” He was with Jesus on the mount of transfiguration and heard the voice from heaven: “This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased.” That experience confirmed the Old Testament prophets’ message: “And we have something more sure, the prophetic word, to which you will do well to pay attention as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts.”

Finally, Peter tells us how to understand Scripture: “knowing this first of all, that no prophecy of Scripture comes from someone’s own interpretation. For no prophecy was ever produced by the will of man, but men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit." The point is about the origin of Scripture, not about private reading. The writers were human, but the Holy Spirit carried them, as a ship is carried by wind, so what they wrote is God's word. We examine this more on Day 851.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 17:1-8 records the transfiguration that Peter witnessed. John 21:18-19 records Jesus' prediction of Peter's death. Romans 8:28-30 speaks of calling and election. Galatians 5:22-23 lists the fruit of the Spirit. Colossians 1:10 calls for growth in the knowledge of God. Titus 3:5-7 and 1 John 3:2 speak of new birth and being like Christ. Psalm 119:105 describes the word as a lamp. Revelation 22:16 calls Christ the bright morning star. 2 Timothy 3:16 speaks of the inspiration of Scripture. 2 Timothy 4:6-8 is Paul's parallel farewell.

STEP 6

Application

Write out the seven qualities in verses 5 to 7 and rate yourself on each. Choose one to work on this week.

Memorize 1:3 and remind yourself that you already have everything you need for life and godliness in Christ.

Read the Bible today with a lamp-in-the-dark expectation: God will shed light on something.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for giving you everything you need for life and godliness.

Ask him to help you grow in virtue and knowledge.

Thank him for the prophetic word as a lamp.

DAY 851 · WEEK 122

2 Peter 1:16-21; 2 Peter 3:15-16

Why these 66 books

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Doctrine · 8 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Peter 1:16-21 and 2 Peter 3:15-16. Today is a doctrinal pause on the Bible itself: where it came from, why we have these sixty-six books, and why we trust them. Notice that Peter calls Paul's letters Scripture.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Christians believe the Bible is God's word, but where did the list of books come from? Who decided which were included? Were they chosen by councils or simply recognized? These questions matter, especially for new believers who may hear that the Bible was assembled by powerful men centuries after Jesus. The answer is that the church recognized books that already carried God's authority. Peter's letter gives us early evidence of this process.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For we did not follow cleverly devised myths" (2 Peter 1:16).
2. "And we have something more sure, the prophetic word" (2 Peter 1:19).
3. "No prophecy of Scripture comes from someone's own interpretation" (2 Peter 1:20).
4. "For no prophecy was ever produced by the will of man, but men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit" (2 Peter 1:21).
5. "Our beloved brother Paul also wrote to you according to the wisdom given him" (2 Peter 3:15).
6. "There are some things in them that are hard to understand" (2 Peter 3:16).
7. "Which the ignorant and unstable twist to their own destruction, as they do the other Scriptures" (2 Peter 3:16).

8 “And count the patience of our Lord as salvation” (2 Peter 3:15).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The Bible is a library of sixty-six books: thirty-nine in the Old Testament and twenty-seven in the New, written over about fifteen hundred years by some forty human authors. Yet it is one story, because it has one divine author. Peter says that “men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit.” The human writers used their own personalities, styles, and research, and yet the product is God’s word. This is called inspiration. Because God is truthful, Scripture is also inerrant in what it affirms and sufficient for faith and life.

What is the canon? The word means “rule” or “standard.” The canon is the list of books recognized as the authoritative word of God. The church did not create the canon; it recognized it. Just as a person does not make a gold coin real by testing it, the church discerned which writings bore the marks of God’s voice.

The Old Testament canon. The Jewish community recognized the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings. Jesus and the apostles treated these as Scripture. Jesus spoke of “the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms” (Luke 24:44) and referred to the span from Abel to Zechariah (Luke 11:51), which covers the Hebrew Bible from first to last. The New Testament quotes nearly every book of the Old Testament as authoritative. The books called the Apocrypha or deuterocanonical books (Tobit, Judith, Wisdom, Sirach, 1-2 Maccabees, and others) were written in the period between the testaments. The Roman Catholic Church formally included most of them at the Council of Trent in 1546, and Eastern Orthodox churches also include some. Protestants, following the Hebrew canon recognized by Jesus’ contemporaries, do not accept them as Scripture, though many find them useful for history. Those who hold to the Reformation view note that these books are never quoted as Scripture by Jesus or the apostles.

The New Testament canon. Early Christians recognized three features: apostolic origin (written by an apostle or someone connected to an apostle’s authority), conformity to the apostolic teaching, and widespread, continuous use in the churches. The four Gospels and Paul’s letters were widely accepted very early. Peter himself refers to Paul’s letters alongside “the other Scriptures” (2 Peter 3:16), showing that within the lifetime of the apostles, their writings were beginning to be received as Scripture. Lists from the second century (such as the Muratorian fragment) already resemble ours. Athanasius in AD 367 listed the twenty-seven books, and councils at Hippo (393) and Carthage (397) affirmed them. These councils confirmed what the churches already knew.

Why trust it? We believe the Bible is God's word because of its own testimony, the witness of the Holy Spirit in believers, the character of Christ it reveals, its internal unity, and its historical reliability. And Jesus himself trusted the Scriptures: "Scripture cannot be broken" (John 10:35). If we trust Jesus, we trust the book he trusted. Because the apostles carry the authority he gave them, their writings complete the witness.

Peter also warns that Scripture can be twisted. Some of Paul's letters are hard to understand, and the ignorant and unstable twist them. We should read with humility, compare Scripture with Scripture, and seek help from the church.

STEP 4

Interpretation

Peter's first claim (1:16-18) is that the apostolic message is rooted in history. They did not follow clever myths. They were eyewitnesses. This is a concern about the truth of what happened, and it is the basis for the New Testament's authority.

The second claim (1:19-21) is that the Old Testament prophets spoke by God. The verb "carried along" is the same used of a ship driven by the wind in Acts 27:15. The Spirit moved the authors, so that their words were truly theirs and truly God's. The statement that no prophecy comes "from someone's own interpretation" is best understood to mean that no prophet made up his message; the origin is God, not the prophet's own insight. It also reminds us that interpretation matters: we should not twist Scripture to say what we want.

The third claim (3:15-16) is that Paul's letters are among "the other Scriptures." This is a remarkable thing for one apostle to say of another. It is also worth noting the humility of Peter: he admits some things in Paul are "hard to understand." Even apostles had to wrestle with Scripture, which should encourage us when we find it hard.

Practically, this teaches us three things. First, we can trust the Bible because it comes from God. Second, we should study it carefully, because errors in interpretation have real consequences. Third, we should read it in the community of the church, where gifted teachers help us understand it.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Timothy 3:16-17 and Hebrews 1:1-2 speak of God's word through prophets and his Son. Luke 24:25-27 and 24:44-47 show Jesus reading the Old Testament about himself. John 10:35 says Scripture cannot be broken. Matthew 5:17-18 affirms the Law and the Prophets. John 14:26 and 16:13 promise the Spirit's help to the apostles. 1 Thessalonians 2:13 says the word is received as the word of God. 1 Timothy 5:18 quotes Luke as Scripture. Revelation 22:18-19 warns against adding to or taking away. Psalm 19:7-11 praises the word of the LORD. Acts 8:30-35 shows Philip explaining Scripture.

STEP 6

Application

Thank God today for the Bible and for the people who preserved and translated it.

If you have doubts about the Bible's reliability, write down your questions and bring them to a pastor or a trusted friend. Many good books address them.

Read one passage this week that is "hard to understand," and use a study Bible or commentary to help.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for giving you his word through the prophets and apostles.

Ask him to help you trust it as his word.

Ask him to give you a hunger for all of it.

DAY 852 · WEEK 122

2 Peter 2:1-3:18

False teachers; the day of the Lord

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 40 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 Peter 2:1-3:18. The first chapter warns against false teachers, and the second looks ahead to the day of the Lord. Notice Peter's use of Old Testament examples and his answer to the scoffers who ask, "Where is the promise of his coming?"

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Peter's readers were threatened by false teachers who were morally lax and who mocked the idea that Christ would return. Peter's response is stern about the teachers (chapter 2) and pastoral toward the believers (chapter 3). The letter has many similarities to Jude, and many scholars think Peter and Jude drew on a common warning. The second chapter is among the strongest descriptions of false teaching in the Bible.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "There will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive heresies" (2:1).
2. "Then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials" (2:9).
3. "Scoffers will come in the last days with scoffing" (3:3).
4. "Where is the promise of his coming?" (3:4).
5. "With the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day" (3:8).
6. "The Lord is not slow to fulfill his promise as some count slowness, but is patient toward you, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance" (3:9).

7. “According to his promise we are waiting for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells” (3:13).

8. “But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ” (3:18).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Peter says that just as false prophets arose in Israel, “there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, bringing upon themselves swift destruction.” They are known by their doctrine and their lives: many will follow their sensuality, and because of them the way of truth will be blasphemed. They exploit others with false words. But judgment is certain. Peter gives three examples: the angels who sinned and were cast into hell, the ancient world destroyed by the flood (with Noah preserved as a herald of righteousness), and Sodom and Gomorrah (with Lot rescued). “Then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials, and to keep the unrighteous under punishment until the day of judgment.” God both saves and judges.

The false teachers are described vividly: following the flesh in corrupt desire, despising authority, bold and willful, “like irrational animals.” They are “springs without water and mists driven by a storm.” They promise freedom, “but they themselves are slaves of corruption.” Peter says it would have been better never to have known the way of righteousness than to turn back from it, as a dog returns to its vomit and a washed sow to wallowing in the mire.

Chapter 3 begins with a reminder. Peter writes to stir up their sincere minds to remember the words of the prophets and the apostles. “Knowing this first of all, that scoffers will come in the last days with scoffing, following their own sinful desires. They will say, Where is the promise of his coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all things are continuing as they were from the beginning of creation.” Peter answers: they forget that God created the world by his word, and that the same word destroyed the world by water and now holds the present heavens and earth for fire. Delay is not slowness. “With the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.” God is not bound by our clock. “The Lord is not slow to fulfill his promise as some count slowness, but is patient toward you, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance.” Delay is mercy. Christians who hold to unconditional election read “you” as the elect, God’s people, for whom he waits until all are gathered. Others read “all” broadly as God’s desire for every person. Either way, patience calls for repentance.

“But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, and then the heavens will pass away with a roar, and the elements will be dissolved with heat, and the earth and the works that are done on it will be exposed.” Interpreters debate whether this means the complete destruction of the present creation or its purging and renewal by fire, as metal is refined. Many hold the latter, noting the comparison to Noah's flood, which did not annihilate the earth. The end result is clear: "According to his promise we are waiting for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells."

So what kind of people should we be? "Since all these things are thus to be dissolved, what sort of people ought you to be in lives of holiness and godliness, waiting for and hastening the coming of the day of God?" Be diligent to be found without spot or blemish, at peace. Beware of being carried away with the error of lawless people. And the closing charge: "But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be the glory both now and to the day of eternity. Amen."

STEP 5

Connection

Jude 4-19 closely parallels chapter 2. Genesis 6-8 and 19 record the flood and Sodom. Numbers 22-24 tells the story of Balaam. Proverbs 26:11 is quoted in 2:22. Psalm 90:4 stands behind 3:8. Matthew 24:36-44 and 1 Thessalonians 5:2 describe the Lord coming like a thief. Habakkuk 2:3 speaks of waiting for a delayed vision. Romans 2:4 says God's kindness leads to repentance. 1 Timothy 2:4 says God desires all to be saved. Isaiah 65:17 and 66:22 promise new heavens and a new earth. Romans 8:19-23 and Revelation 21:1-5 describe the renewed creation.

STEP 6

Application

Test the teaching you hear against Scripture. Ask where it comes from, what it says about Christ, and what kind of lives its teachers lead.

Reframe a delay in your own life, such as an unanswered prayer or a waiting season, in light of 3:8-9. How might God be showing patience?

Pick one way to "grow in grace and knowledge" this week, such as a book of the Bible or a theological book.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to keep you from false teachers.

Thank him that he knows how to rescue the godly.

Ask him to help you grow in grace and in knowledge of Jesus.

DAY 853 · WEEK 122

Psalm 34

Taste and see that the LORD is good

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Psalm · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 34. David praises God for rescue and invites others to taste and see. Notice the movement from personal testimony to teaching, and the promises to the brokenhearted and the righteous.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The heading says this is a psalm "of David, when he changed his behavior before Abimelech, so that he drove him out, and he went away." It looks back on 1 Samuel 21:10-15, when David, fleeing Saul, went to the Philistine king and pretended to be insane to save his life. The psalm is an acrostic, each verse beginning with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. It is a thanksgiving for deliverance and a teaching psalm. Peter quotes it in his first letter (1 Peter 2:3 and 3:10-12), so it is a natural companion to our reading.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I will bless the LORD at all times; his praise shall continually be in my mouth" (v. 1).
2. "I sought the LORD, and he answered me and delivered me from all my fears" (v. 4).
3. "Those who look to him are radiant, and their faces shall never be ashamed" (v. 5).
4. "The angel of the LORD encamps around those who fear him, and delivers them" (v. 7).
5. "Oh, taste and see that the LORD is good! Blessed is the man who takes refuge in him!" (v. 8).
6. "The LORD is near to the brokenhearted and saves the crushed in spirit" (v. 18).
7. "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the LORD delivers him out of them all" (v. 19).

8 “The LORD redeems the life of his servants; none of those who take refuge in him will be condemned” (v. 22).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David begins with a commitment: “I will bless the LORD at all times; his praise shall continually be in my mouth.” Not only when things go well, and not only when he is in the temple. This praise comes from a man who has just escaped by his wits and who admits that the credit belongs to the LORD. He invites others: “Oh, magnify the LORD with me, and let us exalt his name together!” Then his story: “I sought the LORD, and he answered me and delivered me from all my fears.” This poor man (the afflicted) cried, and the LORD heard him and saved him out of all his troubles. “The angel of the LORD encamps around those who fear him, and delivers them.”

The center of the psalm is the invitation: “Oh, taste and see that the LORD is good! Blessed is the man who takes refuge in him!” Faith is not only believing; it is experiencing. We do not just analyze whether a meal is good; we taste it. God invites us to try him and find that he is good. Peter picks up the image in 1 Peter 2:3, speaking of those who have “tasted that the Lord is good.” David notes that young lions suffer want and hunger, “but those who seek the LORD lack no good thing.”

Then David moves into a teaching mode: “Come, O children, listen to me; I will teach you the fear of the LORD.” The fear of the LORD includes keeping the tongue from evil, turning from evil and doing good, and seeking peace. “The eyes of the LORD are toward the righteous and his ears toward their cry. The face of the LORD is against those who do evil.” Peter quotes these verses to encourage persecuted Christians that God sees their suffering.

The psalm’s most tender promise is verse 18: “The LORD is near to the brokenhearted and saves the crushed in spirit.” God does not stand far off from the hurting. And it is honest about suffering: “Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the LORD delivers him out of them all. He keeps all his bones; not one of them is broken.” John quotes this verse in John 19:36, seeing it fulfilled in Jesus on the cross: not one of his bones was broken. The righteous sufferer ultimately is Christ. And the psalm ends with the promise to all who trust in him: “The LORD redeems the life of his servants; none of those who take refuge in him will be condemned.”

STEP 5

Connection

1 Samuel 21:10-15 is the background story. 1 Peter 2:3 and 3:10-12 quote and allude to this psalm. John 19:36 sees verse 20 fulfilled. Psalm 27:13 and 119:103 also speak of tasting God's goodness. Isaiah 57:15 and 61:1 speak of the brokenhearted. Psalm 51:17 says God does not despise a broken heart. Luke 4:18 has Jesus bind up the brokenhearted. Romans 8:1 and 8:31-39 declare no condemnation. Matthew 4:11 and Hebrews 1:14 refer to angels serving. Romans 8:28 says God works for the good of those who love him.

STEP 6

Application

Practice taste and see: pause at one point today and thank God for something specific, noticing his goodness.

If you are brokenhearted, read verse 18 slowly and pray it as your own. If you know someone who is, sit with them.

Tell someone else about a time God delivered you, as David did in verses 1 to 6.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Bless the LORD at this moment, in your own words.
- Thank him for delivering you from fears.
- Ask him to help you taste and see his goodness.

2 PETER 3:18

REST

Meditation

These are Peter's last written words, and they are a command to keep growing. After warnings about false teachers and scoffers, his remedy is not only to guard but to grow. A healthy plant resists disease. A Christian who grows in grace and knowledge is harder to lead astray.

Grace comes first. We grow in the grace of God, receiving more of his kindness and being shaped by it. Knowledge comes second: not just information, but knowing Christ more deeply. The two go together; knowledge without grace puffs up, and grace without knowledge stays shallow.

Notice the object: "our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." Growth is growth toward and into him. And the verse ends with praise: "To him be the glory both now and to the day of eternity." Our growth is for his glory. Ask the Lord today where he wants you to grow.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the rest of 1 Peter and all of 2 Peter. First Peter 2 and 3 called us to honor everyone, follow the example of Christ who bore our sins on the tree, and always be ready to explain our hope with gentleness and respect. First Peter 4 and 5 taught us to love earnestly, use our gifts as good stewards, not be surprised by fiery trials, shepherd willingly, cast our anxieties on God, resist the roaring lion, and trust the God of all grace. Second Peter 1 told us that God has given us everything we need for life and godliness and urged us to add virtue to our faith. On Day 851 we paused on the origin and canon of Scripture. Second Peter 2 and 3 warned us about false teachers and scoffers and pointed to the patience of the Lord and the new heavens and new earth. Psalm 34 invited us to taste and see that the LORD is good.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Peter says to be ready to give a defense for the hope that is in you with gentleness and respect. What is your hope, and how would you explain it in two minutes to a neighbor who asked?

Peter says to cast all your anxieties on God because he cares for you. What anxiety are you carrying right now? What would it look like to hand it to him in prayer today?

Peter's final words are to grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. In what area do you most want to grow in the next month, and what is one practical step?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for rest and for his word.

Ask him to help you grow in grace and knowledge.

Rest in his provision.

DAY 855 · WEEK 123

Psalm 118:1-18

His steadfast love endures forever

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Psalm · 18 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 118:1-18. This is the last of the Hallel psalms (113 to 118), which Jews sang at Passover and which Jesus and his disciples most likely sang at the Last Supper. Notice how often the psalm repeats "the LORD" and how the speaker moves from distress to victory.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 118 is a song of thanksgiving for a national and personal deliverance, sung in procession to the temple. The speaker is a king or leader who has been surrounded by enemies and brought through. The Hallel was sung at the great feasts, and the New Testament treats this psalm as pointing to Christ: the stone the builders rejected (v. 22) and "Blessed is he who comes in the name of the LORD" (v. 26) were cried at Jesus' entry into Jerusalem. Today we read the first part, which focuses on God's steadfast love and salvation.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; for his steadfast love endures forever!" (v. 1).
2. "Out of my distress I called on the LORD; the LORD answered me and set me free" (v. 5).
3. "The LORD is on my side; I will not fear. What can man do to me?" (v. 6).
4. "It is better to take refuge in the LORD than to trust in man" (v. 8).
5. "All nations surrounded me; in the name of the LORD I cut them off!" (v. 10).
6. "I was pushed hard, so that I was falling, but the LORD helped me" (v. 13).
7. "The LORD is my strength and my song; he has become my salvation" (v. 14).
8. "I shall not die, but I shall live, and recount the deeds of the LORD" (v. 17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins and ends with the same words: “Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; for his steadfast love endures forever!” Israel, the house of Aaron, and all who fear the LORD are called to say it. “Steadfast love” (hesed) is God’s covenant faithfulness, a love that does not let go. It is the refrain of the exodus and of the whole Old Testament. Later we will read in 1 John that “God is love,” and the two belong together. The love that endures forever is the love that sent the Son.

Then the testimony: “Out of my distress I called on the LORD; the LORD answered me and set me free.” The Hebrew for “set me free” is “in a broad place,” meaning out of tight distress into open space. From this the singer draws a conclusion: “The LORD is on my side; I will not fear. What can man do to me?” Paul takes up the same confidence in Romans 8:31: “If God is for us, who can be against us?” The LORD is my helper, and I shall look in triumph on those who hate me. Then a proverb: “It is better to take refuge in the LORD than to trust in man. It is better to take refuge in the LORD than to trust in princes.” Human help is limited; God’s help is not.

Verses 10 to 12 describe the enemies swarming like bees, flaming like a fire of thorns. Three times the singer says, “In the name of the LORD I cut them off.” Victory is not in his strength but in God’s name. Then verse 13 is honest about how close it was: “I was pushed hard, so that I was falling, but the LORD helped me.” We should not minimize the near-failure. And at the center, a line borrowed from the Song of Moses (Exodus 15:2): “The LORD is my strength and my song; he has become my salvation.” Glad songs of salvation are heard in the tents of the righteous: “The right hand of the LORD does valiantly.”

The speaker concludes this section with a statement of resurrection language: “I shall not die, but I shall live, and recount the deeds of the LORD. The LORD has disciplined me severely, but he has not given me over to death.” He has been chastened but not condemned. For the singer, it is deliverance from literal death; for Christians, it points to Christ, who died and rose, and to all who are in him. He sang this psalm on the night he was betrayed, knowing what lay ahead. And the God whose love endures forever did not abandon him to the grave.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 15:2 is quoted in verse 14. Psalm 56:4, 11 and Romans 8:31 echo verse 6. Jeremiah 17:5-8 contrasts trust in man and trust in the LORD. Psalm 146:3 warns against trusting princes. Matthew 26:30 and Mark 14:26 say Jesus and the disciples sang a hymn, probably the Hallel. Matthew 21:9, 42 apply verses 22 and 26 to Jesus. Acts 4:11 and 1 Peter 2:7 quote verse 22. Hebrews 12:5-11 speaks of the Lord's discipline. 1 John 4:8-10 speaks of God's love. 2 Corinthians 1:8-10 describes deliverance from the sentence of death.

STEP 6

Application

Read verse 1 aloud at the start of the day, and name three specific ways you have seen God's steadfast love in the last week.

Name a person or institution in which you are placing too much trust. Entrust that situation to the LORD.

Memorize verse 14 as a short prayer when you feel weak.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Give thanks to God for his steadfast love.
- Thank him that the LORD is on your side.
- Thank him for the stone the builders rejected.

DAY 856 · WEEK 123

Psalm 31:1-8

Into your hands I commit my spirit

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Psalm · 8 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 31:1-8. This is a prayer of refuge by David. Notice the rock and fortress language and the line that Jesus prayed from the cross.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 31 is a psalm of David written in a time of distress, perhaps when he was hunted by Saul. It contains a mixture of confident trust, honest lament, and thanksgiving. The first eight verses are mostly trust. Verse 5 holds special significance because Jesus used it as his final prayer on the cross (Luke 23:46), and so did Stephen as he died (Acts 7:59). Many saints through history have prayed it at the end of their lives.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “In you, O LORD, do I take refuge; let me never be put to shame; in your righteousness deliver me!” (v. 1).
2. “Be a rock of refuge for me, a strong fortress to save me!” (v. 2).
3. “For you are my rock and my fortress” (v. 3).
4. “You take me out of the net they have hidden for me, for you are my refuge” (v. 4).
5. “Into your hand I commit my spirit; you have redeemed me, O LORD, faithful God” (v. 5).
6. “But I trust in the LORD” (v. 6).
7. “I will rejoice and be glad in your steadfast love, because you have seen my affliction” (v. 7).
8. “You have set my feet in a broad place” (v. 8).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David begins with a plea built on God's character: "In you, O LORD, do I take refuge; let me never be put to shame; in your righteousness deliver me!" He appeals not to his own righteousness but to God's. He asks God to incline his ear, to rescue speedily, and to be a rock of refuge and a strong fortress. Then he states a conviction: "For you are my rock and my fortress; and for your name's sake you lead me and guide me." God's reputation is bound up with his people. Because his name is good, he can be trusted to guide.

The enemies have set a trap: "You take me out of the net they have hidden for me, for you are my refuge." David is not just fleeing; he is looking to God to pull him from danger he cannot see.

Then the line that has comforted generations: "Into your hand I commit my spirit; you have redeemed me, O LORD, faithful God." For David, it was a prayer of trust at a time of danger, committing his life into God's hand. It is a daily prayer, like a rest at night. And since Jesus prayed it at his death (adding "Father"), it became the prayer of the dying. When Jesus said it, he was committing himself into the hands of the Father who would raise him. For the believer, to commit our spirit to God is to trust him with our life now and our death at the end.

David contrasts his trust with that of those who "pay regard to worthless idols." Idols cannot rescue. He rejoices in God's steadfast love, "because you have seen my affliction; you have known the distress of my soul, and you have not delivered me into the hand of the enemy; you have set my feet in a broad place." God sees, knows, and brings out into the open. The tightness of danger gives way to wide places.

Verses 9 to 18 turn to lament, describing David's grief, his friends' abandonment, and his plot-ridden enemies. There David says, "But I trust in you, O LORD; I say, You are my God. My times are in your hand" (vv. 14-15). The psalm ends with a call to the saints to love the LORD and to be strong and take courage, all you who wait for him (vv. 23-24).

STEP 5

Connection

Luke 23:46 and Acts 7:59 quote verse 5. Psalm 18:2, 71:1-3, and 91:2 use rock and fortress language. Psalm 25:2-3 also asks not to be put to shame. Psalm 18:19 and 118:5 speak of a broad place. Jonah 2:8 also refers to idols. Isaiah 41:10 and Romans 8:31-39 offer similar assurance. 1 Peter 4:19 speaks of entrusting our souls to a faithful Creator. Hebrews 5:7-9 speaks of Jesus' prayers. John 10:28-29 speaks of being held in the hand of Jesus and the Father. 2 Timothy 1:12 expresses a similar confidence in what Christ guards.

STEP 6

Application

Pray verse 5 tonight as you go to sleep, committing your spirit and tomorrow into God's hand.

Think of a situation that feels like a tight place. Ask God to set your feet in a broad place.

If you are afraid of death, memorize verse 5 and remember who prayed it first.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Take refuge in God, and tell him why.
- Commit your spirit into his hands.
- Ask him to lead and guide you for his name's sake.

DAY 857 · WEEK 123

1 John 1:1-2:29

The word of life; walking in light; the antichrists

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 54 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 John 1:1-2:29. John writes as an eyewitness of Jesus and gives tests by which his readers can know that they have eternal life. Notice the repeated themes of light and darkness, truth and lies, and love and hate.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The apostle John, the last living eyewitness, wrote this letter in his old age, probably from Ephesus in the 80s or 90s AD. A group had left the church (2:19), claiming a higher knowledge, denying that Jesus had come in the flesh, and living as though sin did not matter. John writes to assure true believers and expose the counterfeit. There is no formal greeting; he begins like a sermon. His message is simple and deep: the God who is light and love has come to us in Jesus, and those who know him walk in the light and love one another.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “That which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we looked upon and have touched with our hands” (1:1).
2. “God is light, and in him is no darkness at all” (1:5).
3. “The blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin” (1:7).
4. “If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness” (1:9).
5. “We have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous” (2:1).
6. “He is the propitiation for our sins” (2:2).
7. “Do not love the world or the things in the world” (2:15).

8 “They went out from us, but they were not of us” (2:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John begins by insisting that the Word of life was heard, seen, and touched. The Christian faith is not a myth or an idea but the testimony of those who handled the incarnate Son. The purpose of this witness is fellowship: “that you too may have fellowship with us; and indeed our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ.” He writes “that our joy may be complete.”

The message is this: “God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.” Then John gives three false claims and three true responses. If we claim fellowship with him while walking in darkness, we lie. But “if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin.” If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves. But “if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.” He is faithful (he keeps his promises) and just (the price was paid by Christ). If we say we have not sinned, we make him a liar. Walking in the light does not mean sinless perfection; it means honest confession.

Chapter 2 opens tenderly. “My little children, I am writing these things to you so that you may not sin. But if anyone does sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. He is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only but also for the sins of the whole world.” Propitiation means the sacrifice that turns aside God’s wrath. Christ is both the advocate who pleads for us and the sacrifice that makes the plea valid. The phrase “the whole world” has been understood in different ways: that Christ’s sacrifice is sufficient for all and sincerely offered to all, or (as many Reformed interpreters hold) that it is for people from every nation and not for Jews only. Either way, the focus is on the sufficiency and reach of his work.

The tests of knowing God are obedience and love. “And by this we know that we have come to know him, if we keep his commandments.” Whoever says he abides in him ought to walk as he walked. The old commandment is a new commandment that is true in Christ: whoever loves his brother abides in the light; whoever hates his brother is in darkness. John then addresses children, fathers, and young men with a message of forgiveness, knowledge of him who is from the beginning, and victory over the evil one.

The second warning is against the world: “Do not love the world or the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the desires of the flesh and the desires of the eyes and pride in possessions, is not from the Father but is from the world. And the world is passing away along with its desires, but whoever does the will of God abides forever.”

The final section warns about antichrists. “Children, it is the last hour, and as you have heard that antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have come.” The last hour began with Christ’s first coming. The antichrists denied that Jesus is the Christ. “They went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would have continued with us. But they went out, so that it might become plain that they all are not of us.” Departure revealed their true nature. By contrast, believers have an anointing from the Holy One and know the truth. John exhorts: “And now, little children, abide in him, so that when he appears we may have confidence and not shrink from him in shame at his coming.”

STEP 5

Connection

John 1:1-14 and Luke 24:39 relate to the eyewitness testimony. Psalm 32:1-5 and Proverbs 28:13 speak of confession. Romans 3:25 and Hebrews 2:17 use propitiation language. Romans 8:34 and Hebrews 7:25 describe Christ’s intercession. John 13:34-35 gives the new commandment. Genesis 3:6 echoes the three desires in 2:16. Matthew 24:24 and 2 Thessalonians 2 speak of antichrists. John 14:26 and 16:13 promise the Spirit as teacher. Hebrews 6:4-6 and 10:26-31 speak of falling away. John 6:66-69 shows disciples who left Jesus.

STEP 6

Application

Confess a specific sin today. Believe the promise of 1:9 and receive the forgiveness: he is faithful and just.

When you sin this week, remember you have an advocate. Run to him, not away.

Examine your loves. What “world” desire has been competing with the love of the Father?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he is light, and ask him to help you walk in it.

Confess your sin and thank him for forgiving it.

Ask him to keep you from loving the world.

DAY 858 · WEEK 123

1 John 3:1-24

Children of God; love as the test of genuine faith

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 24 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 John 3:1-24. John speaks of the great love of the Father, the family likeness of God's children, and love as the test of life. Notice the contrast between the children of God and the children of the devil.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In this chapter John continues his tests of genuine faith. These tests are not given to make believers anxious but to give assurance. Those who have been born of God will show a family likeness: they practice righteousness, they turn from sin, and they love their brothers and sisters. Cain is the example of the opposite. At the center is the cross as the pattern of love.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "See what kind of love the Father has given to us, that we should be called children of God; and so we are" (v. 1).
2. "When he appears we shall be like him, because we shall see him as he is" (v. 2).
3. "The reason the Son of God appeared was to destroy the works of the devil" (v. 8).
4. "No one born of God makes a practice of sinning" (v. 9).
5. "We know that we have passed out of death into life, because we love the brothers" (v. 14).
6. "By this we know love, that he laid down his life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for the brothers" (v. 16).
7. "Little children, let us not love in word or talk but in deed and in truth" (v. 18).

8 “For whenever our heart condemns us, God is greater than our heart, and he knows everything” (v. 20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John begins with amazement: “See what kind of love the Father has given to us, that we should be called children of God; and so we are.” We are not just treated as children; we are children. The world does not recognize us, because it did not know him. And the future is greater: “Beloved, we are God’s children now, and what we will be has not yet appeared; but we know that when he appears we shall be like him, because we shall see him as he is. And everyone who thus hopes in him purifies himself as he is pure.” The hope of seeing Christ and being like him is a power for holiness now.

Then comes the connection between sin and the new birth. “Everyone who makes a practice of sinning also practices lawlessness; sin is lawlessness.” Christ appeared to take away sins, and in him there is no sin. “The reason the Son of God appeared was to destroy the works of the devil.” Then the verse that has puzzled many: “No one born of God makes a practice of sinning, for God’s seed abides in him, and he cannot keep on sinning because he has been born of God.” Taken alone it seems to teach sinless perfection, but John already said in 1:8 that anyone who claims to be without sin is a liar. The verbs in the Greek are in the present tense and describe continuous, habitual action. A child of God may sin but cannot settle into sin as a way of life, because a new nature has been planted in him. So the children of God and the children of the devil are manifest: “Whoever does not practice righteousness is not of God, nor is the one who does not love his brother.”

The message from the beginning: “that we should love one another.” Not like Cain, who murdered his brother because his deeds were evil. “Do not be surprised, brothers, that the world hates you.” And then: “We know that we have passed out of death into life, because we love the brothers. Whoever does not love abides in death.” The Christian does not love in order to receive life; love is the evidence that life has been received.

The definition of love is the cross: “By this we know love, that he laid down his life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for the brothers.” This leads to a very practical word: “But if anyone has the world’s goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God’s love abide in him? Little children, let us not love in word or talk but in deed and in truth.” By this, we know that we are of the truth and reassure our heart before him.

Then a pastoral comfort for troubled consciences: “For whenever our heart condemns us, God is greater than our heart, and he knows everything.” Some read this as comfort: even when our conscience accuses us, God knows our sincere desire to love him and is greater than our accusing heart. Others read it as a warning that God sees all. In context, comfort is the more natural meaning. The chapter ends with the twin commands: “that we believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ and love one another.” And the one who keeps his commandments abides in God, and God in him, and “we know by this that he abides in us, by the Spirit whom he has given us.”

STEP 5

Connection

John 1:12-13 and Romans 8:14-17 speak of becoming children of God. Philippians 3:20-21 and Romans 8:29 promise we will be like Christ. Genesis 3:15 and Colossians 2:15 speak of the defeat of the devil. Genesis 4:1-12 is the story of Cain. John 5:24 says believers have passed from death to life. John 15:13 says there is no greater love than laying down one’s life. Romans 5:8 shows God’s love in Christ’s death. Matthew 25:31-46 ties judgment to care for the needy. James 2:15-17 repeats the point about love in deed. Romans 8:1 and 8:16 offer assurance for the condemning heart.

STEP 6

Application

Spend time with verse 1 and let it sink in: you are a child of God. Thank the Father for his lavish love.

Look for one practical way to love “in deed and in truth” this week, perhaps meeting a financial or practical need in your church.

If your heart condemns you, pray verse 20 and rest in God’s greater knowledge and mercy.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for the love that makes you his child.
- Ask him to teach you to love in deed and truth.
- Ask him to give you assurance.

DAY 859 · WEEK 123

1 John 4:1-5:21

Test the spirits; God is love; assurance

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 62 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 1 John 4:1-5:21. John gives more tests, including testing the spirits, and reaches the heights in his teaching on God's love. The letter ends with a statement of its purpose: that you may know that you have eternal life.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In these chapters John returns to the tests of true faith: believing that Jesus has come in the flesh, loving one another, and obeying God's commands. He is concerned about false prophets who deny the incarnation. He lays out the foundation of Christian love in the character of God and the love of Christ. The letter closes with assurance and the confidence that believers can pray according to God's will.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God" (4:1).
2. "Anyone who does not love does not know God, because God is love" (4:8).
3. "In this is love, not that we have loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins" (4:10).
4. "There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear" (4:18).
5. "We love because he first loved us" (4:19).
6. "For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments. And his commandments are not burdensome" (5:3).

7. “I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God that you may know that you have eternal life” (5:13).

8. “Little children, keep yourselves from idols” (5:21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John tells his readers to test every spirit, because many false prophets are in the world. The test is confessing that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh. Anyone who denies this is the spirit of the antichrist. But “he who is in you is greater than he who is in the world.” This is the first central theme: truth.

The second theme is love. “Beloved, let us love one another, for love is from God, and whoever loves has been born of God and knows God. Anyone who does not love does not know God, because God is love.” This is not just a description of God’s feelings; it is who he is. And where do we see this love? “In this the love of God was made manifest among us, that God sent his only Son into the world, so that we might live through him. In this is love, not that we have loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.” Love begins with God, not with us. And “if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another.” No one has ever seen God, but if we love one another, God abides in us and his love is perfected in us. The Spirit he has given us is the assurance that we abide in him.

Verse 18 is a comfort: “There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear. For fear has to do with punishment, and whoever fears has not been perfected in love.” When we are sure of the Father’s love, we do not fear final punishment. And then the memory verse of the unit: “We love because he first loved us.” Our love is a response. And finally the test: “If anyone says, I love God, and hates his brother, he is a liar; for he who does not love his brother whom he has seen cannot love God whom he has not seen.”

Chapter 5 states that everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ has been born of God. Love for God means keeping his commandments, “and his commandments are not burdensome. For everyone who has been born of God overcomes the world.” The victory is our faith. Who is it that overcomes the world except the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God? John then speaks of the three witnesses: the Spirit, the water, and the blood, which agree. Most interpreters understand these as Jesus’ baptism, his death on the cross, and the Spirit’s testimony. (Some older English translations include an additional clause about “the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit” in verse 7, which is not found in the earliest Greek manuscripts.)

The great purpose statement: “And this is the testimony, that God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have the Son of God does not have life. I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God that you may know that you have eternal life.” Assurance is possible, and it is what the whole letter aims at. He then gives confidence in prayer: “if we ask anything according to his will he hears us.” There is mention of a “sin that leads to death” (5:16-17), which interpreters take differently: a persistent, public rejection of Christ, or apostasy, or a sin bringing physical death. The point is that we should pray for our brothers, and that all wrongdoing is sin. We know that everyone born of God does not keep on sinning, that the Son of God keeps him, and that the evil one does not touch him. The final words, “Little children, keep yourselves from idols,” are a call to cling to the true God.

STEP 5

Connection

Deuteronomy 13:1-5 and 1 Corinthians 12:3 speak of testing prophets. Romans 5:8 and John 3:16 are other statements of God’s love. Exodus 34:6-7 declares God’s steadfast love. Romans 8:15 says we have not received a spirit of fear but of adoption. Matthew 22:36-40 joins loving God and neighbor. John 14:15 says if you love me, you will keep my commandments. Matthew 11:30 speaks of an easy yoke. John 16:33 says Christ has overcome the world. John 20:31 states a similar purpose. Hebrews 6:4-8 and 10:26-31 relate to the sin leading to death. Exodus 20:3-5 forbids idols.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a teaching you recently heard. Test it by what it says about Christ.

Read 4:9-10 again. Whom do you find difficult to love? Ask God to help you love them as he has loved you.

Write down 5:13 on a card and keep it where you see it as a reminder that you can know you have eternal life.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he is love and sent his Son.

Ask him to help you love because he first loved you.

Ask him to strengthen your assurance.

Perseverance and Assurance

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read John 10:27-30, Romans 8:31-39, and 1 John 5:11-13. Today is a doctrinal pause on perseverance and assurance. Notice the language of security and the repeated phrase “no one” and “nothing” can separate us from Christ.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Two questions trouble many Christians. First: can a true believer lose his salvation? Second: how can I know that I am really saved? The first is the doctrine of perseverance, and the second is the doctrine of assurance. They are related but distinct. Christians have answered them in different ways, so we proceed carefully and with charity, and we let Scripture speak.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me” (John 10:27).
2. “I give them eternal life, and they will never perish, and no one will snatch them out of my hand” (John 10:28).
3. “No one is able to snatch them out of the Father’s hand” (John 10:29).
4. “If God is for us, who can be against us?” (Romans 8:31).
5. “Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?” (Romans 8:35).
6. “Will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord” (Romans 8:39).
7. “Whoever has the Son has life” (1 John 5:12).

8 “I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God that you may know that you have eternal life” (1 John 5:13).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

Perseverance of the saints is the teaching that all those truly born again will be kept by God and will persevere in faith to the end. They are kept not by their own strength but by God’s power (1 Peter 1:5). Those who fall away finally show they were never truly of us (1 John 2:19). This is the view of Reformed churches and of many Baptists and other evangelicals, sometimes expressed as “eternal security” or “once saved, always saved,” though the first phrase is better because it stresses that true believers do persevere.

The case for perseverance rests on the promises of God. Jesus says his sheep “will never perish, and no one will snatch them out of my hand.” Paul says that those God predestined, he called; those he called, he justified; and those he justified, he glorified (Romans 8:30), with no loss along the chain. He is “sure that neither death nor life, nor angels nor rulers… will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.” Philippians 1:6 promises that he who began a good work will bring it to completion. Jude 24 says he is able to keep us from stumbling. Salvation depends on God’s faithfulness, not ours.

Other Christians, especially in Arminian and Wesleyan traditions, hold that a true believer can, through persistent unbelief and rejection of Christ, fall from grace. They point to warning passages such as Hebrews 6:4-6, 10:26-31, and 2 Peter 2:20-22, and to Jesus’ words in John 15:1-6 about branches that do not abide. Many in this tradition affirm that believers have a strong security in Christ and that falling away is not a casual matter, but rather a deliberate abandonment of faith. Both sides take the warnings seriously. The Reformed answer is that the warnings are real means God uses to keep his people persevering: they are warnings to those who profess faith but may not have it, and they are God’s way of causing true believers to hold fast. Perseverance is something believers do, empowered by God.

Assurance is the confidence that I am a child of God. John says this is the purpose of his letter (1 John 5:13). Assurance rests on three supports. First, the promises of God in Scripture: whoever believes in him has eternal life. Second, the inward witness of the Holy Spirit, who testifies with our spirit that we are children of God (Romans 8:16). Third, the fruit in our lives: growing love, obedience, and hatred of sin. A person may be truly saved but lack assurance for a time, because of sin, depression, or weak understanding. Assurance can grow, and it is a gift to pray for.

How should we hold the doctrine? With humility and care. The warnings keep us from presumption, and the promises keep us from despair. A believer who struggles with doubt should look away from his own performance to Christ, who holds him. A person who is careless should hear the warnings. Our confidence is not in our grip on Christ, but in his grip on us.

STEP 4

Interpretation

In John 10, Jesus describes his sheep: they hear his voice, he knows them, and they follow him. Note that the description includes following, which is a mark of true sheep. He gives them eternal life, and they will never perish. The security is double: they are in his hand and in the Father's hand. The ground is that "I and the Father are one": the power that holds us is the unlimited power of God.

Romans 8 builds an argument from God's love. If God gave his own Son for us, will he not give us all things? Who will bring a charge against God's elect? God is the one who justifies. Who is to condemn? Christ Jesus is the one who died, who was raised, who is at the right hand of God, who intercedes for us. Then the great list of possible threats: tribulation, distress, persecution, famine, nakedness, danger, sword; death, life, angels, rulers, things present, things to come, powers, height, depth, anything else in all creation. None can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord. This is a promise for those in Christ and rests on what Christ has done.

First John 5 ties assurance to the possession of the Son. "And this is the testimony, that God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have the Son of God does not have life." The question is whether we have the Son. If we believe in his name, we have life, and God wants us to know it.

STEP 5

Connection

Philippians 1:6 and Jude 24-25 promise God's keeping. 1 Peter 1:3-5 says we are guarded by God's power through faith. Ephesians 1:13-14 says we are sealed with the Spirit. Romans 8:28-30 gives the golden chain. John 6:37-40 and 17:11-12 speak of Jesus keeping those the Father gave him. Hebrews 3:12-14, 6:4-12, and 10:26-39 are warnings. John 15:1-8 speaks of abiding. Colossians 1:21-23 calls for continuing in the faith. 2 Peter 1:10 urges making our calling and election sure. Romans 8:16 speaks of the Spirit's witness. 2 Corinthians 13:5 urges self-examination.

STEP 6

Application

If you doubt your salvation, take your eyes off yourself and look at Christ. Read John 10:27-30 slowly and rest.

If you have grown careless, hear the warnings kindly and ask whether you are abiding in Christ daily.

Share 1 John 5:13 with a struggling friend and pray that they would know they have eternal life.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus, the Good Shepherd, for keeping you.

Thank him that nothing can separate you from his love.

Ask him to strengthen your assurance.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read 1 John 1:9 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

1 JOHN 1:9

REST

Meditation

This verse is a gift for anyone who has failed. The condition is simple: confess. To confess means to say the same thing about our sin that God says, not minimizing, excusing, or blaming. We do not have to clean ourselves up first.

The promise is two-sided. God is faithful: he keeps his covenant promises. And he is just: the penalty has been paid by Christ, so God does not forgive by ignoring justice but by satisfying it. Therefore the forgiveness is certain.

The result has two parts: forgiveness of our sins (the guilt is removed) and cleansing from unrighteousness (the stain and power of sin are dealt with). We are not left in the pit.

When shame tells you to hide, say this verse to God, and then name the specific sin. Accept his forgiveness, and walk in the light.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read Psalms 118 and 31, all of 1 John, and a pause on perseverance. Psalm 118 told us to give thanks to the LORD, whose steadfast love endures forever, and to take refuge in him rather than in man. Psalm 31 gave the prayer of committing our spirit into God's hand. First John 1 and 2 taught us that God is light, that confession brings forgiveness, that Christ is our advocate and propitiation, and that we must not love the world. First John 3 marveled at the love of the Father who calls us his children, and defined love as laying down our lives in deed and truth. First John 4 and 5 taught us to test the spirits, that God is love, that perfect love casts out fear, and that we can know that we have eternal life. Day 860 was a pause on perseverance and assurance: God keeps his people, and he wants us to know it.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

John gives several tests of genuine faith: believing that Jesus came in the flesh, obeying God's commands, and loving one another. Which of these tests encourages you most, and which do you want to grow in?

John says Jesus Christ the righteous is our advocate with the Father and the propitiation for our sins. How does knowing that Christ pleads for you change the way you respond when you sin?

John writes that he wants you to know you have eternal life. What gives you confidence about your salvation, and what makes you doubt? What promise of Scripture can you hold on to this week?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Confess your sins to God, naming them without excuse.

Thank him that he is faithful and just to forgive and cleanse.

Rest in his forgiveness.

DAY 862 · WEEK 124

2 John 1:1-13

Truth and love; the deceivers

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 13 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 2 John, a single chapter. It is the shortest book in the Bible by Greek word count and takes about two minutes to read. Notice how truth and love are joined, and how hospitality has limits when false teaching is at stake.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Second John is a personal letter from "the elder" (the apostle John, in his old age) to "the elect lady and her children," either a local congregation or a Christian woman and her family. The occasion was the same as in 1 John: itinerant teachers who denied that Jesus had come in the flesh were traveling from church to church. In the ancient world, traveling teachers depended on hospitality, and a believer's home could become a base for false teaching. John writes to praise faithfulness and to give a warning.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The elect lady and her children, whom I love in truth" (v. 1).
2. "I rejoiced greatly to find some of your children walking in the truth" (v. 4).
3. "And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments" (v. 6).
4. "For many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess the coming of Jesus Christ in the flesh" (v. 7).
5. "Watch yourselves, so that you may not lose what we have worked for, but may win a full reward" (v. 8).
6. "Whoever abides in the teaching has both the Father and the Son" (v. 9).
7. "Do not receive him into your house or give him any greeting" (v. 10).

8 “So that our joy may be complete” (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John greets the church with love “in truth” and with the grace of “truth and love.” The words “truth” and “love” occur together throughout the letter, and both are essential. Truth without love is hard, and love without truth is sentimental. John says that the truth “abides in us and will be with us forever.” He rejoices that some of the children are walking in the truth, just as the Father commanded.

His request is the old commandment: “that we love one another. And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments.” Love is not just a feeling; it is obedience. This is the same message as in 1 John 5:3.

Then the warning: “For many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess the coming of Jesus Christ in the flesh. Such a one is the deceiver and the antichrist.” The false teachers were denying the incarnation. John tells the readers to watch themselves, so as not to lose the fruit of their labors but to receive a full reward. He draws the line sharply: “Everyone who goes on ahead and does not abide in the teaching of Christ, does not have God. Whoever abides in the teaching has both the Father and the Son.” Those who “go on ahead” claim to advance beyond the apostles’ teaching, but in fact they leave Christ behind.

The practical instruction is: “If anyone comes to you and does not bring this teaching, do not receive him into your house or give him any greeting, for whoever greets him takes part in his wicked works.” How do we apply this? It does not forbid showing kindness to unbelievers or neighbors, and it does not tell us to be rude to those who disagree on secondary matters. It concerns teachers who deny the core of the gospel, particularly the person and work of Christ, and who come as representatives of Christian faith. To welcome and fund such a teacher would be to support his work. Each situation calls for wisdom. We should hold firmly to the truth, and we should treat the people we disagree with with the patience Christ showed.

The letter ends as it began, with warm personal greetings: John hopes to visit and speak face to face, “so that our joy may be complete.” The children of your elect sister greet you. Nothing replaces the presence of Christians together.

STEP 5

Connection

1 John 2:18-27 and 4:1-6 give the same warning. 1 John 5:3 ties love to obedience. John 14:15 and 15:10 are Jesus' words on keeping his commandments. Galatians 1:6-9 pronounces a curse on a different gospel. Titus 3:10-11 instructs us to avoid a divisive person after warnings. Romans 16:17-18 also tells us to watch out for those who cause divisions. Romans 12:13 and Hebrews 13:2 commend hospitality. Matthew 5:43-48 teaches love for enemies. Ephesians 4:15 speaks of speaking the truth in love.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize verse 6: love is walking according to God's commandments.

Ask whether you tend to emphasize truth or love, and which you may be neglecting. Take one step to bring them together.

Test what you hear and read about Jesus by the apostolic teaching. If something denies Christ's deity or humanity, be cautious.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for truth and love in Jesus.
- Ask him to help you walk in the truth and love by obeying.
- Ask him to keep you from deceivers.

DAY 863 · WEEK 124

3 John 1:1-14

Hospitality; Gaius and Diotrephes

Year 2 · Unit 24 · Reading · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read 3 John, a single chapter. It is a private letter to a friend named Gaius, with a contrast between two men in the church: Gaius, who welcomed missionaries, and Diotrephes, who refused them. Notice how generosity and pride show themselves in practice.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Third John is the companion to 2 John. In 2 John, John warns against receiving false teachers. In 3 John, he commends receiving true ones. Traveling missionaries went out "for the sake of the name," relying on the hospitality of local believers rather than taking support from pagans. Gaius had welcomed them, and a leader named Diotrephes had not. The letter gives a window into the ordinary life of a first-century church with its generosity, ambition, and conflict.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Beloved, I pray that all may go well with you and that you may be in good health, as it goes well with your soul" (v. 2).
2. "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth" (v. 4).
3. "Beloved, it is a faithful thing you do in all your efforts for these brothers, strangers as they are" (v. 5).
4. "For they have gone out for the sake of the name, accepting nothing from the Gentiles" (v. 7).
5. "Therefore we ought to support people like these, that we may be fellow workers for the truth" (v. 8).

6. “Diotrephes, who likes to put himself first” (v. 9).
7. “Beloved, do not imitate evil but imitate good” (v. 11).
8. “Demetrius has received a good testimony from everyone” (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John writes to “the beloved Gaius, whom I love in truth.” His first words are a prayer for health: “I pray that all may go well with you and that you may be in good health, as it goes well with your soul.” It is a common greeting that implies that Gaius’s soul was doing well. It is not a promise that all believers will be healthy and wealthy but a loving wish for a friend. John rejoices when brothers testify to Gaius’s truth. “I have no greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth.” For a spiritual father, there is no greater joy.

Gaius is praised for his hospitality: “it is a faithful thing you do in all your efforts for these brothers, strangers as they are.” They have testified to his love before the church. John urges him to send them on their journey “in a manner worthy of God.” Why? “For they have gone out for the sake of the name, accepting nothing from the Gentiles. Therefore we ought to support people like these, that we may be fellow workers for the truth.” When we support missionaries, teachers, and church planters, we share in their work. This is a strong argument for generosity in giving and hospitality.

By contrast, Diotrephes “likes to put himself first.” He does not acknowledge John’s authority. He is “talking wicked nonsense against us,” will not welcome the brothers, and even stops those who want to, putting them out of the church. We should not be surprised that even the early church had its power struggles. Pride is the opposite of the servant spirit of Christ. John plans to deal with him personally when he comes.

John then gives a principle: “Beloved, do not imitate evil but imitate good. Whoever does good is from God; whoever does evil has not seen God.” Our conduct reveals our relationship with God. Demetrius, probably the one who carried the letter, is commended as a model. He has a good testimony from everyone and from the truth itself.

The letter closes with the hope of seeing Gaius face to face: “Peace be to you. The friends greet you. Greet the friends, each by name.” Christian friendship is personal, valuing each by name. This tiny letter reminds us that the work of the gospel depends on ordinary acts of generosity as well as on great teachers.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 12:13, 1 Peter 4:9, and Hebrews 13:2 command hospitality. Matthew 10:9-14 describes how Jesus sent out his disciples to rely on hospitality. Philippians 4:14-18 commends partnership in giving. Titus 3:13 also speaks of sending teachers on their way. Mark 9:33-35 and 10:42-45 teach that greatness is service. 1 Peter 5:3 warns elders against domineering. Matthew 23:5-12 warns against love of honor. Luke 22:24-27 shows the disciples' own ambition. Philippians 2:3-4 calls us to humility.

STEP 6

Application

Is there a missionary, church planter, or a visiting speaker you could support with prayer, money, or hospitality? Do it this week.

Ask whether you ever "like to put yourself first" in your family, church, or workplace. Confess it and take a lower seat.

Write a note to someone who has been a Gaius to you, and thank them by name.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for friends who walk in the truth.

Ask him to make you generous to those who serve him.

Ask him to keep you from loving to be first.

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Jude, a single chapter. Jude writes with urgency about false teachers who have crept into the church, and ends with one of the most beautiful doxologies in the Bible. Notice the examples from history and the practical instructions in verses 20 to 23.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Jude, the brother of James and therefore a brother of Jesus (though he calls himself a servant), intended to write about "our common salvation" but found it necessary instead to write a call to defend the faith. People had slipped into the churches who denied Christ's lordship and turned grace into an excuse for immorality. Jude's letter is closely parallel to 2 Peter 2. It uses examples from the Old Testament and from Jewish writings of the period.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Contend for the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints" (v. 3).
2. "Pervert the grace of our God into sensuality" (v. 4).
3. "He did not presume to pronounce a blasphemous judgment" (v. 9).
4. "Building yourselves up in your most holy faith; praying in the Holy Spirit" (v. 20).
5. "Keep yourselves in the love of God, waiting for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that leads to eternal life" (v. 21).
6. "And have mercy on those who doubt" (v. 22).
7. "Save others by snatching them out of the fire" (v. 23).
8. "Now to him who is able to keep you from stumbling and to present you blameless before the presence of his glory with great joy" (v. 24).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Jude introduces himself and greets his readers as "those who are called, beloved in God the Father and kept for Jesus Christ." Called, loved, kept: three words that summarize the Christian's security. Then the appeal: "Contend for the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints." The faith is a body of truth, entrusted to the apostles, complete and unchanging. We do not invent it or improve on it, but we guard and defend it. "Contend" is a strong word, like an athlete struggling for a prize, though Paul says the servant of the Lord must not be quarrelsome (2 Timothy 2:24). The way to contend is with truth, courage, and compassion.

The danger: "certain people have crept in unnoticed who long ago were designated for this condemnation, ungodly people, who pervert the grace of our God into sensuality and deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ." Their error is two-fold: moral (grace as license) and doctrinal (denying Christ's lordship). Jude gives three examples of judgment: Israel, who was saved out of Egypt but destroyed when they did not believe; the angels who left their proper place; and Sodom and Gomorrah. Great privilege does not protect those who persist in unbelief.

The false teachers "reject authority and blaspheme the glorious ones." Jude contrasts them with the archangel Michael, who, even in a dispute with the devil, "did not presume to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, The Lord rebuke you." Jude refers to a tradition about Michael and Moses' body, probably from a Jewish writing of the time, and to a prophecy of Enoch, which seems to come from the Book of 1 Enoch. Does that make these books Scripture? No. Paul also quoted pagan poets (Acts 17:28) without making them canonical. An inspired author may cite a true statement from a non-inspired source. This is why the canon (see Day 851) is important.

Jude's descriptions of the false teachers are some of the most vivid in the Bible: "hidden reefs" at the love feasts, "waterless clouds, swept along by winds," "fruitless trees in autumn, twice dead, uprooted," "wild waves of the sea, casting up the foam of their own shame," "wandering stars for whom the gloom of utter darkness has been reserved forever." Their end is judgment, as Enoch prophesied. They are grumblers, malcontents, following their own sinful desires, loud-mouthed boasters, showing favoritism for gain.

Then Jude turns to the readers: "But you, beloved, remember the predictions of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ." Scoffers will come. Our response is a fourfold program: "building yourselves up in your most holy faith; praying in the Holy Spirit, keep yourselves in the love of God, waiting for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that leads to eternal life." Notice the Trinity: Spirit, God, Lord Jesus. Faith, prayer, love, and hope together keep us in God's love. And then ministry to others: "And have mercy on those who doubt; save others by snatching them out of the fire; to others show mercy with fear, hating even the garment stained by the flesh." Three types of people receive three types of care: gentleness for the doubting, urgency for the endangered, and cautious compassion for those entangled in sin.

The letter ends with a doxology that has been read at countless services: "Now to him who is able to keep you from stumbling and to present you blameless before the presence of his glory with great joy, to the only God, our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion, and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen." We contend for the faith, but ultimately it is God who keeps us. And he will present us blameless, with great joy.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Peter 2 is a close parallel. Numbers 14 and 26:64-65 record the wilderness generation. Genesis 6:1-4 and 19:1-29 relate to the angels and Sodom. Zechariah 3:2 contains the words "The Lord rebuke you." Genesis 5:18-24 mentions Enoch. Numbers 16 and 22-24 tell of Korah and Balaam. Genesis 4:3-8 tells of Cain. 1 Timothy 6:20 and 2 Timothy 1:13-14 call us to guard the deposit. Acts 20:28-31 warns of wolves. Romans 16:25-27 is another great doxology. Philippians 1:6 and 1 Thessalonians 5:23-24 offer similar assurance.

STEP 6

Application

Memorize verse 24, and say it at the end of the day as a prayer of trust.

Choose one of the four disciplines in verses 20 and 21 (faith, prayer, love, hope) and strengthen it this week.

Think of a person who doubts. Reach out to them with patience and mercy.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that you are called, loved, and kept.

Ask him to help you contend for the faith with truth and love.

Ask him to keep you in his love and show mercy to the doubting.

REST

Meditation

This short verse is the heart of the General Epistles. James told us that faith without works is dead, Peter told us to love one another earnestly, John told us that God is love, and Jude told us to keep ourselves in the love of God. Where does that love begin? Not in us. "We love because he first loved us."

The love of God came first, in the cross: "In this is love, not that we have loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." Our love for God and for each other is the echo of his. We are not trying to earn love; we are responding to a love already given.

This is freeing. On days when we feel unloving, we do not manufacture love by willpower. We look again at the love that came first, and let it fill us and overflow. Say this verse slowly, and thank him for loving you first.

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

This unit took us through the General Epistles, which ask what genuine faith looks like in real life. James taught that faith is tested by trials and shown by works: we are to be doers of the word, tame the tongue by God's grace, show no partiality, and pray with patience. Psalms 12, 15, and 24 deepened this with the purity of the LORD's words, the character of those who dwell with God, and the King of glory who alone has clean hands and a pure heart. We paused to consider saving faith: knowing, agreeing, trusting, and how faith alone is never alone. First Peter gave us a living hope, our identity as a chosen race, royal priesthood, and holy nation, the example of Christ's suffering, and the call to cast our anxieties on God while resisting the roaring lion. Second Peter reminded us that God has given us everything for life and godliness, that Scripture is breathed out by the Spirit, and that the Lord's delay is patience. We paused on the canon: why we have sixty-six books. Psalms 34, 118, and 31 invited us to taste and see, to give thanks for steadfast love, and to commit our spirit to God's hand. First John gave tests of genuine faith: walking in the light, confessing sin, loving the brothers, believing in the incarnate Son, and knowing that we have eternal life. We paused on perseverance and assurance. Second John and Third John showed truth and love in hospitality, and Jude called us to contend for the faith once delivered and trust the God who is able to keep us from stumbling.

REFLECT

Review Questions

How does James reconcile "faith without works is dead" with justification by faith alone?

In your own words, explain how Paul and James fit together, and give one example of faith showing itself in works.

What does Peter mean by "a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation"?

Write what these titles tell you about who you are as a Christian, and how they shape how you live as an exile.

What are the tests of genuine faith in 1 John?

List the tests John gives, and choose one you want to grow in this month.

What does Jude mean when he says to "contend for the faith"?

Describe what it looks like to contend for the faith with both truth and mercy, using verses 20 to 23.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for loving you first.

Thank him for what the General Epistles have taught you about living the faith.

DAY 866 · WEEK 124

Revelation 1:1-20

The vision of Christ, the risen Lord among his churches

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 20 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 1:1-20 in one sitting. This is the opening of the last book of the Bible. Notice how often the language echoes the Old Testament, and how the book begins and ends with Jesus Christ, not with a timetable of events.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The apostle John, now an old man, was exiled on the island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea around AD 95, during the reign of the emperor Domitian, when emperor worship was pressing on the churches of Asia Minor. Revelation is a letter to seven real churches, a prophecy, and an apocalypse: a kind of writing that uses symbols and visions to unveil what is true behind the surface of history. It is full of images drawn from Daniel, Ezekiel, Isaiah, Zechariah, Exodus, and the Psalms, and nearly every verse echoes the Old Testament. It is not a puzzle to decode but a vision to be seen and a book to be heard. Its message to suffering believers is: Jesus reigns, and the Lamb wins.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Blessed is the one who reads aloud the words of this prophecy, and blessed are those who hear, and who keep what is written in it, for the time is near” (v. 3).
2. “To him who loves us and has freed us from our sins by his blood” (v. 5).
3. “Behold, he is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see him” (v. 7).
4. “I am the Alpha and the Omega, says the Lord God, who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty” (v. 8).
5. “I, John, your brother and partner in the tribulation and the kingdom and the patient endurance that are in Jesus” (v. 9).

6. “From his mouth came a sharp two-edged sword, and his face was like the sun shining in full strength” (v. 16).
7. “I died, and behold I am alive forevermore, and I have the keys of Death and Hades” (v. 18).
8. “The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches” (v. 20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The book begins, “The revelation of Jesus Christ.” The Greek word is apokalypsis, an unveiling. It is a revelation from Jesus and about Jesus. And it begins with a blessing, the first of seven in the book: “Blessed is the one who reads aloud the words of this prophecy, and blessed are those who hear, and who keep what is written in it.” It was meant to be read aloud in the churches and obeyed. “The time is near” means that its message presses on every generation.

The greeting is to the seven churches in Asia, from the triune God: from him “who is and who was and who is to come” (the Father), from the “seven spirits who are before his throne” (the Holy Spirit in his fullness), and from Jesus Christ, “the faithful witness, the firstborn of the dead, and the ruler of kings on earth.” Notice the three titles: he witnessed faithfully, he rose first, and he rules even over the emperor. Then a burst of praise: “To him who loves us and has freed us from our sins by his blood and made us a kingdom, priests to his God and Father, to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.” This borrows the language of Exodus 19:6 and applies it to the church, as Peter does. Then a promise combining Daniel 7:13 and Zechariah 12:10: “Behold, he is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see him, even those who pierced him, and all tribes of the earth will wail on account of him.” And God himself speaks: “I am the Alpha and the Omega,” the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet, the beginning and the end.

John describes himself as a “brother and partner in the tribulation and the kingdom and the patient endurance that are in Jesus.” Those three are always together for Christians: suffering, kingdom, and endurance. He was on Patmos “on account of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus.” On the Lord’s day (Sunday, the day of Christ’s resurrection) he was “in the Spirit” and heard a loud voice like a trumpet telling him to write what he sees to the seven churches.

He turns and sees seven golden lampstands, and in the midst “one like a son of man” (Daniel 7:13). His description is overwhelming: a long robe and golden sash, hair white like wool, eyes like a flame of fire, feet like burnished bronze, voice like the roar of many waters, in his right hand seven stars, from his mouth a sharp two-edged sword, and his face like the sun in full strength. Almost every feature recalls the Old Testament's descriptions of God and the Ancient of Days. Jesus is portrayed as divine, glorious, and terrifying. John falls at his feet as though dead. But Jesus lays his right hand on him and says, "Fear not, I am the first and the last, and the living one. I died, and behold I am alive forevermore, and I have the keys of Death and Hades." The same one who is glorious is the one who died. His keys mean that death and the grave answer to him. No one needs to fear them.

He tells John to write what he has seen, what is now, and what will take place after this. The seven stars and lampstands are explained: the stars are the angels (or messengers) of the churches, and the lampstands are the churches themselves. Jesus walks among his churches. He knows them, holds them, and judges them. Interpreters have understood Revelation in different ways: as largely about events in the first century (preterist), as the sweep of church history (historicist), as symbols of the spiritual struggle across all ages (idealist), or as largely about events at the end of history (futurist). Many thoughtful readers combine elements of these. In every approach, the center is clear: Christ is Lord, and his church is held in his hand.

STEP 5

Connection

Daniel 7:9-14 and 10:5-6 stand behind the vision of the Son of Man. Exodus 19:5-6 is the source of "a kingdom, priests." Zechariah 12:10 and Matthew 24:30 relate to verse 7. Isaiah 41:4 and 44:6 are behind the Alpha and Omega and the first and last. Ezekiel 1 and Isaiah 6 show similar overwhelming visions. John 1:1-18 and Philippians 2:9-11 speak of Christ's glory. Hebrews 2:14-15 speaks of the defeat of death. Acts 4:12 and Romans 14:9 speak of Christ's lordship. 1 Peter 2:9 says believers are a royal priesthood. Zechariah 4 describes the lampstand.

STEP 6

Application

Read the book aloud today, as the blessing in verse 3 invites. Even reading the first chapter aloud will help you hear it as its first audience did.

Picture the risen Christ walking among your church. What would he commend, and what would he correct?

When you fear death or what is ahead, say verse 18 to yourself: the living one holds the keys.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Worship Jesus, the faithful witness and ruler of kings.

Thank him for loving you and freeing you from your sins.

Ask him to keep you from fear, and listen to him say, “Fear not.”

DAY 867 · WEEK 124

Revelation 2:1-29

Letters to Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 29 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 2:1-29. Jesus speaks to four of the seven churches: Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, and Thyatira. Notice the pattern in each letter: a description of Christ, what he knows, what he commends or criticizes, a call to listen, and a promise to the one who conquers.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The seven churches were real congregations in cities of Asia Minor, arranged along a circular road. Each letter reflects its city's setting: Ephesus, a great port and the center of the cult of Artemis; Smyrna, loyal to Rome, with a hostile Jewish community; Pergamum, with temples to Zeus, Asclepius, and the emperor; Thyatira, a city of trade guilds that required participation in pagan feasts. The letters also work as a mirror for churches of every age, because the problems of love grown cold, persecution, compromise, and tolerance of false teaching never go away.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "But I have this against you, that you have abandoned the love you had at first" (v. 4).
2. "Remember therefore from where you have fallen; repent, and do the works you did at first" (v. 5).
3. "To the one who conquers I will grant to eat of the tree of life, which is in the paradise of God" (v. 7).
4. "Be faithful unto death, and I will give you the crown of life" (v. 10).
5. "Therefore repent. If not, I will come to you soon and war against them with the sword of my mouth" (v. 16).

6. “A white stone, with a new name written on the stone that no one knows except the one who receives it” (v. 17).
7. “I am he who searches mind and heart” (v. 23).
8. “And I will give him the morning star” (v. 28).

STEP 4

Interpretation

To Ephesus, Jesus is the one who walks among the lampstands. He commends their works, toil, patient endurance, and refusal to tolerate evil, and their testing of false apostles. “But I have this against you, that you have abandoned the love you had at first.” They had kept the doctrine but lost the love. The remedy has three parts: “Remember therefore from where you have fallen; repent, and do the works you did at first.” If not, he will remove their lampstand. Correct doctrine without warm love is a dying church. The promise to the conqueror: “I will grant to eat of the tree of life, which is in the paradise of God,” the restoration of Eden.

To Smyrna, Jesus is “the first and the last, who died and came to life.” There is no criticism, only comfort. “I know your tribulation and your poverty (but you are rich).” They are slandered and about to suffer imprisonment. “Do not fear what you are about to suffer… Be faithful unto death, and I will give you the crown of life.” Polycarp, the bishop of Smyrna, was martyred about sixty years later, saying he had served Christ eighty-six years. The promise: the conqueror “will not be hurt by the second death.” The first death can touch the body; the second cannot touch the faithful.

To Pergamum, Jesus has “the sharp two-edged sword.” The church lives “where Satan’s throne is,” probably a reference to the center of emperor worship. They have held fast his name, even when Antipas, “my faithful witness,” was killed. But some hold the teaching of Balaam (who led Israel into idolatry and sexual immorality, Numbers 25) and the Nicolaitans. The command: “Therefore repent.” The conqueror will receive “hidden manna” and a white stone with a new name, signs of provision and of acceptance and a personal identity from Christ.

To Thyatira, Jesus is the Son of God, “whose eyes are like a flame of fire.” This is the only place in Revelation he is called Son of God. The church is growing in love, faith, service, and patience, but “you tolerate that woman Jezebel,” who calls herself a prophetess and leads his servants into sexual immorality and food offered to idols. Jesus gave her time to repent, but she refuses. He warns: “I am he who searches mind and heart, and I will give to each of you as your works deserve.” Those who have not followed her teaching are to hold fast until he comes. The conqueror receives authority over the nations, sharing Christ’s rule (Psalm 2:8-9), and “the morning star,” which is Christ himself (22:16).

Each letter ends: “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.” The promises to the conqueror are not for a special class of believers. In 1 John 5:4-5, everyone born of God conquers through faith in Jesus. The conqueror is the persevering believer. Christ knows what we face, and he will keep his promises.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 19 tells of the founding of the church in Ephesus. Ephesians 6:23-24 speaks of love for the Lord. Genesis 2:9 and 3:22-24 describe the tree of life. Revelation 20:6 and 21:8 speak of the second death. Numbers 22-25 and 31:16 are the story of Balaam. 1 Kings 16:31-33 and 2 Kings 9 tell of Jezebel. Psalm 2:7-9 is the background of authority over the nations. 1 Corinthians 8 and 10:14-22 discuss food offered to idols. Jeremiah 17:10 and Romans 8:27 speak of God searching hearts. 2 Peter 1:19 and Revelation 22:16 mention the morning star. 1 John 5:4-5 says every believer conquers.

STEP 6

Application

Ask if your love for Christ and for his people is what it was at first. If not, follow the three steps: remember, repent, and return.

If you face pressure or ridicule for your faith, take the words to Smyrna to heart: do not fear; be faithful.

What teaching or practice do you tolerate that Christ would not? Bring it to him.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus that he walks among his churches and knows your works.
- Confess where you have compromised.
- Ask him to give you endurance and faithfulness.

Memory Verse for the Week

"Fear not, I am the first and the last, and the living one. I died, and behold I am alive forevermore, and I have the keys of Death and Hades."

REVELATION 1:17-18

REST

Meditation

John, the beloved disciple who once leaned on Jesus' chest at supper, falls at his feet as though dead when he sees the risen Christ in glory. Even for a friend, the glory of the Lord is overwhelming. And then Jesus lays his right hand on him and speaks the most common command in the Bible: "Fear not."

The reason is who Jesus is: the first and the last, the living one. He has always been and will always be. And his credentials are astonishing: "I died, and behold I am alive forevermore." He has gone through the one door that no one else returned from. He holds the keys of Death and Hades.

If he holds the keys, then death is not a locked door he cannot open; the grave has an owner, and he is your Savior. When fear comes today, put your hand in his right hand, the one he laid on John, and hear him say again, "Fear not."

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you began the book of Revelation. Chapter 1 unveiled the risen Christ: the faithful witness, the firstborn of the dead, and the ruler of kings, the Alpha and Omega, the Son of Man in glory with a sword in his mouth and the keys of Death and Hades in his hand, walking among his churches. Chapter 2 gave his letters to Ephesus (love grown cold), Smyrna (faithful in suffering), Pergamum (compromise with the world), and Thyatira (tolerating false teaching), each with a promise to the one who conquers: the tree of life, the crown of life, the hidden manna and white stone, and the morning star.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

John saw Jesus in glory and fell as though dead, yet Jesus touched him and said, “Fear not.” What fear do you most need Jesus to speak that word over right now?

Ephesus had sound doctrine but had lost its first love. Honestly, how would you describe your love for Christ and for his people right now, and what is one step toward returning to the works you did at first?

Jesus says to the conqueror at Smyrna that he will receive the crown of life. How does the promise that Christ himself died and came to life help you face suffering or fear of death?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus that he is the first and the last, the living one.

Thank him that he holds the keys of death and Hades.

Rest in his hand.

DAY 869 · WEEK 125

Revelation 3:1-22

Letters to Sardis, Philadelphia, Laodicea

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 22 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 3:1-22. Jesus speaks to the last three of the seven churches: Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. Notice that two churches receive only criticism, one receives only praise, and the best-known verse in the chapter is addressed to a church, not to an individual.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Sardis was a wealthy city that had twice fallen to surprise attacks because its defenders thought the acropolis was unassailable. Philadelphia, a small and relatively weak city, was known for earthquakes and for being a gateway to the east. Laodicea was a rich banking and textile center, famous for its black wool, an eye salve, and a water supply piped in from hot springs and cold streams that arrived lukewarm. Jesus addresses each church using images drawn from its own setting.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “You have the reputation of being alive, but you are dead” (v. 1).
2. “Wake up, and strengthen what remains and is about to die” (v. 2).
3. “I have set before you an open door, which no one is able to shut” (v. 8).
4. “Because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of my mouth” (v. 16).
5. “For you say, I am rich, I have prospered, and I need nothing” (v. 17).
6. “Those whom I love, I reprove and discipline, so be zealous and repent” (v. 19).

7. “Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in to him and eat with him, and he with me” (v. 20).

8. “The one who conquers, I will grant him to sit with me on my throne, as I also conquered and sat down with my Father on his throne” (v. 21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

To Sardis, Jesus holds “the seven spirits of God and the seven stars.” He says, “I know your works. You have the reputation of being alive, but you are dead.” It is the harshest letter, with no commendation. The church looked fine from outside but was spiritually asleep, as the city had been when it fell. “Wake up, and strengthen what remains and is about to die.” They are to remember what they received and heard, keep it, and repent. If not, he will come like a thief. A few in Sardis have not soiled their garments, and “they will walk with me in white, for they are worthy.” The conqueror will be clothed in white, and Jesus “will never blot his name out of the book of life,” but will confess his name before the Father and his angels. This is a promise of security for the faithful.

To Philadelphia, Jesus is “the holy one, the true one, who has the key of David, who opens and no one will shut.” There is only praise. “I know that you have but little power, and yet you have kept my word and have not denied my name.” Christ has set before them “an open door, which no one is able to shut,” perhaps for gospel opportunity. He will make those who slander them come and bow down before their feet, and know that he has loved them. “Because you have kept my word about patient endurance, I will keep you from the hour of trial that is coming on the whole world.” Interpreters differ on whether this means being kept through trials (as in John 17:15) or removed from them (as taught in some forms of premillennialism); either way, the promise is that Christ guards the faithful. The conqueror will be made “a pillar in the temple of my God,” never to go out of it, and will have written on him the name of God, of the city of God, and Christ’s own new name.

To Laodicea, Jesus is “the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of God’s creation.” There is no commendation here either. “I know your works: you are neither cold nor hot. Would that you were either cold or hot! So, because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of my mouth.” Laodicea’s water came lukewarm from afar: not refreshing like cold water or healing like hot. The church’s works were useless. Their self-image was prosperous: “I am rich, I have prospered, and I need nothing.” But Jesus says they are “wretched, pitiable, poor, blind, and naked.” Their remedy is to buy from him gold refined by fire, white garments, and eye salve, answers to the city’s banking, textile, and medical fame. “Those whom I love, I reprove and discipline, so be zealous and repent.”

Then the most famous verse: “Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in to him and eat with him, and he with me.” This is often used as an invitation to unbelievers, but its original setting is Christ knocking on the door of his own church. He is on the outside of a congregation that thinks it needs nothing. The invitation to repent and renew fellowship, symbolized by a shared meal, applies to every church and every believer who has drifted. The final promise is the highest of all: “The one who conquers, I will grant him to sit with me on my throne, as I also conquered and sat down with my Father on his throne.” The letters end as they began, with the call to hear. Christ does not just judge his churches; he loves them and calls them back.

STEP 5

Connection

Matthew 24:42-44 and 1 Thessalonians 5:2-6 speak of coming like a thief. Isaiah 22:22 is the source of the key of David. Isaiah 45:14 and 49:23 are behind the bowing at their feet. Isaiah 60:14 speaks of enemies bowing. John 17:15 prays that the Father would keep believers from the evil one. Colossians 4:13-16 mentions Laodicea. Hosea 12:8 and 1 Corinthians 4:8 speak of self-satisfaction. Proverbs 3:11-12 and Hebrews 12:5-11 speak of the Lord’s discipline. Song of Solomon 5:2 has a similar knocking at the door. Luke 12:35-37 and John 14:23 speak of fellowship with Christ. Luke 22:28-30 promises a share in his throne.

STEP 6

Application

Honestly ask: if people could see your inner spiritual life, would they say you are alive? Pick one thing to strengthen that is about to die.

Open the door to Christ for an area of your life where you have been self-sufficient. Tell him you need him.

Thank Christ for the discipline you may be experiencing as a sign of his love.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ask Jesus to wake you up where you are asleep.
- Thank him for the open door he has set before you.
- Ask him for the courage to open your door to him.

REVELATION 5:12

DAY 870 · WEEK 125

Psalm 1

Blessed is the man, the two ways

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 1. It is the gateway to the whole book of Psalms, and its picture of a tree by streams of water returns in the last chapter of the Bible. Notice the two ways, the two destinies, and the one who delights in God's law.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 1 has no title. It stands as the introduction to the Psalter, setting out the choice that all of the other psalms assume: there are two ways to live, and they lead to two ends. It reads like a wisdom poem, in the tradition of Proverbs and Deuteronomy 30. We now return to it as we begin the last book of the Bible, where the same two ways appear for the last time, in the tree of life and in the judgment of the wicked.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Blessed is the man who walks not in the counsel of the wicked, nor stands in the way of sinners, nor sits in the seat of scoffers" (v. 1).
2. "But his delight is in the law of the LORD, and on his law he meditates day and night" (v. 2).
3. "He is like a tree planted by streams of water that yields its fruit in its season" (v. 3).
4. "In all that he does, he prospers" (v. 3).
5. "The wicked are not so, but are like chaff that the wind drives away" (v. 4).
6. "Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment" (v. 5).
7. "For the LORD knows the way of the righteous" (v. 6).
8. "But the way of the wicked will perish" (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first word is “Blessed,” meaning deeply, lastingly happy. The blessed man is first described by what he avoids. Notice the progression: he walks, then stands, then sits. First he takes the counsel of the wicked, then he stands in the way of sinners, then he settles into the seat of scoffers. Sin starts as a casual step and becomes a way of life. The blessed person refuses to start down that road.

What he does instead is delight in God’s law: “on his law he meditates day and night.” The word “law” is torah, God’s instruction, and it points to the whole of God’s revealed word. Delight means that it is not merely a duty; it is a pleasure. Meditation means that he turns it over and over, as a cow chews the cud. The result is a picture of stability and fruit: “He is like a tree planted by streams of water that yields its fruit in its season, and its leaf does not wither.” The tree is planted, not wild; its roots reach the water; it does not wither in drought. “In all that he does, he prospers.” This is not a promise of worldly wealth for everyone who reads the Bible; it is a description of a life that, in God’s sight, succeeds and bears lasting fruit. Jeremiah 17:7-8 uses the same image.

By contrast, “The wicked are not so.” They are like chaff, the weightless husk the wind blows away. They have no roots, no fruit, no future. “Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous.” The psalm ends with the reason: “For the LORD knows the way of the righteous, but the way of the wicked will perish.” God knows, which means he watches over and cares for the way of the righteous, as in the phrase “The LORD knows those who are his.”

Reading this psalm in the light of Christ, we see that he is the truly blessed man. He alone never walked in the counsel of the wicked, and his delight was in the law of the LORD (Psalm 40:8). He is the tree whose fruit never fails. And in Revelation 22:2, the tree of life stands by the river of the water of life, bearing twelve kinds of fruit, with leaves for the healing of the nations. Those who are in Christ are planted by the streams of water, and one day will eat of that tree. The two ways of Psalm 1 are the two ways of the whole Bible, and the last chapters of Revelation show where each ends.

STEP 5

Connection

Jeremiah 17:7-8 uses the image of a tree by water. Joshua 1:8 commands meditating on the law day and night. Psalm 119 is an extended meditation on the law. Deuteronomy 30:15-20 sets before Israel life and death. Proverbs 4:14-19 describes two paths. Matthew 7:13-14 speaks of the two ways. Psalm 40:6-8 and Hebrews 10:5-9 show Christ delighting to do God's will. John 15:1-8 speaks of abiding and bearing fruit. Genesis 2:9 and Revelation 2:7, 22:2 mention the tree of life. Matthew 3:12 speaks of chaff.

STEP 6

Application

Ask what counsel you have been listening to, and where you may be starting to "walk, stand, or sit" in a place you should not.

Choose a short passage and meditate on it throughout the day. Return to it when you have a spare moment.

Thank Christ that he is the blessed man in your place, and that his roots reach to the stream of life.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God you want to be blessed as his word describes.
- Ask him to keep you from the counsel of the wicked.
- Ask him to root you in his word.

REVELATION 5:12

DAY 871 · WEEK 125

Psalm 19

The heavens declare; the law revives the soul

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 19. Notice the three movements: the voice of creation (vv. 1-6), the perfection of God's word (vv. 7-11), and the prayer of a servant who asks to be cleansed and made acceptable (vv. 12-14).

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 19 is a psalm of David. C. S. Lewis called it one of the greatest poems in the Psalter. It joins two ways in which God speaks: through the heavens (general revelation) and through his word (special revelation). We read the first part earlier in connection with Paul's use of it in Romans 10. Today we read it as a whole, as we move into Revelation, where the whole creation and God's written word are central.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the sky above proclaims his handiwork" (v. 1).
2. "Day to day pours out speech, and night to night reveals knowledge" (v. 2).
3. "The law of the LORD is perfect, reviving the soul" (v. 7).
4. "The precepts of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart" (v. 8).
5. "More to be desired are they than gold, even much fine gold; sweeter also than honey and drippings of the honeycomb" (v. 10).
6. "Moreover, by them is your servant warned; in keeping them there is great reward" (v. 11).
7. "Who can discern his errors? Declare me innocent from hidden faults" (v. 12).

8 “Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in your sight, O LORD, my rock and my redeemer” (v. 14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with the sky: “The heavens declare the glory of God, and the sky above proclaims his handiwork.” The created order is a continual testimony. “Day to day pours out speech, and night to night reveals knowledge. There is no speech, nor are there words, whose voice is not heard.” Creation speaks without words and in every language, and “their voice goes out through all the earth.” In the heavens, God has set a tent for the sun, which rises like a bridegroom and runs its course like a strong man with joy. “There is nothing hidden from its heat.” This general revelation shows the power and glory of the Creator but does not tell us how to be saved. For that we need his word.

The second part turns to the word, with six names for it (law, testimony, precepts, commandment, fear, rules) and six effects. “The law of the LORD is perfect, reviving the soul; the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple; the precepts of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes; the fear of the LORD is clean, enduring forever; the rules of the LORD are true, and righteous altogether.” This is how the Bible works: it restores the weary, makes the simple wise, brings joy, gives light, endures forever, and proves true. “More to be desired are they than gold, even much fine gold; sweeter also than honey and drippings of the honeycomb.” The psalmist treasures the word more than wealth and enjoys it more than sweets.

The third part is personal. Having seen the glory of God in creation and in his word, the psalmist sees himself. “Who can discern his errors? Declare me innocent from hidden faults. Keep back your servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me! Then I shall be blameless, and innocent of great transgression.” The word is a mirror that shows sins we cannot see by ourselves. He asks for cleansing from the hidden and the willful. And he ends with a prayer that has been prayed by preachers for centuries: “Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in your sight, O LORD, my rock and my redeemer.”

The movement from the stars to the Scripture to the sinner is the movement of faith. We look up and see glory, we look into God’s word and see grace, and we look inward and see our need. In Revelation, the creation praises its Creator (4:11; 5:13), the book is opened, and the redeemer is the Lamb. The one who is our rock is also our redeemer.

STEP 5

Connection

Romans 1:18-20 and 10:18 draw on creation's testimony. Psalm 8, 33, and 104 also praise God in creation. Psalm 119:97-105 and Deuteronomy 4:6-8 praise the law. 2 Timothy 3:15-17 describes the use of Scripture. Hebrews 4:12 describes the word as living. Psalm 90:8 and 139:23-24 speak of hidden sin. Psalm 51:1-12 asks for cleansing. John 8:12 and 1 John 1:5 link light to God. Revelation 4:11 and 5:13 have creation praising God. Isaiah 41:14 and 44:6 call God redeemer.

STEP 6

Application

Step outside today and look at the sky. Let it speak. Tell God what it says to you about him.

Read one of the descriptions of the law (vv. 7-9) and pray for the effect you most need: reviving, wisdom, joy, or light.

Pray verse 14 before you speak or write something important.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God for speaking through the heavens and through his word.
- Ask him to cleanse you from hidden faults.
- Pray Psalm 19:14 as your own.

DAY 872 · WEEK 125

Psalm 29

The voice of the LORD, Revelation's thunders

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 29. The psalm is built around the phrase "the voice of the LORD," repeated seven times. Read it aloud and listen for the sound of a storm moving across the land.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 29 is a psalm of David describing a thunderstorm that sweeps in from the Mediterranean, crosses the mountains of Lebanon, and moves down to the wilderness of Kadesh in the south. It was probably used in worship at the temple. Canaanite religion said that Baal, the storm god, ruled the thunder. This psalm declares that the thunder is the voice of the LORD, and only he is the God of glory. It stands next to Revelation's thunders and the heavenly worship of chapters 4 and 5.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Ascribe to the LORD, O heavenly beings, ascribe to the LORD glory and strength" (v. 1).
2. "Worship the LORD in the splendor of holiness" (v. 2).
3. "The voice of the LORD is over the waters; the God of glory thunders" (v. 3).
4. "The voice of the LORD is powerful; the voice of the LORD is full of majesty" (v. 4).
5. "The voice of the LORD breaks the cedars" (v. 5).
6. "In his temple all cry, Glory!" (v. 9).
7. "The LORD sits enthroned over the flood; the LORD sits enthroned as king forever" (v. 10).
8. "May the LORD give strength to his people! May the LORD bless his people with peace!" (v. 11).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins in heaven: “Ascribe to the LORD, O heavenly beings, ascribe to the LORD glory and strength. Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his name; worship the LORD in the splendor of holiness.” Even the angels are called to give God the glory that belongs to him. The word “ascribe” means to give him what is already his.

Then seven times we hear the voice of the LORD. His voice is “over the waters,” that is, over the sea and the storm clouds. It “is powerful” and “full of majesty.” It “breaks the cedars,” the greatest trees of the ancient world. It makes Lebanon and Sirion (Mount Hermon) “skip like a calf, and Sirion like a young wild ox.” The mountains jump at his voice. It “flashes forth flames of fire,” meaning lightning, and it “shakes the wilderness.” The voice “makes the deer give birth and strips the forests bare.” Everything in creation trembles. And in the middle of the storm, “in his temple all cry, Glory!” Only in the temple do people understand what the thunder means: God is speaking.

The first half is about the voice of the LORD in nature, and the last is about the LORD enthroned: “The LORD sits enthroned over the flood; the LORD sits enthroned as king forever.” The flood recalls Noah, and the chaos waters of creation. God is not threatened by floods; he sits above them. He is king forever.

The last verse is the application: “May the LORD give strength to his people! May the LORD bless his people with peace!” The God whose voice shakes the mountains is the God who gives his people strength and peace. Power is not a threat to those who belong to him; it is their shelter.

In Revelation, the same imagery is used. From the throne come “flashes of lightning, and rumblings and peals of thunder” (4:5). Seven thunders speak in 10:3-4. In 19:6, the great multitude hears “the sound of many waters and like the sound of mighty peals of thunder, crying out, Hallelujah! For the Lord our God the Almighty reigns.” In Christ, the voice of God has come in its fullest form. Hebrews 12:26 says that his voice shook the earth then, and will shake not only the earth but also the heavens.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 19:16-19 and 20:18-19 describe the voice of God at Sinai. Job 37:2-5 and 38:1 describe God’s thunder. Psalm 18:13-15 and 77:18 also describe thunder. 1 Chronicles 16:28-29 echoes the call to ascribe glory. Genesis 6-9 is the flood. Psalm 93:3-4 and 104:7 also speak of the waters. Revelation 4:5, 8:5, 10:3-4, and 19:6 mention thunder. Hebrews 12:25-28 says God’s voice shakes heaven and earth. John 12:28-29 records a voice from heaven that some took for thunder. Numbers 6:24-26 pronounces blessing with peace.

STEP 6

Application

Next time you hear thunder, pause and say verse 3 and 10. The God who thunders is your Father.

Practice “ascribing” today: give God the glory when something goes well, instead of keeping it.

Pray verse 11 for your church and family.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Ascribe glory and strength to God, in your own words.
- Worship him in the splendor of holiness.
- Ask him to give you his peace.

REVELATION 5:12

DAY 873 · WEEK 125

Revelation 4:1-5:14

The throne room; the Lamb takes the scroll

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 25 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 4:1-5:14. John is taken up into the throne room of heaven. Notice the worship around the throne, the sealed scroll, the weeping that turns to praise, and the surprising appearance of the Lamb.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the letters to the churches, John is invited through an open door into heaven, where the rest of the book is seen from the perspective of the throne. The scene recalls Isaiah 6, Ezekiel 1, and Daniel 7. The throne is the central fact of the universe, and the question of Revelation 4 and 5 is: who is worthy to carry out God's plan for history, as symbolized in the scroll? For persecuted Christians who feel that Caesar holds power, this is the vision they need.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "At once I was in the Spirit, and behold, a throne stood in heaven, with one seated on the throne" (4:2).
2. "Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord God Almighty, who was and is and is to come!" (4:8).
3. "Worthy are you, our Lord and God, to receive glory and honor and power, for you created all things" (4:11).
4. "Weep no more; behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has conquered" (5:5).
5. "A Lamb standing, as though it had been slain" (5:6).
6. "For you were slain, and by your blood you ransomed people for God from every tribe and language and people and nation" (5:9).

7. “Worthy is the Lamb who was slain, to receive power and wealth and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing!” (5:12).

8. “To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing and honor and glory and might forever and ever!” (5:13).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John is called up through an open door and immediately is in the Spirit before a throne. The one seated on it is described only in terms of gemstones, jasper and carnelian, with a rainbow like an emerald around it. He is not described in human form, because he is beyond description. Around the throne are twenty-four elders on thrones, dressed in white with golden crowns, probably representing the whole people of God (the twelve tribes and twelve apostles). Lightning and thunder come from the throne. Before it burn seven torches, which are the seven spirits of God, and there is a sea of glass like crystal. Four living creatures, full of eyes, like the seraphim of Isaiah 6, never cease to say: “Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord God Almighty, who was and is and is to come!” When they give glory, the elders fall down and cast their crowns before the throne, saying: “Worthy are you, our Lord and God, to receive glory and honor and power, for you created all things, and by your will they existed and were created.” Heaven’s first act is worship of the Creator.

In chapter 5, John sees in the right hand of the one on the throne “a scroll written within and on the back, sealed with seven seals.” This is a scroll of God’s purposes for the world, a will or deed that must be opened for its judgments and blessings to come to pass. A mighty angel asks, “Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?” No one in heaven or on earth or under the earth is found worthy. John weeps loudly. If no one can open it, God’s purposes for history, for his people, and for creation cannot be carried out. But an elder says, “Weep no more; behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has conquered, so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals.”

John listens for the Lion, but when he looks, he sees “a Lamb standing, as though it had been slain, with seven horns and with seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent out into all the earth.” He heard “Lion” and saw “Lamb.” This is the central image of the book: Christ conquers by sacrifice, through his death. He bears the marks of slaughter but stands alive. His seven horns signify complete power, and his seven eyes complete knowledge. He takes the scroll from the right hand of the one seated on the throne, and the whole of heaven erupts in a new song: “Worthy are you to take the scroll and to open its seals, for you were slain, and by your blood you ransomed people for God from every tribe and language and people and nation, and you have made them a kingdom and priests to our God, and they shall reign on the earth.”

Then the circle of praise widens: myriads of angels, “ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands,” saying with a loud voice: “Worthy is the Lamb who was slain, to receive power and wealth and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing!” And finally every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea: “To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing and honor and glory and might forever and ever!” The four living creatures say “Amen,” and the elders fall down and worship. The Lamb shares the worship given to the one on the throne. This is the best answer to the question of what Revelation is about: the Lamb who was slain holds the scroll of history.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 6:1-4 and Ezekiel 1 are the sources for the throne and the creatures. Daniel 7:9-10 shows the Ancient of Days enthroned. Genesis 49:9-10 is the background of the Lion of Judah, and Isaiah 11:1, 10 of the Root of David. Isaiah 53:7 and John 1:29 speak of the Lamb. Exodus 12 is the Passover lamb. Daniel 12:4 and Ezekiel 2:9-10 mention sealed scrolls. Philippians 2:9-11 describes every creature confessing Christ. Colossians 1:15-20 describes his supremacy. Ephesians 1:9-10 speaks of God’s plan for the fullness of time. Revelation 1:5-6 uses the same kingdom and priests language.

STEP 6

Application

Spend five minutes simply worshiping today, with no requests. Use the words of 4:8, 4:11, and 5:12.

When you feel that history is out of control, picture the throne and the Lamb holding the scroll.

Think about how Jesus conquered. How might it change how you respond to a situation where you want to win?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship God as holy, holy, holy.
- Thank the Lamb who was slain and has ransomed people for God.
- Add your voice to the song of every creature.

REVELATION 5:12

DAY 874 · WEEK 125

Revelation 6:1-17

The seven seals, the four horsemen

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 17 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 6:1-17. The Lamb opens the first six of the seven seals. Read it as a picture of the forces at work in history between Christ's first coming and his return, and notice the cry of the martyrs and the response of the world to the wrath of the Lamb.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the beginning of the unfolding of the scroll, with four horsemen modeled on Zechariah 1 and 6, and with words that recall Jesus' own description of the age in Matthew 24: conquest, war, famine, death, persecution, and cosmic upheaval. Interpreters have read the seals in different ways: as events leading up to the end (futurist), as the general pattern of the whole age (idealist), as events of the first century (preterist), or as the course of history (historicist). Many see in them what Jesus described as "the beginning of the birth pains" (Matthew 24:8). In every view, it is the Lamb who opens each seal, which means that all of history is under his authority.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Now I watched when the Lamb opened one of the seven seals" (v. 1).
2. "And its rider had a bow, and a crown was given to him, and he came out conquering, and to conquer" (v. 2).
3. "It was granted to its rider to take peace from the earth, so that people should slay one another" (v. 4).
4. "And do not harm the oil and wine!" (v. 6).
5. "And its rider's name was Death, and Hades followed him" (v. 8).

6. “How long before you will judge and avenge our blood on those who dwell on the earth?” (v. 10).

7. “Told to rest a little longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brothers should be complete” (v. 11).

8. “For the great day of their wrath has come, and who can stand?” (v. 17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The first four seals are four horsemen. Each is summoned by one of the living creatures: “Come!” The first, on a white horse, has a bow and a crown and “came out conquering, and to conquer.” Interpreters disagree about the rider. Some see Christ (compare 19:11, where Christ rides a white horse), or the gospel going out in conquest. Others see a counterfeit, the spirit of military conquest, because the horsemen that follow are all evils. The second, on a red horse, takes peace from the earth so that people slay one another, with a great sword: war and violence. The third, on a black horse, holds a balance. A quart of wheat for a denarius, a day’s wage, means famine prices: a worker could buy only enough for himself, with nothing for his family. But the oil and wine are not harmed, as though a limit were set on the famine. The fourth, on a pale horse, is Death, with Hades following, “given authority over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword and with famine and with pestilence and by wild beasts.” Notice the repeated “it was given”: they have authority only as far as God permits.

The fifth seal moves from the earth to the altar in heaven. John sees “the souls of those who had been slain for the word of God and for the witness they had borne.” They cry out, “O Sovereign Lord, holy and true, how long before you will judge and avenge our blood on those who dwell on the earth?” This is the cry of every martyr and every victim of injustice, and God hears it. It is not a request for private revenge but for God’s justice to be shown. Each is given a white robe and told “to rest a little longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brothers should be complete, who were to be killed as they themselves had been.” God has a plan and a timetable, and the suffering of his people is part of it.

The sixth seal brings cosmic upheaval: a great earthquake, the sun black as sackcloth, the moon like blood, stars falling, the sky vanishing, every mountain and island moved. This is the language that the prophets used for the day of the Lord. Everyone, kings, great ones, rich, strong, slave and free, hides in caves and calls on the mountains and rocks, “Fall on us and hide us from the face of him who is seated on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb, for the great day of their wrath has come, and who can stand?” The Lamb, who is gentle, is also the judge. The wrath of the Lamb is the final answer to the cry of the martyrs.

The chapter ends with a question that the next chapter answers: “Who can stand?” The answer is those who are sealed by God (chapter 7). Until then, the church lives in an age of war, famine, death, and persecution, and the Lamb is on the throne.

STEP 5

Connection

Zechariah 1:7-11 and 6:1-8 are the sources for the horsemen. Matthew 24:4-14 describes the same pattern of conquest, wars, famines, and persecution. Ezekiel 14:21 mentions four judgments. Genesis 4:10 speaks of the blood that cries out. Psalm 79:5, 13:1-2, and Habakkuk 1:2 ask “how long?” Luke 18:7-8 promises justice for those who cry to God. Isaiah 13:10, 34:4, and Joel 2:30-31 use cosmic language. Hosea 10:8 and Luke 23:30 describe calling on mountains. Malachi 3:2 asks who can stand. Romans 12:19 says vengeance belongs to the Lord.

STEP 6

Application

When news of wars, famines, and disasters weighs on you, remember that each seal is opened by the Lamb. He is not surprised.

Pray for persecuted Christians around the world, using the martyrs’ cry, “how long?”

Think about your readiness to stand before God. Thank Christ that the one who judges is the one who died for you.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus that nothing happens in history outside his authority.
- Tell him what makes you afraid about the state of the world.
- Ask him to give you patience while you wait.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Revelation 5:12 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Worthy is the Lamb who was slain, to receive power and wealth and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing!"

REVELATION 5:12

REST

Meditation

Count the attributes in this one verse: power, wealth, wisdom, might, honor, glory, blessing. Seven, the number of completeness. Everything good that anyone could give to anyone is given to the Lamb. And he is worthy, not because of what he has but because of what he did: he was slain.

Think about who the Lamb is. He is the Son of God, and he took on flesh, bore the sins of the world, and was killed. Heaven's greatest worship is for the one who was slaughtered. This reveals what God values. Not conquest by force, but love poured out. Worth is measured at the cross.

This verse can be sung in the car, whispered in a hospital, or shouted at a graveside. When your worth is questioned, or when you feel powerless, remember that the worthy one died for you. Say it aloud, and add your voice to the angels' choir.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the letters to the churches and the opening of the seals. Revelation 3 gave Jesus' words to Sardis (alive in name only), Philadelphia (faithful with little power, given an open door), and Laodicea (lukewarm and self-satisfied, with Christ knocking at the door). Three psalms reflected on the way of the blessed (Psalm 1), the glory of creation and the word (Psalm 19), and the voice of the LORD in the storm (Psalm 29). Revelation 4 and 5 brought us into the throne room, with the worship of the Creator and the Lion who is a Lamb, worthy to open the scroll because he was slain and ransomed people from every nation. Revelation 6 showed the Lamb opening six seals: conquest, war, famine, death, the cry of the martyrs, and the wrath of the Lamb, ending with the question, "who can stand?"

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Jesus tells Laodicea, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." Is there an area where you have been keeping him outside? What would it look like to open the door today?

John expected a Lion and saw a Lamb. How does the way Jesus won, through sacrifice, change the way you think about strength, success, and winning?

The martyrs cry, "How long?" and are told to rest a little longer. What are you waiting on God for? How can you trust that he hears?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Worship the Lamb who was slain.

Thank him that he holds the scroll of history.

Rest in his hand.

DAY 876 · WEEK 126

Revelation 7:1-8:13

The 144,000 and the great multitude; the seventh seal

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 30 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 7:1-8:13. Chapter 7 is an interlude between the sixth and seventh seals, answering the question “who can stand?” Chapter 8 opens the seventh seal and introduces the first trumpets. Notice the contrast between what John hears and what he sees.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

At the close of chapter 6, the world cries out, “who can stand?” Chapter 7 answers: the servants of God who are sealed. Like the pause in a symphony before the finale, this chapter shows the security of God’s people before the next round of judgments. It is also one of the most debated chapters in the book, because of the identity of the 144,000. Readers should note the pattern John uses elsewhere: he hears one thing and sees another (the Lion and the Lamb in chapter 5), so that the two parts interpret each other.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have sealed the servants of our God on their foreheads” (7:3).
2. “And I heard the number of the sealed, 144,000, sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel” (7:4).
3. “A great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb” (7:9).
4. “Salvation belongs to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb!” (7:10).
5. “They have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb” (7:14).

6. “For the Lamb in the midst of the throne will be their shepherd, and he will guide them to springs of living water” (7:17).
7. “When the Lamb opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour” (8:1).
8. “The smoke of the incense, with the prayers of the saints, rose before God from the hand of the angel” (8:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Four angels stand at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds. Another angel with the seal of the living God cries out, “Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have sealed the servants of our God on their foreheads.” The seal marks ownership and protection, the opposite of the mark of the beast later. Then John hears the number: 144,000, twelve thousand from each of the twelve tribes of Israel (with Dan omitted and Manasseh included in the list).

Who are they? Christians have given different answers. Some, especially dispensational interpreters, believe they are ethnic Israelites, perhaps converted Jews in a future tribulation. Others believe they are the church, the new Israel, the whole people of God described in the language of the old covenant, which the New Testament elsewhere applies to the church (Galatians 6:16; James 1:1; 1 Peter 1:1; Revelation 21:12-14). The number is twelve times twelve times a thousand, a symbol of completeness. The tribes are listed as an army ready for battle (Numbers 1-2), the sealed ones.

The next scene supports the second reading. “After this I looked, and behold, a great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, with palm branches in their hands.” As in chapter 5, John hears a number (the 144,000) and then sees a multitude beyond number. This echoes God’s promise to Abraham of descendants like the stars (Genesis 15:5; 22:17). It is the same people seen from two angles: Israel as an ordered army and the nations as a countless crowd. The multitude cries, “Salvation belongs to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb!” and the angels, elders, and creatures respond with a sevenfold doxology.

An elder asks, “Who are these, clothed in white robes, and from where have they come?” And answers: “These are the ones coming out of the great tribulation. They have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.” This is a paradox: robes washed in blood become white. The great tribulation is understood by some as a future period at the end of the age, and by others as the whole age of the church’s suffering. Either way, those who endure are cleansed only by the blood of Christ. Their destiny is beautiful: “Therefore they are before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple; and he who sits on the throne will shelter them with his presence. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore… For the Lamb in the midst of the throne will be their shepherd, and he will guide them to springs of living water, and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes." The Lamb is a shepherd, another paradox.

Chapter 8 opens the seventh seal. The result is silence: "there was silence in heaven for about half an hour." After the praise, a hush before the final events. Then seven angels are given seven trumpets. Another angel stands at the golden altar with a censer and "much incense to offer with the prayers of all the saints." The smoke of the incense, with the prayers of the saints, rises before God. Then the angel fills the censer with fire from the altar and throws it on the earth: thunder, lightning, earthquake. The prayers of the saints (like the martyrs' cry in 6:10) are answered with judgment. The first four trumpets echo the plagues of Egypt: hail and fire mixed with blood burning a third of the earth; a burning mountain thrown into the sea; a star called Wormwood poisoning a third of the waters; a third of the sun, moon, and stars struck. These judgments are partial (a third), warnings meant to lead to repentance. An eagle flying overhead cries, "Woe, woe, woe to those who dwell on the earth," for three more trumpets remain.

STEP 5

Connection

Ezekiel 9:4-6 and 2 Corinthians 1:22 speak of God's seal. Ephesians 1:13 and 4:30 say believers are sealed with the Holy Spirit. Genesis 12:3, 15:5, and Romans 4:16-18 speak of Abraham's multitude. Galatians 3:7-9, 29 and 6:16 call believers the Israel of God and Abraham's offspring. Leviticus 23:40-43 and John 12:13 mention palm branches. Daniel 12:1 and Matthew 24:21 speak of great tribulation. Isaiah 25:8 and 49:10 are echoed in 7:16-17. Psalm 23:1-2 and John 10:11 show the shepherd. Habakkuk 2:20 calls for silence before the LORD. Exodus 7-10 recounts the plagues. Psalm 141:2 speaks of prayer as incense.

STEP 6

Application

Place yourself in the great multitude. Read 7:9-17 slowly, and thank Christ for washing your robes in his blood.

When you face a trial, recall verse 17: the Lamb is your shepherd, and he will wipe away every tear.

Pray with the confidence that your prayers rise before God like incense and are not lost.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for sealing and keeping his servants.

Thank him for a people from every nation.

Ask him to keep you faithful through tribulation.

DAY 877 · WEEK 126

Revelation 9:1-11:19

The trumpets; the two witnesses; the kingdom proclaimed

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 80 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 9:1-11:19. This is a long and demanding reading with the fifth and sixth trumpets, the little scroll, the two witnesses, and the seventh trumpet. Read it as a story of judgment, witness, and the arrival of the kingdom, and watch for its connection to Daniel, Ezekiel, and Zechariah.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The trumpets sound a series of judgments that echo the plagues of Egypt, with the first four affecting nature (chapter 8) and the next three, called "woes," affecting humanity. As with the seals, the trumpets are divided into six, followed by an interlude (10:1-11:14), and then a seventh. The interlude shows the church's role in this period: John eats a little scroll and the church prophesies as two witnesses. The seventh trumpet brings the announcement that the kingdom has come.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "I saw a star fallen from heaven to earth, and he was given the key to the shaft of the bottomless pit" (9:1).
2. "Did not repent of the works of their hands" (9:20).
3. "In the days of the trumpet call to be sounded by the seventh angel, the mystery of God would be fulfilled, just as he announced to his servants the prophets" (10:7).
4. "It was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I had eaten it my stomach was made bitter" (10:10).
5. "And I will grant authority to my two witnesses, and they will prophesy for 1,260 days, clothed in sackcloth" (11:3).

6. “But after the three and a half days a breath of life from God entered them, and they stood up on their feet” (11:11).

7. “The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever” (11:15).

8. “The ark of his covenant was seen within his temple” (11:19).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The fifth trumpet brings a star fallen from heaven, given the key to the shaft of the bottomless pit. Smoke rises, and out of the smoke come locusts with power like scorpions. They are told not to harm the grass but only people who do not have the seal of God on their foreheads, torturing them for five months. Their king is the angel of the bottomless pit, Abaddon or Apollyon, the Destroyer. This is a picture of demonic torment let loose on unbelievers, limited in extent and duration. The sixth trumpet releases four angels bound at the Euphrates, with an army of 200 million horsemen whose horses have heads like lions and tails like serpents. A third of mankind is killed. Yet the rest “did not repent of the works of their hands nor give up worshiping demons and idols,” nor repent of murders, sorceries, sexual immorality, or thefts. This is the tragedy of the passage: judgment does not by itself change hearts.

Then comes an interlude. A mighty angel, wrapped in a cloud with a rainbow over his head and a face like the sun, with feet like pillars of fire, stands with one foot on the sea and one on the land, holding a little scroll open in his hand. Seven thunders speak, but John is told to seal up what they said. The angel swears by the Creator that there will be no more delay: “in the days of the trumpet call to be sounded by the seventh angel, the mystery of God would be fulfilled, just as he announced to his servants the prophets.” John is told to eat the little scroll, as Ezekiel did (Ezekiel 3:1-3). “It was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I had eaten it my stomach was made bitter.” The word of God is sweet to receive and bitter to deliver, because it includes judgment and suffering. He must prophesy again about many peoples, nations, languages, and kings.

Chapter 11 begins with John measuring the temple of God and the altar and those who worship there, but not the outer court, which is given over to the nations, who will trample the holy city for forty-two months. The measuring is a picture of God’s protection of his people (the true temple, understood by many as the church) while the world persecutes them. The forty-two months (also 1,260 days or “a time, times, and half a time” from Daniel 7:25) is a symbolic period of limited, intense testing. During this time, God grants authority to “my two witnesses.” They prophesy in sackcloth. They are described as two olive trees and two lampstands (Zechariah 4), with power like Moses and Elijah, to shut the sky and strike the earth with plagues. Interpreters disagree about who they are: two literal prophets in the end times, or, as many hold, the church in its witnessing role, the two representing the legal requirement of two witnesses (Deuteronomy 19:15). When they finish their testimony, the beast from the bottomless pit kills them, and their bodies lie in the street of the great city "where their Lord was crucified," while the world gloats and exchanges gifts. But "after the three and a half days a breath of life from God entered them, and they stood up on their feet, and great fear fell on those who saw them." They are called up to heaven in a cloud. The witnessing church may seem defeated, but it will be vindicated.

The seventh trumpet brings loud voices in heaven: "The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." The elders fall on their faces: "We give thanks to you, Lord God Almighty, who is and who was, for you have taken your great power and begun to reign. The nations raged, but your wrath came, and the time for the dead to be judged, and for rewarding your servants." The tense is almost past: the victory is announced as accomplished. The chapter closes with the opening of God's temple in heaven and the sight of the ark of his covenant, with flashes of lightning, rumblings, thunder, an earthquake, and heavy hail. The ark signifies God's covenant faithfulness; he keeps his promises, and the covenant community is secure.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 7-10 and Joel 1-2 are the background of the plagues and locusts. Ezekiel 2:8-3:3 and Jeremiah 15:16 describe eating the scroll. Daniel 7:25, 8:13-14, and 12:7 give the time periods. Zechariah 4:1-14 describes the two olive trees. Deuteronomy 19:15 requires two witnesses. 1 Kings 17:1 and Exodus 7:17-19 relate to the powers of Elijah and Moses. Psalm 2 is the background of 11:15-18. Luke 21:24 mentions Jerusalem trampled. Ephesians 2:19-22 describes the church as God's temple. Hebrews 9:4 mentions the ark of the covenant. Matthew 28:19-20 and Acts 1:8 describe the church's witness.

STEP 6

Application

Think about the sweet and bitter nature of God's word. What in Scripture is sweet to you, and what is hard to swallow? Receive both.

Consider your role as a witness. Pray that God would give you boldness to speak, even when it is not welcomed.

Read 11:15 aloud as a statement of faith about the future: the kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what you see of the hardness of the human heart.

Ask him to give you a heart that repents.

Thank him that his judgments are just and the kingdom is his.

REVELATION 12:11

DAY 878 · WEEK 126

Psalm 141

Let my prayer be counted as incense

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 10 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 141. It is an evening prayer of David, asking God to hear, to guard the lips, and to keep the heart from evil. Notice the image of prayer as incense and the unusual request to be corrected.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 141 is a psalm of David written in a time of danger, when enemies threatened and temptation pressed. It is a prayer of an individual who feels vulnerable in two ways: to external enemies and to internal temptations. The image of prayer as incense and the lifting of hands as the evening sacrifice would have been strongly associated with the temple. In Revelation, the prayers of the saints are described as incense before the throne (5:8; 8:3-4), and the psalm is the origin of the image.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “O LORD, I call upon you; hasten to me! Give ear to my voice when I call to you!” (v. 1).
2. “Let my prayer be counted as incense before you, and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice!” (v. 2).
3. “Set a guard, O LORD, over my mouth; keep watch over the door of my lips!” (v. 3).
4. “Do not let my heart incline to any evil” (v. 4).
5. “Let a righteous man strike me; let it be a kindness; let him rebuke me; it is oil for my head” (v. 5).
6. “But my eyes are toward you, O GOD, my Lord; in you I seek refuge; leave me not defenseless!” (v. 8).

7. “Keep me from the trap that they have laid for me and from the snares of evildoers!” (v. 9).

8. “Let the wicked fall into their own nets, while I pass by safely” (v. 10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

David starts with urgency: “O LORD, I call upon you; hasten to me!” Then he makes a request that shapes the whole psalm: “Let my prayer be counted as incense before you, and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice!” In the temple, incense was burned on the golden altar morning and evening, and its fragrant smoke rose up to God. David asks that his prayer would be received as acceptably as the evening incense, though he has no temple at the moment. The same image appears in Revelation 5:8, where the elders hold golden bowls of incense, “which are the prayers of the saints,” and in 8:3-4, where an angel offers much incense with the prayers of all the saints.

Then David turns to his lips and heart, an unexpected request when his enemies are pressing in. “Set a guard, O LORD, over my mouth; keep watch over the door of my lips! Do not let my heart incline to any evil, to busy myself with wicked deeds in company with men who work iniquity; and let me not eat of their delicacies!” He knows that the greater danger is not what enemies do to him but what he might do in anger or temptation. He asks God to guard his speech, his desires, and his company.

Verse 5 is surprising: “Let a righteous man strike me; let it be a kindness; let him rebuke me; it is oil for my head; let my head not refuse it.” He welcomes correction from a faithful friend. Wounds from a friend are faithful (Proverbs 27:6). Those who want to grow in holiness need people who will tell them the truth. This is the opposite of the wicked, who in verse 4 invite him to feast with them, and whose “delicacies” are the pleasures of sin.

The psalm ends with confident refuge. The leaders of the wicked will be thrown down, and their bones scattered at the mouth of Sheol. “But my eyes are toward you, O GOD, my Lord; in you I seek refuge; leave me not defenseless!” He asks to be kept from the trap and snares. “Let the wicked fall into their own nets, while I pass by safely.” In Christ we have the greater sacrifice and intercessor, who ever lives to make intercession for us. Our prayers rise before the throne through his priesthood, and nothing we pray is lost.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 30:1-9 describes the altar of incense. Luke 1:8-10 shows Zechariah offering incense while the people pray outside. Revelation 5:8 and 8:3-4 connect incense and prayer. Proverbs 27:5-6, 9 speaks of rebuke from a friend. Psalm 19:14 and James 3:2-12 pray for guarded speech. Psalm 119:37 asks for eyes turned from vanity. Matthew 6:13 asks to be led not into temptation. Hebrews 7:25 and Romans 8:34 describe Christ's intercession. Hebrews 13:15 speaks of a sacrifice of praise. Psalm 57:6 and Proverbs 26:27 speak of falling into one's own trap.

STEP 6

Application

Make this your evening prayer tonight. Lift your hands or bow your head, and offer your prayer as incense.

Ask a trusted friend where they see a blind spot in you. Receive it as "oil for your head."

Pray for a guard over your lips in a specific conversation you will have tomorrow.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Ask God to receive your prayer as incense.

Ask him to guard your mouth and your heart.

Thank him that he hears the cry of the afflicted.

REVELATION 12:11

DAY 879 · WEEK 126

Psalm 150

Praise him with trumpet and harp

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 150. It is the last psalm of the Psalter, a burst of praise with trumpet and harp. Notice where, why, how, and who: the psalm answers each of these questions in six short verses.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 150 is the final psalm of the five books of Psalms, a doxology that closes the whole collection with an explosion of praise. Every verse is a command to praise, and the word "praise" occurs thirteen times in six verses. Today we read it with the trumpets of Revelation in mind: in Israel, trumpets were sounded for both worship and war, and in Revelation, trumpet blasts announce judgment, but they end with the loudest praise of all (11:15). We will read it again at the end of the book, where we will see it as a closing word of the whole Bible.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! Praise God in his sanctuary; praise him in his mighty heavens!" (v. 1).
2. "Praise him for his mighty deeds" (v. 2).
3. "Praise him according to his excellent greatness!" (v. 2).
4. "Praise him with trumpet sound; praise him with lute and harp!" (v. 3).
5. "Praise him with tambourine and dance; praise him with strings and pipe!" (v. 4).
6. "Praise him with sounding cymbals; praise him with loud clashing cymbals!" (v. 5).
7. "Let everything that has breath praise the LORD!" (v. 6).
8. "Praise the LORD!" (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm answers four questions. Where should we praise? “In his sanctuary” and “in his mighty heavens”: on earth in the place of worship and in heaven, everywhere. Why? “For his mighty deeds” and “according to his excellent greatness.” We praise him for what he has done (creation, redemption, deliverance) and for who he is. How? With every instrument they knew. “Praise him with trumpet sound; praise him with lute and harp! Praise him with tambourine and dance; praise him with strings and pipe! Praise him with sounding cymbals; praise him with loud clashing cymbals!” This includes wind, strings, and percussion, with dance and with the whole body. True worship is not limited to one style or mood; it engages every part of life. Who? “Let everything that has breath praise the LORD!” Every living creature has breath from God, and so all should return it in praise.

This psalm comes at the end of a book that is full of laments, confessions, complaints, and questions. After all of that, the book ends in praise. It tells us that praise is the destination of the life of faith. When we reach the end of the road, everything we have prayed about will have led to this.

Now, read it with Revelation. In the book, the trumpets of Revelation 8 and 9 are sounded by angels as judgment on a rebellious world. But the seventh trumpet in 11:15 brings a different sound: loud voices in heaven proclaiming that the kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord. And in 14:2 and 15:2, the harps of God accompany the song of the redeemed. The trumpets that announce judgment lead to praise because the Judge is also the Redeemer. The final victory means that the cries of the oppressed and the praise of God’s people fill the universe.

Notice also the order: God is praised in his sanctuary, and in his heavens. The two meet in the book of Revelation, where the heavenly worship is opened up to the earthly church, and where the new Jerusalem comes down out of heaven. One day there will be no separation: all of creation will join the song. Until then, we praise by faith.

STEP 5

Connection

1 Chronicles 15:16-28 and 2 Chronicles 5:11-14 describe temple music. Numbers 10:1-10 and Joshua 6 describe trumpets in worship and war. Exodus 15:20-21 shows Miriam with tambourines. 2 Samuel 6:14-15 shows David dancing before the LORD. Psalm 98:4-6 also calls for trumpets and harps. Revelation 5:8-14, 11:15-18, 14:2-3, and 15:2-4 describe heavenly worship. Colossians 3:16 and Ephesians 5:19 call for singing in the church. Psalm 148 and 149 are the other closing psalms of praise. Hebrews 13:15 calls for a sacrifice of praise.

STEP 6

Application

Praise God out loud today, with music if you can. Use a hymn or a worship song that expresses his greatness.

Ask which of the four questions (where, why, how, who) you need to grow in: praising in more places, for more reasons, with more of your body, or inviting more people.

Notice when you take a breath today, and let each be a reminder to praise the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God in his sanctuary and in his mighty heavens, in your own words.

Praise him for his mighty deeds.

Let everything that has breath praise him, and add your own.

DAY 880 · WEEK 126

Psalm 148

Praise the LORD from the heavens

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 14 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 148. This psalm calls the whole creation to praise, from the angels to the sea monsters to kings and children. Notice the two halves: praise from the heavens (vv. 1-6) and praise from the earth (vv. 7-14).

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 148 is one of the Hallel psalms at the end of the Psalter (146 to 150). It is a hymn calling all of creation to praise the LORD. It has no named author, and it does not tell a story but sings an invitation. It prepares us for the last two weeks of Revelation, where every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea joins in worship (5:13). Today we will see the whole creation as a choir, with Christ as the horn that God has raised up.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Praise the LORD! Praise the LORD from the heavens; praise him in the heights!” (v. 1).
2. “Praise him, all his angels; praise him, all his hosts!” (v. 2).
3. “Praise him, sun and moon, praise him, all you shining stars!” (v. 3).
4. “Let them praise the name of the LORD! For he commanded and they were created” (v. 5).
5. “Praise the LORD from the earth, you great sea creatures and all deeps” (v. 7).
6. “Kings of the earth and all peoples, princes and all rulers of the earth!” (v. 11).
7. “Let them praise the name of the LORD, for his name alone is exalted” (v. 13).
8. “He has raised up a horn for his people, praise for all his saints” (v. 14).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm starts above: “Praise the LORD from the heavens; praise him in the heights!” The angels and hosts, the sun and moon and stars, the highest heavens and the waters above the heavens are told to praise. The reason is given: “Let them praise the name of the LORD! For he commanded and they were created. And he established them forever and ever; he gave a decree, and it shall not pass away.” Creation praises by being what God made it to be, obeying his command. The heavens do not need words to praise him; their ordered existence proclaims his wisdom.

The second half comes down to the earth. “Praise the LORD from the earth, you great sea creatures and all deeps, fire and hail, snow and mist, stormy wind fulfilling his word! Mountains and all hills, fruit trees and all cedars! Beasts and all livestock, creeping things and flying birds!” The psalmist lists everything: sea monsters (which in other cultures were symbols of chaos and are here put in their place), weather, mountains, trees, animals. Then humanity: “Kings of the earth and all peoples, princes and all rulers of the earth! Young men and maidens together, old men and children!” The call goes from rulers to children, with no one left out. It includes every age and every rank.

The reason for human praise is the same: “Let them praise the name of the LORD, for his name alone is exalted; his majesty is above earth and heaven.” And then the psalm gives a particular reason for the people of God to praise: “He has raised up a horn for his people, praise for all his saints, for the people of Israel who are near to him.” A horn is a symbol of strength and, in this context, a ruler or savior from the house of David. Zechariah, in Luke 1:69, uses the same image for Jesus: “He has raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David.” The creation praises its Maker, and the church praises the one who has saved it.

This psalm gives dignity to everything in creation, a reminder that the world is a stage for God’s glory. It also shows that our praise is part of something bigger. When we sing, we join the sun, the stars, the sea creatures, the trees, and the angels. And in Revelation 5:13, John hears “every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea, and all that is in them, saying, To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing and honor and glory and might forever and ever!” Psalm 148 is the first draft of that chorus.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1 recounts the creation that Psalm 148 praises. Psalm 19:1-4 and 96:11-13 also have creation praising God. Isaiah 55:12 has trees clapping their hands. Job 38-41 shows the Creator’s care for the whole creation. Luke 1:69 uses the horn for Christ. Psalm 132:17 speaks of a horn for David. Romans 8:19-23 describes creation waiting for redemption. Colossians 1:16-20 describes all things created through and reconciled to Christ. Revelation 5:13 and 21:1-5 show all creation worshiping. Philippians 2:10-11 describes every knee bowing.

STEP 6

Application

Take a walk outside and notice one thing from each group in the psalm: the sky, the weather, a plant, an animal. Let each prompt a short prayer of praise.

Think about the whole range of ages and ranks in your church. Ask how you can include someone from a different age or background in worship.

Thank Christ for being the horn that God has raised up for his people.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise God from the heavens and from the earth.
- Add your voice to the voices of angels and creation.
- Tell him what in creation moves you to praise.

DAY 881 · WEEK 126

Revelation 12:1-13:18

The woman and the dragon; the two beasts

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 35 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 12:1-13:18. This is among the most symbolic parts of the book. Read it as a drama in three parts: the woman and the dragon, the war in heaven, and the two beasts who serve the dragon. Notice the repeated pattern of the dragon's power and the saints' victory.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the seventh trumpet, the book moves to a second half, which looks at the spiritual conflict behind history. John is shown the "great sign" of a woman and a dragon, then the beasts. These are not simply events to come but pictures of realities that have been present since the fall: Satan's enmity against the offspring of the woman (Genesis 3:15), the state's tendency to demand worship (Daniel 3 and 7), and the false religion that serves it. For first-century Christians under Rome, the beast from the sea was plainly the empire and its emperors, and the beast from the land was the priesthood and propaganda of the imperial cult. For us, these chapters expose similar powers in every age, and may point to a final climax of their rebellion.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Behold, a great red dragon, with seven heads and ten horns" (12:3).
2. "One who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron" (12:5).
3. "That ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world" (12:9).
4. "They have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony" (12:11).

5. “He knows that his time is short” (12:12).
6. “A beast rising out of the sea, with ten horns and seven heads” (13:1).
7. “The book of life of the Lamb who was slain” (13:8).
8. “Here is a call for the endurance and faith of the saints” (13:10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

A great sign appears in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet and a crown of twelve stars, about to give birth. She represents the people of God, from whom the Messiah comes: Israel in the Old Testament, and the church in the New (some also see Mary as the model). A great red dragon stands before her, with seven heads, ten horns, and seven diadems, ready to devour her child. His tail sweeps down a third of the stars (fallen angels). The child is born, “a male child, one who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron” (Psalm 2:9), and is caught up to God and to his throne. This compresses the life of Christ: his birth, his rule, and his ascension, with the cross implied. The woman flees into the wilderness, where she is nourished for 1,260 days.

Then war breaks out in heaven. Michael and his angels fight the dragon, and “the great dragon was thrown down, that ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world.” He is identified fully: the serpent of Genesis 3, the accuser. A loud voice proclaims: “Now the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Christ have come, for the accuser of our brothers has been thrown down.” Many see this as the effect of Christ’s death and ascension, when Satan’s accusing power was broken. And the means of victory: “And they have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, for they loved not their lives even unto death.” The church wins not by force but by the blood of Christ, faithful witness, and willingness to die. But “woe to you, O earth and sea, for the devil has come down to you in great wrath, because he knows that his time is short!” A defeated enemy is the most dangerous; he turns to persecute the woman and the rest of her offspring, “those who keep the commandments of God and hold to the testimony of Jesus.”

Chapter 13 introduces the dragon’s two agents. The first beast rises out of the sea with ten horns, seven heads, and blasphemous names. It resembles Daniel’s four beasts combined. The dragon gives it his power and throne and great authority. One of its heads seems to have a mortal wound that is healed (a parody of the resurrection). The whole earth marvels and worships the dragon and the beast: “Who is like the beast, and who can fight against it?” This mocks the praise of God, “Who is like you, O LORD?” It is allowed for forty-two months to utter blasphemies and “to make war on the saints and to conquer them.” All will worship it,

“everyone whose name has not been written before the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who was slain.” And in the middle comes a call for the saints: “Here is a call for the endurance and faith of the saints.”

The second beast rises out of the earth, with two horns like a lamb but speaking like a dragon. It exercises the authority of the first beast and makes the earth worship it, performing signs and deceiving the inhabitants. It orders an image of the beast and causes all to be marked on the right hand or forehead, “so that no one can buy or sell unless he has the mark, that is, the name of the beast or the number of its name.” It is a parody of the Spirit, as the first beast is a parody of Christ. The number is given: “This calls for wisdom: let the one who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man, and his number is 666.” Many early Christians understood this by the Hebrew letters as pointing to Nero Caesar; others see it as a symbol of human imperfection (falling short of seven, repeated three times); others as a future individual. In every approach, the lesson is the same: the world powers that demand ultimate loyalty are in the service of the dragon, but they are allowed only a limited time, and the Lamb’s book of life cannot be erased.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 3:15 is the first promise of the woman’s offspring and the serpent. Isaiah 66:7-9 and Micah 5:2-3 mention the birth of the Messiah. Psalm 2:9 is quoted in 12:5. Daniel 7:2-8 describes four beasts rising from the sea. Daniel 3 tells of the demand to worship an image. Job 1-2 and Zechariah 3:1-2 show Satan as accuser. Romans 8:33-34 answers the accuser. Luke 10:18 and John 12:31 describe Satan’s fall and judgment. 2 Thessalonians 2:3-12 describes the man of lawlessness. 1 John 2:18 and 4:3 speak of antichrists. Matthew 24:24 mentions false signs. Exodus 15:11 and Psalm 35:10 ask, “Who is like you?”

STEP 6

Application

When you feel overwhelmed by evil, remember how the saints conquer: by the blood of the Lamb, the word of their testimony, and not loving their lives even unto death.

Examine where the world’s powers ask for your ultimate loyalty (nation, money, ideology, security). Choose one area where you need to worship only the Lamb.

Pray for Christians who are living under regimes that demand allegiance contrary to Christ.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for being the child who rules the nations.

Thank him that the accuser is conquered by his blood.

Ask him for courage to speak your testimony.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Revelation 12:11 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"And they have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, for they loved not their lives even unto death."

REVELATION 12:11

REST

Meditation

This verse holds the secret of the Christian's victory over Satan. It has three parts.

First, "the blood of the Lamb." This is the ground of our victory. The accuser has charges against us, but the blood answers every charge. We do not defeat him with our own righteousness but with Christ's sacrifice, which has already paid the price.

Second, "the word of their testimony." This is the means. Christians speak the truth about Jesus, about what he has done and who he is, in the face of the lie. Testimony is not only for the pulpit; it includes the plain way we say what we believe at home, at work, and in suffering.

Third, "they loved not their lives even unto death." This is the cost. Those who are willing to lose their lives for Christ cannot be controlled by fear of death. A person who is not afraid to die cannot be intimidated.

When you feel under spiritual attack, say this verse aloud. Rest in the blood, speak the testimony, and let go of fear.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read through the middle of Revelation. Chapter 7 answered the question "who can stand?" with the sealed servants of God and the great multitude from every nation, robes washed in the blood of the Lamb. Chapter 8 opened the seventh seal with silence in heaven, and the prayers of the saints rising as incense before the throne. Chapters 9 to 11 sounded trumpets of judgment, showed the bitter-sweet little scroll, the two witnesses who are killed and raised, and the seventh trumpet announcing that the kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord. Psalm 141 taught us to pray as incense and to welcome correction. Psalm 150 and Psalm 148 called every creature to praise. Revelation 12 and 13 unveiled the dragon, the woman, and the two beasts, and the church's way of conquering by the blood of the Lamb, the word of testimony, and willingness to die.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Revelation 12:11 gives three ways the saints conquered the accuser. Which of these three do you rely on most, and which do you tend to neglect?

Most of the world did not repent despite the trumpets (9:20-21). What does this tell you about the limits of judgment and the need for grace? Who are you praying for who needs a change of heart?

The call of 13:10 is for endurance and faith. What is the hardest area in which you need endurance right now? How can the Lamb's example in Revelation 5 strengthen you?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for the victory won by his blood.

Ask him for courage to testify.

Rest in his victory.

DAY 883 · WEEK 127

Revelation 14:1-15:8

The 144,000 on Mount Zion; the harvest; the bowls

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 28 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 14:1-15:8. Chapter 14 shows a series of visions of the Lamb and his people, followed by announcements of judgment. Chapter 15 introduces the final seven plagues, with the song of Moses and of the Lamb. Notice the contrast between the Lamb's people on Mount Zion and the world under the beast.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the dragon and the beasts, the book gives a series of contrasts to encourage the persecuted church. Where the beast's followers have its mark on their foreheads, the Lamb's followers have his name and his Father's name. These chapters sit between the unveiling of the evil powers and the final outpouring of God's wrath. They announce the fall of Babylon, the final harvest, and the song that celebrates God's justice. Some interpreters see these scenes as parallel to previous ones, returning to the same period from another angle; others see them as moving forward in a chronological sequence.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "On Mount Zion stood the Lamb, and with him 144,000 who had his name and his Father's name written on their foreheads" (14:1).
2. "It is these who follow the Lamb wherever he goes" (14:4).
3. "Another angel flying directly overhead, with an eternal gospel to proclaim to those who dwell on earth, to every nation and tribe and language and people" (14:6).
4. "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great" (14:8).
5. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on" (14:13).

6. “One like a son of man, with a golden crown on his head, and a sharp sickle in his hand” (14:14).
7. “The song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb” (15:3).
8. “All nations will come and worship you, for your righteous acts have been revealed” (15:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John sees the Lamb standing on Mount Zion with the 144,000, who have the name of the Lamb and his Father written on their foreheads. This contrasts with the mark of the beast. A sound from heaven like many waters and loud thunder, and like harpists playing on their harps, accompanies a new song before the throne. The 144,000 are described as those who have not defiled themselves with women (probably a figurative way of saying they have kept themselves pure from the spiritual adultery of idolatry), who “follow the Lamb wherever he goes,” and who were redeemed as firstfruits for God and the Lamb. “In their mouth no lie was found, for they are blameless.” As in chapter 7, they are the whole redeemed people seen as a purified army.

Then three angels. The first flies in midheaven with “an eternal gospel to proclaim to those who dwell on earth, to every nation and tribe and language and people. And he said with a loud voice, Fear God and give him glory, for the hour of his judgment has come, and worship him who made heaven and the earth.” Even in these final scenes, the gospel is proclaimed to every nation. The second angel announces, “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great,” the first mention of the city that will be described fully in chapters 17 and 18. The third warns that anyone who worships the beast will drink the wine of God’s wrath and be tormented, with no rest day or night. Then a call: “Here is a call for the endurance of the saints, those who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus.” A voice from heaven says, “Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on.” “Blessed indeed,” says the Spirit, “that they may rest from their labors, for their deeds follow them!” This is among the most comforting verses in the book for those who grieve: those who die in Christ are blessed.

Next come two images of harvest. One like a son of man on a white cloud with a sharp sickle reaps the earth’s harvest, which is ripe. An angel then gathers the vintage of the earth and throws it into the great winepress of the wrath of God, and blood flows to a horse’s bridle for 1,600 stadia. These images of judgment are drawn from Joel 3:13 and Isaiah 63:1-6. Interpreters differ on whether the first harvest is the gathering of the righteous (as grain) and the second is the judgment (as grapes), or whether both refer to judgment. What is clear is that the Lord of the harvest has the final say.

Chapter 15 introduces “another sign in heaven, great and amazing: seven angels with seven plagues, which are the last, for with them the wrath of God is finished.” John sees those who had conquered the beast standing beside a sea of glass mingled with fire, with harps of God in their hands. They sing “the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb”: “Great and amazing are your deeds, O Lord God the Almighty! Just and true are your ways, O King of the nations! Who will not fear, O Lord, and glorify your name? For you alone are holy. All nations will come and worship you, for your righteous acts have been revealed.” Like Israel after the Red Sea (Exodus 15), the redeemed sing on the shore after their deliverance. The song combines the two great redemptions: the exodus and the cross. Then the temple is opened, and the seven angels come out dressed in pure bright linen, and one of the four living creatures gives them seven golden bowls full of God’s wrath. The temple fills with smoke from God’s glory and power, and none can enter until the plagues are completed.

STEP 5

Connection

Joel 3:13 and Isaiah 63:1-6 are the images of harvest and winepress. Exodus 15:1-18 is the song of Moses. Deuteronomy 32 is another song of Moses. Psalm 86:9-10 and 98:1-3 speak of the nations worshiping. Isaiah 21:9 and Jeremiah 51:8 announce the fall of Babylon. Matthew 13:24-43 describes the harvest at the end of the age. Matthew 24:14 says the gospel will be preached to all nations. Hebrews 4:9-11 speaks of rest. 1 Corinthians 15:58 says our labor is not in vain. Exodus 40:34-35 and 1 Kings 8:10-11 show the glory filling the temple.

STEP 6

Application

Remember, when you grieve a believer who has died, that their deeds follow them and they rest from their labors (14:13).

Ask whom you can tell the “eternal gospel,” and pray for opportunity this week.

Sing a song of deliverance today, and use the words of 15:3-4.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God that great and amazing are his deeds.

Ask him to give you a heart that fears and glorifies him.

Thank him for those who endure.

MEMORY VERSE FOR WEEK 127

“Great and amazing are your deeds, O Lord God the Almighty! Just and true are your ways, O King of the nations! Who will not fear, O Lord, and glorify your name? For you alone are holy.”

REVELATION 15:3-4

DAY 884 · WEEK 127

Psalm 2

Why do the nations rage?

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 2. It is one of the royal psalms, quoted again and again in the New Testament. Read it as four scenes: the nations rebel (vv. 1-3), God laughs (vv. 4-6), the Son speaks (vv. 7-9), and the kings are warned (vv. 10-12).

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 2 was probably used at the coronation of a king in David's line, when surrounding nations might revolt against a new ruler. But its language is too large for any ordinary Israelite king: the Lord's anointed is called God's Son and given the nations as his inheritance. The New Testament sees its fulfillment in Jesus. Early Christians prayed it in Acts 4 when persecuted. Revelation draws on it repeatedly (2:26-27; 11:15-18; 12:5; 19:15), so it is one of the keys to the book.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Why do the nations rage and the peoples plot in vain?" (v. 1).
2. "The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD and against his anointed" (v. 2).
3. "He who sits in the heavens laughs" (v. 4).
4. "As for me, I have set my King on Zion, my holy hill" (v. 6).
5. "You are my Son; today I have begotten you" (v. 7).
6. "Ask of me, and I will make the nations your heritage, and the ends of the earth your possession" (v. 8).
7. "Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling" (v. 11).

8 “Blessed are all who take refuge in him” (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins with a question of astonishment: “Why do the nations rage and the peoples plot in vain?” It is a futile revolt. “The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD and against his anointed, saying, Let us burst their bonds apart and cast away their cords from us.” They think of God’s rule as a prison. The picture is one of the whole world, with its political powers, in rebellion against God and his Messiah. This is exactly the setting of Revelation: the dragon, the beasts, and the kings of the earth raging against the Lamb.

Then God’s response: “He who sits in the heavens laughs; the Lord holds them in derision.” It is not a happy laugh but the laughter of one who sees that the attempt is hopeless. Then he speaks to them in his wrath: “As for me, I have set my King on Zion, my holy hill.” The rebels cannot undo what God has done.

The King himself speaks next: “I will tell of the decree: The LORD said to me, You are my Son; today I have begotten you.” This is the promise to David (2 Samuel 7:14) and finds its ultimate fulfillment in Jesus, whom the New Testament declares to be the Son at his baptism, transfiguration, and resurrection (Acts 13:33; Romans 1:4; Hebrews 1:5). “Ask of me, and I will make the nations your heritage, and the ends of the earth your possession. You shall break them with a rod of iron and dash them in pieces like a potter’s vessel.” Revelation takes this promise and applies it to Christ and to those who share his rule (2:26-27; 12:5; 19:15). This does not mean we have violent power; it means that his kingdom will conquer all that opposes it.

Finally, a warning with an invitation: “Now therefore, O kings, be wise; be warned, O rulers of the earth. Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling. Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and you perish in the way, for his wrath is quickly kindled. Blessed are all who take refuge in him.” To kiss the Son is to submit to him and to honor him. The psalm began with the first Psalm’s word for the blessed man and ends with the same word for all who take refuge in the Son. There is a way out of judgment: take refuge in him. The same Son who will judge the nations invites us into his shelter. And so the great conflict of Revelation is not a conflict between equal powers: it is between a rebellious world and the King whom God has installed.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Samuel 7:12-16 is the promise to David. Acts 4:23-31 quotes the psalm in prayer. Acts 13:32-33, Hebrews 1:5, and 5:5 quote verse 7. Matthew 3:17 and 17:5 echo it at Jesus' baptism and transfiguration. Revelation 2:26-27, 11:15-18, 12:5, 19:15 draw on it. Philippians 2:9-11 describes the nations bowing to Jesus. Ephesians 1:20-22 speaks of his rule. Psalm 110:1-2 speaks of his enemies as his footstool. Psalm 1:1 and 2:12 frame the opening of the Psalter with "blessed." John 3:36 warns about the Son's wrath.

STEP 6

Application

When news about the nations is discouraging, say verse 4 to yourself. God is not anxious.

Take refuge in the Son today by naming something you fear and entrusting it to Christ.

Pray for rulers by name, that they would kiss the Son and be wise.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Tell God what raging and plotting you see.
- Thank him for the Son he has set on Zion.
- Take refuge in the Son.

Psalm 46

God is our refuge

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 11 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 46. It is the psalm behind Martin Luther's hymn "A Mighty Fortress." Notice the three stanzas separated by "Selah," each ending in the refrain, "The LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress."

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 46 is a song of the sons of Korah, probably written after a great deliverance, perhaps the rescue of Jerusalem from Sennacherib's army in 701 BC (Isaiah 36-37). It sets the stability of God's city against the chaos of earthquakes and storms and the raging of nations. In our reading of Revelation, it provides a counterpoint to the plagues and wars: in the middle of upheaval, the people of God have a river, a city, and a God who is present.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble" (v. 1).
2. "Therefore we will not fear though the earth gives way" (v. 2).
3. "There is a river whose streams make glad the city of God" (v. 4).
4. "God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved; God will help her when morning dawns" (v. 5).
5. "The nations rage, the kingdoms totter; he utters his voice, the earth melts" (v. 6).
6. "The LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress" (v. 7).
7. "He makes wars cease to the end of the earth" (v. 9).
8. "Be still, and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth!" (v. 10).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a statement of faith: “God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.” He is not a distant helper; he is very present, close at hand. The consequence is: “Therefore we will not fear though the earth gives way, though the mountains be moved into the heart of the sea, though its waters roar and foam, though the mountains tremble at its swelling.” This is the worst-case scenario: creation itself coming apart. Even then, God’s people do not fear. It is like many of the images in Revelation, where mountains move and seas turn to blood.

The second stanza turns to the city of God. “There is a river whose streams make glad the city of God, the holy habitation of the Most High.” Jerusalem had no river, only a gentle spring, Gihon. The river is symbolic, a picture of God’s presence bringing life and gladness. In Ezekiel 47 and in Revelation 22:1-2, this river becomes a great reality flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb. “God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved; God will help her when morning dawns.” While the sea roars and mountains shake, the city is safe, because God dwells in it. “The nations rage, the kingdoms totter; he utters his voice, the earth melts.” Notice the same verb used for the nations raging in Psalm 2. Their raging is answered by a word from God.

The third stanza invites us to look at God’s works: “Come, behold the works of the LORD, how he has brought desolations on the earth. He makes wars cease to the end of the earth; he breaks the bow and shatters the spear; he burns the chariots with fire.” The Lord ends wars, which we long to see. And then the famous command: “Be still, and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth!” “Be still” means to cease striving, to let go. It is addressed to God’s people in trouble, and also to the raging nations. The way to face the chaos is not to panic but to be still, and know that he is God.

The refrain is the center: “The LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress.” The Lord of hosts commands every army, and the God of Jacob is the God who stayed faithful to a flawed man. He is both powerful and personal. And in Christ, he is Immanuel, God with us. At the end of Revelation, the same truth is proclaimed: “Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man” (21:3). The city of God, with its river, is the final home of his people.

STEP 5

Connection

Isaiah 8:8-10 and 37:33-38 relate to Immanuel and the deliverance of Jerusalem. Genesis 2:10-14 and Ezekiel 47:1-12 describe rivers of life. Revelation 21:2-3 and 22:1-2 show the city and river. Psalm 48 and 87 also celebrate the city of God. Psalm 2 uses the same word for nations raging. Matthew 1:23 gives the name Immanuel. Exodus 14:13-14 shows God fighting for a people who are still. Isaiah 30:15 and 40:31 speak of quietness and strength. Hebrews 12:22-28 speaks of an unshakable kingdom. Romans 8:31-39 expresses similar confidence.

STEP 6

Application

Take five minutes of silence today, and put a name on the thing you are anxious about. Then say, “Be still, and know that I am God.”

Memorize verse 1. It can be prayed in any trouble.

Name a place in your life where the ground is shaking (health, work, relationships). Place it in the hands of the God who is a very present help.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Tell God what you fear, and say that he is your refuge and strength.

Be still, and know that he is God.

Thank him that he is with you.

DAY 886 · WEEK 127

Psalm 93

The LORD reigns; he is robed in majesty

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 93. It is a short psalm that announces the reign of the LORD and speaks of him as mightier than the floods. Read it as a brief hymn that opens a series of enthronement psalms (93, 95-99).

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 93 has no author, but it is one of the "The LORD reigns" psalms. It was probably sung in worship celebrating God's kingship, perhaps at a festival. In the ancient world, floods and seas represented chaos and the forces that threaten order. This psalm declares that the LORD is mightier than all of them. It helps us read Revelation, in which seas, beasts, and floods seem to threaten the people of God, but in which the throne is secure.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD reigns; he is robed in majesty" (v. 1).
2. "He has put on strength as his belt" (v. 1).
3. "Yes, the world is established; it shall never be moved" (v. 1).
4. "Your throne is established from of old; you are from everlasting" (v. 2).
5. "The floods have lifted up their voice" (v. 3).
6. "Mightier than the thunders of many waters, mightier than the waves of the sea, the LORD on high is mighty!" (v. 4).
7. "Your decrees are very trustworthy" (v. 5).
8. "Holiness befits your house, O LORD, forevermore" (v. 5).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm opens with a proclamation: “The LORD reigns; he is robed in majesty; the LORD is robed; he has put on strength as his belt.” The Hebrew word for “reigns” can also be rendered “has become king,” and the psalm was probably sung to celebrate God’s kingship. He is clothed like a king in majesty and strength. “Yes, the world is established; it shall never be moved.” Because God is king, the world is stable. The world is not a random accident but is held in place by his rule.

Next, the eternity of his throne: “Your throne is established from of old; you are from everlasting.” Before the world existed, God reigned. His throne is not a recent achievement. This is why the elders in Revelation 4 praise the one who was and is and is to come.

Then the threat: “The floods have lifted up, O LORD, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their roaring.” Three times, the floods are mentioned, building like waves. They represent every power that threatens: chaotic nature, hostile nations, and demonic forces. The floods are loud, and the repeated phrasing suggests that they will not stop. But the next verse puts them in perspective: “Mightier than the thunders of many waters, mightier than the waves of the sea, the LORD on high is mighty!” The floods roar, but God is mightier. His voice, in Psalm 29, is heard over the waters.

The psalm ends with two statements about God’s word and house. “Your decrees are very trustworthy; holiness befits your house, O LORD, forevermore.” His commands can be trusted, and his dwelling place is holy. The God who rules the floods is also the God who speaks reliably and calls his people to holiness.

For Christians, the picture is complete in Jesus, who stilled the storm with a word (Mark 4:39), walked on the waves, and calmed the seas that frightened his disciples. They said in awe, “Who then is this, that even wind and sea obey him?” This psalm is the answer. And in Revelation, the Lamb stands on the throne above the chaos, and the sea of glass before the throne is calm (4:6). In the new creation, “the sea was no more” (21:1): the symbol of chaos is gone.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 29:3, 10 also pictures God enthroned over the flood. Psalm 95-99 are other enthronement psalms. Exodus 15:18 declares that the LORD will reign forever. Mark 4:35-41 shows Jesus calming the storm. Job 38:8-11 shows God setting limits for the sea. Psalm 65:7 and 89:9 speak of stilling the waves. Isaiah 43:2 promises that waters will not overwhelm. Revelation 4:6, 15:2, and 21:1 mention the sea. Revelation 11:15 and 19:6 announce that God reigns. Hebrews 12:28 speaks of receiving an unshakable kingdom.

STEP 6

Application

When you feel like the floods are lifting up their voice (anxiety, news, conflict), say verse 4 aloud.

Thank God for the stability of his rule. Name three things in your life that rest on it.

Pray that your church's life would reflect the holiness that befits his house.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Praise God as king, robed in majesty.

Thank him that the world is established and cannot be moved.

Tell him what you are holding that you want him to uphold.

REVELATION 15:3-4

DAY 887 · WEEK 127

Psalm 97

The LORD reigns; let the earth rejoice

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 12 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 97. It is another enthronement psalm. Notice how creation and the nations respond to the arrival of the King, and how the psalm ends with joy for the righteous.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 97 continues the theme of the previous psalm: the LORD reigns. It uses imagery of theophany (God's appearing), with clouds, fire, lightning, and melting mountains, similar to Sinai. It also speaks of the humiliation of idols and the joy of God's people. It reads like a commentary on Revelation 19, where the multitude cries, "Hallelujah! For the Lord our God the Almighty reigns," and the idols and the powers of evil are overthrown.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "The LORD reigns, let the earth rejoice; let the many coastlands be glad!" (v. 1).
2. "Righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne" (v. 2).
3. "The mountains melt like wax before the LORD, before the Lord of all the earth" (v. 5).
4. "The heavens proclaim his righteousness, and all the peoples see his glory" (v. 6).
5. "All worshipers of images are put to shame" (v. 7).
6. "O you who love the LORD, hate evil! He preserves the lives of his saints" (v. 10).
7. "Light is sown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in heart" (v. 11).
8. "Rejoice in the LORD, O you righteous, and give thanks to his holy name!" (v. 12).

STEP 4

Interpretation

Where Psalm 93 spoke of the stability of God's reign, Psalm 97 shows its effects. The first response is joy: "The LORD reigns, let the earth rejoice; let the many coastlands be glad!" Even distant lands are invited. But the reign of God is also awesome: "Clouds and thick darkness are all around him; righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne." God's throne rests on righteousness and justice; he rules fairly. "Fire goes before him and burns up his adversaries all around. His lightnings light up the world; the earth sees and trembles. The mountains melt like wax before the LORD." This is similar to the plagues and cosmic disturbances of Revelation. The Lord's coming is overwhelming, and all of creation responds.

"The heavens proclaim his righteousness, and all the peoples see his glory." Then a result for false religion: "All worshipers of images are put to shame, who make their boast in worthless idols; worship him, all you gods!" Idols are shown to be empty. The gods themselves are told to worship the LORD, a statement that echoes Revelation, where the demonic powers are defeated. Zion hears and is glad, and the daughters of Judah rejoice "because of your judgments, O LORD." God's judgments are a cause of rejoicing for his people, because they mean justice at last. "For you, O LORD, are most high over all the earth; you are exalted far above all gods."

Then the moral application: "O you who love the LORD, hate evil! He preserves the lives of his saints; he delivers them from the hand of the wicked." Love for God and hatred of evil go together. And the promise: "Light is sown for the righteous, and joy for the upright in heart." The metaphor is of seeds in the ground: light and joy are planted for the righteous and will spring up. It may not look like it now, in a world that persecutes the saints, but a harvest of light and joy is coming. This is the same theme as in Revelation 21, where there is no more night and no more tears.

The final invitation is to rejoice: "Rejoice in the LORD, O you righteous, and give thanks to his holy name!" Believers face the future with joy. In Revelation, the final celebration is of the marriage supper of the Lamb. For now, we rejoice by faith, trusting that the day will come when the evidence matches the promise.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 19:16-19 and Psalm 18:7-15 describe God's appearing. Psalm 96, 98, and 99 are other enthronement psalms. Isaiah 42:17 and 44:9-20 mock idols. Hebrews 1:6 quotes the Septuagint of verse 7, "Let all God's angels worship him." Psalm 89:14 says righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne. Revelation 19:1-8 shows the multitude rejoicing at God's judgments. Romans 12:9 says to abhor what is evil. Psalm 126:5-6 speaks of sowing with tears and reaping with joy. Revelation 21:23-25 pictures the city without need of the sun. Habakkuk 3:3-6 is another theophany.

STEP 6

Application

Think of a situation where you cannot yet see justice, and picture "light sown" there. Pray for the harvest.

Hate what God hates this week. Ask him to show you something you have been tolerating.

Rejoice in the LORD today, even if circumstances are hard, and give thanks to his holy name.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Rejoice that the LORD reigns.
- Thank him for light sown for the righteous.
- Ask him to give you gladness in him.

REVELATION 15:3-4

DAY 888 · WEEK 127

Revelation 16:1-21

The seven bowls of wrath

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 21 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 16:1-21. The seven bowls of God's wrath are poured out in a rapid series, resembling the plagues of Egypt. Notice the repeated refusal to repent, the declaration that God's judgments are just, and the final cry, "It is done!"

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The bowls are the last of the series of seven (seals, trumpets, bowls). They are described as final, bringing the wrath of God to completion. Unlike the trumpets, which affected a third of the earth, the bowls are total. Interpreters differ on whether the three series are sequential, parallel, or progressively intensifying cycles that cover the same period from different angles. In any reading, the point is the same: God's judgment on the beast's kingdom is just and certain, and he will bring evil to account.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Go and pour out on the earth the seven bowls of the wrath of God" (v. 1).
2. "Harmful and painful sores came upon the people who bore the mark of the beast" (v. 2).
3. "Yes, Lord God the Almighty, true and just are your judgments!" (v. 7).
4. "They did not repent and give him glory" (v. 9).
5. "Its water was dried up, to prepare the way for the kings from the east" (v. 12).
6. "Behold, I am coming like a thief! Blessed is the one who stays awake" (v. 15).
7. "And they assembled them at the place that in Hebrew is called Armageddon" (v. 16).
8. "It is done!" (v. 17).

STEP 4

Interpretation

A loud voice from the temple commands the seven angels to pour out the bowls. The first brings sores on those with the mark of the beast, like the boils of Egypt. The second turns the sea to blood, killing every living thing in it. The third turns the rivers and springs to blood, and the angel of the waters declares: “Just are you, O Holy One, who is and who was, for you brought these judgments. For they have shed the blood of saints and prophets, and you have given them blood to drink. It is what they deserve!” A voice from the altar adds, “Yes, Lord God the Almighty, true and just are your judgments!” This is the answer to the martyrs’ cry in 6:10: God’s judgments are retributive, matched to the sin. The fourth bowl scorches people with fire from the sun, “and they cursed the name of God who had power over these plagues. They did not repent and give him glory.” This is the tragic refrain: even under judgment, hearts remain hard. The fifth falls on the throne of the beast, and its kingdom is plunged into darkness; people gnaw their tongues in anguish and curse God, but do not repent of their deeds.

The sixth bowl dries up the great river Euphrates “to prepare the way for the kings from the east.” Three unclean spirits like frogs come from the mouths of the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet, performing signs and going out to assemble the kings of the whole world “for battle on the great day of God the Almighty.” Then the voice interrupts: “Behold, I am coming like a thief! Blessed is the one who stays awake, keeping his garments on, that he may not go about naked and be seen exposed!” This is a call to watchfulness in the midst of the vision. “And they assembled them at the place that in Hebrew is called Armageddon.” The name probably means “Mount of Megiddo,” a site of famous battles in Israel’s history (Judges 5; 2 Kings 23:29), though Megiddo is a plain, not a mountain, so it is a symbolic name for the place where the final battle is gathered. Interpreters differ on whether this is a literal military conflict at the end of history or a symbol of the final spiritual confrontation between the forces of evil and God. Notice that in the account no battle is described here; it is deferred to 19:19-21, where the beast and the kings gather against the rider on the white horse, and the battle is won by his word.

The seventh bowl is poured into the air, and a loud voice from the throne says, “It is done!” Flashes of lightning, rumblings, thunder, and a great earthquake, such as there has never been, split the great city into three parts, and the cities of the nations fall. “God remembered Babylon the great, to make her drain the cup of the wine of the fury of his wrath.” Every island flees, mountains vanish, and great hailstones, about a hundred pounds each, fall from heaven on people, and they curse God. The chapter ends as it began, with human hearts unrepentant.

This chapter is hard to read. We should neither dwell on it with relish nor skip over it. It tells us that God takes evil seriously. The same Lord who offers mercy will not let evil go unanswered. It also tells us something about the human heart: apart from grace, even the experience of God's judgment does not produce repentance. We need new hearts, and Christ gives them.

STEP 5

Connection

Exodus 7-10 recounts the plagues of Egypt. Psalm 79:1-3 and Isaiah 49:26 relate to those who shed blood. Genesis 9:6 and Luke 11:49-51 speak of the blood of the prophets. Isaiah 11:15-16 and Jeremiah 50:38 describe drying up the Euphrates. Judges 5:19 and 2 Kings 23:29-30 mention Megiddo. Ezekiel 38-39 describes a final assault against God's people. Matthew 24:43-44 and 1 Thessalonians 5:2-4 describe the coming as a thief. Revelation 19:11-21 shows the final battle. John 19:30, "It is finished." Romans 2:4-5 speaks of an unrepentant heart.

STEP 6

Application

Stay awake: think of one habit that helps you stay alert and watchful in your faith, and strengthen it this week.

Pray for someone with a hard heart, that God would grant repentance.

When you are struck by the justice of God's judgments, thank Christ for taking the wrath for those who trust in him.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank God that his judgments are true and just.
- Ask him to give you a tender heart that repents.
- Thank him that he hears the blood of his saints.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Revelation 15:3-4 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"Great and amazing are your deeds, O Lord God the Almighty! Just and true are your ways, O King of the nations! Who will not fear, O Lord, and glorify your name? For you alone are holy."

REVELATION 15:3-4

REST

Meditation

This is a song sung by those who have come through great trouble. Standing on the shore of the sea of glass, with harps in hand, they sing about the character of God, not about themselves.

"Great and amazing are your deeds." They praise what he has done. "Just and true are your ways." They praise how he does it: with justice and truth, even when the ways are painful or hard to understand. The people who sing this have seen suffering, and they still say his ways are just.

"Who will not fear, O Lord, and glorify your name? For you alone are holy." The right response to a holy God is reverent fear and glad glory.

The song combines the song of Moses and the song of the Lamb: the exodus and the cross. When you feel confused by events, sing this to remind yourself of what will be said at the end.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you read the second half of Revelation's visions of conflict. Chapter 14 showed the Lamb with his people on Mount Zion, the eternal gospel proclaimed to every nation, the fall of Babylon, the blessing on those who die in the Lord, and the final harvest. Chapter 15 gave us the song of Moses and the Lamb. Four psalms framed the reign of God: Psalm 2 (the nations rage, but God's Son is enthroned), Psalm 46 (God is our refuge, be still), Psalm 93 (the LORD reigns, mightier than the floods), and Psalm 97 (the LORD reigns, light is sown for the righteous). Chapter 16 poured out the seven bowls of wrath: judgments that are just, and hearts that do not repent, ending with the cry "It is done!"

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Psalm 2 says, "Blessed are all who take refuge in him." What would it mean for you to take refuge in Christ this week, specifically from something that frightens you?

In Revelation 16, people suffer terrible judgments and still do not repent. What does this tell you about the human heart, and how does it increase your gratitude for grace?

Revelation 14:13 says those who die in the Lord are blessed, because they rest from their labors and their deeds follow them. How does this change how you think about death, and about the work you are doing now?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that great and amazing are his deeds.

Thank him for his reign.

Rest in him.

DAY 890 · WEEK 128

Revelation 17:1-18:24

Babylon the great falls

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 42 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 17:1-18:24. Two chapters describe the fall of Babylon the great, first as a prostitute riding a beast, then as a great city mourned by merchants and kings. Notice the contrast between Babylon and the Bride of the Lamb, who appears in chapter 19.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

In the Old Testament, Babylon was the empire that destroyed Jerusalem and took Israel into exile, and it became the symbol of human pride and opposition to God, from the tower of Babel (Genesis 11) onward. In the first century, Babylon was a code name for Rome, the city on seven hills that dominated the Mediterranean world. In Revelation, Babylon is both of these and more: the world system organized against God, seductive, wealthy, and violent, in every age. The prophets Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel used a similar language for the cities of Babylon and Tyre. John's readers would hear the echoes.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast that was full of blasphemous names" (17:3).
2. "I saw the woman, drunk with the blood of the saints, the blood of the martyrs of Jesus" (17:6).
3. "They will make war on the Lamb, and the Lamb will conquer them, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings" (17:14).
4. "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great!" (18:2).
5. "Come out of her, my people, lest you take part in her sins, lest you share in her plagues" (18:4).

6. “I sit as a queen, I am no widow, and mourning I shall never see” (18:7).
7. “And slaves, that is, human souls” (18:13).
8. “Rejoice over her, O heaven, and you saints and apostles and prophets, for God has given judgment for you against her!” (18:20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

One of the seven angels with the bowls invites John to see “the judgment of the great prostitute who is seated on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth have committed immorality.” In the Spirit, John sees a woman sitting on a scarlet beast with seven heads and ten horns, dressed in purple and scarlet, adorned with gold, jewels, and pearls, holding a golden cup full of abominations. On her forehead is a name of mystery: “Babylon the great, mother of prostitutes and of earth’s abominations.” She is “drunk with the blood of the saints, the blood of the martyrs of Jesus.” John marvels greatly, and the angel explains the mystery. The beast “was, and is not, and is to come” (a parody of God’s “who is and who was and who is to come”). The seven heads are seven mountains (an allusion to Rome’s seven hills) and also seven kings. The ten horns are ten kings who receive authority for a brief time. They give their power to the beast and “will make war on the Lamb, and the Lamb will conquer them, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those with him are called and chosen and faithful.” The woman “is the great city that has dominion over the kings of the earth.” Interpreters debate the exact historical identification of the kings, but the point is that every earthly power that opposes Christ is doomed. And, strikingly, the beast and the ten kings turn on the prostitute and destroy her: evil devours itself.

In chapter 18, the scene shifts to the city’s fall. An angel with great authority lights up the earth: “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! She has become a dwelling place for demons, a haunt for every unclean spirit.” The reason is that all nations have drunk of the wine of her immorality, and the merchants of the earth have grown rich from the power of her luxurious living. Then a voice from heaven calls God’s people: “Come out of her, my people, lest you take part in her sins, lest you share in her plagues.” It is a call to separation. Believers are to live in the world without being of it, refusing its idolatries and injustices, and ready to leave if loyalty to Christ requires it. The prophets said the same of the ancient Babylon (Jeremiah 51:45).

The woman’s self-image is: “I sit as a queen, I am no widow, and mourning I shall never see.” Because of her pride, “in a single day her plagues will come, death and mourning and famine, and she will be burned up with fire.” The kings of the earth, merchants, and shipmasters mourn her: “Alas! Alas! You great city.” The merchants weep because “no one buys their cargo anymore.” The cargo list is long: gold, silver, jewels, fine linen, spices, wine, grain, cattle, horses and chariots, “and slaves, that is, human souls.” The final item reveals the system’s true cost: human lives sold as commodities. The empire’s wealth was built on trafficking in people. Their grief is not for her but for their profits.

Heaven, however, responds with joy: “Rejoice over her, O heaven, and you saints and apostles and prophets, for God has given judgment for you against her!” A mighty angel throws a stone like a great millstone into the sea: “So will Babylon the great city be thrown down with violence, and will be found no more.” The sounds of harpists, musicians, craftsmen, millstones, lamps, and brides and grooms will cease. “And in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints, and of all who have been slain on earth.” All injustice is judged. The city of man is overthrown to make room for the city of God.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 10-11 introduces Babel and Babylon. Isaiah 13-14, 21:9, 47, Jeremiah 50-51, and Daniel 4:30 describe ancient Babylon’s pride and fall. Ezekiel 26-28 describes the fall of Tyre. Nahum 3:4 uses prostitution for a city. Hosea 2 and Jeremiah 3 use prostitution for unfaithfulness. 2 Corinthians 6:14-18 and 1 John 2:15-17 call for separation from the world. Isaiah 52:11 and Jeremiah 51:6, 45 say “come out.” Ezekiel 27 lists the merchants of Tyre. Amos 8:4-6 and James 5:1-6 condemn exploiting the poor. 1 Peter 5:13 uses Babylon for Rome.

STEP 6

Application

Ask where you are drawn by the glamor and luxury of Babylon. What do you envy or chase that the world offers?

Consider the supply chains and systems you depend on. Ask whether any of them are built on the exploitation of people, and what you can do about it.

Pray for believers living in places of persecution and temptation, that they would be kept faithful.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Worship Jesus as Lord of lords and King of kings.

Thank him that Babylon has fallen and he has won.

Ask him to help you come out of whatever you are entangled with.

Revelation 19:1-20:15

The marriage supper; the rider; the thousand years; final judgment

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 61 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 19:1-20:15. This is a long and important reading, covering the marriage supper of the Lamb, the rider on the white horse, the binding of Satan, the thousand years, and the great white throne. Read slowly, and notice how each scene answers the question of who wins.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

After the fall of Babylon, heaven erupts in praise, and the book moves to the return of Christ, the final defeat of evil, and the last judgment. Chapter 20 contains the only mention of the "thousand years" in the Bible, and Christians have understood it in three major ways. The book's purpose is not to settle a timetable but to assure the church that the Lamb wins and that evil is finally and fully destroyed.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Hallelujah! For the Lord our God the Almighty reigns" (19:6).
2. "The marriage of the Lamb has come, and his Bride has made herself ready" (19:7).
3. "Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb" (19:9).
4. "A white horse! The one sitting on it is called Faithful and True" (19:11).
5. "King of kings and Lord of lords" (19:16).
6. "And bound him for a thousand years" (20:2).
7. "Blessed and holy is the one who shares in the first resurrection!" (20:6).
8. "And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire" (20:15).

STEP 4

Interpretation

A great multitude in heaven cries out, “Hallelujah! Salvation and glory and power belong to our God, for his judgments are true and just; for he has judged the great prostitute.” These are the only “Hallelujahs” in the New Testament. The twenty-four elders and four living creatures say “Amen,” and a voice from the throne calls all God’s servants to praise. Then the multitude, “like the roar of many waters and like the sound of mighty peals of thunder,” cries, “Hallelujah! For the Lord our God the Almighty reigns. Let us rejoice and exult and give him the glory, for the marriage of the Lamb has come, and his Bride has made herself ready; it was granted her to clothe herself with fine linen, bright and pure,” which is “the righteous deeds of the saints.” This is a contrast with the prostitute. The Bride is the church. “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.” John falls down to worship the angel, but is told, “You must not do that! I am a fellow servant… Worship God. For the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.”

Then heaven opens: “a white horse! The one sitting on it is called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he judges and makes war.” His eyes are like a flame of fire, on his head are many diadems, he wears a robe dipped in blood, and his name is “The Word of God.” The armies of heaven follow him on white horses, clothed in fine linen. “From his mouth comes a sharp sword with which to strike down the nations.” Note that the weapon is his word. On his robe and thigh is written the name “King of kings and Lord of lords.” An angel invites the birds to the great supper of God. The beast and the kings gather to make war against him, but the beast and the false prophet are captured and thrown alive into the lake of fire, and the rest are killed by the sword from his mouth. No battle is actually described: the Word speaks and it is done.

In chapter 20, an angel with the key of the bottomless pit seizes “the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the pit, and shut it and sealed it over him, so that he might not deceive the nations any longer.” Then John sees thrones with those given authority to judge, and the souls of those beheaded for the testimony of Jesus, who “came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years.” This is called the first resurrection. “Blessed and holy is the one who shares in the first resurrection! Over such the second death has no power.” After the thousand years, Satan is released for a short time, deceives the nations (Gog and Magog), and surrounds the camp of the saints, but fire comes down from heaven and consumes them, and the devil is thrown into the lake of fire.

Christians have three main views on the millennium. Premillennialists believe Christ returns before a literal thousand-year reign on earth: historic premillennialists hold that the church will go through the tribulation, and dispensational premillennialists hold that the church is raptured before it. Amillennialists believe the thousand years is symbolic of the present age between Christ's first and second comings, in which Satan is bound in the sense that he cannot prevent the gospel from reaching the nations, and the saints who have died reign with Christ in heaven. Postmillennialists believe that the gospel will bring a golden age before Christ returns. Faithful Christians hold each of these views. The points on which all agree are that Christ will return visibly, there will be a resurrection and judgment, and the final state is the new creation.

The chapter ends with the great white throne, which we examine on Day 892: the dead, great and small, stand before the throne, books are opened, and death and Hades are thrown into the lake of fire. The last enemy is destroyed.

STEP 5

Connection

Psalm 2 and 110 are the background of the rider's rule with the rod of iron. Isaiah 63:1-6 describes the one whose garments are stained. Ephesians 5:25-32 and 2 Corinthians 11:2 describe the church as the Bride. Isaiah 25:6-9 describes a feast on the mountain. Matthew 22:1-14 and 25:1-13 are parables of the wedding. 2 Thessalonians 2:8 says Christ will destroy the lawless one by the breath of his mouth. Ezekiel 38-39 describes Gog and Magog. John 5:28-29 and 1 Corinthians 15:20-28 speak of resurrection and the last enemy. Colossians 2:15 and Matthew 12:29 speak of binding the strong man.

STEP 6

Application

Praise God today with the word "Hallelujah," and think about what it means: "praise the LORD."

Think of the marriage supper of the Lamb as your future. Ask how it changes what you live for now.

When Christians disagree on the millennium, practice charity. Which parts do all agree on, and how can you focus on them?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Say, "Hallelujah," and tell God why.

Thank him for inviting you to the marriage supper of the Lamb.

Ask him to keep you faithful to the end.

The Final Judgment

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 20:11-15, Matthew 25:31-46, and 2 Corinthians 5:10. Today is a doctrinal pause on the final judgment. It is a serious subject, so read slowly, and notice both the justice and the mercy that appear in these passages.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Christians have confessed from the earliest days that Christ "will come again to judge the living and the dead." The final judgment is not a minor topic; Jesus spoke of it often, and the apostles preached it. It is meant to produce reverence, sobriety, and urgency, and for believers, thankfulness and hope. We must handle it with care because it concerns real people and eternal consequences.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Then I saw a great white throne and him who was seated on it" (Revelation 20:11).
2. "And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened" (Revelation 20:12).
3. "The dead were judged by what was written in the books, according to what they had done" (Revelation 20:12).
4. "And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire" (Revelation 20:15).
5. "He will separate people one from another as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats" (Matthew 25:32).

6. “As you did it to one of the least of these my brothers, you did it to me” (Matthew 25:40).
7. “And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matthew 25:46).
8. “For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one may receive what is due for what he has done in the body, whether good or evil” (2 Corinthians 5:10).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The final judgment is the public, universal, and final assessment by Christ of every human being at the end of history. The Bible teaches several truths about it.

It is certain. God “has fixed a day on which he will judge the world in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed” (Acts 17:31). Jesus himself is the judge (John 5:22; 2 Timothy 4:1), which means the one who died for sinners is the one before whom all will stand. It is universal: “the dead, great and small.” No one is overlooked or excused.

It is according to truth and works. The books record what each person has done, and the judgment will be perfectly just. Nothing is hidden (Luke 12:2-3; Romans 2:16). Works are the evidence of the heart. Yet no one is saved by works. The decisive question is whether one’s name is in the book of life, the book of the Lamb who was slain (Revelation 13:8; 21:27). Those who are in Christ are declared righteous by faith, and “there is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus” (Romans 8:1). Believers will also appear before the judgment seat of Christ, but not for condemnation. Paul says the judgment will evaluate their works, to bring rewards or loss, “yet so as through fire” (1 Corinthians 3:12-15). Their salvation is secure, and their service will be rewarded by grace. The judgment of the nations in Matthew 25 shows that how people treat Christ’s people (the “least of these”) shows their relationship to him.

It results in two outcomes. The Bible teaches the final separation of the saved and the lost: eternal life and eternal punishment (Matthew 25:46; Daniel 12:2). The majority of Christian teaching throughout history has understood this punishment as conscious and everlasting, and this view has strong support in Matthew 25:41-46, Mark 9:43-48, 2 Thessalonians 1:9, and Revelation 14:11 and 20:10. A minority of evangelicals, including some respected teachers such as John Stott, have argued for conditional immortality or annihilationism, the view that the lost will be destroyed and cease to exist after judgment, pointing to passages that speak of “destruction” and “perishing.” The universalist view, that all will eventually be saved, has been rejected by the church as contrary to Scripture’s clear teaching. We should handle this topic with humility, not with relish. “As I live, declares the Lord GOD, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked” (Ezekiel 33:11).

What should we do with this doctrine? It should fill us with a sober urgency to share the gospel (2 Corinthians 5:11), with confidence that God will right every wrong (Romans 12:19), with comfort for those who suffer injustice, and with humility, because we also deserve judgment apart from grace. It should lead us to live in a way that is pleasing to the Lord (2 Corinthians 5:9). And it should drive us to Christ, who bore the judgment for all who trust him, so that on that day we can stand in him.

STEP 4

Interpretation

John sees a great white throne. The white signifies purity, and the throne's size signifies the greatness of the occasion. "From his presence earth and sky fled away, and no place was found for them." The old creation cannot stand before the Judge. The dead are raised, "great and small," and stand before the throne. Books are opened, and "another book was opened, which is the book of life." The books record deeds, the book of life records the names of those who belong to the Lamb. The sea, Death, and Hades give up their dead. Then "Death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire. And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire."

Matthew 25 gives a parable of the same event. The Son of Man sits on his throne of glory, and all nations are gathered before him. He separates people as a shepherd separates sheep from goats. To the sheep he says, "Come, you who are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." The basis he names is care for the hungry, thirsty, stranger, naked, sick, and imprisoned. They are astonished: when did we do these things? "As you did it to one of the least of these my brothers, you did it to me." The goats are told to depart into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels. Neither group is aware of the full significance of what they did. The sheep did not do these things to earn a reward; their love was the fruit of a transformed heart. The goats' lack of love revealed that they did not know him.

Paul writes with sobering clarity: "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ." It says "all," including Christians. And he draws the implication: "Therefore, knowing the fear of the Lord, we persuade others." But he also explains the ground of confidence: "For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21). We can look forward to the day not because we are good but because we are covered in Christ's righteousness.

STEP 5

Connection

Acts 17:30-31 and Romans 2:5-16 speak of the day of judgment. John 5:22-29 says the Father has given all judgment to the Son. 1 Corinthians 3:10-15 and 4:5 speak of the testing of works. Romans 14:10-12 says we will all stand before God's judgment seat. Hebrews 9:27 says people die once and then face judgment. Ecclesiastes 12:14 says God will bring every deed into judgment. Daniel 12:1-3 speaks of resurrection to everlasting life and contempt. Romans 8:1 and John 5:24 promise no condemnation for believers. 2 Peter 3:7-9 speaks of the patience of God. Ezekiel 18:23 says God takes no pleasure in the death of the wicked.

STEP 6

Application

Take a few minutes to thank Christ for bearing the judgment you deserved. Read Romans 8:1 aloud.

Ask who in your life does not yet know Christ, and pray for them by name. Take one step to speak to them.

Look at Matthew 25 and ask: whom might you serve this week as if you were serving Christ himself?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Thank Jesus for being judge and also the one who bore judgment for you.
- Tell him what you want to say about the final judgment.
- Pray for someone you love who does not yet trust him.

DAY 893 · WEEK 128

Revelation 21:1-22:5

The new creation; the New Jerusalem; the river of life

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 32 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 21:1-22:5. This is the climax of the whole Bible: the new heavens and new earth, the New Jerusalem, and the river and tree of life. Read slowly. As you read, think back to the first chapters of Genesis, and notice how many things in the Garden of Eden return here.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The book of Revelation ends with the vision for which the whole Bible has been preparing: God dwelling with his people in a renewed creation. The images are drawn from Isaiah 65-66, Ezekiel 40-48, and Zechariah, and from Genesis 1-3. Where Genesis began with a garden and a marriage, Revelation ends with a city and a marriage. What was lost in the fall is restored and surpassed. This is the goal of the covenants: God with his people. It is why the memory verse for this unit comes from this passage.

STEP 3

Observation

1. “Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more” (21:1).
2. “Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man. He will dwell with them, and they will be his people, and God himself will be with them as their God” (21:3).
3. “He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more” (21:4).
4. “Behold, I am making all things new” (21:5).
5. “And its lamp is the Lamb” (21:23).
6. “The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations” (22:2).

7. “No longer will there be anything accursed” (22:3).

8. “They will see his face, and his name will be on their foreheads” (22:4).

STEP 4

Interpretation

John sees “a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more.” The sea, a symbol of chaos and separation, is gone. Then he sees “the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.” The city is the people of God, and the image of the bride unites the two. Then the voice from the throne: “Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man. He will dwell with them, and they will be his people, and God himself will be with them as their God.” This is the covenant promise, repeated throughout the Old Testament (Leviticus 26:11-12; Ezekiel 37:27): “I will be their God, and they shall be my people.” The tabernacle and temple were pointers; here the reality has arrived. “He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more, neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore, for the former things have passed away.” The curse of Genesis 3 is undone.

The one on the throne speaks for the second time in the book: “Behold, I am making all things new.” Not “I am making new things,” but all things new. It is a renewal of creation. “I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To the thirsty I will give from the spring of the water of life without payment.” Those who conquer will inherit these things, “and I will be his God and he will be my son.” But the cowardly, faithless, detestable, murderers, sexually immoral, sorcerers, idolaters, and all liars will have their portion in the lake of fire. The vision does not hide the stakes.

An angel shows John the Bride, the wife of the Lamb: the holy city, with the glory of God, radiant like a jewel. It has a great high wall with twelve gates, with the names of the twelve tribes of Israel, and twelve foundations with the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. Old and new covenant people are united. The city is a perfect cube (12,000 stadia each way), like the Most Holy Place in the temple. The whole city is a holy of holies. The wall is jasper, the city pure gold, clear as glass, and the foundations are adorned with every kind of jewel. The gates are pearls, and the street is pure gold. “And I saw no temple in the city, for its temple is the Lord God the Almighty and the Lamb.” “And the city has no need of sun or moon to shine on it, for the glory of God gives it light, and its lamp is the Lamb.” The nations walk by its light, and the kings of the earth bring their glory into it. Its gates are never shut, for there is no night. “But nothing unclean will ever enter it… but only those who are written in the Lamb’s book of life.”

Chapter 22 returns to Eden. “Then the angel showed me the river of the water of life, bright as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb through the middle of the street of the city; also, on either side of the river, the tree of life with its twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit each month. The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. No longer will there be anything accursed, but the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his servants will worship him. They will see his face, and his name will be on their foreheads. And night will be no more. They will need no light of lamp or sun, for the Lord God will be their light, and they will reign forever and ever.” The tree of life, lost in Genesis 3, is restored. The river of Eden, now from the throne. And the greatest promise: “They will see his face.” This is the beatific vision, which no one could have and live (Exodus 33:20). Because of Christ, we will see God’s face, and we will reign with him.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:1-2:25 and 3:22-24 are the beginning that Revelation completes. Isaiah 65:17-25 and 66:22 promise new heavens and a new earth. Ezekiel 37:26-28 and 47:1-12 describe God dwelling with his people and a river from the temple. Leviticus 26:11-12 and 2 Corinthians 6:16 repeat the covenant formula. Isaiah 25:8 and 35:10 promise no more tears. Isaiah 60:1-3, 19-20 pictures nations coming to the light. 1 Kings 6:20 describes the cube-shaped Most Holy Place. Ephesians 2:19-22 and Galatians 4:26 speak of the heavenly Jerusalem. Psalm 17:15 and 1 John 3:2 speak of seeing God. Matthew 5:8 promises the pure in heart will see God.

STEP 6

Application

Read the memory verse (21:3-4) aloud, slowly. Which promise most touches your situation today: no more tears, no more death, no more pain?

Imagine the tree of life and the river. How would knowing that this is where history is headed shape the way you spend the day?

Think of someone who is grieving. Share verse 4 with them, and sit with them.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he will dwell with his people and wipe away every tear.

Tell him what tears you are bringing him.

Ask him to give you hope for the new creation.

Revelation 21:1-22:5; Isaiah 65:17-25; 2 Peter 3:10-13

The New Heavens and New Earth

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Doctrine

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 21:1-22:5, Isaiah 65:17-25, and 2 Peter 3:10-13. Today is a doctrinal pause on the new heavens and new earth: the final destiny of believers and of creation. Notice how the Old Testament prophecy, Peter's teaching, and John's vision fit together.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

What is heaven like? Many Christians imagine the final state as a spiritual realm where disembodied souls float on clouds, but the Bible's picture is richer and more physical. The final hope of the believer is not escaping the world but a renewed world, with resurrected bodies in a restored creation, in which God dwells with his people. Getting this right shapes how we value creation, work, and our present life.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "For behold, I create new heavens and a new earth, and the former things shall not be remembered or come into mind" (Isaiah 65:17).
2. "They shall build houses and inhabit them; they shall plant vineyards and eat their fruit" (Isaiah 65:21).
3. "The wolf and the lamb shall graze together" (Isaiah 65:25).
4. "The day of the Lord will come like a thief" (2 Peter 3:10).
5. "But according to his promise we are waiting for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells" (2 Peter 3:13).
6. "Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth" (Revelation 21:1).

7. “Behold, I am making all things new” (Revelation 21:5).
8. “The throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his servants will worship him” (Revelation 22:3).

DOCTRINAL PAUSE

Doctrinal Focus

The Bible’s final hope is the new heavens and new earth. Four features stand out.

First, it is a renewed creation, not a mere escape. God created the world and called it very good. The fall corrupted it, but God does not abandon his creation. Paul says that “the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to corruption and obtain the freedom of the glory of the children of God” (Romans 8:21). Christ’s death and resurrection are the first fruits of the renewal of all things (Colossians 1:20). Christians differ on how much continuity there is between the present creation and the new one. Many Reformed teachers hold that the new earth will be a purification and renewal of this one (as the flood cleansed but did not destroy the earth), while some, including many Lutherans, hold that God will annihilate the present world and create a wholly new one. In either case, the new creation is physical, real, and glorious, and what we do now in faith is not in vain (1 Corinthians 15:58).

Second, it includes the resurrection of the body. We will not be disembodied spirits. When Christ returns, the dead in Christ will be raised, and the living changed, so that we have glorified bodies like his (Philippians 3:20-21; 1 Corinthians 15:42-54). Those who die before then are “with Christ, which is far better” (Philippians 1:23) in a conscious intermediate state, as we saw in Unit 21, but the final hope is resurrection on the new earth.

Third, it is the fulfillment of the covenants. In Genesis 1-2, God made humanity to dwell with him in a garden and to rule creation. Abraham was promised land, and Paul says he was promised “the world” (Romans 4:13). The Israelites who longed for the promised land were looking toward “a better country, that is, a heavenly one” (Hebrews 11:16), “the city that has foundations” (Hebrews 11:10). David’s throne is fulfilled in the reign of Christ. The new covenant, with its promise of forgiveness and God dwelling with his people, comes to its full fruition. In progressive covenantalism, all the covenants find their fulfillment in Christ and his people in the new creation: the land becomes the whole earth, the temple becomes God’s presence with all, and the people of God are drawn from all nations.

Fourth, it is a place of worship, rest, work, and joy. The picture includes seeing God’s face (Revelation 22:4), the absence of sin, death, and tears, the reign of the saints with Christ (22:5), the healing of the nations, and the glory of the nations being brought in (21:24-26). Isaiah 65 includes houses, vineyards, and long life, which suggests meaningful work and enjoyment, without frustration. There will be rest, as the Sabbath points forward (Hebrews 4:9-11). The center of it all is God himself. As the old catechism says, our chief end is to glorify God and enjoy him forever.

So how should this hope shape us? It gives us courage in suffering (Romans 8:18), motivates holy living (2 Peter 3:11-14), directs our affections toward the things above (Colossians 3:1-4), and prompts us to care for the creation that God will renew. It gives dignity to the work we do now. And it fills us with longing: "Come, Lord Jesus!"

STEP 4

Interpretation

Isaiah 65 is the Old Testament source. God promises new heavens and a new earth, and Jerusalem as a joy. The former things will be forgotten. There will be no more weeping, no more infant mortality, and people will live long. They will build houses and inhabit them, plant vineyards and eat their fruit, no longer for others to take. The wolf and the lamb will graze together; the lion shall eat straw like the ox, and "they shall not hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain." This is a picture of peace, justice, and flourishing. John in Revelation 21 sees the fulfillment on a larger scale.

Peter, in 2 Peter 3, addresses scoffers who say that all things continue as they were. He declares that the day of the Lord will come like a thief, with the heavens passing away with a roar, and the elements dissolved with heat. As we saw on Day 852, this can be read as the purging of the creation by fire. And then the application: "Since all these things are thus to be dissolved, what sort of people ought you to be in lives of holiness and godliness, waiting for and hastening the coming of the day of God?" The hope is the incentive to holiness.

Taken together, these passages show that Christians are not waiting for evacuation but for new creation. Paul's, Peter's, Isaiah's, and John's visions harmonize: the world will be made right, and God will dwell here with his people.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 1:31, 3:17-19, and Romans 8:18-25 trace creation, fall, and redemption. Colossians 1:15-20 and Ephesians 1:9-10 speak of reconciling all things in Christ. Matthew 19:28 mentions the renewal of all things. Acts 3:21 speaks of the restoration of all things. Philippians 3:20-21 and 1 Corinthians 15:35-58 speak of resurrection bodies. Psalm 37:11 and Matthew 5:5 promise the meek will inherit the earth. Hebrews 11:8-16 and Romans 4:13 speak of the promised world. 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18 describes Christ's return. Habakkuk 2:14 and Isaiah 11:6-9 describe the earth filled with the knowledge of the LORD.

STEP 6

Application

Think about what you imagined heaven would be like. How does the picture of a renewed earth change it?

Choose one way to care for God's creation this week (a neighbor's yard, a garden, a recycling habit, a walk), as an expression of hope.

Do some of your normal work today as something that will not be wasted in God's new world.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for the promise of new heavens and a new earth.

Ask him to help you live as a citizen of that world now.

Tell him what you long for there.

DAY 895 · WEEK 128

Revelation 22:6-21

Come, Lord Jesus, the final words of Scripture

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Reading · 16 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Revelation 22:6-21. These are the final words of the Bible. Notice how Jesus speaks directly, repeating "I am coming soon," and how the book ends with an invitation and a prayer.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

The visions are over. The angel confirms that "these words are trustworthy and true." What follows is a series of closing statements, partly from the angel, partly from Jesus, partly from John, that function as an epilogue. They return to the themes of the beginning: blessing for those who keep the words, the identity of Christ as Alpha and Omega, the coming of Jesus, and grace. The Bible ends not with a doctrine but with a prayer: "Come, Lord Jesus!"

STEP 3

Observation

1. "And behold, I am coming soon. Blessed is the one who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book" (v. 7).
2. "Behold, I am coming soon, bringing my recompense with me" (v. 12).
3. "I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end" (v. 13).
4. "Blessed are those who wash their robes, so that they may have the right to the tree of life" (v. 14).
5. "I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star" (v. 16).
6. "The Spirit and the Bride say, Come. And let the one who hears say, Come" (v. 17).
7. "Surely I am coming soon. Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!" (v. 20).
8. "The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen" (v. 21).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The angel says, “These words are trustworthy and true. And the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, has sent his angel to show his servants what must soon take place.” Then Jesus speaks: “And behold, I am coming soon. Blessed is the one who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book.” This is the sixth of seven blessings. John falls to worship the angel again, and again is told, “You must not do that! I am a fellow servant… Worship God.” Even at the climax of the revelation, only God deserves worship. And John is told, “Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near.” The message is not meant to be hidden but to be lived in the present. “Let the evildoer still do evil, and the filthy still be filthy, and the righteous still do right, and the holy still be holy.” The time to respond is now.

Then Jesus speaks again: “Behold, I am coming soon, bringing my recompense with me, to repay each one for what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.” He claims the titles of God. Then the last of the seven blessings: “Blessed are those who wash their robes, so that they may have the right to the tree of life and that they may enter the city by the gates.” Outside are the dogs, sorcerers, sexually immoral, murderers, idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices falsehood. Recall 7:14: robes are washed in the blood of the Lamb. This is grace, not merit.

Jesus gives his credentials: “I, Jesus, have sent my angel to testify to you about these things for the churches. I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star.” He is the fulfillment of the promises to David and the herald of a new day (2 Peter 1:19). Then the Spirit and the Bride (the church) say, “Come.” This is the church’s prayer for the return of the Lord, and perhaps also an invitation to those who have not yet believed. “And let the one who hears say, Come. And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who desires take the water of life without price.” The last invitation of the Bible is an open one. Anyone who is thirsty can come and drink freely.

A warning follows, which has often been applied to the whole Bible: “If anyone adds to them, God will add to him the plagues described in this book, and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God will take away his share in the tree of life and in the holy city.” It applies first to this book, and by extension to all of God’s word. We are to receive it as it is, neither adding nor subtracting.

The last words belong to Jesus and to John. “He who testifies to these things says, Surely I am coming soon.” And John answers: “Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!” The Aramaic form of this prayer, Maranatha, was a cry of the earliest church (1 Corinthians 16:22). The Bible, which began with “In the beginning, God,” ends with grace: “The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen.” The story that began in a garden ends in a city, but throughout, it is the story of the grace of God.

STEP 5

Connection

Revelation 1:1-3 parallels the opening. Revelation 7:14 and 22:14 speak of washing robes. Isaiah 55:1 and John 7:37-38 invite the thirsty. Numbers 24:17 and 2 Peter 1:19 mention the star. Isaiah 11:1, 10 speaks of the root of Jesse. Deuteronomy 4:2 and 12:32 warn against adding to or taking from God's word. 1 Corinthians 16:22 contains the prayer Maranatha. Matthew 24:42-44 and 25:13 call us to watchfulness. Titus 2:13 speaks of waiting for the blessed hope. John 14:3 and Acts 1:11 promise Christ's return. 2 Timothy 4:8 speaks of loving his appearing. Genesis 1:1 begins the story.

STEP 6

Application

Make Day 895's final prayer part of your daily rhythm: "Come, Lord Jesus." Say it at the end of the day.

If you are thirsty, accept the invitation of verse 17. If someone you know is thirsty, extend it to them.

Re-commit to receive the Bible as God's complete word, neither adding to it nor taking from it, and to keep reading it.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Worship Jesus as the Alpha and the Omega.
- Pray, "Come, Lord Jesus," and tell him what you want when he comes.
- Ask him to keep you faithful to his word.

THE READING

Today's reading

No new reading today. Read Revelation 22:20-21 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the week in review, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

Memory Verse for the Week

REVELATION 22:20-21

REST

Meditation

These are the last words of the Bible, and they are a prayer. After sixty-six books, after every promise, warning, and story, the book ends with a longing: "Come, Lord Jesus!"

The words belong to Jesus first: "Surely I am coming soon." He promises. And then the church answers: "Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!" We do not just wait; we long. This is not a nervous prayer but the prayer of a bride for her husband.

And then, a benediction: "The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all." The Bible, which opens with creation, ends with grace. We have no claim on God but this: the unearned favor of the Lord Jesus. Everything depends on it.

Pray these words today, and let your longing for his return increase. Come, Lord Jesus.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This week you reached the climax of Revelation. Chapters 17 and 18 showed the fall of Babylon, the world system drunk with the blood of the saints, and the call to come out of her. Chapter 19 gave the marriage supper of the Lamb and the rider on the white horse, Faithful and True, with the word of God as his sword. Chapter 20 showed Satan bound, the thousand years (understood in three main ways), and the great white throne. On Day 892, we paused on the final judgment, in which Christ judges with justice, and those in him are not condemned. Chapters 21 and 22 showed the new heavens and new earth, with God dwelling with his people, no more tears, the tree of life, the river, and the sight of his face. On Day 894, we paused on the hope of a renewed creation. And Revelation 22:6-21 gave the final words of the Bible: Jesus is coming soon, the thirsty may take the water of life, and the church prays, "Come, Lord Jesus."

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Revelation 18 shows Babylon's wealth built partly on trafficking in human lives. What do you see in your own culture or economy that resembles this, and what is one concrete thing you can do about it?

Revelation 21:3-4 promises God's dwelling with us, no more tears, and no more death. Which of these promises means the most to you today, and who in your life needs to hear it?

The Bible ends with the prayer, "Come, Lord Jesus!" Do you pray this, and mean it? What are the things that make you hold on to this world, and what would it look like to long for his coming more?

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank Jesus for rest and for the hope of his return.

Pray, "Come, Lord Jesus."

Ask him to prepare you.

DAY 897 · WEEK 129

Psalm 72:18-19

Blessed be the LORD; his glory fills the earth

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 2 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 72 in full, giving special attention to the closing doxology in verses 18 and 19. This is a prayer for the king, and it closes the second book of the Psalter. Notice how a prayer for a human king grows into a prayer for the whole earth to be filled with God's glory.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

Psalm 72 is a psalm "of Solomon," or perhaps for Solomon, a prayer that the king would rule with God's justice and bring blessing to the nations. It ends Book II of the Psalter with a doxology (vv. 18-19) and a note: "The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended." The psalm describes a king far greater than any Israel ever had: one whose reign extends from sea to sea, whose name endures forever, and through whom all nations are blessed. This is the promise to Abraham (Genesis 12:3) and to David (2 Samuel 7), and the New Testament sees its fulfillment in Jesus. In Revelation, kings do bring their glory into the city (21:24), and the whole earth is filled with the glory of the Lord.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Give the king your justice, O God, and your righteousness to the royal son!" (v. 1).
2. "May he defend the cause of the poor of the people, give deliverance to the children of the needy, and crush the oppressor!" (v. 4).
3. "May he have dominion from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the earth!" (v. 8).
4. "May all kings fall down before him, all nations serve him!" (v. 11).
5. "May people be blessed in him, all nations call him blessed!" (v. 17).

6. “Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who alone does wondrous things” (v. 18).
7. “Blessed be his glorious name forever; may the whole earth be filled with his glory! Amen and Amen!” (v. 19).
8. “The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended” (v. 20).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The psalm begins as a prayer for the king: “Give the king your justice, O God, and your righteousness to the royal son!” The test of a good king is whether he rules with God’s justice. Specifically, “May he defend the cause of the poor of the people, give deliverance to the children of the needy, and crush the oppressor!” The poor are the king’s first concern. Justice for the vulnerable is central to a godly government and to the reign of Christ.

The prayer then pictures a reign of peace and abundance: “May the mountains bear prosperity for the people, and the hills, in righteousness!” The king will be like rain on mown grass, like showers that water the earth. “In his days may the righteous flourish, and peace abound, till the moon be no more!” His rule extends “from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the earth.” Foreign kings bring tribute: “May the kings of Tarshish and of the isles render him tribute; may the kings of Sheba and Seba bring gifts! May all kings fall down before him, all nations serve him!” This echoes the gifts of the wise men to the infant Christ and the vision of the nations bringing their glory into the New Jerusalem. The reason is again compassion: “For he delivers the needy when he calls, the poor and him who has no helper. He has pity on the weak and the needy, and saves the lives of the needy.” He redeems their lives from oppression and violence, and “precious is their blood in his sight.”

The prayer reaches its high point in verse 17: “May his name endure forever, his fame continue as long as the sun! May people be blessed in him, all nations call him blessed!” This is an echo of the Abrahamic promise: “in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed” (Genesis 12:3). No merely human king could fulfill this. Solomon’s reign had a golden beginning but ended in compromise, and the kings after him fell. The psalm remained a prayer for a king who would fulfill it. Jesus is that King. He defends the poor, saves the needy, and brings blessing to all nations. “Behold, something greater than Solomon is here” (Matthew 12:42).

The psalm ends with a doxology that closes Book II: “Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel, who alone does wondrous things. Blessed be his glorious name forever; may the whole earth be filled with his glory! Amen and Amen!” The prayer for the king becomes a prayer for God’s glory over the whole earth. This is the goal of everything: not the king’s honor but the glory of God. The doxology answers Numbers 14:21 and anticipates Habakkuk 2:14. And then the note, “The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended.” The prayers of a man end, but the prayer for God's kingdom goes on in the prayer Jesus taught us: "Your kingdom come, your will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." It will be answered fully in the new creation, when the whole earth is filled with his glory.

STEP 5

Connection

2 Samuel 7:12-16 and Genesis 12:1-3 are the promises behind the psalm. 1 Kings 3-10 shows Solomon's reign. Matthew 2:1-12 shows kings bringing gifts to Jesus. Matthew 12:42 and Luke 1:32-33 declare Jesus greater than Solomon. Isaiah 11:1-9 and 9:6-7 describe the righteous king. Numbers 14:21 and Habakkuk 2:14 speak of the earth filled with God's glory. Matthew 6:10 is the prayer for his kingdom to come. Psalm 41:13, 89:52, and 106:48 are the other doxologies closing the books of the Psalter. Revelation 5:9-14, 11:15, and 21:24-26 show the nations and kings worshiping.

STEP 6

Application

Pray Matthew 6:10 slowly: your kingdom come, your will be done. Name one place where you long to see his justice.

Ask how you can "defend the cause of the poor" in a practical way this month through your time, giving, or voice.

End your day with verse 19: "Blessed be his glorious name forever; may the whole earth be filled with his glory! Amen and Amen!"

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Bless the LORD who alone does wondrous things.
- Thank him for the true King, Jesus.
- Ask him to fill the earth with his glory.

DAY 898 · WEEK 129

Psalm 150

Let everything that has breath praise the LORD, Amen

Year 2 · Unit 25 · Psalm · 6 verses

THE READING

Read the passage

Read Psalm 150 again, slowly and aloud. You first met it as trumpets in Revelation 8 to 11. Now read it as the last psalm of the Psalter, the last chapter of your journey, and a summary of what the whole Bible is for.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

STEP 2

Setting the Scene

This is the second time in this unit that we read Psalm 150, and we are glad to return to it. The first time, it prepared us for the trumpets of judgment, and the last time, it is a closing word: the whole Psalter, with all its tears and joys, ends in praise. The same is true of the Bible's whole story. After every lament, every warning, and every war, the last word is "Hallelujah." In Revelation, the word "Hallelujah" (which means "Praise the LORD") appears in 19:1-6, the only place in the New Testament where it is found.

STEP 3

Observation

1. "Praise the LORD! Praise God in his sanctuary" (v. 1).
2. "Praise him in his mighty heavens!" (v. 1).
3. "Praise him according to his excellent greatness!" (v. 2).
4. "Praise him with lute and harp!" (v. 3).
5. "Praise him with strings and pipe!" (v. 4).
6. "Praise him with loud clashing cymbals!" (v. 5).
7. "Let everything that has breath praise the LORD!" (v. 6).
8. "Praise the LORD!" (v. 6).

STEP 4

Interpretation

The whole book of Psalms is a conversation between God's people and God. It contains songs of trust and complaint, history and prophecy, kings and exiles. Its structure follows a path. The first Psalm begins with the blessed man who delights in God's law, and the book ends with the entire creation breathing praise. It begins with a person and ends with the cosmos. It begins with study and ends with song.

The five verses of the psalm are a final summary of all the praise of the Psalter. Praise is to be given in "his sanctuary" and in "his mighty heavens"; in the earthly place of worship and in the heavenly one. We praise him "for his mighty deeds," a summary of what he has done in creation, the exodus, the covenant, the exile and return, and finally in Christ. We praise him "according to his excellent greatness," because who he is exceeds anything we can say. The music is all the instruments of Israel's worship. Whether we have a trained voice or a tin ear, we can join the praise. And then the invitation to everyone: "Let everything that has breath praise the LORD!" The Hebrew word for breath (neshamah) is the word used in Genesis 2:7, when God breathed into Adam the breath of life. Every breath is a gift, and every breath is an invitation to praise.

Now we read it as the end of a journey. For 900 days, we have traveled through the story of God, from creation to new creation. We have seen the creation, the fall, the call of Abraham, the exodus, the law, the kings, the exile, the return, the coming of Christ, the cross, the resurrection, the birth of the church, the letters to the churches, and the vision of the end. In all of it, we have seen a God who keeps his covenant. The story ends not in despair but in praise. And the psalm that ends the Psalter is a template for the end of our lives: whatever our circumstances, we end in praise. And in Revelation 19, the multitude shouts "Hallelujah" four times. This is the sound of the new creation, and we can begin practicing it now.

"Let everything that has breath praise the LORD! Praise the LORD!" In the Hebrew, the last word of the Psalter is Hallelujah. Say it with the church of every age. Hallelujah.

STEP 5

Connection

Genesis 2:7 mentions the breath of life. Psalm 1 is the opening of the Psalter. Psalm 145-149 are the other closing psalms of praise. Revelation 19:1-6 has the four Hallelujahs of the great multitude. Revelation 5:11-14 shows the whole creation praising. Ephesians 5:18-20 and Colossians 3:16-17 call for praise in the church. Hebrews 13:15 says to continually offer a sacrifice of praise. Philippians 2:10-11 sees every tongue confessing. Isaiah 43:21 says God formed his people to declare his praise. 1 Peter 2:9 says we are called to proclaim his excellencies. Romans 11:36 gives a doxology: from him and through him and to him are all things.

STEP 6

Application

Take a moment to look back at what God has done in your life over these years. Name three things that stand out, and thank him.

Sing or speak Psalm 150 aloud, and finish with a loud "Hallelujah."

Let each breath today be a reminder that you were made to praise the LORD.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

- Praise the LORD in your own words, for his mighty deeds.
- Thank him for what he has done over these days.
- Let everything that has breath praise him.

> REVELATION 21:3-4

REST

Meditation

This is the memory verse for the final unit, and the destination of the whole Bible. Notice how it begins: "Behold." It is a call to look. After all of history, John is told to look at what God has done.

"The dwelling place of God is with man." The Hebrew Scriptures speak of God's tabernacle, the glory in the temple, and the promise "I will be their God, and they shall be my people." The story began in a garden, where God walked with Adam and Eve. Sin separated us. Christ came, "and the Word became flesh and dwelt among us" (John 1:14). And now God dwells with us forever.

Then the promise: "He will wipe away every tear." God personally wipes tears. It is the picture of a tender Father. "Death shall be no more, neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore, for the former things have passed away." Every grief that you carry will be answered.

Say this verse to yourself in the hardest moments, and say it to someone who is grieving. It is not wishful thinking. It is a promise from the one who said, "Behold, I am making all things new."

LOOK BACK

Unit Recap

This final unit took us through the book of Revelation, in which all of God's covenant promises find their Yes in Christ. In chapters 1 to 3, we saw the risen Christ among his churches, and his letters calling them to love, faithfulness, and repentance. In chapters 4 and 5, we entered the throne room, where the Lion of Judah is a Lamb who was slain, worthy to open the scroll of history. The seals, trumpets, and bowls showed God's judgment on a rebellious world and the church's call to endure, with the sealed multitude from every nation. Chapters 12 and 13 unmasked the dragon and the beasts, and showed that the saints conquer by the blood of the Lamb, by the word of their testimony, and by not loving their lives even unto death. Chapters 17 to 20 showed the fall of Babylon, the marriage supper of the Lamb, Christ's return, the defeat of Satan, and the final judgment. Chapters 21 and 22 revealed the new heavens and new earth, with God dwelling with his people, the river and tree of life, and the final invitation, "Come." Psalms 1, 19, 29, 141, 150, 148, 2, 46, 93, 97, and 72 provided songs along the way: the two ways, creation and word, the voice of the LORD, prayers as incense, praise, and the reign of God. The doctrinal pauses covered the final judgment and the new creation.

REFLECT

Review Questions

How does Revelation draw on imagery from every major section of the Old Testament?

Choose two images from Revelation (for example, the tree of life, the plagues, or the temple) and trace where they come from in the Old Testament.

What does it mean that the Lamb who was slain holds the scroll of history?

In your own words, explain how Christ's death is the key to history, and how this might change the way you see current events.

How do Revelation 21 and 22 fulfill the promises of Genesis 1 and 2?

List three things from the Garden of Eden that return in the new creation, and say what each tells you about God's purpose.

Looking back: where do you see God's covenant faithfulness from beginning to end?

Name three moments in the Bible's story where God kept his promises, and one moment in your own life where you have seen his faithfulness.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God that he will dwell with you and wipe away every tear.

Tell him what you have seen of the Lamb in Revelation.

Ask him to keep the unit verse before you.

THE READING

Today's reading

This is the last day of the plan. There is no new reading today. Read 2 Corinthians 1:20 slowly, several times, and try to say it from memory. Then read the meditation and the look back below, and choose one of the three questions to write about, pray over, or share with someone.

Read from your own Bible. The ESV is recommended.

MEMORY

Memory Verse for the Week

"For all the promises of God find their Yes in him. That is why it is through him that we utter our Amen to God for his glory."

2 CORINTHIANS 1:20

REST

Meditation

You have made it to the end of 900 days. That is a remarkable thing, and God gets the glory. Whether you read every day or caught up after missing weeks, you have been through the whole Bible and the heart of the Christian faith.

This verse is a good summary of what you have read. "All the promises of God find their Yes in him." In Genesis, God promised a seed who would crush the serpent. He promised Abraham a blessing for all nations. He promised David a son who would reign forever. He promised a new covenant, forgiveness, a new heart, his Spirit, and a new creation. Every promise, big or small, finds its Yes in Jesus Christ.

"That is why it is through him that we utter our Amen to God for his glory." Because the promises are fulfilled in Christ, we can say "Amen," meaning "so be it, we trust you," to everything God says. The Bible began with God speaking and ends with the church saying

“Amen.”

You do not finish the Bible; it keeps reading you. This is a place to begin, not an end. Where do you go from here? Keep reading, and read the Bible again, now that you know the story. Pick a book and read it slowly, with a study Bible or commentary. Stay rooted in a local church, where you can hear the word preached, receive the Lord’s Supper, and be loved and corrected. Pray the Psalms. Memorize Scripture. Teach someone else what you have learned. Start again at Day 1 with a friend. And hold on to Christ: he is the Yes to every promise, and he will hold on to you.

LOOK BACK

The Week in Review

This final stretch of the plan took you from the fall of Babylon to the new Jerusalem. You read of the marriage supper of the Lamb, the rider on the white horse, the binding of Satan, the great white throne, the new heavens and new earth, and the last words of the Bible: “Surely I am coming soon. Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!” Psalm 72 prayed for the true King through whom all nations will be blessed, and Psalm 150 ended the Psalter with praise. Day 899 reviewed the whole of Revelation. And now you have finished the whole plan: the story of creation, fall, redemption, and new creation, told across the Old Testament, the Gospels, Acts, the letters, and Revelation, with the key doctrines of the Christian faith along the way. From Genesis 1:1 to Revelation 22:21, the Bible tells one story, whose center is Jesus Christ. God has been faithful from beginning to end.

REFLECT

Questions for Reflection

Looking back over the 900 days, what is one truth about God that you understand better now than when you began? How has it changed the way you pray, live, or think?

Paul says that all the promises of God find their Yes in Christ. Which promise, from anywhere in the Bible, has become most precious to you, and how do you see it fulfilled in Jesus?

What is one concrete step you will take in the next month to keep growing: a reading habit, a church community, a person to disciple or be discipled by? Write it down and tell someone.

PRAY

Respond in Prayer

Talk to God in your own words. You might:

Thank God for these 900 days in his word, naming something he has done in you.

Thank him that every promise finds its yes in Jesus.

Ask him to keep you reading, praying, and following for the rest of your life.

How to Use This Plan

A short guide for new readers

This plan walks you through the whole Bible in 900 days, about two and a half years, and stops along the way to teach you the main beliefs of the Christian faith and how to study Scripture for yourself. You do not need any background. You need a Bible, a quiet fifteen to twenty-five minutes, and a willingness to keep coming back.

The Shape of the Plan

The plan has two halves. Year 1, Promise and Shadow, covers Units 1 to 14 and follows the story from creation through the Old Testament and the promises God makes. Year 2, Fulfillment, covers Units 15 to 25 and follows Jesus, the church, and the hope of the new creation. Each unit has its own document with a title page, a contents list, and one entry for every day.

Weeks run from Sunday to Saturday. Six days of reading are followed by a Sabbath rest on Saturday, so every seventh day is lighter. The Weekly Checklist in this appendix lists all 129 weeks so you can see where you are and mark your progress.

A Normal Day

Each reading day follows the same pattern, so you always know what to expect.

- Reading: the passage for the day. Read it slowly, and aloud if you can.
- Setting the Scene: who wrote this, who it was written to, and what is going on.
- Observation: questions that help you notice what the text actually says.
- Interpretation: what the passage means in its own setting.
- Connection: how the passage points to Jesus and fits the whole Bible.
- Application: what to believe, change, or do in response.
- Prayer: two or three prompts to help you respond to God in your own words. The week's memory verse closes each day as a reminder.

Read the passage first, then the guide. If you have more time, read the passage twice before you open the commentary. The guide is there to help you see the text, not to replace it.

Special Days

Sabbath days come every Saturday. You do not read a new passage. You meditate on the memory verse, look back over the week, and answer three reflection questions, the middle one always about Christ. Treat the day as rest, not catch-up.

Doctrinal pauses interrupt the story to study one teaching of the faith, such as the Trinity or justification. They carry an extra section called the Doctrinal Focus. Appendix I lists all 44.

Unit reviews close each unit. They recap what you learned, bring back the unit anchor verse, and ask questions that help it stick. Three reviews fall on a Saturday and combine the review with the Sabbath.

Memory Verses

Each unit has one anchor verse. You do not have to memorize it perfectly. Read it each Saturday, say it aloud a few times, and let it settle. All 25 are listed in Appendix I, together with each week's Sabbath verse.

If You Fall Behind

You will. Everyone does. Do not try to read three days at once. Pick up at the next day and keep going. The checklist is a record, not a grade. If you miss a Sabbath, skip it and move on. If you miss a long stretch, start again at the beginning of the current unit and read at a gentler pace. A plan you finish slowly is better than one you abandon.

Studying the Bible on Your Own

The daily guides use a simple three-part method you can use anywhere in the Bible.

- Observe: what does the text say? Note who, what, where, when, and the words that repeat.
- Interpret: what did it mean to its first readers? Read the verses around it before you decide.
- Apply: what does it call me to believe, love, or do?

Add one more question every time: where is Christ in this passage? Jesus taught that the whole Bible speaks of him (Luke 24:27). The question will not always have a quick answer, but asking it will change how you read.

Reading With Others

This plan works well in a small group, a family, or with one friend. Agree on a day each week, usually the Sabbath, to talk about the week. Share one thing you noticed, one thing you did not understand, and one way you will respond. Write your questions down. Bring the hard ones to a pastor or a mature Christian. Confusion is a normal part of learning.

Bible Translation

The guides quote and refer to the English Standard Version (ESV), but any faithful translation will work. They give references and brief quotations, but they do not print the full passage, so keep your Bible open.

What Else Is in This Appendix

- An Author's Note: where the plan comes from and where its author stands.
- The Plan at a Glance: every unit with its days and weeks.
- Memory Verses in Order: every Sabbath verse and unit verse, in the order you meet them.
- Doctrinal Pauses: an index of the 44 teaching days.
- The Psalms in This Plan: why the Psalms are woven through all 900 days.
- Weekly Checklist: all 129 weeks, Sunday to Saturday.
- Glossary: short definitions of the key terms used in the plan.

An Author's Note

Where this plan comes from, and what you should know before you trust it

This plan is meant for a person in the first years of following Jesus. It walks through the whole Bible in 900 days, stops now and then to teach the beliefs of the Christian faith, and tries to show you how to read Scripture for yourself. The name is a humble one. A catechism is a tool for teaching new believers what the church believes, and that is the job I hope this plan does.

Before you spend two and a half years with it, you should know who wrote it and where he is standing. Every teacher stands somewhere, and a guide that pretends to stand nowhere is not being honest with you.

Where I Am Coming From

I come from the evangelical tradition, with Reformed instincts. I believe the Bible is the word of God, true and trustworthy from beginning to end. I believe in one God in three persons, in the full deity and full humanity of Jesus, in his death in the place of sinners and his bodily resurrection, and in salvation by grace alone through faith alone in Christ alone. My teaching leans toward the sovereignty of God in salvation and the sufficiency of Christ, and I do not want to hide that.

The framework behind the plan is called progressive covenantalism, which I learned chiefly from Peter Gentry and Stephen Wellum in their book Kingdom through Covenant. The idea is simple to state. The Bible tells one story, and God tells it through a series of covenants: with creation and Adam, with Noah, with Abraham, with Israel at Sinai, with David, and finally the new covenant in Christ. Each covenant builds on the one before it and points ahead to the next. Jesus fulfills them all.

That idea explains the shape of the plan. Year 1, Promise and Shadow, moves through the covenants one at a time. Year 2, Fulfillment, follows Jesus, the church, and the new creation. Many of the units carry the names of covenants. The Connection section of a daily guide asks how a passage leads to Christ. The middle question on each Sabbath day is always about him. These are choices that come straight from the framework.

Not every Christian reads the Bible this way. Some hold that God has one covenant of grace unfolding through history, with Israel and the church closely joined. Others distinguish sharply between God's purposes for Israel and for the church. Those traditions have produced faithful, Bible-loving people, and they will sometimes read a passage differently than I do. Where it matters I have tried to say so. Where I have not, you may need to notice it yourself.

I have also tried to avoid the private vocabulary of any one camp. The goal is accessible depth: enough substance to feed a growing believer, without requiring you to join a side before you can read a page.

Decisions You Should Know About

A plan like this makes hundreds of choices on the reader's behalf. Most are invisible. These are the ones I think you should see.

The story is organized by covenant. The units follow the covenants, not the order of the books in your Bible. That is a way of reading the Bible, not the only way.

The reading order is a decision. The plan is not in canonical order. Job sits between Abraham and the Exodus, following the common view that its setting is patriarchal, though the book does not date itself and scholars differ. The Psalms are woven through the whole plan. The Wisdom books come after David and Solomon. The Gospels are read in the order Matthew, Luke, John, and Mark. Hebrews comes before the General Epistles and Revelation. Other orders are reasonable, and where the date or authorship of a book is debated, Appendix II says so.

Christ is the center of every part. Jesus taught that the Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms all speak of him (Luke 24:44). I have read the Old Testament that way throughout. Some readers will feel that I find Christ in places where the original author may not have seen him clearly. I have tried to lean on how the New Testament itself reads the Old, and to be modest where it does not.

The doctrinal pauses reflect my judgment. The 44 doctrinal days cover what I think a new believer most needs, plus the teachings the story itself raises. Where Christians have long agreed, I state it plainly. Where faithful Christians differ, as with the mode and subjects of baptism, I try to describe the positions fairly and say that they differ. I will not always have kept my own view out of it.

The weekly rhythm is built into the calendar. Six days of reading are followed by a day of rest, and the unit boundaries bend around that rhythm. The rest day falls on Saturday only because the plan begins on a Sunday. How Christians should keep the Sabbath or the Lord's Day is a question on which they differ, and the plan does not settle it.

Every guide is a selection. Each daily guide is short, and it leaves out far more than it includes. Choosing what to notice in a passage is already interpretation. Another teacher would choose differently, and the passage is always richer than the guide.

The translation is the English Standard Version. The guides refer to the ESV. Any faithful translation will serve you, and reading in more than one is a good habit.

What I Hold Firmly and What I Hold Loosely

It would be a mistake to treat every sentence in this plan as equally certain. I hold some things with my whole weight and others with an open hand.

I hold these firmly, because the church has confessed them from the beginning and the Bible is plain about them:

- The Scriptures are the word of God and our final authority.
- There is one God, eternally Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.
- Jesus is fully God and fully man, who died for sinners and rose bodily from the dead.
- We are saved by grace through faith in Christ, not by our own works.
- Jesus will return, and the dead will be raised.

I hold these more loosely, because faithful Christians have disagreed about them and I may be wrong:

- How the covenants relate Israel and the church in every detail.
- The timing and shape of the end of the age.
- The mode and subjects of baptism, and how the Sabbath carries over.
- The date, authorship, and setting of some of the books of the Bible.
- The details of church government and practice.

A Flawed Teacher and a Faithful Word

I am wholeheartedly persuaded that God's word is true. I am not persuaded that I have understood all of it rightly. The daily guides are not Scripture. They are the work of one flawed person, still learning, trying to explain a book that is far greater than he is. I will have made mistakes of fact, of emphasis, and of judgment, and some of them I cannot see.

Because this plan is written to shape what you believe, I owe you a plain warning. A reader who trusts the guide more than the text has been led astray, however good the guide. If anything here disagrees with the passage you are reading, trust the passage. Luke praises the believers in Berea because they received the word eagerly and examined the Scriptures daily to see if what Paul said was so (Acts 17:11). Please read this plan the same way.

Read it with other people. Bring your questions and your disagreements to your own pastor or a mature Christian who knows you. They are in a better position than I am to correct me, and to help you where my tradition and yours part ways. Where I have gotten something wrong, I would rather be corrected than repeated.

This plan stands on the work of many teachers I could never list, whose books, sermons, and commentaries taught me to read the Bible. Whatever is good in it belongs to them and to the Lord who gave them. Whatever is mistaken is mine.

My hope is not that you will agree with me. It is that you will love the Bible, know Jesus, and become a person who can open the Scriptures and read them for yourself. I pray what the psalmist prayed: Open my eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of your law (Psalm 119:18).

WEEK 45 · DAY 315

Psalm 119:105 "Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path."

WEEK 46 · DAY 322

Proverbs 31:30 "Charm is deceitful, and beauty is vain, but a woman who fears the LORD is to be praised."

WEEK 47 · DAY 329

Ecclesiastes 12:13 "The end of the matter; all has been heard. Fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 333

Proverbs 3:5-6 "Trust in the LORD with all your heart, and do not lean on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make straight your paths."

Unit 11: The Divided Kingdom and Early Prophets

WEEK 48 · DAY 336

Proverbs 3:5-6 "Trust in the LORD with all your heart, and do not lean on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make straight your paths."

WEEK 49 · DAY 343

1 Kings 18:39 "And when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces and said, The LORD, he is God; the LORD, he is God."

WEEK 50 · DAY 350

2 Kings 6:16 "Do not fear, for those who are with us are more than those who are with them."

WEEK 51 · DAY 357

Amos 5:24 "But let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream."

WEEK 52 · DAY 364

Hosea 2:19 "And I will betroth you to me forever. I will betroth you to me in righteousness and in justice, in steadfast love and in mercy."

WEEK 53 · DAY 371

Jonah 2:9 "But I with the voice of thanksgiving will sacrifice to you; what I have vowed I will pay. Salvation belongs to the LORD!"

UNIT VERSE · DAY 377

Hosea 6:6 "For I desire steadfast love and not sacrifice, the knowledge of God rather than burnt offerings."

WEEK 54 · DAY 378

Micah 6:8 "He has told you, O man, what is good; and what does the LORD require of you but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with your God?"

Unit 12: Hezekiah, Isaiah and the Assyrian Crisis

WEEK 55 · DAY 385

Isaiah 7:14 "Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."

WEEK 56 · DAY 392

Isaiah 9:6 "For to us a child is born, to us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace."

WEEK 57 · DAY 399

Isaiah 26:3 "You keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on you, because he trusts in you."

WEEK 58 · DAY 406

Isaiah 40:31 "But they who wait for the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

WEEK 59 · DAY 413

Isaiah 53:5 "But he was pierced for our transgressions; he was crushed for our iniquities; upon him was the chastisement that brought us peace, and with his wounds we are healed."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 420

Isaiah 6:3 "Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of hosts; the whole earth is full of his glory!"

Unit 13: Exile: Jeremiah, Lamentations, Ezekiel, Daniel

WEEK 61 · DAY 427

Jeremiah 2:13 "For my people have committed two evils: they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed out cisterns for themselves, broken cisterns that can hold no water."

WEEK 62 · DAY 434

Jeremiah 17:7-8 "Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD, whose trust is the LORD. He is like a tree planted by water, that sends out its roots by the stream, and does not fear when heat comes."

WEEK 63 · DAY 441

Jeremiah 29:11 "For I know the plans I have for you, declares the LORD, plans for welfare and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope."

WEEK 64 · DAY 448

Jeremiah 31:3 "I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you."

WEEK 65 · DAY 455

Jeremiah 33:3 "Call to me and I will answer you, and will tell you great and hidden things that you have not known."

WEEK 66 · DAY 462

Lamentations 3:22-23 "The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is your faithfulness."

WEEK 67 · DAY 469

Psalm 73:26 "My flesh and my heart may fail, but God is the strength of my heart and my portion forever."

WEEK 68 · DAY 476

Ezekiel 18:32 "For I have no pleasure in the death of anyone, declares the Lord GOD; so turn, and live."

WEEK 69 · DAY 483

Ezekiel 36:26 "And I will give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will put within you. And I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh."

WEEK 70 · DAY 490

Daniel 3:17-18 "If this be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods or worship the golden image that you have set up."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 495

Jeremiah 31:33 "I will put my law within them, and I will write it on their hearts. And I will be their God, and they shall be my people."

Unit 14: The Return and the Chronicles Perspective

WEEK 71 · DAY 497

Ezra 3:11 "And they sang responsively, praising and giving thanks to the LORD, For he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever toward Israel."

WEEK 72 · DAY 504

Ezra 7:10 "For Ezra had set his heart to study the Law of the LORD, and to do it and to teach his statutes and rules in Israel."

WEEK 73 · DAY 511

WEEK 86 · DAY 602

Matthew 28:19-20 "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you. And behold, I am with you always, to the end of the age."

Unit 16: The New Covenant Inaugurated: Luke

WEEK 87 · DAY 609

Luke 2:11 "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord."

WEEK 88 · DAY 616

Luke 9:23 "If anyone would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me."

WEEK 89 · DAY 623

Luke 15:7 "Just so, I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who need no repentance."

WEEK 90 · DAY 630

Luke 22:19 "This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 633

Luke 19:10 "For the Son of Man came to seek and to save the lost."

Unit 17: The New Covenant Inaugurated: John

WEEK 91 · DAY 637

John 1:14 "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we have seen his glory, glory as of the only Son from the Father, full of grace and truth."

WEEK 92 · DAY 644

John 4:24 "God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth."

WEEK 93 · DAY 651

John 8:12 "I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life."

WEEK 94 · DAY 658

John 14:6 "I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 664

John 3:16 "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life."

WEEK 95 · DAY 665

John 20:31 "But these are written so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name."

Unit 18: The New Covenant Inaugurated: Mark

WEEK 96 · DAY 672

Mark 1:15 "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe in the gospel."

WEEK 97 · DAY 679

Mark 9:23 "And Jesus said to him, If you can! All things are possible for one who believes."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 686

Mark 10:45 "For even the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many."

Unit 19: The New Covenant Applied: Acts

WEEK 99 · DAY 693

Acts 2:42 "And they devoted themselves to the apostles' teaching and the fellowship, to the breaking of bread and the prayers."

WEEK 100 · DAY 700

Acts 4:12 "And there is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved."

WEEK 101 · DAY 707

Acts 10:43 "To him all the prophets bear witness that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name."

WEEK 102 · DAY 714

Acts 16:31 "Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household."

WEEK 103 · DAY 721

Acts 20:24 "But I do not account my life of any value nor as precious to myself, if only I may finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 724

Acts 1:8 "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth."

Unit 20: The New Covenant Explained: Romans

WEEK 104 · DAY 728

Romans 1:16 "For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek."

WEEK 105 · DAY 735

Romans 3:23-24 "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and are justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus."

WEEK 106 · DAY 742

Romans 5:8 "But God shows his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us."

WEEK 107 · DAY 749

Romans 10:9 "Because, if you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 752

Romans 8:1 "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus."

Unit 21: Law, Gospel and Church Life: Galatians, Corinthians

WEEK 108 · DAY 756

Galatians 4:4-5 "But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons."

WEEK 109 · DAY 763

1 Corinthians 1:18 "For the word of the cross is folly to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God."

WEEK 110 · DAY 770

1 Corinthians 13:13 "So now faith, hope, and love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

WEEK 111 · DAY 777

1 Corinthians 15:3-4 "For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received: that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the Scriptures, that he was buried, that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 783

Galatians 2:20 "I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me."

WEEK 112 · DAY 784

2 Corinthians 12:9 "My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness."

Unit 22: In Christ: Prison and Pastoral Epistles

WEEK 113 · DAY 791

Ephesians 2:8-9 "For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God, not a result of works, so that no one may boast."

WEEK 114 · DAY 798

Philippians 4:6-7 "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus."

WEEK 115 · DAY 805

Colossians 3:17 "And whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him."

WEEK 116 · DAY 812

1 Thessalonians 5:16-18 "Rejoice always, pray without ceasing, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 818

Colossians 1:15-16 "He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation. For by him all things were created, in heaven and on earth."

WEEK 117 · DAY 819

2 Timothy 3:16-17 "All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, equipped for every good work."

Unit 23: The Better Covenant: Hebrews

WEEK 118 · DAY 826

Hebrews 1:3 "He is the radiance of the glory of God and the exact imprint of his nature, and he upholds the universe by the word of his power. After making purification for sins, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high."

WEEK 119 · DAY 833

Hebrews 12:1-2 "Let us run with endurance the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus, the founder and perfecter of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is seated at the right hand of the throne of God."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 836

Hebrews 4:15-16 "For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who in every respect has been tempted as we are, yet without sin. Let us then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need."

Unit 24: Faith Lived Out: General Epistles

WEEK 120 · DAY 840

James 1:22 "But be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves."

WEEK 121 · DAY 847

1 Peter 1:3-4 "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! According to his great mercy, he has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you."

WEEK 122 · DAY 854

2 Peter 3:18 "But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be the glory both now and to the day of eternity. Amen."

WEEK 123 · DAY 861

1 John 1:9 "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 865

1 John 4:19 "We love because he first loved us."

Unit 25: The New Covenant Consummated: Revelation

WEEK 124 · DAY 868

Revelation 1:17-18 "Fear not, I am the first and the last, and the living one. I died, and behold I am alive forevermore, and I have the keys of Death and Hades."

WEEK 125 · DAY 875

Revelation 5:12 "Worthy is the Lamb who was slain, to receive power and wealth and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing!"

WEEK 126 · DAY 882

Revelation 12:11 "And they have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, for they loved not their lives even unto death."

WEEK 127 · DAY 889

Revelation 15:3-4 "Great and amazing are your deeds, O Lord God the Almighty! Just and true are your ways, O King of the nations! Who will not fear, O Lord, and glorify your name? For you alone are holy."

WEEK 128 · DAY 896

Revelation 22:20-21 "He who testifies to these things says, Surely I am coming soon. Amen. Come, Lord Jesus! The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen."

UNIT VERSE · DAY 899

Revelation 21:3-4 "Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man. He will dwell with them, and they will be his people, and God himself will be with them as their God. He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more, neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore, for the former things have passed away."

WEEK 129 · DAY 900

2 Corinthians 1:20 "For all the promises of God find their Yes in him. That is why it is through him that we utter our Amen to God for his glory."

The Psalms in This Plan

Why one day in four is a psalm, and what each one is doing

Most of the Bible tells you what God has done. The Psalms are where God's people answer him. For that reason the plan does not save the Psalms for one stretch of the calendar. It weaves them through all 900 days, so that after a long run of narrative, law, prophecy, or letter there is a day when you stop reading about people who prayed and pray alongside them.

The Psalms earn that place. They are among the most quoted books of the Old Testament in the New. Jesus taught that the Psalms speak of him (Luke 24:44). After the Last Supper he and his disciples sang a hymn (Matthew 26:30), traditionally the Hallel, Psalms 113 to 118. On the cross he prayed the opening of Psalm 22 and, at the end, a line from Psalm 31 (Matthew 27:46; Luke 23:46). A plan meant to teach new believers how to speak to God, and not only what to believe about him, needs the Psalms at its heart.

Five Kinds of Day

The plan has five kinds of day. The Psalms are one of them, and the other four are built around them, so it helps to see how they fit together.

READING DAYS	472 days. The main readings that carry the story, the law, the prophets, and the letters.
PSALM DAYS	233 days. One psalm, or a short pair, set beside the surrounding reading.
DOCTRINAL PAUSES	44 days. A passage or two studied for one teaching of the faith.
UNIT REVIEWS	25 in all. Twenty-two take a day of their own, and three are combined with a Sabbath.
SABBATH REST	129, one for every week. In 126 the day is only rest, and in three it is combined with a review.

Psalm days are the second largest category, and on average they fall on a little under two days of each week. The plan was designed around that rhythm: narrative days carry the story forward, and psalm days let you stop and respond.

The Psalms by the Numbers

SHARE OF THE PLAN	233 of 900 days, about one in four.
COVERAGE	All 150 psalms are read at least once.

DIFFERENT READINGS	174. Long psalms are divided (Psalm 119 into several sections, and Psalms 18, 22, 78, 89, 104, and 107 into two) and 48 of the readings come back in a new setting.
PAIRED DAYS	16 days read two short psalms together.
TYPICAL LENGTH	About 16 verses (the middle reading is 13), against about 60 verses for a reading day.
YEAR 1 AND YEAR 2	158 psalm days in Year 1 and 75 in Year 2. The Old Testament is where most of the Psalms were written, and where they most often sit beside a story.
THE LARGEST BLOCK	Unit 9, The Davidic Covenant, has 31 psalm days out of 67.

What a Psalm Day Looks Like

A psalm day has the same seven parts as any reading day, so you always know what to expect. The differences are in emphasis. Because a psalm is a poem, the guide spends less time on events and more on structure, imagery, and the turns of thought. Setting the Scene gives the author, the heading, and the occasion if one is known. Observation points out repeated words, shifts of mood, and the line where a complaint becomes trust. Connection shows where the psalm points to Christ or where the New Testament quotes it. The Prayer at the end is only an echo. The psalm itself is the prayer.

The reading is short on purpose. A psalm is meant to be read aloud, slowly, and read again. You are not meant to finish it so much as stay with it.

Five Jobs the Psalms Do

They answer the story. Narrative shows what people did and what God did. The Psalms give the inner voice. After David's sin with Bathsheba and Nathan's rebuke, the plan gives you Psalms 32 and 51. After Absalom's revolt, it gives you Psalm 63. You do not only read that David repented. You hear how he prayed.

They interpret the story. Some psalms retell Israel's history as worship: Psalms 78, 105, 106, 114, 135, and 136. Others were written in the middle of a crisis you are reading about. Psalms 46, 48, and 76 stand beside Sennacherib's siege of Jerusalem. Psalm 90, attributed to Moses, comes among the first chapters of Numbers. Psalm 95 warns against a hard heart just after Israel's unbelief at Kadesh in Numbers 13 and 14. The Psalter becomes a commentary written by the people who lived it.

They carry Christ through the Old Testament. The New Testament leans on the Psalms to explain who Jesus is. In Unit 19 you read Psalms 2, 16, and 110 just after the apostles preach and pray from them. In Unit 22, you read Psalm 68, which Paul quotes in Ephesians 4 to describe the ascended Christ. In Unit 23, Psalms 95, 40, 110, and 22 sit beside Hebrews, which quotes all four. The psalm gives the first sound, and the New Testament gives the full chord.

They teach the whole range of prayer. The Psalms contain praise, thanksgiving, confession, lament, trust, wisdom, and anger. A new believer often assumes that only polite prayers are allowed. The Psalms say otherwise. They are included in all their range, and the hard ones are not skipped. Psalms 58, 109, and 137 call on God to judge those who do violence. The guide reads them honestly, as the cry of the oppressed handed over to God, and then in the light of Christ, who prayed for his enemies and who will judge the world in righteousness.

They set the pace. Heavy stretches of law, genealogy, and prophecy are followed by a short day of poetry. That keeps the plan humane. It is also a lesson in its own right: Scripture is meant to be prayed as well as studied.

How the Psalms Were Placed

No psalm was dropped in at random. Each one was set beside a reading it illuminates, using four kinds of placement.

Beside the event. The psalm is paired with the moment it most naturally belongs to, such as Psalms 32 and 51 after Nathan confronts David, or Psalm 63 after Absalom's revolt.

Beside the theme. The psalm takes up what the surrounding books are saying. Beside Job, the plan places the psalms of the suffering righteous: Psalms 10, 13, 22, 73, and 88. Beside Proverbs, it places Psalms 19 and 119 on the word of God. Beside Ecclesiastes, it places Psalms 49 and 73 on wealth and the brevity of life. Beside the Song of Solomon, it places Psalm 45.

Beside the quotation. When a New Testament author quotes a psalm, the plan places that psalm close by, so that you meet the original in its own setting before you see how it is used. This is one reason the Psalms cluster beside Acts and Hebrews.

At the edges. Psalms 1 and 2 are the front door of the Psalter, and they open the first run of David's psalms in Unit 9 (Days 237 and 239), return beside the Sermon on the Mount and the Transfiguration in Unit 15, and in Unit 25 as Revelation opens and as the nations rage. The last two psalm days of the plan, Days 897 and 898, are Psalm 72:18-19, the doxology that ends the second book of the Psalter, and Psalm 150, the final psalm of the Psalter itself.

Why Some Psalms Come Back

You will meet some psalms more than once, and that is on purpose. A psalm read beside a different story means something different. Psalm 2 appears four times: on Day 239 beside David's throne, on Day 586 beside the Father's voice at the Transfiguration, on Day 696 beside the prayer of the church in Acts 4, and on Day 884 as Revelation shows the nations raging. Psalm 22 appears five times: twice beside Job, then beside David, beside Isaiah's servant, and beside Hebrews. Psalm 110 appears five times, once on a doctrinal day.

When a psalm comes back, the guide gives it a new angle suited to the new setting. If you think, "I have read this before," you are right. Read it again, and notice what is different around it. Repetition is how the Bible itself teaches, and a psalm you already know is an old friend and not filler.

The Psalter's Five Books

The Psalms are gathered into five books: Psalms 1 to 41, 42 to 72, 73 to 89, 90 to 106, and 107 to 150. Each book ends with a short burst of praise called a doxology, and Psalm 150 closes the whole collection. The plan does not follow that order, because the order it follows is the order of the story. It does touch all five books, and it ends in the Psalter's own closing notes.

The Psalms Unit by Unit

UNIT	TITLE	PSALMS IN THIS UNIT
1	Creation and the Covenant of Works	Creation psalms (8, 19:1-6, 29, 33:1-9, 65, and 104) answer Genesis 1 and 2 with praise.
2	Common Grace and the Noahic Covenant	Psalms 9, 33:10-22, and 36:5-12 on God's care for the world and his judgment of the nations.
3	The Abrahamic Covenant	Psalm 105 retells the covenant with Abraham. Psalms 121, 124, 125, and 37 teach trust. Psalms 47 and 66 look to the nations.
4	Job: Suffering and Sovereignty	Psalms of the suffering righteous (10, 13, 22, 73, 88, 17, and 26) beside Job.
5	The Mosaic Covenant I: Exodus	Psalms 106, 77, 114, and 105:26-45 retell the exodus as worship.
6	The Mosaic Covenant II: Tabernacle and Holiness	Who may approach a holy God: Psalms 15, 24, 51, 50, 40, 91, and 92.
7	Wilderness: Numbers and Deuteronomy	Psalm 90 and Psalms 95, 96, 99, and 100 beside Numbers. Psalms 78 and 119 beside Deuteronomy.
8	Conquest and Settlement	God's victories and keeping in the land (Psalms 114, 46, 76), with prayers of trust and repentance (16, 23, 130).

9	The Davidic Covenant	The largest block. The psalms of David beside his story (32 and 51, 63, 34) and the royal and Zion psalms (2, 20, 21, 45, 72, 48, 84, 87, 101).
10	Wisdom Literature	Psalms 19 and 119 beside Proverbs. Psalms 49 and 73 beside Ecclesiastes. Psalm 45 beside the Song of Solomon.
11	The Divided Kingdom and Early Prophets	Laments and cries for justice (42 to 44, 58, 82, 94, 109, 74, 77) beside the prophets' protests.
12	Hezekiah, Isaiah and the Assyrian Crisis	Psalms 46, 48, 75, 76, 80, 81, and 83 beside Assyria's threat. Psalms 22, 69, and 89 beside Isaiah's servant.
13	Exile: Jeremiah, Lamentations, Ezekiel, Daniel	Laments of exile (89:38-52, 137, 79), songs of hope (85, 102, 103, 106, 107), and ten of the fifteen Songs of Ascents.
14	The Return and the Chronicles Perspective	Songs of return (85, 107, 126), the closing praise psalms (145 to 150), the reign psalms (96 to 99), and temple psalms (115, 132, 135, 136).
15	The New Covenant Inaugurated: Matthew	Psalm 1 beside the Sermon on the Mount. Psalms 146 and 147 beside the healings. Psalms 2 and 110 beside the Transfiguration. Psalm 118 in Holy Week.
16	The New Covenant Inaugurated: Luke	Praise (113, 116, 117) and trust under pressure (27, 28, 31, 41, 55) beside Luke.
17	The New Covenant Inaugurated: John	Light (36, 43), the shepherd (23), and God's nearness (139, 100, 103) beside John.
18	The New Covenant Inaugurated: Mark	Psalms read beside Mark's stories: 107:23-43 (the storm), 89 (the Davidic king), 118:19-29 (the cornerstone), and 69 (the righteous sufferer).
19	The New Covenant Applied: Acts	Psalms 2, 16, and 110, which Peter preaches from, and mission psalms (67, 87, 117, 96, 98, 100).
20	The New Covenant Explained: Romans	Psalms 32, 143, 19, and 117, which Paul quotes in Romans, with 130 and 116.
21	Law, Gospel and Church Life: Galatians, Corinthians	Psalms 33, 62, 111, 112, and 133 on trust, generosity, and unity.
22	In Christ: Prison and Pastoral Epistles	The ascended Christ (68, 110) and trust under pressure (27, 138, 139).

23	The Better Covenant: Hebrews	Psalms 95, 40, 110, and 22, which Hebrews quotes.
24	Faith Lived Out: General Epistles	Speech, integrity, and the cornerstone (12, 15, 24, 34, 118:1-18, 31:1-8) beside the General Epistles.
25	The New Covenant Consummated: Revelation	Psalms 1, 19, and 29 at the opening. Throne psalms (2, 46, 93, 97) before the bowls. Psalms 72:18-19 and 150 at the close.

Reading a Psalm Day Well

- Read the psalm aloud, and then read it again. These were written to be heard.
- Notice the turn. Many psalms begin in complaint and end in trust, and the turn is where the lesson is.
- Let a hard psalm be hard. Read to the end before you decide what it means.
- Pray the psalm in your own words after you read it, using its shape but your own life.
- Sing it if you can. Many hymns are psalms set to music.
- Ask the question this whole plan asks: where is Christ in this psalm?

REFERENCE

Glossary

Key terms used in the plan

Apostle. One sent by Jesus with his authority. The term refers chiefly to the Twelve and to Paul, whose teaching is the foundation of the church.

Atonement. What God does through the death of Jesus to deal with sin and reconcile sinners to himself.

Canon. The collection of books recognized as Scripture. The Protestant Bible has 66 books, 39 in the Old Testament and 27 in the New.

Christ. A title meaning "anointed one," the Greek form of "Messiah." It names Jesus as the promised king and savior.

Church. The people God has gathered to himself through Christ. The word describes both the whole body of believers and a local gathering of them.

Covenant. A binding relationship God establishes with his people, with promises and obligations. The Bible tells its story through covenants with Noah, Abraham, Israel at Sinai, David, and the new covenant in Christ.

Creation. God bringing everything into being from nothing by his word, and the world he made and sustains.

Election. God's choice of a people for himself according to his own purpose and grace.

Eschatology. The study of last things: Christ's return, the resurrection, judgment, and the new creation.

Exile. The removal of Israel and Judah from the promised land to Assyria and Babylon, a result of covenant unfaithfulness. It also describes humanity's separation from God.

Exodus. God's rescue of Israel from slavery in Egypt. It becomes the pattern for later salvation in the Bible.

Faith. Trust in God and his promises, resting on what he has said and done, above all in Christ.

Fall. Adam and Eve's disobedience in Eden, through which sin and death entered the world.

Gospel. The good news that Jesus lived, died for sinners, rose again, and reigns, and that all who trust him are forgiven and made new.

Grace. God's undeserved kindness toward sinners.

Holiness. God's moral perfection and his separateness from all that is common or sinful. His people are called to be holy as well.

Incarnation. The Son of God taking on a full human nature in Jesus, while remaining fully God.

Inspiration. The conviction that Scripture is God-breathed. God spoke through human authors so that their writings are his word (2 Timothy 3:16).

Justification. God declaring sinners righteous in his sight because of Christ, received by faith alone.

Kingdom of God. God's rule and reign, present in Jesus and one day to be complete when he returns.

Law. God's instruction to Israel, especially in the first five books. It can also refer to the whole of the Old Testament.

Messiah. The promised anointed king from David's line. Christians confess that Jesus is that king.

Progressive covenantalism. A way of reading the Bible that sees God's covenants unfolding step by step, each building on the last, and all reaching their fulfillment in Christ and the new covenant.

Prophecy. God's word spoken through a prophet. It includes calls to repentance and promises of what is to come, not only prediction.

Propitiation. A sacrifice that turns away God's wrath. In the New Testament it describes Christ's death in the place of sinners.

Providence. God's continuing care for and rule over all things, working all events toward his purposes.

Redemption. Rescue by payment. The Bible uses it for God freeing his people from slavery and from sin.

Repentance. Turning from sin to God, with a change of mind, heart, and life.

Resurrection. Being raised bodily from death. Christ was raised first, and believers will follow when he returns.

Sabbath. A day of rest set apart to God, rooted in creation. It points to the rest God gives his people in Christ.

Sacrifice. An offering given to God. The Old Testament sacrifices pointed ahead to the once-for-all sacrifice of Christ.

Salvation. God's rescue of his people from sin, death, and judgment, and the new life he gives.

Sanctification. The lifelong work of the Holy Spirit making believers more like Christ.

Sin. Rebellion against God, whether in what we do, fail to do, or desire.

Trinity. The belief that there is one God who eternally exists as three persons, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

Typology. The way persons, events, and institutions in the Old Testament foreshadow Christ and his work.

Wisdom. In the Bible, skill in living under God's rule, beginning with the fear of the Lord.

Worship. Honoring God for who he is, in praise, prayer, obedience, and all of life.

APPENDIX II

The Books of the Bible

Author, date, setting, theme, and a literary outline for each of the 66 books

Each entry gives a traditional, widely held starting point. Where scholars disagree about authorship or date, the entry says so briefly and does not try to settle the question. Dates are approximate. The outline follows the structure of the book itself and is not tied to the reading plan.

Law: The Pentateuch

Genesis

The book of beginnings

AUTHOR	Traditionally Moses.
DATE	Traditionally linked to the time of Moses, about 1400 to 1200 BC. The events span from creation to about 1800 BC.
SETTING	Written for Israel before entering the promised land. It tells where the world, sin, and the chosen family came from.
GENRE	Narrative, with genealogies and poetry.
THEME	God creates a good world, sin breaks it, and God begins a plan to bless all nations through Abraham's family.
KEY VERSE	Genesis 12:2-3
IN THIS PLAN	Units 1-3; Days 1-59 (32 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Genesis plants the promise of an offspring who will crush the serpent (3:15) and bless all nations through Abraham's line (12:3). Judah's line carries the scepter (49:10), and Isaac, Joseph, and the ram caught in the thicket all look ahead to the sacrifice and rescue God would provide.

HOW TO READ IT

Read Genesis as the foundation for everything after it. Watch for repeated patterns: a promise, a threat to the promise, and God's faithful rescue. The genealogies are not filler. They trace the line of promise from Adam through Abraham to the twelve tribes.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:3	Creation in six days and the Sabbath
2:4-4:26	Eden, the fall, and the first family
5:1-6:8	From Adam to Noah
6:9-9:29	Noah and the flood
10:1-11:26	The nations and Babel
11:27-25:18	Abraham
25:19-28:9	Isaac, Jacob, and Esau
28:10-36:43	Jacob
37:1-50:26	Joseph and the family in Egypt

Exodus

God rescues and dwells with his people

AUTHOR	Traditionally Moses.
DATE	Traditionally dated to the time of Moses. Scholars differ on the date of the exodus itself, often placed in the 1400s or 1200s BC.
SETTING	Israel in Egyptian slavery, then in the wilderness at Mount Sinai.
GENRE	Narrative and law.
THEME	God redeems Israel from slavery, makes a covenant with them at Sinai, and comes to live among them in the tabernacle.
KEY VERSE	Exodus 19:4-6
IN THIS PLAN	Units 5-6; Days 94-128 (22 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Moses the deliverer, the Passover lamb, the manna, the water from the rock, the tabernacle, and the priesthood all point to Jesus. John 1:14 says the Word "tabernacled" among us, and Paul calls Christ our Passover lamb (1 Corinthians 5:7).

HOW TO READ IT

Exodus has two halves: redemption (chapters 1-18) and covenant and worship (chapters 19-40). Notice that God rescues Israel before he gives the law. Obedience in this book always follows grace.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:25	Israel in Egypt and the birth of Moses
3:1-7:7	The call of Moses
7:8-11:10	The plagues
12:1-13:16	The Passover and the exodus
13:17-15:21	The crossing of the sea
15:22-18:27	From the sea to Sinai
19:1-24:18	The covenant at Sinai
25:1-31:18	Instructions for the tabernacle
32:1-34:35	The golden calf and the renewal of the covenant
35:1-40:38	Building the tabernacle

Leviticus

How a holy God lives among a sinful people

AUTHOR	Traditionally Moses.
DATE	Traditionally set at Mount Sinai in the time of Moses.
SETTING	Israel camped at Sinai, with the tabernacle newly built.
GENRE	Law, especially priestly and ritual instruction.
THEME	God is holy, sin is serious, and sacrifice and priesthood provide a way to approach him.
KEY VERSE	Leviticus 19:2
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 6; Days 129-143 (12 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Jesus is the sacrifice, the priest, and the tabernacle at once. The book of Hebrews explains that the offerings, the priesthood, and the Day of Atonement are shadows of what Christ accomplished once for all.

HOW TO READ IT

Do not read Leviticus as a list of random rules. Its question is how a holy God can live among sinners. Look for the repeated words “holy,” “clean,” “atonement,” and “forgiven.”

OUTLINE

1:1-7:38	The offerings
1:1-17	The burnt offering
8:1-10:20	The priesthood begins
8:1-36	The ordination of Aaron and his sons
9:1-24	The first sacrifices and the glory of the LORD
11:1-15:33	Clean and unclean
11:1-47	Clean and unclean animals
12:1-8	Childbirth
16:1-34	The Day of Atonement
16:1-10	Preparation and the two goats
16:11-28	The blood and the scapegoat
17:1-27:34	The call to holy living
17:1-16	The sanctity of blood
18:1-20:27	Sexual ethics, love of neighbor, and penalties

Numbers

A generation in the wilderness

AUTHOR	Traditionally Moses.
DATE	Traditionally covers about forty years after the exodus.
SETTING	Israel counted and organized at Sinai, then wandering until a new generation is ready to enter the land.
GENRE	Narrative, law, and census lists.
THEME	God stays faithful even when his people rebel, and he leads a new generation toward the promise.
KEY VERSE	Numbers 14:18
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 7; Days 150-173 (16 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The bronze serpent lifted up in the wilderness is a picture of Christ on the cross (John 3:14-15). The rock that gave water, the manna, and the cities of refuge all point forward, and Balaam's oracle speaks of a star and a scepter out of Israel (24:17).

HOW TO READ IT

Numbers alternates between narrative and lists. The census lists show God's careful care for his people. The stories show their repeated unbelief. Pay attention to how Moses intercedes and how God keeps his promise anyway.

OUTLINE

1:1-10:10	Preparing at Sinai
10:11-12:16	From Sinai to Paran
13:1-14:45	The twelve spies and the refusal to enter
15:1-19:22	Years of wandering
20:1-22:1	Toward Moab
22:2-25:18	Balaam and Baal of Peor
22:2-24:25	Balaam's oracles
26:1-36:13	A new generation
26:1-65	The second census

Deuteronomy

Moses' farewell sermons

AUTHOR	Traditionally Moses, with an account of his death added.
DATE	Traditionally set just before Israel enters the land, about 1400 to 1200 BC.
SETTING	Israel on the plains of Moab, with the Jordan ahead of them.
GENRE	Sermon and covenant renewal.
THEME	Love the Lord with all your heart, obey him, and remember what he has done.
KEY VERSE	Deuteronomy 6:4-5
IN THIS PLAN	Units 7 and 15; Days 174-599 (16 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Moses promises a prophet like himself (18:15), and the New Testament identifies him as Jesus. Jesus answered every temptation in the wilderness with words from this book, and Paul says Christ became a curse for us (Galatians 3:13, quoting Deuteronomy 21:23).

HOW TO READ IT

Deuteronomy is a sermon, not a law code. Notice the repeated words "remember," "hear," "today," and "love." The book's pattern follows ancient covenant documents: history, commands, blessings and curses, and witnesses.

OUTLINE

1:1-4:43	First address: look back
1:1-46	From Horeb to Kadesh
4:44-11:32	Second address: the call to love and obey
4:44-5:33	The Ten Commandments restated
12:1-26:19	The law applied
12:1-32	One place of worship
27:1-30:20	Covenant renewal
27:1-26	Ebal and Gerizim, and the curses
31:1-34:12	Moses' last days
31:1-30	Joshua commissioned
32:1-52	The Song of Moses

Old Testament: History

Joshua

Entering the promised land

AUTHOR Not named in the text. Tradition connects it with Joshua, with possible later editing.

DATE Events are often placed in the late 1400s or 1200s BC.

SETTING Israel under Joshua crosses the Jordan and takes possession of the land.

GENRE Historical narrative.

THEME God keeps his promise and gives Israel the land, and calls them to remain faithful.

KEY VERSE Joshua 21:45

IN THIS PLAN Unit 8; Days 200-214 (9 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Joshua's name is the same as Jesus in Hebrew. He leads God's people into the rest of the promised land, while Hebrews 4 teaches that Jesus leads his people into a greater rest. The commander of the LORD's army (5:13-15) is often seen as a preview of Christ.

HOW TO READ IT

Notice that the book stresses both God's gift of the land and the people's duty to obey. Read the conquest accounts alongside the repeated reminders that God was giving the land and judging the nations for their sin.

OUTLINE

1:1-5:12	Preparing and crossing the Jordan
1:1-18	Joshua commissioned
2:1-24	Rahab and the spies
5:13-12:24	The conquest
5:13-6:27	The commander of the LORD's army and Jericho
7:1-8:35	Achan's sin, Ai, and the renewal at Ebal
13:1-21:45	Dividing the land
13:1-33	Land east of the Jordan
14:1-15:63	Caleb and Judah
22:1-24:33	Final charges
22:1-34	The altar by the Jordan
23:1-16	Joshua's farewell

Judges

A cycle of sin, rescue, and decline

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Jewish tradition names Samuel.
DATE	Covers the period between Joshua and the monarchy, roughly 1200 to 1050 BC.
SETTING	Israel in the land without a king, surrounded by other peoples.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	Israel repeatedly turns from God, and God repeatedly raises up deliverers, yet the people grow worse and a king is needed.
KEY VERSE	Judges 21:25
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 8; Days 215-229 (9 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Each judge is a flawed rescuer, and the book keeps asking for a king who will be better. The true Judge and Deliverer is Jesus, who rescues once for all and reigns forever.

HOW TO READ IT

Read the book as a downward spiral: sin, oppression, cry for help, deliverance, and then relapse. The refrain "In those days there was no king in Israel" signals what the book is asking.

OUTLINE

1:1-3:6	Why the land was not fully taken
1:1-36	Incomplete conquest
2:1-5	The angel at Bochim
2:6-3:6	The cycle introduced
3:7-16:31	The judges
3:7-11	Othniel
3:12-30	Ehud
3:31	Shamgar
4:1-5:31	Deborah, Barak, and Jael
17:1-21:25	Israel's moral collapse
17:1-18:31	Micah's idol and the tribe of Dan
19:1-30	The Levite and his concubine
20:1-21:25	Civil war against Benjamin

Ruth

Faithful love in dark times

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Tradition has said Samuel.
DATE	Set in the time of the judges. Written probably after David's rise.
SETTING	A family from Bethlehem moves to Moab and returns.
GENRE	Short narrative.
THEME	God provides a redeemer for Naomi and Ruth, and through them prepares the way for David.
KEY VERSE	Ruth 4:14
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 8; Days 230-232 (2 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Boaz is a picture of the kinsman redeemer, one who buys back what was lost. Ruth, a foreigner, becomes the great-grandmother of David and appears in the family line of Jesus (Matthew 1:5).

HOW TO READ IT

Ruth is a short story with careful structure. Watch for the words "redeem," "kindness," and "refuge." Notice how ordinary acts of faithfulness carry God's larger plan.

OUTLINE

1:1-22	Loss in Moab and return to Bethlehem
1:1-5	Famine, exile, and three deaths
1:6-18	Ruth's pledge to Naomi
2:1-23	Ruth gleans in Boaz's field
2:1-7	Ruth meets Boaz
2:8-17	Boaz's kindness
3:1-18	Ruth at the threshing floor
3:1-5	Naomi's plan
3:6-15	Ruth and Boaz at midnight
4:1-22	Boaz redeems
4:1-12	The nearer kinsman and the gate
4:13-17	Marriage and the birth of Obed

1 Samuel

From judges to kings

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Often thought to rely on earlier records.
DATE	Covers about 1100 to 1010 BC. Final form is often dated after the kingdom divided.
SETTING	Israel moves from tribal rule under Eli and Samuel to the monarchy under Saul, with David rising.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	God gives Israel a king, rejects Saul for disobedience, and chooses David.
KEY VERSE	1 Samuel 16:7
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 9; Days 235-261 (11 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

David, the anointed shepherd king from Bethlehem, anticipates the greater Son of David. Hannah's song (2:1-10) speaks of God's "anointed" and foreshadows Mary's song in Luke 1.

HOW TO READ IT

The book turns on a contrast between outward and inward: Saul looks like a king, while David is a man after God's heart. Pay attention to who is listening to God and who is not.

OUTLINE

1:1-7:17	Eli and Samuel
1:1-2:11	Hannah's prayer and Samuel's birth
8:1-12:25	Israel asks for a king
8:1-22	The elders demand a king
9:1-10:27	Saul anointed
13:1-15:35	Saul's failures
13:1-22	The unlawful sacrifice
14:1-52	Jonathan's victory and Saul's rash oath
16:1-20:42	David's rise
16:1-23	David anointed and brought to Saul
17:1-58	David and Goliath
21:1-31:13	David on the run
21:1-22:23	Nob and the cave of Adullam
23:1-26:25	Saul pursues, and David spares him

2 Samuel

The reign of David

AUTHOR	Not named in the text.
DATE	Covers David's reign, about 1010 to 970 BC.
SETTING	David becomes king over Judah, then over all Israel, based in Jerusalem.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	God makes a covenant with David promising an everlasting kingdom, while David's sin brings trouble to his house.
KEY VERSE	2 Samuel 7:16
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 9; Days 262-288 (10 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

God's promise that David's throne will be established forever (7:12-16) is the center of the book. The New Testament announces Jesus as the Son of David whose kingdom has no end (Luke 1:32-33).

HOW TO READ IT

Read chapter 7 as the hinge of the book. Before it, David rises. After it, David's own sin shows that the promised king cannot be David himself.

OUTLINE

1:1-5:5	David becomes king
1:1-27	David's lament for Saul and Jonathan
2:1-4:12	Civil war between David and Saul's house
5:6-10:19	David's kingdom
5:6-25	Jerusalem and victory over the Philistines
6:1-23	The ark brought to Jerusalem
11:1-20:26	David's sin and its consequences
11:1-27	Bathsheba and Uriah
12:1-25	Nathan's rebuke and David's repentance
21:1-24:25	Appendix
21:1-22	Famine and the Philistine giants
22:1-51	David's song of deliverance

1 Kings

Glory and division

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Jewish tradition names Jeremiah.
DATE	Covers about 970 to 850 BC. Compiled during or after the Babylonian exile.
SETTING	Solomon builds the temple, the kingdom splits, and the prophets confront kings.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	Faithfulness to the covenant brings blessing and idolatry brings decline.
KEY VERSE	1 Kings 8:23
IN THIS PLAN	Units 9 and 11; Days 289-340 (9 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Solomon builds a temple, yet even he says that heaven cannot contain God (8:27). Jesus is greater than Solomon (Matthew 12:42), he is the true temple (John 2:19-21), and Elijah's ministry prepares for John the Baptist and Jesus.

HOW TO READ IT

Notice how the narrator evaluates each king by one test: did he follow the LORD wholeheartedly as David did? Watch also how the prophets stand against power.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:46	Solomon takes the throne
1:1-53	Adonijah's attempt and Solomon anointed
2:1-46	David's charge and Solomon's consolidation
3:1-11:43	Solomon's reign
3:1-28	The request for wisdom
4:1-34	Solomon's officials and wealth
12:1-16:34	The divided kingdom
12:1-33	Rehoboam and Jeroboam
13:1-14:20	The man of God from Judah
17:1-22:53	Elijah and the house of Ahab
17:1-24	The drought, the widow, and her son
18:1-46	Mount Carmel

2 Kings

The end of the kingdoms

AUTHOR	Not named in the text.
DATE	Covers about 850 to 560 BC.
SETTING	Israel falls to Assyria in 722 BC and Judah falls to Babylon in 586 BC.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	Persistent covenant unfaithfulness ends in exile, yet a hint of hope remains for David's line.
KEY VERSE	2 Kings 17:7
IN THIS PLAN	Units 11-13; Days 341-422 (11 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Elisha's miracles, including raising a child and feeding a crowd, prepare for the greater works of Jesus. Hezekiah and Josiah show reforming kings, but neither can finally save, and the book ends with a Davidic king still alive in exile, keeping hope open.

HOW TO READ IT

This book moves quickly from king to king. Keep an eye on the prophets, who explain why events happen, and on the final chapters, where the exile is described as the covenant curse come true.

OUTLINE

1:1-8:29	Elijah and Elisha
1:1-2:25	Elijah taken up and Elisha's mantle
3:1-27	War against Moab
9:1-17:41	Jehu to the fall of Israel
9:1-10:36	Jehu's revolt
11:1-12:21	Athaliah and Joash
13:1-14:29	Kings of Israel and Judah
18:1-25:30	Judah to the exile
18:1-20:21	Hezekiah and Isaiah
21:1-26	Manasseh and Amon
22:1-23:30	Josiah's reform

1 Chronicles

Israel's story retold for the returned exiles

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Tradition names Ezra.
DATE	Written after the exile, probably in the 400s or 300s BC.
SETTING	Written to people who had returned from exile and were rebuilding their identity.
GENRE	Genealogy and historical narrative.
THEME	God's covenant with David and the worship of the temple remain at the center of his people's hope.
KEY VERSE	1 Chronicles 17:14
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 522-533 (8 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The Chronicler holds the covenant with David at the center, a promise that the Messiah would come from David's line. The temple preparations point toward the final dwelling of God with his people.

HOW TO READ IT

Chronicles retells Israel's history from the viewpoint of the returned exiles. Read the opening genealogies as a statement that God's people have a name, a place, and a future.

OUTLINE

1:1-9:44	Genealogies from Adam to the exile
1:1-54	From Adam to Abraham's descendants
2:1-4:23	The tribe of Judah and the house of David
10:1-12:40	From Saul's death to David's rise
10:1-14	The death of Saul
11:1-12:40	David's mighty men and supporters
13:1-16:43	The ark brought to Jerusalem
13:1-14:17	The ark and the blessing on Obed-edom
15:1-16:43	The procession and the psalm of thanks
17:1-21:30	The Davidic covenant and wars
17:1-27	The promise of an eternal house
18:1-20:8	David's victories
22:1-29:30	Preparing for the temple
22:1-19	David's charge to Solomon
23:1-27:34	The Levites and the leaders

2 Chronicles

The kings of Judah and the temple

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Tradition names Ezra.
DATE	Written after the exile.
SETTING	Tells the story of Solomon and the kings of Judah, ending with the exile and a call to return.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	When the king and people seek the Lord, they find him, and when they forsake him they fall.
KEY VERSE	2 Chronicles 7:14
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 534-547 (9 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Solomon's temple foreshadows the true temple, Christ himself. The book ends with Cyrus's decree sending the exiles home, which points ahead to the greater return from exile that the prophets promised.

HOW TO READ IT

The Chronicler emphasizes that when kings seek the LORD, they prosper, and when they forsake him, they fall. Watch the stress on repentance and revival, especially under Hezekiah and Josiah.

OUTLINE

1:1-9:31	Solomon and the temple
1:1-17	Solomon's request for wisdom
10:1-28:27	The kings of Judah
10:1-12:16	Rehoboam and the division
13:1-16:14	Abijah and Asa
29:1-32:33	Hezekiah's revival
29:1-31:21	The temple cleansed and Passover kept
32:1-33	Sennacherib's invasion
33:1-36:23	The last kings and the exile
33:1-25	Manasseh and Amon
34:1-35:27	Josiah's reform and death

Ezra

Return and rebuilding

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Tradition names Ezra.
DATE	Covers about 538 to 458 BC.
SETTING	Jewish exiles return to Jerusalem under Persian rule and rebuild the temple.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	God keeps his promise to bring his people home, and his people must be rebuilt in obedience to the law.
KEY VERSE	Ezra 7:10
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 496-503 (4 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The return from exile and the rebuilding of the temple point to a greater restoration. Ezra's study and teaching of the law anticipate Christ, the final teacher of God's word.

HOW TO READ IT

Ezra covers two returns, one under Zerubbabel and one under Ezra himself. Notice the strong role of Scripture, prayer, and confession in rebuilding.

OUTLINE

1:1-6:22	The first return and the temple
1:1-11	Cyrus's decree and the return
2:1-70	The list of returning exiles
3:1-13	The altar and foundation laid
4:1-24	Opposition to the work
5:1-6:22	The temple finished and dedicated
7:1-10:44	Ezra's return and reform
7:1-28	Ezra's commission
8:1-36	The journey and the exiles who returned
9:1-15	Ezra's prayer about intermarriage
10:1-44	The people's response

Nehemiah

Rebuilding the wall

AUTHOR	Largely Nehemiah's own memoir.
DATE	Covers about 445 to 430 BC.
SETTING	Nehemiah, a cupbearer to the Persian king, returns to rebuild Jerusalem's walls.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	God's people rebuild by prayer, courage, and reading the law together.
KEY VERSE	Nehemiah 8:10
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 505-512 (5 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Nehemiah left a position of comfort to rebuild his people's city, and points to Christ, who left heaven to restore his people. The public reading of the law (chapter 8) points to the word of God that renews the heart.

HOW TO READ IT

Nehemiah is a leadership story. Notice how prayer and action go side by side, and how opposition grows as the work succeeds.

OUTLINE

1:1-7:73	Rebuilding the wall
1:1-11	Nehemiah's prayer
2:1-20	The king's permission and the night inspection
3:1-32	The builders listed
4:1-23	Opposition and the armed builders
5:1-19	Injustice among the people
6:1-19	The wall completed
7:1-73	The list of the people
8:1-10:39	Renewing the covenant
8:1-18	The reading of the law and the Feast of Booths
9:1-37	The prayer of confession
10:1-39	The pledge
11:1-13:31	Settling and reform
11:1-12:47	Resettlement and the dedication of the wall
13:1-31	Nehemiah's final reforms

Esther

God's hidden hand

AUTHOR	Not named in the text.
DATE	Set about 480 to 470 BC, in the reign of the Persian king Ahasuerus.
SETTING	Jews living in Persia, outside the land.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	God preserves his people through ordinary events, even when his name is not mentioned.
KEY VERSE	Esther 4:14
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 513-515 (3 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

God preserves his people when they cannot rescue themselves, and the line of the Messiah survives the plot to destroy it. Mordecai and Esther are courageous mediators who point to the greater mediator who gave himself for his people.

HOW TO READ IT

God is never named in Esther, yet his providence is everywhere. Look for reversals: the gallows built for Mordecai, the king's sleepless night, and the feast Haman never enjoys.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:23	Esther becomes queen
1:1-22	Vashti removed
2:1-18	Esther chosen
3:1-5:14	Haman's plot
3:1-15	The decree to destroy the Jews
4:1-17	Mordecai's plea and Esther's decision
6:1-8:17	The reversal
6:1-14	Mordecai honored
7:1-10	Esther's second banquet and Haman's fall
9:1-10:3	Purim established
9:1-19	The Jews' deliverance
9:20-32	The feast of Purim

Old Testament: Wisdom and Poetry

Job

Suffering and the wisdom of God

AUTHOR Not named in the text.

DATE The setting is in the patriarchal age. The date of writing is uncertain.

SETTING A righteous man loses everything and wrestles with God and his friends.

GENRE Wisdom poetry in a narrative frame.

THEME Human understanding of suffering is limited, and God's wisdom and presence are enough.

KEY VERSE Job 19:25

IN THIS PLAN Unit 4; Days 64-86 (16 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Job longs for a mediator who could stand between him and God (9:33, 16:19-21, 19:25). Jesus is that mediator and redeemer, and he is also the righteous sufferer whose suffering was for others.

HOW TO READ IT

Job is poetry, so do not read the speeches as a debate with one right side. The friends say true things in the wrong way, and Job says bold things in pain. Notice that God never gives Job an explanation, but gives himself.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:13	The prologue
1:1-5	Job's character
3:1-31:40	Job and his friends
3:1-26	Job's lament
32:1-37:24	Elihu's speeches
32:1-33:33	Elihu begins
34:1-37:24	Elihu defends God's justice
38:1-42:6	The LORD answers
38:1-40:2	The first speech from the whirlwind
40:3-5	Job's first reply
42:7-17	The epilogue
42:7-9	The friends rebuked
42:10-17	Job restored

Psalms

The prayer book of Israel

AUTHOR	Many are attributed to David, with others to Asaph, the sons of Korah, Solomon, Moses, and unnamed authors.
DATE	Composed over many centuries, from the time of Moses to after the exile.
SETTING	Songs and prayers used in Israel's worship and personal life.
GENRE	Hebrew poetry: praise, lament, thanksgiving, wisdom, and royal psalms.
THEME	God is king, and his people can bring all their joy and sorrow to him.
KEY VERSE	Psalm 1:1-2
IN THIS PLAN	Scattered through the plan (235 days)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The psalms speak of the Messiah throughout: the anointed king (2), the suffering servant (22), the shepherd (23), the priest-king (110), and the stone the builders rejected (118). Jesus said that everything written about him in the Psalms had to be fulfilled (Luke 24:44).

HOW TO READ IT

Read one psalm at a time and ask what kind it is: praise, lament, thanksgiving, wisdom, or royal. Notice how laments usually move from complaint to trust. The psalms teach you how to pray when you do not know what to say.

OUTLINE

1-41	Book One
1-2	Introduction: the two ways and the anointed king
42-72	Book Two
42-49	Psalms of the sons of Korah
73-89	Book Three
73-83	Psalms of Asaph
90-106	Book Four
90-92	Moses, refuge, and the Sabbath song
107-150	Book Five
107	Give thanks to the LORD

Proverbs

Wisdom for daily life

AUTHOR	Largely Solomon, with sections credited to others such as Agur and Lemuel and to "the wise."
DATE	Collected over time, from about the 900s to the 700s BC or later.
SETTING	Instruction for the young and for those who lead, drawn from experience and the fear of the Lord.
GENRE	Wisdom sayings and poems.
THEME	The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and wise living follows from it.
KEY VERSE	Proverbs 9:10
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 10; Days 302-320 (13 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Wisdom calls aloud in the streets (1:20-33; 8:1-36), and the New Testament says that Christ is the wisdom of God (1 Corinthians 1:24, 30; Colossians 2:3). He is the one in whom all the treasures of wisdom are hidden.

HOW TO READ IT

Proverbs are general truths, not guaranteed promises. Read them slowly, a few at a time. Notice the contrast between the wise and the foolish, the righteous and the wicked, and the repeated call to fear the LORD.

OUTLINE

1:1-9:18	A father's appeal for wisdom
1:1-7	Purpose and motto
10:1-22:16	Proverbs of Solomon
10:1-15:33	Contrasts of the righteous and the wicked
22:17-24:34	Sayings of the wise
22:17-23:35	Thirty sayings
25:1-29:27	Hezekiah's collection
25:1-27:27	Kings, neighbors, and fools
30:1-31:31	Final words
30:1-33	The words of Agur

Ecclesiastes

Life under the sun

AUTHOR	The speaker calls himself "the Preacher" (Qoheleth). Tradition connects the book with Solomon.
DATE	Date is uncertain, with traditional dating in the 900s BC.
SETTING	A teacher reflects on work, pleasure, wealth, and death.
GENRE	Wisdom reflection.
THEME	Life without God is empty, but life received as his gift has meaning.
KEY VERSE	Ecclesiastes 12:13
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 10; Days 321-328 (5 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Qoheleth searches for meaning under the sun and finds that nothing under the sun satisfies. The book prepares for the one who comes from above the sun, Jesus Christ, who gives meaning that does not fade.

HOW TO READ IT

The refrain "vanity" means breath or vapor. Read the book as one argument, not as a list of separate sayings. The ending tells you how to read it: fear God and keep his commandments.

OUTLINE

1:1-11	The theme
1:1-3	The Preacher and the question
1:12-2:26	The search for meaning
1:12-18	Wisdom
3:1-4:16	Time and oppression
3:1-15	A time for everything
5:1-7:29	Living wisely
5:1-7	Worship
8:1-12:8	Uncertainty and death
8:1-17	Authority and what we cannot understand
12:9-14	Conclusion
12:9-12	The words of the wise
12:13-14	Fear God and keep his commandments

Song of Songs

The beauty of married love

AUTHOR	Attributed in the title to Solomon.
DATE	Traditionally dated to the 900s BC. Date of final form is debated.
SETTING	A woman and a man exchange love poems.
GENRE	Love poetry.
THEME	God made love and marriage good, and the church has long seen in it a picture of Christ and his people.
KEY VERSE	Song of Songs 8:6-7
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 10; Days 330-331 (2 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The church has long read this book as a picture of the love between Christ and his people, though it is first of all a celebration of human love in marriage. The New Testament calls the church the bride of Christ (Ephesians 5:31-32).

HOW TO READ IT

Read the book as a collection of lyrical scenes between a woman, a man, and a chorus of friends. Do not hurry. It is poetry about desire, and it teaches a right understanding of love, in the sense of "do not awaken love until it pleases" (2:7).

OUTLINE

1:1-2:7	Longing and delight
2:8-3:5	Spring and searching
3:6-5:1	The wedding
3:6-11	The royal procession
5:2-6:3	A dream of absence
5:2-8	He knocks and is gone
6:4-8:4	Renewed praise
6:4-7:9	The lover's praise
8:5-14	Love as strong as death
8:5-7	The seal of love

Old Testament: The Major Prophets

Isaiah

Judgment, comfort, and the coming servant

AUTHOR	Isaiah son of Amoz. Some scholars see later editing, while others hold to a single author.
DATE	Isaiah's ministry ran from about 740 to 700 BC.
SETTING	Judah under threat from Assyria, and later the promise of comfort for exiles.
GENRE	Prophecy and poetry.
THEME	God judges sin and promises salvation through a coming king and suffering servant.
KEY VERSE	Isaiah 53:5
IN THIS PLAN	Units 12 and 25; Days 380-894 (22 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Isaiah speaks of a virgin's son called Immanuel (7:14), a child who is Mighty God (9:6), a branch from Jesse (11:1), a servant who bears our sins (52:13-53:12), and a herald who brings good news (61:1). The New Testament quotes the book more than any other prophet.

HOW TO READ IT

Isaiah alternates between judgment and hope. Watch for the Holy One of Israel, a title that appears throughout. The book is a unified message of sin, judgment, comfort, and a new creation.

OUTLINE

1:1-12:6	Judgment and hope for Judah
1:1-31	The LORD's case against his people
13:1-27:13	Oracles against the nations
13:1-23:18	Babylon, Moab, Egypt, Tyre, and others
28:1-39:8	Trusting God, not nations
28:1-35:10	Woes and the coming king
40:1-55:13	Comfort and the servant
40:1-31	Comfort for God's people
56:1-66:24	Restoration and new creation
56:1-59:21	Justice and repentance

Jeremiah

The weeping prophet and the new covenant

AUTHOR	Jeremiah, with Baruch as scribe.
DATE	Ministry from about 627 to 580 BC.
SETTING	The last decades of Judah and the fall of Jerusalem to Babylon.
GENRE	Prophecy, poetry, and narrative.
THEME	God judges persistent sin yet promises a new covenant written on the heart.
KEY VERSE	Jeremiah 31:33
IN THIS PLAN	Units 3 and 13; Days 32-454 (19 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Jeremiah, the weeping prophet who was rejected by his people, points to Christ, who wept over Jerusalem. The promise of a new covenant (31:31-34) is fulfilled in Jesus, who said, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood" (Luke 22:20).

HOW TO READ IT

The book is not in chronological order. Read it as a collage of sermons, poems, stories, and visions. Notice Jeremiah's personal laments, and look for the promise of a new covenant, the central hope of the book.

OUTLINE

1:1-25:38	Warnings to Judah
1:1-19	Jeremiah's call
26:1-35:19	Conflict and promise
26:1-29:32	Prophets in conflict and the letter to the exiles
30:1-33:26	The book of consolation
36:1-45:5	Jeremiah and the fall
36:1-32	The scroll burned
37:1-39:18	The siege and the fall of Jerusalem
46:1-51:64	Oracles against the nations
46:1-49:39	Egypt, Philistia, Moab, Ammon, Edom, and others
50:1-51:64	Babylon
52:1-34	The fall of Jerusalem recalled

Lamentations

Grieving Jerusalem

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. Tradition names Jeremiah.
DATE	After the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC.
SETTING	Mourning over the destroyed city.
GENRE	Poetry in five laments.
THEME	Honest grief before God, who remains faithful even in judgment.
KEY VERSE	Lamentations 3:22-23
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 13; Days 458-460 (3 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The grieving of Jerusalem points to Jesus, the man of sorrows, who wept over the city and who bore the full weight of judgment. The hope in 3:22-23, that the LORD's mercies are new every morning, is fulfilled in him.

HOW TO READ IT

Each chapter is an acrostic poem built on the Hebrew alphabet, and the third chapter is the center of the book. Read it as a model for honest grief that does not let go of God.

OUTLINE

1:1-22	Jerusalem desolate
1:1-11	The city mourns
2:1-22	The LORD's anger
2:1-10	The LORD has destroyed
3:1-66	Hope in the LORD's mercy
3:1-20	The man who has seen affliction
4:1-22	The siege remembered
4:1-12	The city's ruin
4:13-22	Judgment on prophets and priests
5:1-22	A prayer for restoration
5:1-18	Remember what has come upon us
5:19-22	Restore us, O LORD

Ezekiel

Visions of glory and renewal

AUTHOR	Ezekiel, a priest living among the exiles.
DATE	Ministry from about 593 to 571 BC.
SETTING	The exiles in Babylon, before and after Jerusalem's fall.
GENRE	Prophecy, visions, and symbolic acts.
THEME	God's glory departs from the temple because of sin, and he promises a new heart and a restored people.
KEY VERSE	Ezekiel 36:26
IN THIS PLAN	Units 13 and 17; Days 461-638 (16 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The good shepherd of chapter 34, the new heart and spirit of chapter 36, and the river from the temple in chapter 47 all point to Christ. Jesus calls himself the good shepherd, and he gives living water.

HOW TO READ IT

Ezekiel is full of visions and symbolic acts. Watch for the repeated phrase "then they will know that I am the LORD." The book moves from the departure of God's glory to its return.

OUTLINE

1:1-3:27	Ezekiel's call
1:1-28	The vision of the glory of the LORD
4:1-24:27	Judgment on Jerusalem
4:1-7:27	Signs and oracles of judgment
25:1-32:32	Judgment on the nations
25:1-28:26	Ammon, Moab, Tyre, and Sidon
29:1-32:32	Egypt
33:1-39:29	Restoration
33:1-33	The watchman renewed
34:1-31	The shepherds and the good shepherd
40:1-48:35	The new temple
40:1-43:27	The vision of the new temple and the return of the glory
44:1-46:24	Worship and the prince

Daniel

Faithful in a foreign land

AUTHOR	Traditionally Daniel. Some scholars date the book later, so readers differ on its date.
DATE	Set in the 500s BC during the exile and Persian rule.
SETTING	Jewish exiles serve in Babylonian and Persian courts.
GENRE	Narrative and apocalyptic visions.
THEME	God rules over every empire, and his kingdom will outlast them all.
KEY VERSE	Daniel 7:13-14
IN THIS PLAN	Units 13 and 21; Days 486-775 (7 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The fourth man in the fiery furnace and the "son of man" coming on the clouds (7:13-14) point to Christ. Jesus took the title Son of Man from Daniel and is the king whose kingdom will never end.

HOW TO READ IT

Daniel has two halves: stories (1-6) and visions (7-12). The stories show faithfulness in a foreign court. The visions show God ruling over history. Note that the book is written partly in Hebrew and partly in Aramaic.

OUTLINE

1:1-21	Daniel and his friends in Babylon
2:1-49	Nebuchadnezzar's dream
3:1-30	The fiery furnace
3:1-18	The golden image and the refusal
4:1-37	Nebuchadnezzar humbled
4:1-27	The dream of the tree
5:1-31	The writing on the wall
6:1-28	Daniel in the lions' den
7:1-28	Four beasts and the Son of Man
7:1-14	The vision
8:1-12:13	Visions of the future
8:1-27	The ram and the goat

Old Testament: The Minor Prophets

Hosea

A faithful God and an unfaithful people

AUTHOR	Hosea.
DATE	Ministry in the northern kingdom, about 750 to 722 BC.
SETTING	Israel falls into idolatry. Hosea's marriage becomes a picture of God's love.
GENRE	Prophecy.
THEME	God loves his people even when they are unfaithful and calls them back.
KEY VERSE	Hosea 6:6
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 11; Days 363-367 (4 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

God's patient love for an unfaithful bride, shown in Hosea's marriage, points to Christ and his church. Matthew 2:15 applies "out of Egypt I called my son" to Jesus, and Paul quotes Hosea about Gentiles becoming "my people" (Romans 9:25).

HOW TO READ IT

Hosea is a book of painful love. Watch for the shifts between accusation and tenderness. The names of Hosea's children are messages, and they are later reversed.

OUTLINE

1:1-3:5	Hosea's marriage
1:1-2:1	Gomer and the three children
2:2-23	The unfaithful wife and the restored bride
3:1-5	Hosea buys Gomer back
4:1-14:9	God's case against Israel
4:1-6:3	No knowledge of God
6:4-11:11	Israel's unfaithfulness and God's compassion
11:1-11	The father's love
12:1-14:9	A call to return

Joel

The day of the Lord

AUTHOR	Joel.
DATE	Date is debated, with proposals from the 800s to the 400s BC.
SETTING	A locust plague becomes a picture of coming judgment.
GENRE	Prophecy.
THEME	Return to the Lord, and he will pour out his Spirit.
KEY VERSE	Joel 2:28
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 548-549 (2 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Joel promises that the Spirit will be poured out on all flesh (2:28-32). Peter says this was fulfilled at Pentecost (Acts 2:16-21). The day of the LORD finds its center in Christ.

HOW TO READ IT

Joel uses a plague of locusts as a picture of a greater judgment. Read it as a call to repent, with the promise that God will restore and pour out his Spirit.

OUTLINE

1:1-20	The locust plague
1:1-12	The land devastated
1:13-20	A call to lament
2:1-17	The day of the LORD
2:1-11	An army of judgment
2:12-17	Return to me with all your heart
2:18-27	The LORD's answer
2:18-27	Restoration of the land
2:28-3:21	The Spirit and the final judgment
2:28-32	The Spirit poured out
3:1-16	The nations judged
3:17-21	The LORD dwells in Zion

Amos

Justice rolling like water

AUTHOR	Amos, a herdsman from Tekoa.
DATE	About 760 to 750 BC.
SETTING	Prosperous Israel ignores the poor and worships falsely.
GENRE	Prophecy.
THEME	God demands justice and true worship, and promises to restore David's house.
KEY VERSE	Amos 5:24
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 11; Days 354-356 (3 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Amos looks forward to restoring David's fallen tent (9:11-12), which James quotes at the council in Jerusalem to explain the Gentiles' inclusion (Acts 15:15-18). Christ is the one who fulfills justice.

HOW TO READ IT

Amos is a shepherd from Judah speaking to the north. Notice how he begins with judgment on the neighbors and then turns to Israel itself. The book ends in hope.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:16	Judgment on the nations and Israel
1:1-2	The LORD roars
1:3-2:5	Syria, Philistia, Tyre, Edom, Ammon, Moab, and Judah
2:6-16	Israel
3:1-6:14	Sermons against Israel
3:1-15	Chosen and accountable
4:1-13	Failure to return
5:1-27	A lament and a call to seek the LORD
6:1-14	Woe to those at ease
7:1-9:10	Visions of judgment
7:1-9	Locusts, fire, and the plumb line
7:10-17	Amos and Amaziah
8:1-14	The basket of summer fruit
9:1-10	The LORD beside the altar
9:11-15	Restoration
9:11-15	David's tent rebuilt

Obadiah

Judgment on Edom

AUTHOR	Obadiah.
DATE	Probably after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC, though debated.
SETTING	Edom gloated over Judah's fall.
GENRE	Prophecy, the shortest book of the Old Testament.
THEME	Pride falls, and the Lord's kingdom will come.
KEY VERSE	Obadiah 1:15
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Day 550

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The final verse, "the kingdom shall be the LORD's," points forward to the kingdom of Christ. Edom's pride is set against the humility of the Messiah.

HOW TO READ IT

Obadiah is one chapter and is best read in one sitting. Notice the theme of reversal: Edom's pride is brought down, and Israel's lowly remnant is lifted up.

OUTLINE

1-4	The announcement
1	The vision and the call to war
2-4	Edom brought down
5-9	The completeness of the judgment
5-7	Looters and betrayal
8-9	The wise and mighty destroyed
10-14	The reason for judgment
10-11	Violence and standing aside
12-14	Do not gloat
15-18	The day of the LORD
15-16	As you did, it shall be done to you
17-18	Zion and the house of Jacob
19-21	The kingdom shall be the LORD's
19-20	The land possessed
21	Saviors on Mount Zion

Jonah

A reluctant prophet and a merciful God

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. The prophet Jonah appears in 2 Kings 14.
DATE	Set in the 700s BC.
SETTING	Jonah is sent to Nineveh, the capital of Assyria.
GENRE	Narrative.
THEME	God's mercy reaches even Israel's enemies.
KEY VERSE	Jonah 4:2
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 11; Days 370-372 (2 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Jesus called Jonah's three days in the fish a sign of his own death and resurrection (Matthew 12:39-41). He said that one greater than Jonah is here.

HOW TO READ IT

Jonah is a story with a surprise ending. Notice that the question at the end is addressed to Jonah, and the book leaves it open for the reader to answer.

OUTLINE

1:1-17	Jonah flees
1:1-3	The call and the flight
1:4-16	The storm and the sailors
1:17	The great fish
2:1-10	Jonah's prayer
2:1-9	Prayer from the fish
2:10	Jonah delivered
3:1-10	Nineveh repents
3:1-4	The second call
3:5-10	The city turns and God relents
4:1-11	Jonah's anger and God's question
4:1-5	Jonah complains
4:6-11	The plant and the question

Micah

Justice, mercy, and a ruler from Bethlehem

AUTHOR	Micah.
DATE	About 735 to 700 BC.
SETTING	Judah and Israel under Assyrian threat.
GENRE	Prophecy.
THEME	God judges injustice and promises a shepherd king from Bethlehem.
KEY VERSE	Micah 6:8
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 11; Days 373-375 (3 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Micah 5:2 names Bethlehem as the birthplace of the ruler whose origin is from of old, and the chief priests quoted it to Herod (Matthew 2:5-6). The shepherd king is Jesus.

HOW TO READ IT

Micah has three cycles, each beginning with "Hear" and each moving from judgment to hope. Notice the famous summary in 6:8.

OUTLINE

1:1-3:12	First cycle: judgment
1:1-16	The LORD comes down
2:1-13	Greed and the remnant
3:1-12	Rulers and prophets rebuked
4:1-5:15	Second cycle: hope
4:1-8	The mountain of the LORD
4:9-5:1	Exile and rescue
5:2-15	The ruler from Bethlehem
6:1-7:20	Third cycle: God's case and pardon
6:1-8	What does the LORD require
6:9-7:6	Judgment and lament
7:7-20	Who is a God like you

Nahum

The fall of Nineveh

AUTHOR	Nahum.
DATE	Probably between about 663 and 612 BC.
SETTING	Nineveh, the Assyrian capital, will fall.
GENRE	Prophecy and poetry.
THEME	God is slow to anger but will judge oppression.
KEY VERSE	Nahum 1:7
IN THIS PLAN	Units 12 and 20; Days 417-726 (2 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Nahum 1:15 speaks of the messenger who brings good news and announces peace, which is quoted by Paul about the gospel (Romans 10:15). The justice of God against oppression is satisfied fully in Christ.

HOW TO READ IT

Nahum is a poem about the end of an empire. Read it as the other side of Jonah: Nineveh repented once, but later returned to cruelty.

OUTLINE

1:1-15	The LORD's power
1:1-8	The LORD is a jealous and avenging God
1:9-15	The end of the plot and good news for Judah
2:1-13	The fall described
2:1-10	The attack on the city
2:11-13	The lion's den
3:1-19	Why Nineveh falls
3:1-7	Woe to the bloody city
3:8-19	No escape

Habakkuk

Questions and faith

AUTHOR	Habakkuk.
DATE	Probably about 610 to 600 BC.
SETTING	Habakkuk asks why God allows injustice in Judah and then why he uses Babylon.
GENRE	Prophecy, dialogue, and prayer.
THEME	The righteous live by faith, trusting God even when circumstances are hard.
KEY VERSE	Habakkuk 2:4
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 12; Day 418

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Habakkuk 2:4, "the righteous shall live by his faith," is quoted three times in the New Testament (Romans 1:17; Galatians 3:11; Hebrews 10:38). The just live by faith in Christ.

HOW TO READ IT

Habakkuk is a conversation between the prophet and God. Follow the sequence: complaint, answer, complaint, answer, and then a prayer of trust.

OUTLINE

1:1-11	First complaint and answer
1:1-4	How long, O LORD
1:5-11	I am doing a work: Babylon
1:12-2:20	Second complaint and answer
1:12-2:1	Why are you silent
2:2-5	The righteous live by faith
2:6-20	Five woes
3:1-19	Habakkuk's prayer
3:1-15	The LORD comes in glory
3:16-19	Though the fig tree should not blossom

Zephaniah

The day of the Lord and a restored remnant

AUTHOR	Zephaniah.
DATE	Probably about 640 to 620 BC, in the reign of Josiah.
SETTING	Judah faces judgment, with a call to seek the Lord.
GENRE	Prophecy.
THEME	God judges the proud and gathers the humble, rejoicing over them.
KEY VERSE	Zephaniah 3:17
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 12; Day 419

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The promise that the LORD will rejoice over his people with singing (3:17) is realized in Christ, who gathers the scattered and rejoices over them.

HOW TO READ IT

Zephaniah begins with total judgment and ends with joyful singing. Notice how "the day of the LORD" is dark for the proud and bright for the humble.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:3	Judgment and a call to seek the LORD
1:1-6	Judgment on the whole earth
1:7-18	The day of the LORD
2:1-3	Seek the LORD
2:4-15	Judgment on the nations
2:4-7	Philistia
2:8-15	Moab, Ammon, Cush, and Assyria
3:1-20	Jerusalem and restoration
3:1-8	The rebellious city
3:9-13	A purified remnant
3:14-20	Sing, O daughter of Zion

Haggai

Rebuild the house

AUTHOR	Haggai.
DATE	About 520 BC.
SETTING	Returned exiles have neglected the temple.
GENRE	Prophecy.
THEME	Put God first, and he will be with his people.
KEY VERSE	Haggai 2:9
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Day 555

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The promise that the glory of the latter house will be greater than the former (2:9) is fulfilled when Christ comes to the temple. Zerubbabel, a descendant of David, is a sign of the coming king.

HOW TO READ IT

Haggai has four short messages, each dated precisely. Watch how God moves the people from self-concern to obedience and from discouragement to hope.

OUTLINE

1:1-15	The first message: rebuild the temple
1:1-11	Consider your ways
1:12-15	The people obey
2:1-9	The second message: the coming glory
2:1-5	Take courage
2:6-9	The latter glory
2:10-19	The third message: blessing
2:10-19	From this day I will bless you
2:20-23	The fourth message: Zerubbabel
2:20-23	The LORD's signet ring

Zechariah

Visions of hope for the returned exiles

AUTHOR	Zechariah. Some scholars see a different author for the later chapters.
DATE	Begins about 520 BC.
SETTING	Returned exiles are encouraged to finish the temple.
GENRE	Prophecy and visions.
THEME	God will cleanse his people and send a humble king.
KEY VERSE	Zechariah 9:9
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 556-561 (5 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Zechariah 9:9, the king who comes humble and riding on a donkey, is fulfilled at the triumphal entry. The pierced one (12:10), the shepherd who is struck (13:7), and the fountain for sin (13:1) all point to Christ.

HOW TO READ IT

Zechariah is full of visions and symbols. Read the visions in chapters 1 to 6 as encouragement for builders, and chapters 9 to 14 as oracles about the coming king.

OUTLINE

1:1-6	A call to return
1:1-6	Return to me
1:7-6:15	Eight night visions
1:7-17	The horsemen
1:18-2:13	The horns and the measuring line
3:1-10	Joshua the high priest cleansed
7:1-8:23	Questions about fasting
7:1-14	True fasting
8:1-23	Jerusalem restored
9:1-14:21	Oracles of the coming king
9:1-17	The humble king
10:1-11:17	The shepherds
12:1-13:9	The pierced one and the cleansing fountain

Malachi

The last word of the Old Testament

AUTHOR	Malachi.
DATE	Probably about 450 to 400 BC.
SETTING	The returned community has grown lax in worship and covenant faithfulness.
GENRE	Prophecy in a dialogue style.
THEME	God loves his people and calls them to faithful worship, with a messenger promised before the day of the Lord.
KEY VERSE	Malachi 3:1
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 14; Days 562-563 (2 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Malachi promises a messenger who will prepare the way (3:1) and the sun of righteousness who rises with healing (4:2). The New Testament identifies John the Baptist as the messenger and Jesus as the LORD who comes to his temple.

HOW TO READ IT

Malachi is a series of questions and answers. God makes a claim, the people ask "How?" and God replies. Read it as a covenant lawsuit in dialogue form.

OUTLINE

1:1-5	God's love for Israel
1:1-5	I have loved you
1:6-2:9	Corrupt priests
1:6-14	Blemished offerings
2:1-9	A warning to the priests
2:10-16	Faithlessness
2:10-16	Breaking the covenant in marriage
2:17-3:5	The coming messenger
2:17-3:5	Where is the God of justice
3:6-4:6	Return to me
3:6-12	Robbing God
3:13-4:3	The book of remembrance and the day
4:4-6	Remember the law and Elijah

New Testament: Gospels and Acts

Matthew

Jesus, the promised king

AUTHOR	Traditionally the apostle Matthew. The book itself is anonymous.
DATE	Often dated between about AD 60 and 85.
SETTING	Written with a strong Jewish background, showing Jesus as the fulfillment of the Old Testament.
GENRE	Gospel: a narrative of Jesus' life with five major teaching sections.
THEME	Jesus is the Messiah and king who brings the kingdom of heaven.
KEY VERSE	Matthew 16:16
IN THIS PLAN	Units 5, 15, 21, 22 and 25; Days 111-892 (29 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Matthew presents Jesus as the promised Messiah, the son of David and son of Abraham, who fulfills the Law and the Prophets. He is Immanuel, "God with us" (1:23), and he ends with the promise, "I am with you always" (28:20).

HOW TO READ IT

Matthew gathers Jesus' teaching into five great discourses, each ending with a phrase such as "when Jesus had finished these sayings." Watch for the phrase "this was to fulfill what was spoken by the prophet."

OUTLINE

1:1-4:11	Birth and preparation
4:12-7:29	The kingdom proclaimed
8:1-10:42	The kingdom in power
11:1-13:52	Responses to the kingdom
11:1-12:50	Rejection and growing opposition
13:53-18:35	The church and the cross approaching
13:53-16:12	Withdrawal and feeding the multitudes
19:1-25:46	Jerusalem
19:1-20:34	Journey to Jerusalem
26:1-28:20	Passion and resurrection
26:1-27:66	Last supper, trial, and crucifixion

Mark

Jesus, the suffering servant

AUTHOR	Traditionally John Mark, associated with Peter. The book itself is anonymous.
DATE	Often dated between about AD 55 and 70.
SETTING	Written in a brisk style, likely for a wider audience, including Gentile readers.
GENRE	Gospel.
THEME	Jesus is the Son of God who came to serve and give his life as a ransom.
KEY VERSE	Mark 10:45
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 18; Days 666-685 (14 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Mark moves quickly to show Jesus as the Son of God who came to serve and to give his life as a ransom for many (10:45). The centurion at the cross is the first human to confess him as the Son of God (15:39).

HOW TO READ IT

Mark is the shortest Gospel and the most action-driven. Watch for the word "immediately." Notice how often Jesus tells people not to tell, and how the disciples struggle to understand.

OUTLINE

1:1-13	The beginning
1:1-8	John the Baptist
1:14-8:26	Ministry in Galilee
1:14-3:12	Authority and early opposition
8:27-10:52	The way of the cross
8:27-9:29	Peter's confession and the transfiguration
9:30-10:52	Teaching on discipleship
11:1-13:37	Jerusalem
11:1-12:44	Entry, temple, and controversies
13:1-37	The Olivet discourse
14:1-16:8	Passion and resurrection
14:1-72	The Last Supper, Gethsemane, and trial
15:1-47	The crucifixion and burial

Luke

Jesus, savior for all people

AUTHOR	Traditionally Luke, a physician and companion of Paul. The book itself is anonymous.
DATE	Often dated between about AD 60 and 85.
SETTING	Addressed to Theophilus, and first volume of a two-part work with Acts.
GENRE	Gospel, with careful historical narrative.
THEME	Jesus came to seek and to save the lost, including the poor and outsiders.
KEY VERSE	Luke 19:10
IN THIS PLAN	Units 15, 16, 18 and 21; Days 571-779 (21 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Luke shows Jesus as the Savior of the world who seeks and saves the lost (19:10). Only Luke includes the parables of the good Samaritan, the lost son, and the rich man and Lazarus, and he ends on the road to Emmaus, where Jesus explains the Scriptures about himself.

HOW TO READ IT

Luke is the first of two volumes, with Acts. Watch for his interest in the poor, women, outsiders, prayer, and the Holy Spirit. Notice the long travel section from 9:51.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:52	Birth and childhood
3:1-4:13	Preparation
3:1-38	John, baptism, and genealogy
4:14-9:50	Ministry in Galilee
4:14-5:39	Nazareth and the first disciples
9:51-19:27	Journey to Jerusalem
9:51-13:21	Teaching and mission
19:28-23:56	Final week and cross
19:28-21:38	Entry and teaching
24:1-53	Resurrection and ascension
24:1-35	The empty tomb and the Emmaus road

John

Jesus, the Word made flesh

AUTHOR	Traditionally the apostle John. The book itself does not name its author.
DATE	Often dated between about AD 80 and 95.
SETTING	Selected signs and teachings written so that readers believe.
GENRE	Gospel, with a different structure from Matthew, Mark, and Luke.
THEME	Jesus is the eternal Son of God, and eternal life comes through believing in him.
KEY VERSE	John 20:31
IN THIS PLAN	Units 17, 19, 21 and 24; Days 634-860 (22 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

John begins with the Word who is God and became flesh, and ends so that readers may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. Seven "I am" sayings and seven signs show who he is.

HOW TO READ IT

John is built around signs, long discourses, and the "hour" of the cross. Read it slowly. Notice repeated words like "believe," "life," "light," "truth," and "abide."

OUTLINE

1:1-18	The prologue
1:1-5	The Word was God
1:6-18	The Word became flesh
1:19-12:50	The book of signs
1:19-2:12	The first disciples and water into wine
2:13-4:54	Temple, Nicodemus, and the woman at the well
13:1-17:26	The farewell
13:1-38	Footwashing and the new commandment
14:1-16:33	The way, the Spirit, and the vine
18:1-20:31	Passion and resurrection
18:1-19:42	Arrest, trial, and crucifixion
20:1-31	The empty tomb and Thomas
21:1-25	Epilogue
21:1-25	Breakfast by the sea and Peter restored

Acts

The church begins and spreads

AUTHOR	Traditionally Luke, the author of the third Gospel.
DATE	Covers about AD 30 to 62. Often dated to the 60s or later.
SETTING	The early church spreads from Jerusalem to Rome.
GENRE	Historical narrative.
THEME	The risen Christ builds his church through the Holy Spirit, taking the gospel to all nations.
KEY VERSE	Acts 1:8
IN THIS PLAN	Units 15, 19, 22 and 23; Days 600-830 (26 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Acts continues what Jesus began to do and teach (1:1), now through the Spirit and the church. Luke shows the risen Christ ruling from heaven, adding to his church, and bringing the gospel to every nation.

HOW TO READ IT

Acts follows the plan of 1:8: Jerusalem, Judea and Samaria, and the ends of the earth. Watch for summary statements such as "the word of God continued to increase" that mark each stage.

OUTLINE

1:1-8:3	Witness in Jerusalem
1:1-26	The ascension and the replacement of Judas
8:4-12:25	Judea, Samaria, and the first Gentiles
8:4-40	Philip in Samaria and the Ethiopian
13:1-15:35	The first journey and the Jerusalem council
13:1-14:28	Paul and Barnabas sent out
15:1-35	The Jerusalem council
15:36-21:16	Paul's later journeys
15:36-18:22	Macedonia, Athens, and Corinth
18:23-20:38	Ephesus and the farewell
21:17-28:31	Arrest and Rome
21:17-23:35	Arrest in Jerusalem
24:1-26:32	Before Felix, Festus, and Agrippa

New Testament: Paul's Letters

Romans

The gospel explained

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 57.
SETTING	Written to believers in Rome, a church Paul had not yet visited.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Righteousness from God comes by faith in Christ to Jew and Gentile alike.
KEY VERSE	Romans 1:16-17
IN THIS PLAN	Units 1, 4, 5, 12, 15, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 24; Days 6-860 (28 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Romans shows that God's righteousness is revealed in Christ, who was delivered up for our trespasses and raised for our justification (4:25). Christ is the second Adam (5:12-21), the end of the law for righteousness (10:4), and the one in whom there is no condemnation (8:1).

HOW TO READ IT

Romans is a tightly argued letter. Read it in large sections. Chapters 1 to 8 explain the gospel, 9 to 11 explain God's plan for Israel, and 12 to 16 explain how to live it.

OUTLINE

1:1-17	Introduction
1:18-3:20	All are guilty
3:21-5:21	Justification by faith
3:21-31	Righteousness through faith in Christ
6:1-8:39	New life in Christ
6:1-23	Dead to sin, alive to God
9:1-11:36	God's plan for Israel
9:1-29	God's sovereign choice
12:1-15:13	Living the gospel
12:1-21	Living sacrifices
15:14-16:27	Paul's plans and greetings
15:14-33	Paul's ministry

1 Corinthians

Order and love in a divided church

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 53 to 55.
SETTING	Written to the church in Corinth, which faced division and moral problems.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	The cross reshapes church life, and love is the way of Christ's people.
KEY VERSE	1 Corinthians 15:3-4
IN THIS PLAN	Units 18, 21 and 22; Days 667-801 (14 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul says that Christ crucified is the power and wisdom of God (1:23-24), that Christ is our Passover lamb (5:7), and that he has been raised as the firstfruits of those who have died (15:20).

HOW TO READ IT

1 Corinthians answers specific questions and problems in a divided church. Notice how Paul returns to the cross in each section, and how chapter 13 on love sits in the middle of the discussion of gifts.

OUTLINE

1:1-4:21	Division and the cross
1:1-17	Greeting and appeal for unity
5:1-7:40	Moral questions
5:1-6:20	Immorality and lawsuits
8:1-11:1	Food offered to idols
8:1-13	Knowledge and love
11:2-14:40	Worship and gifts
11:2-34	Order in worship and the Lord's Supper
12:1-31	Spiritual gifts and one body
15:1-58	The resurrection
15:1-11	The gospel of first importance
15:12-34	If Christ is not raised
16:1-24	The collection and closing

2 Corinthians

Weakness and ministry

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 55 to 56.
SETTING	Paul defends his ministry and urges generosity and reconciliation.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	God's power appears in weakness, and the new covenant ministry gives new life.
KEY VERSE	2 Corinthians 12:9
IN THIS PLAN	Units 4, 15, 19, 21 and 25; Days 87-892 (9 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul says that the one who knew no sin became sin for us (5:21), that Christ's grace was sufficient in weakness (12:9), and that God has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Christ (4:6).

HOW TO READ IT

2 Corinthians is Paul's most personal letter. Notice how he defends his ministry not by showing strength, but by showing weakness, and how he ties his suffering to the cross.

OUTLINE

1:1-7:16	Paul's ministry
1:1-2:17	Comfort and the change of plans
3:1-4:6	The new covenant ministry
4:7-5:21	Treasure in jars of clay and reconciliation
6:1-7:16	Open hearts and godly grief
8:1-9:15	The collection for Jerusalem
8:1-24	The example of the Macedonians
9:1-15	God loves a cheerful giver
10:1-13:14	Paul defends his apostleship
10:1-18	Paul's authority
11:1-12:10	The fool's speech and the thorn in the flesh
12:11-13:14	Final warnings and greetings

Galatians

Freedom in the gospel

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Dated between about AD 48 and 55, depending on where the churches were located.
SETTING	Paul writes to churches being pressured to add the law to the gospel.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	We are justified by faith in Christ, not by works of the law.
KEY VERSE	Galatians 2:20
IN THIS PLAN	Units 20-21; Days 730-757 (6 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul says that Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us (3:13), and that he now lives in believers (2:20). The central message is that Christ alone is enough.

HOW TO READ IT

Galatians is a letter of urgency. Paul does not begin with thanksgiving. Notice the movement from the defense of the gospel to its meaning to its fruit in daily life.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:21	Paul defends the gospel
1:1-10	No other gospel
1:11-2:10	Paul's call and the Jerusalem leaders
2:11-21	Paul opposes Peter and justification by faith
3:1-4:31	Faith and the law
3:1-14	Abraham and the blessing
3:15-29	The purpose of the law
4:1-31	Sons and heirs
5:1-6:18	Freedom and the Spirit
5:1-15	Stand firm in freedom
5:16-26	The fruit of the Spirit
6:1-18	Bear one another's burdens

Ephesians

The church in Christ

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul. Some scholars question this, though the church has long affirmed Pauline authorship.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 60 to 62, from prison.
SETTING	Written to believers in Ephesus and perhaps nearby churches.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	God has united Jew and Gentile in Christ, and calls the church to live worthy of that calling.
KEY VERSE	Ephesians 2:8-9
IN THIS PLAN	Units 4, 20, 21 and 22; Days 86-790 (9 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul says that all things are summed up in Christ (1:10), that Christ is the cornerstone of the household of God (2:20), and that the church is his body and his bride (5:25-32).

HOW TO READ IT

Ephesians has two halves: what God has done (chapters 1 to 3) and how we then live (chapters 4 to 6). Watch for the repeated phrase “in Christ” and for the long sentences, especially in chapter 1.

OUTLINE

1:1-3:21	What God has done in Christ
1:1-14	Every spiritual blessing
1:15-23	Prayer for understanding
2:1-10	Saved by grace through faith
2:11-22	One new man
3:1-21	The mystery and the prayer
4:1-6:24	How the church lives
4:1-16	Unity and gifts
4:17-5:21	The old self and the new
5:22-6:9	Households
6:10-20	The armor of God
6:21-24	Closing

Philippians

Joy in Christ

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 60 to 62, from prison.
SETTING	Written to a loved and generous church in Philippi.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Christ is our joy, our example, and our goal.
KEY VERSE	Philippians 4:13
IN THIS PLAN	Units 17, 20, 21 and 22; Days 635-796 (6 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

The hymn in 2:6-11 is one of the clearest statements of Christ's humility, incarnation, death, and exaltation. Paul says that to live is Christ and to die is gain (1:21).

HOW TO READ IT

Philippians is a letter of joy written from prison. Count how many times "joy" and "rejoice" appear. Notice how Paul ties humility and unity to the example of Christ.

OUTLINE

1:1-26	Paul's situation
1:1-11	Greeting, thanks, and prayer
1:12-26	Chains and the advance of the gospel
1:27-2:18	Unity and humility
1:27-2:4	Live worthy of the gospel
2:5-11	The mind of Christ
2:12-18	Work out your salvation
2:19-3:21	Examples and warnings
2:19-30	Timothy and Epaphroditus
3:1-11	Paul's former gain, now loss
3:12-21	Pressing on toward the goal
4:1-23	Encouragements and thanks
4:1-9	Rejoice and think on these things
4:10-23	Thanks for the gift

Colossians

Christ is supreme

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 60 to 62, from prison.
SETTING	Written to a church facing false teaching.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Christ is sufficient and supreme over all things.
KEY VERSE	Colossians 1:15-17
IN THIS PLAN	Units 15, 17 and 22; Days 600-801 (6 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Colossians 1:15-20 describes Christ as the image of the invisible God, the creator and sustainer of all things, and the one who reconciles all things through the blood of his cross.

HOW TO READ IT

Colossians answers a false teaching with a large picture of Christ. Notice the argument: because Christ is supreme and sufficient, you were raised with him, so live that way.

OUTLINE

1:1-14	Greeting and prayer
1:1-8	Thanksgiving
1:9-14	Prayer for knowledge
1:15-2:23	The supremacy of Christ
1:15-23	Christ preeminent
1:24-2:5	Paul's labor
2:6-23	Warnings against empty philosophy
3:1-4:6	New life in Christ
3:1-17	Put off the old and put on the new
3:18-4:1	Households
4:2-6	Prayer and wise conduct
4:7-18	Final greetings

1 Thessalonians

Hope in Christ's return

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 50 to 51.
SETTING	Written to a young church facing persecution.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Stay faithful and hopeful, for Christ will return.
KEY VERSE	1 Thessalonians 4:16-17
IN THIS PLAN	Units 20 and 22; Days 740-804 (4 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul writes about the coming of the Lord Jesus, when he descends from heaven, the dead in Christ rise, and we are with the Lord forever (4:16-17). Christ is the one who delivers us from the wrath to come (1:10).

HOW TO READ IT

Notice that each chapter ends with the coming of Christ. Paul writes to encourage a church that is suffering and worried about loved ones who have died.

OUTLINE

1:1-3:13	Thanksgiving and Paul's care
1:1-10	The faith of the Thessalonians
2:1-16	Paul's ministry among them
2:17-3:13	Longing to see them
4:1-5:28	Living for the Lord
4:1-12	Holiness and love
4:13-18	The coming of the Lord
5:1-11	The day of the Lord
5:12-28	Final instructions

2 Thessalonians

Standing firm until the Day

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 50 to 52.
SETTING	Written to correct confusion about the day of the Lord.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Stand firm and keep working while waiting for Christ.
KEY VERSE	2 Thessalonians 2:15
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 22; Day 809

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Christ will be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels (1:7), and the Lord Jesus will destroy the man of lawlessness by the breath of his mouth (2:8).

HOW TO READ IT

1:5-12	Justice at the revelation of Christ
2:1-17	The day of the Lord
2:1-12	The man of lawlessness
2:13-17	Stand firm
3:1-18	Prayer, work, and closing
3:1-5	Pray for us
3:6-15	Warning against idleness
3:16-18	Benediction

1 Timothy

Order in the church

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul. Some scholars question Pauline authorship of the pastoral letters, though the church has long affirmed it.
DATE	Usually dated in the early 60s AD.
SETTING	Written to Timothy, who is leading the church in Ephesus.
GENRE	Pastoral letter.
THEME	Guard sound teaching and organize the church for godly life.
KEY VERSE	1 Timothy 3:15
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 22; Days 810-813 (3 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul says that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners (1:15), that there is one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus (2:5), and that the church is the pillar and buttress of the truth (3:15).

HOW TO READ IT

1 Timothy is a letter from an older pastor to a younger pastor. Notice how Paul returns to sound teaching, godly character, and the dangers of false teaching and love of money.

OUTLINE

1:1-20	Warning against false teachers
1:1-11	The law and false teaching
1:12-20	Paul's testimony and charge
2:1-3:16	Worship and leadership
2:1-15	Prayer and conduct in worship
3:1-13	Overseers and deacons
3:14-16	The mystery of godliness
4:1-6:21	Instructions for Timothy and the church
4:1-16	A good servant of Christ Jesus
5:1-6:2	Widows, elders, and slaves
6:3-21	Contentment, wealth, and a final charge

2 Timothy

Paul's last letter

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 64 to 67.
SETTING	Paul writes from prison, expecting to die.
GENRE	Pastoral letter.
THEME	Be faithful, guard the gospel, and pass it on.
KEY VERSE	2 Timothy 3:16-17
IN THIS PLAN	Units 1 and 22; Days 2-815 (3 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul says that Christ Jesus abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel (1:10), and that the Lord stood by him and strengthened him (4:17).

HOW TO READ IT

2 Timothy is Paul's last letter, written near the end of his life. Notice the urgency: guard the gospel, endure suffering, and pass it on.

OUTLINE

1:1-18	Do not be ashamed
1:1-7	Fan into flame the gift of God
1:8-18	Do not be ashamed of the testimony
2:1-26	Be strong and endure
2:1-13	A soldier, athlete, and farmer
2:14-26	A worker approved
3:1-17	Hold to Scripture
3:1-9	Difficult times
3:10-17	All Scripture is breathed out by God
4:1-22	Preach the word
4:1-8	I have fought the good fight
4:9-22	Personal requests and final words

Titus

Good works that adorn the gospel

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated in the early to mid-60s AD.
SETTING	Written to Titus on the island of Crete.
GENRE	Pastoral letter.
THEME	The grace of God leads to godly living.
KEY VERSE	Titus 2:11-12
IN THIS PLAN	Units 17 and 22; Days 638-816 (3 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul says that Christ Jesus gave himself for us to redeem us from all lawlessness and to purify for himself a people for his own possession (2:14). Our hope is the appearing of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ.

HOW TO READ IT

Titus is a short letter about how sound doctrine leads to good works. Notice the repeated call to "good works" and to a life that adorns the gospel.

OUTLINE

1:1-16	Appointing elders
1:1-4	Greeting
1:5-9	Qualifications for elders
1:10-16	Rebuking false teachers
2:1-15	Teaching for every group
2:1-10	Older men and women, younger men, and slaves
2:11-15	The grace of God has appeared
3:1-15	Doing good
3:1-8	Saved not by works but by mercy
3:9-15	Final instructions

Philemon

A plea for a runaway slave

AUTHOR	The apostle Paul.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 60 to 62.
SETTING	Paul writes to Philemon about Onesimus.
GENRE	Personal letter.
THEME	The gospel changes relationships, making masters and slaves brothers.
KEY VERSE	Philemon 15-16
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 22; Day 817

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Paul appeals for Onesimus on the basis of love, as one who stands in Christ's place for a debtor, "charge that to my account" (v. 18). The letter pictures what Christ has done for us.

HOW TO READ IT

Philemon is a personal letter and a model of persuasion. Notice how Paul appeals instead of commanding, and how he reframes Onesimus as a brother.

OUTLINE

1-3	Greeting
1-2	The senders and recipients
3	Grace and peace
4-7	Thanksgiving and prayer
4-5	Philemon's faith and love
6-7	Prayer for the sharing of faith

8-11	Appeal for my child
12-16	No longer as a slave but as a beloved brother
17-22	The request
17-19	Charge it to my account
20-22	Refresh my heart and prepare a guest room
23-25	Closing greetings

New Testament: General Letters and Revelation

Hebrews

Christ is better

AUTHOR	Not named in the text. The author is unknown, and several names have been suggested.
DATE	Usually dated before AD 70, though not certain.
SETTING	Written to believers tempted to turn back.
GENRE	Sermon in the form of a letter.
THEME	Jesus is greater than angels, Moses, and the priests, and his sacrifice is final.
KEY VERSE	Hebrews 4:14
IN THIS PLAN	Units 3, 7, 12, 17, 19, 22, 23 and 24; Days 32-839 (17 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Hebrews presents Jesus as superior to the prophets, angels, Moses, and the Levitical priesthood. He is the great high priest and the once-for-all sacrifice who sat down at the right hand of God.

HOW TO READ IT

Hebrews alternates between exposition and warning. Notice the repeated word “better” and the five warning passages. The letter is written as a word of exhortation to endure.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:18	Jesus is greater than angels
1:1-4	God has spoken by his Son
3:1-4:13	Jesus is greater than Moses
3:1-6	Faithful as a Son
4:14-7:28	Jesus is the greater priest
4:14-5:10	A sympathetic high priest
8:1-10:18	The new covenant and sacrifice
8:1-13	A better covenant
10:19-12:29	Faith and endurance
10:19-39	Draw near and hold fast
11:1-40	The hall of faith
13:1-25	Final instructions
13:1-19	Love and obedience
13:20-25	Benediction

James

Faith that works

AUTHOR	James. Tradition identifies him as the brother of Jesus.
DATE	Often dated in the 40s or 60s AD.
SETTING	Written to Jewish Christians scattered abroad.
GENRE	Letter with wisdom teaching.
THEME	Genuine faith produces practical obedience.
KEY VERSE	James 2:17
IN THIS PLAN	Units 1 and 24; Days 4-842 (6 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

James calls himself a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ and speaks of the coming of the Lord (5:7-8). The wisdom he describes, pure, peaceable, and gentle, is the character of Christ.

HOW TO READ IT

James is like a sermon in short sections. Notice the many echoes of Jesus' Sermon on the Mount, and that he is not opposing faith, but showing how genuine faith acts.

OUTLINE

1:1-18	Trials and temptations
1:1-12	Joy in trials
1:13-18	God does not tempt
1:19-2:26	Hearing and doing
1:19-27	Be doers of the word
2:1-13	No partiality
2:14-26	Faith and works
3:1-4:12	Words and wisdom
3:1-12	Taming the tongue
3:13-4:12	Wisdom from above and worldliness
4:13-5:20	Patience and prayer
4:13-5:6	Boasting and the rich
5:7-20	Patience, oaths, and the prayer of faith

1 Peter

Hope in suffering

AUTHOR	The apostle Peter.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 62 to 65.
SETTING	Written to scattered believers facing hostility.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Christians live as exiles with a living hope.
KEY VERSE	1 Peter 1:3
IN THIS PLAN	Units 4, 12, 22 and 24; Days 87-849 (6 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Peter says that Christ suffered for us, leaving us an example (2:21), bore our sins in his body on the tree (2:24), and that we are redeemed with the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without blemish (1:18-19).

HOW TO READ IT

1 Peter is addressed to suffering Christians. Notice how he links suffering and glory, and how he calls the church "exiles" and "a holy priesthood."

OUTLINE

1:1-2:10	A living hope and a holy people
1:1-12	Born again to a living hope
1:13-2:3	Be holy
2:4-10	A chosen race and a royal priesthood
2:11-3:12	Living honorably
2:11-25	Submission and the example of Christ
3:1-12	Wives, husbands, and all
3:13-5:14	Suffering and humility
3:13-22	Suffering for righteousness
4:1-19	Living for God
5:1-14	Elders, humility, and greetings

2 Peter

Remember and grow

AUTHOR	The apostle Peter. Some scholars question this, while the church has long affirmed it.
DATE	Usually dated about AD 64 to 68.
SETTING	Written to warn against false teachers.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Grow in knowledge of Christ and hold fast until he returns.
KEY VERSE	2 Peter 3:9
IN THIS PLAN	Units 1, 24 and 25; Days 2-894 (5 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Peter speaks of the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ (1:16), the transfiguration as an eyewitness testimony, and the promise of new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells (3:13).

HOW TO READ IT

2 Peter is Peter's farewell. Notice his concern that readers remember what they have been taught and not be carried away by false teachers.

OUTLINE

1:1-21	Growing in godliness
1:1-11	Make your calling and election sure
1:12-21	The reliability of the apostolic testimony
2:1-22	False teachers
2:1-10	Their judgment is certain
2:11-22	Their character exposed
3:1-18	The day of the Lord
3:1-13	Scoffers and the patience of the Lord
3:14-18	Grow in grace

1 John

Assurance of eternal life

AUTHOR	Traditionally the apostle John.
DATE	Often dated about AD 85 to 95.
SETTING	Written to believers troubled by false teaching.
GENRE	Letter.
THEME	Walk in the light, love one another, and know that you have eternal life.
KEY VERSE	1 John 5:13
IN THIS PLAN	Units 21 and 24; Days 754-860 (5 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

John begins with the word of life that we have heard, seen, and touched (1:1-4), says that Jesus Christ the righteous is our advocate (2:1), and says that God sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins (4:10).

HOW TO READ IT

1 John circles back to three themes: light and sin, righteousness and obedience, and love. Notice the tests of genuine faith: believing in Jesus, obeying his commands, and loving the brothers.

OUTLINE

1:1-2:2	Walking in the light
1:1-4	The word of life
1:5-2:2	Light, sin, and the advocate
2:3-27	Obedience and love
2:3-11	Keeping his commandments
2:12-17	Do not love the world
2:18-27	Antichrists
2:28-4:6	Children of God
2:28-3:10	Righteousness and sin
3:11-24	Love one another
4:1-6	Test the spirits
4:7-5:12	Love and faith
4:7-21	God is love
5:1-12	Faith overcomes the world
5:13-21	Assurance
5:13-21	That you may know that you have eternal life

2 John

Truth and love

AUTHOR	The author calls himself "the elder," and tradition identifies him with John.
DATE	Often dated about AD 85 to 95.
SETTING	Written to "the elect lady and her children."
GENRE	Short letter.
THEME	Walk in truth and love, and avoid false teachers.
KEY VERSE	2 John 6
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 24; Day 862

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

John warns against those who do not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh (v. 7). The true teaching about Christ is the center of the letter.

HOW TO READ IT

2 John is one page. Notice how it holds together truth and love, and how it warns against welcoming teachers who deny Christ.

OUTLINE

1-3	Greeting
1-2	The elder to the elect lady
3	Grace, mercy, and peace
4-6	Walk in love
4	Walking in the truth
5-6	Love one another
7-11	Beware of deceivers
7	Many deceivers
8-11	Do not receive them
12-13	Closing

3 John

Hospitality for the truth

AUTHOR	The author calls himself "the elder."
DATE	Often dated about AD 85 to 95.
SETTING	Written to Gaius about hospitality for traveling teachers.
GENRE	Short letter.
THEME	Support those who work for the truth.
KEY VERSE	3 John 8
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 24; Day 863

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

John says that the traveling teachers went out for the sake of the name (v. 7). Christ's name is the reason for hospitality and the center of the mission.

HOW TO READ IT

3 John is the most personal of John's letters. Notice the three people: Gaius, Diotrephes, and Demetrius, and the contrast between hospitality and pride.

OUTLINE

1-4	Greeting to Gaius
1-2	The elder to the beloved Gaius
3-4	Walking in the truth
5-8	Support the missionaries
5-6	Faithful in all you do
7-8	Fellow workers for the truth
9-12	Diotrephes and Demetrius
9-10	Diotrephes who loves to be first
11-12	Imitate good, and Demetrius is commended
13-15	Closing

Jude

Contend for the faith

AUTHOR	Jude, who calls himself a brother of James.
DATE	Often dated in the 60s AD.
SETTING	Written to warn against false teachers.
GENRE	Short letter.
THEME	Defend the faith once delivered and keep yourselves in God's love.
KEY VERSE	Jude 24-25
IN THIS PLAN	Unit 24; Day 864

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Jude calls Jesus Christ our only Master and Lord (v. 4) and ends by pointing to the one who is able to keep us from stumbling and present us blameless with great joy (v. 24).

HOW TO READ IT

Jude is a short, urgent letter. Notice the many examples from Scripture and Jewish tradition, and the call to build yourself up and keep yourself in the love of God.

20-23	Build yourselves up and show mercy
24-25	Doxology

Revelation

The unveiling of Jesus Christ

AUTHOR	John, traditionally the apostle John.
DATE	Often dated about AD 95, though some propose the 60s.
SETTING	Written to seven churches in Asia Minor facing pressure.
GENRE	Apocalyptic prophecy and letter.
THEME	Christ wins, evil is judged, and God makes all things new.
KEY VERSE	Revelation 21:5
IN THIS PLAN	Units 22 and 25; Days 803-895 (17 days of reading)

CHRIST IN THIS BOOK

Revelation is the unveiling of Jesus Christ (1:1). He is the first and the last, the lamb who was slain and is worthy, the faithful and true rider, and the bridegroom who returns for his bride.

HOW TO READ IT

Revelation is full of symbols, and most of them come from the Old Testament. Read for the big picture: Christ reigns, the church is called to faithful witness, evil is judged, and God makes all things new.

OUTLINE

1:1-20	Vision of Christ
1:1-8	Prologue and greeting
2:1-3:22	Letters to seven churches
2:1-3:6	Ephesus to Sardis
